GCSE

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many students in receipt of free school meals took English literature GCSE in (a) 1997, (b) 2003 and (c) the latest year for which figures are available. [252600]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 29 January 2009]: It is not possible to provide figures for 1997, prior to 2002 data on pupil characteristics (including free school meal eligibility) was not matched to achievement and attainment data.

In 2003, in maintained schools in England, 56,723 (70 per cent.) pupils aged 15 at the start of the academic year, who were eligible to receive free school meals attempted GCSE English literature.

In 2008, in maintained schools in England, 46,924 (63 per cent.) pupils aged 15 at the start of the academic year, who were eligible to receive free school meals attempted GCSE English literature.

In 2003, 423,701 (86 per cent.) pupils (aged 15 at the start of the academic year) not eligible to receive free school meals attempted GCSE English literature in maintained schools.

In 2008, 421,095 (81 per cent.) pupils (aged 15 at the start of the academic year) not eligible to receive free school meals attempted GCSE English literature in maintained schools.

GCSE Mathematics

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many individuals gained mathematics GCSE at grade C or higher through passing equivalent tests or examinations in the last five years. [253396]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: In 2008, GCE AS mathematics was the only other qualification that counted in departmental indicators as an equivalent pass in GCSE mathematics. 936 pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 achieved the equivalent of grade A*-C in GCE AS level mathematics.

Prior to 2008 only GCSE mathematics passes were included.

Higher Education: Admissions

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent estimate he has made of the percentage of young people from care going to university. [251768]

Beverley Hughes: I refer the hon. Member to the response given on 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 535W.

Music: Education

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 15 July 2008, Official Report, columns 385-6W, on music: education, (1) when his Department published the formal evaluation of the programme of professional development for music teachers; and if he will make a statement; [254523]

(2) what reports his Department has received on the effectiveness of the Professional Development Fund for music teachers; and if he will make a statement; [255923]

(3) what assessment he has made of the effects of the £2 million fund for professional development of music teachers on standards of instrumental and vocal tuition in maintained schools; and if he will make a statement. [255925]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 15 July 2008, Official Report, columns 385-6W, which said that the evaluation of the programme of professional development for practitioners involved in music in primary schools is ongoing and extensive. Trinity College London and The Open University collect a wide range of data which demonstrate the extent to which music practitioners have engaged with the CPD programme. In summary: 1,300 have engaged with the programme at some level, 733 have attended the core modules, and 304 portfolios have been received to date.

An analysis of the feedback from participants in the programme indicates a high level of satisfaction with their experience. It is too early to gauge the impact on children's learning but informal evidence from local authorities who had a high proportion of teachers taking part is very positive. A review of the first phase of the programme will be published in March and will be made available through the programme website at www.ks2music.org.uk

Numeracy: Qualifications

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many individuals gained (a) Level 1 and (b) Level 2 numeracy qualifications through Allan Tests in the last five years. [253393]

Mr. Simon [holding answer 2 February 2009]: I have been asked to reply.

The information provided relates to the Adult Literacy Language and Numeracy tests. The answer has been given in terms of 2010 PSA target-bearing Skills for Life qualifications.

The following table shows the number of learners achieving at least one approved Skills for Life Level 1 numeracy or Level 2 numeracy qualification from 2004-05 to 2007-08 who attended FE Colleges, University for Industry, Work-based learning and Adult Safeguarded Learning.

The table shows only those achievements which count towards the 2010 PSA target which is to improve the basic skill levels of 2.25 million adults between the launch of Skills for Life in 2001 and 2010. This target was achieved in 2008.

The data prior to 2004-05 is calculated on a slightly different basis to these figures and has not been provided.

Beverley Hughes: To date, 2,527 people have been awarded Early Years Professional Status.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many candidates have been awarded Early Years sector-endorsed foundation degrees to date. [247290]

Beverley Hughes: The exact number of candidates awarded the Early Years Sector Endorsed Foundation Degree (EYSEFD) is not known, but we estimate that over 6,500 students have been awarded EYSEFDs since the qualification was introduced in 2002.

Pre-school Education: York

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many nursery places were available in City of York constituency in each of the last 20 years. [257970]

Beverley Hughes: Information on the number of nursery places available is not collected centrally, however information on the number of part-time early education places filled is shown in the tables.

Table 1 provides information about the part-time equivalent number of free early education places filled by three and four-year-olds in City of York parliamentary constituency area from 2004 to 2008. Data at parliamentary constituency level are not available prior to 2004.

Primary Education: Curriculum

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the interim report of the Rose Review of the primary curriculum. [253620]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Government welcome Sir Jim Rose's interim report and the broad direction of travel it sets out. Ministers will give careful consideration to his final report and recommendations, which are expected in the spring.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which schools are taking part in the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority pilot studies on the implementation of the independent review of the primary curriculum. [248594]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Following the publication of the final report in the spring, we will consider whether elements of the new primary curriculum should be piloted to inform the package of support for schools prior to the introduction of the new curriculum from September 2011. No pilots related to the independent review of the primary curriculum are currently taking place or planned prior to publication of the final report.

Pupil Referral Units

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) maintained and (b) non-maintained pupil referral units there were in each local authority in 2008. [256424]

(2) how many pupils in each local authority area attended pupil referral units in each year since 1997. [257661]

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1725-6W, on pupil referral units, how many responses to the survey were received; who collated the shortlist; and what other names were considered. [256862]

Jim Knight: The Department received over 100 suggestions for a new name for pupil referral units, in response to our consultation on the White Paper "Back on Track", published in May 2008. Officials suggested a shortlist to Ministers but Ministers also considered other possible names.

A survey was also conducted by the national organisation for pupil referral units on their website. 205 votes were cast in total, and the following names were suggested (in order of popularity):

Alternative Centre for Excellence
Spectrum school
Intensive Support school
Back on Track school Integration school
Prism school
Prospect school
Link school
Inclusion school

These names were considered by Ministers, as were the following (which were not included in the survey):

Short Stay school
Progress school
Affirmative school
Development school
Vision school
Outlook school
Opportunity school
Renewal school
Advancement school

Schools

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which of his Department's initiatives are delivered in partnership with schools; and what the cost of each was in the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available. [241635]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Children's Plan set out our ambition to make England the best place in the world for children to grow up. In preparing the Children's Plan, we listened to children, young people, parents, professionals and schools about the things that mattered to them. Our "One Year On" document describes the work undertaken in schools to achieve our ambition in the 12 month period following publication of the Children's Plan.

Schools: Children in Care

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 28 January, Official Report, columns 672-4W, on special educational needs, in which schools children in care represented more than six per cent. of pupils. [255626]

Beverley Hughes: The requested information has been placed in the Libraries.

The Department's main source of information on children in care is the Children Looked After Survey, but this does not record which schools pupils attend. However, information on whether a pupil is in care is also collected via the School Census. The most recent census data relates to January 2008.

This census shows that there were 34,390 pupils aged five to 19 attending primary, secondary and special schools classed as being in care as at January 2008. Data published by the Department as SFR 23/2008: Children looked after in England (including adoption and care leavers) year ending 31 March 2008, shows 47,600 children aged between five and 19 as being looked after as at 31 March 2008. However the School Census does not cover all looked after children; information is not collected for pupils in alternative provision, including pupil referral units, FE colleges, voluntary provision and those not in education or training. These differences in coverage will explain the different counts to an extent, but it is possible that the School Census undercounts the number of looked after children in primary, secondary and special schools.

Special Educational Needs

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils with statemented or non-statemented special educational needs of behavioural, emotional or social difficulties were given (a) fixed-period and (b) permanent exclusions from (i) primary and (ii) secondary schools in each year since 1997, broken down by reason for exclusion. [253353]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information provided shows the number of fixed period exclusions (and not the number of pupils) where the pupils' special educational need is behavioural, emotional or social difficulties. Information on the type of special educational need is collected for those pupils classed as being school action plus or who have a statement of special educational needs.

Information is only available for the school years 2005/06 and 2006/07 and is shown in the tables. For the 2005/06 school year, information on fixed period exclusions was collected via the School Census for the first time for secondary schools only.

Special Educational Needs: Children in Care

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children in care had statements of special educational needs in each year since 1997. [256894]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The OC2 data collection collects information on a range of outcomes and indicators for children looked after for at least 12 months from local authorities. This information has been published in the Statistical First Release "Outcome Indicators for Children Looked After, Twelve months to 30 September 2007—England" (SFR 08/2008), which is available on the Department's website via the following link:

This publication contains figures for the period 2005-07.

Information on the number of looked after children who had a statement of special educational needs during the year can be found in table A, which also includes figures for all children as a comparison.

This information was first collected in 2000, figures for earlier years are also published on the Department's website and can be found via the following links:

Special Educational Needs: Poverty

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and in what proportion of pupils with statements of special educational needs (a) lived and (b) attended school in the most deprived decile of lower layer super output areas in 2008, as determined by the income deprivation affecting children index. [256349]

(a) 33,660 pupils[1, 2] with statements of special educational needs lived in the most deprived decile of lower layer super output areas as determined by IDACI[3] in 2008. This represents 16 per cent. of all statemented pupils of known residence in England.

(b) 21,660 pupils[1, 2] with statements of special educational needs attended school in the most deprived decile of lower layer super output areas as determined by IDACI[3] in 2008. This represents 10 per cent. of all statemented pupils attending schools in England.

Special Educational Needs: Pupil Exclusions

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 11 February 2009, Official Report, column 2117W on special educational needs: pupil exclusions, if he will provide a breakdown of the figures by (a) type of special educational need and (b) local authority area. [258244]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Supply Teachers

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what advice his Department provides to schools on the recruitment of supply teachers; and if he will make a statement; [256732]

(2) what discussions his Department has had with the Office of Government Commerce on the provision of supply teachers since September 2008; and if he will make a statement. [256733]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department has provided guidance to schools on the recruitment of supply teachers in the document "Safeguarding Children and Safer Recruitment in Education". The guidance sets out the responsibilities of those recruiting supply teachers and the best practices, some underpinned by legislation, to safeguard and promote the welfare of children.

The framework for the Department's Quality Mark award for employment agencies and local authorities also sets out recruitment, selection and vetting standards for supply teachers. Schools are encouraged to use holders of the Quality Mark who have demonstrated they meet these standards in managing and providing supply teachers to schools.

Temporary Workers in Education (TWiE) is a project of the Department's Educational Procurement Centre (EPC). The EPC has a remit to work across the schools sector promoting and supporting sustainable procurement practices and effective contract management with the goal of achieving cost and administrative savings for schools.

The TWiE project aims to provide London schools with a reliable, safe and accessible online method of procuring temporary education workers. It is currently working collaboratively with the London Borough of Hounslow which is in a tender process on behalf of the London Contracts and Supplies Group. Companies have been invited to tender to act as a neutral vendor which will provide an online system through which London Boroughs and London schools can procure temporary workers including supply teachers. It is expected that a contract will be awarded in June 2009.

OGC staff sit on the Project Board which oversees the TWiE project, and have done so since September 2008. OGC and DCSF have also had discussions in relation to the project, including regular monthly meetings between senior responsible staff. There have also been a number of discussions agreeing the role of OGC staff on the Project Board, and a meeting to review models for the project. Some of these discussions also touched on the provision of supply teachers and other staff outside London.

In addition to OGC's role on the TWiE Project Board, another member of OGC staff has been advising the London Contracts and Supplies Group on the current tender process and as part of this work has had some contact with Department staff, particularly on the issue of pricing models.

Sure Start Programme

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much the Government have spent on Sure Start programmes in each local authority area since 1997; and how much has been spent on Sure Start programmes in each of the (a) 20 per cent. most deprived, (b) 10 per cent. most deprived and (c) 5 per cent. most deprived local authority areas. [252062]

Beverley Hughes: The first Sure Start Local programmes were set up in 1999-2000. By 2003-04 there were 524 Sure Start Local programmes across the country. Data for revenue spend for years prior to 2003-04 are not readily available at local authority level.

The total SSLP revenue spend for all authorities for the period from 1999-2000 to 2002-03 was £315,083,000.

The delivery of first phase Children's Centres began in 2003-04.

The Combined SSLP and Children's Centres revenue spend for all authorities from 2003-04 to 2007-08 and the total capital from 1999 to 2007-08 is shown in table A.

[1] Not all audits have been received from the Sure Start Local Programmes. For those programmes with outstanding audits an average spend rate has been applied to their allocation to produce a likely spend. Similarly five of the most deprived authorities were in Local Area Agreements in 2006/07 and 2007/08 and were not required to submit statements of spend to the Department. An average spend has been applied for these authorities.

In depth data to allow the spend in each of the areas of deprivation to be determined are available from 2003-04. The revenue spend in the 20 per cent., 10 per cent. and 5 per cent. most deprived local authorities areas, as identified by the Index of Multiple Deprivation 1997 (the latest year for which data are available), is given in table B.

Truancy

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 6 October 2008, Official Report, columns 518-20W, on truancy, how many (a) fathers and (b) mothers were (i) fined and (ii) imprisoned for their children's non-attendance at school in 2007. [253395]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Ministry of Justice collects data for England and Wales on prosecutions brought against parents under the Education Act 1996 for the offence under s444(1) for failing to secure their child's regular attendance at school; and for prosecutions under s444(1A), the aggravated offence of knowing that their child is failing to attend school regularly. It is possible, because of the way courts record data that some data are collected under the more general heading of various offences under the Education Act 1996.

The information on the number of people by gender sentenced and given fines or immediate custodial sentences is detailed in the table.

The Department also separately collects for England data on penalty notices issued to parents for failing to ensure that their child attends school regularly and for the school academic year 2006/07 this was 14,625. The Department does not collect data by gender type.

Adult male and female sentenced for child truancy offences[1], 2007

	Fined	Immediate custody
Parent failing to secure their child's regular attendance at school[2]
Male	831	1
Female	2,281	5
Parent knowing that their child is failing to attend school regularly without reasonable justification to cause him or her to attend school

[1] These data are extracted on the principal offence basis.

Note:
These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

Written Answers to Questions

PRIME MINISTER

Future Aircraft Carriers

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Prime Minister For what reason the construction of the Future Aircraft Carriers has been delayed. [257877]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Quentin Davies) to my hon. Friend the Member for Jarrow (Mr. Hepburn) on Monday 23

February 2009, Official Report, column 10.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Adult Education: Mathematics

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many adult learners have taken GCSE mathematics in each year since 1990. [251994]

Mr. Simon [holding reply 27 January 2009]: The following table shows the number of learners in further education undertaking GCSE Mathematics in each academic year since 2003-04 by age group, the earliest year for which we have comparable information.

Learners in further education undertaking GCSE Mathematics by age

Age	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Under 16	100	200	100	100	100
16-18	43,600	41,500	38,700	37,500	34,500
19+	23,400	22,200	20,000	18,200	15,800
Total	67,100	63,900	58,800	55,900	50,400

Notes:
1. Age is based on age as at 31 August (academic age).
2. This information does not include learners studying GCSE Mathematics in Schools or Higher Education Institutions.
3. If a learner is studying GCSE Mathematics over more than one year, they will be counted in each year for which they are studying.

Awarding body data on GCSE examination entries is analysed by the Department for Children, Schools and Families as part of the School and College Achievement and Attainment Tables publication. However, this work only covers qualifications entered for by 16-18 year olds. Therefore, we do not have information readily available on adults being entered for GCSE Mathematics examinations.

Due to the increased number of pupils taking and successfully passing a Maths GCSE at school, we would expect the volume of learners studying this qualification at a Further Education College to fall. In 1997, there were 534,700 15 year olds (academic age) attempting GCSE Mathematics and 250,300 achieving a C grade or higher (around 50 per cent. of those attempting the subject). In 2004, 606,000 pupils attempted GCSE Mathematics at the end of Key Stage 4 with 318,900 achieving a grade A*-C (around 53 per cent. of those attempting the subject). In 2008, 609,700 pupils attempted GCSE Mathematics at the end of Key Stage 4, with 361,100 achieving a grade A*-C (59 per cent. of those attempting the subject).

Over the last few years the Government have prioritised funding towards longer and fuller programmes such as full level 2 qualifications (equivalent of 5 A*-C GCSEs or vocational equivalent) away from a higher number of shorter courses. This has increased the number of adults achieving the broad platform of skills for entering and progressing into employment, but has necessarily resulted in an overall reduction in the number of LSC funded adult learners over this period.

A GCSE may not necessarily be the most appropriate learning outcome for many learners and colleges have been encouraged to advise learners to study the most relevant qualification to them. In 2007-08, learners on apprenticeship programmes (all ages) undertook over 156,000 Key Skills qualifications in Application of Number.

Fines

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) whether any administrative financial penalties may be levied by his Department and its agencies; [253592]

(2) what administrative financial penalties may be levied by his Department and its agencies. [253593]

Mr. Lammy: As a matter of general administrative policy the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills does not levy financial penalties against third party organisations or individuals.

However, under the Education (Student Support) (Repayment) Regulations 2000 (as amended), the borrower may be charged a penalty in relation to their income contingent student loan where:

- they have failed to provide their home address or name changes within six weeks (£50);
- they have failed to comply with an Information Notice which has been served on them (£100);
- the borrower has been liable to pay a penalty in respect of an Information Notice and has not paid by the specified date, an additional penalty may be charged (£100).

Higher Education: Admissions

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what percentage of university entrants were home schooled in each of the last 10 years. [258281]

Mr. Lammy: This information is not held centrally.

Nanotechnology

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what research his Department has funded on (a) ethical, (b) environmental and (c) social issues relating to the (i) use and (ii) safety of (A) nanotechnology and (B) nanoproducts; and if he will make a statement. [255564]

Mr. Lammy: The Department of Innovation, Universities and Skills' delivery partners, the Research Councils and the Technology Strategy Board, funded through the science and research, and innovation budgets respectively, support a portfolio of research and related activities on a wide range of aspects of nanotechnology. I have arranged for a document with details to be placed in the Libraries of both Houses. It is not possible to divide the research into the categories requested, but, where possible, an indication has been given as to whether the research is addressing environmental, social, use or safety issues. The Government placed a statement about nanotechnologies in the Libraries on 28 February 2008 (House of Lords Hansard, column WS86 refers).

The Government regard nanotechnologies as an important issue, and has established a ministerial group chaired by the Minister for Science and Innovation to support their development in a responsible way.

Research: Small Businesses

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what progress has been made on the commitment in the "Innovation Nation" White Paper to extend the revised Small Business Research Initiative to all participating departments by April 2009. [258735]

Mr. Lammy: As stated in "Innovation Nation", the revised format for SBRI has been prototyped with pilot competitions by the Ministry of Defence and the Department of Health. Each Department ran two competitions in 2008, and each competition elicited a number of innovative responses from industry, demonstrating that the programme, in its revised form, has considerable potential to benefit departments as well as innovative companies. Experience from these pilots is being used to define the standard process, documentation, and support infrastructure needed for broader deployment, and to demonstrate the value of SBRI as a powerful innovation mechanism.

The Technology Strategy Board, which manages the SBRI programme, is engaging with Departments to identify and define further opportunities for the use of SBRI over the next three years. A £10 million competition with the Department for Communities and Local Government will be launched in March. The competition will encourage companies to demonstrate ways of improving the environmental sustainability of existing buildings. The Ministry of Defence, the Department of Health, and the Department for Transport also have advanced plans for SBRI competitions in 2009.

Science

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when he plans to publish his Department's strategy for science and society. [258739]

Mr. Lammy: The UK's strategy for science and society is being developed in partnership with a range of stakeholders, following an extensive consultation process in 2008, and we plan to publish in late spring 2009.

Social Work: Higher Education

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which universities providing social work degrees have stated their intention to cease providing them; and when they did so. [258468]

Mr. Lammy: Reading university has recently announced that it plans to cease providing social work degrees in order to strengthen other areas, from September 2011. However, Reading is only one of about 100 institutions providing social work courses for about 60,000 students nationally. We will be working across Government and in partnership with all those institutions which provide such courses to help them produce a social care workforce which is well trained for the extremely demanding jobs undertaken by social workers.

Students: Loans

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will make it his policy to suspend student loan repayments for graduates earning less than £30,000 per annum. [258981]

Mr. Lammy: There are no plans to suspend repayments for graduates earning less than £30,000. Repayment terms are already generous, and heavily subsidised by the taxpayer. Borrowers with income-contingent student loans repay at a rate of 9 per cent. of earnings above the repayment threshold of £15,000. This means that, for example, student loan borrower earning £18,000 a year would repay £5.19 per week.

We are committed to maintaining the repayment threshold at £15,000 until 2010, when we will review it.

Whitehall Innovation Hub

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the cost of establishing the Whitehall Innovation Hub was; and what funding his Department plans to allocate to it in (a) 2008-09 and (b) subsequent years. [258736]

Mr. Lammy: DIUS has provided £300,000 during 2008-09 for the Sunningdale Institute to establish the Whitehall Innovation Hub. This funding has included launching and setting up the Hub in 2008, running costs and activities in the financial year 2008-09.

The Department is currently in discussions with the Hub over funding arrangements for the future.

Work Experience

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many places on the planned national internship programme are expected to be available annually. [258389]

Mr. Lammy: In these challenging economic times, the Government are aiming to help new graduates in a number of ways. Amongst other measures, we are working with key stakeholders in the private, public and charitable sectors to increase provision of graduate internships for 2009. We expect these internships to offer graduates the opportunity to spend time with an employer, applying their learning in a working situation and building the work ready skills they will need for permanent employment. It is still early days, so we are not yet in a position to confirm the number of additional places involved.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Housing: Repairs and Maintenance

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the housing management and maintenance allocations were in (a) real and (b) cash terms for each English region in each year since 1997. [257641]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have placed tables in the Library of the House showing allocations for management and maintenance allowances shown in 2007-08 prices, and in cash terms, for each local authority in each English region in each year since 1997.

In general local authorities' allowances increase year on year in line with inflation. Fluctuations in allowances between years reflect the response of the system to changes in underlying data arising, for example, from changes in stock numbers, crime data, and the index of deprivation.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the allocations for major repair allowance were in (a) real and (b) cash terms for each (i) English region and (ii) London local authority in each year since 1997. [257642]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have placed tables in the Library of the House showing allocations for major repairs allowances shown in 2007-08 prices, and in cash terms, for each local authority in each English region, and in each London local authority in each year since 1997.

In general local authorities' allowances increase year on year in line with inflation. Fluctuations in allowances between years reflect the response of the system to changes in underlying data arising, for example, from changes in stock numbers, and building or other cost adjustments.

Council Housing: Waiting Lists

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people are on local authority housing waiting lists in (a) St Albans and (b) Hertfordshire; and what the equivalent figures were (i) five and (ii) 10 years ago. [256977]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information is available on numbers of households rather than people. The number of households registered on local authority housing waiting lists in each local authority, as at 1 April each year, is published on the Communities and Local Government website in Table 600. The latest available data are at April 2008. The link for this table is as follows:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/table600.xls

Local authorities in England report the numbers of households on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns. The number of households on local authorities' waiting lists in St. Albans and Hertfordshire is given in the following table.

Number of households on the council house waiting list (excludes households looking for transfers)

	April 1998	April 2003	April 2008
St. Albans	1,758	1,764	1,521
Hertfordshire	18,601	19,677	26,891

Further information on the number of households on the local authority housing waiting lists for England, can be found in the statistical release "Local Authority Housing Statistics England: 2007-08: Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA) and Business Plan Statistical Appendix (BPSA)" This was published on 22 January 2009 on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/corporate/statistics/lahousing200708

Copies of the statistical release and live table have been deposited in the Library.

Not everyone on the local authority waiting list is necessarily in urgent housing need. The waiting list includes those who consider social housing as their preferred or one of a number of housing options, and those who decide to get onto the waiting list ladder before they need or want to move house—particularly where the priority system is heavily based on waiting time. The size of the waiting list is not an indicator of absolute need, it is only useful as a broad indicator of housing demand in an area.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to increase the availability of affordable housing in (a) Reading and (b) the Thames Valley region. [258154]

Mr. Iain Wright: We are committed to a substantial increase in affordable housing. The long-term aspiration is to deliver 70,000 affordable homes a year in England by 2010-11. These affordable homes will be funded mainly by the Homes and Communities Agency established last year to improve the effectiveness of housing delivery.

The growth programme funds infrastructure to support housing growth. Within the Thames Valley Reading, Milton Keynes, Aylesbury Vale and Didcot will receive a total of £21 million in 2009-10 from growth programmes. In addition in Reading the Homes and Communities Agency has committed to funding over 800 new affordable homes this year. Across the rest of the Thames Valley investment through the Homes and Communities Agency is due to deliver a further 1,200 affordable homes this year.

Local Government Finance: Greater London

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the management and maintenance allocations were to each London local authority in (a) real and (b) cash terms in each year since 1997. [257640]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have placed tables in the Library of the House showing allocations for Management and Maintenance allowances shown in 2007-08 prices, and in cash terms, for each local authority in London in each year since 1997.

In general local authorities' allowances increase year on year in line with inflation. Fluctuations in allowances between years reflect the response of the system to changes in underlying data arising, for example, from changes in stock numbers, crime data, and the index of deprivation.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she plans to reply to the letters of 3 December 2008 and 30 January 2009 from the hon. Member for Forest of Dean on the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007, reference FD9865. [258766]

Mr. Khan: I replied to the hon. Member's correspondence on 23 February 2009.

Neighbourhood Renewal Fund

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much of the Neighbourhood Renewal Fund monies (a) allocated by her Department in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08 and (b) carried forward to 2008-09 have been spent, broken down by district; and if she will make a statement. [258771]

John Healey: The Neighbourhood Renewal Fund allocation was £525 million for 2006-07 and £525 million for 2007-08. I have placed in the Library of the House a table showing the amounts paid to each local authority for the years 2006-07 and 2007-08. Any money carried over from 2006-07 had to be used by the end of 2007-08.

Neighbourhood Renewal Fund was provided on a non-ringfenced basis for 2007-08; local authorities could therefore make their own decisions on carrying forward a level of funding and Government did not compel local authorities to submit details on the amount carried forward between years.

Non-domestic Rates: Ports

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much each of the Humber ports paid in business rates in (a) 2004, (b) 2005, (c) 2006, (d) 2007 and (e) 2008; and for how much each such port is liable in respect of each year since 2005 following the new assessments made in 2008. [256951]

John Healey: The Department does not hold this information. Local authorities are responsible for billing and collection of rates from individual businesses.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has for the administration of the scheme to enable businesses to pay backdated rates bills over eight years in relation to (a) port and (b) other businesses; whether her Department has issued instructions to local authorities on the claiming of arrears; and what estimate she has made of the cost to the Exchequer of the payment scheme. [256719]

John Healey: The Department has issued a Business Rates Information Letter (BRIL 2/2009) on the policy for a schedule of payments, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House. I have also written to the leaders of billing authorities confirming that the legislation has been put in place. The impact of the policy is set out in the impact assessment which was laid before this House on 10 February accompanying the Non-Domestic Rating (Collection and Enforcement) (Local Lists) (Amendment) (England) Regulations 2009 (SI 204).

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) has refused to implement fast track arrangements for port businesses which are unable to provide the VOA with previous rating assessments in relation to the review of their new rating assessments; and if she will make it her policy to allow such businesses to gain access to fast track arrangements by submitting notional figures for previous assessments. [256720]

John Healey: The Valuation Office Agency has implemented the fast track arrangements for all ports businesses affected by a backdated liability for business rates as a result of the review of businesses within ports.

Where ratepayers have failed to submit appeals (proposals) in accordance with the legislation, these have been treated as invalid. It is in the interests of fairness to all ratepayers that the regulations, which determine how appeals should be made, are applied consistently. However the Valuation Office Agency has continued to deal with and respond to these cases in accordance with the fast track arrangements despite the absence of a valid appeal.

Non-Domestic Rates: Small Businesses

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department allocated to small business rate relief in each year since 2005; and how much was claimed in such relief in each local authority area in each year. [258762]

John Healey: The Department does not allocate funding for small business rate relief as this is funded by businesses not eligible for the relief by a supplement on their rates bill.

In regard to relief claimed in each local authority I refer to my answer given to the hon. Member for Hornsey and Wood Green (Lynne Featherstone) on 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1660W.

I have placed in the Library of the House a table showing (a) the number of businesses that were in receipt of small business rate relief in each local authority in England as at 31 December 2006, the only year for which this information is currently available and (b) the total relief granted in each local authority in England in 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08.

Ordnance Survey: VAT

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether Ordnance Survey has reduced its retail prices for items which attract value added tax since December 2008. [258395]

Mr. Iain Wright: The change in the standard rate of VAT effective from 1 December 2008 has been applied to business prices for all Ordnance Survey data products and services that are subject to VAT at the standard rate.

Ordnance Survey paper maps are zero-rated for VAT and hence no price adjustments have been made for these products.

Rented Housing: York

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people there are on housing waiting lists in City of York constituency; and how many there were in each of the last 15 years. [257833]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information is available on numbers of households rather than people. The number of households registered on local authority housing waiting lists in each local authority, as at 1 April each year, is published on the Communities and Local Government website in table 600. The latest available data are at April 2008. The link for this table is given as follows:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/table600.xls

Local authorities in England report the numbers of households on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual housing strategy statistical appendix returns. The City of York constituency is included in the unitary authority of York. The number of households on local authorities' waiting lists in the unitary authority of York is given in the following table. Data are not available prior to 1997.

Number of households on the waiting list (excludes households looking for transfers)

	York UA

Roscommon Way Extension

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment has been made of the environmental impact of the Roscommon Way Extension, Canvey Island. [258553]

Margaret Beckett: As part of the community infrastructure business case requirements and owing to the value of the Roscommon Way Extension scheme (in excess of £10 million) the Departments for Transport and Communities and Local Government requested that Essex county council complete a full 'Major Schemes Business Case'. This was subsequently submitted in May 2008. It contained an initial environmental assessment which included noise, air quality, landscape, townscape, heritage, biodiversity and water environment analyses. Building on this assessment, the county council has submitted a planning application which includes a detailed environmental impact assessment, which proposes a raft of mitigation measures including invertebrate relocation, avoidance of water courses and careful landscaping to minimise the noise impact.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will publish a copy of his Department's website accessibility plan. [257227]

Jonathan Shaw: We have developed a website accessibility statement for our departmental site, and it is available online at:

Our accessibility policy for this website is available on request from this page, in line with Cabinet Office guidelines.

More detailed plans for improving accessibility for parts of our websites are under development, with the aim of complying with Level Double-A of the W3C Web Content Accessibility Guidelines by December 2009.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff in his Department were on sick leave for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years. [256338]

Jonathan Shaw: The information is contained in the following table. The data reflect information currently held on the Department's personnel computer system.

Disadvantaged: Finance

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much funding was allocated by his Department under the deprived areas fund to each local authority in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [254452]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 5 February 2009]: No funding was allocated by DWP to local authorities in 2006-07 or 2007-08 under the deprived areas fund.

In 2006-07 the deprived areas fund was allocated direct to district managers in Jobcentre Plus.

In 2007-08 the deprived areas fund was allocated directly to district managers in Jobcentre Plus and to 15 city strategy pathfinders. However, some pathfinders elected to receive their deprived areas fund via a nominated local authority acting as their lead accountable body. Allocations are shown in the tables.

Drugs: Rehabilitation

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what sanctions would apply if an individual refused to participate in (a) a substance-related assessment, (b) an interview, (c) other relevant tests and (d) rehabilitation plans under provisions contained in Schedule 1 of the Welfare Reform Bill. [256955]

Mr. McNulty: Under current plans the sanctions that will apply will be similar to those in place for refusing to take the steps necessary to tackle other barriers to work. Currently, for failing to comply with a Jobseeker Direction, the claimant will incur two weeks' benefit loss in the first instance, followed by four and 26 weeks' loss for repeated failure to comply. Those on employment and support allowance can lose up to half of the work related activity component of their benefit for four weeks if they fail to meet with conditionality requirements. If they still fail to cooperate they can lose their work related activity component in full.

Industrial Accidents: Construction

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many prosecutions have been brought under health and safety legislation in respect of fatal accidents in the construction industry in each year since 1997; and how many of them resulted in convictions. [255867]

Jonathan Shaw: The number of prosecutions brought under health and safety legislation in respect of fatal injuries in the construction industry, and resulting convictions, is as shown in the following table:

	Prosecutions	Convictions
1999-2000	39	37
2000-01	45	39
2001-02	46	43
2002-03	59	50
2003-04	48	39
2004-05	54	46
2005-06	36	27
2006-07	44	38

Detailed information is only available in the form requested from 1999-2000 onwards. Data is not yet available for 2008-09.

These figures show, for each year, the number of prosecution cases resulting from fatal injuries in the construction industry, for which the last hearing date fell within the relevant year, and the number of those which have as yet resulted in at least one successful conviction.

The numbers of prosecutions include 14 cases where the prosecution has been commenced but is not yet complete.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people who have been in receipt of jobseeker's allowance but no longer qualify for it (a) have found employment, (b) are still unemployed and (c) are registered as unemployed; and if he will make a statement. [254414]

Mr. McNulty: The total number of people leaving jobseeker's allowance is decreasing in line with the numbers claiming jobseeker's allowance. The number of people leaving with an unknown destination recorded has increased over the last ten years. This is because the completion levels of the JSA40 (forms filled in by people leaving jobseeker's allowance) have decreased over this period. This should be taken into account when interpreting these statistics, as many of these 'unknown' leavers will have moved into employment or other benefits.

The available information is in the table.

Destination of claimants leaving jobseekers allowance—2008

Destination	Claimants
Employment	914,690
Other benefit (excludes those reaching retirement age)	170,185
Education/training	228,530

Destination of claimants leaving jobseekers allowance—2008

Destination	Claimants
Other known destinations	155,715
Not known	1,083,635
Total	2,552,735

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 5. Totals may not sum due to rounding.
2. The question does not specify any time period; total claimants leaving jobseeker's allowance during 2008 have been supplied.
3. Number of leavers moving into employment includes claimants who increased their employment hours beyond 16 per week.
4. Most of those moving onto other benefits will still be out of work.
5. Other known destinations include gone abroad, reached retirement age, gone to prison, deceased, new claim review or defective claim.

Mass Media

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost of his Department's contracts with press monitoring services was in each of the last five years. [251216]

Jonathan Shaw: Press monitoring services for DWP include contracts with the Central Office of Information's Media Monitoring Unit, a press cuttings agency, two media monitoring services and the Press Association. Separate services were provided at times for Jobcentre Plus, the Office for Disability Issues and the Child Maintenance Enforcement Commission (CMEC). The costs were as follows:

2005-06	172,599.97
2006-07	211,505.95
2007-08	224,377.55
2008-09	[1]138,543.28

[1] Up to December 2008

Some costs are incomplete and unavailable. For instance, the costs in 2004-05 only relate to the Central Office of Information's Media Monitoring Unit.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire to the Prime Minister of 18 December 2008, transferred to him for reply, on the winter fuel allowance. [256923]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 23 February 2009]: A reply was sent to the hon. Member on 19 February 2009.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to answer the letters from the hon. Member for Edinburgh West of 22 September 2008 and 17 November 2008 on the case of the hon. Member's constituent, Joe Shepherd. [258741]

Jonathan Shaw: A reply was sent to the hon. Member on 19 October 2008 in reply to his letter of 22 September 2008, and 18 December 2008 in reply to his letter of17 November 2008.

New Deal Schemes

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) when (a) he, (b) his Ministers and (c) officials from his Department next plan to meet bidders for Flexible New Deal contracts to discuss the tendering process; [257249]

(2) what changes have been made to the timetable for the tendering process for providers bidding for Flexible New Deal contracts; and if he will make a statement; [257250]

(3) when he plans to publish the list of the preferred bidders for the Flexible New Deal contracts; and if he will make a statement. [257251]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: There are no current plans to meet with bidders for flexible new deal contracts.

We wrote to bidders for flexible new deal contracts on 11 February, to provide them with the information we had planned to give them at a meeting on 6 February, which did not take place due to adverse weather conditions.

We have notified providers that, by the time phase 1 contracts start in October 2009, we now believe customer volumes will be higher than those published in the invitation to tender (ItT). To enable us to jointly consider the impact and options to address the financial challenges in the initial phase of the contract, there will be a short pause in the competition. We remain committed to beginning delivery of flexible new deal from October and will inform bidders who have been shortlisted in April, with contracts being awarded by the end of May 2009.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will increase the up-front service fee payable to successful bidders for Flexible New Deal contracts; and if he will make a statement. [257338]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: DWP will retain a performance and payment regime based largely on outcomes, providing shortlisted bidders with the opportunity to develop innovative, individually tailored solutions. Our expectation is to have a funding model based on 80 per cent. (outcome) and 20 per cent. (fee based) as originally announced. However, in the initial phase of the contract (first 18 months), we will consider alternative models based on a higher service fee element.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what his most recent estimate is of the number of people who will be referred to providers of the Flexible New Deal in each of the next two years; and if he will make a statement; [257339]

(2) what estimate he has made for the purposes of the Flexible New Deal contract of the number of people who will have been out of work for more than 12 months by October 2009; and if he will make a statement. [258249]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Department does not forecast future long-term unemployment or the future number of claimants of jobseeker's allowance.

The Government remain committed to bringing forward the flexible new deal and on 30 January 2009 a letter was issued to shortlisted bidders in the flexible new deal competition to help them draw up plans that are capable of withstanding a wide range of possible developments in the labour market over the next three to five years. This includes the possibility that customer volumes by the time phase 1 contracts go live in October 2009 could be up to 300 per cent. higher than those published in the original invitation to tender. A copy of the letter has been placed in the Library.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the flexible new deal contracts go-live dates will be delayed as a result of the suspension of the tendering process. [257750]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Government remains committed to bringing in phase 1 of the flexible new deal from October 2009.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether his Department expects to commence the Flexible New Deal in October 2009; and if he will make a statement. [258250]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Government remain committed to bringing in the flexible new deal, in phase 1 areas, from October 2009.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he has had with organisations providing specialist employment services who did not submit bids for contracts under the Flexible New Deal; and if he will make a statement. [258251]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: We have written to suppliers that had been shortlisted and had subsequently withdrawn from the Flexible New Deal competition, advising them that by the time Phase 1 contracts start in October 2009 we now believe customer volumes will be higher than those published in the Invitation to Tender (ItT). We have invited them to reconsider their decision to withdraw from the competition and submit a full tender should they now wish to bid.

Pension Credit

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many applications for pension credit were made to the Pensions Service in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09 to date. [257096]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information is in the following table.

Pensioners: Winter Fuel Payments

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pensioners who reached the age of 80 in 2008 have not qualified for winter fuel payments because their birthday was later than 15 September 2008. [254842]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Winter fuel payments of £200 (£250 for 2008-09) are available to eligible people who are aged 60 or over by the qualifying week (15-21 September for winter 2008-09). Where an eligible person is aged 80 or over in this qualifying week, they will receive an amount of £300 (£400 for 2008-09).

The estimated number of pensioners in Great Britain who reached the age of 80 in 2008, and would not have qualified for the increase in winter fuel payments because their birthday was later than the qualifying week, is around 87,000. The September qualifying week is used to ensure that payments can be made before Christmas. If the qualifying period were to be extended or a later week used, the payment exercise could not be completed in time for the payments to be available when they are most needed. Whichever qualifying week is used, there will always be people who just miss out.

Notes:

1. An estimate of the number of people turning 80 in the calendar year 2008 has been derived from the 2006-based national population projections for Great Britain from the Office for National Statistics.

2. The estimated number of pensioners in Great Britain who reached the age of 80 in 2008, and would not have qualified for the increase in winter fuel payments, are those who turned 80 between 22 September and 31 December 2008.

3. This estimate was rounded to the nearest 1,000 individuals.

4. The estimate does not include those people living in the European Economic Area or Switzerland.

5. The winter fuel payments rates quoted in the answer are for full rate payments. Where there is more than one eligible person in a household people may receive a shared payment.

Pensions

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his estimate is of the number of pension funds which invest in mortgage-backed securities; and if he will make a statement. [257085]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is as follows.

The Purple Book 2008 produced by the Pension Protection Fund (PPF) and the Pensions Regulator covers most PPF-eligible defined benefit pension schemes.

Mortgage backed securities are not recorded as a separate item within the Purple Book data and are grouped under the category 'Other'. This category includes several separate asset classes.

The category 'Other' constitutes 3.7 per cent. of total scheme assets, and 17 per cent. of schemes hold assets from this category.

As mortgage backed securities are grouped together with other classes of asset they will only be a very small fraction of the 3.7 per cent. of total assets within the category.

Post Office Card Account

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff of his Department were working on the Post Office card account successor contract prior to its cancellation. [256081]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is not possible to give the precise number of staff who were working on the Post Office card account successor contract prior to cancellation. A small core team of DWP and Northern Ireland Social Security Agency staff worked full-time on the exercise, with a number of other staff contributing to the procurement process alongside their other duties.

Social Security Benefits

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many apparent benefit claimants also appear on the mortality and bereavement register; and how much has been paid in benefits to such claimants in each of the last four years. [257252]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Department for Work and Pensions has arrangements in place to receive daily notification of death registration data from the Office for National Statistics. Such data are then matched against benefit and pension records to identify deaths which have not otherwise been reported direct to the Department for Work and Pensions. The Department for Work and Pensions does not collect information about the number or amount of overpayments identified from this specific source of data matching.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people referred to welfare to work providers have subsequently been found to appear on the mortality and bereavement register in each of the last four years. [257253]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Department for Work and Pensions has arrangements in place to receive daily notification of death registration data from the Office for National Statistics. Such data are then matched against benefit and pension records to identify deaths which have not otherwise been reported direct to the Department for Work and Pensions.

We do not cross reference our information with the mortality and bereavement register.

Social Security Benefits: Deductions

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many times deductions have been made from benefits for non-payment of council tax in each local authority area since August 2007; how many claimants have had deductions made from their (a) pension credit, (b) jobseeker's allowance and (c) income support for not paying council tax in each local authority area since August 2007; how many claimants have had deductions made to benefits for non-payment of council tax (i) once, (ii) twice, (iii) three times, (iv) four times and (v) five times or more in each local authority area in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [257191]

Kitty Ussher: The information is not available in the format requested.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Derek Twigg: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff were employed in tackling benefit fraud in each year since 1997. [257016]

Mr. McNulty: The Fraud Investigation Service (FIS) was launched in April 2006 to address cases likely to result in a criminal sanction. Prior to that date, fraud was managed by regional directors as part of the overall business in Jobcentre Plus and directly comparable figures are not available. Additionally in April 2006, customer compliance teams were set up within each customer service region to look at those cases where there is an apparent irregularity that does not warrant a criminal investigation. At the time FIS was launched it is estimated 810 staff nationally were invested in the customer compliance process.

Staffing figures for FIS since 2006 are given in the following table:

As at April each year	Number
2007	2,973.7
2008	2,840.1
2009 (Allocations)	2,815

These figures are full time equivalent numbers to account for part-time staff which is why they are not whole numbers.

The figures include staff working in area fraud, criminal intelligence, organised fraud and technical and support roles all of whom provide an essential and integral contribution to the investigation process.

Prior to the launch of the FIS figures for fraud investigators are given in the following table:

DWP fraud investigators

April to March	Full time equivalent
2004-05	1,843.5
2005-06	1,744.1

Derek Twigg: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of benefit fraud in 2007-08. [257095]

Mr. McNulty: Estimates of amount of benefit overpaid due to fraud are available in the DWP National Statistics publication "Fraud and Error in the Benefit System: April 2007 to March 2008" (ISBN: 978-1-84763-691-1), a copy of which is in Library.

Social Security Benefits: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of families in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire who have received benefits as a result of the Government's policy on welfare reform. [246560]

Mr. McNulty: Information is not available on the number of families in receipt of benefits.

Active intervention is key and at no time is this more important than in economic slowdowns. If it is becoming harder to find work, it is right that we do more to help, not less. This is why we are moving people from inactive benefits to the active regime of jobseeker's allowance if this will help them, even if this means an increase in the jobseeker's allowance count in the short term.

We strongly believe that the welfare state should combine rights with responsibilities. Our welfare reforms have been built on this foundation, that in order to receive support during periods of unemployment people should be actively seeking work or making efforts to move closer to work.

Our reforms have resulted in high numbers of people in work throughout the country, and have put an end to the rise in the number of people claiming incapacity benefits. We remain committed to further reform to reduce welfare dependency and support more people into work, provide greater support and control for disabled people and strengthen parental responsibility.

Previous experience has taught us that the worst thing we can do in a downturn is to write people off, consigning them to a lifetime on benefits. We are investing an additional £1.3 billion over the next two years to support Jobcentre Plus and our employment programmes; and a further £0.5 billion to guarantee more support to people unemployed for six months or more by providing incentives for firms to hire, access to help in setting up a business, extra funding for training and opportunities for work-focused volunteering.

Our welfare reform programme will allow us to bring about the most radical reform of the welfare state for generations. Our reforms promise greater support for people on benefits and a more flexible, personalised system to help them find sustainable employment. In return we expect people to take up this help, and work with us to help themselves. The Welfare Reform Bill will take the primary powers needed to complete the transformation of the welfare state, turning it from being essentially passive to profoundly active.

Notes:
1. Data are unrounded.
2. These figures are not fully comparable over time and may not indicate developments in the labour market. Changes to Jobcentre Plus vacancy handling procedures have led to a major discontinuity in the vacancy statistic pre and post May 2006. See http://www.nomisweb.co.Uk/articles/177.aspx#may06 before comparing data over this period. Interpretation of these data need to take account of changes in recent years to Jobcentre Plus procedures for taking and handling vacancies.
3. Comprehensive estimates of all job vacancies (not just those notified to Jobcentre Plus) are available from the monthly ONS Vacancy Survey since April 2001, based on a sample of some 6,000 enterprises. However, the ONS survey is currently designed to provide national estimates only.

Vocational Training

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent steps the Government have taken to assist those returning to work from long periods of unemployment. [258236]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Government are doing everything that they can to help those who become unemployed back into work as quickly as possible. We recognise that extra support is needed during the downturn, and a range of new help is being made available to jobseekers.

We are investing an extra £1.3 billion to ensure that through Jobcentre Plus we can continue to provide personal help and advice to everyone who needs it—help in finding a job, filling in job applications and writing a CV plus advice on re-training and acquiring new skills.

We also know the scarring effects of long-term unemployment both on individuals and on communities. It is important that the Government learn from the mistakes of previous recessions by doing everything we can to prevent people who lose their jobs slipping inevitably into long-term unemployment. To address this we are investing a further £0.5 billion to ensure the support available to people who lose their jobs increases the longer a person is unemployed. The package of support for people who are still unemployed after six months includes: employer "Golden Hellos" of up to £2,500 to recruit and train people; support to set up a new business along with funding for the first months of trading; additional training places to help people develop work-related skills; and more opportunities to volunteer where this will help a person move towards work.

And we are pressing ahead with our welfare reforms from this year that will increase support for unemployed people as their claim to benefit continues. We are creating a new contract for jobseekers, promising help with skills and with employability.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent steps the Government have taken to help those aged over 50 years to re-enter the labour market. [258237]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Government already provide back-to-work support for those wishing to re-enter the labour market, including those aged 50 and over, through Jobcentre Plus, Local Employer Partnerships, the New Deal and Pathways to Work. We intend to extend this as detailed in the Welfare Reform Bill.

However, in response to the current economic downturn the Government have already committed £0.5 billion additional support to help prevent people out of work from becoming long-term unemployed.

We have doubled the resources available to the Rapid Response Service. The service offers support across the country for those people facing redundancy with immediate help and advice, including skills assessments and retraining, to ensure that people get back to work as soon as possible.

From April, financial incentives of up to £2,500 will be available to employers that recruit and train people who have been unemployed for six months or longer.

In addition we have introduced extra funding for training places to help unemployed people get new skills to maximise their chances of getting jobs from the 500,000 vacancies in the economy, opportunities to volunteer to help people back into work habits and help to start a business with advice on creating a business plan, plus funding for the first months of trading.

A major factor in the employment of older people is employer behaviour. In addition to providing generic good practice guidance to employers, the UK's Age Positive initiative is working in partnership with business leaders to develop sector-based models of flexible retirement to support the increased employment and retention of older workers and the removal of fixed retirement ages.

Vocational Training: Standards

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will publish performance data for (a) private sector providers and (b) in-house teams providing pathways to work schemes. [257314]

Mr. McNulty: The Department publishes regular quarterly statistics relating to Jobcentre Plus Pathways to Work Performance. The latest report shows that by September 2008 there had been nearly 1.04 million starts to the programme.

The total number of recorded job entries is 143,650. Job entry information is only available up to March 2008.

The Department plans to publish equivalent information for Provider-Led Pathways districts in summer 2009.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what information his Department holds on the comparative performance of (a) the private sector Pathways to Work providers and (b) the in-house provider teams. [257751]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Department publishes regular quarterly statistics relating to Jobcentre Plus Pathways to Work Performance. The latest report shows that by September 2008 there had been nearly 1.04 million starts to the programme.

Welfare Reform Bill

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what resources will be made available during the first full year of the implementation of the provisions of the Welfare Reform Bill for the requirement of drug users to (a) attend interview to answer questions, (b) undertake substance-related assessment, (c) undertake relevant tests and (d) undertake rehabilitation plans, as set out in schedule 1 to the Bill. [256399]

Mr. McNulty: We aim to pilot and evaluate the new approach to employment support for problem drug users set out in the Welfare Reform Bill in a small number of Jobcentre Plus districts. The detail of those pilots, including any additional resources that will be made available, is still in development at this early stage.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Advanced Extension Award

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils were entered for sixth term extension paper examinations in (a) mathematics and (b) any subject in (i) maintained schools and (ii) independent schools in each of the last five years. [257167]

Jim Knight [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The information requested is not held by the Department.

Care Proceedings

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many applications for care proceedings there have been since 1 November 2008; and what effect this has had on the appointment of guardians. [258569]

Beverley Hughes: The Children and Family Court Advisory Service received 590 care applications (Section 31) in November 2008 and 714 in December 2008.

This increase in demand has had an effect on the allocation of guardians. In November 2008, 73 per cent. of Section 31 applications were allocated to guardians within two days and in December 2008, this figure was 66.9 per cent. Both of these figures met the current target which is that 65 per cent. of cases should be allocated within two days.

To respond to demand CAFCASS has put a duty guardian scheme in place so that urgent work is covered, and a solicitor for the child is always appointed in each case to look after a child's interests.

Children: Care Homes

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of children's homes were assessed as inadequate by Ofsted in each of the last 10 years. [257658]

Beverley Hughes: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 20 February 2009:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

Ofsted assumed responsibility for the regulation and inspection of children's homes on 1 April 2007. This had previously been the responsibility of the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) and data up to April 2007 are available from CSCI Annual Reports, accessible from their website http://www.csci.org.uk/. Please note that from April 2004 until April 2006, CSCI inspection reports of children's homes commented on the extent to which they met the National Minimum Standards and did not judge provision as 'inadequate'. In April 2006, CSCI introduced outcome judgements into its inspection reports, and used a four point grading scale of 'excellent', 'good', 'adequate' or 'poor'.

For the period 1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008, Ofsted inspected 1,801 children's homes, of which 139 (8%) were judged inadequate overall. For the period 1 April 2008 to 31 December 2008, Ofsted inspected 1,682 children's homes, of which 135 (8%) were judged inadequate overall. These figures were taken from data available at 31 March 2008 and 31 December 2008. They only include children's homes which were active at those points and are based on the overall outcome from their most recently completed Ofsted inspection.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Rt Hon Beverley Hughes MP, Minister of State for Children, Young People and Families, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Children: Databases

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) whether education professionals will be able to access ContactPoint via wireless handheld devices; [256939]

(2) what contingency plans are in place in the event of a breach of security in ContactPoint. [256940]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 23 February 2009]: ContactPoint is designed, built, operated and managed to HM Government standards for security and complies with the strict controls imposed by HM Government security policy. Data contained within the system are made available only to those authorised users and administrators who have been subject to vetting and have completed mandatory training. Organisations that require access to ContactPoint must meet strict system accreditation requirements. These requirements do not allow access to ContactPoint via wireless handheld devices.

In the event of a breach of security in ContactPoint, we will follow HM Government security policy for incident response and reporting. Our response will be proportional to the severity of the incident and could include:

Immediately shutting down the system and denying access to all users;

Reporting the breach to stakeholders, up to and including the Information Commissioner and Ministers;

Reporting the breach to the Communications and Cryptographic Incident Notification, Reporting and Alerting Scheme (CINRAS); and Reporting the breach to the National Technical Authority for Information Assurance's Computer Emergency Response Team (GovCertUK).

Following any security breach, a full review would take place and prosecutions would be instigated where appropriate.

Children: Obesity

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what initiatives the Government has introduced for children of pre-school age to reduce levels of childhood obesity in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire. [250601]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The "Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives" strategy, published in January 2008, set out the Government's plan to reduce obesity, initially focusing on children. Every child should grow up eating well and enjoying being active and we want parents to have the knowledge and confidence to make this happen. There is no single, simple solution to reducing rates of overweight and obesity and therefore Government are taking action on a number of fronts.

At a national level, the Government are promoting healthy eating and physical activity. The updated Child Health Promotion Programme was published in March 2008. It prioritises obesity prevention and physical activity by promoting positive parenting during pregnancy and the early years of children's lives. We are working to support as many mothers as possible to breastfeed and to continue to breastfeed for longer—helped by children's centres, health and other services, all promoting healthy weight. The Healthy Start initiative provides free vitamin supplements and vouchers for milk, fruit and vegetables for low-income pregnant women and children up to age four.

The introduction of the Early Years Foundation Stage for 0 to five-year-olds means that all early years education providers must promote the good health of children, by providing healthy, nutritious food and active play. The Play Strategy, launched in December 2008, sets out how Government will invest £235 million over 2008-09 to 2010-11 to develop play facilities for children of all ages. Ofcom have introduced restrictions on advertising foods that are high in fat, salt and sugar (HFSS) to children.

At a local level, primary care trusts, working with local authorities, are responsible for co-ordinating work to tackle childhood obesity. PCT plans, developed alongside local authority children and young people's plans, will feed into local area agreements agreed with the Government offices. Local areas will develop and implement their own initiatives based on local needs and circumstances. 130 LAs have chosen to include in their local area agreement at least one child obesity indicator from the National Indicator Set.

All this is supported by the Change4Life movement at a national and local level which aims to help families eat well, move more and live longer and which is initially focused on families with young children. Change4Life is working with a range of commercial and voluntary sector partners, signing up to play their part and deliver concrete commitments to change both nationally and locally.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what initiatives his Department has introduced to reduce childhood obesity among children of pre-school age in the London Borough of Bexley. [250742]

Children: Protection

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many children on the Child Protection Register in each region were not allocated a social worker in each year between 1997 and 3 August 2007; and if he will make a statement; [241396]

(2) how many children on the Child Protection Register in each region have not been allocated a social worker since 9 September 2008; and if he will make a statement; [241397]

(3) how many children on the Child Protection Register in each London borough were not allocated a social worker in each year between 1997 and 3 August 2007; and if he will make a statement; [241398]

(4) how many children on the Child Protection Register in each London borough have not been allocated a social worker since 9 September 2008; and if he will make a statement; [241399]

(5) what the average number of cases allocated to each child protection social worker in each region was in each year between 1997 and 3 August 2007; and if he will make a statement; [241401]

(6) what the average number of cases allocated to each child protection social worker in each London borough was in each year between 1997 and 3 August 2007; and if he will make a statement; [241402]

(7) what the average number of cases allocated to each child protection social worker in each region has been since 9 September 2008; and if he will make a statement; [241403]

(8) what the average number of cases allocated to each child protection social worker in each London borough has been since 9 September 2008; and if he will make a statement. [241404]

Beverley Hughes: The Department does not collect this information. We recognise, however, the critical importance of effective frontline social work to outcomes for children. That is why the Government are investing nearly £73 million over the next three years in a package of proposals to improve social workers' capacity and skills. As part of this package, we have just announced plans to establish a social work taskforce to lead a nuts and bolts review of frontline social work practice that will inform further improvements in social worker training, recruitment and leadership.

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to his statement of 11 December 2008, Official Report, column 777, on serious case review numbers, when he expects to provide the information referred to. [247790]

Beverley Hughes: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families provided the information requested in a letter to the hon. Member on 3 February.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many Part 8 reviews there have been into children's deaths in Doncaster in each of the last 10 years; [248777]

(2) how many serious case reviews there have been of children's deaths in Doncaster in each of the last 10 years. [248774]

Beverley Hughes: Data currently held by the Department for Children, Schools and Families indicate that, of all notifications received between 1 April 2007 and 31 March 2008 of serious child care incidents, three serious case reviews had been initiated in Doncaster where a child died and abuse or neglect was known or suspected to be a factor. Data prior to 1 April 2007 are not available in this form.

Information on the numbers of serious case reviews following the death of a child in each local authority area between 2000 and 2005 has been given in a previous parliamentary answer on 24 July 2006, Official Report, column 839W. This explains that the number of confirmed serious case reviews (SCRs) following the death of a child in Doncaster between 2000 and 2005 was six.

Children: Social Services

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of initial assessments for children who may be at risk were carried out by care services within seven working days in the most recent year for which data is available. [247859]

Beverley Hughes: The percentage of initial assessments completed within seven working days of referral can be found in table 1A of the Statistical First Release 'Referrals, Assessments and Children and Young People who are the subject of a Child Protection Plan, England—year ending 31 March 2008' available at:

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was spent on salaries for frontline children's social workers by each local authority in each year since 1997. [258358]

Beverley Hughes: Social workers are directly recruited by their employers. The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not collect information on how much employers spend on salaries for frontline children's social workers. In their Children's, Young People's and Families' Social Care Pay and Workforce Survey 2007, the local government analysis and research group estimated that the basic salary for social workers in England and Wales (mean) was £28,389.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the expenditure on the integrated children's system was in each local authority area in each year since its implementation. [258554]

Beverley Hughes: Information on local authorities' annual capital and revenue expenditure on the Integrated Children's System is not collected centrally.

The Department has made £60 million in capital grant available to local authorities to support local capital expenditure on the development and implementation of the Integrated Children's System between 1 April 2004 and 30 September 2008.

I have placed in the Library a table that shows local authorities' allocations from this grant over that period.

Children's Services: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in relation to which local authorities his Department has expressed concern about the performance of the children's services department; what the areas of concern were in each case; and if he will make a statement. [257346]

Beverley Hughes: The local authorities that are of most concern to the Department are those whose children's services (or aspect(s) of) have been judged inadequate by Ofsted. These judgments can be found at:

http://www.ofsted.gov.uk/oxcare_providers/list_by_la

Critical Thinking: Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils were entered for an AS level or higher examination in critical thinking in (a) maintained schools and (b) independent schools in each of the last five years. [257169]

Jim Knight [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The information requested is in the following table.

Academic Year	Number of entries[1] in A or AS level Critical Thinking in maintained schools[2]	Number of entries[1] in A or AS- level Critical Thinking in independent schools

Departmental Pay

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of staff in his Department and its predecessor have received bonus payments in each of the last five years; what the total amount of bonuses paid was; what the largest single payment was in each year; and if he will make a statement. [258007]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information requested for non-consolidated performance payments to staff is set out as follows:

	Staff

These payments were met within existing pay controls. Payments are used to drive high performance and those for the senior civil service are based on recommendations from the independent Senior Salaries Review Body.

The Department has no agencies.

Departmental Public Expenditure

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the likely change in expenditure by his Department on administration costs between now and 2011. [247191]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The estimate of the likely change in administration costs for the DCSF between now (2008-09) and 2011 is as follows:

	£ million
2010-11	-9

These figures can be found in the HM Treasury published document "2007 Pre-Budget Report and Comprehensive Spending Review" on page 203 under table D1: Children's, Schools and Families baselines and additions.

Free School Meals: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children received free school meals in the London Borough of Bexley in each of the last five years. [255717]

Pupils: Absenteeism

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will change the formula for calculating attendance statistics for schools to prevent schools being penalised in the event of pupils not attending as a result of adverse weather conditions. [256501]

Jim Knight: The Government believe that every lesson counts and it is right that schools should stay open wherever reasonably practicable during severe weather conditions, subject to health and safety considerations. If some of a school's pupils whose home is not within walking distance of the school get to school by transport that is provided by the school or a local education authority, and that transport is not available because of adverse weather conditions, then if the school stays open, those pupils should be marked using code Y (forced and partial closure). Code Y does not count as absence in the statistics. All other children should be expected to attend and should be recorded as present/absent as normal. Our data do not enable us to alter the formula in any way that would isolate the absences due to inclement weather, or even the days concerned—we only have total numbers of absences for each term and cannot isolate particular days (or even weeks). This does mean that the absence percentage for a school that stays open may be higher than if it had closed if significant numbers of pupils are unable to attend. However, our main focus is on persistent absence (which we define as missing 20 per cent. or more of possible sessions). It is unlikely that persistent absence would be significantly affected by short periods of adverse weather. Moreover when looking at attendance, Ofsted inspectors look at trends over time. When looking at registers, if there appear to be specific days or periods of time when there is high absence inspectors will discuss with the school the reasons for it. Similarly the national strategies will take account of such circumstances in their support and challenge work on persistent absence with LAs and schools.

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information has been placed in the Libraries.

Schools: Anti-Semitism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps the Government are taking to protect Jewish schoolchildren from anti-Semitic attacks by other schoolchildren; and if he will make a statement; [256820]

(2) what assessment he has made of the incidence of (a) bullying and (b) intimidation of Jewish students in schools since December 2008; and if he will make a statement. [256819]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Schools are under a legal duty to promote race equality and it is compulsory for schools to have measures in place to prevent and tackle all forms of bullying, whatever the motivation. In March 2006 we published specialist guidance on bullying around race, religion and culture which focused on preventing and tackling racist and religious bullying in schools and included specific material on bullying related to anti-Semitism. We are funding the Anti-Bullying Alliance and national strategies to ensure the guidance is effectively embedded in local authorities and schools, and are monitoring the situation closely.

We have also published a toolkit to help schools contribute to the prevention of violent extremism. The toolkit includes advice on how to protect pupils from violent extremism, manage risks and respond to incidents locally, nationally or internationally that might have an impact on the school community.

We do not collect data on bullying or incidents of intimidation centrally although we are aware that Jewish pupils can be particularly vulnerable to bullying. We intend to introduce a new statutory duty on schools to record all incidents of bullying between pupils later this year, and will specifically consult on whether schools should be obliged to record racist incidents.

Schools: Boilers

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools in Gloucestershire are heated by oil-powered boilers; and if he will make a statement. [256873]

Jim Knight [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Department does not hold this information. However, we have contacted South Gloucestershire Council and Gloucestershire county council and they have told us that in South Gloucestershire there are 23 schools heated by oil-fired boilers out of a total of 115 local authority maintained schools and in Gloucestershire 40 schools out of a total of 310 schools are heated by oil. The majority of these schools are rural primary schools which do not have a gas supply.

Schools: Health Education

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to inform school children of the adverse effects of (a) smoking and (b) alcohol abuse. [254605]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Currently all schools should teach pupils about the effects of smoking and alcohol abuse, as part of drug education, through a well planned programme of personal, social, health and economic (PSHE) education. The Department's guidance, "Drugs: Guidance for Schools" (DfES 2004) sets out in broad terms what should be covered in each key stage.

We announced our intention to make PSHE education statutory in October 2008, in recognition of the key role it plays in equipping children and young people with the knowledge and skills they need to lead healthy and successful lives. At the same time we launched an independent review of how this might be achieved in the most effective and practicable way. Sir Alasdair Macdonald, the headteacher of Morpeth school in Tower Hamlets, is conducting the review and will report in April 2009. Proposals for the statutory implementation of PSHE will be the subject of a full public consultation.

We cannot expect drug and alcohol education on its own to "solve the drug problem" in this country. That is why we are also increasing our focus on intervening with families at risk and continue to improve the support and treatment that the vulnerable young people who are most likely to develop a problem need.

We need parents and Children's Services to join with schools and colleges to raise awareness amongst young people of the risks and impacts of drug and alcohol use.

It is important that Government presents information to young people in ways that they find accessible. For that reason, on 29 January 2009, we launched a consultation on 'Children, Young People and Alcohol' alongside the chief medical officer's guidance on 'safer drinking' to find out what information and advice parents and young people would find useful to inform their decisions about young people's drinking and to help reduce harm caused by it.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in how many and what proportion of schools where the proportion of pupils entitled to free school meals is (a) less than 10 per cent., (b) 10 per cent. to 20 per cent. and (c) over 20 per cent. Ofsted has evaluated teaching as (i) inadequate, (ii) satisfactory, (iii) good and (iv) outstanding in the latest year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [254868]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM chief inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Libraries.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 10 February 2009:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

Since the introduction of the current school inspection framework (commonly known as section 5) in September 2005, Ofsted has evaluated teaching as part of the judgement 'How effective are teaching and learning in meeting the full range of learners' needs?'

Table A shows that, of 7,862 school inspections carried out by Ofsted in 2007/08, 3,704 were of schools with less than 10% of pupils eligible for free school meals, 1,737 were of schools with between 10% and 20% of pupils eligible for free school meals, and the remaining 2,421 were of schools with greater than 20% of pupils eligible for free school meals. The table includes the inspection outcomes for each of these groups.

Table A: The effectiveness of teaching and learning in meeting the full range of learners' needs for schools inspected in 2007/08

		How effective are teaching and learning in meeting the full range of learners' needs
		Outstanding		Good		Satisfactory		Inadequate
Percentage of pupils eligible for free school meals	Number of inspections of schools	No.	%	No.	%	No.	%	No.	%
Less than 10%	3,704	602	16	2,159	58	904	24	39	1
Greater than or equal to 10% but less than or equal to 20%	1,737	171	10	840	48	668	38	58	3
Greater than 20%	2,421	213	9	1,080	45	1,009	42	119	5
All schools	7,862	986	13	4,079	52	2,581	33	216	3

Data on proportions of pupils eligible for free school meals are taken from the DCSF's 2008 Annual Schools' Census and are calculated as the percentage of compulsory school age pupils in the school. There are schools for which Annual Schools' Census 2008 data are available, but the free school meals eligibility field is blank. It has been assumed that they had 0% of pupils eligible for free school meals.

Please note that in 2007/08 one school was inspected twice and has been counted twice in this anal[illegible]. Four schools inspected in 2007/08 have been excluded fro[illegible]lysis: two of these only have provision for pupils aged 16 to 18, and there was no Annual Schools' Census 2008 data available for the remaining two.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Rt. Hon Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Sixth Form Education: Finance

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent discussions he has had with the Learning and Skills Council on the funding of schools with sixth forms where the number of pupils exceeds the stated anticipated number; and if he will make a statement. Jim Knight [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is currently agreeing with school sixth forms the funding allocations for 2009/10. Those allocations will take account of the number of pupils schools recruited and retained in 2008/09 and whether this was above or below planned expectations. We anticipate that where numbers exceeded plans in 2008/09, this above planned growth will be consolidated into 2009/10 allocations. However, this will be subject to affordability.

Under the current system, grant funded providers (schools and further education colleges) do not have their funding allocation varied during the year unless they can demonstrate their allocation causes them financial difficulty. Where this is the case the LSC will consider, on a case by case basis, the need for extra funding in exceptional circumstances. However, as announced in the LSC's Annual Statement of Priorities, published in November 2008, the DCSF and LSC are currently considering whether a more flexible system of funding is needed to best ensure that funding matches learner choice.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families under what circumstances schools receive exceptional funding support for sixth forms; and if he will make a statement. [256877]

Jim Knight [holding answer 23 February 2009]: Exceptional funding for a school sixth form is only available on a case-by-case basis either from a local authority (LA) or from the Learning and Skills Council (LSC).

The financial viability of a sixth form cannot be distinguished from the overall financial viability of the school, which is the responsibility of the local authority. Local authorities have the discretion, through the School Finance (England) Regulations 2008, to support schools in financial difficulty providing that they have agreed with their schools forum the arrangements for implementation of such support. Where a school gets into a deficit it must agree a deficit recovery plan with the LA.

The only circumstances in which the LSC would consider exceptional financial support to a school sixth form would be if one year's funding allocation caused the school a particular financial difficulty. The LSC would consider such exceptional action only in relation to the individual circumstances arising in the school's sixth form.

Social Services: Children

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families into which children's services he has sent intervention teams in the last 12 months; what the remit of those teams has been; and whether he will make their findings public. [250375]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 22 January 2009]: Officials from the Intervention Unit in DCSF are routinely sent to each local authority that receives an inadequate judgment by Ofsted in their annual performance assessment (APA) and/or their joint area review (JAR). Judgments are published on Ofsted's website:

http://www.ofsted.gov.uk/oxcare_providers/list_by_la.

Ministers subsequently receive advice on the nature of any intervention considered necessary to bring about improvements in children's services. Ministers' decisions are communicated to the local authority and to other interested parties.

Social Services: Greater London

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many social workers in each London borough were agency employees at the latest date for which figures are available. [258200]

Beverley Hughes: Social workers are directly recruited by their employers. The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not collect information on how many agency staff are employed within these settings.

In their Children's, Young People's and Families' Social Care Workforce Survey 2006, the local authority workforce intelligence group estimated that the total number of children's social care work force agency staff employed by London boroughs was 1,290. The survey went on to suggest that around a third of these agency staff covered field social work posts.

In December 2008, we announced a social work taskforce which will make recommendations for long term development of social work; social worker recruitment and retention will be considered as part of this.

Special Educational Needs: Disadvantaged

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils in (a) primary schools and (b) secondary schools in each decile of income deprivation affecting children indices had statements of special educational needs in each of the last five years. [256892]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information requested for 2004, 2007 and 2008 is shown as follows. The full-time series can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Special Educational Needs: Pupil Exclusions

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 11 February 2009, Official Report, column 2117W on special educational needs: pupil exclusions, what the equivalent figures were for each year since 1997. [258245]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information on fixed period exclusions was collected for the first time for the school year 2003/04.

In 2005/06 the method of data collection changed and information was collected from secondary schools only. We have consequently provided information for the school years 2003/04 and 2004/05, the only years for which comparable figures are available.

Maintained primary schools[1]: number of fixed period exclusions by special educational needs and by reason for exclusion 2003/04—England

Special Educational Needs: Young Offender Institutions

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 12 February 2009, Official Report, columns 2263-64W, on special educational needs: young offender institutions, what the source was of the figure provided by the Learning and Skills Council for the number of young people in juvenile accommodation in young offender institutions referred to special educational needs co-ordinators. [258699]

Beverley Hughes: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) collects monthly returns from the educational providers with whom they contract to deliver learning and skills provision within juvenile young offender institutions. The providers are required to provide data returns, including information on the number of young people referred to the special educational needs co-ordinators, to the LSC on a monthly basis.

DEFENCE

Departmental Manpower

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) military and (b) civilian staff his Department employs in City of York constituency; and how many have been so employed in each year since 1994. [257827]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The following table shows the number of military and civilian personnel based in York Unitary Authority at 1 April in each year since 2002. Figures prior to 2002 are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

	Military	Civilian
2002	640	n/a
2003	n/a	n/a

	Military	Civilian
2004	n/a	n/a
2006	710	700

n/a = Denotes not available.

Civilian figures are based on Full Time Equivalence (FTE). FTE is a measure of the size of the workforce that takes account of the actual hours worked by part-time employees.

2003-04 military figures are not available because of concerns over data quality.

Monitoring of civilian location data by Local and Unitary Authority was introduced in April 2006, prior to this date location data by Local and Unitary Authority is not available.

Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff in his Department were recorded as having been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December in each of the last five years. [256632]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Numbers of MOD civilian staff who have been continuously absent for over 12 months due to sickness on 31 December for each of the last four years are given as follows:

	Number of staff with at least 12 months sick absence as at 31 December
2005	140
2006	170
2007	180
2008	170

Notes:

1. These figures are derived from the HRMS system which excludes staff in trading funds, the Royal Fleet Auxiliary, and locally engaged civilians. They have been rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Numbers are not given for 31 December 2004, as data were still being migrated to the system during this year.

Ex-servicemen: York

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many homes are provided for service personnel and their families in City of York constituency; and how many have been provided in each year since 1994. [257828]

Mr. Kevan Jones: There are currently 326 Service Family Accommodation (SFA) properties in the City of York, with a further 13 families living in substitute SFA.

Information is not available for previous years.

Falkland Islands: Warships

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what recent assessment he has made of the performance of J.A.Gardner and Company in providing the Coastal Re-Supply Service in the Falkland Islands since 1982; [257917]

(2) for what reason the Royal Navy has declined to award a new Falkland Islands Coastal Re-Supply Service contract to J.A.Gardner and Company; [257918]

(3) whether the Royal Navy sent representatives to the Falkland Islands to assess the work of J.A.Gardner and Company in operating the Coastal Re-Supply Service before the decision not to renew the firm's contract was taken. [257919]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The MOD currently operates two shipping contracts in the Falklands Islands: one with J and A Gardner who provide coastal re-supply services; and the other with Van Wijngaarden Marine Services B V, who carry out harbour support. Both companies provide a satisfactory service.

As the contracts with both companies are coming to an end, a decision has been made to merge both the coastal re-supply and harbour support services under one requirement rather than renew both contracts. This will deliver value for money for the taxpayer. In accordance with MOD and EU commercial regulations, the requirement was competed last year and both J and A Gardner and Van Wijngaarden submitted proposals along with a number of other companies. All the bids were evaluated on an equitable basis against declared technical and commercial evaluation criteria.

The tender evaluation panel was made up of MOD civilian personnel, some of whom visited the Falkland Islands on a number of occasions and who have, therefore, built up a good working knowledge of the requirement. The views of MOD personnel based on the Islands, who are responsible for the day to day operation of the service, were also obtained.

The contract was awarded to Van Wijngaarden, as theirs was the most technically advantageous and affordable proposal, on 23 January 2009 with service commencement on 1 April 2009.

HMS Vanguard

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what reports he has received from the First Sea Lord on the recent collision between HMS Vanguard and Le Triomphant; whether the crew of HMS Vanguard sustained any injuries; whether he plans to commission an inquiry into the incident; and if he will make a statement. [258758]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Two submerged SSBN, one French and the other UK, were conducting routine national patrols in the Atlantic Ocean. The two submarines came into contact at very low speed. Both submarines remained safe and no injuries occurred. I can confirm that the UK's deterrent capability has remained unaffected at all times and there has been no compromise to nuclear safety. HMS Vanguard returned safely to Faslane under her own power on 14 February.

As one would expect, the MOD takes this incident very seriously and a thorough review is under way. We will act on any lessons that might be identified.

Military Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many transport and tanker aircraft were available for deployment by the armed forces in each year since 2001. [260703]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of the letter in the Library of the House.

Substantive answer from Quentin Davies to Liam Fox:

I undertook to write to you in answer to your Parliamentary Question on 22 January 2009 (Official Report, column 1675W), about the number of transport and tanker aircraft available for deployment by the armed forces in each year since 2001.

All aircraft in the Forward Fleet are available for potential deployments worldwide. The average Forward Fleet figures for each transport and tanker aircraft type are shown in the following table and are rounded to the nearest aircraft.

	Financial year

[3] Figure is an average for January-March 2005, prior to which the data is not available.

I hope this is helpful.

Veterans Day: Plymouth

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for Plymouth to participate in Veterans Day on 27 June 2009. [258560]

Mr. Kevan Jones: We are greatly encouraged that, along with many other towns and cities across the country, Plymouth city council are planning to hold an Armed Forces Day event on 27 June 2009. Armed Forces Day builds on the success of previous Veterans Day events and is intended to provide an opportunity for the whole nation to celebrate our armed forces, past, present and future. We expect that the veterans community, which includes all those who have served in the armed forces, widows and bereaved relatives of those who served and Merchant Mariners who saw duty on military operations, will remain very much at the centre of events.

Plymouth city council applied to the Ministry of Defence for a grant of £10,000 to assist towards the cost of their armed forces and veterans week and this has been awarded, together with the provisional allocation of a military band and a fly past from a DC3 of the Battle of Britain Memorial Flight to support an memorial event planned for 28 June on Plymouth Hoe.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

NGOs

7. Mr. Steen: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make it his policy to introduce annual headquarter grants to non-governmental organisations which fall within his Department's area of responsibility. [257854]

Kevin Brennan: Government support for the sector has never been stronger, which is why we have committed £60 million to support strategic partnerships with third sector organisations. Over 5 years from 2006-11 we will provide core funding to a range of national and regional organisations. This type of grant funding offers real financial stability to our strategic partners, whilst enabling the views of the sector on the development of Government policy to be heard.

Third Sector

10. Mr. Bailey: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what support his Department is providing to charities and voluntary organisations to assist them in mitigating the effects of the economic downturn. [257857]

Mr. Byrne: "Real help for communities: volunteers, charities and social enterprises" provides a £42.5 million package for the sector to support people through the downturn.

Social Mobility

11. Shona McIsaac: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent progress has been made in implementing the measures announced in the social mobility White Paper; and if he will make a statement. [257858]

Mr. Byrne: The measures announced in the New Opportunities White Paper are for implementation between January 2009 and spring 2011.

There were three measures announced that were for implementation prior to today, all of which have been implemented on time.

The Cabinet Office is monitoring ongoing delivery by departments.

Social Entrepreneurs

12. Rob Marris: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps he is taking to increase the number of social entrepreneurs. [257859]

13. John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, what steps he is taking to increase the number of social entrepreneurs. [257860]

Mr. Byrne: I refer my hon. Friends to the answer I gave earlier today.

Voluntary Sector

14. Mr. Flello: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what funding his Department is providing to voluntary sector organisations working to assist deprived communities in 2008-09. [257861]

Mr. Byrne: The Government are investing in deprived communities who need real help now. The third sector plays a vital role as a safety net and springboard for people in need and in recognition of this, investment by the Government in the third sector has doubled since 1997 to a total of £11 billion a year.

Two weeks ago, the Government launched the "Real Help for Communities Action Plan", which provides a further £42.5 million from April 2009 to help volunteers, charities and social enterprises deliver more real help to those who need it most.

This included the £15.5 million community resilience fund, targeted at areas most at risk of increasing levels of deprivation due to the recession.

Transport Network Resilience

15. Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what his responsibilities are for coordination of action across Government to ensure the resilience of the transport network. [257862]

Mr. Watson: Responsibility for the provision of resilient transport services rests primarily with the owners and operators of those services. Within Government, the Department for Transport and, where appropriate, the devolved Administrations work with the regulators, owners and operators to ensure, as appropriate, that standards are in place and effective contingency arrangements exist.

The Cabinet Office has departmental responsibility for the generic local response framework within England and Wales, including responsibility for the Civil Contingencies Act 2004. The Cabinet Office will, where appropriate, also provide support to the lead department on cross-cutting issues in an emergency as part of the Cabinet Office's wider role of supporting effective Government and collective ministerial responsibility.

Apprentices

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the answer of 2 June 2008, Official Report, column 614W, on apprentices, what progress has been made in increasing the number of apprentices in the Cabinet Office; and how many apprentices his Department currently employs. [251964]

Mr. Watson: The Department now employs four apprentices as part of the Government's pathfinder project. As part of the Department's Skills Strategy, there is a firm commitment to increase the number of apprentices to 20 by March 2010.

Cabinet: Visits

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what the cost of the Cabinet visit to Leeds was; and what the cost of (a) staff time, (b) staff travel, (c) staff accommodation, (d) ministerial travel, (e) ministerial accommodation, (f) hire and additional costs of venue, (g) publicity, (h) security and (i) associated ministerial visit was; [248039]

(2) what the cost of the Cabinet visit to Liverpool was; and what the cost of (a) staff time, (b) staff travel, (c) staff accommodation, (d) ministerial travel, (e) ministerial accommodation, (f) hire and additional costs of venue, (g) publicity, (h) security and (i) associated ministerial visits was. [248040]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 29 January 2009, Official Report, columns 738-39W.

Departmental Buildings

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether a display energy certificate has been produced for each building under his Department's administration in Whitehall. [258173]

Mr. Watson: Display Energy Certificates have been produced for all Cabinet Office buildings, and are displayed in receptions.

I also refer the hon. Member to the answer that I gave to the hon. Member for Tunbridge Wells (Greg Clark) on 23 February 2009, Official Report, columns 390-91W.

Departmental Lobbying

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether Ministers in his Department received representations from (a) Lord Moonie, (b) Lord Taylor of Blackburn, (c) Lord Snape and (d) Lord Truscott in the last seven months. [255225]

Mr. Byrne: We have no record of receiving any representations to the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster or his Ministers from Lord Moonie, Lord Taylor of Blackburn, Lord Snape or Lord Truscott in the last seven months.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East (James Duddridge), of 6 October 2008, Official Report, columns 270-71W, on departmental public relations, in which areas of work or projects the external public relations firms were engaged; and for what reasons in-house communications staff were not used in each instance. [249380]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

This Department used companies from the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework for the following areas of work in the last three full financial years:

Company	Area of work	Amount spent (£)
2007-08[1]
Geronimo Communications	Enterprising Britain	172,630.27
GCI	Employing People campaign	30,030

Fishburn Hedges	DTI Gap analysis	9,071
Geronimo Communications	Enterprising Britain	163,642
GCI	Business Link	179,113
Total		351,826
2005-06
Geronimo Communications	Enterprising Britain	76,240
GCI	Small Business Service	105,786
Harrison Cowley	Consumer Direct	239,050

Company	Area of work	Amount spent (£)
Wright Communication	Consumer Direct	32,694
Total		453,770

[1] April to June 2007 as DTI and BERR from June 2007.
[2] Spend by the former DTI.
Note:
These costs are inclusive of COI fees.

In all cases, PR agencies were employed to carry out work for which there was no available in-house resource. PR campaigns by their nature are time-limited and so it would not be cost-efficient to retain staff internally to run them. Contracting outside agencies also enables the Department to gain external specialist expertise as well as supporting the creative industries. PR contracts are placed taking account of Cabinet Office Propriety Guidance.

Public Sector: Pensions

Dr. Vis: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 16 December 2008, Official Report, columns 111-12WS, on guaranteed minimum pension calculations, how the errors in payments in some public service pensions were discovered. [255756]

Mr. Byrne: As part of its management and control of the Civil Service pension arrangements the Cabinet Office commissioned an exercise to check data held by its pensioner payroll contractor with Guaranteed Minimum Pension (GMP) data. This exercise highlighted the fact that GMP information was missing for a small proportion of Civil Service pensioners. Other public service schemes have commissioned similar checks and have discovered that they are also affected by this issue.

Unemployment

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 500-01W, on the unemployed, how many people aged 16 to 24 years were unemployed in each region (a) in each year since 1997 and (b) in each of the last eight quarters. [256672]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 500-1W, on unemployed, how many people aged 16 to 24 years were unemployed in each region (a) each year since 1997 and (b) in each of the last eight quarters. (256672)

The requested information is shown in the attached table. Estimates for October-December 2008 have also been included as these have become available since the previous answer was provided.

The estimates are derived from the Labour Force Survey. As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

The figures in the table are derived from the LFS microdata which are weighted using the official population estimates published in autumn 2007. Consequently the estimates from Q3 2006 are not entirely consistent with the figures published in the monthly Labour Market Statistics First Release, which are weighted using more up-to- date population estimates.

[1] Coefficients of Variation have been calculated for the latest period as an indication of the quality of the estimates, as described below:
[2] Sample size too small for reliable estimate.
Guide to Quality:
The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV - for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220.
Key Coefficient of Variation ; CV) (%) Statistical robustness
* 0 = CV ≤ 5 Estimates are considered precise.
 5 = CV ≤ 10 Estimates are considered reasonably precise.
 10 = CV ≤ 20 Estimates are considered acceptable.
* CV = 20 Estimates are considered too unreliable for practical purposes.
Note:
It should be noted that the estimates exclude people in most types of communal establishment (e.g. hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites etc).

Work Experience

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether the proposed new national internship scheme will apply to the Civil Service. [258591]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are committed to helping new graduates into work in these challenging economic times and one of our proposals is to increase the availability of graduate internships across a wide range of sectors. It is as yet too early for me to say exactly where those additional internships will be available, but we are currently consulting key stakeholders, including other civil service employers, about the development of our proposal.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Bankruptcy: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) bankruptcy orders and (b) individual voluntary agreements were recorded in Milton Keynes in each year since 1997. [257403]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 23 February 2009]: Table 1 as follows shows the number of bankruptcies and individual voluntary arrangements (IVAs) in Milton Keynes in each year between 2000 and 2007, derived from postcodes provided by insolvent individuals[1, 2]. Earlier figures are not available on this basis; figures for 2008 are not yet available.

[1] Classifying bankrupts and IVAs into administrative geographies is done using the postcode that the insolvent individual provides. The use of this in assigning an individual to a borough is thus only as reliable as the postcode information provided.

[2] In particular, inaccurate or missing postcodes mean that the numbers in the above table will be subject to an element of missing data. Nationally, for bankruptcies, this proportion has been decreasing from about 12 per cent. in 2000 to less than 4 per cent. in 2007. For IVAs this proportion has been decreasing from about 15 per cent. in 2000 to about 3 per cent. in 2007.

Table 1

	Bankruptcies	IVAs
2000	83	29
2001	107	27
2002	109	29
2003	128	38
2004	178	50
2005	186	128
2006	304	235

Broadband

Nick Herbert: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what proportion of households in rural areas (a) are connected to and (b) have the capacity to be connected to (i) 256 kb/s, (ii) 512 kb/s, (iii) 1MB/s and (iv) 2 MB/s broadband. [256374]

Mr. McFadden: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Mike Penning: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what his most recent estimate is of the number of households which have access to broadband internet in (a) Hemel Hempstead, (b) Hertfordshire and (c) England; [256488]

(2) what recent estimate his Department has made of the number of households which own a computer. [256542]

Mr. McFadden: The matters raised are the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his most recent estimate of the number of households which have access to broadband internet in (a) Winchester, (b) Hampshire and (c) England is. [257790]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Broadband: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimates he has made of the cost of ensuring that every household in Wales can receive high speed broadband services. [254201]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 4 February 2009]: This Department has not made any assessment of the costs of such action. However, the Welsh Assembly Government launched a programme of activities to transform broadband availability and take up across Wales in 2002. The Regional Innovative Broadband Support Scheme provided funding to upgrade 33 telephone exchanges in Wales, making broadband available to an additional 7,500 premises.

They are shortly to announce the awarding of a contract to look further into this "not spot" issue and how best to address it. This followed on from a registration scheme it set up to enable those who cannot access broadband to register their demand for broadband. To date there are over 1,400 registrations.

Broadband: West Yorkshire

John Battle: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) how many households have access to broadband in (a) Leeds West constituency, (b) Leeds Metropolitan area and (c) West Yorkshire; [255470]

(2) what estimate his Department has made of the number of households with (a) a computer and (b) access to broadband in Leeds West constituency. [255477]

Mr. McFadden: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to my right hon. Friend. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Caio Review

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on what date the Caio Review was commissioned; and on what date it reported. [247420]

Mr. McFadden: The Caio Review was announced on 22 February 2008 and its findings published on 12 September 2008, in the report "The Next Phase of Broadband UK: Action now for long term competitiveness" at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file47788.pdf

and the Government published a formal response to the Caio report on 29 January alongside the Digital Britain Interim Report:

Company Liquidations

Mr. Vara: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many companies have gone into liquidation (a) in each of the last 10 financial years and (b) in 2008-09 to date in (i) North West Cambridgeshire constituency, (ii) Cambridgeshire, (iii) the East of England and (iv) England and Wales. [257459]

Mr. McFadden: The following table shows the number of company liquidations in the last 10 financial years for England and Wales. Corporate liquidation statistics are not currently available on a regional basis within England and Wales.

Company liquidations[1, 2] in England and Wales

Financial year	Number
1998-99	13,850
1999-2000	14,005
2000-01	14,623
2001-02	15,170
2002-03	15,962
2003-04	13,635
2004-05	11,954
2005-06	13,447
2006-07	12,847

Company liquidations[1] [2] in England and Wales

Financial year	Number
2008-09[3]	12,273

[1] Including creditors voluntary liquidations (CVLs) and compulsory liquidations.
[2] Not seasonally adjusted.
[3] Insolvency data for the current financial year are only available up to December 2008.

Departmental Manpower

Greg Clark: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many staff were employed in his Department's Energy Change Group on 1 October 2008. [255936]

Mr. McFadden: On 1 October 2008, 536 full-time equivalent staff were employed in the Department's Energy Group.

Departmental Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes since its inception. [248717]

Mr. McFadden: The Department has a non-pay rewards scheme where staff or teams are given incentives in the form of gifts in recognition of one-off achievement and performance. These do not exceed £50 in value. These gifts can also be given as part of awards ceremonies in recognition of team performance and achievement in the Department. Since the creation of BERR in June 2007, £59,981 has been spent on these.

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and what was spent on such bonuses in each of those years. [249850]

Mr. McFadden: The former Department of Trade and Industry (up to June 2007) and the Department for Business, Enterprise, and Regulatory Reform paid non-consolidated non-pensionable performance awards to staff in the senior civil service to reward delivery of business objectives and personal contributions to wider organisational goals. Performance related awards are part of the pay system across the whole senior civil service, and are used to reward high performance sustained throughout the year, based on a judgement of how well an individual has performed relative to their peers.

The performance related pay scheme is designed to help drive high performance and support better public service delivery.

	Number of SCS awarded performance bonuses	Total amount (£)
2008	141	[2]1,211,500

[1] 7.6 per cent. of the SCS paybill
[2] 8.6 per cent. of the SCS paybill

The senior salaries review body (SSRB) makes recommendations each year for the amount Departments may allocate to bonuses. In 2007 the median bonus was £6,000; in 2008 the median was £6,250.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to the Answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East (James Duddridge), of 6 October 2008, Official Report, columns 270-01W, on departmental public relations, on which projects the external public relations and marketing companies worked; and for what reasons the work was not undertaken by departmental staff in each case. [252451]

Mr. McFadden: This Department used companies from the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework for the following areas of work in the last three full financial years:

2007-08[1]
Geronimo Communications	Enterprising Britain	172,630.27
GCI	Employing People campaign	30,030
Total		202,660.27
2006-07[2]
Fishburn Hedges	DTI Gap analysis	9,071
Geronimo Communications	Enterprising Britain	163,642
GCI	Business Link	179,113
Total		351,826
2005-06
Geronimo Communications	Enterprising Britain	76,240
GCI	Small Business Service	105,786
Harrison Cowley	Consumer Direct	239,050
Wright Communication	Consumer Direct	32,694
Total		453,770

[1] April to June 2007 as DTI and BERR from June 2007.
[2] Spend by the former DTI.
Note:
These costs are inclusive of COI fees.

In all cases, PR agencies were employed to carry out work for which there was no available in-house resource. PR campaigns by their nature are time-limited and so it would not be cost-efficient to retain staff internally to run them. Contracting outside agencies also enables the Department to gain external specialist expertise as well as supporting the creative industries. PR contracts are placed taking account of Cabinet Office Propriety Guidance.

Departmental Recruitment

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many new recruits his Department took on in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07, (c) 2007-08 and (d) 2008-09; how many of these were taken on as (i) permanent, (ii) temporary and (iii) agency staff; and what estimate he has made of the equivalent figures for (A) 2009-10 and (B) 2010-11. [254470]

Mr. McFadden: The number of new recruits[1] that joined the Department for the financial years requested are listed in the following table.

Permanent[2]	72	52	70	73
Temporary[3]	48	29	41	66
Total	120	81	111	139

[1] New recruits represent staff that have joined BERR or its predecessor DTI and excludes our executive agencies.
[2] Permanent new recruits are staff employed by the Department on a permanent civil service contract.
[3] Temporary new recruits are staff that have been recruited on a short term or fixed term civil service contract.

With respect to estimates for the years 2009-10 and 2010-11, we cannot give forecasts of future staff recruitment as this is dependant on the needs of the business which at present is fluid.

Agency staff are new recruits that have joined the Department but are not on a civil service contract and are employed by a third party. The arrangements for employing agency staff in the Department are delegated locally to line management units. To provide such information could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Insolvency

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many pre-pack administrations there have been in (a) the UK, (b) England, (c) the North East and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in the last 12 months. [257515]

Mr. McFadden: There is insufficient information held centrally, and in a readily available format, to provide an answer to this question. This is because:

Corporate insolvency statistics are not currently available at a sub national level.

Statistics are not currently available on the number of pre-pack administrations.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Chelmsford of 27 November 2008 on his constituent, Mr. Russ Harrington of Broomfield, Chelmsford. [256516]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 12 February 2009]: I responded to the hon. Member on 5 February 2009.

North East Economic Forum: Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what funding (a) his Department and (b) One North East has provided to the North East Economic Forum in the last 12 months. [257549]

Mr. McFadden: The Department has provided no direct funding to the North East Economic Forum. During the 12 months, February 2008 to January 2009, One North East provided £112,640 to the North East Economic Forum for costs associated with two major regional conferences and a number of associated events.

The aforementioned figure includes:

Contribution to the costs of the 2007 Annual Conference, various associated events, workshops and networking events which was invoiced in 2008.

Contribution to the costs of the 2008 Annual Conference held on 5 December 2008, various associated events, workshops and networking events.

Energy Event on 14 November 2008.

Regional Development Agencies: Land

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what land holdings each regional development agency owns. [253777]

Mr. McFadden: Tables showing regional development agency land holdings, as at February 2009, will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Regional Development Agencies: Non-domestic Rates

Dr. Ladyman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate his Department has made of the cost to regional development agencies of paying national non-domestic rates in respect of empty commercial properties in 2009-10. [255740]

Mr. McFadden: The following table shows the estimated cost to RDAs of paying national non-domestic rates in respect of empty commercial properties in 2009-10.

RDA	Estimated cost to RDAs of paying national non-domestic rates for empty commercial properties in 2009-10 (£000)
AWM	53
EEDA	90
EMDA	44
LDA	164
NWDA	112
ONE	200
SEEDA	325
SWRDA	272
YF	'918

[1] The economic regeneration of Yorkshire and Humber's main urban centres is a regional economic strategy priority. To support delivery of this priority YF has acquired strategic properties and sites. The economic downturn is lengthening the delivery of re-uses and new uses for these sites which impacts on rates and empty rates costs.

JUSTICE

Care Proceedings: Applications

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many applications for care proceedings were made by local authorities in England and Wales in each month of (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008. [258201]

Bridget Prentice: The numbers of public law care and supervision applications under section 31 of the Children Act 1989 from April 2007 to December 2008 are shown in the following table. Public law cases are those brought by local authorities or an authorised person (currently only the NSPCC). Figures relate to the number of children that are subject to each application, are for England and Wales, and have been rounded to the nearest 10. Please note that 2008 figures remain subject to change, particularly the later months of the year.

The majority of applications are made in Family Proceedings Courts (FPCs). There have been data quality issues with figures for FPCs, and a new method of data collection was introduced in April 2007 which has improved the quality and level of recording on previous years. Prior to April 2007 the collection was on a quarterly basis, meaning that monthly data are not available.

Comparisons between short time periods (one or two months) as presented in this table should be made with caution as these figures are subject to more volatility than those covering longer time periods.

Cemeteries: Safety

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the Answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 25 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1291-2W, on the Department for Constitutional Affairs Cemetery and Burials Advisory Group, what progress has been made in the review of the compensation culture referred to in the minutes of the Advisory Group meeting of 9 March 2006. [258026]

Bridget Prentice: Following publication of the Better Regulation Task Force's 2004 report "Better Routes to Redress", the Department took forward a programme of work to tackle perceptions of a "compensation culture" and to improve the compensation system for those with valid claims. One strand of this work related to risk management, which was the subject of the discussion at the Burial and Cemeteries Advisory Group. A number of initiatives were undertaken by individual Departments, including the production of guidance by the Health and Safety Executive on simplifying risk assessments, and this Department facilitated workshops aimed at improving understanding of issues relating to risk, involving other Departments, insurers, local government, the voluntary sector and other sectors.

Civil Proceedings: Legal Representation

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what information he has on the number of criminal cases defended by litigants-in-person. [258015]

Mr. Malik: The criminal justice system does not collect information on the number of unrepresented defendants appearing before the magistrates court, Court of Appeal and House of Lords. The number of unrepresented defendants recorded as appearing before the Crown court in 2007-08 is set out in the following table.

Percentage of unrepresented defendants appearing before the Crown court in 2007-08 by type of case

	Trials	Committals for sentence	Appeals
Total	93,642	29,781	9,656
Legally aided	89,381	27,254	6,834
Privately represented	4,220	1,750	2,295
Unrepresented	41	777	527
Percentage unrepresented	0.04	2.6	5.5

Note:
The data presented are taken from the Crown court electronic records system which holds administrative data related to the Crown court. It does not include data from Newcastle and Bolton Crown courts.

Convictions

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people in England are estimated to have an unspent conviction. [258228]

Maria Eagle: The information is not available.

Centralised police national computer (PNC) data only go back to 2000, with incomplete data available for 1997-99 and no centralised data available from before 1997. As prison sentences of over six months remain unspent for 10 years, and prison sentences of over 30 months never become spent, the data available would not provide an accurate indicator of the total number of individuals with unspent convictions in England today.

Moreover, data on whether convictions are spent or not are not routinely collected. They are only obtained when required for operational purposes (e.g. when a disclosure certificate is being prepared, or an individual is calculating whether they have to disclose a conviction). To produce a response to the question, even limited to the years for which there are central data, could therefore be done only at disproportionate cost.

Coroners

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the number of coroners' inquests likely to be held without a jury on the grounds of (a) national security, (b) the relationship between the United Kingdom and another country, (c) preventing or detecting crime, (d) protecting the safety of a witness or other person and (e) otherwise preventing real harm to the public interest, under clause 11 of the Coroners and Justice Bill, during the first year of operation of the legislation. [257292]

Bridget Prentice: At present, less than 2 per cent. of inquests are held with a jury (in 2007, 540 out of 30,841, or 1.75 per cent.), and we anticipate that only a very small number of those cases, perhaps one or two each year, will be affected by clause 11 of the Coroners and Justice Bill. It is not possible to speculate which limbs of the definition these one or two cases will fall under.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on how many occasions an inquest has been closed without a recorded verdict in each of the last five years. [257635]

Bridget Prentice: An inquest may be adjourned under section 16 of the Coroners Act 1988 pending the outcome of criminal proceedings for a homicide offence relating to the death. An inquest may be adjourned under section 17A of the 1988 Act where there is a judicial public inquiry into the death and the Lord Chancellor considers that the cause of death will be adequately investigated by the inquiry. In section 16 cases, the coroner will only resume the inquest after the conclusion of the criminal proceedings if in his opinion there is "sufficient reason" to do so. In section 17A cases, the coroner will only resume the inquest after the public inquiry if in his option there is "exceptional reason" to do so.

The number of inquests which were adjourned and not resumed by coroners in England and Wales prior to a verdict being reached, in each year between 2003 and 2007, is provided in the following table:

	Number
2003	908
2004	943
2005	1,008
2007	926

Statistics for 2008 are not yet available, but are due to be published on the Ministry of Justice website in May in the National Statistics bulletin: "Statistics on deaths reported to coroners, England and Wales".

Cremation: Standards

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the Answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 25 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1291-12W on Department for Constitutional Affairs Cemetery and Burials Advisory Group, and the minutes of the meeting of the Advisory Board on 25 February 2008, what assessment has been made of the adequacy of supply of (a) coffins, (b) crematorium services and (c) funeral services in the event of pandemic influenza. [258021]

Bridget Prentice: Following the Advisory Group meeting on 25 February 2008, the Home Office published 'Planning for a Possible Influenza Pandemic: A Framework for Planners Preparing to Manage Deaths' on 22 May. This provides guidance for local planners on providing cremation and funeral services in these circumstances. We have since been working with representatives of the funeral industry and coffin manufacturers to explore existing supply arrangements and options to increase capacity if necessary. This work continues.

Debt Collection

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many homes have been subject to forced entry by bailiffs under the provisions of the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004 in each year since those provisions were implemented. [257514]

Bridget Prentice: Since the introduction of the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004 the power to force entry has been used to execute warrants of arrest by magistrates court civilian enforcement officers (CEOs) on 386 occasions and to execute warrants of distress by private bailiffs contracted to Her Majesty's Courts Service (HMCS) on two occasions. HMCS does not have a breakdown for each of the individual years available.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 13 October 2008, Official Report, column 870W, on debt collection: parking offences, (1) whether his Department plans to bring forward proposals to amend the law relating to bailiffs to extend rights to bailiffs to have a forced power of entry in relation to unpaid parking fines; [258019]

(2) when he expects the new powers of forced entry for bailiffs under the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 to be (a) commenced and (b) implemented. [258067]

Bridget Prentice: The enforcement provisions in the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 are far reaching reforms. The provisions have recently undergone a comprehensive reassessment by Ministers to ensure that they remain appropriate even under this difficult financial climate. This assessment has now concluded and a statement will be made shortly.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will place in the Library a copy of each individual non-confidential response to his Department's consultation paper on the regulation of enforcement agents. [258068]

Bridget Prentice: A copy of each individual non-confidential response to the Department's consultation paper on regulation of enforcement agents has already been placed in the Library.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether his Department's joint review with the Department for Communities and Local Government on the enforcement of council tax payments will include in its remit the enforcement powers of bailiffs. [258071]

Bridget Prentice: The Ministry of Justice has completed an extensive review on the powers of bailiffs which culminated in the enforcement provisions in the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007. The Ministry of Justice is working with the Department of Communities and Local Government to look at new ways to collect and enforce council tax, in particular by allowing councils to transfer council tax debts from magistrates to county courts. Any necessary legislation will be introduced as parliamentary time allows.

Debts: Court Orders

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) third party debt, (b) interim charging and (c) final charging orders were made by courts in each of the last five years. [258046]

Bridget Prentice: The following table shows the numbers of interim and final third party debt orders and charging orders made in the county courts of England and Wales in each of the last five years.

Number of interim and final third party debt orders[1] and charging orders[2] made in the county courts of England and Wales 2004–08[3]

	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008[3]
Interim third party debt orders	6,217	6,551	6,428	6,364	7,349

Departmental Translation Services

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many language translators are employed in each of his Department's executive agencies; and what the cost of translating services provided by such people was in the latest period for which information is available. [257156]

Mr. Straw: Her Majesty's Courts Service does employ one translator within the Welsh Language Unit. Where other services are required, they are secured as and when required. Individuals providing those services are not directly employed by the MOJ.

Translator costs for HMCS and National Offender Management Service (excluding HMPS and probation service) are detailed as follows.

Financial year 2007-08	£
HMCS	200,000
NOMS HQ	8,906

Tribunals are unable to differentiate between the cost of translators and interpreters. The total cost of those services in 2007-08 was £6,058,000.

Information for Her Majesty's Prison Service and the probation service is not held centrally and is available only at disproportionate cost.

Electoral Register

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) which local authority electoral registration departments (a) do and (b) do not use bar coding on their electoral registration forms; [257323]

(2) how many local authorities have a (a) Plain English Campaign award and (b) Charter Mark certificate for their electoral registration forms. [257326]

Mr. Wills: A prescribed canvass form is available to all local authorities for the purpose of the annual canvass. The MOJ has not applied for this form to be awarded the Plain English Campaign award but will consider doing so. The design of rolling registration forms is a matter for electoral registration officers.

Charter Mark is awarded to organisations who successfully pass an accreditation process but there is no certification process for registration forms. Local authorities with Charter Mark status may endorse the Charter Mark emblem on any of their publications; it is not known how many print it on their canvass forms.

Information on which local authorities use bar coding on their registration forms is not collected centrally and to do so now would result in disproportionate costs, as we would need to contact every local authority.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the demographic profile of those people who are most likely not to be registered to vote; and if he will make a statement. [257490]

Mr. Wills: As the Under-Secretary of State for Justice, my hon. Friend the Member for Lewisham (Bridget Prentice) explained in answer to a similar question from my hon. Friend on 26 June 2008, Official Report, column 474W, the Government have not commissioned or evaluated any specific research on the demographic profile of people who are most likely not to be registered to vote. However, the Government do utilise some existing research concerning the attitudes and motivations of the electorate, as commissioned by the then Department of Constitutional Affairs in 2005, as a basis for further work towards identifying an evidence base for policy development and service targets in the electoral field.

The Electoral Commission found in their report, 'Understanding Electoral Registration', published in September 2005, that the most likely electors not to be registered to vote included young people, those residing in private rented accommodation and those belonging to certain minority ethnic groups.

Information arising out of the evidence base and the Electoral Commission's report were used to mount a registration campaign in London for 18 to 24-year-olds and to inform work on registration, which fed into various measures in the Electoral Administration Act 2006.

Electoral Register: Telephone Services

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what rules govern registration to vote by telephone; and whether he plans to change these rules; [257716]

(2) which local authorities use telephone registration to register electors. [257717]

Mr. Wills: Sections 10 and 10A of the Representation of the People Act 1983, in combination with regulations made under that Act, require an application to be added to the electoral register to be made in writing and signed by the applicant. This applies whether the application is made in response to the annual canvass or at any other time. The effect is that a fresh application for registration cannot be made by telephone.

By virtue of section 10A(5)(a) of the Representation of the People Act 1983, once a person is registered, he is entitled to remain on the register until such time as the registration officer is unable to satisfy himself that the person is resident at the address—either because the annual canvass form was not returned or because insufficient information was obtained as to whether the elector was resident at the address at the conclusion of the canvass. There is nothing in this provision to prevent a registration officer from satisfying himself that a person is still resident at the address on the basis of information provided by telephone by the person. As a result, it is possible for registration officers to accept telephone confirmation of a person's continued entitlement to registration and, in such a case, the person's entry could remain in the register.

There are no current plans to change these rules.

Maintaining the registers is the responsibility of local electoral registration officers and no central record is kept regarding how many registration officers accept telephone confirmation of continued entitlement to registration.

Electronic Commerce: EC Law

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the Answer of 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 1171W, on homophobia, what compliance issues with the EU e-commerce Directive remain to be resolved. [257415]

Mr. Straw: The E-commerce Directive requires us to apply the offence to domestically established electronic service providers when they provide their services in other European economic area states.

In order to do this, we intend to make regulations under the European Communities Act 1972. But, as the offence relating to hatred on grounds of sexual orientation carries a maximum sentence of seven years imprisonment, we need powers to create penalties greater than those permitted by section 2(2) of that Act. Clause 123 of the Coroners and Justice Bill will amend the 1972 Act to allow us to do this.

HM Courts Service: Pay

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what financial settlement was reached with the former Chief Executive of HM Courts Service at the end of his tenure. [258243]

Mr. Straw: Details of the financial settlement reached with the former chief executive, HM Courts Service is available in the public domain as detailed in the Ministry of Justice's resource account 2007-08.

Sir Ron De Witt left the Department on 14 December 2007. He received a lump sum compensation payment upon the date of his departure of £405,000-£410,000. This included a special severance payment of £130,000-135,000.

Libra Project

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much the Libra project (a) has cost to date and (b) is expected to have cost on completion; and what implementation milestones have been set for the project. [258013]

Bridget Prentice: Rollout of the Libra application is now complete in all magistrates' courts. The outturn cost of the project is £444 million. A Welsh version of the application is scheduled to be available in September 2009.

Magistrates' Courts

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many times magistrates courts hearings in each district have had to be postponed because the prosecution case paperwork was incomplete or misdirected in the last 12 months. [258012]

Bridget Prentice: The Ministry of Justice does not hold information centrally concerning how many times hearings in each district have been postponed due to prosecution casework being incomplete or misdirected and this could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

However, figures for the prosecution's administrative lack of readiness in relation to vacated and ineffective trials are shown in the following table by Local Criminal Justice Board area. The data are gathered as part of the joint ineffective and vacated trial monitoring exercise and rely on the accurate recording of reasons that may, over time, be subject to amendment.

Nationally, the data for January to December 2008 show that 4.3 per cent. of all vacated trials were vacated because of reasons associated to the prosecution's administrative lack of readiness. In relation to ineffective trials, the reasons associated to the prosecution's lack of readiness led to 1.7 per cent. of all trials being ineffective.

Despite these relatively low figures, the Crown Prosecution Service has introduced a number of significant changes to its working practices to improve the effectiveness of its work in the magistrates' courts. These are under an initiative known as the 'Optimum Business Model' (OBM). The OBM comprises nine recommendations, the key element being the introduction of proactive case progression teams that ensure cases are ready in advance of the court hearing. OBM has focused on eliminating waste and duplication, streamlining processes and improving timeliness. It has been implemented across 40 of the 42 Crown Prosecution Service areas to date and considerable benefits have been gained not least in the improved timeliness of the prosecution review of cases, in better rates of readiness for trial and responses to correspondence. A system has been introduced to record numbers of adjournments and the reasons why they occurred which is currently under review. Early indications show a reduction of adjournments overall in line with the introduction of criminal justice simple speedy summary (CJSSS) processes and the contribution of OBM.

National Offender Management Service: Redundancy

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the total monetary value of all redundancy packages given to regional offender managers is. [257571]

Mr. Straw: The National Offender Management Service (NOMS) appointed regional offender managers (ROMs) as commissioners of services. As a result of structural changes in NOMS, Directors of Offender Managers have now been appointed (due to be announced imminently). The ROMs will remain in post until 31 March 2009. The role will then end as the new structure comes into place. The expectation is that there will be no redundancies as a result of this change as our objective is to redeploy the ROMs into other roles.

Offenders: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what types of offences were committed by people on bail in Suffolk in each of the last five years. [256064]

Maria Eagle: Court proceedings data held by the Ministry of Justice do not identify whether persons were on bail at the time of committing an offence.

Office of the Public Guardian: Complaints

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many complaints about the Office of the Public Guardian were received in each month of the last three years. [257629]

Bridget Prentice: The number of complaints received by the Office of the Public Guardian each month for the last three years is shown in the following table.

Prison Sentences

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many prisoners serving an indeterminate sentence for public protection have been set a tariff of (a) less than 12 months, (b) between 12 months and two years and (c) over two years; [257468]

(2) how many prisoners serving an indeterminate sentence for public protection who have served sentences longer than their tariff have served (a) fewer than six months, (b) between six months and one year and (c) more than one year over their tariff. [257469]

Maria Eagle: The number of prisoners in custody on 12 February 2009 serving an indeterminate sentence of imprisonment for public protection broken down by length of tariff is as follows:

	Number of prisoners
Awaiting confirmation of tariff	329
Tariff less than 12 months	253
Tariff 12 months to two years	1,122
Tariff over two years	3,355
Total	5,059

The number of prisoners in custody serving an indeterminate sentence for public protection longer than their tariff on 12 February 2009 was 1,487. This is broken down as follows:

	Number of prisoners
Past tariff by fewer than six months	525
Past tariff six to 12 months	394
Past tariff 12 months or more	568
Total	1,487

These figures are taken from the National Offender Management Service's records. As with any large scale recording system, it is subject to possible errors arising from either data entry or processing.

The tariff is the minimum period which an indeterminate sentenced prisoner must serve for punishment and deterrence. It is for the independent Parole Board to determine whether to direct the release of an indeterminate sentenced prisoner once his tariff has expired, based on all relevant information as to the risk of harm which the prisoner presents.

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners are serving (a) life sentences and (b) other indeterminate sentences. [257470]

Maria Eagle: At the end of December 2008 there were 4,963 prisoners serving indeterminate sentences for public protection in all prison establishments in England and Wales, and 7,031 serving life sentences.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisoners Release

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners have been released early in error in the last five years; for what offences they were serving sentences; what the length of the original sentence was in each case; how long each had left to serve on release; and if he will make a statement. [257458]

Mr. Hanson: It is a mandatory requirement that prisons check the correctness of the calculation of a prisoner's release date 14 days and two days before release. At this point, a check is also made to ensure that there is no other reason a prisoner should be detained in custody, such as, if they are remanded to custody on further charges or held on immigration matters. Additionally, re-calculations and checks are also carried out during the course of the sentence should a prisoner be transferred from one establishment to another. Prison Service Order 6650 provides details of the sentence calculation checks required.

The number of known releases in error are reported to the national operations unit in the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) by prison establishments. The number of releases reported is as follows:

	Number of releases in error (RIEs) reported	Total number of prisoner discharges	Percentage of discharges that are RIEs
2006	36	78,535	<0.05
2007	36	77,146	<0.05
2008	57	n/a

n/a = Not available

Information on how early the release was in each case and the details of the offences are not available centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The number of releases in error remains very small as a percentage of total discharges (less than 0.05 per cent. in 2007, the last year for which discharge figures are currently available) and must be viewed in the context of increased prisoner movement to accommodate the rising population.

Prisoners: Racial Harassment

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many incidents classified as racially-motivated were reported by prisoners in each of the last five years. [257637]

Mr. Straw: The following table presents the number of incidents of alleged racism reported by prisoners. This is broken down into those about the behaviour of other prisoners and those concerning service provision or the actions of members of staff. While all reports are investigated few consist of allegations of misconduct by staff and all such matters are subject to disciplinary investigation under the code of conduct and discipline.

'Race Review 2008', recently published by the National Offender Management Service, which is available in the Library of the House, sets out the current assessment of race equality in the Prison Service, including the effectiveness of these systems and plans for work further to improve them.

	Total	Prisoner behaviour	Service/actions of staff

Prisoners: Suicide

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what steps he is taking to reduce the incidence of suicide in prisons; [258753]

(2) how many prisoners died in HM Prison Winchester in each of the last five years; and how many of those deaths were suicides; [258754]

(3) how many prisoners died in prisons in England and Wales in each of the last five years; and how many of those deaths were suicides. [258755]

Mr. Malik: The National Offender Management Service has a broad, integrated and evidence-based prisoner suicide prevention strategy that seeks to reduce the distress of all those in prison. This encompasses a wide spectrum of prison and Department of Health work around such issues as mental health, substance misuse and resettlement. Any prisoner identified as at risk of suicide or self-harm is cared for using the Assessment, Care in Custody and Teamwork (ACCT) procedures. ACCT is the prisoner-centred flexible care-planning system introduced across the prisons estate in partnership with the Department of Health during 2005 to 2007 to replace the old F2052SH system.

Any death in custody is a tragic event. The Government are committed to learning from such events and reducing the number of self-inflicted deaths in state custody. We are implementing many of the recommendations of Robert Fulton's Review of the Forum for Preventing Deaths in Custody. From April 2009, a new three tier Ministerial Council on Deaths in Custody will replace the existing forum and the Ministerial Roundtable on Suicide.

The numbers of deaths at HMP Winchester in the last five calendar years, broken down by type, are detailed in the following table.

Prisons: Drugs

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many visitors to prisons were found to be in possession of illegal drugs in 2007-08; how many such visitors were referred to the police; and what steps were taken in respect of those not referred to the police. [256749]

Mr. Hanson: The data are not available in the format requested.

It is the National Offender Management Service's policy for all prison visitors found in possession of illicit drugs to be referred to the police. As a result of which in 2007-08 the police made 424 arrests of prison visitors the majority of which would have been for drug offences.

These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system. The data are not subject to audit.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what the length is of each custodial sentence, other than suspended sentences, handed down under the provisions of the Protection of Badgers Act 1992 since the Act came into force; and when each such sentence was handed down; [258740]

(2) how much has been received in fines imposed under the provisions of the Protection of Badgers Act 1992 in each year since its entry into force; and how the receipts have been allocated; [258744]

(3) how many persons prosecuted under the provisions of the Protection of Badgers Act 1992 received custodial sentences, other than suspended sentences, in (a) each year since 2006 and (b) 2009 to date. [258745]

Mr. Hanson: The available information is shown in the following table.

Notes:
1. The offence of 'Failing to give up a dog for destruction having custody of a dog whilst disqualified' is an offence under the Badger Act (1992) and the Dangerous Dogs Act (1991). It has been included in these figures, although it is not possible to tell which Act was intended when sentencing.
2. The statistics are presented on the principal offence basis, where an offender has been sentenced for more than one offence the principal offence is the one for which the heaviest sentence was imposed, where the same sentence has been imposed for two or more offences the principal offence is the one for which the statutory maximum is most severe.
3. These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

Data on the collection of fines for specific offences are not held, therefore the answer given shows the sum of all fines imposed for offences relating to the Protection of Badgers Act 1992, the actual amount collected is not known. As with all collected fines the receipts are paid into the Consolidated Fund at HM Treasury and are then allocated according to Government spending priorities as part of the spending review process.

Statistics for 2008 will not be available until Sentencing Statistics 2008 is published in late 2009.

Repossession Orders

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many court orders for home repossession have been issued in Eastbourne constituency in each month of the last two years. [257083]

Bridget Prentice: Figures for Eastbourne parliamentary constituency are not available. However, the following table shows the number of mortgage and landlord possession actions in Eastbourne county court.

The civil procedure rules state that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. However, Eastbourne county court may cover areas other than the Eastbourne constituency. Therefore not all possession actions at this court necessarily relate to Eastbourne constituency.

Court level statistics on mortgage and landlord repossession actions from 1987 to 2008 are available on the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/mortgagelandlordpossession.htm.

These figures do not indicate how many homes have actually been repossessed. Repossessions can occur without a court order being made, while not all court orders result in repossession.

[1] Includes all types of mortgage lenders.
[2] Includes all types of landlord whether social or private.
[3] Landlord actions include those made under both standard and accelerated procedures. Landlord actions via the accelerated procedure enables the orders to be made solely on the basis of written evidence for shorthold tenancies, when the fixed period of tenancy has come to an end.
[4] Figures for the latest month are provisional.
[5] The court, following a judicial hearing, may grant an order for possession immediately. This enables the claimant to apply for a warrant to have the defendant evicted. However, even where a warrant for possession is issued, the parties can still negotiate a compromise to prevent eviction.
[6] Includes outright and suspended orders, the latter being where the court grants the claimant possession but suspends the operation of the order. Provided the defendant complies with the terms of suspension, which usually require the defendant to pay the current mortgage or rent instalments plus some of the accrued arrears, the possession order cannot be enforced.
[7] The rollout of the Possession Claim On-Line (PCOL) system in late 2008 has affected the availability of court-level data. Only those county courts which do not have direct on site access to PCOL were affected. Consequently, upward adjustments have been applied which estimate the effects of the missing data. The figures for Eastbourne court are adjusted at Her Majesty Courts Service (HMCS) regional level, which for Eastbourne is the south east.
[8] The Mortgage Pre Action Protocol for possession claims relating to mortgage or home purchase arrears was introduced in November 2008. In the short term, it has led to substantial fall in the number of new possession claims. More details are available in the recent repossession action bulletin available on Ministry of Justice website.

Repossession Orders: Wandsworth

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many court orders have been issued for the repossession of homes in Putney, Roehampton and Southfields in each of the last 10 years. [258361]

Bridget Prentice: Figures for Putney, Roehampton and Southfields constituency are not available. However, statistics on mortgage and landlord possession orders for London county courts (1987 to 2008) are available via the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/docs/stats-landlord-mortgage-historic-20-02-09.xls

These include figures for Wandsworth county court, which is nearest to Putney, Roehampton and Southfields constituency.

The civil procedure rules state that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. However, geographical boundaries of county courts may not necessarily be consistent with other administrative or constituency boundaries. Repossession orders made at Wandsworth county court may therefore relate to properties in other constituencies besides Putney, Roehampton and Southfields.

These figures do not indicate how many homes have actually been repossessed. Repossessions can occur without a court order being made, while not all court orders result in repossession.

Residence Orders

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many applications for residence orders were made during (a) 2006 and (b) 2007. [257512]

Bridget Prentice: The number of applications for residence orders made during 2006 and 2007 are given in the following table. There have been data quality issues with figures for Family Proceedings Courts (FPCs), and a new method of data collection was introduced in April 2007 which has improved the quality and level of recording on previous years. Comparisons between 2006 and 2007 should therefore be made with caution in this jurisdiction.

Number of Section 8 residence applications made, by whether private or public law and tier of court, 2006 and 2007: England and Wales

2006
Public Law	330	288	37	655
Private Law	4,300	28,802	313	33,415
2007

[1] There have been data quality issues with figures for FPCs, and a new method of data collection was introduced in April 2007 which has improved the quality and level of recording on previous years. Pre April 2007, there are weighted estimates based on data from a subset of courts. To reflect data uncertainty FPC figures have been rounded.
[2] Research undertaken on behalf of Ministry of Justice has identified that some cases that have transferred from the Family Proceedings Court to the County Court have been incorrectly recorded as new applications in the County Court, thus inflating the reported number of new applications through double counting (see Masson et al 2008)

Figures relate to the number of children subject to each application.

Television: Licensing

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were fined for television licence evasion in the most recent period for which figures are available; and what the average fine was. [257025]

Number of persons fined and average fine amount for offences relating to TV licence evasion[1], 2007

	Number/£
Number of persons fined	120,114

Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Great Grimsby of 20 October 2008, Official Report, column 53W, on the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007, if he will place a copy of the report of the recently completed scoping exercise in the Library. [258142]

Bridget Prentice: The scoping exercise involved a series of meetings with stakeholders to discuss implementation. The enforcement provisions in the Tribunals, Court and Enforcement Act 2007 are far reaching reforms. The provisions have recently undergone a comprehensive reassessment by Ministers to ensure that they remain appropriate even under this difficult financial climate. This assessment has now concluded and a statement will be made shortly.

TRANSPORT

Departmental Cars

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many miles each Minister in his Department has travelled in a ministerial car in each of the last five years; how many such journeys each Minister made in each of those years; and what estimate has been made of the amount of resultant carbon dioxide emissions in each year. [258163]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Driving Standards Agency: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 1385W, on the Driving Standards Agency: alcoholic drinks, for what reason public money was used to purchase alcohol for staff attending the operations conference in September 2008. [258170]

Jim Fitzpatrick: This annual conference gathered together senior management staff from locations across Great Britain to discuss operational issues affecting the Agency. It involved an overnight stay and a dinner was part of the event which allowed staff, who seldom meet together as a group, to continue discussions on issues of the day in a less formal setting. It was considered reasonable to offer limited drinks (alcoholic or non-alcoholic) as part of that meal. The normal subsistence allowance was not paid to attendees.

Driving Standards Agency: Public Relations

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what payments the Driving Standards Agency has made to (a) (i) management and (ii) public affairs and relations, (b) advertising agencies and (c) other external consultancy organisations in each of the last five years. [257697]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Transport, to the hon. Member for Eddisbury (Mr. O'Brien) on 15 December 2008, Official Report, columns 386-88W.

Driving: Licensing

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the reasons were for the increase in the driving licence application fee to £50 in 2008. [257350]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The increase in the first provisional driving licence fee from £45 to £50 in 2008 was implemented to ensure that the Driver Vehicle and Licensing Agency's driver and vehicle registration costs continue to be covered by the fees levied. At the same time there was a similar increase in the vehicle first registration fee from £50 to £55. These are necessary for the agency to comply with its statutory duties as an executive agency and trading fund.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many prosecutions of driving licence holders there have been for failure to notify a change of address in the last year for which information is available. [258216]

Jim Fitzpatrick: By law, a driver licence holder is required to notify the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) of any changes to their personal details such as name and/or address. Failure to do so could result in prosecution and a fine of up to £1,000.

Any action to enforce a fine is brought by the police and not DVLA. DVLA holds no figures on the number of prosecutions brought by the police.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency has estimated the proportion of driving licence addresses which are inaccurate. [258217]

Jim Fitzpatrick: An accurate record is defined as one where the registered keeper of the vehicle or the driving licence holder can be traced from the details contained on the database.

The latest estimate of the accuracy of the vehicles record showed it was 96.9 per cent. accurate. This equates to 1,052,662 records that are inaccurate.

The latest estimate of the accuracy of the drivers record showed it was 81.5 per cent. accurate. This equates to 7,906,275 records that are inaccurate.

The responsibility for notifying the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Authority (DVLA) of a change of address lies with the vehicle keeper or licence holder. So far as vehicle records are concerned, there is an annual requirement to tax the vehicle and this transaction is a regular prompt to owners to fulfil the requirement to notify change of address. There is no equivalent annual driver transaction that prompts a notification.

DVLA works hard to maintain accuracy. The task is to encourage and support drivers and vehicle keepers to meet their obligations, and to that end, a dedicated accuracy improvement team has been established. Current initiatives in hand include checks of credit reference agency databases for current addresses and working with others in the cross government "Tell Us Once" initiative to obtain early notification of the death of a licence holder.

Electric Vehicles

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of battery-powered motor vehicles purchased in the UK in each of the last five years. [256946]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of battery-powered vehicles registered in each of the last five years is set out in the following table. These data include all mechanically-powered vehicles which are required to be registered under the Vehicle Excise and Registration Act 1994 (VERA), such as passenger cars and quadricycles such as the G-Wizz, but excludes invalid carriages or "mobility scooters". It includes vehicles whose propulsion type is listed as 'electricity' (where the vehicle is powered solely by electricity supplied from an on-board battery) and excludes hybrid vehicles and electric fuel cell vehicles.

	Number of new registrations
2005	742
2006	922
2007	1,374
2008	1,322
Total	4,929

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to encourage the use of battery-powered motor vehicles; and if he will make a statement. [256947]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government already provide generous support for motorists using Electric Vehicles (EVs) through the tax system (e.g. exemptions from vehicle excise duty and fuel duty). Over £100 million has been provided into research, development and demonstration of EVs and other low carbon vehicles. In addition, on 15 January 2009, the Secretary of State for Transport announced funding worth £250 million to build a system of consumer incentives to build the market for ultra-low emission vehicles, including EVs.

First Capital Connect: Finance

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much public subsidy was paid to (a) First Capital Connect and (b) the predecessor franchisee WAGN in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement. [258356]

Paul Clark: This information is published annually by the Office of Rail Regulation in National Rail Trends. Copies are available in the Library of the House and on the Office of Rail Regulation's website at:

www.rail-reg.gov.uk

Heathrow Airport: Noise

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of individuals (a) residing within the area of a 50 decibel contour of Heathrow Airport on the latest date for which figures are available and (b) likely to be residing within the area of a 50 decibel contour of the airport in 2020. [257497]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Although 54 dBA aircraft noise contours are sometimes produced as a sensitivity analysis, aircraft modelling below such levels is generally considered to be unlikely to generate accurate and reliable results.

In the case of night time contours where air traffic levels are lower, the corresponding noise contours are smaller, such that a 50 dBA L night contour is much closer to the airport and can therefore be estimated with reasonable precision.

Under the European Environmental Noise Directive 2002/49/EC, member states are required to produce strategic noise maps every five years for major airports.

The directive requires that maps should represent annual average noise values and requires the use of four different parameters including contours—in five dB steps—for 50 to 70 dBA L night (23.00-07.00).

Population figures for L night in respect of Heathrow were produced in 2007, based on 2006 movements. The population within the 50-55 dBA band was 145,300.

Further information is contained in ERCD Report 0706 "London Heathrow Airport Strategic Noise Maps 2006" available on Civil Aviation Authority's website at:

http://www.caa.co.uk/docs/33/ERCD0706.pdf

Heavy Goods Vehicles

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of miles heavy goods vehicles registered in (a) the United Kingdom and (b) overseas travelled on roads in the UK in each year since 1997. [256991]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department's Continuing Survey of Road Goods Transport (CSRGT) provides an estimate of the distance travelled by British registered HGVs. The information is provided in the following table extracted from table 1.1 in Road Freight Statistics 2007:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/freight/goodsbyroad/roadfreightstatistics2007

Distanced travelled by GB registered HGVs—1997 to 2007

	Billion Vehicle kms
1997	23.1
1998	23.3
1999	23.1
2000	23.0
2001	22.2
2002	22.2
2003	22.2
2004	22.3
2005	22.2
2007	22.4

Information on foreign registered HGVs is not routinely collected. However in the 2003 Survey of Foreign HGV Activity it was estimated that foreign registered HGVs travelled 0.9 billion kilometres. A similar survey will be taking place in 2009 to provide an update of this estimate.

High Speed Trains: Public Appointments

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the process of recruitment was which led to the appointment of Mr Andrew McNaughton to his role within High Speed Two. [258238]

Paul Clark: "Britain's Transport infrastructure: High Speed Two", published in January 2009, said that High Speed Two (HS2) Ltd. would draw on resources from Network Rail and the Department for Transport. The process for recruitment of these resources is a matter for the HS2 company.

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the names are of the directors and other members of senior management of High Speed Two. [258239]

Paul Clark: The directors of High Speed Two (HS2) Ltd. are Sir David Rowlands, Alison Munro, Timothy Wellburn and Sir Brian Briscoe (as non-executive). Sir David Rowlands is the interim chairman, and Alison Munro is the chief executive.

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the process of recruitment was which led to the appointment of Sir David Rowlands as interim chairman of High Speed Two. [258240]

Paul Clark: High Speed Two (HS2) Ltd. was set up to carry out detailed work on the feasibility of a new high speed line and to report to Government by the end of the year. Sir David Rowlands was appointed as the interim chairman in order to take forward this work without delay. Sir David has unique experience in the field of high-speed rail and is highly qualified for the role. An open competition will take place to appoint a permanent chairman in due course.

Humber Bridge

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions his Department had on proposals to write off the debt on the Humber Bridge; and if he will make a statement. [256992]

Paul Clark: Department for Transport officials met with the Humber Bridge Board to discuss the revision of the Humber Bridge debt interest rate which came into force on 19 June 2007. A copy of the new loan agreement was placed in the House Libraries at that time.

The revised debt interest rate covers the five year period from 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2011 at which time the debt interest rate will be reviewed.

There have been no further discussions about the Humber Bridge debt since June 2007.

Railways: Northern Region

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with Network Rail on improvements to the railway line between Newcastle and Edinburgh to increase its (a) passenger and (b) freight capacity. [257956]

Paul Clark: Department for Transport officials have been in discussion with Network Rail about the Intercity Express Project and the published East Coast Main Line and Freight Route Utilisation Strategies in relation to improvements to passenger and freight capacity, including between Newcastle and Edinburgh.

Roads: Snow and Ice

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans his Department has to fund the purchase of snow ploughs in the next 12 months. [257748]

Paul Clark: It is the responsibility of each local highway authority in England to develop a winter service strategy for its highway network. The Department for Transport is providing, as part of the local transport plan settlement, capital funding of £693 million in 2009-10 for local authority highways maintenance, though this is not ring-fenced to particular activities.

The Highways Agency has completed the first phase of a four year procurement contract worth £45 million, to replace all winter fleet vehicles, including snow ploughs. The first phase has covered the North West, East and part of the South East. In the next 12 months, the Agency will be purchasing 43 dedicated snow ploughs and a further 182 vehicles adapted for the use of snow ploughs. These will cover areas in the North East, the Midlands and part of the South East.

Taxis: Criminal Records

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many licensed taxi drivers have a criminal record for (a) motoring offences, (b) violent crimes and (c) sexual offences. [258752]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold this information centrally.

Responsibility for licensing taxi drivers rests with local licensing authorities outside London and Transport for London in London. The relevant legislation requires them to determine whether an applicant for a taxi driver licence is a 'fit and proper' person to hold a licence. As part of this process, it is standard procedure to request a disclosure from the Criminal Records Bureau. The authority will then decide whether any information contained in the disclosure means that the applicant should not be granted a licence.

Under the Notifiable Occupations Scheme, when an individual comes to the notice of the police and identifies their occupation as a taxi driver, the police should notify the appropriate licensing authority of convictions and any other relevant information that indicates that a person poses a risk to public safety. It would then be for the licensing authority to decide whether to revoke or suspend the licence.

Trains

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of the number of new trains will be (a) hybrid, (b) diesel and (c) electric models. [257957]

Paul Clark: Assuming no further electrification of the rail network, the mix of train types is approximately one third electric, one third self-power (diesel) and one third bi-mode (electric and diesel capability). That ratio will be subject to change depending on future decisions about further electrification.

Trains: York

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received on the location in York of the proposed train assembly and manufacturing factory. [257953]

Paul Clark: The choice of the UK train assembly and manufacturing site from a site in East Midlands, Yorkshire or the north-east is a matter for the train manufacturer.

West Coast Railway Line

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the effect of adding an additional hourly service to the Manchester to London railway line on local commuter services in Greater Manchester. [258564]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport meets train operating companies on a four weekly basis to review delivery of rail services and their ability to meet passenger requirements, particularly noting timetable changes.

Performance for the four weeks to 31 January 2009 for Manchester commuter services achieved a level of 91 per cent., which suggests that the timetable is running well.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animals

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many members of staff within her Department deal with animal-related matters as part of their remit. [256643]

Mr. Woolas: It is not possible, without contacting individuals, to identify who deals with animal-related matters.

Asylum

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions her Department has had with the Department for International Development on establishing training programmes in developing countries to enable asylum claimants from those countries to be returned safely. [257213]

Mr. Woolas: Regular discussions, including about training programmes, take place as part of a programme of work funded by the Returns and Reintegration Fund (which is a cross-government fund supported by the Department for International Development, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), the UK Border Agency, and with expertise from the Ministry of Justice. It is administered by the FCO.)

The Fund aims to increase the numbers of failed asylum seekers returned to overseas countries and provide reintegration assistance. One of the Fund's objectives is to ensure that those who return voluntarily have the best possible chance of making their return a successful one.

The Assisted Voluntary Return programme, which is supported by the Fund, provides in-country reintegration assistance including training programmes for returnees.

Asylum: Democratic Republic of Congo

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Democratic Republic of Congo nationals (a) arrived in the UK as family reunion cases, (b) applied for asylum and (c) were granted asylum in each of the last 12 months. [257246]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 23 February 2009]: Annual statistics showing the categories under which passengers are granted leave to enter the United Kingdom can be found in chapter 2 of the Home Office publication "Control of Immigration: Statistics United Kingdom 2007." This publication may be obtained from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/hosb1008.pdf.

The following table shows the asylum application and grants of asylum figures for nationals of the Democratic Republic of Congo for the last 12 months that have been published. Figures are provisional and rounded to the nearest five.

Initial decisions do not necessarily relate to applications made in the same period.

Information on asylum is published annually and quarterly. Annual figures on principal asylum applications are available in Table 2.1 and on grants of asylum in Table 3.1 of Asylum Statistics United Kingdom 2007 published on 21 August 2008. Quarterly figures are available in the supplementary web tables published with the Control of Immigration: Quarterly Statistics Summary. The Q4 2008 Quarterly Statistics Summary will be available on 24 February 2009 from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

Home Office, Migration Statistics

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment has been made of the safety of people returned to the Democratic Republic of Congo under immigration legislation. [257248]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 23 February 2009]: On 3 December 2008 the Court of Appeal upheld an Asylum and Immigration Tribunal finding that there is no evidence that failed asylum seekers who are returned from the UK to the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) face a general risk on return. The UK Border Agency continuously monitors the situation in asylum intake countries and is not aware of any subsequent allegations of ill-treatment of returnees to the DRC.

Asylum: Standards

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the performance figures for the asylum tipping point target were for each quarter since 2004. [257387]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 23 February 2009]: Levels of unfounded asylum applications and whether the tipping point target has been met in each quarter of 2004, 2005 and 2006 can be found on the UK Border Agency website at the following address:

http://www.bia.homeoffice.gov.uk/sitecontent/documents/aboutus/reports/publicperformancetarget/

Annual performance for 2007 was also published on the UK Border Agency website in November 2008.

Asylum: Zimbabwe

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of Zimbabwean nationals resident in the UK (a) in total and (b) with (i) asylum seeker status or exceptional leave to remain and (ii) a valid visa or other form of permission on the latest date for which figures are available. [257756]

Mr. Woolas: The Office for National Statistics collects data on nationality through the Annual Population Survey (APS). Estimates from the APS for the April 2007 to March 2008 period show that there were 63,000 Zimbabwean nationals in the UK.

Information is not available from the Home Office on Zimbabwean nationals in the UK (b) with (i) asylum seeker status or exceptional leave to remain and (ii) a valid visa or other form of permission as a person may leave the UK voluntarily without informing the UK Border Agency.

Information on immigration and asylum flows is published annually and quarterly and is available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff in her Department were recorded as having been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December in each of the last five years. [256629]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Office management information databases do not record sickness information in the form requested and to obtain it would incur a disproportionate cost.

Deportation: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people who previously resided in the Peterborough City Council area and had no legal basis to remain in the United Kingdom were deported in the three months up to September 2008; and if she will make a statement. [257966]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 24 February 2009]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 10 February 2009, Official Report, column 1830W, in which he asked a similar question. The information could be obtained only by detailed examination of individual records at disproportionate cost.

Entry Clearances

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what visa application procedures are in place for visitors from (a) Croatia, (b) Serbia, (c) Montenegro, (d) Macedonia and (e) Bosnia-Herzegovina. [254798]

Mr. Woolas: Nationals of Croatia are non-visa nationals and therefore not required to obtain entry clearance before visiting the UK. Nationals of Serbia, Montenegro, Macedonia and Bosnia-Herzegovina are visa nationals and must apply for entry clearance and be issued with a visa before travelling to the UK for a visit or any other purpose.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she plans to change the visa application procedures for visitors from (a) Serbia and (b) Macedonia. [254799]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Secretary recently announced the outcome of the UK's first global review of its visa regimes. No changes were proposed to the visa requirements for nationals of either Serbia or Macedonia.

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications for visas were approved under the (a) International Graduates Scheme, (b) Science and Engineering Graduates Scheme and (c) Working in Scotland Scheme (Fresh Talent) in 2008; and how many dependants were included in such visas in each category. [257365]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The number of visas issued in 2008 to participants in these schemes is shown in the following table. We cannot state how many visas were issued to dependents of those who have entered in these specific employment categories. This is because they are admitted under the same provision in the immigration rules as dependents of those entering in other employment categories, and separate records are therefore not kept.

Entry Clearances: EU Countries

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many EU nationals from each other EU member state have been refused entry into the UK on the grounds that their presence would threaten public safety in each of the last five years. [258252]

Mr. Woolas: The following table shows the total number of EU and EEA nationals who have been refused admission into the UK since 2004, under regulation 19 of the Immigration (EEA) Regulations 2006, on the grounds that their presence would threaten public policy, public security or public health.

Entry Clearances: Marriage

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications were made for marriage visas to enter the UK where the intended spouse was resident in the London Borough of Bexley in the last 12 months. [254804]

Mr. Woolas: In 2008, six applications for entry clearance as a fiancé, and a further 66 for entry clearance as a spouse, were received where the sponsor (ie the intended spouse or spouse) was resident in the London borough of Bexley.

This information is unpublished and should be treated as provisional.

Immigrants: Stop and Search

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) illegal and (b) legal immigrants were (i) stopped, (ii) searched and (iii) arrested by the police in each police authority area in each of the last five years. [258165]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Information on stops and searches and resultant arrests reported to the Home Office does not include information on the immigration status of persons searched.

Immigration: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 29 January 2009, Official Report, column 819W, on immigration: Peterborough, how many of the 200 other non-EEA nationals were of each nationality; and if she will make a statement. [257965]

Mr. Woolas [Holding answer 25 February 2009]: The following table details the number, by nationality, of 'Other non-EEA nationals' in Peterborough who were awaiting a decision on their leave to remain application as at 15 January 2009 pursuant to the answer given on 29 January 2009, Official Report, column 819W.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department at which location the UK Border Agency holds paper files on people resident in the administrative area of Peterborough City Council who are applying for indefinite leave to remain; and if she will make a statement. [257967]

Mr. Woolas [Holding answer 24 February 2009]: All files where an application for indefinite leave to remain is extant and requiring further work are sent to Beddington Cross in London for storage. Files are not held in the regional public enquiry office (PEO) as the team operates a fast turnaround policy for processing applications and therefore file storage is not required.

Asylum case files remain with individual caseowners until conclusion upon which they are sent to 'layby'. It should be noted however that asylum cases will not be classed as applications for ILR as those granted status are given leave of up to five years after which ILR may or may not be granted.

All ILR application cases that are concluded are sent to 'layby'; one central source is in Canning Town, Unit 3C, East London. Files sent to this location require no further work.

National Identity Register: Data Protection

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether a person who has consented to share across Government information held on her Department's database will be able to withdraw the consent. [258115]

Mr. Woolas: There is no single departmental database in the Home Office. If the Home Office is sharing personal information, including across Government, it needs to have a legal power to do so and it needs to be a lawful exercise of that power. The Home Office therefore needs to comply with the Data Protection Act 1998 when sharing personal information.

While consent is one of a number of conditions that can be relied on for data sharing to be considered fair and lawful under that Act, it is not the only condition, therefore the sharing of personal information can take place without the individual's consent. However, if consent is being relied on to enable the data sharing to take place, an individual has the right to withdraw that consent. If consent is withdrawn and there is no other basis for the sharing then it would stop.

National Security: Data Protection

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many certificates were issued under Section 28 of the Data Protection Act 1998 in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008; and if she will make a statement. [252513]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 2 February 2009]: I can confirm the existence of one certificate signed by the Home Secretary, relating to Transport for London Traffic data signed in July 2007; and also of another signed in March 2008 relating to the Security Service. Copies of both these certificates have been placed in the Library in response to a parliamentary question from my hon. Friend the Member for Birmingham, Selly Oak (Lynne Jones) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 2277W.

In line with the established policy of successive governments when asked about national security matters, I can neither confirm nor deny whether these certificates represent all certificates.

Departmental Lobbying

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether Ministers in her Department received representations from (a) Lord Moonie, (b) Lord Taylor of Blackburn, (c) Lord Snape and (d) Lord Truscott in the last seven months. [255242]

Mr. Woolas: No ministers in my Department have received representations from (a) Lord Moonie, (b) Lord Taylor of Blackburn, (c) Lord Snape and (d) Lord Truscot in the last seven months.

Police: ICT

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information is intended to be recorded via the Pentip computer system; and how the system is intended to be implemented by police forces. [253324]

Mr. Coaker: PentiP will provide a single national computer system and improved business processes for the processing of penalty notices. It will replace the existing VP/FPO systems that are used in most police forces and magistrates courts in England and Wales. It will enable them to process the various types of penalty notices more efficiently and effectively than is possible with the existing systems.

PentiP will record offence and offender information pertinent to the processing of the following disposal methods; penalty notices for disorder (PND), endorsable and non-endorsable road traffic offences, vehicle defect rectification scheme (VDRS), HO/RT1 and HO/RT2, national driver offender retraining schemes (NDORS), graduated fixed penalties (GFP), roadside deposits and verbal warnings.

The primary data items that will be recorded on PentiP are as follows:

Title
Name Address DOB Gender Ethnicity
Offence
Date of offence
Time of offence
Location of offence
Licence Number
Vehicle Plate Number
Vehicle make, model, colour
Vehicle defects

PentiP will be rolled out across police forces in England and Wales over a period of 12 months, commencing in September 2010.

Repatriation: Zimbabwe

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will review her policy on assisting Zimbabwean nationals resident in the UK to return to their country of origin to take account of changes in the political situation in Zimbabwe. [257757]

Mr. Woolas: Zimbabweans have continued to return home voluntarily. Each returnee has been eligible for the basic voluntary assisted return and reintegration package to assist with their reintegration needs on return. This programme is implemented by the International Organisation for Migration (IOM).

We recognise that the economic situation within Zimbabwe presents major challenges to Zimbabwean returnees. In order to make a more effective contribution to sustainable return it was decided that with effect from 1 February 2009 the reintegration assistance available would be enhanced as follows:

A relocation grant increased from £500 to £1,000. This is given in sterling at the airport, before departure, where it can be converted into US dollars.

An in-kind business set-up grant increased from £2,000 to £3,000. £2,500 worth of assistance will be available initially to obtain supplies and a further £500 will be available after a six month review of individual circumstances.

Health education and advice as well as a supply of water purification tablets and a basic commodities and dry goods package.

The enhancement will be implemented for six months as a pilot project.

Surveillance: EU Action

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether police forces of other EU member states are authorised to conduct surveillance operations of private property in the UK, including but not limited to personal computers, without a warrant; and if she will make a statement. [250875]

Mr. Coaker: Pursuant to the answer I gave the hon. Member on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 94W, I can confirm that no police forces of other EU member states are authorised to conduct remote or covert surveillance of private property in the UK.

Vetting

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many disclosure applications the Criminal Records Bureau (a) received in 2007-08 and (b) has received in 2008-09 to date; and what steps she is taking to enable the Bureau to deal with any increases in such numbers. [254285]

Meg Hillier: The number of disclosure applications received by the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) in 2007-08 and 2008-09 to date is detailed in the following table:

Financial year	Disclosure applications received (million)
2008-09 to date	3.3

The CRB has continued to receive a higher than anticipated volume of disclosure applications. There are a number of reasons for this, but the volumes have put a great deal of pressure on both the CRB and the police forces. Forces have been responding effectively and positively to these high intakes and this has enabled record numbers of disclosures to be issued in recent months.

Unfortunately, it is taking more time for some local police forces to recruit and train the extra staff that they need to be operating at full capacity. Consequently, some applications are taking longer to deal with. That said, over 85 per cent. of all disclosure applications received by the CRB are being completed within the 28 day target figure.

For those forces which, for a variety of reasons, have been having greater difficulty with the increased demand, the CRB has been working very closely with them to address what additional help and support they may need. The CRB has provided assistance and support to them in the form of IT and workflow management expertise, accommodation and a 10 per cent. increase in staff resources. The CRB has also increased its own staff resources by 11 per cent. to provide support for the police disclosure units and the bureau continues to monitor their performance regularly.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Mineworkers' Pension Scheme

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will hold discussions with the trustees of the Mineworkers' Pension Scheme on ways to improve benefits for scheme members. [245425]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: An actuarial valuation of the Mineworkers' Pension Scheme is being conducted at present. Should any surplus emerge, Ministers will discuss with the scheme trustees how they might use their share to improve members' benefits.

Nuclear Power: Consultants

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the Answer of 21 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1431-2W, on nuclear power: consultants, what role (a) Mr David Hughes, (b) Professor John Raine, (c) Mr Bernard Whittle and (d) Mr Phillip Woodward have in the generic design assessment. [255963]

Jonathan Shaw: I have been asked to reply.

Professor David Hughes, Professor John Raine, Mr. Bernard Whittle and Mr. Phillip Woodward are members of the independent Process Review Board set up by the Chief Inspector of Nuclear Installations. The purpose of this board is to provide additional assurance to him that appropriate governance processes have been applied during the Generic Design Assessment (GDA) process for new nuclear power stations. The full terms of reference for the board can be seen at:

www.hse.gov.uk/newreactors/terms.htm

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Inland Waterways: Repairs and Maintenance

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the sum required to clear the maintenance backlog experienced by British Waterways; and if he will make a statement. [256164]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The KPMG report commissioned by British Waterways concluded that there is a significant gap between current expenditure and that required under steady state to maintain its waterways. However, British Waterways have advised that current expenditure is sufficient to maintain the network in a reasonable and safe condition for this comprehensive spending review (CSR) period. In this context, there is no safety backlog through British Waterways estimates that it would cost around £200 million to bring all principal and non principal assets up to steady state condition.

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people (a) were in structured care-planned treatment and (b) discharged from an alcohol treatment programme in each strategic health authority area in each month since the commencement of national alcohol treatment monitoring. [257173]

Dawn Primarolo: Since 1 April 2008, the National Treatment Agency has collected data on individuals who receive specialist care-planned alcohol treatment, through the National Alcohol Treatment Monitoring System. As this is a new system, and services' reporting compliance is still being improved, data are not yet robust. The information can however be found at:

www.ndtms.net

Aortic Aneurysms: Screening

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Bolton South East of 18 November 2008, Official Report, column 343W, on aortic aneurysm: screening, when he expects the second stage of the phased implementation of the NHS abdominal aortic aneurysm screening programme to begin; and which NHS trusts will participate in that stage. [256898]

Ann Keen: It is anticipated that the next phase of implementation will begin in autumn 2009.

At this stage no decisions have been made about which national health service trusts will take part in the next phase.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Bolton South East of 18 November 2008, Official Report, column 343W, on aortic aneurysm: screening, how many NHS trusts (a) applied to participate in the early implementation phase of the abdominal aortic aneurysms screening programme and (b) have applied to participate in subsequent phases of the programme. [256899]

Ann Keen: 16 national health service trusts applied to take part in the early implementation phase.

36 trusts have applied to be considered for the next phase of implementation.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS trusts (a) have a screening programme for abdominal aortic aneurysms and (b) have ever operated such a screening programme. [256970]

Ann Keen: In addition to the following six early implementation sites: West Sussex (Royal West Sussex NHS Trust), Leicester (University Hospitals of Leicester NHS Trust), Gloucester (Gloucestershire Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust), South Manchester (University Hospital of South Manchester NHS Foundation Trust), South Devon and Exeter (South Devon NHS Foundation Trust and Royal Devon and Exeter NHS Foundation Trust) and South West London (St George's Healthcare NHS Trust), we are aware that abdominal aortic aneurysms screening has also taken place in:

Hull and East Yorkshire NHS Hospitals Trust; and Guy's and St Thomas' NHS Foundation Trust.

However these are not part of a national coordinated screening programme at this stage.

Apprentices

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 21 May 2008, Official Report, column 364W, on apprentices, how many apprentices his Department employs. [252064]

Mr. Bradshaw: Government Skills is planning to prepare a central response based on the numbers participating in the National Apprenticeship Pathfinder in 2008-09. This will be in the form of a table showing participating Departments and number of apprentices on the programme.

The Department does not employ apprentices as part of the National Apprenticeship Pathfinder scheme. However, three staff are participating in the scheme in 2008-09 as part of their personal development.

We have also made a commitment in the Next Stage Review to double our investment in apprenticeships by 2012-13, but we aim to go further and faster and we are starting with an additional 5,000 apprenticeships across health and social care next year.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 21 May 2008, Official Report, column 364W, on apprentices, what progress his Department has made towards meeting its share of the Government's commitment to employ over 1,000 apprentices in central Government Departments and agencies in 2008-09. [256255]

Mr. Bradshaw: Government Skills is planning to prepare a central response based on the number participating in the National Apprenticeship Pathfinder in 2008-09. This will be in the form of a table showing participating Departments and number of apprentices on the programme.

The Department is working with Government Skills on this initiative and three staff are participating in the National Apprenticeships Pathfinder during 2008-09 as part of their personal development.

We have also made a commitment in the Next Stage Review to double our investment in apprenticeships by 2012-13, but we aim to go further and faster and we are starting with an additional 5,000 apprenticeships across health and social care next year.

Cancer: Research

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding his Department has allocated to research into renal cancer in each of the last three financial years; how much he plans to allocate for that purpose in each of the next three financial years; and if he will make a statement. [257364]

Dawn Primarolo: Over the last 10 years, the main part of the Department's research and development budget has been allocated to and managed by national health service organisations. Those organisations have accounted for their use of the allocations they have received from the Department in an annual research and development report. The reports identify total, aggregated expenditure on national priority areas, including cancer. They do not provide details of research into particular cancer sites.

The National Cancer Research Institute (NCRI), a United Kingdom wide partnership between Government, charities and industry, makes cancer research information available online via the international cancer research portfolio database at www.cancerportfolio.org.

The NCRI's 2004 strategic analysis of the directly funded cancer research supported by Government and charities showed that 62 per cent. of total funding was dedicated to supporting research that could be applicable to all cancers.

The usual practice of the Department's National Institute for Health Research and of the Medical Research Council is not to ring-fence funds for expenditure on particular topics: research proposals in all areas compete for the funding available. Future levels of expenditure on renal cancer research will be determined by the success of relevant bids for funding.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the progress of ongoing clinical trials of treatments for renal cancer; and if he will make a statement. [257413]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Institute for Health Research Cancer Research Network (NCRN) provides the health service infrastructure to support clinical trials for people with cancer. One of the aims of the NCRN is to improve the quality, speed and co-ordination of clinical research by removing the barriers to research in the national health service.

The NCRN is currently supporting eight clinical trials for people with renal cancer. Four of these trials have completed patient recruitment and patients are being followed up. One trial is in the process of being set up, and three trials are currently open to recruitment. The three trials that are open to recruitment are progressing according to plan, and are on target to finish on time.

Health Centres

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) postcode, (b) expected service commencement date and (c) primary care trust area of each planned GP-led health centre is according to the most recent monthly update from primary care trusts. [255369]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested has been placed in the Library and relates to information received in January.

Health Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) name and (b) postcode location of each (i) accident and emergency department, (ii) minor injuries unit and (iii) NHS walk-in centre in England listed on the NHS choices website is. [255368]

Mr. Bradshaw: The NHS Choices service, launched in June 2007, is the Department's and the national health service's primary online service to the public for health-related information and advice. All data records published via NHS Choices are freely available to the public via the NHS Choices website at www.nhs.uk. This includes listings for 213 accident and emergency departments, 223 minor injury units, and 93 walk-in centres.

The name and postcode location of each accident and emergency department, minor injuries unit and NHS walk-in centre listed on NHS Choices has been placed in the Library.

HIV Infection

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department has issued guidance to primary care trusts with a high level of HIV infection following recommendations by the Health Protection Agency that HIV tests should be offered as a matter of routine to patients registering with GPs. [258221]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is funding eight pilot projects in London and other sites in England aimed at testing new approaches to HIV testing, especially in high prevalence areas. Primary care settings are included in these pilots. The projects will be evaluated, to determine whether guidance to primary care trusts is needed.

Hospital Wards: Gender

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) with reference to his announcement of 28 January 2009 on mixed-sex accommodation in the NHS, what definition of sharing of sleeping accommodation or toilet facilities is used in his Department's guidance to trusts; [255367]

(2) with reference to his announcement of 28 January 2009 on mixed-sex accommodation in the NHS; how many improvement teams there will be; what the size of each team will be; how much will be allocated to each team; what qualifications members of teams will have; and to which hospitals the teams will provide support; [255369]

(3) with reference to his announcement of 28 January 2009 on mixed-sex accommodation in the NHS, how he plans to create a greater focus on measuring and improving patient experience of mixed-sex accommodation. [255370]

Ann Keen: The Government are committed to reducing mixed sex accommodation to an absolute minimum. This means that men and women should not share sleeping accommodation unless this can be justified by their need for treatment. In mental health units, this should never happen.

We have recently announced a package of measures as follows:

- a £100 million 'Privacy and Dignity Fund' to support improvements—with changes using this money expected to be implemented by no later than June this year;
- tough financial penalties for those hospitals who do not deliver, to be introduced from 2010-11; and
- the establishment of improvement teams to go into those hospitals that need more support, to help them focus on improving patient experience in this area.

We know from our success in driving down health care associated infections (HCAIs), that the improvement team approach has a good track record in delivery. We are therefore setting up a short-term central improvement team for mixed sex accommodation with an expected life of around six months. The intention is that thereafter responsibility will be devolved to the NHS. The fine details of who will be employed in the teams, and how they will be deployed will depend on local needs, and are currently being developed.

Funding from the privacy and dignity fund will not be specifically attached to improvement teams, rather it will be distributed against detailed plans drawn up by each SHA. Distribution of resources within SHAs will be based on those schemes that demonstrate the greatest return for the planned investment.

Our existing definitions in respect of the environment are still relevant, and are set out below. However, we have expanded this to move towards a definition based on individual patient experience, rather than on buildings.

It is not acceptable for people to share sleeping accommodation unless it can be clinically justified for each patient. Some of the circumstances in which this might apply are as follows:

patient needs very high-tech care, with one-to-one nursing (e.g. ICU, HDU); patient needs very specialised care, where one nurse might be caring for a small number of patients and cannot safely leave the room other than for very short periods (e.g. immediately following major surgery); and patient needs very urgent care (e.g. rapid admission following a heart attack)

Inevitably, applicability of the above circumstances calls for a fine judgement that needs to be made on an individual basis. For instance, in a four-bed bay, it means that mixing must be justifiable for all patients, not just one. It is also a judgement that needs to be revisited regularly—for example, in the very early stages following a stroke, when the patient has reduced consciousness and needs regular observation, then mixing might be justifiable. However, in the later stages of recovery, when the patient is receiving rehabilitation (or palliative care), then we would expect greater segregation.

Men and women should not normally have to share sleeping accommodation or toilet facilities. Irrespective of where patients are, staff should always take the utmost care to respect their privacy and dignity.

Single-sex accommodation can be provided in:

single-sex wards (i.e. the whole ward is occupied by men or women but not both); single rooms with adjacent single-sex toilet and washing facilities (preferably en-suite); and single-sex accommodation within mixed wards (i.e. bays or rooms which accommodate either men or women, not both; with designated single-sex toilet and washing facilities preferably within or adjacent to the bay or room).

In addition, patients should not need to pass through opposite sex accommodation or toilet and washing facilitates to access their own.

There are no exceptions to delivering high standards of privacy and dignity. The exceptions established under 'Mixed-sex accommodation: Health Service Circular 1998/143' were reporting exceptions only, and no longer apply.

In Vitro Fertilisation

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the effect of a policy of single embryo transfer on the full implementation of National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidelines on fertility by primary care trusts; [257359]

(2) what recent assessment his Department has made of how a policy of single embryo transfer will be implemented in fertility clinics; and if he will make a statement; [257360]

(3) what recent discussions (a) he and (b) his Department have had with (i) primary care trusts and (ii) other organisations on implementing a policy of single embryo transfer. [257363]

Dawn Primarolo: The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority (HFEA) in partnership with professional bodies and other stakeholders, including patient groups and representatives of the national health service (NHS), has developed a national strategy to significantly reduce the incidence of multiple births resulting from in vitro fertilisation (IVF) and related treatments. This strategy is known as the One at a Time campaign and includes promoting greater use of single embryo transfers (SET) where this is clinically appropriate for individual patients, leaving scope for the exercise of clinical discretion. The Department has observer status on the group that has determined the strategy.

The HFEA policy aims to lower the average national multiple birth rate from the current rate of just under 23 per cent. of all live birth events following IVF and related treatments to 10 per cent. For 2009, HFEA licensed treatment centres are expected not to exceed the 24 per cent. figure, a figure determined by the HFEA, on the basis of national average at the time the Year 1 target was agreed. This target will be progressively lowered towards a 10 per cent. national target. The HFEA will carefully monitor the impact of its policy, including any impact on fresh embryo treatment cycle pregnancy rates, to ensure that all the target rates set are appropriate. The HFEA will set a Year 2 maximum multiple birth rate in the light of progress during 2009. The HFEA wrote to all directors of public health in primary care trusts about this on 4 February 2009.

The HFEA has required all licensed treatment centres to have in place a documented multiple births minimisation strategy, setting out how they intend to reduce their annual multiple birth rates and to ensure that they do not exceed the maximum rate set. These strategies must include criteria for SET. Centres are required to send copies of their strategies to the HFEA.

The Department has established an expert group on commissioning NHS infertility provision to identify the barriers to the implementation of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) fertility guideline in England and to help NHS commissioners to progress towards full implementation of the guideline. The expert group produced an interim report in August 2008, which recognised that patients are more likely to accept SET if they are assured that provision of services is established in line with the NICE guideline.

Local Public Health Laboratories

Mr. Ilsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans he has for the future funding of local public health laboratories; [257802]

(2) how many public health laboratories have closed in the last 10 years. [257803]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not available concerning closures of public health laboratories between 1999 and 2003, when public health laboratories were the responsibility of the Public Health Laboratory Service (PHLS). Responsibility in England for the public health laboratory function was transferred from the PHLS to the Health Protection Agency (HPA) on 1 April 2003. There have been no closures of public health laboratories since 1 April 2003, although there have been some changes in the service configuration.

The Department plans to continue funding the HPA to carry out this function locally, as well as regionally and nationally, in line with its responsibilities under the Health Protection Agency Act 2004.

NHS: Construction

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the compliance of NHS trusts undertaking construction projects with Government guidance requiring payment of invoices submitted by tier one contractors within 10 days. [258747]

Mr. Bradshaw: National health service prompt payments to suppliers' performance information, is collected on a quarterly and on an annual basis against a 30 day target. Information on performance by industry sector or supplier is not collected.

David Nicholson, NHS chief executive, wrote to all NHS trust chief executives on 21 October asking them to examine and review existing payment practices and payment performance and to move as closely as possible to the 10-day payment commitment that has been set for Government Departments wherever practical. Bill Moyes, executive chair, Monitor, has written similarly to all foundation trusts.

However we do not currently collect performance data of total NHS bills paid within 10 days because no specific requirement has yet been placed on NHS bodies to meet this target.

NHS: Drugs

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether his Department has issued guidance to primary care trusts on the funding of drugs commonly used towards a patient's end of life via exceptional case procedures; [257210]

(2) what his Department's policy is on the provision of drugs commonly used towards the end of life for patients with rarer cancers; [257211]

(3) what his Department's policy is on the disparities which exist between different health care trust areas in the provision of those drugs commonly used by NHS patients approaching the end of their lives; and if he will make a statement. [257212]

Phil Hope: On 21 January 2009, the Department issued draft Directions to primary care trusts (PCTs) on decisions about drugs and other treatments along with a guiding principles document aimed at helping PCTs improve the consistency and quality of local decision making on drug funding in England. Copies of the draft Directions and the guiding principles have been placed in the Library. The National Prescribing Centre will shortly be publishing a handbook of good practice offering practical advice to help PCTs in making drug funding decisions.

On 2 January 2009, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) issued supplementary advice to its Appraisal Committees, to provide more flexibility in the evaluation of higher-cost drugs, which have been shown to extend the lives of terminally ill patients with less common conditions. This advice is available on NICE's website at:

www.nice.org.uk/aboutnice/howwework/devnicetech/technologyappraisalprocessguide/guidetothemethodsoftechnologyappraisal.jsp

"The NHS Constitution", which was published on 21 January 2009, includes a right for patients to access drugs and treatments that have been recommended by NICE for use in the NHS if they are clinically appropriate. A copy has already been placed in the Library. It also sets out the right of patients to expect local decisions on the funding of other drugs and treatments to be made rationally following a proper consideration of the evidence.

NHS: Manpower

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the Department has spent on legal fees in completed actions against individual NHS staff in each of the last five years, broken down by case. [256712]

Ann Keen: The Department does not take legal action against individual national health service staff.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department has budgeted for legal fees in respect of actions against NHS staff in 2008-09. [258796]

Ann Keen: The Department does not take legal action against individual national health service staff, and therefore does not set a budget for such activity.

Nutrition: Screening

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with healthcare professionals on the inclusion of nutritional screening as a directed enhanced service in the community pharmacy contract. [257181]

Phil Hope: The Department has had no discussions on the inclusion of nutritional screening as a directed enhanced service in the community pharmacy contract.

The provision of healthy lifestyle advice, including advice on diet and nutrition is already an essential service to be provided by all community pharmacies for people presenting prescriptions for diabetes, those at risk of heart disease, those who are hypertensive, who smoke and are overweight. Educational resources were distributed to all community pharmacies in March 2007, to help them provide healthy lifestyle advice in a consistent manner. They are available at:

(2) what estimate he has made of the proportion of pharmacies which provide an influenza vaccination service; [255454]

(3) what progress his Department has made towards applying world-class commissioning competencies to the commissioning of pharmaceutical services, as referred to on page 23 of his Department's White Paper, Pharmacy in England, Cm 7341; [255458]

Phil Hope: Good progress is being made in implementing the White Paper "Pharmacy in England: Building on strengths—delivering the future" to achieve the Government's future vision for pharmaceutical services in this country. The two national clinical directors for pharmacy have been appointed to champion the development of pharmaceutical services and help deliver the White Paper's objectives.

As chapter 3 of the White Paper sets out, we are keen to improve the way medicines are accessed and used. Research has been commissioned from the universities of York and London to examine the scale and cost of medicines wasted, as well as the complex and varied reasons why people do not take their medicines as intended. The findings are expected later this year and will inform policy development for influencing both health professionals and members of the public to reduce the amount of unwanted medicines and provide value for money for the national health service. The figure of £100 million for the costs of unwanted and unused medicines in the White Paper is no more than a cautious estimate. The 2000 Spending Review stated that "various small scale studies have suggested that the value of medicines returned to pharmacies amounts to 1.5-2 per cent. of the overall drugs bill", which was £5,160 million in 2000-01. No estimate has been made of this cost in the last 12 months.

The research on the extent and reasons why medicines are not used will also inform measures to support adherence to medicines. These measures will be subject to discussions with key stakeholders and interested parties, taking into account guidance, such as the recently published report from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) "Medicines adherence: Involving patients in decisions about prescribed medicines and supporting adherence" published in January 2009, as well as local enhanced services already being commissioned by primary care trusts (PCTs).

Information on the services PCTs commission from community pharmacies to stock medicines that people may need at the end of their life—a local enhanced service termed 'on demand availability of specialist drugs—is contained in table 6 of "General Pharmaceutical Services in England and Wales 1998-00 to 2007-08" and a breakdown by PCT is in its online appendix—both of which were published by the Information Centre for health and social care in November 2008. Copies of the documents have already been placed in the Library. Home delivery services are commissioned by PCTs according to patients' needs locally. Many pharmacies voluntarily provide such a service.

Pharmacists have been established reporters to the yellow card scheme since 1998. They have a particularly important role in detecting and reporting suspected adverse drug reactions (ADRs) in association with over the counter medicines including herbal products and newly reclassified medicines. By the end of January 2009, the Medicines Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) had received in excess of 20,000 reports from the profession, contributing 13 per cent. of all yellow cards annually.

The MHRA recognises that pharmacists have a crucial role to play in pharmacovigilance, not just in the submission of suspected ADR reports, but also in raising public awareness of patient reporting. Following a successful national campaign to raise awareness of the yellow card scheme in community pharmacies during 2008, there was a 50 per cent. increase in patient reporting and a doubling in online reporting.

The MHRA is now exploring further use of the pharmacy network in conjunction with the chief pharmaceutical officer for England. To recognise the important role pharmacists play in pharmacovigilance, specific information pages for pharmacists are being launched on the MHRA website at the end of February 2009. These will provide up to date information and guidance on ADR reporting.

A wider range of services is being commissioned from pharmacies according to local need. Some PCTs are commissioning community pharmacies to provide seasonal influenza vaccination following training and accreditation, to help GPs attain their targets. Information on the proportion of all pharmacies providing this service is not collected centrally. In many parts of the country, pharmacies are one of the main sources of access to emergency hormonal contraception, either through over the counter sales or through the use of patient group directions. In addition, a total of £26.8 million of additional funding has been allocated in 2008-09 to special health authorities (SHAs) and PCTs to improve women's knowledge of, and access to, the full range of contraception, to help reduce the number of teenage pregnancies and abortions. It is for SHAs and PCTs to determine how to use this funding most effectively to meet the needs of their local populations. SHAs have been working with PCTs to agree local action plans to develop innovative schemes, including pharmacy-based schemes, to improve awareness of and access to all types of contraception. The extent to which pharmacies have been included in local schemes to help reduce unintended pregnancies has not been assessed.

Many pharmacies are already providing services to people with diabetes—ranging from blood glucose testing and carrying out blood pressure measurements to providing healthy lifestyle advice. The Department is working with the Royal Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain and the National Pharmacy Association to develop resources to support the further integration of pharmacy into the care of people with diabetes, which will be endorsed by the national clinical director for diabetes and the chief pharmaceutical officer for England. These resources, expected to be completed by autumn 2009, will identify how pharmacy can play its part in the integrated care of people with diabetes to help ensure that patients get seamless care.

Pharmacists also have an important role in raising awareness of symptoms of cancer. The Department has funded leaflets containing key messages on lung cancer awareness, which will be distributed to all community pharmacies shortly. The Department will be discussing with key stakeholders and interested parties, how best to incorporate referral systems for people with symptoms indicative of cancer, within the community pharmacy contractual framework. The Department is also considering how to engage pharmacists further in raising awareness of other cancers and referring on to other healthcare professionals, where appropriate.

The introduction of a support service for people who are newly prescribed a medicine to treat a long-term condition will be informed by ongoing discussions with key stakeholders and interested parties, as will the incorporation of minor ailments schemes within the community pharmacy contractual framework. Both services will take account of local enhanced services already being commissioned by PCTs, research into public awareness and knowledge, and will be subject to further negotiation. Similarly, the use of directed enhanced services within the community pharmacy contractual framework is subject to further discussions and negotiations taking into account local enhanced services already being commissioned by PCTs.

No estimate has been made of the proportion of pharmacy consultations, which result in referrals to other healthcare services, as this information is not collected centrally.

In keeping with the NHS next stage review, pharmacy has an important role in prevention, as well as treatment. The public health leadership forum for pharmacy has identified its work programme for 2008-09 as the development of educational resources on sustainable development, sexual health and mental health for distribution to all community pharmacies in England. Resources for sustainable development were published and distributed in September 2008. The resources for sexual health and mental health are expected to be published by the end of 2009. The Forum has agreed that its programme of work for 2009-10 will consist of:

developing a model for healthy living centre pharmacies, which will identify the services that might be provided as well as what such pharmacies might look like;

taking steps to enable pharmacy staff to become health trainers; and facilitating the development of a plan to develop leadership training for senior pharmacists working within PCTs so they can influence commissioning decisions.

Initial scoping of the extent of the provision of specialist pharmacy services across England has been completed and advice is being sought from the specialist commissioning group directors network and the national specialist commissioning group on the commissioning of these services.

These developments need to be underpinned by effective professional relationships, communications and information technology. The Department asked NHS employers in 2008 to convene and lead a working group of pharmacy, medical and public representatives to formulate a series of actions to promote more effective professional relationships. Further details of the working group are held by NHS employers. One aspect of the group's remit was to identify and agree mechanisms that can support further incremental implementation of repeat dispensing. In January 2009, the working group published "Guidance for the implementation of repeat dispensing" for general practices, to support this. A copy has been placed in the Library. In addition, the working group have published guidance for general practices on the medicines use review service, and have issued a joint letter to community pharmacists, general practitioners and their local representatives to help facilitate discussions between general practitioners GPs and pharmacists on key work areas including repeat dispensing. The three documents can be found at:

To support communication planning the Department commissioned an extensive qualitative research programme in September 2008 that was completed, as scheduled, in December. The research identified key segments within the population and gave insight into their differing uses of, and attitudes towards, pharmacy. The Department is considering the implications of these findings for the communications programme and expects to publish the research together with an outline communications plan later this spring. Further qualitative research is being commissioned by the Department on the opinions of the pharmacy profession towards delivering the services outlined in the White Paper. This research will be completed by this summer. £65,000 has been spent in 2008-09 to date on the research to support the communications programme. Estimates for future years' expenditure are not yet available.

A pharmacy information technology programme is being established by the Department and NHS Connecting for Health. One of its first responsibilities will be to progress the White Paper commitment to electronically capture information about interventions made and advice given, by pharmacists.

Structural and legislative reform is also needed and the Department consulted on a number of proposals in autumn 2008, including PCTs assessing pharmaceutical needs. A preliminary report of the outcome of that consultation on those elements which require changes to the primary legislation was published on 16 January 2009 alongside the Health Bill 2009. The Bill proposes placing a requirement on PCTs to undertake and to publish their assessments of pharmaceutical needs. Subject to parliamentary approval, regulations would then set out the structure and content of these assessments, how PCTs should carry them out and the requirements for publication. The Department expects to work closely with interested parties, including NHS and contractors' representatives, on drafting the regulations. At this stage, the Department does not propose to pilot these requirements, but to roll them out across PCTs with appropriate support and training programmes.

The Department asked NHS Employers to set up a short-term working group in 2008 to review the structure of, and data requirements for, PCTs' pharmaceutical needs assessments and to develop a support programme so that these assessments will be an effective and robust commissioning tool, which support local decisions. NHS employers published the first element of this support programme—"Guidance for PCTs on pharmaceutical needs assessments (PNAs) as part of world class commissioning", which has been prepared to dovetail with the world-class commissioning programme—on 7 January 2009. A copy has been placed in the Library. It is available at:

www.nhsemployers.org/PNAguidance.

Further resources will be published later this spring. These will include guidance on how to commission pharmaceutical services and more detailed advice on the information these needs assessments should contain. These resources are designed to provide a comprehensive support programme for PCTs to achieve the necessary capability to be world-class commissioners of high quality pharmaceutical services.

The Department is committed to continuing to work with the NHS and the Pharmaceutical Services Negotiating Committee to devise proposals to ensure that effective arrangements are in place to address unwarranted variations in standards and quality of pharmaceutical service delivery. Following consultation last autumn, provisions in the Health Bill 2009 will, subject to parliamentary approval, introduce new powers to enable PCTs, through regulations, to issue remedial notices to contractors or to withhold payments due to them. These new powers will form part of the Department's programme to ensure appropriate discretionary levers are available to PCTs to secure quality pharmaceutical services and to manage contractors' performance. Subject to discussions with key stakeholders and negotiation, this will be supported by strengthening the clinical governance requirements of the contractual framework which already require amongst other things, contractors to carry out an annual patient survey and one pharmacy-based and one multi-disciplinary audit. These audits are undertaken locally and no data is held on them centrally.

Research to inform future developments and an appropriate pharmacy workforce are also important. Research into pharmaceutical services is a relatively new area. Its focus has largely been on the acceptability and uptake of services by the public and on perceptions of the profession and their job satisfaction. Measures to date have largely been expressed in terms of inputs and outputs, rather than in terms of service quality, outcomes and relative cost effectiveness.

Therefore, chapter 6 of the White Paper sets out action by the chief pharmaceutical officer for England to convene an expert panel to advise on research priorities to improve the evidence base underpinning the value and effectiveness of pharmacy services.

This will be informed by:

the extensive and ongoing qualitative research programme commissioned through the pharmacy White Paper;

the ongoing composite review of the relevant research literature on the contribution of community pharmacy to improving the public's health, covering the period 1990-2007, which will be completed and published in due course; and the outcome of an event hosted by the Pharmacy Practice Research Trust, held on the 5 and 6 November 2008, to which the chief pharmaceutical officer for England contributed. The event was designed to begin to develop a UK wide research strategy for pharmacy and brought together key stakeholders across pharmacy and academia to initiate discussions around the concept of an overarching profession led UK wide research strategy for pharmacy.

Pharmacy workforce planning forms part of the arrangements to strengthen workforce planning for all professions set out in "A High Quality Workforce", published in July 2008. A copy has been placed in the Library. The chief pharmaceutical officer for England has established the modernising pharmacy careers programme board to provide professional advice and scrutiny on workforce plans where these concern pharmacists and other pharmacy staff (for example pharmacy technicians) providing NHS services. The pharmacy professional advisory board will work closely with Medical Education, England, which will provide professional, high level scrutiny of and advice on the quality of workforce planning at a national level for doctors, dentists, pharmacists and healthcare scientists. Arrangements are in place for the modernising pharmacy careers programme board's first meeting in February 2009

Sickle Cell Diseases

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take to ensure the implementation of the Standards for the Clinical Care of Adults with Sickle Cell Disease in the UK endorsed by his Department. [256911]

Ann Keen: The Department has recently commissioned an informal review of the current clinical service provision for Haemoglobin disorders. It is due to report in spring 2009. The standards documents produced by the Sickle Cell Society and the UK Thalassaemia Society have been used as a basis for local discussion for the service review.

This review will inform our considerations about how best to support the national health service in further improving the quality of clinical services for Haemoglobin disorders.

Smoking

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many calls have been made to the smokefree compliance line in each year since it was established; and how much the line cost (a) to establish and (b) to operate in each year since it was established. [258157]

Dawn Primarolo: Details of the number of calls are published on the Smokefree England website at www.smokefreeengland.co.uk, and on page seven of the report "Smokefree England—one year on".

The Smokefree Compliance Line has been in operation since 1 July 2007.

In 2007-08 the set up costs for the Smokefree Compliance line was £8,810, and the operating costs from July 2007 to March 2008 was £57,595. The operating costs in 2008-09 to date is £29,717.

A copy of the report "Smokefree England—one year on" has been placed Library.

Social Services: Leeds

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps his Department is taking to ensure recruitment of adequate numbers of social workers in the Leeds city area; [257076]

(2) how many social worker vacancies there are in the Leeds metropolitan area. [257077]

Phil Hope: This information is not held centrally.

Recruitment of social work staff is a matter for the employer concerned.

The Department has worked with stakeholders and employers in planning this year's national social care recruitment campaign.

Steroid Drugs

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in each Government region (a) under 18 years old and (b) in total were treated for steroid-related health problems in each of the last five years. [253949]

Dawn Primarolo: A direct answer cannot be given as it is hard to define what is meant by the term "steroid-related health problems". Information is available on a count of hospital admissions for 'poisoning (improper use) by steroids' by age group and government office region for the last five years, and is shown in the following table. The footnotes to the table should used for data interpretation.

The Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs, an independent body advising the Government on drug related issues, is concerned about the misuse of anabolic steroids by the general public and in particular young people, and has established a working group to consider the evidence of harms more fully.

T38.0 Glucocorticoids and synthetic analogues
T36.5 Other estrogens and progestogens
T38.7 Androgens and anabolic congeners
T50.0 Mineralcorticoids and their antagonists
All of the following ICD-10 Y codes would be found in a secondary position and would indicate that the preceding condition was an adverse effect of steroids in therapeutic use (i.e. the adverse effect of a prescribed steroid drug):
Y42.0 Glucocorticoids and synthetic analogues
Y42.5 Other estrogens and progestogens
Y42.7 Androgens and anabolic congeners
Y54.0 Mineralocorticoids
Y54.1 Mineralocorticoid antagonists (aldosterone antagonists)

Notes:
1. Finished admission episodes: A finished admission episode is the first period of inpatient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Finished admission episodes are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of inpatients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
2. Data quality: Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. Data are also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.
3. Assessing growth through time: HES figures are available from 1989-90 onwards. The quality and coverage of the data have improved over time. These improvements in information submitted by the NHS have been particularly marked in the earlier years and need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. Some of the increase in figures for later years (particularly 2006-07 onwards) may be due to the improvement in the coverage of independent sector activity. Changes in NHS practice also need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. For example, a number of procedures may now be undertaken in outpatient settings and may no longer be accounted for in the HES data. This may account for any reductions in activity over time.
4. Number of admissions in which the patient had a 'poisoning (improper use) by steroids'[1] primary or secondary diagnosis: These figures represent the number of admissions where the diagnosis was recorded in any of the 14 primary and secondary diagnosis fields in a Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) record. Each admission episode is only counted once in each count, even if the diagnosis is recorded in more than one diagnosis field of the record.

Vioxx

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department (a) has undertaken, (b) plans to undertake and (c) has evaluated on (i) the side-effects of (A) Vioxx, (B) SSRI antidepressants and (C) Salmeterol and (ii) the use of complementary and alternative medicines to treat the conditions such drugs were developed to address; and if he will make a statement. [256529]

Dawn Primarolo: As with all medicines authorised in the United Kingdom, the safety of Vioxx (a selective COX-2 inhibitor for the treatment of arthritic conditions and acute pain), the selective serotonin re-uptake inhibitor (SSRI) antidepressants and salmeterol (a long-acting adrenoceptor beta agonist, or LABA, used in the management of asthma and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease) are kept under close and continuous scrutiny by the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) using a wide variety of data sources. These include spontaneous adverse drug data from the UK and worldwide, clinical trials and epidemiological studies, worldwide published medical literature, data from the manufacturer and information from worldwide regulatory authorities.

If a new safety issue is identified, the MHRA thoroughly evaluates all relevant data with input from UK and European Expert Advisory Committees, as necessary. Action is taken where appropriate to minimise risk to patients, optimise safe use and issue updated prescribing advice.

Vioxx (rofecoxib) was voluntarily withdrawn by the manufacturers in 2004 when the risk of thrombotic cardiovascular events became apparent. Although no formal research was undertaken directly by the Department, all available safety information was continuously evaluated by the MHRA as it emerged. Throughout these reviews, additional data and analyses were requested from the company where necessary to facilitate thorough assessment. Product information for prescribers and patients was updated during the course of these reviews, in line with expert advice.

In response to public concern, in May 2003, an Expert Working Group was established to conduct a comprehensive evaluation of the available data relating to the safety of SSRI antidepressants, in particular, the risk of suicidal behaviour and withdrawal reactions. The Expert Group considered the findings of laboratory, clinical and observational studies along with information relating to reports of patient experiences. In relation to the risk of suicidal behaviour, the MHRA conducted a study using the UK General Practice Research Database (GPRD). Full information on the data considered as part of this review has been published in the group's report which is available on the MHRA's website at:

www.mhra.gov.uk/Safetyinformation/Safetywarningsalertsandrecalls/Safetywarningsandmessagesformedicines/CON1004259

A copy has been placed in the Library.

Since completion of this review, every effort has been made by the MHRA to evaluate new data as they have arisen and issue updated prescribing advice as appropriate. This has included updated advice regarding safety of use of paroxetine in pregnancy following findings from new international studies that certain birth defects are more common in babies whose mothers took paroxetine early in pregnancy. Further advice has also been issued regarding the risk of suicidal behaviour to reflect the findings of review of data from clinical trials conducted by the US Food and Drug Administration.

The MHRA has evaluated the risk of side effects associated with use of salmeterol on a number of occasions, leading to updates to product information and communications to remind health care professionals of the appropriate use of LABAs in the treatment of asthma. The balance of risks and benefits of LABAs was recently reviewed and considered to be favourable in the treatment of asthma in adults and adolescents, provided they are used with inhaled corticosteroids.

The MHRA have not received any applications for marketing authorisations for complementary or alternative medicines for the treatment of major conditions such as osteoarthritis or asthma, therefore the MHRA has not undertaken or evaluated any research in this area. The MHRA do not have any specific plans to undertake such research but would assess all data associated with any application, should one be received in the future.

Some years ago, the MHRA considered a number of applications for marketing authorisations for products containing St. John's Wort ('Hypericum perforatum' L.) for mild to moderate depression. The data submitted by the companies intending to market the products, including any UK and international research, were thoroughly reviewed. However, the applications were refused due to lack of adequate evidence of safety and efficacy.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will publish a copy of his Department's website accessibility plan. [257222]

Mr. Woodward: Accessibility standards of the Northern Ireland Office (NIO) website are included in the Northern Ireland Office Departmental Disability Action Plan.

The NIO website follows the internet standards of coding and design as set out by the World Wide Web Consortium. The website complies with WAI-AA standards, (World Accessibility Initiative AA standard). This means that the website conforms to level Double A for all priority one and two checkpoints defined in the W3C Web Content Accessibility Guidelines.

Accessibility standards are regularly reviewed.

Departmental Vehicles

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 19 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1068-9W, on departmental vehicles, what the cost of leasing the vehicles was in each of the last five years. [257342]

Mr. Woodward: The Department's expenditure on leased vehicles, excluding Agencies and Executive NDPBs, in the last five years is shown in the following table.

	Expenditure (£)
2007-08	42,827
2006-07	24,277
2005-06	43,005
2004-05	59,361
2003-04	65,633

Where possible, when a lease is up for renewal, the NIO considers all options in reducing costs to the department while maintaining the standard required.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Local Government Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which of the recommendations made by the Independent Licensing Fees Review Panel relating to local authority revenue and costs have been implemented to date. [256715]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Independent Licensing Fees Review Panel made recommendations on future fee levels, and identified a shortfall between local authority costs and income during the period of transition. The response to these matters needs to be agreed across Government and I hope to be able to respond shortly.

National Lottery: Complaints

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 984W, on National Lottery: complaints, what information is routinely collected by Camelot and the National Lottery Commission on disputes between retailers and players. [256417]

Barbara Follett: Complaints to the National Lottery Commission are dealt with on a case-by-case basis. It would not be possible to establish how many of the cases dealt with have involved a dispute between a player and retailer without a manual review of the correspondence for each case. This task could be undertaken only at disproportionate cost.

The information routinely collected for any complaint or inquiry received by the Commission is:

a. Information required for NLC performance monitoring and reporting.

b. Correspondent contact details.

c. A brief description of the nature of the inquiry or complaint.

d. A note of the action taken.

e. Correspondence and supporting information.

Camelot has advised us that all player complaints are also recorded and dealt with on a case-by-case basis. The information collected varies according to the case in question.

TREASURY

Banks: Finance

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what capital adequacy ratio banks are required to maintain. [254944]

Ian Pearson: The capital adequacy ratio is the ratio of a bank's capital expressed as a percentage of its risk-weighted assets.

The regulatory minimum ratio derives from the Basel 2 Accord, implemented in the European Union via the Capital Requirements Directive (CRD) which came into force on 1 January 2008 (Directives 2006/48/EC and 2006/49/EC). The framework consists of three pillars.

Pillar 1 sets the minimum capital requirements required to meet credit, market and operational risks. Pillar 2 requires firms and supervisors (in this case the Financial Services Authority—FSA) to take a view on whether a firm should hold additional capital against risks not covered in Pillar 1. Pillar 3 requires firms to publish certain details of their capital and risk management.

Full details of these capital requirements can be found in FSA "GENPRU" and "BIPRU" rulebooks, available via the FSA's website.

The regulatory minimum capital adequacy ratio under Pillar 1 is 8 per cent. of total capital, of which a minimum of 4 per cent. must be tier 1 capital, which includes ordinary shares and reserves. In practice firms' regulatory capital may be higher than this, and firms may also decide to hold more capital than the regulatory minimum.

As the FSA made clear in its statement of 19 January, the purpose of the recent bank recapitalisation exercise was to ensure that participating institutions held sufficient capital to ensure a buffer against challenging economic conditions. This did not constitute creating new statutory capital requirements for the UK banking sector.

Consolidated Fund

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was paid into the Consolidated Fund from fines in each year since 1997. [258370]

Yvette Cooper: The Consolidated Fund does not separately identify revenue surrendered to the Exchequer relating to fines. Public bodies involved in the collection of fines will hold the information on their revenue and will publish accounts of their activities.

Income Tax: Northern Ireland

Mark Durkan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people resident in each constituency in Northern Ireland were employed in the Republic of Ireland and were liable for UK income tax in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08. [257580]

Mr. Timms: Where a person is resident for tax purposes and domiciled in the United Kingdom, they pay tax on their worldwide income and gains in the United Kingdom on an arising basis subject to the application of any double taxation agreement.

It is not possible to identify the country in which income arises or the nature of the income on which foreign tax has been paid. However, the number of individuals tax resident in Northern Ireland and claiming foreign tax credit relief for 2005-06 and 2006-07 are provided in the following table. This provides an upper limit to the number of individuals resident in Northern Ireland and employed in the Republic of Ireland. Information for 2007-08 is not yet available.

Loans: Interest Rates

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what interest rate is used to assess the taxable benefit arising on beneficial loans; and whether this rate is changed in line with the Bank of England base rate. [258763]

Mr. Timms: The official rate of interest used to assess the taxable benefit arising on beneficial loans has been reduced from 6.25 per cent. to 4.75 per cent. with effect from 1 March 2009. The rate is set by reference to prevailing average bank and building society mortgage rates.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to respond to the hon. Member for Billericay's letter of 7 January 2009 on his constituent Mr D. Randall. [258756]

Ian Pearson: I have replied to the hon. Member.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to respond to the hon. Member for Billericay's letter of 14 January 2009 on his constituent Mr D. Williams. [258757]

Ian Pearson: I have replied to the hon. Member.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to respond to the hon. Member for Billericay's letters of 17 November 2008 and 22 January 2009 on his constituent Mrs N. Finley. [258758]

Mr. Timms: I replied to the hon. Member on 14 January.

Revenue and Customs: Security

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many breaches of security have occurred at HM Revenue and Customs in the last five years; and what procedures are followed when a breach of security relates to personal data. [250731]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 26 January 2009]: HMRC uses the term 'security incident' to relate to a wide range of security breaches, including unlocked cupboards or drawers within a locked building as well as losses, theft, suspicious behaviour and vandalism. These incidents also include near misses, which are monitored to identify potential weaknesses so that they can be put right. HMRC takes every security incident report seriously and deals with each one in accordance with its departmental guidance and procedures.

Since HM Revenue and Customs' creation in April 2005 there have been a total of 11,266 reported security incidents among approximately 90,000 staff. HMRC has improved centralised control mechanisms and raised staff awareness about the importance of data security and the need to report all incidents.

All incidents relating to personal data are investigated by senior managers within the responsible business area and incidents designated as serious are elevated to director level and to relevant external authorities if this is required. This system was introduced in August 2007, since when only 3.6 per cent. of all security incidents have been classified as serious.

Stamp Duty Land Tax

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the revenue to accrue from stamp duty land tax in 2009-10; on what assumptions this estimate is based; and what estimate he has made of the revenue which would be forgone in offering a stamp duty land tax holiday to first time housebuyers in the next 12 months. [258557]

Ian Pearson: The latest published forecast revenue from stamp duties for 2009-10 was given in table B12 of the PBR 2008. The published figure includes stamp duty land tax, stamp duty reserve tax and stamp duty, and was based on the PBR economic forecast and assumptions.

An estimate of the cost of the current SDLT holiday, covering residential transactions completed between 3 September 2008 and 2 September 2009 with a selling price between £125,000 and £175,000, was also published in the PBR.

No estimate has been made of the cost of the stamp duty holiday described.

Tax Evasion

Derek Twigg: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies were employed in tackling tax (a) fraud and (b) evasion in each year since 1997. [257015]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs' compliance activity covers all aspects of compliance behaviour from error through to evasion. As a consequence, it is not possible to provide the information requested.

Derek Twigg: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of tax evasion in the last 12 months. [257161]

Mr. Timms: There are no estimates of the revenue lost specifically to tax evasion in the last 12 months. HMRC has published its latest available estimates of tax losses in the 2008 Autumn Performance Report:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/autumn-report-2008.pdf

While the estimates given in this report include evasion they also encompass other causes of losses, for example, failure to take reasonable care and tax avoidance.

VAT: Construction

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the revenue effects would be of reducing the rate of value added tax on rebuilding and renovation work to (a) 3 per cent., (b) 4 per cent., (c) 5 per cent., (d) 6 per cent., (e) 7 per cent., (f) 8 per cent. and (g) 9 per cent. [258576]

Mr. Timms: Using data from the Office for National Statistics' Construction Statistics Annual 2008, and assuming all of this expenditure to have been subject to the standard rate of VAT (17.5 per cent. in 2007) then the following illustrative costs can be estimated for different rates:

Alternative VAT rate (percentage)	Illustrative revenue impact, (£ million)
5	-1,800
6	-1,650
7	-1,500
9	-1,200

Note:
Under EU laws the minimum permitted reduced rate of VAT is 5 per cent.

These estimates are very tentative. The definition of expenditure used in the data covers a wide range of activities, some of which will already be subject to the current 5 per cent. reduced rate of VAT (while complete demolitions and rebuilds of houses are currently zero rated). The estimates also do not factor in behavioural responses, the current 15 per cent. standard rate of VAT, those businesses not registered for VAT or developments in the relevant markets since 2007.

WALES

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will publish a copy of his Department's website accessibility plan. [257226]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales office seeks to make its website accessible and easy to use for everyone, no matter what browser they use.

Wales office website accessibility is guided by the Worldwide Web Consortium's (W3C) Web Content Accessibility Guidelines and intends to comply with Level Double-A of the W3C Web Content Accessibility Guidelines by December 2009.

Details on accessibility can be found on the Wales Office website:

www.walesoffice.gov.uk/footer/accessibility

SCOTLAND

Railways

Mr. Charles Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will work with the Scottish Executive to secure the (a) replacement of Caledonian sleeper rolling stock and (b) long-term operation of the cross-border service. [257760]

Ann McKechin: My right hon. Friend is happy to work with the Scottish Government and his right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on these matters. Sleeper services are an integral part of the First Scot Rail franchise agreement, which is managed by the Scottish Government. I understand that the recent Franchise Extension Agreement includes an obligation for First Scot Rail to develop additional proposals to improve the sleeper service.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Houses of Parliament: VAT

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission whether the retail ticket prices for the summer opening tours of Parliament will be reduced in line with the reduction in valued added tax. [258360]

Nick Harvey: Yes. The summer opening programme has to break even over a three-year period, during which time prices are held; the current period is 2007-09. Full price adult tickets sold for the 2008 summer opening cost £12. With the reduction in VAT rate, in 2009 these will cost £11.70. Other ticket types will be similarly reduced.

PICT: Electronic Equipment

Rosie Cooper: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission when the trial of use of BlackBerries by PICT staff will be completed. [258577]

Nick Harvey: Parliamentary ICT (PICT) commenced a 60 day trial of Research in Motion's BlackBerry service using their Blackberry Enterprise Service on 9 February 2009. The trial will be completed by mid-April and will then be evaluated.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what estimate he has made of the effect of the Government's limit on carbon dioxide emissions from aviation on lifeline flights in (a) Scotland and (b) the UK; [258159]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect of any future breach of the Government's target for airline emissions on the future of (a) lifeline flights and (b) airports serving lifeline flights. [258160]

Jim Fitzpatrick: [holding answer 25 February 2009]: In January this year, the Government announced a new target to get UK aviation carbon dioxide emissions in 2050 below 2005 levels and asked the Committee on Climate Change to advise on the best basis for its development. The Committee is due to report by December 2009. The Committee's advice will inform the Government's approach in ensuring achievement of the target. In developing this approach, the Government will take into account a range of different factors.

The Government recognise the important economic and social benefits that lifeline air services can bring to remote areas of the UK and continue to support the measures consistent with EU law that help sustain such services in Scotland and Wales.

Bus Services: Concessions

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many local authorities have withdrawn (a) companion bus passes for those accompanying (i) deafblind and (ii) other disabled people and (b) peak bus travel entitlement since the introduction of the national concessionary bus fares scheme. [258264]

Paul Clark: These concessions may be offered to eligible concessionaires at the discretion of individual local authorities based on their judgment of local needs and circumstances and their overall financial priorities; accordingly the Government do not hold these figures. The introduction of the national concessionary travel scheme has not affected the flexibility of local authorities to offer such discretionary concessions.

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether a disability equality impact assessment was conducted prior to the introduction of the new national concessionary bus fares scheme; and if he will make a statement. [258300]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport published a Regulatory Impact Assessment for the Concessionary Bus Travel Act 2007 in July 2007. This included an assessment of the sectors and groups that would be affected by the new national concessionary travel scheme, including disabled people.

In addition, in March 2008 the Department published an Impact Assessment of Concessionary Bus Travel Passes, which included a disability equality impact assessment.

The Government also consulted widely with stakeholders, including the Disabled Persons Transport Advisory Committee (DPTAC), prior to the introduction of the national concessionary travel scheme.

Driving Standards Agency: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 1385W, on the Driving Standards Agency: Alcoholic Drinks, on how many other occasions in 2008 the Driving Standards Agency purchased alcohol for other conferences and management meetings. [258171]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Driving Standards Agency has paid for wine served before and during dinner at three other conferences for different grades of managers held in May and June 2008 on a similar basis to the September event. The conferences involved people staying away from their homes overnight and working in their own time.

Lorries: Working Hours

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department takes to monitor the compliance of haulage firms with the EU Working Time Directive; and what guidance his Department issues on the definition of a driver's (a) working time and (b) period of availability for the purposes of the Directive. [258827]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) monitors compliance with European Directive 2002/15/EC on the working time of mobile workers, by examining working time records when undertaking visits to operator bases, and by responding to any complaints made by employees about working time.

The Department has published guidance on the implementing GB regulations. This guidance defines working time as the time from the beginning of work, during which the mobile worker is at the workstation at the disposal of the employer and exercising his or her functions or activities.

The guidance defines a period of availability (PoA) as waiting time, the duration of which is known about in advance by the mobile worker.

A full description of what functions/activities are included in the definition of working time, along with examples of what does and does not constitute a PoA, can be found at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/freight/road/workingtime/rdtransportworkingtimeguidance

M25: Hertfordshire

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received on the General Permitted Development Order in respect of the proposed compound to be developed near Junction 17 of the M25. [258734]

Paul Clark [holding answer 25 February 2009]: Representations regarding the General Permitted Development Order concerning the proposed site compound at M25 Junction 17 have been received from the hon. Member, Three Rivers district council and from local residents. All have been opposed to the location.

The concerns of the representations have been considered by the Highways Agency and a decision has been made not to site the compound at Junction 17 as originally proposed.

Public Transport: Expenditure

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was spent per capita on public transport in (a) Greater Manchester and (b) Greater London in each year since 1997. [258565]

Paul Clark [holding answer 25 February 2009]: Public spending to support non-commercial public transport services in Greater Manchester and Greater London is largely the responsibility of the relevant local authorities. Figures for local authority expenditure on transport are available in published Local Government Finance Statistics at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/stats/index.htm

The Department for Transport also allocates funding which supports rail services in Greater Manchester and Greater London. Funding to support rail services in England is not however available on the basis of local authority boundaries.

Public Transport: Greater Manchester

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans his Department has for its future spending levels for provision of public transport in Greater Manchester. [258566]

Paul Clark [holding answer 25 February 2009]: Local Transport Plan funding for Greater Manchester will increase from £73.753 million in 2008-09 to £79.317 million in 2009-10 and £84.642 million in 2010-11. In addition, Greater Manchester has been awarded £978,356 (between 2008-09 and 2009-10) from the Congestion Performance Fund.

Funding for major schemes (those over £5 million) is determined through the regional funding allocation (RFA) process. The north-west region is currently considering how to prioritise the £1,314 million available through to 2018-19.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the funds available from the Transport Innovation Fund for public transport improvement in Manchester will be held in reserve until new proposals are put forward by the Association of Greater Manchester Authorities. [258567]

Paul Clark [holding answer 25 February 2009]: The funding previously available from the Transport Innovation Fund (TIF) for Greater Manchester is now available to other high quality TIF proposals. Were the Association of Greater Manchester Authorities to put forward another TIF proposal, it would be assessed against the published criteria just as with any other proposal.

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested relating to the nationality of agency or temporary staff is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. In my reply to the hon. Member for Upper Bann (David Simpson) of 11 February 2009, Official Report, column 1972W, I stated that my Department employed no EU foreign nationals and no non-EU foreign nationals whereas the answer should have been that the information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many language translators are employed in his Department's executive agency; and what the cost of translating services provided by such people was in the latest period for which information is available. [257151]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department's executive agency, the Royal Parks, has not incurred any translating services costs in the latest period for which information is available.

World Heritage Sites

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what further reports he intends to submit to the World Heritage Committee on UK World Heritage sites in advance of its 2009 session; and what the timetable for submission is. [259116]

A report for the Palace of Westminster, St. Margaret's Church and Westminster Abbey World Heritage Site will be submitted by 28 February 2009.

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which UK World Heritage sites he is evaluating in advance of the World Heritage Committee's 2009 session. [259117]

Barbara Follett: My Department does not carry out evaluations of UK World Heritage Sites on behalf of the World Heritage Committee, but has provided information on the state of conservation of a number of UK World Heritage Sites as requested by the World Heritage Centre.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many security officials the Wright Inquiry employs. [257111]

Mr. Woodward: The Billy Wright Inquiry does not directly employ security guards and holds a contract with a private company for the provision of security services.

Inquiry staff also deal with security issues as part of their duties.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Wright Inquiry has spent on (a) information technology and (b) information technology consultants. [257114]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Billy Wright Inquiry that the Inquiry has spent £5.50 million on information technology and £611,000 on IT consultants to the end of January 2009.

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Bloody Sunday Inquiry that the Inquiry has spent approximately £31.7 million on information technology and approximately £2 million on information technology consultants to the end of January 2009.

Crime Rate

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what the property crime rate in Northern Ireland was in (a) 2006, (b) 2007, (c) 2008 and (d) the last four months of 2008; [259412]

(2) what the violent crime rate in Northern Ireland was in (a) 2006, (b) 2007, (c) 2008 and (d) the last four months of 2008; [259413]

(4) what the violent crime rate in the South Area of Northern Ireland was in (a) 2006, (b) 2007, (c) 2008 and (d) the last four months of 2008. [259415]

Paul Goggins: These data are collated by the Police Service of Northern Ireland. I have asked the Chief Constable to reply directly to the hon. Gentleman, and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by his Department. [256203]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office has no central record of EU and non-EU foreign nationals in our employment. Since November 2007, the Northern Ireland Civil Service (NICS), which also carries out recruitment on behalf of the NIO, has collected the nationality details of applicants for vacancies. This information is retained for those who are successful and are appointed to posts in the NICS and NIO. Nationality details are not yet held for the vast majority of staff recruited before November 2007.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 17 January 2009, Official Report, column 773W, on departmental ICT, for what reasons the budget of the Causeway Programme has increased by £18.3 million. [257266]

Paul Goggins: The Causeway Programme is a key element in the continuing modernisation and reform of the criminal justice system in Northern Ireland. At its inception, total costs were estimated at £42.7 million but a later review of the business case estimated that these would increase to £61 million. The most recent estimate, after reviewing the Programme content, is that total costs will be £58 million. This represents an increase of some £15 million against the original projections. The increased costs have arisen in three main areas:

Additional costs arising from the complexity of integrating six agencies' business processes and separate computer systems—£5 million;

Contract changes—£6 million.

Programme development and office costs arising from delay—£4 million.

Following the end of the Programme, additional enhancements to the system—originally intended to be part of the Programme—may be taken forward through one-off projects, subject to stringent cost and benefit analysis.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 1415W, on departmental marketing, how much of the total for the year 2007-08 was funded by the Firearms and Explosives Branch. [257272]

Paul Goggins: Firearms and Explosives Branch funded £173,312.38 of the total for the year 2007-08.

This was spent on the 2007 Fireworks Safety Campaign and covered creative, agency and production costs; media advertising; education packs; and initiatives for schools.

EC Grants and Loans

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much in European regional aid structural funding was allocated to Northern Ireland for 2000 to 2006; how much of this funding had been spent by 31 December 2008; and whether a request was made to the European Commission to extend the spending deadline beyond this date. [255461]

Mr. Woodward: The information is not available in the form requested. I am advised by the Department of Finance and Personnel in Northern Ireland, which has responsibility for these matters, that European regional aid structural funding of €1,434,485,611 (approx £1,141,541,061) was provided for the period 2000-08.

In the UK, managing authorities made the decision whether to extend their programmes. BERR officials consolidated those requests (which included a request from Northern Ireland) in a letter to the European Commission. This letter included the request to extend the Northern Ireland Objective 1 transitional programme and the Northern Ireland/Republic of Ireland INTERREG Strand A programme.

Inquiries

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been spent to date on lawyers and legal firms employed by the (a) Hamill, (b) Wright and (c) Nelson inquiries. [257142][1]

(a) The Robert Hamill Inquiry—£8.74 million;

(b) The Billy Wright Inquiry—£4.87 million;

(c) The Rosemary Nelson Inquiry—£13.05 million.

Local Government Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what guidance his Department provided to local authorities in Northern Ireland on their investment strategies during periods of direct rule since 1997. [258069]

Mr. Woodward: Local government matters are devolved in Northern Ireland. I have been advised by the Northern Ireland Minister for the Environment that no specific guidance on investment strategies was issued to local authorities by his Department during the periods of direct rule since 1997.

The Local Government Act (Northern Ireland) 1972 and the Trustee Act (Northern Ireland) 2001 provide for district councils in Northern Ireland to invest funds. The Trustee Act contains a general power of investment and sets out standard investment criteria, to which district councils are expected to adhere.

Robert Hamill Inquiry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Hamill Inquiry has spent on (a) information technology and (b) information technology consultants. [257123]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Robert Hamill Inquiry that it has spent £3.71 million on information technology and £707,000 on IT consultants to the end of January 2009.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many security officials the Hamill Inquiry employs. [257125]

Mr. Woodward: The Robert Hamill Inquiry does not directly employ security guards. It holds a contract with a private company for the provision of security guards for the Inquiry's Belfast accommodation, and a separate company provides staff to carry out overnight and weekend guarding for the building as a whole.

Inquiry staff also deal with security issues as part of their duties.

Rosemary Nelson Inquiry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many security officials the Nelson Inquiry employs. [257104]

Mr. Woodward: The Rosemary Nelson Inquiry does not directly employ security guards. It holds a contract with a private company for the provision of security guards for the inquiry's Belfast accommodation, and a separate company provides staff to carry out overnight and weekend guarding for the building as a whole.

Inquiry staff also deal with security issues as part of their duties.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Nelson Inquiry has spent on (a) information technology and (b) IT consultants. [257106]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Rosemary Nelson Inquiry that the inquiry has spent £5.97 million on information technology and £975,000 on IT consultants to the end of January 2009.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Genetically Modified Crops

6. Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what area of genetically modified crops was cultivated in the UK in 2008. [258781]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In England GM crops were grown in trials last year on no more than two hectares of land, and it has been reported that a limited area of an EU-approved GM maize was grown commercially in Wales.

Marine Environment

7. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government are taking to protect the marine environment. [258782]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Government are taking forward a number of measures aimed at achieving our vision of clean, healthy, safe, productive and biologically diverse oceans and seas. The Marine and Coastal Access Bill currently before the House of Lords will improve the way in which we sustainably manage our marine environment. The Government are also committed to work to achieve Good Environmental Status under the Marine Strategy Framework Directive and action towards sustainable fisheries management.

1. [Official Report, 20 April 2009, Vol. 491, c. 1MC.]

Upland Farmers

8. Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent steps he has taken to assist farmers in the uplands. [258783]

Hilary Benn: The Government provided a total of £168 million in funding to upland farmers through the hill farm allowance and the single payment scheme in 2008. Rural development funding in 2007 also provided upland farmers with £56 million from agri-environment schemes.

The HFA will be replaced by Uplands ELS in 2010. Based on uptake of 80 per cent., funding will be around £25 million a year. Further to this, a significant amount of new Higher Level Stewardship funding will go to upland farmers.

Pitt Report

9. Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many of the recommendations in Sir Michael Pitt's report from the 2007 floods "Lessons learned" have been implemented. [258784]

Hilary Benn: I last met Sir Michael Pitt to discuss the response in November. My officials and I will continue to consult him on progress in implementing his recommendations.

The Government's response to the Pitt Review set out what had been implemented before December 2008 and the further steps required to implement its recommendations in the future. The Government will report further on implementation every six months, beginning in June 2009.

Recycling: Household Waste

10. Laura Moffatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps are being taken to encourage people to continue to recycle household waste. [258785]

Jane Kennedy: The economic downturn poses new challenges, especially because of volatility in markets; and we are keeping a very close watch on the situation. The clear message to householders is that there are markets for most materials and we should continue to recycle.

Both the DEFRA-funded 'Recycle Now' campaign and the Local Government Association are disseminating information to local authorities and the public about the continued benefits of recycling.

Animal Disease Strategy

11. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made in his Department's discussions with the farming industry on sharing the costs of the animal disease strategy. [258786]

Jane Kennedy: There has been considerable progress, as reflected in the 2006 report of the Joint Industry-Government Working Group and the work of the Consultative Forum between December 2007 and July 2008.

The National Farmers Union and the Country Land and Business Association as key players are in agreement with us that there should be an independent body with responsibility for animal health.

Food Labelling

12. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made in discussions with the European Commission on new rules on country of origin food labelling. [258787]

Jane Kennedy: The EU Commission is aiming to simplify existing general food labelling and nutrition labelling legislation and published the "EU Proposal for a Regulation on the Provision of Food Information to Consumers" in February 2008.

There have yet to be substantive discussions on this issue in Europe under the proposed Food Information Regulation. But the Government will be pressing for much clearer rules backing up origin claims.

16. Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations he has received on the use of country of origin labelling for food and food products. [258791]

Jane Kennedy: We receive representations from the farming community about this issue on a regular basis.

Departmental Nursery Provision: York

13. Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what nursery provision is made by his Department for the children of its staff working in York. [258788]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA staff in York are supported through an onsite subsidised nursery. The nursery currently supports a total of 50 children of staff from DEFRA, the Pesticides Safety Directorate (now part of the Health and Safety Executive) and the Meat Hygiene Service, who are all located on the Kings Pool site.

Single Farm Payment Scheme

14. Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the operation of the single farm payment scheme; and if he will make a statement. [258789]

Jane Kennedy: I am pleased to confirm that the Rural Payments Agency met the first of its formal targets for payments under the 2008 single payment scheme, to pay 75 per cent. by value by the end of January, and is on course to meet its next target, to pay 90 per cent. by value by the end of March. Latest figures show that just under £1.37 billion (84.35 per cent.) has been paid to nearly 96,000 customers (over 90 per cent.)

Floods and Water Bill

17. Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to publish the draft Floods and Water Bill. [258793]

Huw Irranca-Davies: We intend to publish the draft Bill for public consultation and pre-legislative scrutiny later in the spring.

Pitt Report: Funding

18. James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding his Department has allocated for implementation of the recommendations of Sir Michael Pitt's review of the floods of the summer of 2007. [258794]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Government set aside £34.5 million of the £2.15 billion total for flood and coastal erosion in this year and the following two years to implement Sir Michael Pitt's Review. This response also draws upon other budgets available for flood risk management activity in order to invest a total of over £60 million in delivering the recommendations over the same period.

Food Security

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent steps his Department has taken to increase UK food security. [258790]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA has a new role to co-ordinate food policy across Government and has a new departmental strategic objective for a sustainable, secure and healthy food supply. We are working across Government and with stakeholders for sustainable production, distribution and consumption of food, ensuring that it is available and affordable for all sectors of society, and considering the sustainability impacts of meeting global food needs.

Air Pollution

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether he has received a request from Barnsley Metropolitan Borough Council for exemption from the Clean Air Act 1993 to facilitate the burning of wood pellets in coal-fired boilers; [257805]

(2) what representations he has received on the pilot trials undertaken by Barnsley Metropolitan Borough Council of burning wood pellets on fossil fuel appliances. [257807]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Barnsley metropolitan borough council wrote to DEFRA in September last year regarding exemptions under the Clean Air Act 1993 and in October, following a request from my Department for further information. My hon. Friend the Member for Barnsley, West and Penistone (Mr. Clapham) also wrote to the Secretary of State in September last year regarding the council's pilot trials.

DEFRA replied to Barnsley metropolitan council on 5 December 2008 and explained that, in this case, it was considered that a general exemption was not appropriate but that it was open to the council to make a local exemption to enable wood pellets to be used in certain coal fired boilers in their area.

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proposals he has to simplify the procedure for applying for an exemption under the Smoke Control Areas (Exempted Fireplaces) Order. [257808]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In 2006, the Government, in response to the Biomass Task Force 2005 Report, agreed to ask the British Standards Institute to review their guidelines for testing appliances for smokeless operation with a view to simplifying the exemption procedure. We have since implemented changes to streamline and simplify the application and testing procedure for exempting appliances for use in smoke control areas. We will continue to keep these procedures under review but currently have no plans to introduce further simplifications.

A copy of the Government's response is available on the DEFRA website:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/farm/crops/industrial/energy/biomasstaskforce/pdf/btfreportgovresponse.pdf.

Biodiversity

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department plans to take to maintain and increase biodiversity. [258777]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Our plans are set out in 'Conserving Biodiversity—the UK Approach'. Working in partnership with others, and applying the ecosystem approach, our priorities are: protecting the best wildlife sites; promoting the recovery of priority species and habitats; embedding biodiversity in all sectors of policy and decision-making; engaging people and developing the evidence base. We have set targets to 2020 to increase the extent and quality of priority habitats and the range and populations of priority species.

Bluetongue Disease

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cases of human infection by the bluetongue virus have been reported in each of the last four years. [258360]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 25 February 2009]: Bluetongue is a disease of animals affecting all ruminants, including sheep, cattle, deer, goats and camelids (camels, llamas, alpacas, guanaco and vicuna). It does not affect humans.

BSE

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost to his Department of amending and updating the Transmissible Spongiform Encephalopathies Regulations was. [257418]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA does not keep records for amount of time spent on individual pieces of TSE work. The approximate cost of amending and updating the TSE regulations was £9,500.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on the consultation for the proposed changes to the system of testing for bovine spongiform encephalopathy. [257420]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA does not keep records for the amount of time spent on individual pieces of Transmissible Spongiform Encephalopathy work. The approximate cost of the consultation on increasing the age above which cattle must be tested was £5,800.

Carbon Emissions: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 429W, on Carbon Emissions: Finance, if he will place in the Library a copy of the most recent accounts of each of the three bodies. [252433]

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [256141]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA and its agencies own or maintain a wide range of databases reflecting its diverse policy and regulatory functions. The costs of maintaining these databases are included within the costs for each of these functions. Separating out the costs of maintaining databases for such a broad range of activities could be provided only at disproportionate cost to the Department.

Departmental Recruitment

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many new recruits his Department took on in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07, (c) 2007-08 and (d) 2008-09; how many of these were taken on as (i) permanent, (ii) temporary and (iii) agency staff; and what estimate he has made of the equivalent figures for (A) 2009-10 and (B) 2010-11. [254465]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 5 February 2009]: The following table shows the number of staff recruited by DEFRA in each financial year since 2005-06.

Financial year	Permanent	Short-term appointments	Total
2005-06	343	351	694
2006-07	211	136	347
2007-08	207	74	281
2008-09[1]	184	63	247

[1] Period covered is 1 April to 31 December 2008.

Information on agency staff is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

For both 2009-10 and 2010-11, our plans for recruitment in future years will depend on available budget, turnover and the needs of the business.

Departmental Translation Services

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many language translators are employed in each of his Department's (a) executive agencies and (b) non-Ministerial departments; and what the cost of translating services provided by such people was in the latest period for which information is available. [257148]

Huw Irranca-Davies: None of DEFRA's Executive agencies employ translators but can use core DEFRA services. Their share of the costs of these in 2007-08 was £26,497. The Forestry Commission employs one translator. Their translation services in 2007-08 cost £40,665.

Disease Control: Research

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department spent on research to support the development of the (a) Exotic Animal Disease Contingency Plan and (b) Farm Animal Welfare Council Opinion on the Welfare of Farmed Gamebirds. [257417]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is as follows:

(a) DEFRA funds research on a range of exotic diseases of animals. The research provides evidence that contributes to policy development aimed at better prevention and control of exotic diseases. This evidence is utilised in the Exotic Animal Disease Contingency Plans. In the financial year 2008-09, the Department will be spending £7.3 million on research on exotic diseases of animals.

(b) The Department spent £341,362 on research to inform the Farm Animal Welfare Council Opinion on the Welfare of Farmed Gamebirds. The cost of research carried out by Farm Animal Welfare Council members was approximately £17,100. The cost of Secretariat and DEFRA veterinary advice provision was approximately £9,200.

Energy Conservation: Research

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the future skills needs of low carbon, resource-efficient environmental sectors. [256463]

Jane Kennedy: In 2008, DEFRA commissioned a review of the evidence of the skills that are, or will be, needed for a low carbon resource-efficient economy. The research was commissioned to identify gaps in the evidence base and help inform policy development in this area.

Entry Level Stewardship Scheme

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many claims made under the Entry Level Stewardship scheme were invalid in each of the last four years. [258562]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 25 February 2009]: The Entry Level Stewardship scheme (ELS) was launched in 2005 and there are now over 37,000 live ELS agreements covering over 5 million hectares of land.

Payments under ELS are made every six months for the five-year duration of the ELS agreement. Each of these payments is made automatically, apart from the final payment for which a claim must be submitted. As the earliest ELS agreements have not yet reached the final payment stage, no claims have been submitted under the scheme to date.

We do track the number of applications that were invalid and not accepted into the scheme. For the four years of operation so far, these are:

	Number
2005-06	868
2006-07	837
2007-08	376
2008-09	274

Flood Control

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of jobs that will be created by bringing forward funding for flood defence schemes. [256356]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Approximately 400 jobs are likely to be created or sustained in 2009-10 by the £20 million brought forward from 2010-11.

Food Supply: Research

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding his Department has allocated for each category of research into sustainable forms of agriculture in each of the last four years. [257800]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The information requested is as follows:

Hazardous Substances: Waste Disposal

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which sites in England deal with hazardous waste; what the distance is between each site and the nearest unit of housing; and if he will make a statement. [251945]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 27 January 2009]: There are about 1,300 sites permitted to store hazardous wastes, including asbestos, some batteries, television sets and fluorescent tubes. These permitted sites consist of approximately 740 hazardous waste transfer stations; 370 hazardous waste treatment facilities; 31 hazardous waste incinerators including clinical waste incinerators; 33 in-house hazardous waste storage facilities; 102 hazardous waste landfill sites (30 of which are in the process of closing); and 68 pet crematoria.

Lists of the sites have been placed in the Library of the House. The lists record the distance of each site from human occupation. Postcode specific searches for this information can be obtained on a case by case basis via the Environment Agency's website. Information on some of the sites is not available as it is not held or the site is new.

Pollution Control

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department spent on (a) research and (b) consultations for the introduction of local authority industrial pollution regulations. [257419]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The current system of local authority industrial pollution regulation began in 1991. DEFRA's annual research expenditure on this system varies annually, but on average is around £40,000 a year. Consultations are undertaken periodically, including an annual consultation on the level of fees and charges payable by regulated businesses. In the last six months, separate consultations have been undertaken on a better regulation review of the system, and on the principles to underpin the forthcoming review of statutory guidance notes on pollution standards. Separate data are not held which distinguishes the cost of these consultations from that of managing the system as a whole.

Poultry Industry: Training

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding his Department has allocated for the training passport scheme to train staff in the poultry industry to NVQ level qualification. [258561]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 25 February 2009]: This is an industry resourced initiative so DEFRA funding has not been required.

Waste Disposal: Environment Protection

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he plans to take to ensure that environmental standards are upheld in waste treatment facilities. [256966]

Jane Kennedy: Waste treatment facilities operate under a permit issued by the competent authorities (Environment Agency or local authority) that regulates the nature of the operation, the types and quantities of waste and the measures to be taken to prevent harm or pollution.

Facilities are therefore subject to a range of guidance from Government and the competent authorities in respect of their environmental standards of operation and to regular inspection and compliance monitoring by the competent authorities, which take account of the environmental risk and the operator's performance.

Where operators do not comply, the competent authorities have powers to take enforcement action and do so in accordance with their Enforcement and Prosecution policy.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

British-French Nuclear Forum

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) on what date the Franco-British Nuclear Forum last met; [256003]

(2) on what date a Minister last attended a meeting of the Franco-British Nuclear Forum; [256002]

(3) how much has been paid from the public purse to the Franco-British Nuclear Forum in each year since its inception. [255984]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The last meeting of the Franco-British Nuclear Forum to be attended by a Minister was held on 29 March 2007 and attended by the then Energy Minister. This is also the date that the forum last met.

The total cost to the public purse of the Franco-British Nuclear Forum in each year since its inception is £33,400, all of which was incurred in financial year 2006-07.

Carbon Sequestration: Finance

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department has spent on the facilitation of carbon capture and storage in (a) each year since 1997 and (b) 2008-09 to date; and what estimate he has made of equivalent expenditure in the next six years. [257575]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 23 February 2009]: In the period 1997-2005, the then Department of Trade and Industry supported industrially led research and development through the Clean Coal Programme, spend as follows. It has not been possible to provide separate figures for carbon capture and storage (CCS) projects for this period.

1997-98	3.1
1998-99	2.9
1999-2000	2.5
2000-01	4.3
2001-02	4.4
2002-03	3

Since 2005, funding for industrially led R and D has been the responsibility of the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills' Technology Strategy Board.

The Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) provides support for demonstration of components for CCS and pilot scale CCS through the Carbon Abatement Technologies Demonstration Programme now supported via the Environmental Transformation Fund. Since the programme was launched in October 2006 it has spent:

2006-07	0.1

A further joint call, worth some £15million, under this programme was announced on 12 February 2009, with the TSB and Northern Way.

In addition the DECC is supporting a full scale CCS demonstration project to be operational by 2014. Given the unique nature of the UK's CCS project it is difficult to provide a definitive assessment of costs. It is also the case that the final cost may vary significantly according to the design of the winning project. We expect to develop a much clearer picture of both capital and operating costs during the competition process as we undertake detailed negotiations with the three pre-qualified bidders.

As a new Department an estimate of spend for future years cannot be given. The annual budgets for DECC for the financial years 2009-10 and 2010-11 have been agreed with HM Treasury and DECC is currently allocating these budgets to its different responsibilities through a business planning process.

DECC also undertakes a number of other activities that will facilitate the introduction of CCS. An example is the Energy Act 2008 which sets the framework for offshore storage of CO_2.

Climate Change: EU Action

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what discussions he has had with his EU counterparts on taking into account energy and climate change-related threats in the European Security Strategy. [255147]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Energy security and climate change are among key threats and global challenges that were identified in the EU High Representative/Secretary General's report on the implementation of the 2003 European security strategy which was endorsed by the December 2008 European Council. The UK Government outlined their position on the threat of climate change in the March 2008 national security strategy and, reflecting its importance in traditional security policy, have taken a lead in pushing climate change to the top of the international debate about security. The Government also pressed to ensure that Javier Solana's report included energy security as a key theme.

My right. hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change has regular discussions with EU counterparts on these issues, mainly in the context of the EU Energy and Environment Councils.

Community Energy Saving Programme

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he expects the first householders to receive assistance from the Community Energy Saving Programme. [255853]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The consultation for the Community Energy Saving Programme was published on 12 February 2009.

We are working to publish a draft order to illustrate how the policy proposals may be reflected in a final order. We hope to publish this in the next few weeks, hopefully by the second or third week of March.

The order will then be finalised once the Government have received and considered responses to the consultation process.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when his Department appointed a senior information risk owner in accordance with the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government and the accompanying document Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action; and what grade the person holds within the Department. [245360]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: A member of the DECC Management Board currently on temporary promotion to SCS Pay Band 3 accepted the role of SIRO on an interim basis on 6 January 2009.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many requests under the (a) Freedom of Information Act 2000 and (b) Environmental Information Regulations 2004 his Department has (i) received and (ii) responded to since its inception. [255877]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Ministry of Justice publishes quarterly reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments). These reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

The latest published data currently relate to information requests received by monitored bodies during the third quarter (July to September) of 2008. Statistics for the fourth quarter (October to December) of 2008 are currently being compiled, and are due to be published in April 2009. This report will include statistics on information requests received and responded to by the Department of Energy and Climate Change between its creation on 3 October and the end of December 2008.

Departmental Gifts

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many members of staff in his Department have received gifts valued at £100 or higher in the course of their duties since his Department's creation; what these gifts were; and from whom they were received. [242024]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Since the Department's creation on 3 October 2008, one member of DECC staff has received a gift valued at £100 or higher in the course of their duties, as follows:

Date gift received	Description	Value (£)	Gift received from	Reason for gift	Outcome
December 2008	12 bottles of red wine	[1]120	Linklaters	Thank you for speaking at seminar at short notice	Staff member retained gift and made donations of equivalent value to charities

Departmental Internet

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change by what date he expects his Departmental website to achieve the full (a) content and (b) functionality planned. [257600]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department's new website will go live by the end of February 2009, including all functionality and content that have so far been planned. More content will be added subsequent to this date. The Department will continue to hold detailed policy information on the energy and climate change sections of the websites of the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and the Department of Environment, Food and Rural Affairs respectively, pending a full content audit to be undertaken later this year.

Departmental Marketing

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department has spent to date on its (a) websites, (b) logos and (c) stationery. [257595]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Since its formation on 3 October 2008, DECC has spent £19,226 on stationery and £38,931 on logo design and associated costs. The current DECC website was put in place at no additional cost as a temporary measure while a new site for the Department is developed. While no invoices have yet been received for the development of the replacement site, £50,000 has so far been allocated for this for 2008-09.

Departmental Public Consultation

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what consultations relating to energy and climate change were initiated by his Department's predecessors between 5 May 2005 and 6 October 2008. [256035]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) has records on consultations relating to energy and climate change undertaken from August 2006. Economic Situation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent discussions his Department has had with outside organisations to discuss policy on reducing the effect of the recession on matters within his Department's responsibility. [254053]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Ministers and officials have regular engagements with other organisations including relevant Government Departments on a range of issues relating to the economy.

No sector is immune from the current economic climate and credit crunch and along with the regulator Ofgem, we are closely monitoring the effects on the energy sector, including on investment plans.

Electricity

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent estimate he has made of the number of households in each (a) Government Office region, (b) local authority area and (c) parliamentary constituency which are not connected to the electricity grid. [255856]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: No recent estimate of the number of households not connected to the electricity grid has been made, but the number is likely to be extremely small.

Energy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent estimate he has made of the effect of the economic downturn on the future development of an infrastructure for energy. [255256]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: While large energy companies continue to be able to access the capital markets for investment purposes, some smaller energy firms have found debt financing harder to come by due to current financial conditions, potentially leading to postponement and delay in some investments. The Government are working closely with such companies to ensure that they make the best of the financing opportunities available to them while these firms may also be eligible for the Government's recently announced schemes to restore the flow of credit to businesses (Working Capital Scheme, Enterprise Finance Guarantee Scheme and the Capital for Enterprise Fund).

Along with the regulator OFGEM, the Government are closely monitoring the effects of the credit crunch on the energy sector, particularly on investment plans.

Energy: Consumers

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent estimate he has made of the average monthly change in their expenditure which energy consumers who have not previously switched supplier could achieve by switching supplier. [256809]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: For an average consumer using 3,300 kWh of electricity and 18,000 kWh of gas per year and paying their bills on receipt (standard credit), the average annual saving from switching would have been £73 at average 2008 prices. If this average consumer also switched to paying their bill by direct debit, the saving would increase to £131 at 2008 prices. Savings of nearly £11 per month are therefore available from switching.

Data are sourced from section 2 of 'Quarterly Energy Prices', the latest edition of which was published in December 2008 and is available online at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file49203.pdf

Energy: Meters

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what discussions he has had with (a) energy supply companies and (b) Ofgem on the practice of using backdated bills for prepayment meter customers. [257591]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (Ofgem) is responsible for regulating gas and electricity supply, including recalibration and replacement of token prepayment meters, and the treatment of any debt that has accrued before recalibration. The Department discusses a range of supply issues with Ofgem on a regular basis and where appropriate, with suppliers.

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many households had (a) gas and (b) electricity pre-payment meters in each of the last 10 years. [257592]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (Ofgem) monitors, and publishes information about gas and electricity prepayment customers. From 1998 to 2007, the last period for which data have been published, the number of customers using prepayment meters is:

	million
	Gas	Electricity
1998	1.4	3.7
1999	1.6	3.7
2001	1.8	3.8
2002	2.0	3.7
2003	2.0	3.7
2004	2.1	3.6
2005	2.2	3.6
2007	2.3	3.6

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the number of customers paying for (a) electricity and (b) gas by pre-payment meters in each (i) Government Office region, (ii) local authority area and (iii) constituency. [257593]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: DECC does not hold information on customer numbers by Government office region, local authority or constituency.

However, DECC does collect information on the number of customers paying for their electricity and gas by pre-payment meters in each PES (Public Electricity Supplier) area and gas LDZ (Local Distribution Zones). The following table shows the number of customers who paid for their energy using pre-payment meters.

Energy: Prices

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps he is taking to improve the system of pricing for pre-payment fuel meter customers. [249829]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Ofgem, the independent regulator, has investigated the charges for different payment methods made by supply companies as part of its recent probe into retail gas and electricity markets. It is now consulting publicly on remedies to prevent energy supply companies from charging unjustified premiums for payment methods such as pre-payment meters. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has already told the House that should a satisfactory and timely resolution of this issue not be reached by Ofgem and the companies, he is prepared to legislate.

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1372W, on Energy: Prices, when he expects Ofgem to publish its first quarterly report on wholesale and retail prices. [257673]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: We expect Ofgem to report during February.

Energy: Supply

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps he is taking with his EU counterparts to encourage the diversification of energy supply routes. [255196]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The UK sees diversity of both sources and routes of gas as vital for the EU's security of supply. Recent events have underlined the importance to the EU of being supplied with gas from a wide range of countries. The development of a southern corridor, with the aim of bringing gas through Turkey to the EU from the Caspian region, and in the longer term from the Middle East, is crucial to that end. The UK therefore strongly supports the efforts of the European Commission and fellow EU member states to develop a southern corridor and is actively engaged in these efforts.

The Commission's second Strategic Energy Review (SEER2) of November 2008 affirmed the importance of a southern corridor as one of the EU's highest energy priorities and the importance, to that end, of increasing high level political engagement with potential gas supplier countries, such as Azerbaijan, Turkmenistan and Iraq.

The European Commission and current Czech presidency of the EU have already signalled their intention to make this a priority for 2009 and we shall be working closely with them.

The UK also sees it as important for there to be a diverse selection of routes for gas to enter the EU and for this reason we support the building of new pipelines, under market conditions, to bring gas from established suppliers to the EU such as Norway, Russia and Algeria. In addition to pipelines, Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG), imported by tanker from countries such as Qatar, Trinidad and Tobago, Egypt and Algeria, can also play an important role in diversifying gas supply to the UK and other EU member states.

The UK's own security of gas supply has been improved in recent years by new import infrastructure projects such as the BBL (Netherlands-UK) and Langeled (from Norway) pipelines, expansion of the (Belgium-UK) IUK pipeline and the new LNG import terminal at the Isle of Grain. Two further major LNG import terminals at Milford Haven are expected to be commissioned soon.

Fuel Poverty: Braintree

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many (a) households including at least one child, (b) households including at least one pensioner and (c) households were classified as living in fuel poverty in Braintree in each of the last five years. [258167]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The most recently available sub-regional split of fuel poverty relates to 2003, and shows that there were around 3,200 fuel poor households in Braintree. The data are not split by household composition.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the latest date is on which applications for grants from (a) homeowners and (b) charities and public sector bodies under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme will be accepted. [255909]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The latest date for new applications from homeowners is 30 June 2010 or when the money runs out, whichever is sooner.

For charities and public sector organisations the closing date for new applications is 30 June 2009. We would like to see eligible organisations making maximum use of the grants programme up to this date.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme: Northumberland

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many successful grant applications have been received by the Low Carbon Buildings programme for the installation of solar photovoltaic systems from households in (a) Wansbeck constituency and (b) the county of Northumberland. [252946]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The low carbon buildings programme has received the following applications for grants for solar photovoltaic systems from households in the county of Northumberland:

Local authority	Technology	Number	Grant offered (£)	Grant paid (£)
Alnwick	Solar Photovoltaic	1	2,500.00	2,500.00
Castle Morpeth	Solar Photovoltaic	1	2,000.00	not yet completed
Tynedale	Solar Photovoltaic	3	8,100.00	5,600.00
Grand total		5	12,600.00	8,100.00

Natural Gas

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent estimate he has made of the number of households in each (a) Government Office region, (b) local authority area and (c) parliamentary constituency which are not connected to the gas grid. [255955]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: As part of its regional and local energy statistics publication programme, DECC has published the number of domestic gas meter points in each local authority in Great Britain. This information has been placed in the Libraries of the House. Corresponding data are not available for Northern Ireland.

The Government do not hold this information at parliamentary constituency level.

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what volume of gas was (a) exported from and (b) imported into the UK through each international gas pipeline in each month of the last five years. [256916]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: UK exports and imports of natural gas by month by pipeline from January 2004 to November 2008 (the latest month for which all data are available) are shown in the following tables.

Natural Gas: Storage

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps his Department is taking to develop gas storage capacity. [255212]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Government are working to facilitate new gas storage projects by implementing the reforms to the consents procedures under the Energy and Planning Acts 2008. National Grid's recent "Ten Year Statement" identifies 17 commercial gas storage projects which, if they all go ahead, could increase GB's gas storage capacity to some 20 per cent. of current annual demand levels by around 2020.

Ofgem: Operating Costs

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the cost to the public purse of the Office for Gas and Electricity Markets was in each of the last 10 years. [257587]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Ofgem is primarily funded through licence fees. The total cost to the public purse since the Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (Ofgem) was formed in 1999 is as follows:

Financial year	Total cost (£000)
1999-2000	9
2000-01	1
2001-02	352
2002-03	221
2003-04	682
2004-05	702
2005-06	594
2006-07	646
2007-08	695

Radioactive Materials: Transport

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the security of nuclear waste transported by rail in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [258122]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The transportation of nuclear waste by rail is carried out in accordance with the national security regulations—the Nuclear Industries Security Regulations 2003 (NISR). The NISR is administered and enforced by the Office for Civil Nuclear Security, which regulates such movements of nuclear waste and is kept fully informed of any relevant intelligence.

The security of the transportation of nuclear material was reviewed following the events of 11 September 2001 and is regularly reviewed in light of changes to the prevailing threat. OCNS is satisfied that the measures in place to prevent theft or sabotage are adequately robust. In the event that a credible threat were detected, appropriate action would be taken.

Regional Electricity Companies

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many electricity supply companies are regulated by Ofgem. [256678]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Ofgem has issued 66 electricity supply licences, of which 34 were for the supply of domestic and non-domestic customers. There are 19 active electricity suppliers, of which 11 are both domestic and non-domestic suppliers and eight are non-domestic suppliers only.

Renewable Energy

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what timescale has been established for the introduction of the feed-in tariff scheme. [254105]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: We plan to consult on the details of feed-in tariffs this summer and we hope the scheme can go live in April 2010.

Renewable Energy: Finance

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if the Government will provide greater levels of financial support to homeowners seeking to purchase domestic (a) wind and (b) solar technologies. [244670]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The existing low carbon buildings programme provides a £86 million capital grants programme for the installation of small scale renewable technologies to householders, communities, public and not for profit organisations. To date over £1.49 million has been committed to 678 domestic wind installations and over £7.9 million to 6,446 domestic solar technology installations and funding is still available.

We are also providing support to small scale renewables through the renewables obligation (RO). All microgenerators (50kW and under) will receive the highest level of support under the reformed RO from 1 April this year (2ROCs/MWh) to reflect the higher capital costs of small generation technologies. This will provide greater levels of support than previously to domestic wind and PV solar technologies.

We are considering the transition from grant funding and other incentives to the proposed small scale electricity feed in tariff and the renewable heat incentive support mechanism.

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) what funding the Government has given to the Bio-energy Capital Grants scheme in each financial year since its inception; [259934]

(2) what the budget for the Bio-energy Capital Grants scheme in (a) 2008-09 and (b) each of the next five financial years is. [259935]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: To date the Government have allocated or spent some £18 million through the Bio-energy Capital Grants Scheme since the scheme began in 2002. The details are set out in the following table. The funding for many projects spans two or more financial years.

£ million

Financial year	Actual spend by year	Funds committed to projects (not yet spent)
2007-08	6.029	0.217
2008-09	0.681	4.295
2009-10	—	4.324
2010-11	—	0.431
Total	8.751	9.267

A further £4 million in 2009-10 and £8 million in 2010-11 is available to allocate to new projects.

There are currently no plans to continue the scheme beyond March 2011. The Government will be reviewing their policy on capital grants to support biomass heat projects in light of its intention to introduce a renewable heat incentive.

Tidal Power: River Severn

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change for what reasons seabed mounted marine turbines were not included as an option for consideration to meet requirements for renewable energy generation in the Severn estuary. [253194]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: A public call for Severn tidal power scheme proposals led to a long-list of 10 schemes including a proposal based on an array of seabed mounted marine turbines. All long-listed schemes have been investigated within the Severn tidal power feasibility study and an analysis, and recommended shortlist for further assessment, were published for public consultation last month. Proposals based on tidal stream turbines have not been recommended for shortlisting. This is because this technology is at such an early stage of development that detailed assessment is not possible. However, the Government are keen to see these technologies developed further so their potential can be better understood. Alongside existing funding for developing innovative technologies, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced new funding of £500,000 for the development of embryonic proposals. This fund will run in parallel with the feasibility study and the development of these technologies will be reviewed before decisions are taken on whether to take forward a Severn power scheme.

I expect to announce the final shortlist in the summer after consideration of comments and any further evidence submitted in response to the consultation. Copies of the consultation document are available in the Library of the House or at:

http://severntidalpowerconsultation.decc.gov.uk

The consultation closes on 23 April.

United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority: Finance

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what discussions (a) he and (b) his officials have had with private equity firms on the provision of future funding for (i) the UK Atomic Energy Authority and (ii) the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate. [253921]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: From time to time we receive inquiries from private equity funds seeking to invest in government sponsored programmes and businesses, which also include those administered by UKAEA. We investigate them to understand whether they would represent value for money for the tax payer, although at present there are no specific plans to enter into any such arrangements with regard to UKAEA.

There have been no discussions with private equity firms on the provision of future funding for the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate.

Warm Front Scheme

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will make it his policy to extend eligibility for the Warm Front scheme to persons over 70 years old who are not in receipt of benefits; and if he will make a statement. [254723]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 25 February 2009]: The existing eligibility criteria are under review. Any alterations will be announced in due course.

SCOTLAND

Newport

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland with reference to the answer of 5 November 2008, Official Report, columns 461-62W, on departmental procurement, for what reason representatives from the Scotland Office required overnight accommodation at the resort in South Wales. [258581]

Ann McKechin: A quadrilateral Finance Ministers' meeting involving the UK Government and the devolved Administrations was held at the Celtic Manor resort on 8 July 2007. My hon. Friend the Member for Inverclyde (David Cairns) attended this meeting as Minister of State for Scotland, and was supported by two members of staff.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Civil Service Employment

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many of the Prime Minister's 100,000 planned new jobs he estimates will be in the civil service. [257855]

Mr. Watson: The 100,000 new jobs will come mainly from investment in public works. The principal impact will be on jobs in construction and similar industries, for example on schools repairs, hospital programmes.

Government Communications Network

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many civil servants are engaged primarily in work for the Government Communications Network. [257856]

Mr. Watson: The Government Communication Network (GCN) does not directly employ staff. It is a professional network linking all communicators within the UK civil service. The network is supported by a team of eight working in the Cabinet Office, for the Permanent Secretary Government communication.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans the Cabinet Office has to construct an innovation centre in the virtual world Second Life; and what the cost of those plans is. [250328]

Jonathan Shaw: I have been asked to reply.

The Department for Work and Pensions through its Electronic Delivery Team has developed an innovation centre which utilises Second Life virtual world technology. The cost of its development has been around £20,000 and the quarterly running costs about £3,000.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Members: Allowances

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what discussions House of Commons officials have had with officials in the Scottish Parliament and the National Assembly for Wales on systems for (a) reporting by Members of their expenses to parliamentary authorities and (b) publication of information on Members' expenses; and if he will make a statement. [258846]

Nick Harvey: House of Commons officials maintain close working relationships with their counterparts in each of the UK legislatures and regularly contact one another to exchange views and explore methodologies for (a) systems of accounting for and administering the various allowances and expenses available to elected representatives and (b) approaches to providing information to the public.

Members: ICT

Rosie Cooper: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if the Commission will take steps to enable hon. Members to connect their Blackberrys to the Parliamentary Information and Communications Technology system. [258897]

Nick Harvey: Parliamentary ICT (PICT) is currently conducting a 60-day trial of the Blackberry Enterprise Service. Once the trial has been completed a formal evaluation will be undertaken and recommendations made.

Trade Unions

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Chichester (Mr. Tyrie) of 19 February 2008, Official Report, column 546W, on trade unions, what guidance and advice has been produced on the use for political activity of the facilities allocated for the exclusive use of the trade unions. [258660]

Nick Harvey: Guidance and advice on the use of the facilities allocated for the exclusive use of the trade unions is contained within the House of Commons Facilities Time agreement. The agreement is available on the parliamentary intranet, and a copy will be placed in the Library.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Policy Advisers

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Chichester of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 4-5W, on policy advisers, what political declaration was made by each expert adviser who made such a declaration. [258666]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that all the policy advisers referred to in the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 4-5W, have declared that they have not in the past 10 years: (a) held office (for example chair, treasurer or secretary) of a registered party or accounting unit of such a party; (b) been an employee of a registered party or accounting unit of such a party; (c) held relevant elective office; or (d) donated sums of £1,000 or more to a political party or regulated donee.

Redundancy

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission how many staff have taken (a) voluntary and (b) compulsory redundancy from the Electoral Commission in the last 24 months; and what the total cost of redundancy payments has been, including matching pension contributions. [258390]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that during the 24 month period to February 2009, two staff were made redundant on compulsory terms, and 11 staff took voluntary redundancy as part of a restructuring of the party and election finance directorate. The total cost of redundancy payments was £443,000.

TREASURY

Banks: Iceland

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what compensation has been provided by the Government to (a) individuals, (b) local authorities and (c) charities who had deposits with (i) Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander, (ii) Heritable and (iii) IceSave. [255008]

Ian Pearson: Heritable and Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander (KSF) are UK-based banking subsidiaries of the two Icelandic banks Landsbanki and Kaupthing. On 7 and 8 October 2008 respectively, the FSA concluded that Heritable and KSF no longer met their threshold conditions, and were in default for the purposes of the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS). The Treasury, using powers under the Banking (Special Provisions) Act 2008, transferred certain accounts of Heritable primarily used by retail depositors and KSF's Edge retail deposit business to ING Direct. The Government also committed to paying out in full FSCS eligible depositors whose accounts were not transferred. The remainders of Heritable's and KSF's businesses were subsequently placed into administration following due legal process.

On 8 October, the FSA announced that the UK-based branch of Landsbanki was in default for the purposes of the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS). To maintain financial stability and protect retail depositors, the Chancellor announced that all retail depositors with the Icesave brand of the branch would receive their money in full.

The Government have put in place arrangements to ensure that all FSCS-eligible depositors with the UK branch of Landsbanki, Heritable or Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander will receive their money in full. If a charity is eligible to claim compensation from the Financial Services Compensation Scheme, it will be entitled to benefit from these arrangements.

For local authorities, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the statement made by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 35WS.

Council Tax: Parking

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, column 1218W, on council tax: parking, how many domestic dwellings in England have been assigned by the Valuation Office Agency with the value significant codes of (a) VC, (b) VE, (c) VH, (d) VI, (e) VL, (f) VM, (g) VO, (h) VP, (i) VR and (j) VS. [258476]

Mr. Timms: Value significant codes indicate the existence of special features that are likely to affect, either negatively or positively, the value of a property. The numbers of dwellings assigned value significant codes by the Valuation Office Agency as at 1 February 2009 is provided in the following table. These data should not be interpreted as definitive, and it should be noted that dwellings can be assigned to several significant codes at any one time.

A comprehensive exercise to capture information about all value significant features of all domestic properties has not been undertaken, nor is one planned.

Number of dwellings assigned value significant codes:

	Number
VC	9,585
VE	26,490
VH	3,465
VI	1,816
VL	1,530
VM	501
VO	21,990

Departmental Data Protection

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what IT security strategy his Department has in place; what steps are being taken to ensure the strategy is being followed; what policy is in place on the use of encryption when data are sent externally; and what sanctions are in place for use should the policy not be followed. [259006]

www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/spf.aspx

The SPF sets out a number of mandatory measures that all Government Departments must have in place, including those for ensuring that its principles are being followed, and for the use of encryption of data sent externally.

HM Treasury adheres to the IT security principles set out in this Framework. Any potential cases of the policy not being followed would be investigated, with sanctions taken in accordance with the Department's disciplinary procedures.

Equitable Life

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will authorise interim payments of compensation for maladministration to older people who have lost money with Equitable Life. [253572]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 3 February 2009]: The Government have announced their intention to set up a scheme to make ex-gratia payments to Equitable Life policyholders who have been disproportionately affected by events at the society. We believe that it is important to set up a scheme that can pay out as swiftly as possible and will consider all options, but also would not wish to delay the main payments scheme.

Income Tax: Young People

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many 16 and 17 year olds pay income tax. [258406]

Mr. Timms: Information on the number of taxpayers by age can be found in table 3.2 "Distribution of median and mean income tax by age, range and gender" on the HM Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/income_distribution/menu-by-year.htm

Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander; Isle of Man

Mr. Slaughter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress has been made in the Government's discussions with the Icelandic government on the status of British depositors with Kaupthing, Singer and Friedlander (Isle of Man). [256649]

Ian Pearson: Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander Isle of Man is a subsidiary of the Icelandic parent company, Kaupthing. Arrangements for depositors in banks in the Isle of Man are a matter for the Government of the Isle of Man. Deposits with Kaupthing, Singer and Friedlander Isle of Man, will be subject to the Isle of Man Deposit Compensation Scheme.

In line with usual constitutional arrangements, the Government will represent the Crown Dependencies in its negotiations with the Icelandic authorities. The focus of the negotiations is to ensure the fair and equitable treatment of creditors.

The IMF Stand-By Arrangement to Iceland, agreed on 19 November, includes Iceland's commitment to "ensuring the fair and equitable treatment of depositors and creditors of the intervened banks".

Members: Correspondence

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Northavon of 16 October 2008, on behalf of Mr Gary Baker, which was acknowledged by his Department with the reference PO REF: 1/61869/2008. [259075]

Ian Pearson: I have replied to the hon. Member.

Non-Domestic Rates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the most recent version of the Valuation Office Agency's (a) non-domestic rating Referencers Manual and (b) rating manual. [258408]

Mr. Timms: An electronic copy of the current version of the Valuation Office Agency's NDR Referencers' Manual was placed in the Library on 2 February 2009 following the reply to the parliamentary question PQ0875W 2008-09. The Rating Manual is available for viewing on the Valuation Office Agency's website:

www.voa.gov.uk

Political Parties: Finance

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 9 December 2008, Official Report, columns 46-47W, on political parties: finance, and with reference to the MPs, Ministers and Tax guidance note, whether Labour hon. Members' contributions to fund the services of the Parliamentary Labour Party based in Parliament are classified by HM Revenue and Customs as (a) a personal donation to a political party and (b) a cost incurred by an office holder that is wholly, exclusively and necessarily in performance of their Parliamentary duties. [258626]

Mr. Timms: As noted in the booklet "MPs, Ministers and Tax", payments by Members to political organisations for party political purposes and any expenses incurred as a member of a political party are not allowable for tax purposes. HMRC would therefore normally classify contributions to fund the services of the parliamentary Labour party as (a) a personal donation to a political party, regardless of whether those services are based inside or outside Parliament.

Revenue and Customs: Reorganisation

Mr. Liddell-Grainger: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of job losses in Somerset likely to result from the re-structuring of HM Revenue and Customs. [258070]

Mr. Timms: As part of the Cabinet Office Efficiency and Relocation programme HMRC has committed to reducing its workforce by 25,000 posts by 2011.

It is estimated that, by 2011, there will be 90 fewer full-time equivalent HMRC posts located in Somerset than there were in 2008.

HMRC has given up over 17,000 posts to date. This has been achieved without the need to make staff compulsorily redundant and it is planned to continue with this policy wherever it is reasonable to do so.

Royal Bank of Scotland: Loans

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the level of lending in the UK by RBS was in January (a) 2009, (b) 2008, (c) 2007 and (d) 2006. [254585]

Ian Pearson: Details of UK lending by the RBS group can be found in the Annual accounts which are published at:

http://www.investors.rbs.com/investor_relations/financial_info/results.cfm

Stamp Duty Land Tax

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost to the public purse has been of administering stamp duty land tax relief for zero-carbon homes. [258403]

Ian Pearson: The precise costs of administering individual stamp duty land tax reliefs are not collected but HMRC estimates that those associated with the relief for zero carbon homes will have been negligible to date.

UK Financial Investments: Directors

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many directors are employed by UK Financial Investments Limited; and what the salary of each is. [258143]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The UKFI Board will comprise up to nine members, including a private sector Chair, non-executive private sector members, a Chief Executive and senior Government officials. Details are available at:

http://www.ukfi.gov.uk/

The salary for paid non-executive board members is £30,000. The Chief Executive is on secondment from HM Treasury; his salary was disclosed in last year's Treasury annual report.

The company's annual report and audited accounts will be laid before Parliament.

UK Financial Investments: Manpower

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people are employed by UK Financial Investments Limited, broken down by Civil Service pay grade. [258144]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 23 February 2009]: UK Financial Investments Ltd. is not part of the civil service, but a small number of civil servants (around five) are expected to be seconded into it. Total staffing is currently expected to be around 15.

Valuation Office: Publications

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 14 May 2008, Official Report, column 1630W, on Valuation Office: Publications, whether the Valuation Office Agency has produced an in-house staff email bulletin or intranet equivalent since June 2007. [258478]

Mr. Timms: No.

Valuation: Housing

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many individual locality groups the Valuation Office Agency uses to classify domestic dwellings in England. [258496]

Mr. Timms: As at 1 February 2009, there were 3,886 locality groups covering England.

Valuebill

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which local authorities in (a) England and (b) Wales use the Valuebill interface to communicate with the Valuation Office Agency. [258502]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) on 19 June 2007, Official Report, column 1647W.

OLYMPICS

Departmental Translation Services

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many language translators are employed in her Office; and what the cost of the translating services was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [257147]

Tessa Jowell: In this financial year to date my private office has not directly employed any translators or interpreters. The Government Olympic Executive has paid the following amounts on language translating services:

Olympic and Paralympic Legacy Report and Leaflet—Translation to Welsh £1,815 (plus VAT)

Business Cards—Translation to Mandarin £325 (plus VAT)—for use in Beijing during the Olympic and Paralympic Games

Translation of a letter into Portuguese £132 (plus VAT)

Total: £ 2,272 (plus VAT)

We are awaiting confirmation from the British embassy in Brazil of any interpretation costs arising from my visit to the International Inspiration Programme held there in November.

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics for what reason the necessity for alterations to (a) the roof and (b) the external wrap of the Olympic Stadium was not identified at an earlier stage in the Olympic budget process; and if she will make a statement. [256481]

Tessa Jowell: The decision to include the installation of the temporary structural enhancements required for the opening and closing ceremonies was taken in autumn 2008. This was done to reduce health and safety risks that would have arisen from doing this work after the main construction is complete, as was envisaged under the original plan. The detailed design of the stadium wrap is still being developed.

Olympic Games 2012: Contracts

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics when Lendlease's exclusivity agreement to build the athlete's village expires. [258905]

Tessa Jowell: The exclusivity agreement between the Olympic Delivery Authority and Lend Lease expires on 31 March 2009. There is, however, an option to extend exclusivity by mutual consent.

Olympic Games 2012: Finance

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what costs arising from preparations for and hosting of the London 2012 Olympic Games are estimated to be incurred by (a) the Metropolitan Police, (b) the London Fire Brigade, (c) Transport for London and (d) the London Development Agency in each financial year until 2012-13; what proportion of these costs will be met by grants from the Olympics Delivery Authority in each case; and if she will make a statement. [257278]

Tessa Jowell: The cost of the games remains within the £9.325 billion funding package that I announced in March 2007.

(a) and (b): As already announced this includes a £600 million envelope of provision for policing and wider security, and £354 million for onsite security from within the Olympic Delivery Authority's (ODA) budget. An additional £238 million (within the £9.325 billion funding package) will be made available for contingency if required. Work is continuing to finalise the security strategy and plans within these provisions. Decisions on funding will take account of operational needs of the police, fire and rescue and other agencies, affordability and the need to secure value for money. The ODA does not make grant payments to the Metropolitan Police or the London Fire Brigade.

(c) Within the funding package, there is a provision of £864 million for Olympic transport projects, which will be delivered by Transport for London (TfL) and other partners. The ODA and TfL have a funding agreement setting out the TfL-led transport projects, facilities, and services required for the 2012 games (in addition to TfL's ongoing Investment Programme). ODA contributions relating to this activity are covered by the funding agreement. The amount of these contributions is subject to agreement on a project by project basis as each Business case is approved. The estimated total contribution is c. £370 million.

(d) Within the £9.325 billion funding package, the London Development Agency (LDA) is directly contributing £250 million of the total London contribution of £1.175 billion (comprising £925 million from GLA of which £625 million is from council tax precepts and £300 million from the LDA; plus the LDA's direct contribution of £250m). The ODA does not make grant payments to the LDA.

The Government have recently published the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympics Games annual report January 2009, which provides a detailed breakdown of the ODA budget. I have also committed to publishing a financial update on a quarterly basis.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics for how long the £326 million grant from the Olympics Contingency Fund will enable construction of the athlete's village to continue. [258903]

Tessa Jowell: The £326 million extra funding for the Olympic Village includes the £95 million announced last year. The £326 million will allow works to continue well into 2010 parallel to on-going negotiations and evaluation of the best value funding option for development of the Olympic Village.

Olympic Games 2012: Medals

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Minister for the Olympics (1) where the medals for the London 2012 Olympics will be struck; [258295]

(2) which firms tendered for the contract to create the medals for the London 2012 Olympics; [258296]

(3) where the raw materials for the medals for the London 2012 Olympics will be sourced; and if she will make a statement. [258297]

Tessa Jowell: The London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) is responsible for the provision of the medals for the London 2012 Games. No decisions have been taken yet in relation to the medals.

LOCOG is a private company which raises its income from a variety of commercial sources in order to host and stage the Games. LOCOG may choose to supply the medals for the 2012 Games through a value-in-kind sponsorship deal or through a procurement process. All medals sourced will conform to LOCOG's sustainable sourcing code, which is available on the 2012 website:

http://www.london2012.com/documents/locog-publications/sustainable-sourcing-code-nov-08.pdf

Olympic Games 2012: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Minister for the Olympics whether she has received a response from the Olympic Delivery Authority on the monetary value of contracts it has awarded to business organisations in Wales. [242297]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 10 December 2008]: As set out in my letter dated 28 January to the hon. Member, I have received a response from the Olympic Delivery Authority and I have placed this in the House Library.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will place in the Library the response from the Olympic Delivery Authority on the monetary value of contracts awarded to business organisations in Wales. [242519]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 11 December 2008]: As set out in my letter dated 28 January to the hon. Member for Chesham and Amersham, I have received a response from the Olympic Delivery Authority and I have placed this in the House Library.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Leader of the House if she will publish a copy of her Office's website accessibility plan. [257230]

Chris Bryant: The Office of the Leader of the House of Commons is currently reviewing the position of its office website, including accessibility of the site.

We shall publish any resulting accessibility plan to the House as soon as possible.

PRIME MINISTER

Israel: Anniversaries

Mr. Amess: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 12 February 2009, Official Report, column 2136W, on Israel: Anniversaries, whether he made a speech at the Israel Embassy's 60th anniversary reception; and if he will make a statement. [259163]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to the answer I gave the hon. Member on 12 February 2009, Official Report, column 2136W.

Members: Surveillance

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister whether any electronic surveillance of hon. Members by (a) the police and (b) the intelligence and security services falling within the terms of the Wilson doctrine has taken place in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [259033]

The Prime Minister: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 8 December 2008, Official Report, column 15W.

Ministers: Pensions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 28 January 2009, Official Report, column 541W, on Ministers: pensions, whether Lord Falconer of Thoroton is to receive (a) a pension equivalent to that received by other Secretaries of State in the House of Lords, (b) a pension entitlement derived from the provisions of the Lord Chancellor's Pension Act 1832 as amended or (c) a pension settlement on another basis in respect of his service as Lord Chancellor; and if he will make a statement. [258692]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to the answer I gave the right hon. Member on 28 January 2009, Official Report, column 541W.

National Security

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister with reference to the written ministerial statement of 22 July 2008, Official Report, columns 111-12WS, on the national security strategy, what progress has been made on the establishment of a joint committee on the national security strategy; and if he will make a statement. [258838]

The Prime Minister: The Government are committed to bringing proposals before the two Houses for the establishment of the new Joint Committee in time for it to consider the next iteration of the National Security Strategy which will be published before the summer recess. We have already had productive consultations with the opposition parties and relevant Select Committee chairs on those proposals and membership discussions are under way.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister with reference to the written ministerial statement of 22 July 2008, Official Report, columns 111-12WS, on the national security strategy, whether any changes will be made to the Intelligence Services Act 1994 in relation to (a) the Intelligence and Security Committee, (b) the Defence Select Committee and (c) the Foreign Affairs Select Committee following the establishment of a joint committee on the national security strategy. [258840]

The Prime Minister: No.

Official Residences

John Mason: To ask the Prime Minister (1) which ministerial residences were (a) occupied and (b) vacant in each month since May 2005; [259202]

(2) how many ministerial residences have been (a) sold and (b) identified for sale since May 2005; and what steps the Government have taken to identify the notional rental value of each property. [259336]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) on 8 October 2008, Official Report, column 618W.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his US counterpart about proposals for dialogue between the US and the Taleban in Afghanistan. [254682]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary recently met with the US Secretary of State, and had a wide-ranging discussion, including on the need for a comprehensive approach in Afghanistan, and a focus on the political as well as military agenda.

Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials regularly discuss with their US counterparts how best to support Afghan-led efforts to bring disaffected Afghans into society's mainstream, providing they meet the Afghan government's conditions and renounce violence, have no links to Al Qaeda and accept Afghanistan's Constitution.

Africa: Human Rights

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the governments of (a) the Democratic Republic of Congo and (b) Rwanda on the serving of the International Criminal Court warrant on Bosco Ntganda; and whether MONUC has also been tasked to take part in such an operation. [253994]

Gillian Merron: The UK is strongly supportive of the International Criminal Court. We have reminded the government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo of its obligations in respect of the warrant for the arrest of Bosco Ntaganda. As far as we are aware, the United Nations Mission in the Democratic Republic of Congo (MONUC) has received no instructions to act on the warrant. We have not held specific discussions on the warrant with the government of Rwanda, which is not a party to the Rome Statute.

Apprentices

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 2 June 2008, Official Report, column 697W, on apprentices, what progress has been made on increasing the number of apprentices in his Department; and how many apprentices his Department employs. [251957]

Gillian Merron: The government wide pathfinder apprenticeship scheme has been rolled-out from September 2008. In the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) 64 UK based staff are currently finalising their applications for advanced apprenticeships. The FCO will continue to promote apprenticeships to eligible staff as part of our wider commitment to staff development.

FCO Services, a trading fund of the FCO, runs an advanced apprenticeship scheme for electronic and IT engineers. They currently have 35 advanced apprentices. In September 2008, eight advanced apprentices graduated to substantive positions within technical sections. FCO Services currently plans to recruit an additional 20 advanced apprentices during the financial year 2009-10.

Bosnia and Herzegovina: Diplomatic Service

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he plans to propose a UK candidate for the position of High Representative in Bosnia-Herzegovina. [253959]

David Miliband: The UK has proposed Sir Emyr Jones Parry GCMG for the appointment. Sir Emyr was the UK Permanent Representative to the UN from 2003-07, having served previously as the UK Permanent Representative to the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation and Foreign and Commonwealth Office Political Director.

A decision on this appointment is expected by the end of this month.

Community Relations

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what funds his Department contributed to local authority Preventing Violent Extremism projects in 2008, broken down by local authority; and if he will make a statement. [251765]

Bill Rammell: None.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Armed Conflict

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support he is offering to (a) those involved in the recent joint military operation against the Lords Resistance Army and (b) the joint actions of Rwandan and Democratic Republic of Congo forces in and around Goma. [254170]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 3 February 2009]: The UK has not been approached for, nor provided, support to either military operation in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC). These operations are the result of two regional agreements between the states directly involved in the military action. We welcome the increased regional co-operation between the governments but urge all parties involved to fully respect international law, do all they can to minimise the humanitarian impact and fully co-ordinate with the United Nations Mission in the DRC (MONUC).

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the initial estimated (a) cost and (b) delivery date was of each ICT project initiated by his Department in each year since 1997; what the (i) outturn cost and (ii) completion date was of each such project subsequently completed; which contractors were hired for each project; and how much has been paid to each contractor in respect of each project to date. [251381]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not have a central record of the information requested. A comprehensive reply cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which ICT projects his Department initiated and abandoned before completion in each year since 1997; what costs were incurred in each project; who the contractors for each were; on what date each was (a) commenced and (b) abandoned; and if he will make a statement. [251393]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not have a central record of the information requested. A comprehensive reply cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

However, I would refer the hon. Member to the answer provided by my right hon. Friend, the then Minister for Europe, Mr. Hoon, to the hon. Member for Angus (Mr. Weir) on 4 September 2006, Official Report, column 2044W. Since then no significant projects have been abandoned.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many complaints about advertisements sponsored or funded by his Department were made to the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) in each year from 1997 to 2008; and how many of these were upheld by the ASA in each year. [246650]

Gillian Merron: None.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs at which of his Department's buildings abroad visitors are not permitted to take mobile telephones inside; what the reasons are for that practice; and whether his Department's officials may use mobile telephones in such buildings. [248458]

Gillian Merron: For security reasons, visitors to all our missions overseas are required to leave their mobile telephones at the visitor reception point. Officials working at missions are permitted to use their mobile phones only in designated areas.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department has allocated for staff bonuses in 2008-09. [252255]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) uses non-consolidated, non-pensionable bonuses to encourage high performance. We pay annual bonuses to staff in the delegated grades (all except senior managers) based on appraisal evidence of annual performance. The highest rating and bonus award is given only where performance has significantly exceeded challenging objectives and may have radically transformed delivery of policy and/or services. Staff who do not meet performance standards receive no bonus. Total pay-bill for the delegated grades is £181.7 million of which 2.78 per cent. is used for non-consolidated performance payments to staff.

Variable pay (bonus) arrangements for staff in the Senior Management Structure/Senior Civil Service (SMS/SCS) of the FCO follow a framework set centrally for Whitehall Departments by the Cabinet Office. We use variable pay for SMS/SCS staff to reward excellent individual performance and achievement during the year. Variable pay decisions are based on a judgment by pay committees of what an individual has achieved in comparison with peers. Those who have delivered the best results, and shown real leadership in doing so, receive bonuses. Those who have delivered least receive nothing. Departments were authorised to spend a sum equivalent to 8.6 per cent. of their SCS pay budget on bonuses to reward SCS performance in 2008.

For the financial year 2008-09 the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has allocated a maximum total sum of £7,888,852 for expenditure on non-consolidated, performance-related staff bonuses.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which external organisations his Department has engaged to provide training for fast stream civil service staff in the last three years; and how many civil servants in his Department have participated in provision of training for external organisations in that period. [252224]

Gillian Merron: The National School of Government, Centre for Political and Diplomatic Studies and Development Solutions provide training to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO). New fast stream members of the FCO can also undertake a range of training in their first two years in the office, some of which may be delivered by external organisations.

Some FCO civil servants speak to new entrants at training courses run by external organisations. They do so as part of their role as serving FCO officers. We do not keep a central record of the number of FCO civil servants who have participated in this way and to obtain this information would incur a disproportionate cost.

Diego Garcia: Rendition

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1201W, on Diego Garcia: rendition, for what reasons he has not passed this information to the police; whether he has examined the possibility that criminal offences may have been committed in relation to the two rendition flights through Diego Garcia; and if he will make a statement. [246740]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 January 2009]: We have considered the possibility that criminal offences may have been committed in relation to the two rendition flights through Diego Garcia. We have very limited specific information about these flights and, despite enquiry, have not been able to establish further details that would be essential for purposes of further investigation.

We welcome President Obama's Executive Orders of 22 January 2009 covering the closure of Guantanamo Bay, detainee treatment and interrogation (including the practice of rendition). These early moves demonstrate real commitment to address the challenges of violent extremism in a manner consistent with upholding human rights, civil liberties and the rule of law.

Economic Situation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions his Department has had with outside organisations to discuss policy on reducing the effect of the recession on matters within his Department's responsibility. [254055]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has regular engagements with outside organisations including relevant Government Departments on a range of issues relating to the economy and how they impact upon the UK's foreign policy goals.

Falkland Islands

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he next plans to visit the Falkland Islands. [254695]

Gillian Merron: Neither my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary nor I currently have any plans to visit the Falkland Islands. I met Falkland Islands Councillor Michael Summers OBE in October 2008, shortly after taking up my current ministerial portfolio. In addition, my hon. Friend, the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs (Meg Munn), visited the Falkland Islands in January 2008.

India: Foreign Relations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) meetings and (b) engagements he had in India during his recent visit. [253373]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary visited India from 13-15 January 2009. In New Delhi, he met Prime Minister Manmohan Singh, Foreign Minister Mukherjee, Home Minister Chidambaram and National Security Adviser Narayanan among others. He visited Uttar Pradesh as the guest of Rahul Gandhi and then Mumbai, where he delivered a speech on terrorism and met some of those affected by the terrorist attacks in November. He also participated in a range of useful meetings and events with various Indian politicians, civil society and the media.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the state of UK-India relations following his recent visit to India. [253374]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary visited India from 13-15 January 2009. The UK continues to enjoy a close and constructive relationship with India. We have extensive contacts with the Indian government and civil society on a wide range of diplomatic, political, security, economic, trade, development, scientific and cultural issues. We have an extensive network of posts in India staffed from several departments across Whitehall who work to promote UK interests in India.

Government Ministers also have regular discussions with their Indian counterparts about bilateral, regional and global issues. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is committed to improving relations with India even further in 2009 and beyond.

Iran: Politics and Government

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government have made to (a) the government of Iran and (b) the recent Iranian delegation to London comprising five members of the Iranian-British Parliamentary Group on the disputed sovereignty of the Abu Musa, Tunb and Lesser Tunb islands in the Strait of Hormuz; and if he will make a statement. [254007]

Bill Rammell: The Government have not made any representations to the government of Iran, nor to the recent delegation of five members of the Iranian Parliament to London, on the disputed sovereignty of the Abu Musa, Tunb and Lesser Tunb islands.

The UK regards this dispute as a matter for resolution between the countries concerned.

Kashmir

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Indian counterpart about Jammu Kashmir. [254684]

Bill Rammell: On 14 January 2009, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed the situation in Indian-administered Kashmir with Indian External Affairs Minister Mukherjee. The Foreign Secretary also discussed Indian-administered Kashmir with External Affairs Minister Mukherjee on 2 September 2008 and 24 October 2008.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his most recent assessment is of the political situation in Gaza. [248315]

Bill Rammell: Our assessment is that the current situation in Gaza is very concerning. My right hon. Friends the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary are in close touch with their counterparts working to achieve an immediate and permanent ceasefire.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he made to (a) the United Nations and (b) the protagonists in Gaza seeking an immediate ceasefire in the conflict in Gaza between 28 December 2008 and 5 January 2009. [249165]

Bill Rammell: The UN Security Council met on 27 December 2008 to discuss the conflict in Gaza. On 28 December 2008, a UK-French proposal for a press statement calling for an immediate halt to violence was agreed. On 1 January 2009, we started looking at suitable language which ultimately became UN Security Council resolution (UNSCR) 1860. Throughout this period, the UK was in continuous communication with key partners at the UN. Following three days of Security Council meetings, which were attended by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary, UNSCR 1860 was adopted on 8 January 2009.

We were in continuous dialogue with the Israeli Government and Palestinian Authority.

We do not believe it is productive to talk to Hamas directly until it makes significant movement towards the Quartet principles of rejecting violence, accepting Israel's right to exist and recognising previous agreements. The Arab League has mandated Egypt to communicate with Hamas. We are in regular contact with both the Arab League and Egypt.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to Israel on the use of white phosphorus shells in Gaza in the last 12 months. [249211]

Bill Rammell: We are very concerned about reports of white phosphorus ammunition being used by the Israeli defence force in Gaza. We have made this clear directly to both the Foreign Ministry and Defence Ministry in Tel Aviv.

I have also made clear to the House that Gaza is an exceptionally densely populated area where white phosphorus used as an air burst is liable to cause particularly horrific injuries to non-combatants. We consider such use in these circumstances unacceptable.

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to take into account the Advisory Opinion of the International Court of Justice on Israel's wall in the West Bank when implementing the human rights provisions of the EU-Israel trade agreement; and if he will make a statement. [250294]

Bill Rammell: The Government agree with the conclusion of the International Court of Justice (ICJ) that construction of the barrier along the chosen route, and its associated regime, is unlawful under international law. Building the barrier on occupied land is contrary to international law.

The Government have consistently made this position clear and supported the United Nations General Assembly Resolution which acknowledged the ICJ advisory opinion on the legal consequences of the construction of the barrier in the occupied Palestinian territory.

While the implementation of the provisions of EU agreements is the business of the European Commission, we continue to value the platform that the EU/Israel Association Agreement gives EU member states to raise their concerns, such as those concerning the route of the barrier, with the Government of Israel.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Israeli Ambassador on the use of white phosphorus shells in Gaza since 27 December 2008. [250418]

Bill Rammell: We are very concerned about reports of white phosphorus ammunition being used by the Israeli Defence Forces in Gaza. We have made this clear directly to both the Foreign Ministry and Defence Ministry in Tel Aviv.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Sittingbourne and Sheppey of 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 116, on Palestine, what steps he has taken to ensure that allegations that the Israeli defence force used (a) white phosphorus and (b) dense inert metal explosive bombs during its recent actions in Gaza are investigated by international agencies. [253452]

Bill Rammell: We are gravely concerned at widespread allegations that Israel and Hamas have violated international humanitarian law. These allegations have been made publicly by credible organisations such as the United Nations and International Committee of the Red Cross. During his 19 January 2009 statement, Official Report, column 501, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary called for them to be closely and speedily investigated.

We expect Israel to investigate allegations made against its forces, and have made this clear to the Israeli Government.

In addition, the UN Human Rights Council has decided to send an international fact-finding mission to investigate violations of human rights law and international humanitarian law by Israel in Gaza.

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government is involved in an international investigation on whether war crimes were committed by Israel in Gaza; and if he will make a statement. [253932]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 3 February 2009]: We are gravely concerned at widespread allegations that Israel and Hamas have violated international humanitarian law. During his statement to Parliament of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 501, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary called for them to be closely and speedily investigated.

The UN Secretary-General has launched a Board of Inquiry into the shelling of UN premises in Gaza. The UK fully supports this inquiry and we urge all parties to co-operate with it.

We also expect Israel to investigate allegations made against its forces, and have made this clear to the Israeli Government.

In addition, the UN Human Rights Council has decided to send an international fact-finding mission to investigate violations of human rights law and international humanitarian law by Israel in Gaza.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 28 January 2009, Official Report, column 604W, on the Middle East: armed conflict, what the reasons are for the Government's policy on this matter; and if he will make a statement. [254064]

Bill Rammell: We assess all arms export applications on a case by case basis against the criteria covered by the EU Common Position on arms export controls which creates legal obligations on the UK to consider arms export licence applications in this way. We believe this provides a transparent, consistent and effective way to manage responsibly the export of arms from the UK. My right hon. Friend the late Robin Cook when Foreign Secretary explained in this House why we have adopted this policy in his response to my right hon. Friend the Member for East Ham (Mr. Timms) on 28 July 1997, Official Report, column 26. My right hon. Friend, the then Minister of State at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (Mr. Hain), reiterated this explanation in his answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Crawley (Laura Moffatt) on 26 October 2000, Official Report, column 199W.

In assessing current licence applications for Israel we take very carefully into account the recent conflict in the region. We will not authorise an export if to do so would be inconsistent with the criteria in the EU Common Position on arms export controls: this includes, for example, where there is a clear risk of exports being used either for internal repression or for external aggression the export licence is not granted.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports the Government has received on war crimes allegedly committed by the government of Israel during Operation Cast Lead; and if he will make a statement. [251106]

Bill Rammell: We are gravely concerned at widespread allegations that Israel and Hamas have violated international humanitarian law. These allegations have been made publicly by credible organisations such as the UN and International Committee of the Red Cross. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary called for them to be closely and speedily investigated in his statement to Parliament of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 501.

The UN Secretary-General has launched a Board of Inquiry into the shelling of UN premises in Gaza. The UK fully supports this inquiry and we urge all parties to co-operate with it.

We also expect Israel to investigate allegations made against its forces, and have made this clear to the Israeli government.

Saudi Arabia: Festivals and Special Occasions

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when his most recent correspondence with the British Ambassador in Saudi Arabia on the Hajj pilgrimage and Mr. Gorgi took place; when he last met the Ambassador to discuss the Hajj pilgrimage; how many British citizens (a) sustained injuries and (b) died of unnatural causes while making the Hajj pilgrimage in the last (i) 12 months and (ii) five years; and what estimate he has made of the number of UK residents who travelled to Saudi Arabia to undertake the pilgrimage in each of the last five years. [250814]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary is in regular contact with our ambassador in Saudi Arabia who keeps him appraised of issues including the Hajj. And the ambassador and his staff are in regular contact with the Minister of Hajj and Ministry officials. The ambassador's most recent correspondence with Mr. Gorgi was in August 2008 in reply to your letter of 2 July 2008. During the 2008 Hajj there were no reports of British nationals sustaining injuries and no deaths from unnatural causes which is the same for 2007. In December 2006 there were three deaths and 30 sustained injuries in a coach crash, in January 2006 three died in a stampede and two sustained injuries and in 2005 and 2004 there were no deaths from unnatural causes and no injuries.

The numbers of British nationals making pilgrimages over the last five years are 18,604 in 2008, 21,715 in 2007, 24,000 in December 2006, 25,000 in January 2006, 27,910 in 2005 and 22,270 in 2004.

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the level of risk to which British civilians in Sri Lanka are exposed. [251099]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 29 January 2009]: Foreign and Commonwealth Office Travel Advice sets out our view of the risk to Britons in Sri Lanka. It is regularly reviewed and updated. Our Travel Advice currently advises against all travel to the north and east of Sri Lanka and to Yala National Park and all the areas around it. The current Travel Advice also highlights that there is a high threat from terrorism in Sri Lanka and that further attacks may occur at any time.

For further details see:

www.fco.gov.uk/en/travelling-and-living-overseas/travel-advice-by-country

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of (a) civilian and (b) military casualties in the recent fighting in the Tamil areas of Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [253469]

Bill Rammell: We are seriously concerned about the deteriorating humanitarian situation and reports of civilian casualties. It is not possible to obtain accurate information on civilian and military casualties, due to the ongoing military hostilities and the lack of independent information emerging from northern Sri Lanka.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of allegations that the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam used the 48-hour time frame granted by the Sri Lankan government for safe passage for civilians to regroup and mount attacks on the Sri Lankan security forces. [250825]

Bill Rammell: The UK continues to have serious concerns about the humanitarian and security situation in northern Sri Lanka. The military hostilities and the lack of independent information coming out of the conflict area make it difficult to get accurate information. However, in spite of calls for a 48-hour ceasefire to allow civilians safe passage to government controlled areas, there is little evidence to suggest that there was any significant cessation of hostilities on the ground by other party. In addition, we are aware that a female suicide bomber blew herself up as she travelled with civilians fleeing the fighting while being checked by Sri Lanka government soldiers, killing at least 29 people and injuring dozens more.

Sudan: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications for the Sudanese peace process of the arrest of Hassan al-Turabi; and if he will make a statement. [253823]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 3 February 2009]: Dr. Hassan al-Turabi is not directly involved in either the Darfur peace process or the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA). However, the arrest and detention without trial of a senior opposition political figure does not contribute to a political atmosphere in which free and fair national elections can be held, as required by the CPA.

We continue to call upon the government of Sudan to guarantee its citizens the basic rights and freedoms enshrined in the Bill of Rights of the Interim National Constitution.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his assessment is of the adequacy of levels of co-ordination of international efforts to promote peace and development in Sudan. [248330]

Gillian Merron: International efforts to promote peace and development in Sudan are co-ordinated through a broad range of organisations and forums. In addition to formal co-ordination via the multilateral system, we support the Assessment and Evaluation Commission, which monitors the implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement, and secured the appointment of Sir Derek Plumbly as its chair. We have consulted closely with the African Union/UN Joint Chief Mediator, Djibril Bassolé since his appointment in June 2008 and encouraged those wishing to contribute to peace efforts, such as civil society organisations and other international partners, to work with him. We have led efforts to co-ordinate development policy through the Sudan Consortium, and the UK is one of six donors delivering development through the Joint Donor Office, which has become a focal point for donor co-ordination in southern Sudan.

United Arab Emirates: Politics and Government

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received from the United Arab Emirates government on the disputed sovereignty of the Abu Musa, Tunb and Lesser Tunb islands in the Strait of Hormuz; and if he will make a statement. [254006]

Bill Rammell: The Government have received no such representations. We would support any solution acceptable to both parties.

Zimbabwe: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the likelihood of success of current attempts to form a coalition government in Zimbabwe. [254117]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary issued a statement on 30 January 2009 following the acceptance by the Movement for Democratic Change of the power sharing accord brokered at the South African Development Community summit on 26 January 2009. The statement, which gives his assessment on the recent political developments in Zimbabwe, can be viewed at:

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departmental Career Structure

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many employees were promoted from Band B (Administrative Officer) to Band C (Executive Officer) in his Department in 2008; how many of these were under 21 years at the time of taking up the Band C post; and how many Band C employees in his Department are under the age of 22 years. [252985]

Jonathan Shaw: The following table shows the number of staff promoted from Band B to Band C in the Department in 2008. Also included in the table is the number of those staff promoted who were under 21 years and finally, the total number of Band C staff employed at 31 December 2008 who are under 22 years.

	Number
Band B to Band C promotees	2,936
Those promotees under 21 years old	5
Total number of Band C employees under 22 years old	27

Departmental Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 2024-5W, on redundancy, what estimate he has made of the annual payroll savings accruing to his Department as a result of staff exit schemes in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07, (c) 2007-08 and (d) 2008-09 excluding the cost of severance packages; and what estimate he has made of the equivalent figures for (i) 2009-10 and (ii) 2010-11. [254425]

Jonathan Shaw: The savings for staff exit schemes are shown in the following table. Information on savings is not held on an in year basis but is calculated by taking into account the total salary savings up to ten years after the exit or when the member of staff reaches age 60, whichever is earlier.

Estimated savings

2005-06	540
2006-07	240
2007-08	320
2008-09	25

Note:
2008-09 figure is up to end of January 2009

Savings are calculated in line with normal Government accounting principles and are on a net present value basis.

No estimates of savings have been made for 2009-10 and 2010-11 as latest workforce planning forecasts indicate there will be minimal, if any, use of exit schemes over these years.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which external organisations his Department has engaged to provide training for fast stream civil service staff in the last three years; and how many civil servants in his Department have participated in provision of training for external organisations in that period. [252219]

Jonathan Shaw: DWP fast streamers have undertaken training with a number of external organisations. The information available is listed as follows. Records for 2006-07 are not held. In addition, most fast streamers will have undertaken other training as part and parcel of their specific jobs which will have been funded within the respective businesses; these records are not held centrally and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library a copy of the internal guidance used by his Department to assign traffic light gradings to Parliamentary Questions. [258383]

Jonathan Shaw: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the right hon. Member for Maidenhead (Mrs. May) on 22 March 2007, Official Report, column 1075W.

Employment and Support Allowance

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of applicants for employment support allowance have successfully passed the Work Capabilities Assessment since it was introduced; and if he will make a statement. [246640]

Jonathan Shaw: DWP will be publishing National Statistics on employment and support allowance in summer 2009.

Employment Schemes

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent discussions he has had with the preferred bidders for implementation of the welfare-to-work programme; and when he expects to announce the outcomes of the bidding process. [257701]

Mr. McNulty: Preferred bidders for Flexible New Deal contracts have not yet been identified.

We will inform bidders who have been shortlisted in April, with contracts being awarded by the end of May 2009.

Employment: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department has taken to maintain specialist expertise in the (a) procurement and (b) delivery of specialist disability employment services during the current consultation exercise. [259120]

Jonathan Shaw: Following the recommendations made in the Government's White Paper, "Raising expectations and increasing support: reforming welfare for the future", DWP has been discussing with specialist providers of employment support and representatives of disabled people how best to implement our decisions. These discussions have included workshops across England, Scotland and Wales covering the design of the new provision and the commercial approach to procuring the programme.

The commissioning and procurement will follow the principles set out in the Commissioning Strategy, Cm 7330, in adopting a prime contracting strategy that will allow niche, specialist providers to play their full part.

Industrial Health and Safety: Nuclear Power

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of the budget of (a) the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate, (b) the Office for Civil Nuclear Security and (c) the Health and Safety Executive is allocated for administration costs in 2008-09. [259945]

Jonathan Shaw: The answer is provided in the following table:

Table 1 : 2008-09

	Nuclear Installations Inspectorate	Office for Civil Nuclear Safety	Percentage Health and Safety Executive (including Nil and OCNS)
Staffing costs as a percentage of total forecast expenditure[1]	73	59	49
Other Administration costs as a percentage of total forecast expenditure[2]	7	11	29
Total Administration costs as a percentage of total forecast expenditure	80	70	78

[1] Staffing costs cover permanent staff payroll costs and the cost of staff substitutes such as agency workers.
[2] Other Administration costs for Nil and OCNS include other general administration expenditure such as the cost of travel, training and consumables but exclude budgets managed centrally such as estate costs, IS/IT and other centrally managed functions. Conversely, the HSE "Other Administration Costs" have no such exclusions.

Pension Schemes

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what arrangements are in place to aid those customers unable to use personal identification numbers in relation to their pension payments. [257669]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Customers unable to use personal identification numbers (PINs) can be paid into an account that offers alternative access arrangements (for example a chip and signature card or building society passbook). They could also access their money by cashing a personal cheque or, where appropriate, allowing a third party access to their account. Those who are unable to operate an account of any kind are currently paid by cheque.

Pensions Ombudsman

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what (a) guidance and (b) directions he has issued to the Pensions Ombudsman on the exercise of its discretion not to investigate cases. [258742]

Ms Rosie Winterton: None. The Pensions Ombudsman is an independent commissioner. It would be improper for Ministers to seek to influence the exercise of his discretion.

Post Office Card Account

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009, Official Report, column 1644W, on Post Office card account, if he will publish the normal principles of commercial confidentiality applied by his Department. [258134]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The normal principles of commercial confidentiality applied by this Department have been published in the Freedom of Information (FOI) Act working assumptions document which is derived from the FOI Act itself. The working assumptions document is available on the Ministry of Justice website under FOI procurement guidance www.justice.gov.uk/guidance/foi-assumptions-procurement.htm.

Social Fund

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will publish the results of the consultation on the Social Fund conducted by his Department in November 2008. [255127]

Kitty Usher: The results and response to the informal consultation document The Social Fund: A new approach". Were published on 23 February on the DWP website:

www.dwp.gov.uk/consultations/2008/sf-new-approach-response.pdf

Social Security Benefits

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he has any plans to amend the processing of benefits claims by ending the requirement for documents to be physically moved or sent by fax between benefit offices. [255365]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 9 February 2009]: Our strategy is to remove paper from the benefit administration process as far as possible.

The Pensions, Disability and Carers Service has just conducted a pilot of an electronic document management system within one of the pension centres whereby all incoming documents are electronically scanned. Subject to evaluation this will be introduced nationally to the other pension centres beginning later this year and consideration is being given to its introduction into disability benefit operations. This system will end the need to physically pass documents between offices as they will be available electronically from a central source.

Jobcentre Plus is about to begin a project looking at the scope for paper reduction across its processes. The ability to transfer and store information electronically will be considered as part of that process.

Social Security Benefits: Telephone Services

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for each type of benefit claimed through call centres, what the (a) average processing time and (b) number of new benefit claims waiting to be processed was in respect of claims made through each call centre in each of the last 24 months. [251408]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 26 January 2009]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions about the average processing times, and number of new benefit claims waiting to be processed in respect of all Jobcentre Plus call centres over the last 24 months. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

I have placed the available information in the Library.

I hope this is helpful.

Unemployment Benefits

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he plans to review the provision of contribution-based out of work benefits; and if he will make a statement. [259119]

Mr. McNulty: We keep the benefit system under continuous review to ensure that it continues to provide effective and appropriate support to people. This includes ongoing consideration of the contributory principle and contribution conditions for individual benefits. For example, we have reviewed the provision of contributory Jobseeker's Allowance and Employment and Support Allowance, as set out in the White Paper "Raising expectations and increasing support: reforming welfare for the future." (CM: 7506)

The Welfare Reform Bill, which was introduced on 14 January 2009, contains clauses to give effect to the planned changes. We want to modernise access to contributory benefits, strengthen the link to recent employment and simply the benefits system.

Vocational Training

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the progression to work pathfinder programmes are to be delivered (a) wholly and (b) partially by (i) Jobcentre Plus, (ii) a private sector provider and (iii) a voluntary sector provider. [255516]

Mr. McNulty: The Progression to Work pathfinders will, subject to the successful passage of the current Welfare Reform Bill, start in late 2010 and cover around 10-15 per cent. of the new employment and support allowance claimants and parents with younger children.

It is likely that employment and support allowance claimants will be supported through a mix of Jobcentre Plus and private and voluntary sector providers, with some further specialist services provided by the national health service and specialist private and voluntary sector providers. This reflects the current balance of activity within the Pathways to Work programme. For parents with younger children, it is likely that the pathfinders will be delivered through a mix of Jobcentre Plus and private and voluntary sector providers, delivering assistance through the Jobcentre Plus Support Contract.

Winter Fuel Payments

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) which of the weather stations used for determining the payment of cold weather payments have recorded temperatures of zero degrees celsius or less on seven consecutive days since 25 December 2008; and how many days each such weather station recorded below freezing temperatures in each interval of cold weather in that period; [269437]

(2) which weather stations used to determine cold weather payments have recorded temperatures below freezing on (a) two, (b) three, (c) four, (d) five, (e) six and (f) seven or more consecutive days since 25 December 2008. [269445]

Kitty Ussher: The information requested regarding recorded temperatures on consecutive days is not held by this department as this is not how the award of cold weather payments is determined.

A cold weather payment is made to an eligible customer when the average temperature has been recorded as, or is forecast to be, 0°C or below over seven consecutive days at the weather station linked to the customer's postcode. What matters is actually the average temperature over seven consecutive days, rather than the temperatures on seven consecutive days. For example, if the temperatures at a weather station on seven consecutive days were 0, 1, 0, -1, 0, 0, 0, then the average temperature over the seven consecutive days would be 0 and cold weather payments would be made for that week, even though the temperature on one day was actually greater than 0.

The following table provides information on the number of cold weather payment triggers this winter.

Winter Fuel Payments: Overseas Residence

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many winter fuel payments were made to persons living outside the UK in the financial year 1996-97; [242848]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of winter fuel payments made to persons living in (a) Spain, (b) Italy, (c) Greece, (d) Portugal and (e) other countries outside the UK in the last financial year. [242849]

Ms Rosie Winterton: People are not able to get a winter fuel payment in another European economic area country if they left the United Kingdom before 5 January 1998. This is because they will have left before the scheme began.

Following a decision in 2002, people who previously qualified for a winter fuel payment in Great Britain may be able to continue receiving payments if they move to other European economic area countries or, from 2002-03, move to Switzerland.

Figures for 2007-08 are as shown in the following table, we expect the figures to be similar for 2008-09.

Winter fuel payments made to the following countries: 2007-08

Country	Number
Spain	27,270
Italy	921
Greece	864
Portugal	1163
Other countries outside UK	25,315

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Business Link

Tom Brake: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many staff were employed by Business Link in each region in each year since Business Link was established. [247533]

Ian Pearson: The number of staff employed by Business Link in each region in each year for 2006-07 and 2007-08 is shown in the following table.

Staff numbers are shown as full-time equivalents employed by the Business Link provider(s) in each region. The number of staff employed includes all frontline staff, adviser support and back-office staff (in some instances this includes those delivering other programmes, for instance European funded programmes which are not BL branded).

Business Link started in 1992 and has undergone two major rationalisations, in 1998 with the creation of the Small Business service and in 2007 when day-to-day management was devolved to the RDAs. Consequently, staffing data prior to 2007 are not available.

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [256138]

Mr. McFadden: For the last 10 years the Department's, and its predecessors, IT services have in the main been provided through a PFI agreement with Fujitsu Services and covers the provision of all desktop services, web infrastructure services, document management and other business database applications. As such the Department does not actually own any databases it uses but rather pays a service charge for maintenance and support of them. In the years in question the Department has paid, or is paying, the following for maintenance of its database services, (based on financial years of 1 April to 31 March):

2006	2.4
2008	3.0

The variance in costs is accounted for by the end of some database services and the introduction of others, plus, where appropriate, agreed inflation increases.

The above figures exclude databases used by the Energy Group, previously part of BERR but now part of DECC. The costs for their databases in the years in question are as follows:

2006	1.0

The Department does not maintain central records of databases owned and managed by its agencies so I have approached the chief executives of The Insolvency Service and Companies House and they will respond to you directly.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 26 February 2009:

I refer to your question (2008/1105), to ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, what the cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008.

I have been asked to reply for The Insolvency Service, which is an executive agency of that department.

The cost of maintaining databases owned and managed by The Insolvency Service are as follows:

2006/07	100,898
2007/08	368,483
2008/09	153,835

Please note that the costs are for Financial years, rather than calendar years and we have estimated the total cost of 2008/09.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 26 February 2009:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your Parliamentary Question tabled on 5 February 2009, UIN 256138, to the Minister of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

The cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by Companies House was as follows:

Year	Cost (£)
2006	3,863,000
2007	4,389,000
2008	2,544,000

Departmental Impact Assessments

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many equalities impact assessments his Department has undertaken in the last 12 month period for which figures are available; and what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of such assessments. [255060]

Ian Pearson: The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform produced six equality impact assessments during the period April 2007 to March 2008. They are listed at pages 106-7 of the Department's Annual Report and Accounts, which is available at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/aboutus/corporate/performance/annual-spending/page47093.html

The estimate of the cost to the public purse of producing such assessments could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Furniture: Credit

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will monitor the effects on the furniture industry of the withdrawal of credit insurance. [255834]

Ian Pearson: This Department is currently in discussions with the credit insurance industry regarding the withdrawal of credit insurance.

We welcome continued engagement between representatives of the furniture industry and this Department on this issue and others.

Iraq

Dr. Fox: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many civil servants from his Department have worked in (a) Basra, (b) Baghdad and (c) other locations in Iraq in each month since 2005. [245095]

Mr. Thomas: UK Trade and Investment's representation in Baghdad included one UK based civil servant between January 2005 and July 2007. One other UK based civil servant was employed in Basra between January 2005 and August 2006.

UKTI is increasing its presence in Iraq and has recently employed two new locally engaged officers in Baghdad to support British companies, in addition to two private sector business specialists.

Newspaper Press

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what programmes his Department has to assist the newspaper printing industry, with particular reference to printers of local newspapers. [253110]

Ian Pearson: The Department provided £2.3 million funding over five years starting in 2002 to set up Vision in Print, a print industry forum, aimed at driving up the efficiency and competitiveness of the UK printing industry. Vision in Print continues to provide support to many

UK printers today. The Department was also involved in a number of initiatives to support the industry including part funding a technology mapping report aimed at providing a better understanding of future technology needs and the direction of the UK print industry.

As with other sectors, the printing industry has access to the Government's Real Help for Business programme which is currently helping all UK businesses deal with the immediate financial and economic challenges. Further to announcements made by the Chancellor in the pre-Budget report, a new package of support to address the cash flow, credit and capital needs of businesses was announced on 14 January.

The regional development agencies are also a source of local support to companies in their region, which includes companies in the printing industry.

Pharmaceuticals

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has had with representatives of the biopharmaceutical industry on the effects of the economic downturn on levels of innovation in their industry. [255646]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 11 February 2009]: I met various representatives of small and medium sized biotechnology companies on 29 January 2009. A number of issues were raised concerning the current economic environment and its impact on the bioscience sector, although the issue of innovation was not specifically raised.

On 27 January 2009, my noble Friend, the Minister for Economic Competitiveness and Small Business participated in a meeting of biopharmaceutical business leaders, chaired by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister. The overarching aim of the meeting was to identify a long-term framework to help the UK maintain its world class bio-pharmaceutical industry, including measures to encourage research and reward innovation.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what support his Department provides for small and medium-sized companies in the biopharmaceutical industry. [255647]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 11 February 2009]: The Government recognise that many companies across the economy are facing challenges because of the tougher credit conditions and that is why my noble Friend the Secretary of State announced a package of measures last month to address the cash flow, credit and investment needs of small and medium sized companies. Businesses, including firms in the biopharmaceutical industry, can find out about eligibility for the new schemes from Real Help for Businesses Now web page hosted by Business Link: http://www.businesslink.gov.uk

The biopharmaceutical industry is important to the UK economy and the Government are alert to the challenges and changing needs of the sector. In view of this, the Government invited Sir David Cooksey to chair an independent review of the 2003 Bioscience Innovation and Growth Team Report "Bioscience 2015" to measure progress against its 2015 vision and to identify new ideas and proposals that could positively affect the future competitiveness of the UK biosciences sector. The Review and Refresh of Bioscience 2015 was published on 22 January 2009 and its recommendations are currently being considered by the Government. A formal response will be issued in the spring.

Small Businesses: Closures

Mr. Evans: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the number of small businesses which have closed in (a) Lancashire and (b) the UK in each of the last 12 weeks. [249838]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 22 January 2009]: Quarterly data on business closures are not available.

Annual data on the number of enterprise closures for 2007 (latest data available) are published by the Office for National Statistics in the Business Demography publication, which is available at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=15186&Pos=&ColRank=1&Rank=422.

Small Firms Loan Guarantee Scheme

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will increase the funding available under the Small Firms Loan Guarantee Scheme. [254905]

Ian Pearson: The enterprise finance guarantee (EFG) was launched on 14 January 2009, replacing the small firms loan guarantee (SFLG).

For further details on EFG I refer my hon. Friend to the answer my right hon. Friend the Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs gave on 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 1457W, to my hon. Friend the Member for Brighton, Kemptown (Dr. Turner).

Sri Lanka: Arms Trade

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what monetary value of defence equipment sales to Sri Lanka was for (a) lethal and (b) non-lethal equipment in each of the last two years; and if he will make a statement. [257297]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Government publish detailed information on export licences issued, refused and revoked, by destination, including the overall value and a summary of the items covered by these licences, in its Annual and Quarterly Reports on Strategic Export Controls.

The Government's Annual Reports, published since 1997, and Quarterly Reports, published since 2004, are available from the Libraries of the House and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) website at http://www.fco.gov.uk/en/about-the-fco/publications/publications/annual-reports/export-controls1.

The reports do not distinguish between lethal and non-lethal equipment, which would in practice require a subjective judgment. The reports do however make a distinction between military and dual-use goods, which are separately identified according to the relevant control lists.

The Government do not approve any defence related exports if it judges that there is a clear risk that they will be used in contravention of the Consolidated Criteria, including for external aggression or internal repression. We routinely refuse export licences where we believe there is a risk of this, and have refused a number of licences to Sri Lanka on this basis.

Working Capital Scheme

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the Working Capital Scheme has been approved by the European Commission. [256166]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 11 February 2009]: The Commission's approval for this scheme is being sought under the terms of the Commission Communication 2009/C 10/03 "The recapitalisation of financial institutions in the current financial crisis" published in the Official Journal of the European Union on 15 January 2009.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

National Fraud Reporting Centre

7. James Brokenshire: To ask the Solicitor-General when the National Fraud Reporting Centre will be fully operational; and if she will make a statement. [258809]

The Solicitor-General: The National Fraud Reporting Centre (NFRC) consists of an Intelligence Bureau (NFIB) and Reporting Centre.

An NFIB pilot is under way and has identified new counter-fraud intelligence, which is being investigated. Discussions are under way with potential suppliers for provision of a final solution.

The NFRC will offer the public and small businesses web and telephone-based services to report non-urgent frauds and receive fraud prevention advice. This service is planned for a national roll-out towards the end of 2009, with a regional pilot starting in summer 2009.

Rape: Prosecution Policy

8. Martin Linton: To ask the Solicitor-General what recent representations she has received on prosecution policy in rape cases. [258810]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service has recently received representations on its policy on prosecuting rape cases. With my approval, the CPS has refreshed its policy statement to reflect those representations, as well as changes in the law and practice, a number of initiatives to assist victims in giving evidence and to address again the myths and stereotypes that are thought to sometimes wrongly influence juries. The refreshed policy statement will be published shortly.

Attorney-General

Simon Hughes: To ask the Solicitor-General what recent discussions she has had with ministerial colleagues on the role of the Attorney-General. [258805]

The Solicitor-General: The Government are still looking in detail at the proposals on the future role of the Attorney-General, in light of the recommendations of the Joint Committee on the draft Constitutional Renewal Bill and the Justice Committee. While that is going on, the Attorney-General and I continue to discharge the role of dispensing independent legal advice to the Government, upholding the rule of law and superintending the prosecution services.

Negligence: Parents

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Solicitor-General how many cases of parental neglect have been brought by the Crown Prosecution Service in (a) England and (b) Northamptonshire in the last three years for which figures are available. [258913]

The Solicitor-General: Cases of parental neglect are usually brought under s1(1) Children and Young Persons Act 1933 (cruelty to a person under 16). The following table shows the number of these offences in which a prosecution commenced and reached a first hearing in each of the last three years.

Section 1 of the 1933 Act relates to offences committed by persons with responsibility for a child or young person, not just to parents, and it is not possible to identify from the records held by the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) how many of the relevant offences were committed by a parent.

Crown Prosecution Service: offences reaching a hearing in magistrates court s1(1) Children and Young Persons Act 1933 (parental neglect)

	2006	2007	2008

Theft: Prosecutions

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Solicitor-General how many successful prosecutions have been brought for offences of (a) theft and (b) burglary from shops in the last three months. [258812]

The Solicitor-General: The records maintained by the Crown Prosecution Service do not separately identify cases of theft or burglary from shops. The information could be retrieved by locating and examining individual case records, and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost—Code of Practice on Access to Government Information, part 2, clause 9.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Arrests: Mentally Ill People

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many arrests of a person with a mental health disorder took place in each of the last five years. [258340]

Mr. Coaker: The data requested are not collected centrally The arrests collection held by the Home Office covers arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) recorded by the police forces in England and Wales.

From the data on arrests reported to the Home Office it is not possible to separate data for the number of arrests of a person with a mental health disorder.

Copies of the memorandum of understanding, and the associated side letters, have been placed in the Library of both Houses and on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website.

Deportation: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many residents of Peterborough constituency are awaiting determination of an application for indefinite leave to remain; and if she will make a statement. [249216]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 20 January 2009]: The number of applicants that are awaiting determination in respect of their applications for indefinite leave to remain in the Peterborough constituency is 185.

Detention Centres

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the Answer of 16 October 2008, Official Report, column 1435W, on mobile detention centres, what the (a) cost and (b) outcomes of the Northampton pilot have been; and if she will make a statement. [254552]

Mr. Woolas: The aim of the mobile detention pilot was to test a vehicle with both detention and detainee transport capabilities in a range of operational scenarios to assess how it complements the existing fleet of vehicles. The pilot ran in the East Midlands between 29 September and 31 October 2008.

The Mobile Detention Facility provides UKBA officers with a secure 'field' location in which to interview suspected immigration offenders, detain them for a short period of time and then transport them as appropriate to their next destination, for example, to an Immigration Reception Centre or Immigration Removals Centre, without relying on the availability of police resources or the deployment of UKBA escorting contractors to do this.

During the five week pilot, 22 foreign nationals were encountered of which 14 were interviewed further as suspected immigration offenders of which six were subsequently identified as such and transported to an Immigration Removals Centre. These individuals were processed more quickly using the Mobile Detention Facility capabilities than would otherwise have been the case.

In addition to this direct benefit, the provision of UKBA staff in the liveried vehicle at remote locations allowed for direct interaction with lorry drivers and members of the public to promote the work of UKBA, raise awareness about deterring so called "lorry drops" and provide a conduit for the collation of additional intelligence to help secure the UK border.

The cost of this pilot was from within existing resources and is commercial in confidence in light of the contractual Non-Disclosure Agreement in place with the vehicle's provider.

Detention Centres: Detainees

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) adult females, (b) adult males and (c) children were detained in an immigration removal centre in each year since 2000. [258266]

Mr. Woolas: The requested information is not available; the Home Office has however published the number of adults and children recorded as leaving detention in the UK solely under Immigration Act powers between January 2005 and September 2006. Information outside this time period is not available.

National Statistics on how many females, males and children are detained on a quarterly snapshot basis is available in table 10 of the Control of Immigration Quarterly Statistical Summary United Kingdom publication at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs09/immiq808.pdf and from the Library of the House.

Geert Wilders

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department under what powers she prohibited Mr. Geert Wilders from entering the UK. [258672]

Mr. Woolas: The Secretary of State considered that in her opinion Mr. Wilders' presence in the UK would pose a genuine, present and sufficiently serious threat to one of the fundamental interests of society. She asked that her view be taken into account if Mr. Wilders sought admission to the UK. When Mr. Wilders attempted to enter the UK on 12 February 2009, the immigration officers who considered his entry were satisfied that his exclusion was justified on grounds of public policy and/or public security, in accordance with regulation 21 of the Immigration (European Economic Area) Regulations 2006. He was therefore refused admission to the UK under regulation 19 of the same regulations.

Immigration: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people in the Peterborough City Council administrative area are appealing against refusal to grant indefinite leave to remain; and if she will make a statement. [257968]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 146W, on deportation: Peterborough.

Offenders: Deportation

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons the UK Border Agency does not collate information on the number of prisoners returned under the early removal scheme. [254026]

Mr. Woolas: Details relating to the number of foreign national prisoners who have either been deported or removed under the Early Removal Scheme is held, however, due to known data quality issues, it is not possible to centrally collate that information. This means that in order to provide that information, it would be necessary to examine individual case files at disproportionate cost.

In her letter of 23 July 2008 to the Home Affairs Select Committee, the chief executive of the UK Border Agency advised that around a fifth of all foreign national prisoners who are deported or removed, are removed from prison an average of 180 days prior to their release date. A copy of her letter is available in the Library of the House.

Police: Herefordshire

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers there were in Herefordshire constabulary in (a) 1997 and (b) 2007; what estimate she has made of the number of police officers there will be on 31 December 2009; and if she will make a statement. [258300]

Mr. Coaker: Herefordshire falls within West Mercia constabulary, whose full-time equivalent police officer strength was 2,040 as at 31 March 1997 and 2,400 as at 31 March 2007. Figures exclude officers on career breaks and maternity/paternity for like-for-like comparison between the two years requested.

Information on police authority projections of police service strength is not routinely collected. It is for chief constables and police authorities to decide how best to use the resources available to them when setting levels of police officers, staff and PCSOs.

Security Guards: National Insurance

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many security industry employees who applied to the Security Industry Authority for registration were found to have used false national insurance numbers in their applications in each of the last three years. [254617]

Mr. McNulty: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not available. However, I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 15 July 2008, Official Report, column 323W.

Terrorism

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many major terrorist plots were disrupted by bodies for which her Department is responsible in each of the last five years. [254792]

Mr. Coaker: The information is not currently held in the format requested.

As the director general of the Security Service has made clear, the Security Service is currently tracking 30 terrorist plots, comprising of 200 groupings or cells and totalling around 2,000 individuals.

In 2008, 50 people have been convicted in 18 significant terrorism cases. Of these 50, 21 individuals pleaded guilty.

In 2007, 36 individuals were convicted in 14 significant terrorism cases. 21 of these individuals pleaded guilty.

UK Border Agency: Lost Property

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 18 November 2008, Official Report, column 329W, on the UK Border Agency: lost property, how many files the figure of less than 0.2 per cent. represents; how many principal immigration case files the UK Border Agency holds; and from which date that file holding commences. [258709]

Mr. Woolas: The figure of less than 0.2 per cent. represents around 17,300 files that are temporarily lost on the system out of a total holding of 9.9 million files. The files in storage date back to 1950, with earlier dates having been retained by the National Archives or have subsequently been securely disposed of.

Visas: Overseas Students

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average length of time was to determine applications for foreign medical students to extend their student visas in the last period for which figures are available. [259030]

Mr. Woolas: The information is unavailable in the format requested and could be obtained by examination of individual case records and therefore only at disproportionate cost.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign students were (a) granted and (b) refused student visas for the purpose of completing medical training in the UK in the last period for which figures are available. [259032]

Mr. Woolas: The information is unavailable in the format requested and could be obtained by examination of individual case records and therefore only at disproportionate cost.

JUSTICE

Care Proceedings: Fees and Charges

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average fee charged to local authorities on receipt of an application for care proceedings to the courts was in England and Wales in the latest period for which information is available. [257911]

Bridget Prentice: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer provided on 21 January 2009, Official Report, column 1555W.

The fee to issue an application under section 31 of the Children Act 1989 is fixed at £2,225. Two additional fees may be charged at a later stage of the process if the stages are required. A full list of fees for family proceedings is set out in the Family Proceedings Fees Order 2008. This order came into force on 1 May 2008.

Civil Servants: Pay

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many bonus payments were made in 2007-08 to (a) senior civil servants and (b) other staff of (i) the Judicial Appointments Commission and (ii) the Office of the Public Guardian in 2007-08; and how much was paid in total. [257746]

Mr. Malik: I refer the hon. and learned Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor on 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 347W.

Commonhold

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 28 October 2008, Official Report, column 851W, on commonhold, what issues the consultation document on commonhold tenure was intended to cover; and what the timetable for a decision on whether to publish is. [258020]

Bridget Prentice: No date has yet been set for the publication of the commonhold consultation paper. This paper is intended to identify any changes that need to be made to the commonhold legislation to address any actual or perceived barriers to take-up. Topics covered will include consideration of developer's rights; cost sharing arrangements for complex developments; ways of providing shared ownership; conversion from leasehold and issues relating to termination.

As I said in my reply to the hon. Member for Peterborough, we are reviewing our plans for publication in the light of other priorities and I will make a statement when a decision has been made.

Cremation: Standards

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 25 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1291-92W, on Department for Constitutional Affairs Cemetery and Burials Advisory Group, and the minutes of the meeting of the Advisory Board on 25 February 2008, if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of the meetings of the sub-group on guidance on memorial safety; [258023]

(2) with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 25 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1291-92W on Department for Constitutional Affairs Cemetery and Burials Advisory Group, and the minutes of the meeting of the Advisory Board on 25 October 2007, if he will place in the Library a copy of the completed survey data report undertaken in association with the Chartered Institute of Environmental Health on the number and cost of local authority welfare funerals; [258023]

(3) with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 25 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1291-92W on Department for Constitutional Affairs Cemetery and Burials Advisory Group; and the minutes of the meeting of the Advisory Board on 23 March 2007, if he will place in the Library a copy of the opinion on memorial safety prepared by the Church of England Legal Advisory Commission and circulated to members of the Advisory Group; [258024]

(4) with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 25 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1291-92W, on the Department for Constitutional Affairs Cemetery and Burials Advisory Group, and the minutes of meetings of the Advisory Board of 9 March 2006, if he will place in the Library a copy of the report on memorial safety produced by Mr. Jon Wallsgrove for Coroners Division; [258025]

(5) if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of each meeting of his Department's Burials and Cemeteries Advisory Group in the last 24 months. [258063]

Bridget Prentice: All agreed minutes of the Advisory Group meetings are already available from the Library. The draft minutes of the last meeting in October 2008 will be considered next month and, once agreed, a copy will be provided for the Library. I am also arranging for copies of the minutes of the meetings of the memorial safety sub group to be placed in the Library, together with copies of the other material requested.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will make it his policy for his Department to sign the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258076]

Mr. Wills: The Government welcomed the Promise as a commendable initiative to raise awareness of the importance of effective data protection safeguards, particularly for those organisations with no similar commitments already in place.

The Government take data protection very seriously. Following the Cabinet Office Review of Data Handling Procedures in Government, Departments have implemented a raft of measures to improve data security.

We are considering actively with the ICO how the Promise might add additional value to those measures, on have already signed up to. These include the Information Charters, the recommendations of the Data Handling Review and the Thomas/Walport Review and, of course, our legal obligations under the Data Protection Act and other legislation and regulations.

Departmental Internet

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which documents series which his Department and its predecessors formerly published in paper form have been made available solely via his Department's website in the last five years. [257466]

Mr. Wills: Ministry of Justice (MOJ) uses its website to publish its documents as the primary delivery channel for external audiences including the direct.gov and HMSO websites.

There are low levels of hard copies produced for some documents for internal use and some documents are produced in alternative formats when requested.

MOJ can identify a series of IT security guides and research and statistical papers that were formerly published in paper form and are now solely produced online. A list of these is as follows.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1597-98W, on departmental written questions, which question for which the cost of answer was estimated to be over the disproportionate cost threshold was answered. [258701]

Mr. Wills: The question that was estimated to be in excess of the disproportionate cost threshold was tabled in March 2008 by Baroness Stern (HL2252). It asked how many new imprisonable offences have been created since May 1997. The information was collated manually across the whole of Government therefore my noble Friend Lord Hunt gave an undertaking to write to Baroness Stern in his answer of 24 April 2008, Official Report, column WA314, when the information was available. My noble Friend Lord Bach wrote to Baroness Stern on 24 November with a full response. A copy of the letter was also placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Discrimination: Civil Proceedings

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) companies and (b) other organisations have (i) been subject to a legal claim of discrimination and (ii) lost a discrimination claim (1) twice, (2) from three to five times, (3) from six to 10 times, (4) from 11 to 20 times and (5) 21 times or more in the last four years; and if he will make a statement. [258359]

Bridget Prentice: The Employment Tribunal does not keep the information which the hon. Member has requested in readily available format. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Tribunal keeps data on the total number of appeals received, the discrimination jurisdiction and the number of appeals where claimants have been successful.

[2] Table 2 shows successful hearings of the cases disposed of each year. There can be differences between receipts and disposals as some cases are considered in future years. Cases can be withdrawn, struck out, dismissed at preliminary hearing and this is reflected in the difference between table 1 and table 2.
[3] Included in the table are cases that were successful at tribunal, conciliated at ACAS and for 2007-08 default judgements[4] found in favour of the claimant.
[4] Default judgments can be made when the respondent either fails to send in their response to a claim or fails to supply the required information. In these cases an Employment Judge can decide the case on the papers without the claimant having to attend a tribunal.

Electoral Register

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what guidance he has issued to electoral registration officers on following up non-responses to the electoral canvas (a) by post and (b) via a home visit; and if he will make a statement; [257489]

(2) which local authorities employed doorstep canvassers to compile the 2008 electoral register; and if he will make a statement; [257727]

(3) what guidance his Department provides to local authorities on staffing of their electoral registration departments. [257327]

Mr. Wills: As my hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice) explained in answer to this exact question from the hon. Gentleman on 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 999W, it is not known how many local authorities employed doorstep canvassers during the 2007 annual canvass, as this information is not collected centrally.

However, the performance standards framework established by the Electoral Administration Act 2006 will allow the collection of data on the performance and activities of electoral administrators, including EROs.

The Electoral Commission published a final set of performance standards for electoral registration officers in Great Britain in July 2008. These standards require EROs to provide information on their use of house to house inquiries and of canvassers. The Commission intends to publish results of ERO self-assessments against the performance standards in spring 2009.

The Electoral Commission is responsible for issuing guidance to EROs on electoral registration matters, including managing the annual canvass and the appointment of canvassing staff. The appointment of permanent members of staff to electoral services departments is the responsibility of local authorities.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what procedures are in place governing consultation by electoral registration officers of other (a) local and (b) central Government databases for the purposes of (i) cross-checking and (ii) augmenting their preparation of electoral registers; [257546]

(2) if he will bring forward proposals to amend data protection legislation to allow local and national authorities to share information in order to increase voter registration. [257714]

Mr. Wills: As my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice, my hon. Friend the Member for Lewisham, East (Bridget Prentice) explained in answer to a similar question from my hon. Friend on 24 June 2008, Official Report, column 242W, relating to the use of databases, Electoral Registration Officers (ERO) are required to take all steps that are necessary for the purpose of complying with their duty to maintain the electoral registers, and these steps include inspecting any record which the ERO is permitted to inspect by law.

Assisting EROs in meeting their obligations falls within the Electoral Commission's remit, as does issuing guidance to EROs more generally.

The Electoral Commission has issued guidance to EROs encouraging them to use the power to inspect records and advises of the sources that may be inspected, which will help to provide and cross-check additional information to assist them in their registration duties.

The Government remain concerned about the need to address levels of under-registration in Great Britain and is currently considering what further steps can be taken to increase access to national databases by EROs, involving local and public authorities could be established for this purpose.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) if he will issue guidance to local authorities on increasing the rate of voter registration; and if he will produce a league table to indicate each local authority's performance in increasing the rate of voter registration in their area; [257712]

(2) if he will publish the guidelines his Department issues to electoral registration officers on home visits to electors who have not registered to vote; and what assessment he has made of the level of local authority compliance with such guidelines; [257711]

(3) what steps his Department has taken to encourage illiterate and semi-literate electors to register to vote; [257322]

(4) what progress has been made on increasing electoral registration rates; [257329]

(5) what performance indicators were set for each stage of electoral registration in each local authority area in each of the last 12 years; and what the performance of each authority against these indicators was. [257411]

Mr. Wills: As my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Justice explained in answer to similar questions from the hon. Member on 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 1001W), responsibility for issuing guidance to electoral registration officers (EROs) on electoral registration lies with the Electoral Commission. Guidance issued offers suggestions on increasing registration rates amongst under-represented groups, such as electors with learning difficulties or low levels of literacy. In addition, the guidance advises on the activities that EROs must undertake to meet section 9 of the Electoral Administration Act 2006, which placed a new duty on them to take all necessary steps to maintain the electoral register, including sending the annual canvass form more than once and making house visits.

The number of people registered to vote in Great Britain as reported by the Office for National Statistics is increasing. Following the 2007 annual canvass the number of parliamentary electors grew by 307,669 to 45,082,854; and the number of local government electors grew by 463,340 to 45,920,503. The Office for National Statistics is expected to publish figures for the 2008 annual canvass by the end of February 2009.

The Government have no current plans to produce a league table of electoral registration officers' performance. However, the performance standards framework established by the Electoral Administration Act 2006 will allow the collection of data on the performance and activities of electoral administrators, including EROs.

The Electoral Commission published a final set of performance standards for Electoral Registration Officers in Great Britain in July 2008, details of which have been laid before the House. One of the standards will provide information on the use of house to house inquiries and canvassers by administrators. The Commission will publish the results of EROs' self-assessments against all of the standards in spring 2009.

The Government are not aware of national indicators being previously set in the last 12 years.

Electoral Register: Advertising

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how much (a) the Government and (b) local authorities have spent on advertising for voter registration in the last 12 months; [257720]

(2) how much funding for electoral registration has been (a) allocated to and (b) spent by each local authority in the last 12 months; [257721]

(3) how much each local authority spent on electoral registration in (a) total and (b) per elector in each of the last 11 years; [257723]

(4) how much each local authority spent per elector on voter registration listed in descending order of amount of expenditure in the most recent year for which figures are available; [257725]

(5) how much was spent on advertising to increase levels of electoral registration in (a) the Government and (b) each local authority in each of the last 10 years. [257828]

Mr. Wills: As my hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice) explained in answer to similar questions from my hon. Friend on 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 999W, funding for electoral registration activities such as advertising is included in the local authority formula grant issued by central Government. Once these funds are allocated, decisions on how it is utilised are a matter for the local authorities concerned. As a result, it is not known how much was spent in total or per elector for electoral registration in the last 11 years, as this information was not collected, and thus no rankings are available.

However, as part of its work in developing performance standards for electoral services, the Commission launched a financial information survey across Great Britain on 10 September 2007. Electoral registration officers and returning officers were asked to complete the survey and return it by 31 July 2008. The Commission is currently analysing this information in conjunction with CIPFA (the Chartered Institute of Public Finance Accountants) and will publish results in due course. It will be for the Commission to decide whether it wishes to collect and publish financial information in relation 2008-09.

Garth Prison: Visits

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) whether he has received reports of the recent incident that took place at HM Prison Garth where a female visitor was locked in a visiting room for four hours; [258907]

(2) if he will investigate the recent incident that took place at HM Prison Garth where a female visitor was locked in a visiting room for four hours. [258908]

Mr. Hanson: HMP Garth informed both the director general and chief operating officer of the National Offender Management Service on the morning of 19 February. I was made aware of the incident on 20 February. An investigation into the circumstances is ongoing, and the prison has apologised to the visitor.

Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the monthly costs incurred by his Department in (a) legal and (b) accountancy fees relating to its handling on behalf of the Isle of Man Government of the issue of Kaupthing, Singer and Friedlander (Isle of Man). [258318]

Mr. Wills: No assessment has been made of the monthly costs incurred by the Ministry of Justice in legal and accountancy fees relating to its handling of the issue of Kaupthing Singer Friedlander (Isle of Man). The Ministry of Justice is the UK Department with responsibility for managing the UK's relationship with the Isle of Man (and the other Crown Dependencies of Jersey and Guernsey), and the issue of Kaupthing Singer Friedlander (Isle of Man) is one of many in which the Department is involved. In this instance it is the Treasury that is operationally responsible for representing the Isle of Man in negotiations with the Icelandic Government.

Land Registry: VAT

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the Land Registry has reduced its retail prices for items which attract value added tax since December 2008. [258386]

Mr. Wills: Land Registry's statutory services are not subject to value added tax. However, all "value add" products and services, which are subject to value added tax, were reduced in line with implementation guidance in December 2008.

National Offender Management Service: Administration

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much it cost to administer the National Offender Management Head Office in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06, (d) 2006-07 and (e) 2007-08; and what he estimates those costs to be in (i) 2008-09 and (ii) 2009-10. [257508]

Maria Eagle: The National Offender Management Service (NOMS) was formed in 2004. The expenditure on "administration costs" (as defined for estimates and accounts purposes) was as follows:

	Expenditure (£ million)
2004-05	66
2005-06	87
2006-07	85
2007-08	76

[1] Planned.

This does not include administration costs included in HM Prison Service. Organisational and accounting changes over the period may mean these figures are not directly comparable. The new NOMS Agency was created from 1 April 2008 and certain functions were transferred to the centre of the Ministry of Justice.

Due to the restructuring of NOMS following creation of the new agency, the categorisation of "head office" costs is changing and planned budget for 2009-10 is not yet available. The overall administration costs budget for NOMS is reducing by approximately 2.5 per cent.

Orders and Regulations

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many statutory instruments were made and not laid before Parliament in each year since 1997. [259025]

Mr. Wills: No information is held centrally regarding the number of Statutory Instruments which are not laid before Parliament. Of the total number of instruments made each year those Orders commencing provisions within primary legislation and those instruments which are purely of a local nature (e.g. relating to roads and bridges, parish boundaries etc) are not required to be laid before Parliament. There will also have been other instruments which will not have been required to be laid and therefore information cannot be readily identified. The information (covering the period from 1999 from when electronic records have been maintained) was as follows:

	Total number of SIs	Local SIs	Commencement Orders	Approx number of SIs not laid
1999	3,439	1,675	97	1,772
2000	3,195	1,602	116	1,718
2001	3,815	1,935	135	1,433
2002	2,957	1,367	110	1,477
2003	3,033	1,521	135	1,656
2004	3,152	1,658	160	1,818
2005	3,326	1,746	147	1,893
2006	3,196	1,766	133	1,899
2007	3,364	1,838	158	1,996
2008	3,075	1,677	151	1,828

Parc Young Offender Institution

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what new facilities and developments are planned for HM Prison Young Offender Institution Parc; and what the cost of that work will be in the next 12 months, broken down by category of expenditure. [258550]

Mr. Hanson: The primary additional facility is the provision of an additional 320 custodial spaces, with the capacity to increase to 470 custodial spaces. In order to support the additional population, a number of internal physical changes to the building will be required, and a new houseblock will be built.

New, upgraded or replacement facilities required to support the increased custodial population include a first night induction unit, an improved multi-faith facility, a new medical centre, enhanced visiting facilities for social and professional visitors, new kitchens, enhanced staff training facilities and additional car parking for visitors and staff.

Payments for the expansion at HMP and YOI Parc during the period March 2009 to February 2010, inclusive, will total £24.024 million. This figure is made up of:

Construction fees	21,969,000
Staff costs	898,000
Other costs[1]	1,157,000

[1] Including fixtures, fittings, design fees and management fees.

Police Custody

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cells are identified for use under Operation Safeguard; on how many nights Operation Safeguard cells have been used since the operation's inception; and what the largest number of prisoners held under Operation Safeguard on any one night has been to date. [257572]

Mr. Straw: Operation Safeguard is a formal agreement between the National Offender Management Service and Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) to hold prisoners in police cells at times of very high population pressure. ACPO has currently agreed the release of up to 400 spaces, although this total is flexible and subject to change due to operational constraints.

Operation Safeguard was activated between 12 October and 22 December 2006 and again from 16 January 2007 to 31 October 2008. Police cells have not been used since 22 September 2008 and no police cells have been on stand by since the end of October 2008. The aggregate total of the number of prisoner nights in which a police cell was used during this period is 88,921. It is not possible to ascertain how many individual prisoners these totals cover. The largest number of prisoners held in police cells was 467 on 11 June 2007.

Prison Service: Reorganisation

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many days (a) he and his Ministers and (b) officials of (i) his Department, (ii) the National Offender Management Service and (iii) the Prison Service have spent on negotiations with the Prison Officers' Association on his proposals for workforce modernisation in prisons; and how much his Department has spent on advancing the case for those proposals. [258769]

Mr. Straw: Officials in my Department have held extensive and regular meetings with representatives of the POA since March 2008 to progress negotiations on pay and related reforms within the public sector Prison Service. Ministers have held meetings with the POA on six occasions since May 2008.

During 2008-09, £350,000 (including salary costs) has been spent on communications activity within the overall NOMS Workforce Modernisation programme. It is not possible to identify the proportion of this overall spend associated with the POA negotiations.

Prison Service: Vacancies

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how long on average it took to fill a staff vacancy at (a) prisons in England and Wales and (b) HM Prison Winchester in the most recent period for which figures are available. [258845]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the time taken to fill a vacancy in the Prison Service is not routinely collected for all grades. Data are however available from the latest prison officer recruitment campaign held in the autumn of 2008. The average time taken from application to offer for this campaign was 88 days. No comparative information for HM Prison Winchester is available because they did not have vacancies for prison officers at that time.

Prisoners: Suicide

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the total cost was of inquiries into the attempted suicide of the female young offender known as SP by (a) the Prisons and Probation Ombudsman and (b) Mr Bryan Payling. [257806]

Mr. Hanson: The total costs of the Prisons and Probation Ombudsman investigation are not known. This information is not held centrally and would require a manual check of a variety of sources and this would be at a disproportionate cost.

The total costs of the Bryan Payling investigation are not yet known. Costs of the investigator and administrative support for the investigation were £3,169.34.

Prisons: Manpower

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prison officers at each grade there were in each prison in England and Wales in each of the last five years; and what estimate he has made of the likely numbers at each grade in the next 12 months. [258678]

Mr. Malik: Information on the number of officers in each establishment, by grade, in each year since 2005 and projections of the number of officers in March 2010 has been placed in the Library of the House.

Probation Officers: Manpower

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the (a) largest, (b) smallest and (c) average number of offenders under the supervision of one probation officer was in each of the last 10 years. [258679]

Mr. Hanson: The caseloads of individual officers will vary according to factors such as the experience of the officer and the complexity (and risk assessment) of the cases. Information about the caseloads of individual probation officers is not collated centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Information about the trends in probation service caseloads is contained in the annual Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2007.

Probation: Standards

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the performance against objectives of the management of each probation area in England and Wales. [258301]

Mr. Hanson: The Ministry of Justice publishes quarterly data-driven performance assessments for each probation area. The most recent performance ratings for probation boards/trusts can be viewed on its website at:

www.justice.gov.uk/publications/noms-performance-ratings.htm

Reoffenders: Rehabilitation

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what studies his Department has undertaken into the effect of attendance on residential outdoor activity courses on re-offending rates. [254725]

Mr. Hanson: A range of outdoor activities are within measures available within local Youth Inclusion Programmes aimed at 8-17 year olds, identified as being at high risk of involvement in offending or anti-social behaviour. However, the Youth Justice Board does not continually monitor the effectiveness of outdoor activities.

A Home Office Research Study[1] also evaluated two regimes—'High Intensity Training' at the Young Offenders Institution at Thorn Cross and a scheme based on the ethos of a 'Military Corrective Training Centre' (MCTC) at the YOI in Colchester. Both schemes were for 18-21 year old males suitable for open conditions. The study of the Colchester scheme concluded that this regime was not successful in reducing reconvictions, but the young people on the Colchester regime had significantly more positive attitudes towards staff and other inmates at the end of sentence and were significantly more hopeful about the future than the control group. The two year reconviction rates for Thorn Cross showed that, while there was no significant difference in the proportion of offenders reconvicted between the experimental and control group, the experimental group took longer to offend and committed significantly fewer crimes.

Reparation by Offenders

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many times allegations of abuse towards offenders on community payback in (a) London, (b) Kent, (c) Essex, (d) the West Midlands and (e) Nottinghamshire and (f) Devon and Cornwall have been investigated since 1 December 2008. [257507]

Mr. Hanson: The number of incidents of abuse towards offenders on Community Payback which have been reported since 1 December up until 13 February 2009 in the probation areas of London, Kent, Essex, West Midlands, Nottinghamshire and Devon and Cornwall is shown in the table.

A review of these incidents shows that all, except one which concerned stone throwing by a child, involved verbal abuse or abusive gestures by members of the public towards offenders and staff working on Community Payback work groups on. In none of the cases was further investigation considered necessary.

Probation area	Number of reported incidents	Number of offender hours worked 1 December-31 January
London	7	23,808
Kent	2	15,305
Essex	1	9,234
West Midlands	0	33,261
Nottinghamshire	3	10,512
Devon and Cornwall	0	8,724

Repossession Orders: Cleethorpes

Shona McIsaac: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many court orders have been issued for repossession of homes in Cleethorpes constituency in each of the last 20 years. [257440]

Bridget Prentice: Figures for Cleethorpes parliamentary constituency are not available. However, the following table shows the numbers of mortgage and landlord possession orders made in Grimsby county court.

The civil procedure rules state that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. However, Grimsby county court may cover areas other than the Cleethorpes constituency. Therefore not all possession orders made at this court necessarily relate to Cleethorpes constituency.

Court level statistics on mortgage and landlord repossession actions from 1987 to 2008 are available on the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/mortgagelandlordpossession.htm

These figures do not indicate how many homes have actually been repossessed. Repossessions can occur without a court order being made, while not all court orders result in repossession.

[1] Includes all types of mortgage lenders.
[2] Includes all types of landlord whether social or private.
[3] Landlord orders include those made under both standard and accelerated procedures. Landlord orders via the accelerated procedure enables the orders to be made solely on the basis of written evidence for shorthold tenancies, when the fixed period of tenancy has come to an end.
[4] The court, following a judicial hearing, may grant an order for possession immediately. This entitles the claimant to apply for a warrant to have the defendant evicted. However, even where a warrant for possession is issued, the parties can still negotiate a compromise to prevent eviction.
[5] Includes outright and suspended orders, the latter being where the court grants the claimant possession but suspends the operation of the order. Provided the defendant complies with the terms of suspension, which usually require the defendant to pay the current mortgage or rent instalments plus some of the accrued arrears, the possession order cannot be enforced.
[6] Complete breakdown of landlord possession orders is only available from 1999 onwards.

Winchester Prison

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 11 February 2009, Official Report, column 2094W, on prison accommodation, what the average period of time for which prisoners were detained in Winchester Prison was in each of the last three years; and how many prisoners detained in the prison had a registered home within 50 miles of the prison in each such year. [258912]

Mr. Malik: Prisoners move between prisons during the course of their sentence. Time spent in each prison is not recorded centrally. The following table shows the average period in months of those prisoners discharged from HMP Winchester from determinate sentences, including time spent on remand, spent in prison (this may include time spent in establishments other than HMP Winchester).

	Average time served (months)
	2005	2006	2007
Up to and including six months	2	2	2
Over six months and less than 12 months	4	4	5
12 months to less than four years	11	12	13
Four years to less than life	48	52	38
All determinate sentence lengths	5	6	6

Note:
Data for 2008 for this part of the answer are not available.

The number of prisoners held at HMP Winchester in each of the last three years with a home address within 50 miles of the prison (data from September in each year) is set out on the following table:

	Prisoners held within 50 miles of home address
2006	599
2007	448
2008	474

Note:
Where no home address is listed for a male or female prisoner or young offender the committal court is used as a proxy address

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing, and have been tabulated according to availability of data.

Young Offenders: Reoffenders

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many days on average elapsed between arrest and sentence in cases involving persistent young offenders in each police force area in the most recent period for which figures are available; [256682]

(2) how many persistent and prolific offenders were identified in each police force area in 2007-08; [256688]

(3) how many persistent young offenders were registered in each police force area in 2008; how many offences were recorded where the offender was a persistent young offender in each area in that year; and what percentage of offences in each police force area this represents. [256755]

Mr. Hanson: A persistent young offender (PYO) is a young person aged 10-17 who has been sentenced guilty by any criminal court in the UK on three or more separate occasions for one or more recordable offence, and within three years of the last sentencing occasion is subsequently arrested or has an information laid against them for a further recordable offence.

This definition is designed to measure the speed and efficiency of the youth justice system; through monitoring the pledge to halve the average time from arrest to sentence for dealing with PYOs in England and Wales from 142 days in 1996 to 71 days. However, the definition is not designed to provide a reliable measure of the level of youth offending over time, and it will give a misleading picture of the true trend if used for this purpose.

The aforementioned pledge was first met over a full calendar year in 2002 and has been met in all but one calendar year since then. Youth sentencing is therefore now more timely, and for repeat offenders more frequent, than it used to be prior to 1997. As the PYO definition relies on repeat sentencing occasions, a side-effect of the Government's success in bringing much swifter justice to young repeat offenders is that more of them end up being defined as PYOs.

Table 1 shows the number of PYOs, and the number of offences committed by them, for each police force area in 2008. These 2008 figures are provisional at present as the data for 2008 has not yet been finalised. Final figures for 2008 will be published in March 2009 by the Ministry of Justice.

Table 2 shows the total number of notifiable offences brought to justice, and the proportion of them that are attributable to PYOs, for each police force for 2007 (the most recent year for which these data are available). It is not possible to present a meaningful statistical comparison between police recorded crime and numbers of offences committed by PYOs, because the two measures have different counting bases.

On 10 December 2008, the Secretary of State for Justice announced in a written ministerial statement that the PYO pledge would be dropped with effect from the end of 2008. This is therefore the last year for which PYO statistics will be published and compiled.

Data from the performance management arrangements for the Prolific and other Priority Offender programme provide the number of such offenders identified through partnership arrangements in each police force area. The data are provided in table 3. The data cover the financial year 2007-08 from April 2007 up to March 2008, and are the most recent data available. These figures rely on the accuracy and completeness of the data provided locally by Prolific and Priority Offender schemes.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much and what percentage of the money provided by his Department for the reconstruction of Afghanistan in 2008-09 was given to (a) non-Afghan organisations and (b) non-Afghan companies. [255332]

Mr. Michael Foster: By the end of 2008-09, the Department for International Development (DFID) expects to contribute £143 million of programme support to the reconstruction and development of Afghanistan. DFID has a commitment to spending at least 50 per cent. of its aid through Afghan government systems, for example using the World Bank-managed Afghanistan Reconstruction Trust Fund. This helps build the Afghan government's capacity to provide services for its citizens. 10 per cent. of our assistance (£14.7 million) is provided to non-Afghan organisations and companies to provide technical assistance and capacity building to the Afghan government.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the adequacy of aid to Afghanistan for (a) refugees returning to the country, (b) schoolchildren and (c) antenatal care. [255334]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Office of the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) monitors the refugee situation regularly and publishes information about its operations on its website:

http://www.unhcr.org/cgi-bin/texis/vtx/country?iso=afg

The Center for Policy and Human Development's 2007 'Afghanistan Human Development Report' assesses Afghanistan's progress towards the health and education millennium development goals. The report can be found at:

http://hdr.undp.org/en/reports/nationalreports/asiathepacific/afghanistan/name.3408.en.html

Steady progress is being made in health and education; however, agriculture, private sector development, infrastructure and governance have made slower progress and are also critical to the development, stabilisation and strengthening of Afghanistan, to improve life for all Afghans.

Africa: Agriculture

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has provided to Farm Inputs Promotions Africa in each year since 2000. [256847]

Mr. Michael Foster: Farm Input Promotions Africa (FIPS) was commissioned under the Department for International Development's (DFID) Crop Protection Programme between 2003-06 to lead a research project in collaboration with the Kenyan Agricultural Research Institute. This project was extended to January 2006.

DFID has contributed a total of £298,000 to FIPS since 2000.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to ensure the availability of funds for African smallholders. [259188]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) is committed to providing funds for African smallholders and does so in a number of different ways. These include contributions to programmes that improve food security. Examples include:

£133 million over four years (2005-09) to the Productive Safety Nets Programme that makes cash and food payments to seven million of Ethiopia's poorest farmers during the hungry season.

£20 million for the Government of Malawi's programme to increase maize production through seed and fertiliser subsidies for 1.5 million smallholders, which last year increased the harvest by over 800,000 tonnes.

DFID has also helped establish, and contributed £10 million, to the Africa Enterprise Challenge Fund (AECF) that approved its first projects in 2008. AECF was recommended by the Commission for Africa to encourage the private sector to improve provision of financial services to African farmers and rural communities. One example of a project that AECF has co-financed is a $1 million investment in cold storage for 1,400 smallholder poultry farmers in Kenya.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Elections

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what practical assistance his Department is providing to the government of the Democratic Republic of Congo to facilitate the holding of the local and provincial elections originally scheduled for 2006. [258848]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UK Government remain committed to helping the DRC Government to hold local elections as soon as feasible and preferably in advance of the national elections in 2011. As the largest bilateral donor supporting the election processes, we are now working to ensure effective future elections by strengthening the Independent Elections Commission, through a grant of £14.5 million to the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP). This will help fund administrative structures; including the establishment of local liaison offices throughout the country and revision of the electoral roll—developing it in a way that can be regularly updated for any future elections.

The local elections have been delayed due to lack of funding from the DRC Government. The Department for International Development (DFID) is currently working with other donors to ensure the shortfall is met partly by the international community without taking ownership away from the DRC Government.

Departmental Buildings

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) display energy certificates and (b) advisory reports for public buildings issued in respect of each property occupied by (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies. [256051]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has only one property in England and Wales. A copy of the display energy certificate and the associated advisory report in respect of this property will be placed in the Library. There are no agencies for which we are responsible.

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [256139]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) owns and manages a number of internal databases that support financial, human resources, document management and other information systems.

System controls, validations and administration processes ensure that the data is as accurate and up-to-date as possible. These activities are considered part of the normal system running and are not separately logged or costed.

DFID also owns the following websites that are operated by external organisations on behalf of DFID.

1. The Research 4 Development (R4D) portal.

2. The NARSIS website of DFID-funded projects with natural resources components.

3. The Infrastructure Connect website of DFID-funded research engineering and infrastructure projects.

We are unable to separate data maintenance costs for these systems without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which ICT projects initiated by his Department were abandoned before completion in each year since 1997; what costs were incurred on each project; who the contractors were; what the date of (a) commencement and (b) abandonment was in each case; and if he will make a statement. [256656]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development cancelled an internal information technology project run by our Pakistan office. The project had spent £7,000 at the point of cancellation; the contractor was Elixir; the project commenced in November 2007 and was cancelled in September 2008.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many full-time equivalent staff, including staff appointed in country, have been employed by his Department in Uganda in each financial year since 1997-98. [256777]

Mr. Michael Foster: Following the National Audit Office's October 2008 report on the Department for International Development's (DFID) work in insecure environments and improvements to the way DFID ensures the safety and security of its staff, the Department does not publicise staff numbers, or changes in staff numbers, for each country office.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what expert advisers have been commissioned by his Department since 1997; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the adviser so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246959]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not hold a central list of all expert advisory appointments made since 1997. The Department makes a number of appointments and compiling such a list would incur disproportionate cost.

Since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the names and overall cost of special advisers and the number in each pay band.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what publications his Department has produced for hon. Members to send to their constituents in the last two years; at what cost; and for what purpose. [256551]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development's (DFID) publications are aimed at a very wide audience, and not specifically at hon. Members. In the last two years we have published two leaflets expressly for use by hon. Members to send to their constituents, however, there are plans to use these publications to communicate DFID's work to other audiences.

Title	Reason	Cost (£)
Newsletter on UK aid to the Occupied Palestinian Territories	To inform hon. Members and their constituents about UK Aid to the Occupied Palestinian Territories	[1]1,125
Newsletter on UK aid to Pakistan	To inform hon. Members and their constituents about UK aid to Pakistan	1,324

[1] Estimated cost invoices yet to be received

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has spent in producing its developments magazine in the last 12 months. [256597]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has spent £210,547.20 (including VAT) in the last 12 months producing developments magazine.

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many staff in his Department or its predecessors were on sick leave for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years. [256329]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) is committed to the health, safety and well-being of its employees. Over the past few years, we have continued to tackle absence due to sickness through improved monitoring and support to managers and staff. This includes:

a newly introduced case management team (April 2008) providing support and advice to managers to help them to tackle absence issues earlier;

an employee health and well-being team providing a confidential and independent support and advisory service; and an occupational health service providing support to facilitate an early return to work for staff on longer term sick leave.

The number of staff who were on sick leave for over (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years, is shown in the following table.

Number

	Staff with over 30 days sick leave	Staff with over 50 days sick leave	Staff with over 100 days sick leave
2004	25	15	9
2005	19	31	4
2006	28	20	10
2007	36	17	11

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the average number of days sick leave per staff member in his Department was in each of the last five years. [256305]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) is committed to the health, safety and well-being of its employees. Over the past few years, we have continued to tackle absence due to sickness through improved monitoring and support to managers and staff. This includes:

a newly introduced case management team (April 2008) providing support and advice to managers to help them to tackle absence issues earlier;

an employee health and well-being team providing a confidential and independent support and advisory service; and an occupational health service providing support to facilitate an early return to work for staff on longer term sick leave.

For the years 2004 to 2008 the average working days per employee lost to sick leave for DFID are as follows:

	Average working days per employee lost to sick leave
2004	4.0
2005	5.7
2006	5.0
2008	5.7

Please note that the 2008 average is taken from our most recent sick absence report to Cabinet Office, covering the 12-month period 1 October 2007 to 30 September 2008. In line with other Government Departments, our sick absence return for the full 2008 calendar year is not due until mid-March 2009.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many staff in his Department were recorded as having been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December in each of the last five years. [256627]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) is committed to the health, safety and well-being of its employees. Over the past few years, we have continued to tackle absence due to sickness through improved monitoring and support to managers and staff. This includes:

an employee health and well-being team providing a confidential and independent support and advisory service; and an occupational health service providing support to facilitate an early return to work for staff on longer term sick leave.

The number of staff recorded with sick absence of over 12 months on 31 December in each of the last five years are shown in the following table.

2006	5

International Assistance

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development to which (a) World Bank and (b) United Nations Development Programme trust funds his Department has contributed in each of the last three years; and how much it has provided in each case in each such year. [256603]

Mr. Michael Foster: Tables containing details of the Department for International Development's (DFID) contributions to (a) the World Bank and (b) the United Nations Development Programme trust funds in each of the last three years will be placed in the Library of the House.

Liberia: Overseas Aid

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much aid the UK has provided for Liberia (a) bilaterally and (b) through the United Nations in each of the last five years; and how much is planned to be provided for Liberia in the next spending period for which figures are available. [256643]

Mr. Michael Foster: Details on the UK's bilateral expenditure and imputed share of multilateral official development assistance (ODA) are contained in the DFID publication "Statistics on International Development". This publication is available from the Library and online at:

www.dfid.gov.uk

Relevant figures are produced in the following table.

or from the Library. Relevant figures for the next three years are reproduced in the following table.

Loans

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 11 February 2009, Official Report, column 2118W, on loans (1) what assessment he has made of trends in interest rates on microfinance loans in Africa over the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [259190]

(2) what annual percentage interest rates commercial banks are charging smallholders in Malawi; and what security they require. [259191]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) supports the overall monitoring of microfinance through the Consultative Group to Assist the Poor (CGAP), a multi-donor partnership working to expand access to finance, including microfinance.

The most recent detailed research carried out by CGAP on 2003-06 data showed that > "the rates offered by most microfinance institutions (MFIs) compare favourably to informal finance, supplier credit, and the few other alternatives that would be available to MFI clients. In sub-Saharan Africa, interest rates also dropped at a rate of 1.4 percentage points from 2003 to 2006."

This is confirmed by DFID research in Malawi where the commercial banking sector reaches less than 5 per cent. of the population and charges interest of about 16-20 per cent.; down from about 30 per cent. five years ago. Most smallholder farmers do not have anything a commercial bank would consider as security: land is not titled and smallholders in Malawi have an exceptionally low asset base. Microfinance is reaching another 5 per cent. of the households and real interest rates from rural microfinance institutions are estimated at around 45 per cent. However 90 per cent. of Malawians have no access to financial services.

Beyond Malawi, several other household surveys carried out recently in Africa with DFID funding show that the absolute level of interest rate is not one of the detrimental factors that constrain poor people's access to financial services, including microfinance. The promotion of transparency, competition and financial literacy, is very important and in the long run can have a bearing on the level of interest. This is why DFID has recently launched the £4 million Financial Education Fund (FEF), to back the best ideas to help raise financial literacy among poor consumers and small businesses in Africa. The FEF will operate across Africa. In its first round of calls for projects, FEF has received 110 concept notes that are under review.

Rwanda: Land

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has spent on projects associated with land tenure reform in Rwanda. [259000]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Between October 2002 and December 2008, DFID spent a total of £3.045 million in support of land tenure reform in Rwanda. From October 2002 to July 2004, £276,000 was spent on providing a Land Policy Specialist and conducting studies to help the Government of Rwanda develop a new Land Law and Policy. The Land Law was enacted in 2005, and by the end of the programme, £2.976 million will have been spent developing and piloting a system for providing secure land title to landholders. DFID's Country Plan for Rwanda (2008 to 2012), proposes supporting the roll-out of a similar land tenure programme nationwide.

Zimbabwe: HIV Infection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his latest estimate is of the number and proportion of the population of Zimbabwe infected with HIV/AIDS. [259041]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Zimbabwe has one of the highest HIV prevalence rates in the world. Currently, 15.6 per cent. of the population aged 15 to 54 years are infected with HIV. This amounts to about 1.3 million people. Of these, about 340,000 are in need of antiretroviral medicines. About 120,000 children under 15 are infected with HIV.

DFID will provide around £20 million in this financial year to support health systems in Zimbabwe and to help those living with HIV and AIDS.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of families in Zimbabwe have at least one member with HIV/Aids. [270015]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Zimbabwe has one of the highest rates of HIV prevalence in the world. Although the rate has fallen to 15.6 per cent. of adults aged 15 to 54 years, it remains the main cause of illness and early death. Of those infected, 56 per cent. are women. Because most people in Zimbabwe, as in other highly affected countries, do not know their HIV status, it is difficult to calculate the number of households with at least one HIV positive member. However, households that are affected often experience multiple infections (in one or both parents and possibly in their young children) making HIV catastrophic for the welfare of all members. Although there are no reliable statistics, as many as one in eight households may be affected in some way by HIV/AIDS.

DFID will provide around £20 million this financial year to support health systems in Zimbabwe and to help those living with HIV and AIDS.

Zimbabwe: Overseas Aid

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many aid workers from each aid agency have been killed other than by accident in Zimbabwe in each of the last 10 years. [270016]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not possess the requested information.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which aid agencies left Zimbabwe in each of the last 10 years and subsequently undertook no further work there. [270017]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A large number of aid agencies have worked, and are working, in Zimbabwe over the last 10 years. The UK Government do not keep records about their activities, nor would we be notified regarding their entry or withdrawal from the country.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much the Government has provided to aid agencies to spend in Zimbabwe in each of the last 10 years. [270018]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department of International Development's programme in Zimbabwe has expanded steadily in the last 10 years as the humanitarian need in the country has grown as indicated in the following table:

DFID aid to Zimbabwe over 10 years

	£ million
1998-99	16.6
1999-2000	14.1
2000-01	13.1
2001-02	17.0
2002-03	32.7
2003-04	30.0
2004-05	27.6
2005-06	35.6

Since 2002, all DFID programme money has been delivered through the UN and other aid agencies—none of it has passed through the Government of Zimbabwe. This year the Department will spend £49 million on ongoing programmes to meet the essential needs of ordinary Zimbabweans and to address the dire humanitarian situation.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by (a) his Department and its predecessor and (b) their agencies was in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [270163]

Mr. Simon: Database maintenance costs in the Department are contained in the outsourced ICT contract service charges and the cost of staff involved in the management and analysis of information. The Department does not separately identify database management expenditure and to separate out the cost of maintaining databases would entail disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what his Department's capital spending (a) was in each year from 2001-02 to 2007-08 and (b) is planned to be in each year from 2008-09 to 2014-15 in 2005-06 prices; and if he will make a statement. [271663]

Mr. Simon: Departments do not publish detailed spending plans for periods outside of the comprehensive spending review period until they are finalised.

Information for 2001-02 is not available. Departmental capital spending from 2002-03 to 2007-08 is shown in table 1 following. Capital spending figures prior to the formation of the Department for Innovation Universities and Skills (DIUS) in June 2007 are derived from expenditure figures of predecessor Departments.

Table 1: DIUS capital spending 2002-03 to 2007-08

Departmental Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the cost of his Department's contracts with public relations consultancies has been since it was established. [257145]

Mr. Simon: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) was created by machinery of government changes at the end of June 2007. Information on the cost of the Department's contracts with public relations consultancies before that date is available from the predecessor departments of DIUS—the Department for Children, Schools and Families and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

The departmental expenditure on public relations consultancies is as follows:

2007-08	261,702
2008-09	193,300

[1] Budget to 31 March 2009

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many staff in his Department or its predecessors were on sick leave for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years. [256329]

Mr. Simon: The Department was created as part of the machinery of government changes on 28 June 2007, the information requested is set out as follows and applies from 1 July to 31 March 2008.

Occurrences where staff have had a spell of absence	Number
Over 30 days	27
Over 50 days	17
Over 100 days	9

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many staff in his Department were recorded as having been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December in each year since his Department was established. [256666]

Mr. Simon: The Department was created on 28 June 2007. There have been no employees recorded as having been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December in each year since the Department was established.

Departmental Translation Services

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many language translators are employed in each of his Department's executive agencies; and what the cost of translating services provided by such people was in the latest period for which information is available. [257146]

Mr. Simon: There are no language translators employed by the Department's executive agencies. The Department does not collect this information from its non-departmental public bodies and this information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Education: Finance

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what criteria will apply for the allocation of Learning and Skills Council funding for capital projects; and whether he plans to make dates of approvals in principle the primary basis of prioritisation. [258884]

Mr. Simon: In 1997-98, the total capital expenditure in Further Education colleges in England in the financial year 1997-98 was nil.

In total since that time, this Government have invested £2.4 billion and will be investing a record further £2.3 billion across the next three years.

In total, since the programme began under this Government, nearly 700 projects, at 330 colleges have been agreed. Only 42 colleges have not yet benefited from investment.

But the pace of demand for capital funding has increased. Projects and the scale of Government funding they require are becoming increasingly ambitious. In addition there are signs that the ability of colleges to raise their own funds for proposed projects is being affected by the downturn.

It is for this reason that over the past few weeks the Learning and Skills Council has been working closely with colleges that have submitted or are working on bids, to look at the individual current positions before making further funding decisions. As a result of this the consideration of a small number of applications that were due for decision—both in principle and in detail—has been deferred from December to March.

At the March meeting of the LSC National Council it will decide when it can make decisions on the small number of applications that were deferred from December to March. It will also advise on when and on what basis it will consider other capital applications. This will include as necessary, any decisions on how future proposals may be prioritised.

Engineers: Floods

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he is taking to ensure that skills shortages for the training of flood engineers are being addressed. [253817]

Mr. Simon: The Government support the work of Energy and Utility Skills (EUSkills) Sector Skills Council, which covers the water industries. The remit of Sector Skills Councils includes raising employer engagement, demand and investment in skills.

EUSkills, working with the water companies, have developed an on-line work force development tool which allows the water companies to undertake a number of different forecast work force scenarios. This scenario work is continuing, and water companies may include this data within their final business plans as part of their price review to Ofwat (the Water Services Regulation Authority) during 2009.

The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) commissioned a comprehensive report on Engineering Skills for Flood Risk Management from the Institution of Civil Engineers (ICE), which was produced in October 2004. The Environment Agency has had a capacity plan since May 2004 and a three year strategy to address the civil engineering skills shortage since August 2005. The Environment Agency also operate a foundation degree in Science for River and Coastal Engineering and have a new graduate training programme. These are both supported by national recruitment campaigns.

DEFRA are continuing to work with the Environment Agency and other relevant organisations to assist them in developing appropriate skills and capacity to meet future requirements.

English Language

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much his Department and its predecessor spent on courses in English for speakers of other languages in each of the last five years, broken down by course level. [258544]

Mr. Simon: The information is not available in the form requested and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The Department has signed and is committed to the Government Skills Pledge to encourage and support all staff to achieve at least a full level 2 qualification. Some element of this support may in a few cases include supporting the attainment of basic literacy but this is provided via local colleges and incurs no direct cost to the Department.

Higher Education: Anti-Semitism

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills pursuant to the answer of 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 1098W, on higher education: anti-Semitism, when he expects to set up the dedicated sub-group to the Cross Government Working Group against anti-Semitism; who the members of the sub-group will be; and if he will make a statement. [259146]

Mr. Lammy: The Department is currently in the process of establishing this group and inviting attendees to the first meeting. At this first meeting the group will agree its continuing membership and terms of reference. We see this group as playing an important role in helping to tackle anti-Semitism in higher education.

Learning and Skills Council

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what records are held by his Department on meetings of the Learning and Skills Council's National Council. [258464]

Mr. Simon: The minutes from the Learning and Skills Council's (LSC) National Council meetings are sent to and held by the Department. The LSC also makes a summary of these minutes available on its website.

Learning and Skills Council: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by the Learning and Skills Council is in 2008-09. [258526]

Mr. Simon: E-PIMS does not hold the information requested about the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) vacant properties. However, the LSC does collect this information separately and I have asked Mark Haysom, LSC chief executive, to write to the hon. Member. A copy will be placed on the House Library.

Local Government: Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 20 February 2008, Official Report, column 760W, on new local government network: finance, how much funding his Department has provided to the new local government network since February 2008; and what the purpose of the allocation of £56,417 by the Learning and Skills Council was. [258058]

Mr. Simon: We are not aware of any funding being made available to the New Local Government Network (NLGN) by this Department. However, the Learning and Skills Council (LSC), which is a non-departmental public body sponsored by this Department, provided £21,150 for corporate membership of the Network for the period January 2008 to December 2008.

The £56,417 which the LSC contracted to the New Local Government Network in the period from January 2007 paid for LSC corporate membership for the 2007 calendar year, and sponsored two research projects focused on service delivery and the role of local authorities in managing migration. Local authorities are a key partner of the LSC and these projects aimed to support delivery of a number of LSC education and training programmes.

Marine Studies: Plymouth

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the (a) teaching, (b) research and (c) achievement against objectives of the Marine Institute at Plymouth University; and if he will make a statement. [258852]

Mr. Lammy: The Government do not formally assess the performance of individual universities, or individual departments within universities.

Social Work: Higher Education

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many universities are planning to close their social work departments. [258413]

Mr. Lammy: Information on the closure, merger or opening of particular university departments is not routinely collected by the Department although we are aware that Reading university has recently proposed to close its social work department in order to strengthen other areas. Nationally, 100 higher education institutions teach social work as a major subject for nearly 60,000 students. While institutions will continue to be responsible for deciding for themselves which subjects to teach, we are committed across Government to strengthening the capacity of the social care work force to respond effectively to the challenges they face.

Train to Gain Programme: Cumbria

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much funding his Department has made available to support the Train to Gain programme in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland constituency. [255033]

Mr. Simon: LSC data is not available at constituency level. Data can be obtained at local authority level, but this can be provided only at disproportionate cost. Data for the North West Region as a whole indicates that spend to support the Train to Gain programme for the 2006-07 financial year was £28,680,424 and for the 2007-08 financial year was £43,004,270 giving a total spend of £71,684,694.

Train to Gain is the key service for supporting employers to invest in the future productivity and profitability of their businesses by investing in the skills of their employees. Train to Gain offers quality-assured, impartial advice from skills brokers, to help identify the business' skills needs at all levels and make the right, informed choices. Since Train to Gain was rolled out nationally in August 2006, it has engaged over 101,000 employers and supported over 570,000 learners to begin learning, of which over 290,000 have achieved a qualification.

Vocational Training

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many Learning and Skills Council-funded adult learners in 2006-07 who were eligible for inclusion in statistics used to measure progress in the Skills for Life Public Service Agreement target were aged (a) 19 to 24 years and (b) 25 years and over, broken down by whether they were funded through (i) further education colleges and (ii) the University for Industry; [254967]

(2) how many Learning and Skills Council-funded adult learners over the age of 16 years were eligible for inclusion in statistics used to measure progress against the Skills for Life Public Service Agreement target in (a) 2002-03, (b) 2003-04, (c) 2004-05, (d) 2005-06 and (e) 2006-07. [254968]

Mr. Simon [holding answer 9 February 2009]: The following table shows Skills for Life achievement figures by age and funding stream in 2006/07. The table shows only those achievements which count towards the 2010 PSA target which is to improve the basic skill levels of 2.25 million adults between the launch of Skills for Life in 2001 and 2010. This target was achieved in 2008.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Services: Manpower

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the effect of the EU Working Time Directive on staffing and medical cover in (a) accident and emergency departments and (b) urgent care centres. [257453]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally. It is the responsibility of local employers to implement working time directive as part of their health and safety obligations.

Alcoholic Drinks: Elderly People

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many individuals aged over 65 years resident in each (a) London borough and (b) Government office region were treated for alcohol-related health problems in each of the last five years. [256641]

Dawn Primarolo: The only centrally available data on treatment for alcohol-related health problems are the number of admissions to hospital for alcohol and alcohol-related health problems. An individual may account for more than one admission.

While it is possible to analyse the admissions data to determine the number of individuals aged over 65 years admitted to hospital for alcohol and alcohol-related health problems, this could be done only at disproportionate cost.

The following tables gave the number of alcohol-related finished admissions for patients aged over 65 years by London borough and Government office region for each year from 2002-03 to 2006-07. 2006-07 is the latest year for which data are available. The figures relate to the number of admissions rather than the number of individuals.

Alcohol-related admissions
The number of alcohol-related admissions is based on the methodology developed by the North West Public Health Observatory (NWPHO). Following international best practice, the NWPHO methodology includes a wide range of diseases and injuries in which alcohol plays a part and estimates the proportion of cases that are attributable to the consumption of alcohol. Details of the conditions and associated proportions can be found in the report Jones et al. (2008) Alcohol-attributable fractions for England: Alcohol-attributable mortality and hospital admissions.
Number of episodes in which the patient had an alcohol-related primary or secondary diagnosis
These figures represent the number of episodes where an alcohol-related diagnosis was recorded in any of the 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) primary and secondary diagnosis fields in a Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) record. Each episode is only counted once in each month, even if an alcohol-related diagnosis is recorded in more than one diagnosis field of the record.
Finished admission episode
A finished admission episode is the first period of inpatient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Finished admission episodes are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of inpatients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
Primary diagnosis
The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the Hospital HES data set and provides the main reason why the patient was in hospital.
Secondary diagnoses
As well as the primary diagnosis, there are up to 13 (six prior to 2002-03) secondary diagnosis fields in HES that show other diagnoses relevant to the episode of care.
Data Quality
HES are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. Data is also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data on HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Ambulance Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what guidance his Department has issued to ambulance services on the uptake of the NHS Pathways system; [259175]

(2) what provision his Department has made for the varying of funding allocations granted to NHS ambulance services when approving their use of the NHS Pathways system for dealing with 999 calls; [259176]

(3) what estimate he has made of the cost of training ambulance service staff to operate the new NHS Pathways system for dealing with 999 calls to date. [259177]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has not issued guidance to ambulance services. Having considered evidence of the safety and efficacy of NHS Pathways, on 20 February 2009 the Department announced it had approved the product for use by the national health service. It is now for NHS services to decide whether to use NHS Pathways. Ambulance services that consider changing to NHS Pathways will be expected to look at the costs and benefits for their local area, including in relation to affordability and retraining staff.

Aortic Aneurysms: Screening

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 2051-52W, on aortic aneurysms: medical treatments, which NHS trusts that applied to participate in the early implementation phase of the abdominal aortic aneurysms screening programme, met the relevant criteria as developed by strategic health authority screening leads. [256896]

Ann Keen: The following six early implementer sites were identified after successfully meeting the criteria:

Screening programme	Trust name
Gloucester	Gloucester NHS Foundation Trust
South Devon and Exeter	South Devon NHS Foundation Trust
	Royal Devon and Exeter NHS Foundation Trust
South Manchester	University Hospital of South Manchester
	Manchester Children's University Hospital
Leicester	University Hospitals of Leicester NHS Trust
West Sussex	Surrey and Sussex NHS Trust
South West London	St. George's Hospital Healthcare NHS Trust

Dementia

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the percentage of (a) the total population and (b) those over 60 years of age with (i) dementia and (ii) Alzheimer's syndrome. [258419]

Phil Hope: The Department does not have information on the percentage of the total population with dementia or Alzheimer's syndrome over 60 years of age. However, the Dementia UK report, published in 2007 by the Alzheimer's Society show that there are approximately 570,000 who have the condition in England, and that roughly two thirds of these are undiagnosed.

Dental Services

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dentists were operating under (a) general dental services contracts and (b) personal dental services agreements in (i) North Wiltshire constituency, (ii) Wiltshire, (iii) Swindon, (iv) London and (v) England in each year since 1997. [258293]

Ann Keen: Information is not available in the format requested.

The number of national health service (NHS) dentists, by contract type, in England as at 31 March, 1997 to 2006, is available in Table 4 of the "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006".

The number of NHS dentists, as at 31 March, 1997 to 2006 is available in Annex E of the aforementioned report. Information is available by strategic health authority (SHA) and by primary care trust (PCT). Annex G contains information by parliamentary constituency.

This measure counted the number of NHS dentists recorded on PCT lists as at 31 March each year. This information is based on the old contractual arrangements, which were in place up to and including 31 March 2006. This report has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dwfactivity

Information by contract type at a regional level is not available under the old contractual arrangements.

The numbers of dentists with NHS activity, by contract type, during the years ending 31 March, 2007 and 2008 are available in Table G2 of Annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics for England: 2007/08" report. Information is provided by SHA and by PCT but is not available by constituency. This information is based on the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006. This report has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental0708

This measure is based on a revised methodology and therefore supersedes previously published workforce figures relating to the new dental contractual arrangements. It is not comparable to the information collected under the old contractual arrangements. This revised methodology counted the number of dental performers with NHS activity recorded via FP17 claim forms in each year ending 31 March.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much NHS funding has been allocated to dentistry provision in North Wiltshire constituency in each year since 2004. [258294]

Ann Keen: Prior to April 2006, most primary dental services were provided under former general dental service (GDS) arrangements. These were demand-led services where the pattern of dental expenditure was largely determined by where dentists chose to practice, and how much national health service (NHS) work they chose to undertake.

The former GDS arrangements were replaced with effect from 1 April 2006, when primary care trusts (PCTs) were given responsibility for planning and commissioning primary dental services and provided with local, devolved, dental budgets. The primary dental service funding allocations made to Wiltshire PCT for each of the three years since PCTs assumed full responsibility for primary dental care services are in the following table. These are net of income from dental charges paid by patients, which are retained locally to supplement the resources available for dentistry. Actual expenditure levels are determined by the pattern and type of services commissioned by each PCT. PCTs may also dedicate some of their other NHS resources to dentistry if they consider this an appropriate local priority. Allocations are not apportioned by individual constituency areas; PCTs determine the distribution of resources within their area on the basis of local needs and priorities.

Primary Dental Service net funding allocations for Wiltshire PCT

	Allocation (£000)
2006-07	10,727
2007-08	11,366
2008-09	12,787

Notes:
1. The allocation figure for 2006-07 is the aggregate of the allocations made initially to the Kennet and North Wiltshire, South Wiltshire, and West Wiltshire PCTs before they merged to form the Wiltshire PCT with effect from 1 October 2006.
2. PCTs are awarded separate funding allocations to meet the cost of any dental vocational trainees who may be placed with dental practices in their area.

Dental Services: Young People

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children under 16 years in England were treated within community dental services in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [258325]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not held centrally.

Departmental Data Protection

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what IT security strategy his Department has in place; what steps are being taken to ensure the policy is being followed; what policy is in place on the use of encryption when data are sent externally; and what sanctions are in place for use should the policy not be followed. [259002]

Mr. Bradshaw: There are strict rules on data security which the Department is required to adhere to, and has a number of information security policies in place to safeguard its information technology (IT) devices and information assets.

Specifically it has an information security policy and computer security policy, broadly these cover:

Computer devices such as laptops;

Clear desk policy;

Sensitive and personal information handling;

Document security (including paper);

Protected personal information protocols;

Spam and hoax e-mail; and Password security.

To ensure compliance, the Department IT security team undertake a rolling programme of compliance checking to ensure the policies are being followed. These checks will include physical checks, e.g. clear desk and checks to ensure portable devices and media are secured through to investigation of e-mail and network storage.

All Department laptops have full disk encryption as standard. Any data transported from a desktop PC or an encrypted laptop device to a USB memory stick is also encrypted.

Any data transmitted externally is governed by the document security policy and differing levels of security apply as appropriate to the protective marking of the document or data being transmitted. Clear policy and guidance is laid down for staff, under the document security policy.

Any identified breach of IT security policy is investigated and formally reported to the senior civil servant responsible for the appropriate area of business. Depending upon the nature of the breach, various sanctions are available under normal disciplinary procedures.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department has spent on international travel in each of the last 11 years; and how much of that was spent on travel by (a) Ministers and (b) civil servants. [256553]

Mr. Bradshaw: Travel by Ministers and civil servants is undertaken in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and the "Civil Service Management Code" respectively.

The Cabinet Office publishes an annual list of overseas visits made by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500 dating from 1997 onwards including the Secretary of State for Health. Details on all Health Ministers overseas travel for 2007-08 can also be found on the Cabinet Office website. A copy of this document has been placed in the Library.

Details of ministerial overseas visits undertaken in 2008-09 will be published on the Cabinet Office website in July 2009.

The amount spent on international travel for officials is not easily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost

Dietary Supplements: EC Law

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what discussions officials from his Department have had with the Enterprise Directorate General of the European Commission on the potential effects on small and medium-sized businesses of the setting of maximum permitted levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements under the provisions of Article 5 of the EU Food Supplements Directive; [258326]

(2) when he expects the European Commission will propose maximum permitted levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements under the provisions of Article 5 of the EU Food Supplements Directive; what procedures will apply to the adoption of those proposals; and if he will make a statement; [258327]

(3) what steps he plans to take to ensure the availability of higher potency vitamin and mineral supplements on the UK market; [258328]

(4) what recent representations he has received from (a) independent health food retailers and (b) consumers about the setting of maximum permitted levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements under the provisions of Article 5 of the EU Food Supplements Directive; [258329]

(5) when he next expects a Minister from his Department to meet the European Commissioners responsible for DG SANCO to discuss the setting of maximum permitted levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements under the provisions of Article 5 of the EU Food Supplements Directive; [258330]

(6) on what occasions he has discussed with (a) the European Commissioners responsible for DG SANCO and (b) each of his counterparts from other EU member states the setting of maximum permitted levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements under the provisions of Article 5 of the EU Food Supplements Directive in the last 12 months. [258331]

Dawn Primarolo: No discussions have taken place between departmental officials and the Directorate General Enterprise of the European Commission on the potential impact upon small and medium-sized businesses of the setting of maximum permitted levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements under the provisions of article 5 of the food supplements directive.

We have been advised by the Food Standards Agency that draft proposals outlining maximum levels would be discussed at the next working group meeting of member states, which is now likely to be held in April. Proposals are, therefore, unlikely to be published until after this meeting has taken place. The European Commission has also indicated that the draft proposals will be subject to an exchange of views in the Standing Committee on Food Chain and Animal Health prior to their formal publication.

I am exploring with officials how high potency vitamin and mineral supplements could be permitted under the scope of the food supplements directive.

I have received representations from independent health food retailers and consumers about the setting of maximum levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements, in the form of correspondence.

I recently met with my Spanish counterpart to discuss a range of issues including the setting of maximum levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements. This subject has not been discussed in meetings between Health Ministers and the European Commissioner for Health and there are no current plans for Health Ministers to meet with the Commissioner to discuss this subject.

Disabled Facilities Grants

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many disabled facilities grants have been made in each year since their inception; how much has been spent through the grant in each such year; what the budget for the grant was in each such year; what the banding for the means test is; and what the (a) maximum, (b) minimum and (c) mean contribution made by people in reception of the grant has been in each year. [256710]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

The Government regard the disabled facilities grant programme as an important means to help disabled and older people continue to live as independently as possible by having their homes adapted. That is why we have more than doubled the Government funds available for the programme from £57 million in 1997 to £146 million in 2008 with an increase of £10 million in each of the subsequent years making the budget £166 million by 2010. Details of the grant contributions by Communities and Local Government can be found on the Department's website.

Local authorities in England report information on the number of grants and amount spent through the grant as at 1 April in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA) returns. The following table shows the total expenditure on disabled facilities grant. Communities and Local Government contributed 60 per cent. of funding with local authorities match funding the remaining 40 per cent. Data prior to 1996-97 could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Number and amount of disabled facilities grants paid, England, 1996-97 to 2007-08

Notes:
1. Number of grants are measured in the financial year they are completed.
2. Expenditure is reported in the financial year it is spent.

Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA) return.

The means test used for disabled facilities grants works on the same principle as the tests used for many other means-tested benefits including housing benefit. The test includes as expenditure a range of standard allowances and premiums based on housing benefit and income support regulations. This model not only ensures that the grant goes to those least able to contribute to the cost of the works but also to help ensure that applicants are treated consistently. The Department does not hold records of individuals' contributions. The following link provides greater detail on the means test.

Epilepsy

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the adequacy of provision of dedicated epilepsy nurses in neurology departments. [258682]

Ann Keen: We have made no assessment of the provision of dedicated epilepsy nurses. Local trusts are responsible for the skill mix of their work force, including the provision of specialist nurses for patients with epilepsy. They are best placed to assess the health needs of their local health community and must have the freedom to deploy staff in ways appropriate for local conditions.

Eyesight: Pensioners

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many pensioners in York received free NHS eye tests in each of the last 10 years. [257840]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the format requested. However, the following table shows the numbers of national health service (NHS) sight test claims processed for persons aged 60 and over in North Yorkshire health authority (HA), York and Selby primary care trust (PCT) and North Yorkshire and York PCT in the relevant financial years.

Health and Social Care Information Centre: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by (a) the Health and Social Care Information Centre, (b) NHS Connecting for Health, (c) NHS Estates and (d) the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency is in 2008-09. [258518]

Mr. Bradshaw: The empty property annual business rates as recorded on e-PIMS for Financial Year 2008-09 are:

Health and Social Care Information Centre	8,085
NHS Connecting for Health	15,000
NHS Estates	90,000
NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency	0
Total	113,085

Health Centres: Enfield

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many GP-led health centres have been procured in Enfield to date. [256778]

Mr. Bradshaw: Enfield primary care trust is currently procuring a general practitioner (GP)-led health centre in Edmonton. The primary care trust aims to sign the contract by the end of March 2009.

Health Services: Domestic Violence

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will take steps to ensure that primary care trusts fund specialised voluntary sector support for women who experience violence. [256371]

Ann Keen: It is for local commissioners to commission services according to local needs. The Department has taken integrated measures to prevent and eliminate domestic violence, including making significant progress in the early identification of, and intervention with, domestic violence victims.

We are currently developing a violence and abuse prevention framework, that includes evidence-based interventions and prevention measures from early childhood. It will focus on early interventions to reduce the risk of all forms of interpersonal violence and abuse, and will provide supportive toolkits, protocols, care pathways and commissioning guidance.

Health Services: Nutrition

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to reduce incidences of vitamin D deficiency. [257556]

Dawn Primarolo: It is the responsibility of the national health service to deal with incidences of vitamin D deficiency in their local area as this is a direct health care matter. The Department recommends a daily supplement of vitamin D to all pregnant and breastfeeding mothers, infants, young children, older people and those who do not expose their skin to sunlight who are particularly at risk of deficiency. The Department is developing an information leaflet to reiterate the importance of vitamin D to all health professionals and supports the provision of vitamin supplements under the Healthy Start scheme.

Health Services: Per Capita Costs

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the average annual cost of (a) training and (b) employing a (i) nurse, (ii) midwife, (iii) school nurse and (iv) health visitor. [256506]

Ann Keen: The national benchmark price for pre-registration training for both degree and diploma nursing students in the financial year 2007-08 was £6,816 outside London, and the average benchmark price for London was £7,260.

The national benchmark price for pre-registration training for both degree and diploma midwifery students in the financial year 2007-08 was £7,838 outside London, and the average benchmark price for London was £8,348.

In addition to tuition costs, nursing and midwifery trainees are entitled to either a bursary or salary support funding. The average bursary paid for degree students in 2007-08 was £2,672 outside London and £3,225 in London. The average bursary paid for diploma students in 2007-08 was £6,372 outside London and £7,443 in London.

Students may be entitled to other payments such as allowances for dependant children and the cost of national health service employees seconded on to nursing and midwifery training programmes will include a proportion of their salary costs.

Information on the average annual costs of training a school nurse and a health visitor is not held centrally.

The average (mean) annual costs of employing a nurse, midwife, school nurse and health visitor, are presented the following table. These figures are for 2008-09.

Notes:
1. Data not available by constituency area, the City of York constituency is contained within and served by the organisations provided here.
2. Data quality: Workforce statistics are compiled from data sent by more than 300 national health service (NHS) trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data. Processing methods and procedures are continually being updated to improve data quality. Where this happens any impact on figures already published will be assessed but unless this is significant at national level they will not be changed. Where there is impact only at detailed or local level this will be footnoted in relevant analyses.

Malnutrition

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients whose records are contained in the General Practice Research Database have at least one record of malnutrition (a) in total and (b) in the last year for which figures are available. [258900]

Dawn Primarolo: The General Practice Research Database (GPRD) contains records of patients recorded as suffering from malnutrition under a range of different terms, known as "Read Terms".

The total number of patients suffering from malnutrition, as identified by these terms within the GPRD, is 1,143. The number of patients suffering from malnutrition in the last full calendar year for which data is available, 2007, is 183.

The GPRD is a sample of approximately 5 per cent. of the United Kingdom population. However, actual malnutrition rates based on the entire UK population cannot be accurately calculated without full denominator information.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish the full statement his Department's spokesperson issued to the BBC in response to the story on the BBC website of 10 February 2009, entitled Malnutrition affecting three million in the UK; what further consideration his Department has given to the (a) findings and (b) recommendations contained in the report by the British Association for Parenteral and Enteral Nutrition, entitled Combating malnutrition: recommendations for action; and if he will make a statement. [258901]

Dawn Primarolo: The full statement issued was:

"The Department recognises that good diet and nutrition are important for everyone. Sustained investment in tackling health inequalities has paid off. Life expectancy in England is the highest it has ever been, including in disadvantaged areas.

"We are committed to reducing health inequalities further, and have put in place the most comprehensive programme ever in this country to address them. Sir Michael Marmot is currently exploring future policy and action on reducing health inequalities in England."

The Department has a number of programmes which contribute to the nutritional wellbeing of the population including particularly vulnerable older people and young children. Nutritional care is integral to our action to tackle health inequalities and in programmes such as Dignity in Care and Healthy Start and is also addressed in Healthy lives, brighter futures—The strategy for children and young people's health, and Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives: a cross-Government strategy for England. The Department recognises that ensuring good nutrition is essential in frontline health care.

British Association for Parenteral and Enteral Nutrition's recent report will feed into this work.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were recorded as having (a) an admission episode and (b) a discharge episode with a diagnosis of (i) malnutrition, (ii) nutritional anaemias and (iii) other nutritional deficiencies in NHS trusts in each year between 1997-98 and 2007-08 (A) in total and (B) broken down by NHS trust. [258902]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is available, but requires intensive and time-consuming use of statistical information systems. We will place the information in the Library once it is available.

Maternity Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to ensure that the 4,000 additional midwives he undertook to provide are being provided at a local level in the NHS; how many have already been provided; and how many he plans to provide in each year to 2012. [257564]

Ann Keen: Nationally, the national health service (NHS) is planning for an additional 1,000 midwives by September 2009, rising to around 4,000 extra midwives by 2012, contingent on the rising birth rate.

As the NHS Operating Framework 2009-10 explains, in January 2008, we announced an increase in primary care trusts (PCTs) baselines of £330 million for three years from 2008-09 to support improvements in maternity services. We are also looking to PCTs to develop more responsive services, that meet local needs and react to user feedback, including ensuring that the workforce has sufficient numbers of maternity staff.

The Department has invested in training for midwives and developed a joint action plan, with strategic health authorities and the Royal College of Nurses, to support local expansion of the maternity work force.

£1.5 million has been made available to support:

return to practice programmes for midwives who are on career breaks but are now ready to return back to work;

Leadership programmes for heads of midwifery and consultant midwives;

Developing midwives role within commissioning/provider agendas;

Mentoring training;

Clinical learning facilitators to support development of new qualified midwives;

Flexible retirement scheme to retain retired midwives in the local work force; and Maternity support workers programme.

The NHS Workforce Census for 2008, to be published in March 2009, will provide the most recent number of midwives.

National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood of 27 January 2009, Official Report, columns 410-11W, on NICE: Weber-Shandwick, whether the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence is a public authority for the purposes of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [258583]

Dawn Primarolo: We can confirm that the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence is subject to the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

NHS: Finance

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which current and on-going public finance initiative liabilities fall under the remit of his Department in (a) Hertfordshire and (b) the East of England strategic health authority. [259109]

Mr. Bradshaw: Private finance initiative (PFI) schemes open, under construction and PFI proposals in development within the boundaries of the East of England strategic health authority (which covers the county of Hertfordshire) are shown in the following table:

	Capital value (£ million)	PFI schemes operational
Norfolk and Norwich University Hospitals NHS Trust	158	New District General Hospital
Luton and Dunstable Hospital NHS Foundation Trust	15	St. Mary's Wing Development in Luton
East and North Hertfordshire PCT	15	Community hospital redevelopment
Cambridge University Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust	76	Elective Care Centre, Genetics and Diabetes at Addenbrookes
Ipswich Hospital NHS Trust	36	Garrett Anderson Treatment Centre
South West Essex PCT	30	Reprovision of Brentwood Community Hospital

	Capital value (£ million)	Expected opening date	PFI schemes under construction
South Essex Partnership NHS Foundation Trust	32	Quarter 2 2009	Medium and low security mental health unit on Runwell hospital site
Peterborough and Stamford Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust	336	Quarter 1 2012	Reconfiguration of acute hospital services
Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust	148	Quarter 3 2010	Relocation of maternity unit and modernisation of acute services including diagnostic and treatment centre in Chelmsford

	Capital value (£ million)	PFI proposals in development
West Hertfordshire Hospitals NHS Trust	280	Major acute service reconfiguration in Watford
Papworth Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust	125	New cardiothoracic centre
East and North Hertfordshire NHS Trust	110	Major overhaul of Trust estate at Stevenage

Under current UKGAAP accounting standards, the schemes open and under construction in the table are "off-balance" sheet and not therefore recorded as capital expenditure or for that matter liabilities.

NHS: Manpower

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost to the NHS of (a) training and (b) employing a health visitor in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [256493]

Ann Keen: The annual cost to the national health service of training a health visitor is not held centrally.

The estimated annual average cost of employing a health visitor is £41,000. This figure is for 2008-09.

It is based on average (mean) earnings in the NHS Information Centre's (IC) Quarterly Earnings Survey (April to June 2008), adjusted for 2008-09 pay settlement of 2.75 per cent. plus an estimate of employers' 'on-costs' for Pensions and National Insurance (NI) contributions.

NHS: Negligence

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average premium paid by NHS trusts to the NHS Litigation Authority (a) was in each of the last five years and (b) is estimated to be in 2009-10; and if he will make a statement. [255753]

Ann Keen: The data requested are in the following table and was provided by the NHS Litigation Authority (NHSLA). The tables cover the three schemes administered by the NHSLA on behalf of the Secretary of State and for which they collect contributions from members. The data covers information for all national health service (NHS) trusts and NHS foundation trusts that are members, as some NHS trusts will have been authorised to become NHS foundation trusts within a given membership year.

[1] Estimated contribution level

Contributions of individual members are determined by looking across a range of factors. For example, CNST contribution levels are influenced by the type of trust, the specialties it provides and the number of 'whole time equivalent clinical staff' it employs. Discounts are also available for good risk management practices and claims history.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many medical negligence claims were brought against each primary care trust (PCT) in each of the last five years; and what the cost of such claims was for each PCT. [258160]

Ann Keen: The data requested were provided by the National Health Service Litigation Authority, and are in the document 'Clinical negligence claims against PCTs 2003-2008'. A copy has been placed in the Library.

The data were correct as at 31 January 2009.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost to the NHS of (a) medical negligence cases and (b) other legal claims was in each year since 1997; and what estimate he has made of the potential costs arising from outstanding cases. [258161]

Ann Keen: The data requested were provided by the NHS Litigation Authority (NHSLA) in the following tables. The following points should be noted:

the NHSLA only collects data relating to their schemes. The NHSLA operates excess levels on some schemes whereby trusts handle claims below the excess levels themselves. These are not recorded by the NHSLA; excesses for the Existing Liabilities Scheme were removed in 2000-01 and for the Clinical Negligence Scheme for Trusts in 2001-02. Existing claims that fell below excess were then funded by those schemes, which accounts for the increase in clinical payments in those years; and the data is not comprehensive because individual trusts will hold data relating to claims outside of the NHSLA's schemes or under the excess levels.

Nutrition

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will undertake an audit of data collected in relation to malnutrition; if he will assess what additional data needed to be collected; if he will establish a new data collection model and data standards for the collection of information on malnutrition; if he will put in place an annual audit of the quality of nutritional care delivered by all care providers; and if he will make a statement. [257184]

Dawn Primarolo: There are no plans to undertake an audit of data collected in relation to malnutrition. Data on malnutrition is collected through Hospital Episodes Statistics at the Information Centre and goes through a rigorous and comprehensive validation. Primary care information for this is not collected centrally.

Obesity

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to reduce levels of obesity amongst (a) women of child-bearing age and (b) pregnant women. [258286]

Dawn Primarolo: In January 2008, the Government published "Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives: A Cross-Government Strategy for England", this sets out our plans to tackle the rise in obesity levels. A copy has already been placed in the Library.

Our strategy sets out how we aim to provide everyone, this will include women of child bearing age, with the information and opportunities to achieve, and maintain, a healthy weight. In relation to pregnant women the Healthy Child programme (previously called The Child Health Promotion programme) which is the early intervention and prevention public health programme from pregnancy through the first five years of life prioritises obesity prevention. This programme supports those parents with particular risk factors that may cause overweight and obesity.

Organs: Donors

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many donations of human organs were made in each region in each year since 2000. [258988]

Ann Keen: The following tables show the number of deceased donors in each former national health service region in England in each calendar year, 2000-08, and the percentage change in donor numbers between each year:

[1] Former national health service regions are now strategic health authorities, but it is useful to continue using the previous regions for the purposes of comparing data due to changes in geographical boundaries. Region of donation is defined by the location on the donation hospital, rather than the donor's place of residence.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mandatory training is required of (a) intensive care and (b) accident and emergency medical staff on (i) obtaining consent for organ donation and (ii) organ donation procedures; and if he will make a statement. [258992]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect this information centrally. We have commissioned the Central Office of Information to map the existing training provision, validate the training requirement gap and identify solutions for priority audiences.

This work was commissioned in response to the recommendation in 'Organs for Transplants', by the Organ Donation Taskforce, that all clinical staff likely to be involved in the treatment of potential organ donors should receive mandatory training in the principles of organ donation.

Once this piece of work is completed, the Department will be working with the national health service, NHS Blood and Transplant (NHSBT) and other key stakeholder organisations to ensure that NHS performance in these areas improves.

Subutex

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prescriptions for subutex were dispensed by community pharmacies in the latest period for which figures are available. [256849]

Phil Hope: From December 2007 to November 2008 Prescription Cost Analysis (PCA) data collected by NHS Prescription Services, indicate that 630,800 prescription items for Buprenorphine products, of which Subutex is a brand, were dispensed by community pharmacists in England. PCA data records what has been reimbursed to dispensing contractors but does not record which particular Buprenorphine products have been dispensed to fill generically written prescriptions. Therefore the data also includes generically written prescriptions for Buprenorphine which may have been dispensed with Subutex.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to update guidelines on the treatment with subutex of prisoners who are addicted to drugs. [256866]

Phil Hope: The current guidelines were updated in 2007 and are set out in "Drug Misuse and Dependence: UK Guidelines on clinical management". Additional guidance is contained in "Clinical management of drug dependence in the adult prison setting, including psychosocial treatment as a core part" published in 2006. Copies of both documents have already been placed in the Library.

Thalidomide

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS trusts are equipped to measure the blood pressure of a patient who is upper limb deficient as a result of thalidomide. [258836]

Dawn Primarolo: This is information is not collected.

Thrombosis

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to include risk assessment for venous thromboembolism in hospitalised patients as an indicator in the Commissioning for Quality and Innovation payment framework. [254813]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is not mandating any indicators for inclusion in the Commissioning for Quality and Innovation (CQUIN) payment framework. The Department has set a framework for schemes to be developed locally, with all indicators and goals to be agreed between health care commissioners and providers. The only requirement is that each local scheme should include at least one goal in each of four areas: safety, effectiveness, patient experience and innovation.

The Department regards the prevention of venous thromboembolism (VTE) in hospitals as an extremely important issue, which is why we published the National VTE Risk Assessment in September 2008, a copy of which has been placed in the Library. The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence is also developing a clinical guideline to cover the prevention of VTE in all hospitalised patients, and I understand that they plan to publish the guideline in November of this year.

Transplant Surgery

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people received a (a) heart, (b) lung, (c) kidney, (d) cornea, (e) tissue, (f) pancreas and (g) liver transplant in England in each year since 2000. [258989]

Ann Keen: The following table shows the number of people receiving heart; lung; kidney; cornea; sclera; pancreas and liver transplants in England in each calendar year, 2000 to 2008. Information on other tissues are not held centrally.

Organ	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
Kidney	1,410	1,459	1,475	1,474	1,636	1,610	1,813	1,892	2,131
Heart	235	199	161	153	172	149	153	127	121
Lung(s)	131	126	128	150	134	137	124	129	139

Sclera	144	89	147	131	202	161	178	247	252

Notes:
1. Figures include all combinations of organs, so for example kidney figures include kidney/pancreas; pancreas figures include pancreas/kidney; kidney figures include kidney/liver etc.
2. Figures include transplants from living donors.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average post-operation life expectancy of a patient receiving a (a) heart, (b) lung, (c) kidney, (d) liver (e) cornea, (f) pancreas and (g) tissue transplant is. [258990]

Ann Keen: The success of organ transplantation is measured in terms of patient or graft survival rates, rather than life expectancy. With the exception of information on corneas which shows graft survival, the following table illustrates the most recent figures available for adult patient survival one year post transplant in England.

Transplant type	Survival (percentage)	Year of transplant
Deceased[1] donor kidney	96	2003 to 2006
Living donor kidney	99	2003 to 2006
Heart	81	2003 to 2006
Lung(s)	75	2003 to 2006
Liver	89	2003 to 2006
Pancreas	98	2004 to 2006
Corneas[2]	93	2001 to 2007

[1] Heartbeating.
[2] Graft survival only for corneas.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many transplant co-ordinators were employed by each health authority in England in each year since 2000. [258991]

Ann Keen: Information on the number of donor transplant coordinators employed by national health service trusts is not collected centrally. However as part of the implementation of the Organ Donation Taskforce recommendations, all donor transplant coordinators will eventually be employed by NHS Blood and Transplant. 30 donor transplant coordinators previously employed by NHS trusts, Transfer of Undertakings Protection of Employment (TUPE) transferred to NHSBT employment in October and November 2008. A further 10 TUPE transfers are planned by the end of the current financial year. The TUPE transfer process of the staff within the remaining 12 donor transplant coordinator teams currently employed locally by NHS trusts will take place during the course of 2009-10.

Following two recruitment campaigns, 39 new donor transplant coordinators have been recruited and a third recruitment campaign has been launched with the intention of recruiting a further 20 new staff. Further recruitment campaigns will take place over the next 18 months. It is anticipated that a total of 265 staff, including both donor transplant coordinators and office support staff, will be in post by the end of 2010-11.

Transplant Surgery: Foreigners

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 14 January 2009, Official Report, columns 827-32W, on transplant surgery: foreigners, what the (a) NHS tariff and (b) private tariff is in each hospital for each type of transplant. [258898]

Ann Keen: This information is not held centrally. There is no national mandatory tariff for transplant surgery, which means that price for this activity will be subject to negotiation between providers and commissioners.

Trauma

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department has issued guidance to local healthcare trusts on minimum arrangements for pre-hospital airway management care of trauma patients. [258844]

Mr. Bradshaw: Ambulance staff are trained and provide airway management care of trauma patients in line with specific clinical guidelines. These are produced by the Joint Royal Colleges Ambulance Liaison Committee.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Impact Assessments

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many equalities impact assessments the Government Equalities Office has undertaken in the last 12 month period for which figures are available; and what estimate she has made of the cost to the public purse of such assessments. [255062]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office has not undertaken any impact assessments in the last 12 months. An equality impact assessment for the consultation on the Equality Bill was made in the summer of 2007 and the Government Equalities Office will undertake an assessment on the Bill itself.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what expert advisers have been commissioned by the Government Equalities Office since its establishment; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the adviser so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246969]

Maria Eagle: Since its establishment on 12 October 2007 the Government Equalities Office has not commissioned any individual expert advisers.

Departmental Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working in the Government Equalities Office in each year since its inception; and what was spent on such bonuses. [249851]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office currently employs seven senior civil servants. Three of these staff were awarded non-consolidated performance pay totalling £24,000 in 2007-08, the first full year of GEO operations. Given these small numbers information about the individuals involved and the amounts awarded to each cannot be disclosed on grounds of confidentiality.

Travelling People: Equality

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what (a) research and (b) other work the Equality and Human Rights Commission has undertaken in relation to Travellers in the last 12 months. [257552]

Maria Eagle: The Equality and Human Rights Commission has undertaken the following:

(a) Research

(i) A review of the inequalities experienced by Gypsy and Traveller communities.

(ii) An assessment of local housing authorities' progress in meeting the accommodation needs of Gypsy and Traveller communities in England.

Both pieces of research will be published in March 2009.

(b) Stakeholder Engagement

(i) The Commission's Policy Position Statement will be issued in March 2009 alongside the research and best practice case studies.

(ii) The Commission intervened as a third party in the case between Basildon council and the Dale Farm Gypsy and Traveller community. In the Commission's view the local authority failed to undertake an equality impact assessment to establish any disproportionate impact, for example, on the mental health of children that might arise from forced eviction. In light of the decision by the court of appeal which ruled in favour of Basildon council, the Commission has met with senior officers from the council to ensure that they are aware of their legal obligations and to explore ways forward that would meet the interests of all concerned.

Women: Economic Situation

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what representations she has received from women on the effects of the economic downturn. [255864]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office (GEO) and the Ministers for Women and Equality have received a number of letters and e-mails from women setting out the effects that the economic downturn is having on them personally. The GEO has also received a letter from Working Families detailing the experiences of women who have called their free helpline since October 2009. These calls are mainly relating to redundancy, dismissal and insolvency.

Community Relations: Finance

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 245-6W, on Preventing Violent Extremism Community Leadership Fund, how much each organisation received from the fund in 2007-08; and how much each organisation currently receiving funding will receive between 2008-09 and 2010-11. [259139]

Mr. Khan: The 2007-08 funding allocations for each organisation are set out in the following table.

Subsequent funding allocations through the Community Leadership Fund for 2008-09 to 2010-11 have been published on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/news/communities/987558

Community Relations: Islam

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 246W, on Radical Middleway, how much the Radical Middleway Programme will cost in 2008-09; and how much her Department will contribute towards this. [259189]

Mr. Khan: Communities and Local Government are funding the Radical Middle Way at £350,000.00 for their domestic programme of work. This represents the total cost of their programme this year.

Community Relations: Religion

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding her Department plans to release as part of round one of the Faiths in Action programme in 2009-10; how much it has allocated to the programme for that financial year; and if she will make a statement. [259330]

Mr. Khan: The Department intends to make £600,000 available during 2009-10 for grants in round one of the Faiths in Action scheme. A shortlist of applications is presently being considered and I plan to make an announcement soon.

Council Housing

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what estimate she has made of the average percentage of annual rent from a new build social home built under the proposals outlined in Changes to the revenue and capital rules for new council housing, that will be spent on (a) repaying the debt from building the property, (b) maintenance, (c) management and (d) repairs in the first year of operation of the revised rules; [258961]

(2) what estimate she has made of the average annual cost to a local authority of servicing the debt required to build one new build social home under the proposals outlined in the Changes to the revenue and capital rules for new council housing consultation in the first year of operation of the revised rules. [258962]

Mr. Iain Wright: Our proposals will enable councils to exclude new properties from the subsidy system. This will allow them to retain surplus rents on those properties to help fund development costs. The amount of borrowing needed to build a new home and the cost to an authority of servicing debt associated with a scheme will depend on the level of rent, and the amount of grant support and other capital subsidy.

The consultation paper on the revenue and capital changes says that nationally in aggregate, management, maintenance and repairs for council houses represent 72 per cent. of assumed rental income, leaving 28 per cent. available to service any prudential borrowing.

Council Housing: Rents

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effect of proposed local authority rent increases on their tenants in (a) Luton and (b) England. [257325]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities remain responsible for setting their actual rents, in consultation with their tenants, and will want to consider what is affordable and acceptable locally when doing this. Central government does not intervene in this decision.

However, we do want to encourage all social landlords to set rents that are affordable and fair for their tenants.

Disadvantaged: Coastal Areas

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the score of each of the lower layer super output areas in each principal seaside town in England was in each domain of the index of multiple deprivation for (a) 2004 and (b) 2007, ranked from highest to lowest in each year. [257542]

John Healey: I have placed in the Library of the House a table which lists the score and rank of each of the Lower Super Output Areas (LSOAs)—for each domain of the Indices of Deprivation—in the local authority districts which contain the principal seaside towns. This table provides the data for 2004 and 2007, and also identifies the ward in which each LSOA is located.

Eco-Towns: Publicity

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 29 October 2008, Official Report, column 1142W, on eco-towns: finance, how much expenditure has been incurred on each (a) exhibition and (b) road show on eco-towns. [252797]

Mr. Iain Wright: The total cost of exhibition and roadshow activity incurred to date by the Department is £369,568.90. It is not possible to provide individual costs for each event as a substantial proportion of the costs relate to the management and production of the event programme as a whole.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people visited each eco-town roadshow; and how much each roadshow cost to provide, broken down by cost category. [254128]

Margaret Beckett: Due to the 'turn up and view' nature of the eco-town roadshows, there was no registration process. Therefore we do not have records of the actual numbers of visitors to each roadshow. However, 9,000 of the 'Have Your Say' leaflets were given out over the 15 days that the events ran.

In terms of the roadshow costs I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) today (PQ 252797).

Fire Services: Working Hours

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effect on flex-duty fire brigade officers of the proposed ending of the opt-out from the EU Working Time Directive. [258640]

Mr. Khan: Although arrangements vary across the Fire and Rescue Service, typically officers on the flexible duty system are required to work a weekly average of no more than 42 positive managerial hours; and to provide standby cover on an on-call basis which should average not more than 36 hours per week.

The amendments voted by the European Parliament in December to end opt-outs from the working time directive's 48-hour weekly maximum; and to the treatment of inactive on-call time as working time could, taken together, have a substantial impact on FRS officers working the flexible duty system. The UK therefore places great importance on retaining the opt-out and other flexibilities agreed by the Council of Ministers in June and will continue to defend them.

Holocaust Memorial Day

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government took to mark Holocaust Memorial Day 2009; and if she will make a statement. [256731]

Mr. Khan: The theme of Holocaust Memorial Day 2009, organised by the Holocaust Memorial Day Trust, was 'Stand Up to Hatred'. It examined what hatred means; how it can be enshrined in actions, language and legislation; and how each individual can help to make our communities strong and safe.

A number of hon. Members attended the national commemoration on 25 January 2009 at the Belgrade Theatre in Coventry. These included my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government; and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Home Department. I also attended, and was able to meet with a number of survivors at a reception, where I read a goodwill message from my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister.

In addition to this, on 26 January 2009 I attended the Beth Shalom Centre where I was able to take part in a service marking Holocaust Memorial Day. The Beth Shalom Centre is a place of remembrance for the victims of the Holocaust and a place of education, challenge and reflection for people everywhere.

On 29 January 2009, I opened and closed a Topical Debate on the floor of the House of Commons which was dedicated to Holocaust Memorial Day.

Bodies that commemorate the Holocaust and subsequent genocides play a vital role in ensuring that we never allow ourselves forget past atrocities, and help our and future generations to learn from them. The Government are continuing strongly to support such bodies, as well as bodies whose work is associated with the theme of this year's event. This includes core grant funding of £750,000 to the Holocaust Memorial Day Trust, an increase of 50 per cent. on previous years.

Local Government Finance: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent representations she has received in respect of the local government grant support settlement for the London borough of Bexley. [257844]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 22 January 2009, Official Record, column 1660W. Parliament approved the Local Government Finance Settlement 2009/10 on Wednesday 4 February. The Department has received no further representations on the level of Government grant support to the London borough of Bexley.

Local Government: Billing

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to encourage local authorities to pay invoices within 10 days of receipt. [257548]

John Healey: Local authorities are responsible for their own payment arrangements and in the present economic downturn many are taking steps to ensure invoices are settled promptly.

Members: Correspondence

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she plans to reply to the letter of 12 January 2009 from the hon. Member for Sittingbourne and Sheppey. [258841]

Mr. Khan: The Minister for Local Government replied to the hon. Member on 19 February 2009.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to reply to the letter of 19 January 2009 from the hon. Member for Billericay on business rates. [258993]

Mr. Khan: The Minister for Local Government replied to the hon. Member on 20 February 2009.

Non-Domestic Rates: Business

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she has made an assessment of the likely effects on businesses of the increase in business rates in 2009-10. [257579]

John Healey: Established Government policy on Impact Assessments:

www.berr.gov.uk/files/file44544.pdf

is that they are not required where a predetermined formula, such as the rate of inflation, changes the rate of a tax.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment her Department has made of the effect of the new empty property business rates on local economies and local firms. [257949]

John Healey: An Impact Assessment detailing the impact of the empty property reforms was published by Communities and Local Government in May 2007 accompanying the introduction of the Rating (Empty Properties) Bill and a further assessment was laid before this House on 26 February accompanying the Non-Domestic Rating (Unoccupied Property) (England) Regulations 2008—Number: 386.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what estimate her Department has made of (a) the number of businesses eligible to claim small business rate relief and (b) the value of small business rate relief eligible to be claimed in each year since 2005; [258077]

(2) how many businesses paid small business rate relief supplements in each year since 2005; and what the value was of small business rate relief supplements collected in each year since 2005. [258079]

John Healey: Local authorities reported there were 392,000 businesses in England in receipt of small business rate relief as at 31 December 2006, the only year for which this information is currently available. Information on the number of businesses who paid the small business rate relief supplement is not available.

Details of the total relief granted and the value of the supplement collected since 2005-06 are given, in £ millions, in the following table.

	Relief granted	£ million Amount raised
2005-06	202	306
2006-07	237	311
2007-08	260	133

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the average administrative cost to businesses of applying for small business rate relief. [258081]

John Healey: No such estimate has been made. However, a regulatory impact assessment detailing the impact of the small business rate relief (SBRR) scheme was published by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister in January 2005 accompanying the introduction of the Non-Domestic Rating (Small Business Rate Relief) (England) Order 2004—Number: 3315—and a further assessment was laid before the House by Communities and Local Government on the 23 August accompanying the Non-Domestic Rating (Small Business Rate Relief) (Amendment) (England) Order 2006—Number: 2313.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to ensure that businesses are aware of their entitlement to small business rate relief. [258083]

John Healey: Local authorities include with rate bills information about the small business rate relief scheme and the website www.businesslink.gov.uk

also contains information about various aspects of the non-domestic rating system, including the small business rate relief scheme. Business rates information letters were also sent by the Department in September 08 to all local authorities in England to clarify the deadlines for applying for small business rate relief and to remind them that they should encourage businesses to apply for the relief.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how the level of small business rate relief supplements is calculated. [258159]

John Healey: The small business rate relief scheme is a self-financing scheme, funded by a supplement paid by businesses that do not meet the eligibility criteria. The level of the supplement in 2009-10 was calculated using information supplied by local authorities from their national non-domestic rates returns submitted to the Department about the cost of the small business rate relief scheme in previous years. A further estimate was made about the cost of the amendment to the scheme which comes into effect on 1 April 2009, allowing occupants of new properties that join the rating list during the financial year to claim relief. The value of the supplement is based on these estimates and a forecast of the number and aggregate value of properties that are able to fund the scheme.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to her Department's statistical release of 17 May 2007 on national non-domestic rates to be collected by local authorities in England 2007-08, how the excess in small business rate supplements collected in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07 was spent. [258164]

John Healey: The small business rate relief scheme is a self-financing scheme, funded by a supplement paid by larger businesses that do not meet the eligibility criteria.

The supplement is adjusted each year to take account of the amount of revenue required to fund the scheme and can also be adjusted to ensure that over the lifetime of the scheme the relief is self financing. In years 2007-08 and 2008-09 the supplement was set at a lower rate than the costs in those years to meet the aim that large businesses do not over fund the scheme.

All non-domestic rate revenues collected are redistributed back to local authorities as part of the Local Government Finance Settlement.

Non-Domestic Rates: Ports

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the amount paid in non-domestic rates by port businesses in each year from 2003 via the cumulo system. [258234]

John Healey: This information is not collected by Communities and Local Government.

Any contractual agreement for payment of non-domestic rates on behalf of port businesses is a matter between them and their port operator.

Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre: VAT

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre has reduced its retail prices for items which attract value added tax, including in its canteens, since December 2008. [258394]

Mr. Khan: The QE2 Conference Centre has applied the reduced rate of value added tax in accordance with HMRC guidelines to all its services since December 2008 and has passed this reduction in price on to its customers. Catering facilities at the centre are provided through a catering concession contract, by Leith's, part of the Compass Group. Customers contract directly with Leith's for their catering services and Leith's have also passed on the value added tax price reduction to the customer.

Regional Ministers: Publicity

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost of (a) production and (b) circulation of newsletters on the activities of each Regional Minister was in the last 12 months [258688]

Mr. Khan: The information is as follows:

GO	Date	Cost of production	Cost of circulation
GO East	January/ February 2009	£989 including VAT. This is for the set up of an electronic template for the newsletter to be delivered as PDF format.	No cost. Newsletter sent electronically via e-mail.
GONW	7 April 2008	£1,850.63 (including VAT) for design of template	No cost
	31 July	No cost	No cost
	6 November	No cost	No cost
	18 February	No cost	No cost

The other seven Government offices did not produce separate newsletters on the activities of their Regional Ministers.

Rented Housing: York

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new (a) council and (b) housing association homes for rent have been built in City of York constituency in each year since the creation of the unitary local authority. [257829]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on social rented homes by constituency is not available. The following table shows the number of new social rented homes built by registered social landlords in the City of York unitary authority for each year from 1996-97. There have not been any new social rented homes built by local authorities in the City of York unitary authority since 1996-97. The figures exclude acquisitions of social rented homes.

	Registered social landlords new build social rented homes
1997-98	100
1999-2000	160
2000-01	130
2001-02	110
2002-03	80
2003-04	120
2004-05	170
2005-06	170
2006-07	40
2007-08	30

Source:
Homes and Communities Agency Investment Management System (IMS), and Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA) returns submitted to CLG by local authorities

Not all social rented housing is provided by new build completions, as some supply can come from acquisitions. In 2005-06, an additional four social rented homes were acquired by RSLs in the City of York unitary authority; these are not included in the main PQ answer. There have been no acquisitions in later years.

Social Rented Housing

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to social landlords on (a) the implementation of rent rises under the target rent regime and (b) the effects of the regime on tenants for whom such rises may cause financial hardship. [258842]

Mr. Iain Wright: The setting of actual rents is a matter for local housing authorities.

The former Office of the Deputy Prime Minister issued "A Guide to Social Rent Reforms in the Local Authority Sector" in February 2003, which outlined the principles of the rent restructuring programme including the formulae to be used for calculating formula and guideline rents, and the 'caps and limits' on rent charges designed to protect tenants from unduly high rent increases in any one year.

The guide makes clear the basis of the Government's policy which is that social rents should remain affordable, and well below those in the private sector. The rent formula includes an element to reflect local earnings to take account of affordability.

Tenants' Rights

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) whether she plans to implement the proposals of the Law Commission to facilitate the succession of secure tenancies of social housing to the children of couples upon their demise; [258274]

(2) if she will bring forward legislative proposals to amend the Housing Act 1985 to facilitate the succession of a secure tenancy to the child of a couple following their demise. [258275]

Mr. Iain Wright: We have no current plans to amend the rights of succession. While the law currently allows each tenancy to be succeeded only once, local housing authorities do have the freedom to grant new tenancies to those unable to succeed, having considered the merits of individual cases in line with their duty to address housing need.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many rounds of ammunition have been discharged in Helmand province by British forces in each roulement since June 2006, broken down by ammunition type. [257687]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 11 February 2009, Official Report, column 1993W.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the average tour interval for each regiment of the (a) Royal Logistics Corps, (b) Royal Artillery, (c) Royal Signals and (d) Royal Engineers is; [257692]

(2) what the average tour interval for each battalion of the infantry is. [257688]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Historical data to support the calculation of the average tour interval for each battalion or regiment of the Infantry or the Royal Artillery (RA) are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The following tables show the last operational tour interval for each infantry and RA unit as at 18 February 2009, based on the unit's last two operational tours to Iraq, Afghanistan, the Balkans, Northern Ireland or Cyprus. The deployments listed are the unit deployments, defined as a regiment deploying with a regimental headquarters and more than two manoeuvre sub-units for four months or more.

Notes:
1. Subunits from 3 RHA have subsequently deployed in support of operations but are not of sufficient size or duration to be included as a tour interval measure.
2. Subunits from 5, 12, 16, 26, 32, 39, 47 Regt RA have also deployed in support of operations but are not of sufficient size or duration to be included as a tour interval measure.

Unit tour interval data for the Royal Logistics Corps, Royal Corps of Signals and the Corps of Royal Engineers are not held in the format requested. The unit tour interval is a less relevant measure when applied to these corps due to the frequency with which personnel move between formed units.

Armed Forces: Electoral Register

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent estimate he has made of the number and proportion of members of the armed forces who are eligible to vote but who are not registered to vote. [258393]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 30 October 2008, Official Report, column 1225W, to the hon. Member for North Wiltshire (Mr. Gray).

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the Service Voting Survey 2008 in the Library. [258872]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Yes, once it has been finalised.

Armed Forces: Pay

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the X-factor adjustment to military pay in supporting the salaries of service personnel. [258429]

Mr. Kevan Jones: X-Factor is comprehensively reviewed, usually every five years, by the independent Armed Forces' Pay Review Body (AFPRB) which assesses both MOD and independent civilian evidence. The last review of X-Factor was carried out in 2007 to inform the 2008 AFPRB report. In the report, the AFPRB noted that all the evidence was unanimous and emphatic that X-Factor is an important part of the overall remuneration package for the armed forces. As a result of the evidence gathered, the AFPRB judged that an increase in the level of X-Factor from 13 per cent. to 14 per cent. of base pay was warranted, together with a change to the tapering arrangements for Lieutenant Colonels and equivalent and above. The Government accepted this recommendation which was implemented in full from 1 April 2008. The AFPRB is scheduled to review X-Factor again in 2012 for its 2013 report.

Armed Forces: Uniforms

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost is of his Department's contract with the Chinese company producing British army uniforms. [258000]

Mr. Quentin Davies: All MOD contracts for British army uniforms are currently held with UK suppliers who source raw materials globally and use a number of overseas subcontractors for production. The cost of such subcontracts is a matter for the supplier.

Defence: Procurement

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the written statement of 29 October 2008, Official Report, columns 28-30WS, on protected mobility, what proportion of the funds allocated from the Reserve to the protected mobility package will be repaid from the Defence Budget. [257702]

Mr. Quentin Davies: None. HM Treasury is contributing £500 million from the Reserve towards the protected mobility package, and the remainder will be funded by the MOD. While this package will deliver crucial and urgent capability for current operations in Afghanistan, it is also relevant to the MOD's longer-term equipment plans, so it is appropriate that the MOD should contribute towards the package.

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether Ministers in his Department have received representations relating to defence procurement contracts from (a) Lord Truscott and (b) Lord Moonie in the last three years. [257763]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Ministers have received no such representations from Lord Truscott. Ministers have received no representations from Lord Moonie in relation to specific defence procurement contracts although in 2007 he sought two meetings with departmental Ministers, on behalf of the University of Pittsburgh Medical Centre, and Maersk UK's Shipping Division. Discussion was of a general nature rather than in relation to specific contracts.

equivalent where applicable, by December 2009. A web page summary of the www.mod.uk accessibility policy will be published to the site by 2 March 2009, as well as the full policy.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, columns 32-3W, on departmental manpower, in which parts of the country civilian staff in the redeployment pool band D and equivalent and above are required to work. [258590]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Full-time staff at Band D and equivalent and above are classed as having a full mobility obligation, which renders them liable to transfer to any location in the UK or abroad. Staff below Band D and all part-time staff, regardless of grade, have a minimum mobility obligation. This means that they are liable to temporary detached duty and can be transferred locally to other suitable employment within reasonable daily travelling distance.

Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by (a) his Department and (b) the Met Office is in 2008-09. [258515]

Mr. Kevan Jones: MOD has only one part vacant property recorded on e-PIMS. The estimated cost of the vacant element is £2,425 in 2008-09. The MOD actually pays some £60,000 per annum in rates on the building. There are no costs associated with properties owned by the Meteorological Office.

Ex-servicemen: Offenders

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) plans to undertake on (i) the factors associated with offending by former members of the armed forces and (ii) the incidence of post-traumatic stress disorder amongst such offenders. [258186]

Mr. Kevan Jones: In concert with the Ministry of Justice the Ministry of Defence plans to conduct research this year on the proportion of veterans in the prison population using data provided by the Ministry of Justice. We also aim to conduct research on offending among those who have served in Iraq and Afghanistan linked to our existing health research on this cohort which includes mental health aspects such as post-traumatic stress disorder.

Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the schedule of payments is for the Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft under the private finance initiative contract; and when each payment is due to be made. [258997]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The payment for the Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft is dependent upon the level of usage by the MOD. Invoices will be presented to the MOD each month.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the private finance initiative contract signed with the Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft consortium requires the armed forces to use the consortium to undertake all air-to-air refuelling tasks for the period of the contract. [258998]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The FSTA contract does not prevent the RAF from continuing to receive from, or provide fuel to, other nations' air forces.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many equipment failure reports have been received in respect of armoured vehicles during (a) operations in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan and (b) training in each of the last 12 months, broken down by vehicle type. [257679]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The information is shown in the following table.

The equipment failure reporting system (EFRS) is the mandated system for equipment users to report failures, such as accidental damage, maintenance related failures and breakdowns, or the failure of an item fitted to the vehicle. It does not incorporate the results of subsequent investigations and therefore does not differentiate between what might later prove to have been a problem caused by operator error or damage sustained as a result of operations. Nor do these data record the severity of a failure which might have no discernible impact on operational capability or safety. It is not possible using EFRs to distinguish how many of the EFRs in the 'Others' section were as a result of training, and some of the EFRs raised in Iraq and Afghanistan may have been during in theatre training rather than during the conduct of operations.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many services personnel have experienced (a) heatstroke and (b) other heat exhaustion illness in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan in each year since 2005. [257695]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Ministry of Defence records instances of heat illness as part of its monitoring of climatic injury. Heat illness has traditionally been divided into heat exhaustion and heat stroke, but in practice it is difficult to define the division between the two. Heat illness is therefore used to cover the full continuum of illness ranging from mild symptoms such as muscular weakness, headache and excess fatigue to more serious outcomes such as collapse or coma.

The following table shows the instances of heat illness, among UK service personnel, that have required attendance at a Field hospital for Operation Telic since 2005 and Operation Herrick since reporting began in August 2006:

	Op Telic	Op Herrick
2005	62	n/a
2006	90	16
2007	98	59
2008	32	46

These figures were provided by the Defence Analytical Services and Advice (DASA) and extracted from the Operational Emergency Department Attendance register (OpEDAR).

This table updates the figures given in a previous answer on 27 October 2008, Official Report, column 640-41W. Where a change in numbers has occurred this has been due to subsequent validation by DASA of the OpEDAR dataset.

These figures provide an indication of instances of heat illness.

Joint Strike Fighter Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to make a decision on the acquisition of the low initial rate production aircraft for the Joint Strike Fighter. [257683]

Mr. Quentin Davies: We will make a decision once the formal contract negotiations, in which we are closely engaged, for these aircraft are complete and we have been able to judge affordability within the present planning round. I will inform the House once these negotiations have concluded and a decision has been made.

Land Mines

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence at which of his Department's properties in Scotland (a) land mines and (b) cluster bombs are stored. [258119]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Anti-vehicle land mines (bar mines) are stored at the Defence Storage and Distribution Agency's (DSDA) Longtown explosives storage facility at Eastriggs in Dumfries and Galloway.

No cluster munitions are stored on MOD property in Scotland. Inert training versions of the BL 755 bomb, that contain no explosives or bomblets, are stored at DSDA's Glen Douglas facility in Argyll and Bute, awaiting disposal.

Pakistan: Military Aid

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armed forces personnel are currently deployed in Pakistan; in which roles; and if he will make a statement. [258849]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are currently 23 UK military personnel based in Pakistan. UK personnel undertake a variety of roles, including training and liaison. In addition, some personnel undertake diplomatic duties and fill exchange posts.

Peacekeeping Operations

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) maximum, (b) minimum and (c) average cash allowance awarded to civilian staff in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan was in each of the last two years. [258751]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 25 February 2009]: The information requested is as follows.

Iraq

The maximum monthly allowance for the last two years is £8,250 before tax for a civil servant based in Basra. The minimum payment for the same period is £5,000 for a civil servant based in Baghdad.

Afghanistan

The maximum monthly allowance for the last two years is £8,000 before tax for a civil servant based in Lashkar Gah. The minimum payment for the same period is £4,750 for a civil servant based in Kandahar.

Information on the average cash allowances awarded to civilian staff in operational theatres is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

MOD civil servants, unlike members of the armed forces, deploy into Iraq and Afghanistan on a voluntary basis to provide specialist support to UK armed forces. They are usually deployed for a six-month period during which time they are required to work long hours, live and work in austere conditions alongside their military counterparts and be exposed to dangerous conditions.

Such conditions are recognised through a system of taxable operational allowances which are reviewed on a regular basis. The total sum payable to individuals will vary. It is dependent on both their grade and their location.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families from which (a) duties and (b) obligations imposed on maintained schools and their employees some or all academies are exempt; and if he will make a statement. [258222]

Jim Knight: It is not only education law which applies to maintained schools and their employees. There is a wide range of legislation which applies to such schools to a lesser or greater extent. It would therefore be a massive, and ongoing, task for the Department to compile such a list, and to try to establish it would incur a disproportionate cost.

Academies are accountable through their funding agreements and legislation. This includes duties under equalities, procurement, employment and health and safety law, all of which are applied to maintained schools in the same way.

Nevertheless, in relation to education law, the regulatory framework applied to academies is lighter touch than the framework applied to maintained schools. This is because we wish to give academies flexibility in the way they are run in many areas—e.g. curriculum content and delivery (although, since 2007 all new academies have to follow the national curriculum for English, Maths, Science and ICT), organisation of the school day, pay and conditions of teachers—in order to help break through entrenched educational failure and low aspiration. Through offering innovative solutions towards tackling educational under-achievement academies are making significant strides towards improving the attainment of children within our most educationally disadvantaged communities. In 2008, the 36 academies which have been open long enough to have results in both 2007 and 2008 have seen an increase of 11.5 per cent. in the number of pupils at the end of key stage 4 gaining five or more A*-C grades at GCSE and equivalent. This is more than twice the otherwise impressive increase of 4.6 per cent. seen nationally.

Copies of our model funding agreement documentation and a list of some of the key legislative requirements on academies have been placed in the Libraries to illustrate how academies are held to account. Copies of open academies' funding agreements can be viewed on the DCSF FOI website http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/foischeme/subPage.cfm?action=collections.displayCollection&icollectionID=190

Academies: Sponsorship

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what measures are in place to support academies in the event that their sponsors become bankrupt; and if he will make a statement. [249434]

Jim Knight: If a sponsor wishes to withdraw involvement, for whatever reason, once an academy has been opened then the academy trust and DCSF would agree the best way forward. The prime consideration would be the needs of the pupils at the academy.

Academy financial sponsorship is of two types. More recent academies have sponsorship in the form of contribution to endowment funds. The income from these funds is intended to be used to enhance students' opportunities and widen the academy's role in its community, but does not contribute to the recurrent costs of providing education. Therefore any shortfall in sponsorship contributions, whilst regrettable, does not produce any need for additional support of the academy concerned.

Earlier academies have sponsorship in the form of contributions towards the capital cost, and in some cases contributions are complete. Where they are not, and a sponsor has difficulty completing payments on time, we will consider on a case-by-case basis what action to take.

Care Proceedings

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he takes to monitor the activity of local authorities in respect of care proceedings in each year. [258204]

Beverley Hughes: Local authorities are responsible for initiating care proceedings based on their assessment in each specific case as to the likelihood of children facing significant harm attributable to the care provided by their parents.

The Department collects data from local authorities via annual returns once children have become looked after which include care orders, placement orders and emergency protection orders. The Department also receives data on the level of care applications via the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service.

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the effect of changes in court fees in respect of care applications on numbers of such applications. [258205]

Beverley Hughes: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families has asked Lord Laming to consider the key barriers to good safeguarding practice including legal issues as part of his review. This will include the effect of changes in court fees.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many applications for care proceedings were made by local authorities in November (a) 2007 and (b) 2008. [258302]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

The number of public law care and supervision applications under section 31 of the Children Act 1989 in November 2007 and November 2008 are given in the table below. Public law cases are those brought by local authorities or an authorised person (currently only the NSPCC). Figures relate to the number of children that are subject to each application and have been rounded to the nearest 10, and so the sum of the individual components may not equal the total. Please note that 2008 figures remain subject to change, particularly the later months of the year. Data for November 2008 have changed slightly compared to that provided previously, owing to updated data.

Comparisons between single months should be made with caution as the monthly figures are subject to more volatility than those covering longer time periods.

Number of public law care and supervision applications under section 31 of the Children Act 1989—England and Wales, county courts and family proceedings courts

	November 2007	November 2008
Family proceedings courts[1]	920	1,090
County courts[2]	240	160
Total[3]	1,150	1,250

[1] There have been data quality issues with figures for family proceedings courts A new method of collection was introduced in April 2007 which has improved the coverage and completeness of data.
[2] Research undertaken on behalf of Ministry of Justice has identified that some cases that have transferred from the family proceedings court to the county court have been incorrectly recorded as new applications in the county court, thus inflating the reported number of new applications through double counting (see Masson et al 2008)
[3] Does not include applications in High Courts

Children: Databases

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what contingency arrangements his Department has made to be invoked in circumstances where a child's ContactPoint data have been (a) compromised and (b) made public. [252943]

Beverley Hughes: ContactPoint is designed, built, operated and managed to HM Government standards for security and complies with the strict controls imposed by HM Government security policy. Data contained within the system are made available only to those authorised users and administrators who have been subject to vetting and have completed mandatory training.

The ContactPoint system and access to it is constantly monitored. Suspicious network activity is checked and, if the system was thought to be under any form of threat or, if unauthorised access to ContactPoint was detected, the system would be immediately shut down and access denied to all users. Unauthorised or improper access to ContactPoint is treated as the highest priority, requiring immediate response and action by both my Department and the system supplier. Access to the system would not be restored until my Department had been assured that the source of attack or unauthorised or improper access had been located and any mitigating actions had been taken. Following an incident of this type, a full review would take place and prosecutions would be instigated where appropriate.

Where it was suspected that a child's record had been compromised, the individual (or their parent/carer as appropriate), practitioners or organisations working with them would be contacted to ensure that any necessary safeguarding/child protection procedures were initiated.

In the case of any breach of the system we would also inform the Information Commissioner's Office.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether ContactPoint uses name recognition software. [256479]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 12 February 2009]: ContactPoint does not use a name recognition software package. To achieve the best possible results ContactPoint seeks to match data using a number of criteria including name. For names, ContactPoint will seek to match both phonetic (e.g. Mohammed/Mohammad/Mohamad) and alternative names (e.g. James, Jim, Jimmie, Jimmy).

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 12 February 2009, Official Report, columns 2236-7W, on children: databases, what formula his Department used to allocate spending to each authority. [258760]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 25 February 2009]: The grant allocations to local authorities in respect of ContactPoint recognised the level of participation of each authority to support the development of ContactPoint. Grant allocations were based on a flat rate per authority with the balance of the total grant apportioned on the basis of child population. The flat rate and total grant varied from year to year according to the Department's estimate of the costs likely to be incurred by local authorities during the different stages of implementing ContactPoint.

Children: Day Care

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 1062W, on children: daycare, how much his Department is spending on (a) increasing awareness of the ban on physical punishment of children in childcare settings and (b) making parenting classes more widely available in 2008-09. [258479]

Beverley Hughes: Under the Childcare Act 2006 local authorities are responsible for supporting the training needs of early years providers, and the Department for Children, Schools and Families is providing £440 million to local authorities over the period 2008-11 within the Outcomes, Quality and Inclusion block of the Sure Start, Early Years and Childcare Grant to help them fulfil this responsibility. Local authorities have discretion to spend this funding in line with their own particular needs and circumstances, to ensure that the specific training needs of early years staff in each area are met. Initial training and continuing professional development courses for child care practitioners include coverage of behaviour management and child protection issues. This may include training to increase awareness of the ban on physical punishment in child care settings. In addition the DCSF spent £7.5 million each year from 2006 to 2009 to support specific Early Years Foundation Stage training on effective practice without the use of physical punishment.

The Department is providing £8.67 million in 2008-09 for the National Academy for Parenting Practitioners to deliver a combination of research and training to support and develop the parenting workforce. We expect this to bring about a significant change in the supply and quality of the parenting support offered to parents, including increased availability of parenting classes.

Children: Protection

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment the Secretary of State has made of the effect of the judgment in Wright v. Secretary of State for Health on the implementation of the provisions of the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006 which relate to children. [255565]

Beverley Hughes: After careful consideration of the House of Lords judgment in Wright, the Government remain satisfied that the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups (SVG) Act 2006 is compatible with human rights and in particular with Articles 6 and 8 of the ECHR. The scheme under the SVG Act does not include the feature of provisional listing, which was the focus of the challenge in the Wright case. In particular, whenever the ISA is exercising its discretion to place someone on a barred list, including under the SVG Act 2006 (Transitory Provisions Order) 2009 (SI 2009/12), which came into force on 20 January 2009, it must first invite their representations and also must send the individual the information on which it intends to rely. This is provided for in paragraphs 3(2), 5(2), 9(2), 11(2) and 16(1) of Schedule 3 to the Act. It would only be where a person had committed an offence which, by its nature, indicated that they posed an immediate risk of harm to the vulnerable (prescribed in the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006 (Prescribed Criteria and Miscellaneous Provisions) Regulations 2009, S.I. 2009/37) that they would be barred before being given the right to make representations. This is provided for in paragraphs 1,2,7 and 8 of Schedule 3 to the Act (the offences prescribed under paragraph 1 include the rape of a child, for example). The judgment in Wright acknowledged that an "ex parte" procedure could be justified in such circumstances.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what systems he has put in place to ensure that protection for vulnerable children is maintained during the transfer of functions to unitary authorities in (a) Cheshire and (b) elsewhere in England. [256788]

Beverley Hughes: It is for the new local authorities in Cheshire and Bedfordshire to ensure that they deliver effective services for children, young people and families. The Government have always made clear that it is crucial that the transition to the new local authority structures should avoid disruption to children's services, including child protection services in particular. Specialist safeguarding advisers in the relevant Government Offices have been closely involved in monitoring and supporting the process of transition in both areas. Ofsted's recent Annual Performance Assessments for Cheshire and Bedfordshire both conclude that the transition process is progressing well.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 10 February 2009, Official Report, column 1950W, on children: protection, if he will provide a breakdown of the figures by local authority area. [258761]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 25 February 2009]: Outturn expenditure on children's social care for 2004-05 to 2007-08 by local authority are set out in the tables headed Personal Social Services Expenditure and Unit Costs available on the following website:

http://www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/social-care/childrens-social-care

The original answer gave budget figures for 2007-08. Outturn figures have now been published on the website and are a more accurate assessment of spend.

A table has been placed in the Libraries showing each local authority's budget for children's social care in 2008-09.

Class Sizes

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of infant school children are taught in classes of (a) 15, (b) 20, (c) 25, (d) 30 and (e) 35 children or less; and if he will make a statement. [256907]

Jim Knight: The requested information is given in the table.

Primary and all age academies[1]: All Key Stage 1 classes[2], percentage of pupils by size of class[3], as at January 2008, England

Class size of:	Number of pupils	Percentage of pupils[4,5]

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [256145]

Jim Knight: The information as requested is not readily available centrally within the Department for Children, Schools and Families. To respond fully would involve an extensive internal and external information collection exercise which would exceed the recommended disproportionate cost threshold.

Departmental Logos

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been spent on the design of logos for his Department since its establishment. [258653]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We have spent £5,785 on logos for this Department since its establishment.

Departmental Translation Services

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many language translators are employed in his Department's non-ministerial department; and what the cost of translating services provided by such people was in the latest period for which information is available. [257152]

Jim Knight: Ofsted is the only non-ministerial department linked to this Department. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to my hon. Friend and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Libraries.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 19 February 2009:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response.

Ofsted carries out all translation using translation agencies. From 1 April 2008 until 17 February 2009, Ofsted has spent £5,310.59 plus VAT (£6,171.47 total) on translation services.

A copy of this reply has been sent to right hon. Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners, and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many claims for education maintenance allowance received for the 2008-09 academic year were not in payment on 31 January 2009; and if he will make a statement. [256908]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom the LSC's chief executive, will write to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the Libraries.

Education: Culture

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of (a) primary and (b) secondary school pupils (i) performed music to a live audience, (ii) visited an historic building, (iii) took part in a theatre production, (iv) visited a library and (v) visited an art gallery as a school activity in each of the last three years. [254436]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Schools offer many arts and cultural activities in the curriculum, for example, in music, art and drama, and there is much cultural activity taking place outside school and beyond the school day. We do not collect year on year data recording children's involvement with the activities listed in the question as school activities.

The Children's Plan made a commitment to ensure that all children and young people, no matter where they live and or what their background, can get involved in high quality cultural activities in and out of school, working towards a five-hour offer to match that for sport. The 10 "Find Your Talent" pathfinders that started in September 2008 will, over the next three years, work towards a position where that commitment is a reality.

Foster Care

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many children from Northern Ireland were fostered in (a) England, (b) Scotland and (c) Wales in each year since 1997; [256419]

(2) how many children from Wales were fostered in Scotland in each year since 1997; [256420]

(3) how many children from Scotland were fostered in Wales in each year since 1997; [256421]

(4) how many children from Wales were fostered in Northern Ireland in each year since 1997; [256444]

(5) how many children from Scotland were fostered in Northern Ireland in each year since 1997; [256445]

(6) how many children from England were fostered in Northern Ireland in each year since 1997. [256418]

Beverley Hughes: Information on the number of children from Northern Ireland, Wales or Scotland who were fostered in either England, Scotland, Wales or Northern Ireland is not collected centrally by the Department.

There were 59,500 looked after children in England at 31 March 2008, of whom 42,300 were in foster placements. In total 540 of the children looked after by English local authorities at 31 March 2008 were in placements outside England and 370 of these were in foster placements, this includes those in placements in Northern Ireland. These figures exclude those children looked after under an agreed series of short-term placements.

GCE A-Level

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many and what percentage of schools did not enter any pupils for an A-level in biology in 2006-07; [248476]

(2) how many and what percentage of schools did not enter any pupils for an A-level in mathematics in 2006-07; [248477]

(3) how many and what percentage of schools did not enter any pupils for an A-level in chemistry in 2006-07; [248478]

(4) how many and what percentage of schools did not enter any pupils for an A-level in physics in 2006-07. [248479]

Jim Knight: There were 1,730 maintained schools with GCE A-level candidates that were published in the 2007 School and College Achievement and Attainment Tables. Of these, 115 (7 per cent.) did not enter any pupils for an A-level in biology, 96 (6 per cent.) did not enter any pupils for an A-level in mathematics, 187 (11 per cent.) did not enter any pupils for an A-level in chemistry and 247 (14 per cent.) did not enter any pupils for an A-level in physics in 2006/07.

GCE A-Level: Standards

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what recent assessment he has made of standards at A-level; and if he will make a statement; [258460]

(2) what assessment he has made of the merits of a recalibration of the standards of A-levels. [258459]

Jim Knight: The responsibility for ensuring that rigorous standards are maintained over time in A-levels rests with the independent regulator, Ofqual. A-levels are internationally respected qualifications and claims that they have got easier have been investigated and refuted on numerous occasions. A-levels have recently been strengthened further to include additional stretch and challenge for the brightest students and the introduction of an A* grade.

The Government have made no assessment of the merits of a "recalibration" of A-levels, which would only be appropriate if we were to change the purpose of the qualification. We have already announced that we will review A-levels in 2013, and can consider any such issues, in consultation with Ofqual, at that time.

GCSE

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of pupils gained five A* to C grade GCSEs including English and mathematics but excluding equivalents, media studies GCSE, psychology GCSE, and PE GCSE. [244288]

Jim Knight: The number of pupils attaining five or more A* to C grade GCSEs including English and Mathematics, but excluding all equivalents and the subjects of media studies, psychology and physical education, was 295,423 in 2008. This corresponds to 45.2 per cent. of pupils at the end of Key Stage 4.

The source for this answer is the Achievement and Attainment Tables database.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils sat fewer than five GCSEs in 2008. [251099]

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000826/index.shtml

This shows that 93.8 per cent. of pupils entered five or more GCSEs or equivalent in England in 2008, which equates to 40,385 pupils that entered fewer than five GCSEs or equivalents.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of pupils gained at least five A* or A grades at GCSE in 2008. [251100]

Jim Knight: In 2008, 97,704 (15 per cent.) pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 in all schools in England, achieved 5 or more grades A* or A grades at GCSE only.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 7 October 2008, Official Report, columns 590-1W, on General Certificate of Secondary Education, if he will give an itemised breakdown of the estimated cost of providing the information requested. [243541]

[246087]

Jim Knight: The information available will placed in the Libraries.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of those pupils studying GCSE physics were at (a) comprehensive, (b) independent and (c) grammar schools in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [247781]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the number of pupils at the end of key stage 4 who attempted GCSE physics and the percentage of these pupils who studied at comprehensive, independent and grammar schools.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 14 January 2009, Official Report, column 845W, on general certificate of secondary education, how many and what percentage of pupils in the maintained mainstream sector achieved five GCSEs including a science GCSE at grades A* to C in 2008, broken down by index of multiple deprivation decile. Jim Knight: The information requested is not available.

National Curriculum Tests

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what information his Department holds on the level of agreement between teacher assessments and results in (a) Key Stage 1, (b) Key Stage 2, (c) Key Stage 3 and (d) Key Stage 4 tests; [241583]

(2) what assessment he has made of the level of agreement between teacher assessments and Key Stage Test results; and if he will make a statement. [241584]

Jim Knight: The Department has not made an assessment of the level of agreement between teacher assessment and key stage test results at key stages 1, 2 and 4. This is an area being considered by the Expert Group on assessment.

Internal analysis of the level of agreement between the 2007 key stage 3 (KS3) teacher assessments and national curriculum tests has been undertaken and is provided in the following tables.

Analysis of these data indicates that there is a reasonable match between test performance and teacher assessment data. Where there is not, the teacher assessments are equally likely to be higher or lower than the performance test level achieved. When interpreting these data, it should be borne in mind that national curriculum test and teacher assessment data will not always correlate. This is because tests provide a snapshot of attainment at the end of the key stage whereas teacher assessment takes into account evidence of attainment in a variety of contexts (such as discussion and observation), throughout the year. Both are vital to ensure rounded, and validated, assessments can be made about each child's performance.

The figures work across the table, so for a given teacher assessment level it shows the distribution of test levels achieved. Taking English as an example, of those pupils who were teacher assessed at level 5, 68 per cent. achieved a level 5 in the test; 13 per cent. achieved one level below and 18 per cent. achieved one level higher.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the monetary value of his Department's contract with PricewaterhouseCoopers to provide support to the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority in procuring the 2009 National Curriculum tests is. [255654]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) is responsible for the delivery of national curriculum tests, and any contractual arrangements relating to the procurement of 2009 national test delivery are with the QCA, not with the department. PA Consulting Ltd. provided support for the procurement of the contract for 2009 national curriculum tests and the value of this work amounted to £650,000. In his report on the delivery of national curriculum tests, Lord Sutherland recommended that the QCA should strengthen its corporate oversight of the management and delivery of its contracts. PricewaterhouseCoopers are providing support to the QCA for the operational delivery of the 2009 national curriculum tests. The QCA Board has approved expenditure of up to £2 million including VAT on this contract.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether Key Stage 3 assessment data provided by schools will be subject to external moderation; and if he will make a statement. [256900]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Key Stage 3 (KS3) teacher assessments provided by schools this year will not be subject to external moderation.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on what date he plans to publish the statistics showing the number of requests for the re-marking of Key Stage 2 and 3 Standard Assessment Tests papers for 2008; and if he will make a statement. [257033]

Jim Knight: The Department is not responsible for determining when to publish the statistics showing the number of requests for the re-marking of key stage 2 and 3 national curriculum test papers for 2008. This decision is made by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) in line with the code of practice on statistics. Under the code of practice, the QCA is required to provide four weeks notice of its intention to publish. This notification will be made on the QCA website. I understand that the QCA has indicated its intention to publish these data in mid-March.

Offences against Children: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of children in West Chelmsford constituency abused while subject to a child protection plan in each of the last five years. [254754]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The available figures cover children who are subject to a Child Protection Plan and include information on category of abuse which led to the plan being put in place and re-referrals. These are available in the annual statistical first release "Referrals, Assessments and Children and Young People who are the subject of a Child Protection Plan, England". The latest figures can be found in Table 10B at the following link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000811/index.shtml

Partnerships for Schools: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much Partnerships for Schools has received from the European Investment Bank in each year since 2005; and if he will make a statement. [258955]

Jim Knight: Partnerships for Schools (PfS) have been able to secure a commitment in principle from the European Investment Bank (EIB) for £300 million to provide funding for BSF schemes that have PFI investment in 2009/10. EIB provided £53 million of funding in 2007/08 for BSF projects.

Partnerships for Schools does not receive any money from EIB. The funds secured are used to finance local authority PFI projects.

Primary Education: Admissions

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what account (a) his Department and (b) local education authorities took of the effect of projected population increases in their estimates of the number of children entering primary schools in (i) 2000 and (ii) 2005; and what plans there are to take account of population increases in (A) 2010, (B) 2013, (C) 2015, (D) 2017 and (E) 2020. [256006]

Jim Knight: For funding additional school places the Department relied on authorities' own pupil projections for its estimates of the number of children entering primary schools in each local authority area in 2000-01, 2005-06 and 2010-11. Officials are reviewing emerging pupil number trends to inform the spending review period 2011-12 onwards.

Local authorities use a wide variety of methods for forecasting pupil numbers. The different methods entail a broadly similar approach that involves taking current pupil numbers and adding/subtracting the net totals of children entering/leaving the school system. We would also expect authorities to also take account of local factors that will have an impact on pupil projections—including rising/falling birth rates, population movements in/out of the area, and proposed new housing developments.

The Department relies on its own national pupil projections to set the national envelope for recurrent funding. These are linked to ONS (Office for National Statistics) data, which take account of projected population increases. The Department's local authority level projections were used to provide individual indicative allocations and Guaranteed Units of Funding (GUF) at the start of the current CSR period for 2008-11. These indicative allocations become finalised once the latest pupil numbers are known. There are currently no LA level projections formulated for this purpose beyond the current CSR period.

Pupil Referral Units: Standards

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which pupil referral units in each local authority area were assessed as outstanding by Ofsted in the last five years. [256344]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Libraries.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 16 February 2008:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

Since the introduction of the current school inspection framework (commonly known as section 5) in September 2005, the judgement of a school's overall effectiveness has been made using a four point scale: outstanding, good, satisfactory and inadequate. Under the previous school inspection framework (commonly known as Section 10), a school's overall effectiveness judgement was made using a seven point scale: excellent, very good, good, satisfactory, unsatisfactory, poor and very poor.

It is not possible to operate a simple read-across approach from a seven- to a four-point scale. Ofsted's criteria for making inspection judgements about schools are clearly set out in our inspection guidance. Inspectors do not make reference to, or comparisons with, the previous inspection framework. However, for information, Tables A-E list all of the Pupil Referral Units which have been judged outstanding since September 2005 and all those judged excellent or very good between September 2003 and July 2005. These are grouped by academic year and by local authority.

A copy of this reply has been sent to right hon. Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners, and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

Pupils: Bullying

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many cases of bullying were recorded in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in each local education authority in each of the last five years. [258166]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information is not collected centrally. Information on the number of incidents of bullying is not collected. Information is collected, via the school census, on the number of fixed and permanent exclusions which are made due to bullying, however, this will not give information on the total number of incidents.

School Meals: Nutrition

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which schools did not meet Ofsted's minimum nutrition guidelines for school meals in each year since 2005. [258155]

Beverley Hughes: The Department does not collect this information.

Ofsted does not set minimum nutritional guidelines for school meals. However, the Government have set mandatory nutritional standards for school food. Ofsted does not inspect whether a school is meeting all of the standards but, as part of their regular inspections, expect schools to present evidence about their general approach to food and healthy eating (the 'whole school' approach) and will report on any issues which arise out of self-assessment or as a result of their inspection visit. This contributes to the judgement which Ofsted makes on the extent to which learners adopt healthy lifestyles.

Schools: Closures

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many primary schools in (a) rural and (b) urban areas closed in each of the last 10 years. [256452]

Jim Knight: The following table sets out the numbers of maintained mainstream primary schools in (a) rural and (b) urban areas which have closed in each year under local decision making arrangements, which were introduced in September 1999. Information about decisions made under the arrangements that operated prior to September 1999 is not reliable and is, therefore, not included:

The table shows only school closures where the provision has ceased to be maintained and has not been replaced. There are other changes to school provision where a school closure is part of the process, but where replacement provision has been established e.g. a change to a school's religious character or where an infant and junior school amalgamate to become a primary school.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many small schools in each local education authority area have closed in each of the last 10 years. [258283]

Jim Knight: The number of small schools in each local education authority in England that have ceased to be maintained between 2002 and 2008 is shown in the following tables, broken down by primary, secondary and middle deemed secondary schools. Information on school size was not routinely collected prior to 2002.

Schools: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) undertaken research on the merits of introducing a pupil premium per schools' funding; and if he will make a statement. [258213]

Jim Knight: The current review of the dedicated schools grant (DSG) is investigating how best to provide funding for additional educational needs (AEN), including deprivation. As part of the research to inform the review we have commissioned PricewaterhouseCoopers to investigate the different types of AEN in terms of level of incidence and severity, the best measures for identifying pupils likely to under-achieve, and the potential role of financial incentives in tackling deprivation. The outcome of the DSG review will be implemented from 2011.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department allocated to support small schools in each of the last 10 years. [258279]

Jim Knight: It is a matter for each local authority to determine the level of funding for each of their schools. However, the following table shows the amount of revenue funding allocated by local authorities in England to maintained primary and secondary school for the last nine years for which information is available:

Notes:
1. Budget share plus grants allocated to schools is the combination of the schools individual budget share plus any revenue grants allocated to the school at the start of the financial year. This does not include any capital funding allocated to schools.
2. The amount of money allocated to a school depends very much on the individual local authorities' own policy for funding their schools. Different authorities retain varying amounts of funding centrally to spend on behalf of their schools while others chose to give schools more autonomy over how they spend their money by devolving more funding to the individual school.
3. The pupil numbers used to calculate the per pupil amounts are as reported by the local authority on their Section 52 Budget Statement (Table 2) comprising of the full-time equivalent number pupils registered at the school used for the initial determination of the school's budget share under the local authority's allocation formula.
4. Included are all local authority maintained primary and secondary schools who are reported by their LA as being open for the entire final year (schools that are reported as either opening or closing during the financial year have been removed). Figures for secondary schools include any LSC funding and LSC pupils for schools with 6th forms.
5. For the purposes of this PQ, a small primary school is defined as having fewer than 100 pupils and a small secondary school is defined as having fewer than 600 pupils.
6. Total budgeted share plus grants figures are rounded to the nearest £1,000. Per pupil figures are rounded to the nearest £10.
7. 2008-09 figures are subject to change by the local authority.
8. Cash terms figures as reported by local authorities as at 23 February 2009.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which local authorities have applied for school funding brought forward in the 2008 Pre-Budget Report. [259102]

Jim Knight: Applications from local authorities are currently being considered, and we will make an announcement shortly.

Schools: Internet

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which maintained schools in St Albans have broadband internet access. [256970]

Jim Knight: All schools in Hertfordshire local authority have broadband connections. The Department does not collect data at constituency level.

Schools: Standards

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what mechanisms are in place to ensure that the principles of validated good practice in schools and childcare settings in respect of Public Service Agreement 11 are mainstreamed. [258084]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Public service agreement 11 of October 2007 set out the Government's commitment to narrow the gap in educational achievement between children from low income and disadvantaged backgrounds and their peers. It did not specify principles of validated good practice in schools and child care settings. The Children's Plan set out the Government's policies to extend and mainstream best practice across the whole child care and education system, including through the self-evaluation and Ofsted inspection frameworks. "The Children's Plan - One Year On", published in December 2008, reported on progress since then in enabling all children and young people to succeed, and set out priorities for 2009.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 10 February 2009, Official Report, column 1967W, on schools: standards, which four local authorities are yet to have their National Challenge funding plans signed off; and if he will make a statement. [258305]

Jim Knight: Since 10 February, I have signed off Durham's National Challenge funding plans. The three remaining local authorities are Bradford, Leeds and Milton Keynes and my officials continue to work with them to develop their plans. I expect to be able to sign off plans for Bradford and Milton Keynes this week, and will be meeting with representatives from Leeds to discuss their plan shortly.

Schools: Transport

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was spent on free transport to school for pupils in each local authority area in each year since 1997. [256342]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not hold the information requested.

Schools: Water Charges

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effect on school budgets of changes to surface water charges by water companies. [256661]

Jim Knight: The Government are aware that the changes to surface water charges can lead to increased charges for some schools, depending on their site and how much they use the public drainage system for rainwater disposal. Schools and local authorities should work together if this proves to be the case and take steps to improve natural drainage at schools if necessary.

For 2007-08, the total expenditure by schools on water and sewerage was £92.1 million. This is 0.3 per cent. of the total school expenditure of £32.9 billion.

The local authority, in consultation with their schools forum, can consider whether they wish to support schools specifically for additional pressures through the local funding formula. However, this is very much a local decision.

Science: Education

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his policy on funding for the study of courses is for the International A-level in (a) physics and (b) chemistry in mainstream secondary schools. [258677]

Jim Knight: Only qualifications that have been accredited by the regulatory authorities are eligible to be considered for public funding. None of the International A-Levels offered by Cambridge International Examinations has been submitted for accreditation by Ofqual; these qualifications are therefore not eligible to be considered for public funding in England.

Science: General Certificate of Secondary Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to increase the number of pupils studying (a) science and additional science GCSE and (b) single science GCSEs. [259092]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: With effect from September 2007 the Education and Inspections Act 2006 introduced a statutory entitlement for all key stage 4 pupils to have access to a course of study leading to at least two science GCSEs. Schools have to offer all pupils access to either

(a) Science GCSE and additional science GCSE; or

(b) all three of Physics, Chemistry and Biology GCSEs (i.e. "triple science").

With effect from September 2008 we introduced a non-statutory entitlement to study triple science for all pupils who achieve Level 6+ in science at key stage 3 and will benefit from studying the three separate sciences. The Learning and Skills Network developed a support programme to help all schools plan develop and implement triple science.

Secondary Education: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) which schools which were part of the National Challenge in 2008 did not receive any additional funding as part of the programme; and if he will make a statement; [256901]

(2) which schools achieved less than 30 per cent. of pupils achieving five GCSEs at grades A* to C, including English and mathematics, in (a) 2008 and (b) 2007 and have not received any additional funding through the National Challenge; and if he will make a statement. [256902]

Jim Knight: Schools in 2007 or 2008 where fewer than 30 per cent. of the pupils achieved five GCSEs at A* to C grade or equivalent, including GCSEs in English and mathematics receive support from a range of sources. If they are in London, the Black Country or Greater Manchester any support will come from the City Challenge programmes. In the rest of the country, support is provided by the National Challenge. All schools which become academies receive support from the Academies programme.

The support for all these schools is a mix of funding to local authorities and schools, together with support in kind. Some schools which were below the floor target in 2007 or 2008 are not receiving any of this additional support. They are listed in the following tables together with the reasons for this. In the vast majority of cases it is because they have moved above the floor target and are on a sustainable path of further improvement. In these cases there was local agreement that they did not need this additional support.

Serious Case Review Panel

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the minimum qualifications required for professionals to sit on a Serious Case Review Panel are. [252945]

Beverley Hughes: Paragraph 8.10 of "Working Together To Safeguard Children 2006" states that

> 'Local Safeguarding Children Boards should establish a Serious Case Review Panel, involving at least LA children's social care, health, education and the police, to consider questions such as whether a serious case review should take place'.

Minimum qualifications are not prescribed for any particular individual. It is the responsibility of LSCBs to ensure that panels have the membership they need to perform their functions effectively.

Special Educational Needs: Pupil Exclusions

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils with special educational needs were given a fixed-period exclusion from secondary schools in each local authority area in 2007-08, broken down by reason for exclusion. [258192]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information on exclusions for the 2007/08 school year is expected to be published in the summer.

Special Educational Needs: Standards

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which maintained special schools in each local authority area were assessed as outstanding by Ofsted in the last five years. [256585]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Libraries.

Teachers: Conditions of Employment

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps his Department has taken on the conditions of employment for peripatetic teachers. [258454]

Jim Knight: Peripatetic teachers who are employed under a contract of employment by local authorities are covered by the School Teacher's Pay and Conditions Document (STPCD) in the same way as teachers who are employed wholly in specific schools. The STPCD is revised each year to take account of any changes in the pay and conditions of teachers in the light of recommendations from the School Teachers Review Body.

Teachers: Qualifications

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many graduates who began secondary school teaching careers had a (a) first class, (b) upper second class, (c) lower second class and (d) third class degree in each of the last 15 years; and if he will make a statement. [254507]

Jim Knight: The class of degree held is not recorded in the case of all teachers and therefore the numbers requested are not available.

Teachers: South West

Alison Seabeck: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of teachers employed in (a) the South West Region, (b) Devon and (c) Plymouth are recorded as being disabled; and what percentage of the total workforce each figure represents. [259013]

[2] Injuries are reported and defined under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations (RIDDOR) 1995. The information available under RIDDOR 95 includes three categories of severity to workers: fatal injuries, defined major injuries and other injuries leading to more than three days absence (over-3-day).

[4] Includes one major and one over-3-day injury with employment status employed by someone else.

TRANSPORT

Bus Lanes: Bedfordshire

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he has committed funds to the Luton to Dunstable busway for 2010-11. [259403]

Paul Clark: In September 2008 we granted conditional approval to a maximum Government contribution of £78.39 million towards the cost of this scheme.

Full approval will not be given until final prices have been fixed following a tendering exercise by Luton borough council. We understand that the council will be seeking full approval towards the end of 2009.

Departmental Planning Permission

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many sites have been developed following use of his powers under the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 2006 in each of the last three years. [258733]

Paul Clark [holding answer 25 February 2009]: In the last three years the Highways Agency have established a total of six site compounds using powers under the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 2006.

Of the six compounds, three were established in 2006, and three in 2007. No site compounds were established using these powers in 2008 by the Highways Agency.

Railways

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the merits of setting maximum passenger levels for rail services. [258267]

Paul Clark: Trains are designed to operate effectively and safely even when they are loaded to maximum capacity. Therefore, Her Majesty's Government have not considered any guidance or instructions about setting maximum passenger levels on railway services.

Roads: Snow and Ice

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the amount of salt provided by the Highways Agency to Gloucestershire county council during the recent snowfall; and if he will make a statement. [255778]

Paul Clark [holding answer 10 February 2009]: It is for local authorities to determine levels of salt necessary for their winter maintenance programme as set out in the UK Roads Board's (voluntary) code of practice on highways maintenance management, "Well-maintained Highways". The Highways Agency provided 550 tonnes of road salt to Gloucestershire county council under the mutual aid scheme on 8 February 2009.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what process his Department uses to (a) monitor the level of salt available for road treatment and (b) estimate future road salt requirements. [256619]

Paul Clark [holding answer 12 February 2009]: It is for Local Authorities to determine levels of salt necessary for their winter maintenance programme as set out in the UK Roads Board's (voluntary) code of practice on highways maintenance management, "Well-maintained Highways". For the trunk road network, the Highways Agency has in place long established procedures which require salt stock capability reporting on a daily basis between 1 October and 30 April. Salt stock requirements are ascertained from a combination of longer term weather forecast information and records of salt usage. Salt capability is expressed as the number of treatment days available based on six treatments per day at 20gm/m2—the level of treatment typical for snow conditions. A weekly summary is produced which gives an overview of salt stocks and provides advance warning when salt stocks are approaching a critical level.

As a result of the recent severe weather, central government, the Local Government Association and the Highways Agency have been working together to provide daily advice to suppliers on the most effective distribution of available salt supplies in order to minimise the risk to public safety. This advice is based on daily demand estimates informed by the Met Office's 24 hour forecast and comparisons between existing salt stocks and available supply.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Members: Allowances

Mr. Maude: To ask the Leader of the House pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Bassetlaw of 22 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1570-71W, on Members' expenses, what consideration she gave to consulting the Information Commissioner on the provisions of the draft Freedom of Information (Parliament) Order 2009. [258665]

Chris Bryant: I refer the right hon. Gentleman to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Bassetlaw (John Mann) of 22 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1570-71W.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Leader of the House pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Chichester of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 1W, on Members: allowances, what criteria govern the assessment of the merits of a request for an advance on a hon. Member's communications allowance. [258667]

Chris Bryant: Subject to the administrative rules set out in my answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 1W, the requester would need to demonstrate that the advance was for a specific purpose which enabled him or her to carry out a parliamentary duty and that it was a proper use of public money in support of his or her role. There must be no suggestion that the use of the allowance would be for party political advantage or electioneering.

To date no advance from the communications allowance for 2009-10 has been requested this year nor were any advances made last year.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Children: Maintenance

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) consolatory payments and (b) other compensatory payments the Child Support Agency made to residents of (i) Hemel Hempstead and (ii) Hertfordshire in each of the last 10 years; and what the monetary value of such payments was in each such year. [256507]

Kitty Ussher: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Ribble Valley (Mr. Evans) on 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 46-48W.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make it his policy for his Department to sign the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258968]

Jonathan Shaw: The Government welcome the Promise as a commendable initiative to raise awareness of the importance of effective data protection safeguards, particularly for those organisations with no similar commitments already in place.

The Government take data protection very seriously. Following the Cabinet Office Review of Data Handling Procedures in Government, departments have implemented a raft of measures to improve data security.

The Ministry of Justice is considering actively with the ICO how the Promise might add additional value to those measures we have already signed up to. These include the Information Charters, the recommendations of the Data Handling Review and the Thomas/Walport Review and, of course, our legal obligations under the Data Protection Act and other legislation and regulations.

Departmental Impact Assessments

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many equalities impact assessments his Department has undertaken in the last 12 month period for which figures are available; and what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of such assessments. [255061]

Jonathan Shaw: During the last 12 months (January 2008 to January 2009) 146 equality impact assessments were undertaken in the Department for Work and Pensions.

The cost of carrying out the equality impact assessment is not possible to estimate as the Department's equality impact assessment process is embedded in the development and implementation of new (or changes to) functions, policies and services that are the responsibility of the Department.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff currently working in his Department are on secondment from EDS; and what roles and responsibilities they have. [259123]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 February 2009]: Information on how many staff currently working in the Department for Work and Pensions are on secondment from EDS, and their roles and responsibilities, is not available in the format requested.

DWP does not keep central records of individuals seconded into DWP. To extract this information from individual records would be at a disproportionate cost.

Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by his Department is in 2008-09. [258521]

Jonathan Shaw: DWP has a total of 3,467 m^2 of vacant workspace recorded on e-PIMS. This workspace constitutes partial holdings in buildings retained for operational requirements. This workspace represents only a fraction of 1 per cent. of the total DWP estate as at 1 February 2009.

The estimated cost in empty business rates for this workspace is £138,000 p.a.

Fireworks: Safety

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what information the Health and Safety Executive requires companies seeking a classification and authorisation document for a firework to provide. [258131]

Jonathan Shaw: Companies seeking a firework classification are required to submit a proposed classification for approval by the Health and Safety Executive. They are also required to provide sufficient information to enable the HSE to determine that the proposed classification is appropriate. This information includes details of the manufacturer, the firework names and types, part numbers, their chemical composition, information on the packaging and design and details of any relevant tests conducted on them.

There is no requirement for firework authorisation.

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what checks on provision of licensed storage the Health and Safety Executive performs before granting a classification and authorisation document to importers of fireworks. [258132]

Jonathan Shaw: The Health and Safety Executive does not conduct checks on the provision of licensed storage before granting a classification document for fireworks. A classification assigns information on the hazard posed by fireworks during transport; the eventual provision of licensed storage does not affect safety during transport. There is no requirement in any circumstances to grant an authorisation for fireworks.

The requirements for safe storage of fireworks are set out in the Manufacture and Storage of Explosives Regulations 2005 (MSER) and are enforced by either the Health and Safety Executive or local authority, depending on the amount of fireworks to be stored.

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which companies issued with a classification and authorisation document for a firework by the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) in each of the last five years had (a) HSE-licensed and (b) local storage when the document was issued. [258133]

Jonathan Shaw: The Health and Safety Executive does not collect this information.

Industrial Health and Safety: Death

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many fatal accidents at work there were in each of the last 20 years. [257972]

Jonathan Shaw: The information requested is as follows:

[1] The term 'workers' includes employees and the self-employed combined
[2] Provisional
[3] The annual basis is the planning year 1 April to 31 March
[4] The Piper Alpha disaster occurred in July 1988. The fatality count for 1988-89 therefore reflects the 167 deaths that occurred in this single incident
[5] Changes in the legislation covering accident reporting came into effect in April 1996. Prior to this date reports were made under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations (RIDDOR) 1985. From 1996-97 onwards reports were made under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations (RIDDOR) 1995.

Jobcentre Plus: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the level of accessibility of Jobcentre Plus offices for disabled people; and if he will make a statement. [248498]

Jonathan Shaw: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what assessment he has made of the accessibility of Jobcentre Plus offices for disabled people. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus strives to be an exemplar in delivering services to all of our customers, including disabled people. The design of our modern Jobcentre Plus offices incorporated all reasonable and practicable measures regarding access arrangements for disabled people, to ensure that we take into account the requirements of the Disability Discrimination Act.

Where full access to all people cannot be provided for genuine reasons (e.g. listed building status, prohibitive cost, or the structure of the existing building), every effort is made to ensure that access is provided for the maximum number of disabled people. For example, where internal alterations could not be made to enable upper floor access, services are made available on the ground floor where possible. We also consider other ways of contacting our customers, such as visiting people at home.

I am satisfied the arrangements in place ensure that our offices continue to comply with our guidelines.

Rheumatoid Arthritis

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the Answer of 5 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1423-4W, on rheumatoid arthritis, how many claimants of (a) incapacity benefit and (b) severe disablement allowance had each type of (i) medical and (ii) disabling condition recorded in relation to their claims in each of the last five years. [257171]

Jonathan Shaw: The information has been placed in the Library.

Social Security Benefits

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 24 February 2009 on disability benefits, what his estimate is of the effect on the number of people claiming (a) disability living allowance (care component), (b) attendance allowance and (c) carer's allowance of the European Court of Justice's decision to reclassify these benefits as sickness benefits; and if he will make a statement. [259584]

Jonathan Shaw: The effect on the number of people claiming the disability benefits is very difficult to predict. Our estimates indicate that this will result in an increase in the number of customers as set out in the following table:

Benefit	Estimated caseload
Disability Living Allowance	20,000
Attendance Allowance	[1]—
Carers Allowance	[1]—
Total	20,000

[1] Estimate is less than 5,000 and therefore equals zero when rounded to the nearest 10,000.
Notes:
1. These estimates relate to 2010-11 because this is assumed to be the first full year following full implementation of the judgment.

Welfare Reform Bill 2008-09: Impact Assessments

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library a copy of version (a) one and (b) two of the impact assessment for the Welfare Reform Bill 2009. [253617]

Mr. McNulty: Version one of the impact assessment related to, and was published electronically alongside, the Green Paper 'No-one written off: reforming welfare to reward responsibility' and is available on the Department for Work and Pensions website at:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/welfarereform/noonewrittenoff/noonewrittenoffer-impactassesment.pdf

Version two of the impact assessment related to, and was published electronically alongside, the White Paper 'Raising expectations and increasing support: reforming welfare for the future' and is available on the Department for Work and Pensions website at:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/welfarereform/raisingexpectations/impact-assessment.pdf

Version three of the impact assessment relates to the Welfare Reform Bill and is available in the Library.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the initial estimated (a) cost and (b) delivery date was of each ICT project initiated by his Department and its predecessor in each year since 1997; what the (i) outturn cost and (ii) completion date was of each such project subsequently completed; which contractors were hired for each project; and how much has been paid to each contractor in respect of each project to date. [251385]

Mr. McFadden: For the last 10 years the Department's and its predecessors IT services have been provided through a PFI agreement with Fujitsu Services and covers the provision of all desktop services, web infrastructure services, document management and other business applications. In addition, the Department has in place an alternative IT framework agreement with a number of suppliers to enable competition where this is deemed appropriate. However, due to a change in the Department's accounting system during 2003-04 and the previously devolved nature of the ICT, consistent data on all the information requested cannot be obtained without disproportionate cost.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on bonuses for press officers within his Department in each of the last five years; and how many such bonuses were awarded. [258512]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Such information as is available for press officers is shown in the table.

	Number of bonuses	Total cost (£)
2005-06	8	9,659
2006-07	12	8,780
2007-08	10	9,250

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport makes bonus payments to its staff for two purposes: (a) special bonuses to reward outstanding contributions in particularly demanding tasks or situations, and (b) performance bonuses to reward successful performance over a whole year.

To provide historical information requested for earlier periods than shown would incur disproportionate cost.

English Heritage: VAT

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport at which of its venues English Heritage (a) reduced and (b) did not reduce the retail prices of tickets following the December 2008 reduction in value added tax. [258392]

Barbara Follett: English Heritage advises that following the reduction in VAT, it reduced admission prices on 1 December on all its properties open to the public. These were reduced to the nearest 10 pence price point so, in some instances, the saving is greater than the VAT change and in others slightly less. The VAT reduction has been passed on for all admission prices with the exception of some child prices where the change would amount to five pence or less.

National Lottery: Catz Club

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 54W, on Catz Club, for which projects and for what purpose each of the Lottery grants listed was made to Catz Club. [258587]

Barbara Follett: The following information comes from the Department's lottery grants database. The database is searchable at www.lottery.culture.gov.uk and uses information on lottery grants supplied by the lottery distributors.

Distributing body	Grant date	Recipient name	Project description	Grant amount (£)

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Eddisbury of 3 November 2008, Official Report, column 171W, on apprentices, how many of the apprenticeships referred to were state-funded. [258064]

Mr. Simon: The information provided on 3 November 2008, Official Report, column 171W, was apprenticeship places in England funded by the Government through the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) since 2001, and previously through Training and Enterprise Councils (TECs). Hence, all apprenticeship starts given in the table were state-funded.

Table 1 as follows gives updated LSC/TEC-funded apprenticeship starts from 1997/98 to 2007/08. Information for 2007/08 was first published in a statistical first release on 18 December 2008:

http://www.thedataservice.org.uk/Statistics

Table 1: Apprenticeship starts, 1997/98 to 2007/08

	Starts
1997/98	75,000
1998/99	118,000
1999/2000	165,000
2000/01	177,000
2001/02	162,000
2002/03	204,000
2003/04	194,000
2004/05	189,000
2005/06	175,000
2006/07	184,000
2007/08	225,000

Note:
Numbers have been rounded to the nearest thousand.

WBL ILR/ISR

The Government are committed to rebuilding apprenticeships. Since 1997 we have witnessed a renaissance in apprenticeships from a low point of 65,000 to a record 225,000 apprenticeship starts in 2007/08. Completion rates are also at a record high with 64 per cent. successfully completing an apprenticeship—up from 37 per cent. in 2004/05.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public has been since it was established. [251442]

Mr. Simon: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of departments in replying to Members' correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

With respect to correspondence from members of the public the Department cannot provide the requested information within disproportionate costs limits, but we do aim to respond to all written correspondence within 15 working days. Statistics on the handling of letters from members of public is published in the Department's annual report.

Skilled Workers: Lincolnshire

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what reports he has received on the skills requirements of the workforce at the Lindsey oil refinery; and if he will make a statement; [256190]

(2) what skills courses currently funded by his Department relate to posts which have been contracted to workers from other EU member states at the Lindsey oil refinery; and how many such courses are currently available in North East Lincolnshire. [256193]

Mr. Simon: The Learning and Skills Council funds provision at the local College, Grimsby Institute of Further and Higher Education, which offers a range of industry-specific programmes of learning to help learners acquire and improve the skills needed to work in the chemical refining sector. These include chemical process operations, fabrication and welding, Health and Safety Passport scheme and general engineering and plant maintenance. We are not aware that courses are specifically arranged for learners from other EU member states.

The Government have recently announced a review of productivity and skills in the engineering construction sector. This will make recommendations on ways to improve skills and productivity in the UK engineering construction industry and identify specific factors influencing success for UK-based companies bidding for UK and foreign engineering construction contracts.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Billy Wright Inquiry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Wright Inquiry has spent on security. [257112]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Billy Wright Inquiry that the inquiry has spent £577,000 on security to the end of January 2009.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Wright Inquiry has spent on (a) transport, (b) accommodation, (c) advertising and (d) virtual reality technology. [257113]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Billy Wright Inquiry that, to the end of January 2009, the inquiry has spent:

(a) £693,000 on transport;

(b) £1.70 million on accommodation;

(c) Nothing on advertising; and

(d) Nothing on virtual reality technology.

Bloody Sunday Tribunal of Inquiry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Saville Inquiry has spent on (a) advertising, (b) accommodation, (c) transport and (d) virtual reality technology. [257118]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Bloody Sunday Inquiry that, to the end of January 2009, the inquiry has spent:

(a) Approximately £19,000 on advertising;

(b) Approximately £26 million on accommodation (including hire of venues for inquiry hearings plus office and private accommodation);

(c) Approximately £5 million on transport; and

(d) Approximately £106,000 on virtual reality technology.

This covers only expenditure by the inquiry and not expenditure by the Ministry of Defence associated with the inquiry.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Saville Inquiry has spent on security. [257119]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Bloody Sunday Inquiry that the Inquiry has spent approximately £3.4 million on security to the end of January 2009.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost of his Department's contracts with management consultants was in each of the last five years. [251367]

Mr. Woodward: The cost of contracts with management consultants is not held centrally. Information in relation to spending on the different types of consultancies has been recorded since 2005-06.

In each of the last three years my Department has spent the following amounts on management consultants:

2007-08	126,618
2006-07	464,906
2005-06	1,193,693

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 18 January 2009, Official Report, columns 988-91W, on departmental consultants, how many consultants from each of the companies listed his Department has employed in the last 12 months. [257268]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office does not record the number of individual consultants used by consultancy firms employed by my Department as contracts are awarded directly to the company.

With reference to the answer given on 18 December 2008, Official Report, columns 988-91W, my Department has employed 32 of the companies listed in the last 12 months.

Police

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) police officers and (b) other staff paid from the policing budget for Northern Ireland undertook duties at the public event hosted by the Northern Ireland Policing Board in Londonderry on 18 February 2009. [259725]

Paul Goggins: That is an operational matter for the Chief Constable. I have asked him to reply directly to the hon. Member, and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Robert Hamill Inquiry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Hamill Inquiry has spent on (a) advertising, (b) transport, (c) accommodation and (d) virtual reality technology. [257126]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Robert Hamill Inquiry that, to the end of January 2009, the inquiry has spent:

(a) Nothing on advertising;

(b) £230,000 on transport;

(c) £3.50 million on accommodation; and

(d) £50,000 on virtual reality technology.

Rosemary Nelson Inquiry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Nelson Inquiry has spent on (a) advertising, (b) security, (c) accommodation, (d) transport and (e) virtual reality technology. [257105]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Rosemary Nelson Inquiry that, to the end of January 2009, the inquiry has spent:

(a) Nothing on advertising;

(b) £957,000 on security;

(c) £4.48 million on accommodation;

(d) £446,000 on transport; and

(e) Nothing on virtual reality technology.

CompeteFor

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much the CompeteFor website has cost to (a) develop and (b) run in each year since its inception; and how much of the funding was provided by (i) the Government, (ii) the London Development Agency and (iii) regional development agencies. [251305]

Tessa Jowell: The information requested is as follows:

The costs of CompeteFor are as follows:

(a) CompeteFor cost £3.633million to develop, which included concept development, specification, implementation and testing, and establishing the support structure.

(b) Running costs are as follows:

Year 1 (December 2007 to March 2008) £220,000

Year 2 (April 2008 to March 2009) projected at £1.241 million

Funding arrangements are as follows

(i) No direct funding was provided by Central Government.

(ii) The London Development Agency and the eight other regional development agencies have each provided £379,000 in set up and running costs in Year 1 and will provide approximately £111,000 each in running costs by the end of this financial year.

The remaining costs are met by contributions provided by the devolved administrations.

Government Olympic Executive: Expenditure

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much has been spent on the Government Olympic Executive in each of the last three years. [258337]

Tessa Jowell: The expenditure of the Government Olympic Executive (GOE), part of the DCMS, for the last two complete financial years is as follows:

£	£ million
2006-07	3.1

The estimated expenditure for GOE in 2008-09 is £8.1 million.

This planned increase in costs (a) reflects the wider role the GOE has taken on during this period—GOE is now the only organisation overseeing the entire Olympic project, integrating the work of multiple delivery bodies, and ensuring the games is delivered within the £9.3 billion public sector funding provision; (b) is a planned response to the expected growth in work to deliver the Government's commitments and guarantees, as 2012 approaches; and (c) is consistent with GOE's staffing and resource plan for 2008-09 to 2010-11, which was agreed by Treasury early in 2008.

GOE's budget covers funding for both (a) GOE staff costs and (b) 2012-related programmes aimed at maximising the benefits of the games for the whole of the UK. In 2008-09, for example, this has included a contribution towards the costs of regional Cultural Olympiad programmers, the costs of events to engage with the public and to raise awareness of the opportunities the games can provide for all the nations and regions of the UK, the costs of establishing a 2012 evaluation framework Cabinet Office and the costs of publishing the 2012 Legacy Action Plan and the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games Annual Report.

Government Olympic Executive: Manpower

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics (1) how many staff worked in the Government Olympic Executive in each of the last three years; [258334]

(2) how many staff worked for her in each of the last three years. [258555]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 25 February 2009]: Since its inception in June 2007 my private office has consisted of five officials and a special adviser, except for when it has carried vacancies.

In addition, staff working in the Government Olympic Executive (GOE) report to me through the Permanent Secretary of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport. The number of staff (full-time equivalents (FTEs)) working in the GOE has risen over the last three years as follows.

As at February each year	FTEs
2006	30
2007	44.3
2009	87.3

This planned increase in staffing (a) reflects the wider role the GOE has taken on during this period - GOE is now the only organisation overseeing the entire Olympic project, integrating the work of multiple delivery bodies, and ensuring the games is delivered within the £9.3 billion public sector funding provision; (b) is a planned response to the expected growth in work to deliver the Government's commitments and guarantees, as 2012 approaches; and (c) is consistent with GOE's staffing and resource plan for 2008-09 to 2010-11, which was agreed by the Treasury early in 2008.

Olympic Games 2012

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics by what process the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games plans to design the opening and closing ceremonies of the London 2012 Olympics; and if she will make a statement. [259806]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 26 February 2009]: The opening and closing ceremonies of both the Olympic games and the Paralympic games in 2012 will be significant moments for the UK, representing an opportunity to showcase the excellent cultural talent we have.

The decision making process to design and deliver these ceremonies is the responsibility of the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG). The first stage of this process is to host key stakeholder forums, to scope the initial ambition for these ceremonies. These events are taking place in the different nations and regions of the UK in the coming weeks.

Following these consultations, LOCOG will work to put in place the brief and plans necessary to deliver the ceremonies, and appoint the creative team to run the ceremonies.

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics pursuant to the answer of 17 February 2009, Official Report, column 2273W, on Olympic games 2012: construction, whether the Olympics Delivery Authority predicted the cost implications for the velopark budget of moving the velodrome. [259801]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 26 February 2009]: The Velodrome was moved slightly to the west to help with the design and layout of the wider cycling facilities to be built in legacy. The Olympic Delivery Authority was aware of the generally poor ground conditions. However, the VeloPark budget could only be adjusted when the full extent of these conditions was known.

Olympic Games: China

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics whether she has made an assessment of UK public opinion on London 2012's contribution to the Beijing Olympics closing ceremony; and if she will make a statement. [259804]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 26 February 2009]: No formal assessment has been made of public opinion in the UK on London's Handover Ceremony in Beijing.

Since the August Handover ceremony, my Department's research has shown that interest in the 2012 Olympic games and Paralympic games has risen by six percentage points.

The Museums Libraries and Archives Council has carried out some assessment as part of their "People's Record" project. 5,000 people gave their views on the Handover celebrations and the Cultural Olympiad; the results will be published in spring.

The London Organising Committee of the Olympic games will build on the experience gained and lessons learnt during this ceremony to deliver the ceremonies in 2012.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Capgemini

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in respect of which consultations conducted by his Department Capgemini has undertaken work. [259312]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Full public consultations undertaken by the Department for Children, Schools and Families are conducted by the Department's Communications Directorate. Capgemini has not undertaken any work on these consultations.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's 2002 long-term partnering agreement with Capgemini. [259314]

Jim Knight: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families will place a copy of the business services framework agreement between the Department and Capgemini dated 6 November 2001 in the Libraries following agreement with Capgemini on what potentially sensitive commercial information may or may not be released.

Children: Protection

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) within how long after their completion local authorities are expected to supply his Department with copies of serious case reviews; [248680]

(2) what procedures his Department follows when it receives a full serious case review. [248681]

Beverley Hughes: Local Safeguarding Children Boards (LSCBs) are asked to provide an anonymised copy of each full serious case review to the Department for Children, Schools and Families as soon as possible after the publication of the executive summary. This is to inform biennial overview reports which analyse the key findings from serious case reviews taken as a whole and identify the implications for policy and practice. When an individual serious case review is complete the report is then evaluated by Ofsted. DCSF children and learners teams in the Regional Government Offices have a support and challenge role, in particular with respect to the implementation by LSCBs and local agencies of recommendations in individual serious case review reports.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many serious case reviews initiated in 2008 were not published within four months of their being requested by the local safeguarding board. [252944]

Beverley Hughes: These data are not compiled centrally. The first annual Ofsted report on Serious Case Reviews, 'Learning Lessons, Taking Action', published on 1 December 2008, gave information on 50 serious case reviews evaluated by Ofsted between 1 April 2007 and 31 March 2008. It noted that of the 50 reviews evaluated, five were completed within four months, although the report also observed that 'a significant number of reviews were delayed because they were awaiting the outcome of coroners' courts and/or criminal proceedings'. Guidance in Working Together to Safeguard Children 2006 is clear, that any delays in completing serious case reviews should not prevent early lessons learnt from being implemented.

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many staff in his Department or its predecessors were on sick leave for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years. [256319]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department was set up as part of the Machinery of Government changes on 28 June 2007. All sickness absence data are available on the Department's website:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/sicknessabsence/.

Information for individual members of staff who had sick leave for the periods specified is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportion cost.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many staff in his Department were recorded as having been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December in each of the last five years. [256634]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department was set up as part of the Machinery of Government changes on 28 June 2007. The figures for the Department apply from 31 December 2007 onwards.

Number of people who have been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December

	Number
2008	9
2007	4

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W, on education maintenance allowance (EMA), whether the regular updates on the EMA delivery issues provided to Ministers by the Learning and Skills Council are provided in written form. [257823]

Jim Knight: The processing statistics supplied by the contractor via the Learning and Skills Council to officials in the Department for Children School and Families were provided in written form. These statistics were provided daily during the working week, between September 2008 to January 2009. Officials are currently collating these records and we will make them available before 12 March.

Music: Education

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many (a) people and (b) schools have registered with the Sing Up website; [258323]

(2) what percentage of primary school pupils in the relevant age category have taken part in the Sing Up programme. [258324]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: People register on the Sing Up website only if they want to receive the magazine that is sent out once a term. Other people can visit the site without registering. The data for February show that there have so far been 26,149 registrations on the website, including from 13,489 individual schools.

Over 100,000 children have been directly involved in Sing Up activity, such as workshops in the Southbank Centre and Birmingham Symphony Hall. Over 20,000 people have participated in Sing Up training and CPD activity and the website attracts 20,000 visitors each week. There is no measure of how many children are subsequently reached by those who have received training or visited the website.

National Curriculum Tests: Special Educational Needs

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many and what proportion of (a) all children identified with speech, language and communication difficulties, (b) children identified with speech, language and communications difficulties from the 10 per cent. most deprived areas and (c) children identified with speech, language and communication difficulties from the five per cent. most deprived areas achieved the national standard in all Key Stage 1 assessments in each year since 1997; [257607]

(2) how many and what proportion of children identified with speech, language and communication difficulties from (a) the 10 per cent. most deprived areas and (b) the five per cent. most deprived areas achieved the national standard in Key Stage 1 (i) reading, (ii) writing, (iii) mathematics and (iv) science assessments in each year since 1997; [257608]

(3) how many and what proportion of children identified with speech, language and communication difficulties achieved the national standard in Key Stage 1 (a) reading, (b) writing, (c) mathematics and (d) science assessments in each year since 1997. [257609]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department only collects data by type of special educational need for children at School Action Plus or with statements. School Action Plus, under the SEN Code of Practice, is where a school receives some external help to meet a child's SEN. A SEN statement is drawn up by a local authority, following an assessment, where it is necessary to determine the special educational provision which a child's learning difficulties call for.

The available 2008 information is attached to the "Statistical First Release: Attainment by Pupil Characteristics, in England 2007/08", which can be found at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000822/index.shtml

Analysis similar to that requested for pupils with speech, language and communication difficulty attaining the expected level in Key Stage 1 was carried out using 2006 data and the relevant information is given as follows.

This information is not available for years before 2005 when type of SEN information for pupils was not collected.

The analysis only relates to the primary SEN type of pupils. Some of these children may also have a secondary SEN type which has not been taken into consideration in the analysis.

Percentage of pupils achieving level 2 (expected level) or above in Key Stage 1 assessments in 2006

Number of pupils with speech language and communication difficulty at school action plus = reading/writing/maths 8,875, science 8,870

Number of pupils with speech language and communication difficulty with statements = reading/writing/maths 2,410, science 2,405

	Reading	Writing	Maths	Science
School action plus
Speech language and communication difficulty	45	38	60	58
Statement
Speech language and communication difficulty	29	22	38	33

Note:
Figures relate to seven-year-olds (age at start of academic year, i.e. 31 August) in maintained schools.

The Department intends to publish similar information for pupils with special educational needs based on 2008 data later this year.

Further information can be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

School Meals: Nutrition

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent assessment is of the effect of secondary schools allowing pupils to leave school premises at lunchtime on the ability of schools to deliver higher nutritional standards in school meals. [257819]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Food based standards for school lunches have been in place since September 2006. Schools must also meet the Government's nutrient based standards for school lunches, which were introduced for primary school lunches in September 2008 and will be introduced in secondary and special schools in September 2009. Clearly, secondary school pupils who leave the school premises at lunchtime and do not eat a school lunch will not benefit from the healthier food on offer at the school. It is for head teachers to decide whether to adopt a stay on site policy.

Schools: Catering

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of (a) primary and (b) secondary school premises have a dining hall. [256009]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not hold up-to-date information on the numbers and proportions of primary and secondary schools that have a dining hall. It is thought that:

(a) most primary schools have halls where dining takes place. For some schools this is a dedicated dining hall, for many it is a multi-purpose hall used for assembly, PE and dining;

(b) most, if not all, secondary schools have dining halls.

Central Government capital support for investment in schools has increased from under £700 million in 1996-97 to £6.7 billion in 2008-09 and will rise further to £8.0 billion by 2010-11. Progress is being made year-by-year in improving the quality of the school building stock. The bulk of schools capital is now allocated by formula to local authorities and schools. This enables them to fund priority projects which could include providing a dining hall at a school that does not have one.

Schools: Inspections

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families for what reasons agreements of contracts between Ofsted and inspection contractors have not been reached in accordance with the originally planned timetable. [259625]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 26 February 2009:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response.

The original timetable for the awarding of new inspection contracts made provision for decisions being made in January 2009. In October 2008, a decision was taken to delay this by one month to allow the process to take full account of organisational changes within Ofsted.

On 25 February 2009, bidders were informed about the outcomes and a press release was placed on the Ofsted website. The contract award is subject to an Alcatel (standstill) period under European legislation, which will end on 9 March 2009. Publicity during the Alcatel period is being kept deliberately 'low key', restricted to information that bidders are obliged to provide under the London Stock Exchange Disclosure and Transparency Rules (DTR).

A copy of this reply has been sent to Rt Hon Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Special Educational Needs

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which maintained special schools opened in 2008; and what the cost of establishing each was. [256346]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department's records, based on information supplied by local authorities, indicate that the following maintained special schools opened in 2008. The Department does not have a record of the cost of establishing these schools; this will be held locally.

Name of maintained special school	Postaltown	Postalcounty area	Date opened
Phoenix Schools	Walsall	West Midlands	1 January 2008

Castle Wood	Coventry	West Midlands	1 April 2008
Newbridge Learning Community	Wigan	Lancashire	1 September 2008
Seven Hills School	Sheffield	South Yorkshire	1 September 2008

Name of maintained special school	Postaltown	Postal/county area	Date opened
Sir Tom Finney Community High School	Preston	Lancashire	1 September 2008
Acorns Primary School	Preston	Lancashire	1 September 2008
Elm Tree Community Primary School	Skelmersdale	Lancashire	1 September 2008
Heatherwood School	Doncaster	South Yorkshire	1 September 2008
Pennine View School	Doncaster	South Yorkshire	1 September 2008
Coppice Community School	Doncaster	South Yorkshire	1 September 2008
Stone Hill School	Doncaster	South Yorkshire	1 September 2008
North Ridge Community School	Doncaster	South Yorkshire	1 September 2008
Cottenham Foundation Special School	Cambridge	Cambridgeshire	1 November 2008

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many maintained special schools there were in each local authority in each year since 1997, broken down by special educational needs priority 1. [256443]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We cannot provide the information requested because it would require the manipulation of large volumes of data which could be undertaken only at a disproportionate cost.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1730-2W, on special educational needs, how many pupils were given (a) a fixed period and (b) a permanent exclusion. [258051]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Teachers: Training

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the Continued Professional Development proposed for teachers operating in challenging circumstances, as referred to in his Department's publication "New Opportunities, Fair Chances for the Future", will include training on the effects of poverty on children's experiences of school. [258089]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The teachers' Professional Standards already require them to identify and support children and young people whose progress, development or well-being is affected by changes or difficulties in their personal circumstances, and when to refer them to colleagues for specialist support.

In connection with the extra support announced in the New Opportunities White Paper, I have asked the Training and Development Agency for Schools to assemble a package of guidance and advice for both new and experienced teachers and other school staff working in challenging circumstances. This will be available from September and will support teachers in achieving and maintaining the Professional Standards and other school staff in supporting children and young people.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Codes of Practice

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on research in preparing for the new Code of Good Agricultural Practice. [252771]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 29 January 2009]: A number of technical specialists from DEFRA and its agencies contributed to the content of the new Code of Good Agricultural Practice. The publication updates the previously published codes of practice for water, soil and air which have been periodically updated for the past 20 years. Therefore, the cost of research in preparing the new Code of Good Agricultural Practice is not readily available in DEFRA.

Angling: Devon

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what assessment his Department has made of the contribution of recreational sea angling to the North Devon economy; [258420]

(2) how many people resident in North Devon are employed in the North Devon recreational sea angling sector; [258421]

(3) how many recreational sea anglers are estimated to visit North Devon each year; [258422]

(4) what recent assessment he has made of the effect that Article 47 of the EU Proposal for the Monitoring of Recreational Fisheries would have on recreational sea angling. [258423]

Huw Irranca-Davies: A DEFRA-funded study carried out by Drew Associates into the economic impact of the recreational sea angling sector in England and Wales was published in 2004. This study estimated that 18,889 people were employed in the sector and that the total expenditure of anglers was £538 million per year. Although we do not have detailed data on angling activity in North Devon, the same report considered the principal locations for angling in that area and identified that there were 15 charter angling vessels in the North Devon and Bristol Channel area.

In England there are around 400 charter angling vessels that would require an authorisation under Article 47 of the draft EU proposal, plus an as yet unquantified number of privately owned vessels. As part of the process of negotiating this proposal, we shall be seeking clarification from the Commission on a number of issues relating to Article 47. Until we have that clarification it is difficult to assess accurately its potential impact on recreational sea angling. We shall be seeking stakeholders' views on these points and considering them in more detail in the impact assessment that my officials are drawing up and which we shall publish as part of the formal consultation procedure.

Bluetongue Disease: Vaccination

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on research into a vaccine for (a) BVT1, (b) BVT8, (c) BVT6 and (d) all other strains of bluetongue disease in each of the last six years. [257428]

Jane Kennedy: The research, development and production of bluetongue vaccine is a commercial proposition and there are a number of private companies involved in the development, production and sale of vaccine. Although Government do not actively fund work specifically on development of vaccines, significant funding on bluetongue research in recent years has provided a fundamental science base that contributes to and underpins the use of vaccines in disease control. This research, which includes work to understand the molecular basis of infection and protection from bluetongue, is published and made available to the wider scientific community.

It is, therefore, not possible to state an exact figure that has contributed directly to vaccine development, but the overall Bluetongue Virus (BTV) research spend, of which some has been spent on molecular research over the last six years, has been:

	Bluetongue (£ million)
2003-04	0.34
2004-05	0.45
2005-06	0.55
2006-07	0.63
2007-08	0.71
2008-09	[1]0.73

[1] Estimated

DEFRA continues to engage with experts and manufacturers on the issue of vaccine development and authorisation for other serotypes.

Departmental Legal Proceedings

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what provision his Department has made in its budget for potential civil liabilities stemming from legal proceedings. [241190]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The provision made by the Department in its budget for potential civil liabilities stemming from legal proceedings is £5,958,667.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Fareham of 23 January 2008, Official Report, column 2019W, on departmental marketing, how the (a) long-sleeved T-shirts, (b) travel wallets, (c) pens and (d) travel toothbrush sets were branded; what (i) slogan and (ii) logo was used on each; and what the cost of each such type of promotional material was to his Department. [249360]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Departmental Communications Directorate has procured the following DEFRA branded products:

Product	Date	Slogan	Logos	Use	Cost (£ each)
Long sleeved T-shirt	2005-06	Don't break the law check the rules before you travel	DEFRA HM Revenue and Customs	Personal food imports campaign	6.95
Travel wallets	2006-07	Don't break the law check the rules before you travel	DEFRA HM Revenue and Customs Food Standards Agency	Personal food imports campaign	0.77
Pens	2006-07	Don't break the law check the rules before you travel	DEFRA	Personal food imports campaign	0.19
Travel toothbrush sets	2006-07	Don't break the law check the rules before you travel	DEFRA	Personal food imports campaign	0.36

Departmental Pay

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent in bonuses to staff of each grade in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies in (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008. [258230]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Performance related pay schemes encourage high attainment, help drive performance in departments and agencies and support better public service delivery. DEFRA's uses non-consolidated payments to reward high performance during the year and these are based on how well an individual has met or exceeded set objectives, relative to their peers.

Non-consolidated performance payments are one-off payments and do not count towards pension. They are allocated from a 'pot' expressed as a percentage of the salary budget each year. Non-consolidated performance payments paid from the 2007 pay budget relate to performance in the, 2006-07 appraisal year and those paid from 2008 pay budget relate to performance in the 2007-08 appraisal year.

For the senior civil service (SCS) the size of the pot available is agreed centrally each year following recommendations from the senior salaries review body. In recent years, this pot has increased as greater emphasis is placed on non-consolidated performance pay with proportionately smaller increases to consolidated base pay.

The size of the pot for non-SCS is determined individually by Departments and Agencies through the pay remit process and in negotiations with the Trades Unions. DEFRA's pay remit level approved over the past two years has been below the average of those approved across Whitehall departments.

The following tables show the total amount of non-consolidated performance payments awarded to staff in each grade in 2007 and 2008. For DEFRA, the data cover staff in core-DEFRA (including staff who transferred to DECC in October 2008) and those agencies covered by DEFRA terms and conditions (Animal Health, Veterinary Medicines Directorate, Marine and Fisheries Agency and Government Decontamination Service and until 1 April 2008 Pesticides Safety Directorate).

Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by (a) the Consumer Council for Water and (b) the Environment Agency is in 2008-09. [258527]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Consumer Council for Water has no vacant or unoccupied properties recorded on the e-PIMS database.

The Environment Agency has three properties recorded as vacant on the e-PIMS database. The estimated cost of vacant business rates on these properties is £96,000. £92,000 is attributable to one building which has now been sub-let in part. The Environment Agency is actively pursuing disposal of the remainder.

The Environment Agency has a further five properties that have been vacant in 2008-09, and the estimated cost of business rates on these properties is £24,000.

Flood Control: Finance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his Department's funding framework is for storage of flood water as part of a flood alleviation scheme; from which budget such schemes will be funded; and to which bodies applications for such funding should be made. [257030]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Flood storage is one of a number of options available to operating authorities to manage flood risk. Options are appraised in line with Government guidance to ensure schemes are sustainable and cost beneficial. The Environment Agency approves funding for appropriate schemes from the funds allocated under the comprehensive spending review up to delegated Treasury limits. Proposals for schemes to address flood risk should be discussed initially with the Environment Agency for inclusion on the "medium term plan" for flood risk management schemes.

Floods: Canvey Island

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice the Environment Agency has given to the Highways Authority on building on the flood risk area in relation to the Roscommon Way Extension, Canvey Island; and if he will make a statement. [258344]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency has met with the Highways Authority consultants, Mouchel Parkman, regarding the proposed extension to Roscommon Way. The Environment Agency informed Mouchel Parkman that the impact of the extension must be fully considered and adequate mitigation measures provided so there is no increased flood risk to the surrounding area.

Floods: Essex

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on flood prevention measures in Essex in the last 12 months. [258299]

Huw Irranca-Davies: During the financial year 2008-09, the Anglian eastern area of the Environment Agency spent over £17 million on flood protection measures in the Essex catchment. £4.67 million has been spent on the maintenance of rivers and tidal defences, £2.62 million on major refurbishment of existing flood defences and £10.4 million on new or improved flood defences.

Floods: Hull

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of secondary flooding on the time taken for people to be able to return to their homes in Hull. [257032]

Huw Irranca-Davies: There have been 910 incidences of 'secondary flooding' in Hull since January 2008, although the relationship between the flooding in summer 2007 and subsequent water ingress remains to be explored further. The city council is working with the Environment Agency and the university of Hull to understand the factors which contribute to the continuing incidences of water ingress into homes. As of 29 January 2009, of the 472 households displaced from their homes in Hull by flooding, 360 were displaced as a result of water ingress from January 2008 or subsequently.

The Government are concerned about all households which are still displaced from their homes following the 2007 summer flooding. Approximately 100 households returned each week between the end of June and the middle of November and on that basis we estimate that more than 19 out of every 20 households originally displaced are back home. That compares well to the Carlisle floods in 2005 when one in 10 were still out of their homes after 18 months.

But we recognise that is no consolation to those still displaced and the Minister for Local Government, my right hon. Friend the Member for Wentworth (John Healey) is continuing to work with local authorities and the insurance industry to ensure that the momentum in getting people home is maintained.

Those families still living wholly or partially in caravans are a particular concern and the Minister for Local Government has linked up with council leaders in the most affected authorities, which include Hull, to offer additional support to help to those households over the winter.

Health Hazards

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department classifies building foam containing ozone depleting substance blowing agents as hazardous. [257525]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Most insulation foam containing ozone-depleting substances are currently contained within buildings. At this point, annual emissions are known to be at their lowest and therefore present little risk to the ozone layer.

On becoming waste, insulation foam containing 0.1 per cent. or more of ozone-depleting substances is classified as hazardous waste. Further information on the classification of hazardous waste is available in the Environment Agency's technical guidance WM2, 'Hazardous waste: Interpreting the definition and classification of hazardous waste, 2nd edition v2.2, 2005 (updated 2008)'.

DEFRA is working with building industry stakeholders to assess the current infrastructure available for dealing with the recovery or destruction of ozone-depleting substances in building foams and the technical and economic issues that arise.

Marine Management Organisation: Location

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 12 February 2009, Official Report, columns 82-84WS, on the Marine Management Organisation's headquarters, what assessment he has made of the suitability of Plymouth as a site for the Marine Management Organisation's headquarters. [258571]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 25 February 2009]: In a transparent and fair process which involved stakeholders in drawing up a set of business and quality of life criteria and the consultancy firm KPMG carrying out an independent assessment against these criteria, Plymouth was selected as one of the six shortlisted locations for the Marine Management Organisation's headquarters. The criteria used to arrive at the shortlist, and subsequently tested through site visits and presentations from the locations, were:

- Business needs for the MMO HQ such as availability of skilled work force and good transport links.
- Cost and value for money.
- Government policies on location of public sector bodies.
- Quality of Life factors including cost of living, education, employment, healthcare.

As well as carrying out site visits to further test locations against these criteria, all shortlisted locations were given the opportunity to present their case to be the home of the MMO HQ and I met with MPs from all the shortlisted locations. Plymouth presented a strong case and, like all of the shortlisted locations, would have been a good home for the MMO HQ, allowing the MMO to meet its business needs and benefit from local marine expertise, organisational networks and academic links.

However, Tyneside demonstrated the strongest and most comprehensive case to be the home of the organisation and provides a location from which the organisation can best achieve its aims. Among other factors, Tyneside has a broad range and good balance of marine interests with a working port, all of which fit well with the role of the MMO. Tyneside also provides strong transport links in terms of access to key stakeholders in London, Brussels and Scotland. There was a compelling demonstration of support from a wide range of stakeholders across the North East region, a region which has benefited little to date from the Lyons Review in respect of the relocation of public sector employment. The extensive evidence of partnership working in the area provided confidence that Tyneside had actively considered the bespoke requirements of the MMO with regard to its role under the Marine and Coastal Access Bill.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the Minister for Farming and the Environment will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire, dated 9 December 2008, about tigers being farmed for use in Chinese medicine. [259311]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I replied to the hon. Member's letter on 13 January and a copy of this was sent by officials on 25 February.

River Lymington: Ferries

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what steps he plans to take in response to the decision by Wightlink to initiate its new ferry service between Lymington and Yarmouth prior to completion of the appropriate assessment; and if he will make a statement; [259337]

(2) what assessment he has made of (a) the likely environmental effects on the Lymington Marshes Natura 2000 site and (b) the compliance with the EU Environmental Liability Directive of the operation of a ferry service between Lymington and Yarmouth; and if he will make a statement. [259339]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The introduction of new "W" class ferries by Wightlink on the Lymington to Yarmouth route is now the subject of legal proceedings against the Department and others. In these circumstances it would be inappropriate for me to answer questions on the subject.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Housing: Rents

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to allow local authorities to retain all their receipts from council tenants' rent. [258973]

Mr. Iain Wright: The current system of local authority housing finance is based on a system of surplus authorities (where assumed income exceeds assumed costs) making payment to central Government and deficit authorities (where assumed income is less than assumed costs) receiving subsidy. In the current year approximately £550 million will be paid to deficit authorities in aggregate. So a change to enable all local authorities in surplus to keep their receipts would entail a considerable increase in public expenditure.

However, CLG and HM Treasury are holding a Review of Council Housing Finance and Rents Policy. Our aim is to have a long term solution to financing council housing that is sustainable and fair to both tenant and taxpayer. The issue of councils retaining all rental receipts is closely bound up with a number of other key policy decisions, including what rents should pay for and how these receipts would be used in a local area. It would be premature to reach conclusions specifically on this matter until the Review reports to Ministers later this year, when it will be considered as part of the overall structure for a new or improved system.

Fire Services: Working Hours

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent meetings she has had on the Working Time Directive in respect of retained firefighters from (a) the Fire Brigades Union, (b) the Retained Firefighters Union and (c) other stakeholders; what representations she has received in each case; and if she will make a statement. [259219]

Mr. Khan: There have been no recent meetings at ministerial level with (a) the Fire Brigades' Union, (b) the Retained Firefighters' Union or (c) other stakeholders at which the working time directive in respect of firefighters working a retained duty system has been discussed. Written representations about the potential impact on firefighters working a retained duty system of losing the opt-out have been received from the Retained Firefighters' Union, MPs and MSPs.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1076W.

Local Authorities: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 29 April 2008, Official Report, column 314W, on local authorities: carbon emissions, if she will place in the Library a copy of the letter from January 2007; and whether local authorities may carbon offset using projects based in their local authority area. [252391]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply, and can confirm that the letter in question will be placed in the Libraries of the House. On carbon offsetting, it is very difficult to ensure that UK-based carbon offset projects are truly additional—that is, that they result in real emission reductions that would not have happened anyway in the absence of carbon finance. For this reason the government's voluntary quality assurance scheme for carbon offsetting which was launched on 26 February 2009 will not cover projects based in the UK. Support for local emission reduction projects can be beneficial, but caution should be exercised in claiming those emission reductions as offsets to balance a carbon footprint.

Local Government Services: Essex

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will hold discussions with Essex County Council on its proposals to outsource services and delivery support functions. [259623]

John Healey: The Department has no plans to discuss with Essex county council any procurement exercise that may be proposed on service delivery. Subject to their legal duties, including the duty of best value and public procurement law, local authorities are responsible for taking their own procurement decisions. In doing so, they will have regard to available guidance, including that on work force matters.

Multiple Occupation

Dr. Whitehead: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she plans to consult on amendments to use classes orders in relation to houses in multiple occupation. [257445]

Mr. Iain Wright: We are committed to consulting on possible changes to the use class order in relation to houses in multiple occupation.

We are considering the most appropriate mechanism for this consultation, and plan to consult in the spring.

Non-Domestic Rates: Ports

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when her Department informed the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) that prescriptive rating of docks was to end; and when the VOA was asked to prepare individual assessments of port businesses. [258233]

John Healey: The Government's policy to end the power to prescribe formed part of the long-term policy to apply conventional rating valuation methods across all industry sectors. The ending of prescribed rating was enacted in the Local Government Act 2003. Prescription applied only to the operational land of the statutory port not to other companies or businesses operating under licence or other agreement with exclusive use of property within the boundaries of ports. A separate assessment for such property is a long established principle that applies right across non-domestic rating, including within ports.

Rateable values are assessed independently by the Valuation Office Agency (VOA), and this Department is not involved in the process.

The review of the port rating assessments was undertaken as part of the VOA's statutory duty to maintain correct rating lists. As inaccuracies in the rating assessments were identified, action was taken to correct them.

Rents

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average weekly rent for local housing was in each local housing authority in the latest period for which figures are available, listed from highest to lowest; what the percentage change in average weekly rent in each authority was in (a) cash and (b) real terms between (i) 1987 and 1997 and (ii) 1997 and 2007-08, listed from highest to lowest in each case. [256135]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on average rent for local housing comes from housing revenue account (HRA) subsidy forms. The latest available figures are at end-April 2008. The average weekly rent for local authority housing in each local authority area for this period, listed from highest to lowest, are provided in table 1. A copy of this table has been placed in the Library.

Data prior to 1996 on local housing average rent are not held electronically.

Table 2 provides information on the cash difference and the real terms difference between local authority average rents in 1997 and 2008 for each local authority area, listed from highest to lowest. Copies of these tables have been placed in the Library.

Not all local authorities are listed because some may have transferred their stock by large scale voluntary transfer (LSVT) to registered social landlords.

Social Rented Housing

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number and proportion of social housing tenants in each region not in receipt of housing benefit who are (a) pensioners and (b) of working age. [259759]

Mr. Iain Wright: Estimates of the number and proportion of social housing tenants not in receipt of housing benefit who are of working age and pensionable age are set out in the following table. These estimates are based on data from the Survey of English Housing.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

British Plastics Federation

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he expects the European Commission to decide on a state aids exemption for the British Plastics Federation climate change agreement. [257814]

Joan Ruddock: The UK submitted an application for state aid approval to the proposed climate change agreements with the plastics sector on 27 March 2008. This was followed by a series of exchanges between the European Commission and the Government as the Commission sought additional detailed information. The Government responded to the latest request for additional information on 15 January 2009. The Commission has two months in which to reply.

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what representations he has received on the British Plastics Federation's climate change agreement. [257815]

Joan Ruddock: During the last 10 months there has been regular contact between the British Plastics Federation and officials in DECC during which the Government have sought state aid approval of a climate change agreement for the plastics sector.

Carbon Emissions

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps are being taken to ensure the effectiveness of the Act on CO_2 campaign in all parts of the UK. [258253]

Joan Ruddock: Our evaluation of the effectiveness of the Act on CO_2 campaign looks at a series of measures including:

Response (e.g. website usage);

Campaign awareness, recognition and comprehension (assessed in regular research fieldwork dips); and Claimed action and declared propensity to change behaviour (from research, as aforementioned).

Since the launch of the current 'Save money save energy' phase of the Act on CO_2 campaign on 17 September 2008, the Act on CO_2 website has had over 550,000 unique visitors. Since its launch in June 2007 to November 2008 there have been over 1.3 million visitors to the Act on CO_2 calculator.

As of December 2008 awareness of the phrase 'Act on CO_2' is 72 per cent. and 73 per cent. of respondents currently say they have taken actions or are planning to take actions to reduce their CO_2 emissions as a result of the campaign. This compares favourably to 50 per cent. in summer 2007, when research was undertaken to evaluate the first television campaign.

Act on CO_2 is currently ran as an England-only campaign. The Devolved Administrations ran their own bespoke communications approaches and therefore we do not actively pursue or measure its effectiveness within the devolved areas.

Carbon Emissions: Telephone Services

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the (a) set-up and (b) maintenance costs of the Act on CO_2 advice line are; and how many calls have been received on the line since its establishment. [254127]

Joan Ruddock: DECC grant fund the Energy Saving Trust (EST) for their work as independent and trusted experts in the carbon abatement field. Total grant funding to EST for 2008-09 was £35.2 million. The EST is contributing to the Government's Act on CO_2 campaign by running the Act on CO_2 advice line and nationwide network of regional advice centres, which provide the consumer with comprehensive and tailored advice on how to reduce their carbon footprint. The funding of specific EST activities is a matter for EST's board.

I understand from the Trust that since the establishment of the Act on CO_2 advice line in April 2008 it has received 407,944 calls up to December 2008.

Climate Change: International Cooperation

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) what proposals his Department has put forward for an international financing mechanism to fund the UN Climate Change Adaptation Fund; what discussions he has had with the Prime Minister and Chancellor of the Exchequer on these proposals; and if he will make a statement; [255731]

(2) what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the UK's level of financial support for the UN Climate Change Adaptation Fund; and if he will make a statement. [255732]

Joan Ruddock: Discussions were held across Whitehall in preparation for the agreement by parties that 2 per cent. of the share of proceeds from the Certified Emissions Reductions issued for the Clean Development Mechanism will go towards the Adaptation Fund. This international financing mechanism is now in place. The UK Government are working with others on the Adaptation Fund Board to establish sound operational procedures for the Adaptation Fund to ensure that it will meet international fiduciary standards and be an effective mechanism for delivering increased finance where it is needed. The UK Government take the subject of adaptation finance extremely seriously and recognise that the process will be complex and will take time to get right.

The board's approach to making the fund operational was approved by parties in Poznan, thus enabling it to start operations in 2009. The board is now working to put in place the mechanisms it set out in the approach submitted to parties in Poznan, and the UK continues to play a key role in assisting the board to find innovative ways to enable the fund to become operational this year. The UK was the board's biggest financial supporter in 2008 (£500,000) and has set aside an additional £500,000 for 2009 to assist the board in its work to set up the necessary operational structures to enable direct access.

Discussions by parties in Poznan revealed weaknesses in the governance structure of the Adaptation Fund, which have restricted the authority and operational efficacy of the board. These will need to be addressed to ensure that the fund will be able to make decisions on allocation of funding that are not affected by political considerations. This process has been particularly challenging as parties have requested access to funding without the assistance of intermediaries. The international community has thus far relied on these to provide sound fiduciary risk management for international assistance to developing countries. The UK has been playing a key role in the board to find ways to facilitate such direct access to funding.

The UK Government will be considering options for scaling up the movement of international financial assistance through the Adaptation Fund after consideration of the adequacy of the implementation structures the fund will have put in place this year, and in line with our wider objectives on the international financial architecture. It is clear that a blend of options will offer the best prospects of raising the level of funding required. Our vision is of a climate 'compact' between developed and developing countries whereby funds are disbursed at scale on the basis of national plans that integrate mitigation and adaptation needs alongside development priorities.

Departmental Buildings

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change by what date he expects his Department's Nuclear Directorate office in Cheltenham to be operational. [255971]

Jonathan Shaw: I have been asked to reply.

The Nuclear Directorates management team are currently working on the Cheltenham office being operational as soon as possible, subject to contract negotiations and furnishing to make ready for staff.

Departmental Correspondence

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the address of his Department's Nuclear Directorate is. [255970]

Jonathan Shaw: I have been asked to reply.

The Nuclear Directorate's address is:

Redgrave Court
Merton Road
Bootle
Merseyside
L20 7HS.

Departmental Manpower

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many staff of his Department are based at its Nuclear Directorate's offices in London; and how many are in each civil service pay band. [255972]

Jonathan Shaw: I have been asked to reply.

The Nuclear Directorate (ND) currently has seven members of staff located at ND's London based office. The breakdown of staff in each civil service pay band is as follows:

Civil service pay band	Number of staff	HSE equivalent grade
UG7	3	Band 2
SEO	1	Band 3
HEO	1	Band 4
EO	1	Band 5
AO	1	Band 6

In addition ND currently have a further two Health and Safety Executive members of staff on attachment to the directorate working in their London office as follows:

Civil service pay band	Number of staff	HSE equivalent grade
UG6	1	Band 1
AO	1	Band 6

Energy: Conservation

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent representations he has received on the use of blinds and awnings as energy efficient products in domestic and commercial property; and whether officials of his Department have met representatives of the blind and awning industry. [256376]

Joan Ruddock: As far as it is possible to establish, DECC Ministers and officials have not met with or received representations from any representatives of this industry.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has undertaken on the effect on energy efficiency of the use of blinds and awnings in domestic and commercial buildings. [256378]

Joan Ruddock: The Department has undertaken no specific research on the effect on energy efficiency of the use of blinds and awnings in domestic and commercial buildings. Nonetheless, the benefits of blinds and awnings are understood and included in our National Calculation Methodologies, by which building related energy efficiency measures are assessed.

Energy: Finance

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent assessment he has made of the availability of private finance initiative credits for energy infrastructure projects. [255170]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: DECC does not receive any PFI credits.

Treasury is the Department responsible for allocating PFI credits among Departments.

Environmental Transformation Fund

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change through which sub-funds of bilateral and multilateral organisations Environmental Transformation Fund disbursements will be channelled in the next two years. [256941]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The UK (the Department for International Development (DFID) and my Department) has allocated the £800 million Environmental Transformation Fund to the World Bank-administered Climate Investment Funds. The Climate Investment Funds are divided into the Clean Technology Fund and the Strategic Climate Fund. Sub-programmes of the latter include: the Pilot programme for climate resilience, and two programmes under development: the Forest Investment programme and the Scaling-up Renewable Energy programme. The funds will be administered by the World Bank with individual programmes implemented through any one of the Multilateral Development Banks. Decisions are made by recipient countries on the basis of their country-led investment plans. We expect UN agencies to participate as delivery agents.

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change with which other Government Departments his Department works in administering the Environmental Transformation Fund; what the arrangements are for doing so; and what (a) administrative, (b) accounting and (c) reporting structures are in place for this purpose. Joan Ruddock [holding answer 232 February 2009]: The information requested is as follows:

(a) The UK (the Department for International Development and my Department) has allocated the £800 million Environmental Transformation Fund (ETF) to the World Bank administered Climate Investment Funds (CIFs). The administration of the funds is overseen across Whitehall by the ETF board consisting of representatives of my Department, the Department for International Development, HM Treasury, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs. A cross-Whitehall team provides secretariat support to the board for UK administration of the funds.

(b) The funds will be administered by the World Bank with individual programmes implemented through any one of the Multilateral Development Banks (MDB). The World Bank is the administrator and trustee of the funds. It produces quarterly reports on financial progress and annual audited reports of accounts to the UK.

(c) As a minimum, each MDB will report annually to the Strategic Climate Fund Trust Fund Committee on the monitoring and evaluation it has conducted in accordance with their procedures. The governance framework can be viewed at:

www.WorldBank.org/cif

The UK is in discussions with the Clean Technology Fund and Strategic Climate Fund Trust Fund Committees about the best reporting criteria framework for the funds. An independent evaluation of the operations of the Climate Investment Funds and the impact of their activities will be conducted. This will be carried out jointly with the MDBs after three years of operation.

Fuel Poverty

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he next expects to release up-to-date figures on the number of people living in fuel poverty. [253731]

Joan Ruddock: The Government intends to publish updated figures on the number of people living in fuel poverty in its next annual progress report on the fuel poverty strategy to be published later in the year.

Members: Correspondence

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he plans to reply to the letters of 5 November and 9 December 2008 from the hon. Member for Weston-Super-Mare sent on behalf of a constituent, Mr. Richard Cains. [252712]

Joan Ruddock: A letter from the hon. Member for Weston-Super-Mare was received on 9 December 2008 but not one dated 5 November 2008. My officials have been in contact with his office to request the original letter with the details of his constituent's concerns and I will then reply to the hon. Member.

Nuclear Power Stations: Inspections

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will place in the Library a copy of the report by Veredus on the pay and conditions of nuclear inspectors. [255983]

Jonathan Shaw: I have been asked to reply.

The Veredus report was commissioned by the HSE to inform its consideration of the appropriate remuneration package to retain and recruit the nuclear inspectors it needs. As such it is very pertinent to the ongoing pay negotiations that the HSE is conducting at present as well as the negotiations that will take place in setting ND up as a statutory corporation under HSE auspices. Consequently, it is not considered appropriate to place a copy in the Library at this time.

Nuclear Power: Regulation

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will publish the full version of Dr Tim Stone's recommendations to his Department on nuclear regulation following his nuclear regulatory review. [255969]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: In January 2008, following the publication of the White Paper on Nuclear Power, the Government asked Dr. Tim Stone to conduct a review of nuclear regulation. On 27 January 2009 we published the Summary Recommendations and a Government Response.

The Summary Recommendations set out all of Dr. Stone's recommendations. They were supported by private advice to Ministers, which was not intended for publication.

Warm Front Scheme

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the value of the administration fee paid to Eaga in regard to the Warm Front scheme was in each of the last 10 years. [242494]

Joan Ruddock: Eaga has been the main contractor for Warm Front across the country since 2005. Since that point, the administration fees paid have been:

	Administration cost (£)	Percentage total of budget
2005-06	18,048,000	9.6
2006-07	25,551,000	9.1
2007-08	31,464,000	8.9
2008-09 (Forecast)	20,563,000	6.5

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many applications for Warm Front grants have been (a) made and (b) refused in the last 12 months. [253605]

Joan Ruddock: Over the last year Warm Front has received applications from 308,915 households that are entitled to a Warm Front grant. Warm Front does not record the number of ineligible households that approach the scheme seeking assistance.

Warm Front Scheme: Contracts

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how frequently payments to Eaga are made in respect of its management of the Warm Front scheme. [255937]

Joan Ruddock: Eaga is paid management fees on a monthly basis.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan and Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the standard rifle used by (a) the Royal Marine Commando, (b) each UK special force and (c) each other UK service is in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan. [258316]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The standard rifle used by all UK forces, excluding Special Forces, is the SA80 A2. It is the policy of this Department not to comment on matters relating to UK Special Forces.

Aircraft Carriers

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the Future Aircraft Carrier main gate business case submission. [257773]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I am withholding the requested document as its release would, or would be likely to, prejudice the commercial interests in relation to the Future Aircraft Carrier project.

Armed Forces: Foreigners

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many foreign nationals are serving in the armed forces, broken down by (a) country of origin and (b) service. [257446]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Country of origin data are not currently available due to an ongoing data validation of the Ministry of Defence Joint Personnel Administrative system (JPA). The following tables show the number of non-British nationals currently serving in the trained UK Regular armed forces as at 1 December 2008 by recorded nationality category on JPA and service.

Armed Forces: Pay

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the current salary bill for all service personnel is, broken down by (a) service and (b) rank. [258430]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The most recently published total salary bill (including allowances) for service personnel broken down by service can be found in the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency Annual Report and Accounts for Financial Year 2007-08. A copy of this is held in the Library of the House. For ease of reference, details are reproduced as follows:

Service	Total (£ billion)
Royal Navy	1.72
Army	4.46
RAF	1.97
Total	8.15

A breakdown of the total salary bill by rank is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Working Hours

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many hours on average were worked by (a) junior and (b) senior service personnel at each rank of each service in each age band in each week of the last 12 months. [258312]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information requested is not held centrally on administration systems. However Defence Analytical Services and Advice (DASA) carry out a Continuous Survey of Working Patterns which is used to provide estimates of the average weekly hours worked over a financial year.

The estimates provided within the report are broken down by service, rank group and broad location. Information on age is not collected within this survey and hence breakdowns by age are not available.

Due to the size of the sample survey estimates are only considered to be statistically valid over long time periods, as such estimates could not be provided for each week.

The 2006-07 copy of the Continuous Survey of Working Patterns report is available in the Library of the House.

The 2007-08 report will be placed in the Library of the House by the end of April 2009.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armoured vehicles of each type are (a) in service with the Army and (b) in working order. [257694]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The term 'working order' has been interpreted as 'fit for purpose' . Several vehicle platforms have been undergoing radio conversion work, repairs and overhauls and have therefore been taken out of service on a rolling basis to enable this work to take place. This has affected the number of fit for purpose vehicles available, which may change on a daily basis.

As at 24 February 2009, the information requested is:

Vehicle type	Number 'in service'	Number 'fit for purpose'
Challenger 2	345	322
Driver Track Training Vehicle	22	21
Challenger Armoured Repair and Recovery Vehicle	91	73
Trojan	20	20

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff in his Department were on sick leave for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years. [256322]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Numbers of MOD civilian sick absence episodes of over 30 calendar days, over 50 calendar days and over 100 calendar days in the calendar years ending 31 December 2005, 2006, 2007 and 2008, are shown in the following table:

Number of civilian sick absence episodes

	30-49 calendar days	50-99 calendar days	100 or more calendar days
2005	2,700	2,750	1,920
2006	2,410	2,160	1,680
2007	2,200	2,180	1,600
2008	2,020	1,940	1,470

Notes:
1. These figures exclude staff in Trading Funds (as the data are of insufficient quality), and exclude the Royal Fleet Auxiliary, and locally engaged civilians for whom sickness absence data are not centrally recorded. Numbers are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Any portion of a sick absence episode that falls outside the relevant calendar year is not included in that year.

Information prior to the 12 months ending 31 December 2005 was compiled on a previous methodology and definition for monitoring sickness absence, which is not consistent with figures for later years.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether scientists from the United States have made use of hydrodynamic facilities at the Atomic Weapons Establishment for experiments on US warhead designs. [258434]

Mr. Hutton: Under the 1958 Mutual Defence Agreement, joint UK/US hydrodynamic experiments have been carried out to ensure the continued safety, security, and performance of our current nuclear stockpiles.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Detainees: Mentally Ill

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many people detained in a place of safety under section 136 of the Mental Health Act 1983 were held in police cells in each of the last five years; [258341]

(2) how many people were detained in a place of safety under section 136 of the Mental Health Act 1983 in each of the last five years. [258342]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

Comprehensive national information on the number of people detained in a place of safety under section 136 of the Mental Health Act 1983 is not available.

Statistics are published by the Information Centre for health and social care on detentions under section 136 in hospitals in England and by the Welsh Assembly Government on detentions under that section in mental health facilities in Wales. Information on the number of such detentions is shown in the following table.

Number of detentions under section 136 of the Mental Health Act 1983 in hospitals in England and in mental health facilities in Wales, 2003-04 to 2007-08

Detainees: Prostitution

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals who had worked as a prostitute in the UK were subsequently detained in prison in each year since 2000. [258270]

Mr. Malik: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not held centrally. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for Justice (Mr. Hanson) to my hon. Friend the hon. Member for Bolton, South-East (Dr. Iddon) on 10 December 2008, Official Report, column 116W.

The legal background to the offence of being a common prostitute, loitering, or soliciting for the purposes of prostitution is contained in Section 1 of the Street Offences Act, 1959.

Under the Act the maximum penalty for this offence is a fine, not imprisonment. Figures obtained from the prison service IT system confirm that there are currently no women serving prison sentences for the offence. Non-payment of any fine accruing from the offence would be recorded as defaulting on the payment of the fine.

It is not known how many males or females who previously worked as prostitutes have subsequently been detained in prison.

This is the position regarding England and Wales; for information regarding the legal position and a response to the question as it applies to Scotland and Northern Ireland it would be necessary to approach the Scottish Government and the Northern Ireland Prison Service.

Human Trafficking: Victims

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how much her Department is spending on the Poppy project in 2008-09; [258445]

(2) what capacity the Poppy project has to provide intensive support for the initial four-week support period; [258446]

(3) what mechanisms are in place to monitor the work of the Poppy project, including (a) how public funds are spent, (b) the capacity of the project in relation to demand, (c) the quality of counselling provided and (d) checks on volunteers; [258447]

(4) how many (a) full-time staff, (b) fully-qualified counsellors and (c) fully-qualified translators are employed by the Poppy project; [258448]

(5) what conditions apply to people receiving services provided by the Poppy project on (a) the initial four-week support, (b) support for resettlement, (c) compensation through (i) the courts and (ii) the Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme and (d) eligibility for the new renewable one-year residence permits; [258449]

(6) how many identified victims of trafficking received from the Poppy project (a) the initial four week support, (b) support for resettlement, (c) compensation through (i) the courts and (ii) the Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme, (d) eligibility for the new renewable one-year residence permits and (e) other services in each of the last five years; [258450]

(7) how many identified victims of trafficking were denied services from the Poppy project in each of the last five years due to (a) the project's limited capacity and (b) the refusal by the victim to co-operate with prosecutions; and what other options for support are available for victims in such cases. [258451]

Maria Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The Government have invested £5.8 million into Eaves Housing for Women to run the Poppy project since 2003. The grant for this financial year is £1.3 million. This provides for a range of services including 35 supported accommodation places and eight full-time staff. While the project facilitates access to counselling and interpretative services and can pay for this where necessary, it does not directly employ these professionals.

Eaves Housing for Women is required to submit regular monitoring and financial information, which is reviewed on a quarterly basis. The organisation does not submit any specific information on the use of volunteers. However the organisation is required to take appropriate measures to ensure the safety of clients, which includes undertaking Criminal Records Bureau checks for staff and volunteers.

Under the terms of the grant clients can be supported for an initial four weeks, with longer-term services provided in return for cooperation with the authorities. To qualify for support women must be over 18-years-old, trafficked into the United Kingdom and sexually exploited through prostitution in the United Kingdom.

Between March 2003 and December 2008, 423 women received support from the Poppy project; 215 benefited from supported accommodation and 208 received outreach support. The Poppy project has developed partnerships with other organisations to help provide alternative services for individuals that do not meet the eligibility criteria or when the project is at capacity. Information on the number of individuals that have been unable to access the Poppy project is not held centrally.

It is open to the courts to award compensation orders in favour of a victim of crime and victims of violence can also apply to the Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme. While the Poppy project can inform victims of avenues to access compensation, it is not within their authority to determine eligibility for, or administer compensation.

This year we will be expanding support services for victims of human trafficking and extending the reflection and recovery period to a minimum of 45 days. The Government will also introduce new renewable temporary residence permits for identified victims of human trafficking that participate in a criminal investigation.

Identity Cards: Freedom of Information

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Identity Cards Gateway Review will be published under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [258828]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

On 19 February 2009 the Information Tribunal ordered Office of Government Commerce to disclose two Gate 0 reports, dated June 2003 and January 2004, on the Identity Cards Programme. OGC, in consultation with Ministers, officials at the Home Office and MoJ, are currently considering the detail of the decision. OGC has until 19 March 2009 to disclose the reports or to appeal further.

JUSTICE

Crimes of Violence: Winchester

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases of (a) rape, (b) grievous bodily harm, (c) actual bodily harm and (d) burglary were recorded in Winchester in each of the last five years; and how many (i) prosecutions and (ii) convictions there were in relation to such offences in each category in each of those years. [258227]

Maria Eagle: Information on the number of recorded offences of rape and burglary in the Winchester Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership area has been provided by the Home Office and is shown in the following table 1. However, there are no statistics currently available relating specifically to offences of grievous bodily harm or actual bodily harm. Such offences would be included in the Home Office classifications of 'more serious wounding' or 'less serious wounding' as appropriate and cannot be separately identified from other offences within those classifications.

From data held by the Ministry of Justice, the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for offences relating to rape, grievous bodily harm, actual bodily harm, and burglary in Hampshire police force area can be viewed in Table 2 as follows.

Court proceedings data are not available at constituency level. Therefore Hampshire police force area data have been provided in lieu.

These data are on the principal offence basis. The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Court proceedings data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

Recorded crime and court proceedings statistics are from two different databases and recorded in quite different ways. Recorded crime data are provided on a financial year basis and counts offences whereas court proceedings data are on a calendar year basis and count offenders. Therefore, these two separate data-sets are not directly comparable.

Debt Collection

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will place in the Library a copy of each guidance document produced by (a) his Department and its predecessor and (b) HM Courts Service on the use of bailiffs' powers of forced entry under the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004. [258066]

Bridget Prentice: Only one set of guidance has been published by my Department, and its predecessor, on the use of bailiffs' powers of forced entry under the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004.

A copy of HMCS's Search and Entry Powers (Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004) Guidance to Civilian Enforcement Officers and Approved Enforcement Agents was placed in the Libraries of the House in January. The guidance contains a number of redactions for reasons of public interest and on health and safety grounds.

Departmental NDPBs: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by the (a) Land Registry, (b) National Probation Directorate and (c) HM Courts Service is in 2008-09. [258535]

Mr. Wills: The estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database in 2008-09 owned by the (a) Land Registry is £14,900 and (b) National Probation Directorate is £53,650. NPD also maintain their own database which is updated more regularly and which shows a figure of £170,000 for the same period. (c) HM Courts Service is £349,570.

Departmental Travel

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what expenditure his Department has incurred in providing transport for Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises in each year since his Department was established. [251872]

Maria Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 6W. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the 'Ministerial Code'.

Discrimination: Legal Aid

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much legal aid has been granted to claimants in cases relating to alleged discrimination of each type in (a) goods and services and (b) employment in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [258355]

Mr. Malik: The Legal Services Commission (LSC) does not hold data on claims in relation to alleged discrimination in the supply of goods and services as this is not a recognised category of legal aid work. Any relevant funding may have been granted under other categories of work such as "public law" or "consumer".

In the "employment" category, where legal help is available and civil representation in certain cases, the LSC does not record which of those cases involve discrimination issues.

Personal Records: Data Protection

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what discussions he has had with Ministerial colleagues on provisions in the Coroners and Justice Bill to facilitate data sharing between public authorities and private sector firms. [258384]

Mr. Straw: I have regular meetings with ministerial colleagues on a wide range of issues, including on the Coroners and Justice Bill, which have covered data sharing between public authorities and private sector firms.

Political Parties: Finance

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Chichester of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 519W, on political parties: finance, which public authority will decide whether an hon. Member's expenditure was triggered as a result of breaching the rules on the communications allowance. [258580]

Mr. Straw: Potential breaches of the rules on the use of parliamentary allowances, including the communications allowance, are investigated by the Parliamentary Commissioner for Standards, which reports to the Commons Standards and Privileges Committee.

However, it is not for the Commissioner to rule on whether that expenditure should then be regarded as a candidate election expense under the Representation of the People Act 1983 ("the 1983 Act"). Rather, as with any other potential item of election expenditure, responsibility lies with the candidate and agent to consider whether expenditure meets the definition of election expenditure used by the 1983 Act and, if so, to ensure that the expenditure in question is recorded on the candidate spending return as required under section 81 of the 1983 Act. This states that such a return must include a statement of all election expenses incurred by or on behalf of a candidate. Section 82 of the 1983 Act requires that this return be accompanied by declarations by the candidate and election agent which verify the return. It is a corrupt practice knowingly to make a false declaration under section 82. It is an illegal practice to fail to comply with the requirements of section 81 or section 82.

Breaches of the 1983 Act are pursued through the courts.

Illegal practices in the 1983 Act are triable summarily. Corrupt practices in the 1983 Act are triable summarily or on indictment. It would therefore ultimately be a matter for the relevant court to decide whether a particular item of expenditure was knowingly excluded from a candidate's expenditure return where it should clearly have been recorded. In reaching its decision, the court could well take into account any judgment from the Commissioner of Standards in relation to expenditure which breached the rules on the use of parliamentary allowances, should the court consider this relevant.

Prisons: Fires

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many fires there have been in each prison in each of the last five years. [258285]

Mr. Malik: All fires recorded range from a simple piece of paper lit and thrown out of a cell window to fires resulting in damage to cells, which are less frequent. During the last year we have invested £20 million in fire safety systems in the refurbishment of the prison estate. It should be noted that deaths from fires in prisons are rare and there have been two in the last five years.

The following table shows data of fires in prison establishments by establishment over the last recorded five years.

Tribunals: Disabled

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he has taken to ensure that employment tribunal hearing centres have (a) hearing aid loops and (b) wheelchair access; and if he will make a statement. [258353]

Bridget Prentice: The Employment Tribunal, as part of the Tribunals Service, carries out Disability Discrimination Act (DDA) audits on all its sites. Those identified as needing improvements to the facilities have these carried out on a priority basis.

All permanent Employment Tribunal sites have hearing loops and where temporary venues are used, individual customers' needs are assessed and catered for, including the use of mobile hearing loops. Where the DDA audit establishes that work is necessary to provide access for wheelchair users in compliance with DDA legislation, reasonable adjustments are made, as far as is possible.

Abortion

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assistance his Department provides to women from Northern Ireland who come to England to have an abortion; and if he will make a statement. [258508]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department does not provide any form of assistance to women who travel from Northern Ireland to England seeking an abortion under the Abortion Act 1967, as amended.

Blood Transfusions: CJD

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what testing will be offered to patients with bleeding disorders exposed to the risk of infection of vCJD from transfusions; and if he will make a statement. [258720]

Dawn Primarolo: At present there are no suitable blood screening tests available, although there are tests under development which are currently being assessed. Advice on the suitability of candidate tests will be given by the UK Blood Service's Prion Assay Working Group and by the Advisory Committee on the Safety of Blood Tissues and Organs. If a suitable test is identified the offer of such a test to individuals will be for agreement between the individual and their clinician.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many patients with bleeding disorders have been contacted to inform them of the level of risk of infection of vCJD they may have been exposed to from NHS transfusions; and if he will make a statement; [258721]

(2) what communication strategy his Department has undertaken in order to inform patients with bleeding disorders of the risk of infection of vCJD from NHS transfusions; what the cost of that strategy is; and if he will make a statement. [258722]

Dawn Primarolo: In 2004, haemophiliacs were notified that they were considered as 'at risk of variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (vCJD) for public health purposes'. The Health Protection Agency (HPA) wrote to all haemophiliac care centres asking them to notify haemophilia patients and give them the opportunity to discuss the implications.

On the advice of the UK Haemophilia Centre Doctors' Organisation (UKHCDO) and the CJD Incidents Panel, it was agreed that all patients with bleeding disorders who had received plasma product clotting factors between 1980 and 2001 should be managed as 'at risk' whether or not they were known to have received specific product batches manufactured from donors who subsequently developed clinical vCJD. Haemophilia centre doctors were asked to give patients the choice of finding out whether or not they had been treated with products known to have been manufactured using plasma from donors who developed vCJD. In 2006 when further implicated batches were identified, doctors were asked to notify those patients who had received these batches.

In February 2009, the HPA coordinated a patient notification exercise about a finding at post mortem of abnormal vCJD prion protein detected in the spleen of a patient with haemophilia. The HPA and the UKHCDO wrote to centres asking that a letter be sent to all patients informing them of this finding and emphasising that it did not change the status of patients already informed that they were 'at risk'. The doctors were asked to give patients the opportunity to discuss the finding if they wished.

The patient notification exercises were supported by a wider communication strategy in which documentation was sent to others, including medical directors of NHS trusts, general practitioners and clinician and patient organisations, including the Haemophilia Society, and information placed on the HPA website.

There are thought to be approximately 4,000 patients who received plasma products between 1980 and 2001, and these patients were contacted by their clinicians. However, the precise numbers of patients contacted in each exercises is not collected centrally.

Expenditure on these notification exercises has not been separately costed.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of women in Wiltshire with suspected breast cancer saw a specialist within two weeks of referral in each of the last five years. [258282]

Charities: Finance

Frank Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which of the organisations which submitted an application for funding under the Third Sector Investment Programme for 2009-10 are awaiting a decision on that application; and which organisations submitted applications which were not progressed to the second stage of the programme. [258859]

Phil Hope: Out of 988 applications received under the Third Sector Investment Programme, 715 were declined at Stage 1 of the application process and 247 are awaiting a decision at Stage 2. A list of the organisations in each category has been placed in the Library.

Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in each age cohort (a) were diagnosed with and (b) had their death attributed to Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease in each of the last 10 years; and what the equivalent figures are for 2009 to date. [259728]

Dawn Primarolo: The following tables show separately the deaths from sporadic Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (CJD), familial or genetic CJD/Gerstmann-Straussler-Scheinker syndrome, iatrogenic CJD and variant CJD from 1999-2009 by 10-year age cohorts. A further table shows age at diagnosis for variant CJD in 10 year age cohorts or, for those cases who were diagnosed only after death (i.e. post mortem), age at death. For other forms of CJD, data on year of diagnosis are almost identical to year of death as mean survival are only four months.

Doctors: Qualifications

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms are in place for periodic assessment of the (a) qualifications and (b) competence of doctors; and what checks are carried out to assess whether medical qualifications obtained overseas by persons seeking to practise medicine in the UK are comparable with those obtained in the UK. [258491]

Ann Keen: In the White Paper 'Trust Assurance and Safety—The Regulation of Health Professionals in the 21st Century' the Government endorsed the Chief Medical Officer's recommendation that there should be a system of revalidation to ensure that registered doctors remain up to date and fit to practise. Work to implement revalidation is being undertaken by the General Medical Council (GMC), the Department, devolved administrations, medical royal colleges and others under the leadership of the UK Revalidation Programme Board established by the GMC.

The GMC carry out checks on overseas medical qualifications to ensure they are of an acceptable standard.

The law states that an 'acceptable overseas qualification' means any qualification granted outside the United Kingdom, where that qualification is for the time being accepted by the GMC as qualifying a person to practise as a medical practitioner in the United Kingdom.

Epilepsy

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will appoint a National Clinical Director for Epilepsy; [258976]

(2) if his Department will take steps to encourage primary care trusts to appoint epilepsy specialist nurses; [258977]

(3) what assessment he has made of the implementation by healthcare providers of National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidelines on the diagnosis and treatment of epilepsy; [258978]

Ann Keen: From April 2009, the Care Quality Commission will take over from the Healthcare Commission and will consider, in discussion with stakeholders including the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE), how to take account of NICE guidance as it develops its compliance criteria.

Local trusts are responsible for the skill mix of their workforce including the provision of specialist nurses for patients with epilepsy. They are best placed to assess the health needs of their local health community and must have the freedom to deploy staff in ways appropriate for local conditions.

There are no plans to appoint a national clinical director for epilepsy.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what procedures his Department has put in place to ensure continuity in care for people with epilepsy in their transition from childhood to adulthood. [258979]

Ann Keen: It is the responsibility of strategic health authorities to ensure appropriate services are in place to meet the transition needs of people with childhood-onset conditions, such as epilepsy, moving from children's to adult services. The "National Service Framework for Long-term (neurological) Conditions" includes guidance for commissioners and service providers on providing these person-centred services. A copy of the framework has already been placed in the Library.

Fabry Disease

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people have been diagnosed with (a) Fabry disease and (b) general lysosomal storage disorders in the last 12 months; and what (i) therapy and (ii) treatment is available for such conditions in the NHS. [258418]

Ann Keen: In the calendar year 2008, there were 76 people diagnosed with Fabry disease and 186 people were diagnosed with general lysosomal storage disorders (LSDs).

The National Commissioning Group has nationally designated and commissioned a service for LSDs since April 2005. There are seven designated centres. The service provided by these centres includes diagnosis, patient assessment and treatment including enzyme replacement therapies and substrate reduction therapies.

Hearing Aids

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS hearing aids have been fitted by private sector contractors in each of the last three calendar years; and what guidance his Department provides to primary care trusts on competition, for adult hearing aid service contracts. [259565]

Phil Hope: Information on the number of national health service hearing aids fitted by independent sector contractors across the English NHS is not collected centrally.

The Department has not issued any specific guidance to primary care trusts (PCTs) on competition specifically for adult hearing aid service contracts. However, the Department published a 'PCT Procurement Guide for Health Services' in May 2008. The guide supports NHS commissioners in deciding whether and how to procure health services through formal tendering and market-testing exercises. A copy of the guide has been placed in the Library.

Heart Diseases: Health Services

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the merits of an integrated strategy for the prevention, treatment and care of (a) heart disease, (b) stroke, (c) diabetes and (d) kidney disease; and if he will make a statement. [258443]

Ann Keen: There already exist well-established national service frameworks for diabetes, kidney disease and coronary heart disease and a national stroke strategy was launched in December 2007. All four of these strategies include a focus on prevention. A vascular risk assessment and management programme is under development at present. This will target the group of modifiable risk factors shared by these four conditions. The analytical modelling and evidence base underpinning this programme indicate that there are significant health gains to be made in this area. No recent assessment has been made of the potential benefits of integrating treatment and care in respect of diagnosed cases of these conditions. However there is considerable opportunity for sharing examples in generic areas, such as support for people living with a chronic condition, across these four disease groups.

Hemel Hempstead Hospital

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps were taken by his Department to consult staff about the recent scaling down of resources at Hemel Hempstead hospital. [259169]

Phil Hope: This is a matter for the local national health service to take forward, it is their responsibility to ensure that any major service changes are consulted on not only with staff but also key stakeholders and the communities that they serve.

Hospitals

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of (a) hospital beds and (b) hospitals required in England in (i) 2010, (ii) 2015, (iii) 2020 and (iv) 2025; what account this estimate takes of population forecasts; what estimate he has made of the additional costs of such provision; and if he will make a statement. [255728]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 10 February 2009]: The organisation of national health services is a matter for the local NHS. Decisions are taken locally, for the benefit of patients, working with doctors and other health care professionals and involving key stakeholders such as carers, the public and other partners.

In Vitro Fertilisation: EU Countries

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department has issued on the transportation of sperm from an NHS clinic to an unlicensed EU clinic; and if he will make a statement. [258829]

Dawn Primarolo: Subsection 24(3A) of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 prohibits the export of sperm from any clinic within the United Kingdom to an establishment within the European Union, unless that establishment has been accredited, designated, authorised or licensed by the competent authority in that country in compliance with Article 6 of Directive 2004/23/EC setting standards of quality and safety for the donation, procurement, testing, processing, preservation, storage and distribution of human tissue and cells intended for human application.

The Department has not issued guidance on export. However, the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority (HFEA), which is the United Kingdom competent authority for reproductive cells, first issued guidance to licensed establishments on the import and export of reproductive cells within the European economic area in July 2007. That guidance was revised in March 2008. Copies of the guidance have been placed in the Library.

Infectious Diseases: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of (a) syphilis, (b) HIV infection and (c) gonorrhoea have been diagnosed in (i) Hemel Hempstead and (ii) Hertfordshire in each of the last 10 years. [258321]

Dawn Primarolo: Data on diagnoses of syphilis, HIV and gonorrhoea in genitourinary medicine (GUM) clinics are only collected by strategic health authority (SHA). Data for syphilis, HIV and gonorrhoea for England and the East of England SHA since 1998 to 2007, the latest year for which figures are available, are given in the following table.

Infection	Area of diagnoses	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007

Notes:
1. HIV
Numbers will rise as further reports are received.
Diagnoses are from reports received to end June 2008.
Data include individuals who have an existing infection as well as those who have a newly acquired infection and therefore the data do not present incidence of infection.
Areas when presented are area of diagnoses and not of residence, there is evidence that a large proportion of individuals are diagnosed outside of their PCT of residence.
2. Syphilis and Gonorrhoea
The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are for diagnoses made in GUM clinics only. Diagnoses made in other clinical settings, such as General Practice, are not recorded in the KC60 dataset.
The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are the number of diagnoses made, not the number of patients diagnosed.
The information provided has been adjusted for missing clinic data.
Data are unavailable for 2008.
Syphilis figures include diagnoses of primary and secondary infection only.

Inflammatory Bowel Disease

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps the Government has taken to support (a) men, (b) women, (c) children and (d) older people with Crohn's disease. [258266]

Ann Keen: Those living with Crohn's disease are able to access a full range of health and social care options. These include treatment with steroids, 5-aminosalicylate medicines, antibiotics and immunosuppressants, as well as dietary and life-style advice.

In 2007, the Department asked the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to appraise the clinical and cost-effectiveness of the tumour necrosis factor alpha inhibitors, and natalizumab, for the treatment of Crohn's disease.

Maternity Services

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 240W, on maternity services, which organisations have been identified as continuing to demonstrate a failure to grip recovery on maternity services; and what steps are to be taken as a consequence. [258703]

Ann Keen: All organisations identified as the poorest performers by the Healthcare Commission in its report of July 2008, have plans in place to improve and their strategic health authorities are monitoring the implementation of these plans.

Measles: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to reduce the incidence of measles in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire. [258320]

Dawn Primarolo: The way to reduce the number of confirmed cases of measles recorded each year is to increase the number of children vaccinated with the measles, mumps and rubella (MMR) vaccine.

In addition to the routine MMR vaccination programme, on 6 August 2008 the Department launched a national MMR vaccine catch-up campaign. The aim of the campaign is to immunise all children between one and 18 years of age who are unvaccinated or only partially vaccinated with MMR vaccine.

To support the campaign the Department has provided extra funding to primary care trusts (PCTs) with PCTs outside London having their funding limits increased by £30,000 and London PCTs' funding limits increased by £60,000. The Department has also sourced additional supplies of vaccine, provided technical support to general practitioners to help them identify children who have not received the MMR vaccine and provided additional online reports to PCTs to help them monitor the effectiveness of their catch-up programmes. The Department has also sent all general practitioner surgeries new measles leaflets and posters.

The Department has held meetings with both strategic health authorities and PCT immunisation co-ordinators, regional directors of public health and directors of performance to emphasise the importance of reducing measles cases through improving vaccination uptake.

A public relations campaign will be rolled out from March 2009. Key messages will include how serious and infectious measles is and how it is never too late to have the MMR vaccine.

Hemel Hempstead is covered by West Hertfordshire PCT. West Hertfordshire PCT and East and North Hertfordshire PCT are implementing the national MMR vaccine catch-up campaign.

MMR Vaccine

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the total number of children in each region who had not received the MMR vaccine in each of the last 10 years. [259310]

Dawn Primarolo: Tables of the percentage of children immunised with measles, mumps and rubella vaccine at two and five years of age in each strategic health authority are published in the annual statistical bulletin 'NHS Immunisation Statistics, England'. Copies of the reports titled: 'NHS Immunisation Statistics, England 1998-99', 'NHS Immunisation Statistics, England 1999-2000', 'NHS Immunisation Statistics, England 2000-01' and 'NHS Immunisation Statistics, England 2001-02' have been placed in the Library. Copies of the reports titled: 'NHS Immunisation Statistics, England, 2002-03', 'NHS Immunisation Statistics, England, 2003-04', 'NHS Immunisation Statistics, England, 2004-05', 'NHS Immunisation Statistics, England, 2005-06', 'NHS Immunisation Statistics, England, 2006-07' and 'NHS Immunisation Statistics, England 2007-08' have already been placed in the Library.

Multiple Sclerosis: Drugs

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the clinical effects of low doses of naltrexone for patients with multiple sclerosis; and if he will make a statement. [258834]

Ann Keen: The Department has made no assessment of the clinical effectiveness of low dose naltrexone for those living with multiple sclerosis.

Myelodysplastic Syndromes

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will outline his Department's policy on the treatment of myelodysplastic syndromes; [258436]

(2) whether the British Committee on Standards in Haematology guidelines on myelodysplastic syndromes will be updated to take into account advances in research and treatment since the last published guidelines in 2003; [258437]

(3) what consideration his Department has given to the variations in levels of access to supportive treatment for patients with myelodysplastic syndromes. [258438]

Ann Keen: The 2003 "Improving Outcomes in Haematological Cancers" guidance from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) sets out recommendations abut the care and treatment of patients with myelodysplastic syndromes (MDS), with the emphasis on symptom control and supportive treatment.

It is for the national health service locally to implement this guidance. Good progress has been made and the National Cancer Action Team continue to work with the NHS at a local level to ensure full implementation.

NICE is also appraising the drug azacitidine for the treatment of MDS and expects to publish guidance towards the end of this year.

The British Committee on Standards in Haematology (BCSH) is an independent organisation. Contact details for queries about guidance issued by the BCSH can be found at:

Patient Choice Schemes: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what efficiencies have been achieved through the centralisation of appointment booking systems between hospitals in West Hertfordshire NHS Hospital Trust. [259168]

Phil Hope: The information requested is not held centrally.

Pharmacy: Competition

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department plans to take to ensure that competition and choice are taken into consideration by primary care trusts when considering new pharmacy applications; and if he will make a statement. [258396]

Phil Hope: The Department keeps the operation of the NHS (Pharmaceutical Services) Regulations 2005 under regular review. These regulations were substantially revised from April 2005 and introduced, among other measures, a new criterion of 'reasonable choice' to the regulatory test known as control of entry in order to improve choice with regard to the services and to the providers of such services that are available to patients and consumers and to promote more competition. The Department is considering carefully a recent judgment by the Court of Appeal on this matter and what further steps, if any, may be appropriate to ensure this aim is achieved.

Royal Free Hospital: Medical Records

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) estimate he has made of the cost and (b) assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the computerised record system at the Royal Free Hospital. [259780]

Mr. Bradshaw: The strategic Cerner Millennium system at the Royal Free Hospital went live on 15 June 2008. It has been widely reported that, following a successful go-live, initial operation did not go as smoothly as everyone involved would have wished, and that the problems experienced affected trust performance. The local service provider, BT, and the system supplier, Cerner UK, with the close involvement of the London Programme for IT, addressed the problems as a matter of urgency, and service enhancements have been implemented incrementally since October 2008.

The trust has reported that the system became stable in its operation following changes made in November and December 2008. A small amount of additional functionality was added in mid-January and, by the end of January 2009, the trust confirmed that the system was fit to be deployed at other acute hospitals in London.

Lessons have been learned from the deployment at the Royal Free Hospital, which now has an effective patient record system. These lessons will help to improve future deployments.

The cost of deploying the computerised record system at the Royal Free Hospital, as at other trusts, has three components. A one-off deployment charge is paid when the trust has accepted the system. An ongoing monthly service charge is then made for the live service, and there will be local costs associated with preparation, deployment and support. The agreed deployment charge for full deployment of all bundles of service at the Royal Free Hospital is £4.676 millions at 2003-04 prices, and the monthly service charge £33,644 per month. Information is not held centrally about the local costs, which will vary from trust to trust.

Social Care Inspection: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by the Commission for Social Care Inspection is in 2008-09. [258519]

Phil Hope: We are informed by the Chair of the Commission for Social Care Inspection that the estimated cost in empty property business rates for 2008-09 is £536,154.05.

Transplant Surgery: Waiting Lists

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people died while on the transplant waiting list in each year since 2000. [258964]

Ann Keen: The following table shows the number of people who died while on the transplant waiting list in England in each calendar year, 2000-08:

West Hertfordshire Hospitals NHS Trust

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps were taken by his Department to consult staff on changes to the administrative system operated by West Hertfordshire NHS Hospital Trust. [259183]

Phil Hope: This is a matter for the local national health service to take forward, it is their responsibility to consult staff about proposed service changes.

West Hertfordshire Primary Care Trust

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent by West Hertfordshire Primary Care Trust on the production of literature relating to the restructuring of local NHS services in the latest period for which figures are available. [259170]

Phil Hope: The information requested is not held centrally. This is a matter for the local national health service.

Wheelchairs

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many wheelchair services are meeting the 18 week pathway for provision of their services; and what funding his Department has provided to primary care trusts to deliver such services in the last 12 months. [259624]

Phil Hope: Funding for all national health service wheelchair services comes out of general allocation funding to primary care trusts (PCTs). This funding is not ring-fenced and it is for each PCT to assess local need and allocate funds accordingly.

Wheelchairs are classified as medical devices and are covered by the 18 weeks referral to treatment commitment where the need for the specialised wheelchair is identified as the first definitive treatment on an 18 weeks referral to treatment consultant-led pathway.

The Department does not collect data separately on the provision of wheelchair services on 18 weeks referral to treatment pathways.

NHS spend on wheelchair services in 2006-07, which is the latest year figures are available for, was £125.8 million.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Elderly People

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what estimate he has made of the percentage of households where one or more persons is over 80 years in (a) Eastbourne constituency, (b) East Sussex and (c) England in 2008-09. [258894]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

Recent estimates for Eastbourne constituency and East Sussex are not available.

For England, the most recent estimate is that 8 per cent. of all households have at least one member aged 80 or over. This is based on an average of the latest three years of the Survey of English Housing (2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08).

TREASURY

Bank Services: Local Government

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the Answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 17 October 2008, Official Report, column 1577W, on local government: banking services, when (a) his Department and (b) the Financial Services Authority was first informed of the financial vulnerability of Icelandic banking institutions. [258498]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 11 November 2008, Official Report, column 1083W.

Bank Services: Regulation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date the Financial Services Authority added each Icelandic bank to the list of authorised deposit-takers for local authorities. [258405]

Ian Pearson: The FSA is responsible for authorisation of UK deposit-taking institutions under part IV of the Financial Services and Markets Act (FSMA). Deposit-taking institutions incorporated in other EEA states are authorised by their home state regulator and can establish branches in the UK using 'passport' rights under EC law. The FSA does not produce a list of authorised deposit-taking institutions specifically for the guidance of local authorities.

Banks: Finance

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of the effect on the availability of credit to customers of the credit scoring methodologies of those banks in which the Government holds shares; [258556]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect on availability of mortgages of the affordability calculations used to determine eligibility for a mortgage made by those lenders in which the Government has a significant shareholding. [259631]

Ian Pearson: Where there is public sector investment in financial institutions these stakes are to be managed on a commercial basis by an arm's length company, UK Financial Investments Ltd (UKFI). UKFI's objective is to protect and create value for the taxpayer as shareholder with due regard to the maintenance of financial stability and to act in a way that promotes competition. Decisions concerning risk assessment of individual borrowers remain commercial decisions for banks and building societies.

Child Benefit

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department (a) has taken and (b) plans to take to ensure that all relevant staff of HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) are aware of the new targets relating to time taken to process claims for child benefit; and when he expects the first measures of HMRC performance against these targets to be published. [258637]

Mr. Timms: HMRC's target to pay 60 per cent. of new child benefit claims in nine working days and all new claims in an average of 20 calendar days was introduced from April 2008.

HMRC made staff aware of the new target at the time it was introduced through a series of management communications and presentations. Individual contributions towards the claims target are also a feature of the annual performance agreements of relevant staff.

Outturn for 2008-09 will be available later in the year.

Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) donations and (b) bequests were made to the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt in each month since January 2006; and what the monetary value of each was. [258371]

Ian Pearson: The following table lists, on a month-by-month basis, the totals of cash and gilts that have been surrendered to the Donations and Bequests account, administered by the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, from January 2006 to date. It does not include any donations of cash, gilts or other property that may still be being administered or processed by the Treasury Solicitor.

Construction Industry Scheme

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many businesses formerly registered for gross payment under the Construction Industry Scheme have ceased to hold that status in each year since the scheme's inception. [258307]

Angela Eagle: There has been a special compliance scheme for the construction industry since 1972. Information over that period could be provided only at disproportionate cost. For the period of the current scheme, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 27 October 2008, Official Report, column 777W to the hon. Member for Hyndburn (Mr. Pope).

Council Tax: Parking

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 5 March 2008, Official Report, column 2498W, on council tax: parking, how many domestic dwellings in England have been assigned the dwellinghouse coding for parking of (a) G1, (b) G2, (c) G3, (d) G4, (e) G5, (f) G6, (g) G7, (h) G8 and (i) G9 according to records held by the Valuation Office Agency. [258477]

Mr. Timms: As at 1 February 2009 the relevant numbers were:

	Number
G1	6,867,200
G2	1,095,864
G3	34,945
G4	8,982
G5	1,195
G6	753
G7	153
G8	150
G9	271

A comprehensive exercise to capture information about parking for all domestic properties has not been undertaken, nor is one planned.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 329W, on council tax: valuation, if he will place in the Library a copy of each of the two manuals. [258500]

Mr. Timms: No. These guidance manuals are technical instructions on the use of Valuation Office Agency (VOA) internal IT applications. It is not appropriate to publish information which might assist unauthorised access to VOA systems or databases.

Debt Collection: Powers of Entry

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many times bailiffs hired by HM Revenue and Customs used their powers of forced entry in the last year for which figures are available; [258645]

(2) in how many cases HM Revenue and Customs has commissioned bailiffs to recover tax arrears in the last year for which figures are available; and what HM Revenue and Customs' gross expenditure on bailiffs was in that period. [258646]

Mr. Timms: HMRC does not currently commission bailiffs to recover tax arrears and has no plans to do so.

HMRC has a statutory power of distraint which is exercised directly by HMRC Officers.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department and its agencies provide for staff. [249084]

Angela Eagle: Catering facilities in 1 Horse Guards Road are provided as part of the PFI contract for servicing the building. These facilities are used by both staff and visitors to the building.

Departmental Correspondence

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many letters received by his Department were not replied to within four weeks in the last 12 months. [253156]

Angela Eagle: The information requested is not held.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy for his Department to sign the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258970]

Angela Eagle: The Government welcomed the Promise as a commendable initiative to raise awareness of the importance of effective data protection safeguards, particularly for those organisations with no similar commitments already in place.

The Government take data protection very seriously. Following the Cabinet Office Review of Data Handling Procedures in Government, Departments have implemented a raft of measures to improve data security.

The Ministry of Justice is considering actively with the ICO how the Promise might add additional value to those measures we have already signed up to. These include the Information Charters, the recommendations of the Data Handling Review and the Thomas/Walport Review and, of course, our legal obligations under the Data Protection Act and other legislation and regulations.

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether his Department uses WPA2 encryption protocol on all its wireless networks. [259713]

Angela Eagle: HM Treasury has no wireless networks

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [256152]

Angela Eagle: This information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Consultation

Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many public consultations his Department has conducted in the last 12 months; how long each consultation was open for; how many responses were received in each case; and what the cost of conducting each consultation was. [259700]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 1392W, to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban).

Departmental Temporary Employment

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer from which companies his Department sourced temporary staff in each of the last five years; and what the monetary value of contracts with each such company was in each of those years. [251660]

Angela Eagle: Details of companies' sourced for temporary staff and the amounts paid to each company are shown in the following table:

Departmental Written Questions

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of parliamentary Questions to his Department received a response referring the hon. Member to a website in (a) 2008, (b) 2007 and (c) 2006. [260049]

Angela Eagle: The information requested is not available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

It has been the practice of successive Administrations to refer Members to publications and other source documents from which information they are seeking can be extracted.

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether each Government department is required to appoint a designated Euro Minister as part of the Euro Changeover preparations. [258367]

Ian Pearson: The requirement on Departments to have a designated Euro Minister remains unchanged.

Financial Inclusion

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many financial inclusion strategies his Department has had since May 1997; what the (a) title and (b) date of each was; and what recommendations each made to increase levels of financial inclusion in areas of high financial exclusion. [258624]

Ian Pearson: HM Treasury has published three documents setting out the Government's policy and commitments on financial inclusion. The first was 'Promoting financial inclusion', in December 2004. In March 2007 HM Treasury published 'Financial inclusion: the way forward'. The most recent document was 'Financial inclusion: an action plan for 2008-11', published in December 2007. All these documents can be found on HM Treasury's financial inclusion pages at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/fin_inclusion_index.htm

Foreign Exchange

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the effect of recent changes in the value of sterling on the cost of the United Kingdom's contributions in euros to the European Union. [258369]

Ian Pearson: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave on 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 430W to the hon. Member for Rayleigh (Mr. Francois).

Housing: Sales

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of houses sold in (a) 2007, (b) 2008 and (c) 2009 to date. [258558]

Angela Eagle: Based on data from HM Revenue and Customs, there were 1.63 million transactions of houses valued at £40,000 or more in 2007, and 927,000 in 2008. In January 2009 there were 56,000 transactions under the same definition, (seasonally adjusted).

Council Tax: Valuations

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether (a) localities and (b) locality groups are used by the Valuation Office Agency to assist with council tax valuations in England. [258401]

Mr. Timms: The Valuation Office Agency's (VOA's) council tax banding support tool makes use of localities and locality groups to help identify properties that are most closely comparable to a given subject property. These outputs are available to assist the VOA's caseworkers in making council tax banding judgements.

Inheritance Tax: Housing

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many households claimed inheritance tax loss on sale relief in the last 12 months; and what the thresholds and criteria are for claiming the relief. [258409]

Mr. Timms: Those liable for inheritance tax on the value of (a) qualifying investments (broadly quoted shares) and (b) land or buildings, which were part of the deceased's estate, and who sell the assets for a lower value than that originally returned, may claim, subject to certain conditions, that the sale price is the value to be adopted for inheritance tax purposes. The sales must take place within 12 months of the death for qualifying investments, and within four years of death for land and buildings. More details are available on HM Revenue and Customs' website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/cto/forms/iht35.pdf

and

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/cto/forms/iht38.pdf.

An estimated 1,700 estates made claims for loss on sale relief in respect of qualifying investments in year 2007-08, with a further 3,300 estates making claims between April 2008 and November 2008.

An estimated 3,000 estates made claims for loss on sale relief in respect of land and buildings in year 2007-08, with a further 3,000 estates making claims between April 2008 and November 2008.

Insurance: Construction

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received from the construction industry and its associated industries on reductions in credit insurance cover. [258695]

Ian Pearson: Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Interest Rates

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the monthly interest rate was for the period (a) six months before and (b) immediately following the first quarter of negative growth in the recession of 1992; and what it was in the six months (i) before and (ii) after July 2008. [250732]

Ian Pearson: A comprehensive set of historical interest rate data is available online from the Bank of England's website at:

www.bankofengland.co.uk/statistics/index.htm.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward financial measures to assist local authorities in delivering their capital programmes in circumstances where anticipated finance from capital receipts is reduced owing to falls in property and asset values. [259600]

Angela Eagle: Local authorities are responsible for determining their own capital spending plans and associated financing. The introduction of the prudential borrowing regime and the ending of 'set aside' of capital receipts from 1 April 2004 has given local authorities greater flexibility and discretion to manage the financing of these plans. This, alongside bringing forward to 2009-10 capital investment from the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF), in respect of the fiscal stimulus, will ensure that local authorities are well placed to maintain capital expenditure plans during the economic downturn.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will discuss with (a) the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government and (b) local government representatives measures to relax (i) capital financing and (ii) tendering rules for local government expenditure as measures to support the economy; and if he will make a statement. [259604]

Angela Eagle: HM Treasury meets regularly with the Department for Communities and Local Government and representatives from local government to discuss a range of issues, including the impact of the economic downturn on localities.

Mass Media

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost of his Department's contracts with press monitoring services was in each of the last five years. [251218]

Angela Eagle: For information on the last three years, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 28 November 2008, Official Report, column 1981W, to the hon. Member for South-West Surrey (Mr. Hunt).

Prior year information is not readily available and could not be provided within the disproportionate costs threshold.

Non-Domestic Rates: Small Businesses

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he and his officials have had with the Department for Communities and Local Government on the effect of the national non-domestic rate (NNDR) on the viability of small and medium-sized enterprises; what representations he has received on the (a) level and (b) future levels of NNDR; what recent estimate he made of the (i) cost to the Exchequer of and (ii) number of additional properties which would benefit from (A) not implementing the 2009-10 increase in NNDR and (B) extending the small business rate relief scheme to (1) properties under £20,000 rateable value outside London and (2) properties under £30,000 rateable value outside London and simultaneously amending the small business multiplier to (x) 40 pence, (y) 42 pence and (z) 44 pence; and if he will make a statement. [258725]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers and officials work closely with CLG and other relevant governmental Departments on national non-domestic rates (NNDR).

Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of such representations.

Freezing NNDR for all commercial properties for 2009-10 would cost the Exchequer almost £1 billion in business rates foregone.

No estimates have been made of the impact of amending small business rate relief (SBRR) or the small business multiplier to the levels set out in the question. The cost of such changes would be borne by other ratepayers.

Ocean View Properties

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate the Financial Services Authority has made of the number of individuals who may have lost money in the Ocean View Properties International Ltd. property case; and what steps are being taken to assist those individuals. [258398]

Mr. Timms: Ocean View Properties International Ltd. was not regulated by the Financial Services Authority (FSA) because it did not carry on any FSA regulated business. It has therefore never been the direct subject of inquiry by the FSA.

There are firms connected with Ocean View Properties that were at one time authorized by the FSA. The FSA has cancelled their authorisations and is carrying on an investigation into those firms. It would not be appropriate to comment further at this time.

I express my sympathy to anyone who has lost money in this case, and would urge them to contact their local police force, to pass on any relevant information or evidence, if they have not already done so.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assumed hourly cost to departments of the work required from civil servants in preparing answers to questions is used to calculate whether a parliamentary Question would incur a disproportionate cost; and what changes to the assumed cost for the preparation of an answer there have been since 1997. [258378]

Angela Eagle: When applying the disproportionate cost threshold (DCT) Departments calculate cost using the actual marginal cost of staff time required to provide an answer.

Marginal cost is the direct cost of civil servants' time and excludes the fixed costs of the Department. A Department can choose to apply the DCT where this marginal cost is calculated as exceeding the threshold, currently set at £750.

Public Sector: Hospitality

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer who holds records on the use of the Expotel hotel booking service for the public sector, as appointed to the OGCbuying.solutions framework; and which public sector bodies use this service. [258372]

Angela Eagle: OGCbuying.solutions hold details of usage of the framework by all customer Departments at summary level. Typical data held is non-personal information such as how many trips and the cost of trips within a given period.

Individual public sector Departments hold data on their use of the contract in more detail to enable them to manage spend in this area as well as comply with health and safety requirements and environmental considerations. Data held at a public sector departmental level is typically who has travelled, the method of travel and where an individual is staying.

Public Works Loan Board

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average interest rate paid by local authorities for loans for capital schemes from the Public Works Loans Board is. [258963]

Angela Eagle: At 31 March 2008, the average rate on all loans, fixed and variable, was 5.722 per cent.

Regional Economic Council

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many times the regional economic council has met; and where each meeting was held. [258407]

Angela Eagle: The regional economic council has met twice. The first meeting was held 5 November 2009 in London. The second meeting, on 5 January 2009, was also held in London.

The third meeting will be held on 2 March 2009 and will be held in Reading.

Revenue and Customs: Manpower

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the percentage level of staff turnover was for (a) HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) staff and (b) HMRC staff working in contact centres in the last year for which information is available. [258412]

Mr. Timms: For the year ended 31 December 2008 the percentage level of staff turnover, based on the number of people who left the department, was for (a) HM Revenue and Customs 8.77 per cent. and (b) HMRC contact centres 15.76 per cent.

Revenue and Customs: Standards

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many tax credit (a) claims and (b) claimants were affected by technical difficulties at HM Revenue and Customs in 2005-06; what measures have been put in place to resolve such difficulties; and if he will make a statement; [258484]

(2) how many tax credit claims have been (a) affected by and (b) delayed as a result of (i) IT problems and (ii) other technical difficulties at HM Revenue and Customs and its predecessor in each of the last five years; [258486]

(3) how many tax credit claims were unpaid for (a) over one year, (b) over two years, (c) over three years, (d) over four years and (e) five years or more as a result of (i) IT problems and (ii) other technical difficulties at HM Revenue and Customs and its predecessor. [258487]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available. HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) works continuously with its IT provider to identify and resolve tax credits claims affected by technical difficulties.

Where there are IT problems or other technical difficulties, HMRC maintains affected tax credits claims by sending manual cash cheque payments to its customers.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what average length of time HM Revenue and Customs took to (a) process and (b) award a tax credit claim in the last 12 months; [258485]

(2) what procedures HM Revenue and Customs has in place to ensure the (a) accurate, (b) swift and (c) efficient payment of tax credits. [258488]

Mr. Timms: For information about processing times I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Northavon (Steve Webb) on 24 February 2009, Official Report, column 535W.

HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) publish procedural guidance for staff handling tax credits claims on the department's website at:

www.hmrc.gov.uk/manuals/ntcmanual/index.htm

More generally, Section 2 of the Exchequer and Audit Departments Act 1921 requires the Comptroller and Auditor General to examine the accounts of HMRC to ascertain that adequate regulations and procedure have been framed to secure an effective check on the assessment, collection and proper allocation of revenue and that they are being duly carried out, and to report the results to the House of Commons. His reports are published on the National Audit Office website at:

www.nao.org.uk/publications.aspx

Revenue and Customs: Working Hours

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff working at HM Revenue and Customs contact centres have (a) requested and (b) been granted flexible working hours. [258410]

Mr. Timms: To ensure that HM Revenue and Customs provides an appropriate service to its customers during its contact centre opening hours of 8am to 8pm, seven days a week, the Department's contact centres utilise over 50 different shift patterns. These provide a wide range of different working patterns for staff. The number of contact centres staff who have requested or been granted flexible working hours under the Work and Families Act 2006 is not available.

Sick Leave: Revenue and Customs

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the average number of days lost to sickness in the latest year for which figures are available for (a) all HM Revenue and Customs staff and (b) HM Revenue and Customs staff working in contact centres. [258644]

Mr. Timms: In the year to 31 December 2008, the average number of working days lost to sickness for the equivalent of each full-time member of staff, was for (a) HM Revenue and Customs 10.37 and for (b) HM Revenue and Customs Contact Centres 17.45.

Stamp Duty Land Tax

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment has been made of the reasons for the level of take-up of stamp duty land tax relief for zero-carbon homes. [258404]

Ian Pearson: The Government have set a deliberately stretching target that all new homes must be zero carbon by 2016. The stamp duty land tax relief (SDLT) for zero carbon homes was introduced to help kick-start the market for new highly efficient technologies in homes, both for the fabric of the building and in the use of micro-generation, and sets a gold standard for green homes. The Government have committed to conducting an interim review by 2010 of the effectiveness of the relief in stimulating the production of zero carbon homes.

Taxation: Domicile

Colin Burgon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many days in each tax year individuals with taxable income from UK interests are required to spend outside the UK to qualify for non-resident status; when this figure was last reviewed; what plans he has to review it; and if he will make a statement. [259309]

Mr. Timms: An individual's residence status for tax purposes is not a matter of simply counting days in the UK. Individuals who can demonstrate that they have left the UK permanently or indefinitely, for example because they either work full-time abroad for at least a complete tax year or have left the UK for at least three years, will be treated as not resident and not ordinarily resident for income tax purposes from the day after the date of their departure. Once non-resident, individuals can then normally spend up to 182 days in the UK in any tax year and up to 90 days in a tax year on average, taken over a maximum of four tax years and still continue to be treated as not resident.

Individuals who normally live in the UK or who cannot prove that they have left the UK and are absent for shorter periods will continue to be resident in the UK, even if they spend less than 183 days in the UK in any tax year or less than 91 days on average.

Since summer 2008, officials from HM Treasury and HM Revenue and Customs have been consulting with a group of key external stakeholders (representing a wide variety of interests including low income groups) to explore the feasibility of putting the test for tax residence on a statutory basis.

Taxation: Foreigners

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the amount of revenue foregone by the Exchequer in exempting from capital gains tax income from sales of UK property by foreign nationals not domiciled in the UK. [258494]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available.

Taxation: Housing

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue has been received by the Exchequer from property-related taxes in the last (a) 12 and (b) 24 months. [258402]

Mr. Timms: Revenue from taxes targeted at the transfer or use of land or buildings is provided in this reply. These are stamp duty land tax and business rates.

In 2007 the amount of stamp duty land tax collected was £10.4 billion and in 2008 the amount collected was £6.0 billion.

Published figures for business rates collected in Great Britain are available for financial years and were given for 2007-08 and 2008-09 in table B13 of the PBR report. Figures for the two constituent six-month periods of 2008-09 were also given in table B12.

Valuation Office

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 6 May 2008, Official Report, column 829W, on the Valuation Office: Northern Ireland and Property Services, if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of each of the eight meetings. [258497]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Beckenham (Mrs. Lait) on 24 November 2008, Official Report, column 964W.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 348W, on the Valuation Office, what each of the Valuation Office Agency's (a) regular management meetings and (b) project boards is. [258499]

Mr. Timms: The Valuation Office Agency:

(a) Does not keep a central record of regular management meetings throughout its organisation. To assemble detailed information would involve disproportionate cost.

(b) Has project boards overseeing the following main activities:

Accommodation rationalisation
Centralisation of routine processing and administrative activities
Electronic capture of hard copy records
Installation of a geographical information system
Update of the information technology platforms ("technical refresh")
Wireless-enabled technology
Asset valuation software
Non-domestic rating revaluation 2010
Merger between the VOA and The Rent Service

Valuation Office: Databases

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what databases are (a) owned and (b) maintained by or on behalf of the Valuation Office Agency. [258399]

Mr. Timms: The Valuation Office Agency owns and maintains a wide variety of databases to support its work.

Valuation Office: Procurement

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 6 May 2008, Official Report, column 829W, on the Valuation Office: procurement, what the financial threshold is above which a purchase order is required for representatives of the Valuation Office Agency to procure goods and services. [258272]

Mr. Timms: The Valuation Office Agency (VOA) operates a policy that requires purchase orders to be raised in nearly all cases. Exceptions to this are for local, one-off purchases or where the procurement is sourced through a specific dedicated portal.

Valuation Office: Rightmove

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost to date has been of the contract between HM Revenue and Customs on behalf of the Valuation Office Agency and Rightmove.co.uk plc. [258400]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) on 22 February 2008, Official Report, column 118W. Expenditure in the year 2008-09 will be available in the Valuation Office Agency's annual report and accounts, when published.

VAT

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether value added tax (VAT) is charged on VAT-liable items in HM Treasury building (a) vending machines and (b) staff canteens; and whether retail prices on such VAT-liable items have been reduced since December 2008. [258374]

Angela Eagle: The value added tax element in retail prices in HM Treasury building vending machines and the staff canteen was reduced to 15 per cent. with effect from 1 December 2008.

Working Tax Credit

John Mason: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of shortened working hours as a result of the recession on claimants of working tax credits. [259218]

Mr. Timms: Tax credits are a flexible, responsive system of financial support that adjusts to people's circumstances. Shortened working hours that have the effect of reducing a household's income may lead to a higher tax credits award, provided that the household continues to meet the normal eligibility conditions for tax credits.

In December 2008, 412,000 households were benefiting from an increased tax credits award because of a fall in income compared to their previous year's income. To receive any additional support, households need only notify HMRC of their changed circumstances.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what account UK forces in Afghanistan have taken of the concerns about Afghan civilian casualties expressed by the Secretary General of the United Nations; and what steps are being taken to minimise such casualties. [256248]

Bill Rammell: We share the Secretary-General's concerns about civilian casualties, the vast majority of which are caused by the insurgency. We do everything we can to avoid civilian casualties but, despite our efforts to specifically target the insurgents, there are times when the ordinary people of Afghanistan are harmed by the conflict.

We are deeply saddened by any civilian deaths in Afghanistan. We particularly regret incidents where civilians are killed as a result of actions by international forces.

We continue to take incidents of civilian casualties very seriously. They present a real risk to the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation's International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) and international forces' presence and support in Afghanistan. ISAF has made strenuous efforts to reduce incidents. The UK welcomes the recent Tactical directive from the commander of ISAF which further tightens the rules of engagement in Afghanistan to cut civilian casualties. The new rules stress the need for proportionate use of force and for Afghan forces to take the lead in searching Afghan homes and religious sites unless a clear danger is identified.

Animals

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, how many members of staff within his Department deal with animal-related matters as part of their overall remit. [256644]

Gillian Merron: This information is not held centrally, and could not be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Arms Trade: Treaties

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will seek to include the Arms Trade treaty process on the agenda for the forthcoming G20 summit in London. [255730]

Bill Rammell: The agenda for the London summit meeting is still under consideration with participants. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary will continue to raise the Arms Trade treaty at appropriate opportunities in international meetings.

Asia: Diplomatic Service

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the (a) remit and (b) responsibilities of his Department's Special Representative to Afghanistan and Pakistan are. [256956]

David Miliband: The Special Representative for Afghanistan and Pakistan will focus on the cross-cutting issues facing both the UK and Afghan governments, such as countering extremism. His remit will include working with other key Government Departments engaged on Afghanistan and Pakistan, working closely with his US counterpart, ambassador Richard Holbrooke in developing international consensus and support for the Afghan and Pakistani governments, in conjunction with our ambassador in Kabul and high commissioner in Islamabad. The Special Representative will report to the Foreign Secretary.

Caribbean: Crime

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps his Department has taken to tackle drug trafficking in the British Overseas Territories of (a) Anguilla, (b) Montserrat and (c) the Turks and Caicos Islands. [256524]

Gillian Merron: Through the Governors of the respective Territories we work closely with the local police forces to help them develop and implement strategies to counter drug trafficking. Where appropriate we have provided financial support for these strategies, for example by providing co-funding for three retired UK police officers to establish the Drugs and Crime Task Force in Anguilla. We also support initiatives for cross territory and wider regional collaboration.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps his Department has taken to minimise the potential for money laundering to occur in the British Overseas Territories of (a) Anguilla, (b) Montserrat and (c) the Turks and Caicos Islands. [256525]

Gillian Merron: My officials are working with regulators, police investigators and prosecutors in the Overseas Territories (OT) and have drawn up action plans tailored to each of the OT, which include projects to strengthen regulatory systems, laws and expertise. They also take into account independent evaluations of anti-money laundering and counter terrorist financing systems by the Caribbean Financial Action Task Force (CFATF).

Departmental funding has been used to strengthen the Financial Crime Unit in the Turks and Caicos Islands (TCI) and to update the proceeds of crime law. Similar projects are underway in Anguilla and Montserrat. In addition, the Department is part-funding the new head of the Anguilla Financial Intelligence Unit, which has brought about increases in the reporting and investigation of suspected financial crimes. Training for financial investigators from Anguilla and Montserrat has been arranged and external consultants are helping to boost supervisory practice in these Territories. We are also working with the authorities in TCI to help them to respond to the recommendations in the November 2008 CFATF mutual evaluation report. We are working with Anguilla and Montserrat to help them prepare for their CFATF evaluations later this year.

Central African Republic: Overseas Aid

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support his Department plans to offer to the new government of national unity in the Central African Republic. [256846]

Gillian Merron: The UK welcomed the formation of a unity government in the Central African Republic (CAR) on 19 January 2009, following the outcome of the Inclusive Political Dialogue.

The UN Peace Building Commission will now assist national authorities in driving forward core peace building priorities, and ensuring that international attention remains focused. Linked to this, the Peace Building Fund—to which the UK is the largest contributor with £30 million over three years—is providing funding for projects in the areas of security sector reform, (including disarmament, demobilisation and reintegration), rule of law and good governance.

Alongside multinational efforts to support the new government and increase development in CAR, the UK is providing more than £2.2 million to support humanitarian activities in 2008-09. This money is being spent on bringing clean water, sanitation facilities, food, farming equipment and basic medicines and health care to those most in need, as well as providing protection to civilians affected by armed conflict.

Colonies: UN Resolutions

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department has taken to monitor the implementation of UN General Assembly Resolution 63/110 on Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples. [256827]

Gillian Merron: This is a twofold process: The UK carefully examines the UN Secretariat's reports to the General Assembly's Fourth Committee. The UK also continues to fulfil its obligations to the Overseas Territories under the UN Charter.

The UK's relationship with its Overseas Territories is a modern one based on partnership. The UK is committed to the future development and continued security of the Overseas Territories for as long as the Territories choose to retain their link to the UK. The UK has no intention of imposing independence against the will of the peoples concerned, whilst the established policy of successive Governments has been to give every help and encouragement to those Territories which wished to proceed to independence, where it is an option.

Conflict Resolution

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Prime Minister's Special Representative on Conflict Resolution Mechanisms has received as part of his dialogue with (a) the United Nations, (b) the EU, (c) the African Union and (d) others, broken down by type of representations; and on which dates each such representation was received. [256828]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The right hon. Jack McConnell MSP, the Prime Minister's Special Representative on Conflict Resolution Mechanisms is based in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. He met officials from the European Council, European Commission and the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation on 9-10 December 2008 in Brussels and from the United Nations on 15-16 December 2008 in New York. Mr. McConnell also met EU officials on 2-3 February 2009 in Bosnia. He plans to meet officials from the African Union shortly.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Asylum

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the human rights situation in Kinshasa and Bas Congo; what guidance he has issued to the UK Border Agency on the safety of unsuccessful asylum seekers removed to the Democratic Republic of Congo; and if he will make a statement. [255513]

Gillian Merron: We continue to monitor the human rights situation in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) closely. Though there have been recent occasions on which human rights standards have not been upheld in Kinshasa and Bas Congo, we are not aware of any systematic persecution by the DRC authorities there. Our guidance to the UK Border Agency on the return of failed asylum seekers to DRC from the UK sets this out. There continues to be no general reason why failed asylum seekers should not be returned to Kinshasa or Bas Congo, although each application must be treated on its own merits.

Departmental Buildings

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) display energy certificates and (b) advisory reports for public buildings issued in respect of each property occupied by (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies. [256048]

Gillian Merron: I will place in the Library a copy of the display energy certificates and their associated advisory reports in respect of each qualifying property occupied by the Foreign and Commonwealth office and its agencies.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 371W, on departmental buildings; at what rate council tax is being paid in respect of the residential apartments in the composite hereditament of 1 Carlton Gardens. [257456]

Gillian Merron: Council tax is currently being paid at the City of Westminster's company property rate of 90 per cent., the rate chargeable for an empty furnished property. The charge for the financial year 2008-09 is £1,237.72.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 371W, on departmental buildings, whether his Department is seeking to (a) extend the lease or (b) terminate the lease in its negotiations with the Crown Estate. [257457]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is conducting negotiations with a view to extending the lease.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will publish a copy of his Department's website accessibility plan. [257217]

Caroline Flint: No, as there is not a departmental accessibility plan. However, the Foreign and Commonwealth Offices's accessibility statement is available at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/en/accessibility

Our accessibility plan is to address the priority issues raised in the accessibility report produced for our website by Bunnyfoot in March 2008. This report is an internal document and as such has not been published on our public website.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the maximum monthly allowance in addition to basic salary is for civilian employees of his Department working in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan. [254920]

Gillian Merron: UK civil servants employed by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in Iraq and Afghanistan receive a series of allowances.

Some of these allowances, principally cost of living allowance, are paid to civil servants serving in many countries overseas to compensate them for the actual extra costs of living and working overseas. These costs are based on indicators produced by Employment Conditions Abroad (ECA).

Other allowances, particularly the hardship element of Diplomatic Service Compensation Allowance (DSCA), are paid to staff in difficult and dangerous posts to compensate them for the security threat they face, the lack of basic facilities, risks to health, and frequently lengthy separation from their families. ECA indicators, and security advice, are used to calculate this allowance.

The current monthly rates of DSCA hardship allowance paid to staff at posts in Iraq and Afghanistan are:

Kabul	1,510
Kandahar	1,569
Lashkar Gah	1,746
Irbil	1,635
Baghdad	2,306
Basra	2,306

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff in his Department were on sick leave for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years. [256325]

Gillian Merron: The following table records the number of civil servants employed by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office whose periods of sick leave continued beyond 30, 50 and 100 days.

	30 days	50 days	100 days
2004	174	104	38
2005	130	75	33
2006	138	75	35
2007	152	99	42
2008	141	60	26

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many days sick leave on average each member of staff in his Department took in 2008. [256494]

Gillian Merron: The average number of sick days taken by UK-based Foreign and Commonwealth Office staff during 2008 was 3.6 days. We do not keep records centrally of sick leave taken by locally-engaged staff members. This information could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff in his Department were recorded as having been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December in each of the last five years. [256630]

Gillian Merron: The following statistics record the number of Officers who were on sick leave for more than 12 months since 2004.

	Number
2004	8
2005	9
2006	10
2007	5
2008	5

Diplomatic Service

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many times his Department has appointed a Special Representative to a particular region since 1997. [256984]

Gillian Merron: Special Representatives have been appointed by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary, to the Great Lakes (1998), Sierra Leone (2002), Iraq (2003), South Caucasus (2003), Sudan (2003), Nepal (2003), Darfur (Peace Talks) 2006, Middle East (and Special Projects) 2007, Afghanistan and Pakistan (2009).

In addition, Special Representatives and Special Envoys are appointed by the Prime Minister.

EU Satellite Centre

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many UK citizens are employed by the European Union Satellite Centre in Torrejón, Spain. [257066]

Caroline Flint: There are currently six UK citizens employed by the European Union Satellite Centre in Torrejón, Spain.

Gao Zhisheng

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the arrest of Mr. Gao Zhisheng by the Chinese authorities; what representations he has made to his Chinese counterpart about Mr. Zhisheng's detention; and if he will make a statement. [257348]

Bill Rammell: We remain concerned at the case of Gao Zhisheng. We have received reports that he was taken from his parents' home in Shaanxi Province on 4 February 2009 and has not been seen since. We have consistently raised the case of Mr. Zhisheng with the Chinese Ministry of Foreign Affairs. We raised it at the 2008 UK/China Human Rights Dialogue in Beijing as part of an individual case list. After co-ordination among EU member states, the EU presidency raised the case with the Chinese Ministry of Foreign Affairs on 28 January 2009. We will continue to monitor his case and raise it at every appropriate opportunity.

Government Communications Headquarters: Manpower

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many employees of the Government Communications Headquarters are currently (a) seconded to and (b) otherwise deployed at the United States National Security Agency. [256836]

Gillian Merron: It is the longstanding policy of the Government not to comment on operational intelligence matters, including details of staff deployments.

Guantanamo Bay: Detainees

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether US officials have acceded to the request to return Mr. Shaker Aamer to the UK; and if he will make a statement. [256382]

David Miliband: We maintain a close dialogue with the US regarding Mr. Aamer's case and his welfare. The US government have not agreed to his release and return to the UK. We have made clear in recent contacts with the new administration that our request for his release and return stands should their position have changed.

Hazard Management Cayman Islands

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much money his Department gave to Hazard Management Cayman Islands in 2008; and what sum has been budgeted for 2009. [256760]

Gillian Merron: None. Hazard Management Cayman Islands is a public authority which is funded by the Cayman Islands government.

International Organisations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much expenditure his Department incurred in paying subscriptions to each international organisation in 2007-08; what projection he has made of such costs for each organisation in (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10; and if he will make a statement. [256063]

David Miliband: The information requested is as follows:

Subscriptions to each international organisation in 2007-08

Subscription	£000
UN Regular Budget and Other UN Contributions	72,382
Council of Europe	10,620

(b) Subscriptions to each international organisation in 2009-10

The projected costs for 2009-10 are around £146 million but are uncertain. In negotiating with international organisations as they set their budgets for 2009-10, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) will endeavour to limit budget increases to zero real growth. The fall in sterling will have an impact on subscriptions paid in US Dollars and Euros. The FCO shares the burden of exchange rate movements on international subscriptions with the Treasury under the arrangement whereby the Treasury fund 60 per cent. of any increase above a baseline of £102 million. Our foreign currency forward purchase contracts do include an element for our international subscription costs intended to help offset any further falls in sterling.

Iran: British Council

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the government of Iran on the resumption of the activities of the British Council in that country. [256247]

Caroline Flint: We have been very clear with the Iranians that we consider this behaviour unacceptable, and that they should enable the British Council to resume its operations as soon as possible.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary raised this with the Iranian Speaker on 7 February 2009 when they met in the margins of the Munich Security Conference. We have also made representations at official level in London and Tehran.

Iraq: Homosexuality

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the treatment of gay and lesbian people in Iraq in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [256122]

Bill Rammell: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) have received some reports of violence committed against individuals because of their sexual orientation. These however do not appear to point towards any systemic or institutionalised abuse of the homosexual community in Iraq. Rather they indicate unconnected acts perpetuated by bigoted individuals. FCO officials remain in contact with vulnerable groups organisations such as the UK-based Iraqi Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Trans-Gender Group. We will continue to monitor this situation carefully.

Iraq: Mujahedin-e Khalq

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he (a) has taken and (b) plans to take at the United Nations in response to the Iraqi National Security Adviser, Muwafaq al-Rubaie's statement on 24 January 2009 that the government of Iraq intend to hand over to the Iranian government members of the People's Mujahedin of Iran; and if he will make a statement. [256769]

Bill Rammell: I should clarify that it was the US, not the UK, who had responsibility for the security and administration of the camp. The US informed us of its plans to hand responsibility for the camp to the Iraqi authorities from 1 January 2009. This has now taken place.

I should further clarify that the Iraqi government have not made any announcement stating they intend to forcibly hand over residents of Camp Ashraf to the Iranian government. National Security Adviser Al-Rubaie stated during his visit to Iran that "we have told the members of PMOI in Camp Ashraf that they have two options. Either they return home or choose a third country".

Prior to the handover, the US received assurances making clear the Iraqi authorities commitment to the humane treatment and continued well-being of the camp residents. We understand that in addition to this, the Iraqi Ministry of Human Rights has also visited the camp and delivered these assurances to a representative body of the residents. We are naturally concerned that the rights of all those involved in the process are observed and that they continue to be treated humanely and their fundamental human rights be maintained.

Voluntary repatriations to Iran of those residents who wish to return will continue. But there is no evidence to suggest forced relocation of the residents in Iraq or elsewhere will take place.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the government of Iraq to withdraw their reported plans to hand over to the Iranian government members of the People's Mujahedin of Iran; and if he will make a statement. [256770]

Bill Rammell: I refer the hon. Member for Southend West to the answer provided against PQ 256769. It is the Government's view that there is no intention on the part of the Iraqi government to forcibly return any residents of Camp Ashraf to Iran.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the government of Iraq on the rights of members of the People's Mujahedin of Iran resident in Ashraf City, Iraq; and if he will make a statement. [256771]

Bill Rammell: The US received assurances from the Iraqi authorities making clear their commitment to the humane treatment and continued well-being of the camp residents. We understand that in addition to this the Iraqi Ministry of Human Rights have also visited the camp and delivered these assurances to a representative body of the residents. We are naturally concerned that the rights of all those involved in the process are observed and that they continue to be treated humanely and their fundamental human rights be maintained. In this regard, we understand that as a result of their extensive contacts the US are satisfied that the Iraqi authorities are fully aware of their responsibilities with regard to Camp Ashraf and its residents.

Both the Iraqi authorities and the US had been involved in discussions with the UN High Commissioner for Refugees and the UN Assistance Mission for Iraq on the modalities of the hand over of responsibility for the camp. The Iraqi Ministry of Human Rights also played a key role in overseeing the transition. In addition we understand that the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) discusses, on a confidential basis, all of the issues surrounding the camp with the People's Mujahedin Organisation of Iran and the Iraqi and US authorities. The ICRC follows developments at the camp closely and visit regularly.

The hon. Gentleman will also wish to note that, while residents of the camp were treated as 'protected persons', this was exercised at the good will of the US authorities in charge at the time and was not granted through any legal obligation under international law.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will ask the government of Iraq to remove all restrictions on supporters of the People's Mujahedin of Iran based in Ashraf City following the recent judgment of the European Court of Justice. [257284]

Bill Rammell: On 26 January 2009, taking into account the judgment by the Court of First Instance on 4 December 2008, the General Affairs and External Relations Council adopted a list which did not include the People's Mujahedin Organisation of Iran (MEK/PMOI). Mindful of this 4 December judgement annulling the July 2008 listing of the MEK/PMOI, the UK believes that EU member states must observe and respect the court's judgment in the current review of the EU list of terrorist organisations.

Residents of the camp are free to leave at any time if they demonstrate they have the appropriate travel documentation and finance to leave the camp and take up residence either in Iran or in a third country. Voluntary repatriations to Iran have previously taken place and, we understand, without the returnees concerned being ill treated. Such reparations will continue for those who wish to do this. There is no evidence to suggest forced relocation of the residents in Iraq or elsewhere will take place.

The US received assurances from the Iraqi authorities which make clear their commitment to the humane treatment and continued well-being of the camp residents. We understand that in addition to this the Iraqi Ministry of Human Rights have also visited the camp and delivered these assurances to a representative body of the residents. We are naturally concerned that the rights of all those involved are observed and that camp residents continue to be treated humanely and their fundamental human rights be maintained.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will seek to put in place mechanisms to protect supporters of the People's Mujahedin of Iran based in Ashraf City. [257285]

Bill Rammell: I should clarify that it was the US, not the UK, who had responsibility for the security and administration of the camp. The US informed us of its plans to hand responsibility for the camp to the Iraqi authorities from 1 January 2009 and this has now taken place. Both the Iraqi authorities and the US had been involved in discussions with the UN High Commissioner for Refugees and the UN Assistance Mission for Iraq on modalities. The Iraqi Ministry of Human Rights also played a key role in overseeing the transition. In addition we understand that the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) discusses, on a confidential basis, all of the issues surrounding the camp with the People's Mujahedin Organisation of Iran (MEK/PMOI) and the Iraqi and US authorities. The ICRC follows developments at the camp closely and visits regularly.

The US received assurances from the Iraqi authorities before the handover took place making clear their commitment to the humane treatment and continued well-being of the camp residents. We understand that in addition to this the Iraqi Ministry of Human Rights have also visited the camp and delivered these assurances to a representative body of the residents.

We are naturally concerned that the rights of all those residents involved are observed and that they continue to be treated humanely and their fundamental human rights be maintained. In this regard, we understand that as a result of their extensive contacts the US are satisfied that the Iraqi authorities are fully aware of their responsibilities with regard to Camp Ashraf and its residents.

On 26 January 2009, bearing in mind the judgment by the Court of First Instance on 4 December 2008, the General Affairs and External Relations Council adopted a list which did not include the MEK/PMOI organisation. The 4 December judgment annulled the July 2008 listing of the MEK/PMOI, the UK therefore believe that EU member states must observe and respect the court's judgment in the current review of the EU list of terrorist organisations.

Iraq: Politics and Government

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of (a) the resignation from the Iraqi government of its Minister for Women and (b) budgetary reductions of the Iraqi Ministry for Women on Iraq's ability to fulfil its responsibilities under UN Security Council Resolution 1325. [256652]

Bill Rammell: We were disappointed to hear news of the resignation of Mrs. Nawal al-Samaraie although there apparently remains considerable uncertainty about whether this resignation has been accepted by the Government of Iraq. We have always enjoyed excellent relations with Mrs. al-Samaraie and have offered our full support to the work of her ministry. Budgetary issues are clearly a matter for the government of Iraq but we understand that the Iraqi Ministry of Women's Affairs is a Ministry of State and does not have the same autonomy, or budget line, of a full Ministry under the Iraqi Government.

The UK shall continue to work with the Government of Iraq to ensure that the rights of women as provided within the Iraqi constitution are upheld. The Iraqi Ministry of Human Rights also has responsibility towards upholding women's rights as will the National Human Rights Commission which was established through legislation passed in November 2008.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of the reasons for the recent resignation from the Iraqi government of its Minister of Women; and if he will make a statement. [256653]

Bill Rammell: We are aware of reports of the resignation of the Minister of State for Women's Affairs, Mrs. Nawal al-Samaraie, but have yet to see confirmation that her resignation has been accepted by the Government of Iraq. We are presently unaware of the reason for her resignation beyond that which was reported in the media. We have always enjoyed excellent relations with Mrs. al-Samaraie and so view this news with some concern. This is an internal matter for the Government of Iraq but we shall continue to monitor events closely.

Israel: Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the evidential basis is for the assumption that Israel has nuclear weapons, as set out at page 14 of his Department's publication, Lifting the Nuclear Shadow: Creating the conditions for abolishing nuclear weapons. [258124]

Bill Rammell: Information in the public domain has led to a widely held assumption that Israel possesses nuclear weapons, though Israel has always refused to either confirm or deny this. The UK has consistently urged Israel to join the non proliferation treaty as a non-nuclear weapon state.

Israel: Press Freedom

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the government of Israel to lift its restrictions on the activities of journalists from the al-Jazeera network. [256246]

Bill Rammell: We support a free media and have been concerned by Israeli restrictions on media organisation, as my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary made clear in his statement on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 21.

Kenya: Piracy

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had on the activities of pirates operating from Kenya. [256588]

Gillian Merron: We are not aware of any pirates operating from Kenya. The focus of the international community has been on the threat of piracy operating from Somalia, including in waters off the coast of Kenya.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received allegations of the unauthorised use of ambulances for non-medical purposes by members of Hamas during Operation Cast Lead; and if he will make a statement. [258729]

Bill Rammell: We have not received substantiated reports of Hamas misuse of ambulances, but there have been widespread reports of unacceptable activity by Hamas members. We condemn any attack on innocent civilians. UN Security Council Resolution 1860, which was proposed by us, was emphatic in its condemnation of all violence and hostilities directed against civilians and all acts of terrorism.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of the number of suicide bomb attacks in Israel for which Hamas claimed responsibility between 1994 and 2006; and if he will make a statement. [256735]

Bill Rammell: According to the Israeli Foreign Ministry, between 1994 and 2006, there were 153 suicide attacks committed by Palestinians in Israel. We are unable to verify either the total number of attacks or the organisation responsible for individual attacks.

The UK has proscribed the military wing of Hamas as a terrorist group and repeatedly condemned attacks targeting civilians.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the briefing note on Operation Cast Lead produced jointly by his Department and the Home Office Research and Information Unit; which (a) organisations and (b) individuals were consulted prior to drafting the briefing note; who drafted the briefing note; for what purpose it was produced; how many copies were circulated; to whom; at what cost to his Department; what contributions Ministers in his Department made to the briefing note; and if he will make a statement. [256736]

Bill Rammell: The Government worked hard to explain UK policy to interested groups throughout the conflict. In addition to public and parliamentary statements, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and I have met privately with numerous non governmental organisations, Muslim and Jewish community groups and parliamentarians. We have also written to many individuals and groups, including my letter to all MPs and Peers on 9 January 2009.

As part of this engagement, Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials drew up summaries of our actions, policy, humanitarian efforts and key ministerial statements on areas of concern to audiences. These were distributed widely across Whitehall and to our embassies and high commissions around the world. Research, Information and Communications Unit (RICU) also disseminated them to their network. The factsheet evolved as the crisis progressed and continues to be updated regularly. I will place a copy of the latest factsheet in the Library of the House.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the government of Israel's estimate of the number of civilian Palestinian casualties during Operation Cast Lead; and if he will make a statement. [256737]

Bill Rammell: The Israeli authorities currently estimate that between 1100 and 1200 Palestinians were killed in Gaza. They estimate that 250 were civilians.

The UN, based on Palestinian Ministry of Health figures, reports that approximately 1,440 Palestinians have been killed since the conflict began, including 431 children and 114 women.

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications for UK policy of the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice on the legal consequences of the construction of the wall in the Occupied Palestinian Territories; and if he will make a statement. [257374]

Bill Rammell: The Government agree with the conclusion of the International Court of Justice (ICJ) that the construction of the barrier along the chosen route, and its associated regime, is unlawful under international law.

The Government have consistently made this position clear and supported the UN General Assembly Resolution which acknowledged the ICJ advisory opinion on the legal consequences of the construction of the barrier in the Occupied Palestinian Territory. While the advisory opinions of the ICJ are not legally binding, and the UK is not obliged under international law to take such diplomatic action, we continue to lobby the Government of Israel to ensure that any Israeli barrier is routed within Green Line Israel.

Rowan Laxton

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will take disciplinary action against Rowan Laxton in light of his reported comments concerning Jewish people and Israel; and if he will make a statement. [257340]

Gillian Merron: The staff member concerned has been suspended in accordance with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's misconduct procedure and will be subject to disciplinary proceedings. Police inquiries are continuing.

Somaliland: Foreign Relations

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with representatives of Somaliland on that area's future status. [256580]

Gillian Merron: In December 2008, my noble Friend the Home Office Minister with responsibility for security and counter terrorism, Lord West of Spithead, met the Somaliland Foreign Affairs representative, Abdilahi Duale, during a visit to Ethiopia. In January 2008, the Minister with responsibility for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, held discussions in London with the Leader of Somaliland, Dahir Rayale Kahin. The then Minister of State at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, my right hon. Friend the Member for Pontypridd (Dr. Howells), met Dahir Rayale Kahin in the capital of Somaliland in June 2008.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary met representatives of the Somaliland community in the UK when he visited Cardiff in October 2008.

The Government considers dialogue with Somaliland representatives to be an important part of our overall engagement with Somalia.

Sri Lanka: Arms Trade

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will introduce a ban on defence equipment sales to Sri Lanka in light of the military offensive by the Sri Lankan government against the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam; and if he will make a statement. [257298]

Bill Rammell: All applications for export licences to Sri Lanka are assessed on a case by case basis against the National and EU Arms Export Licensing Criteria, taking into account the circumstances at the time. The Government believe that a robust and transparent UK licensing regime is the best way to control the UK's strategic exports to all destinations. It is our view that the current situation in Sri Lanka would not be improved by the introduction of an embargo on defence equipment.

Since the abrogation of the ceasefire in January 2008 the UK has not issued any licences, either for lethal goods or for other military goods that we judge would prolong or aggravate the internal conflict in Sri Lanka.

Sri Lanka: Politics and Government

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs by what means his Department assesses the security and humanitarian situation in Sri Lanka. [254626]

Bill Rammell: Much of the reporting on security and humanitarian issues is provided by our high commission in Colombo, which includes staff from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the Department for International Development and the Ministry of Defence. Our high commission also works with a number of national and international organisations on the ground. Given the nature of the conflict and limited access to the north of Sri Lanka, it is difficult to obtain reliable independent information of the current situation.

We remain seriously concerned about the deteriorating humanitarian situation and the impact on civilians.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of developments in the humanitarian situation in Sri Lanka between 21 January and 29 January 2009. [254627]

Bill Rammell: The recent upsurge of fighting between the government of Sri Lanka and Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelaam (LTTE) has worsened the situation for the over 200,000 internally displaced persons in northern Sri Lanka. There are increasing civilian casualties, including women and children. We are increasingly concerned about the ability of humanitarian agencies to deliver much needed supplies.

In a statement of 29 January 2009, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary expressed his extreme concern about the deteriorating humanitarian situation in northern Sri Lanka. He urged both parties to agree an immediate humanitarian ceasefire.

Thailand: Aviation

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the (a) progress of and (b) completion date of the inquiry in Thailand into the plane crash in Phuket in September 2007. [255609]

Bill Rammell: According to the Director, Aviation Safety Standards of the Civil Aviation Department in Bangkok, the investigations into the cause of the One Two Go airline crash at Phuket airport on 16 September 2007 are ongoing. It is expected that the report will not be finalised and made public until May 2009 at the earliest.

Our embassy in Bangkok is monitoring the progress of the investigation and we will alert the right hon. Member and the families as soon as the report is made public.

Tony Blair

Mr. Elwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 2 February 2009, Official Report, column 893W, on Tony Blair, how much has been paid from the public purse towards the running of the office of Tony Blair as Quartet Representative; what arrangements there are for accounting to Parliament for such expenditure; and if he will make a statement. [256782]

Bill Rammell: Our answer given on 2 February 2009 sets out the Government support to the office of the Quartet Representative. Standard arrangements exist for accounting this expenditure to Parliament.

Turks and Caicos Islands: Crime

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many incidents of violent crime there were in the Turks and Caicos Islands in each of the last five years. [256761]

Gillian Merron: The Royal Turks and Caicos Islands Police Force has provided the following statistics on incidents of violent crime in each of the last five years:

Incidents of violent crime

	Number
2008	530
2007	445
2006	444
2005	413
2004	311

Turks and Caicos Islands: Environment Protection

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what acreage of land in the Turks and Caicos Islands was designated an environmentally protected area in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008. [256759]

Gillian Merron: There are thirty-three protected areas in the Turks and Caicos Islands (TCI), in four categories: national parks, nature reserves, sanctuaries and sites of historic interest. We understand from the TCI Department for Environment and Coastal Resources that in 2006 there was a combined total area of some 78,335 hectares. They do not have figures for 2007 and 2008.

Turks and Caicos Islands: Illegal Immigrants

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to tackle illegal immigration in the Turks and Caicos Islands. [256757]

Gillian Merron: The responsibility for immigration in the Turks and Caicos Islands (TCI) is delegated to the local government, although we continue to work closely with the TCI government on this issue. We support a programme of co-operation at both official and ministerial level between the TCI government and the Government of Haiti, which we hope will soon be formalised by a memorandum of understanding.

The Department has funded a Regional Maritime Training Coordinator for the Caribbean Overseas Territories, and provided a small patrol craft for training purposes. These will supplement the TCI government's own efforts to stem the flow of illegal migrants, which have included the recent appointment of a change manager for the Royal Turks and Caicos Islands Police Force's marine branch.

Turks and Caicos Islands: National Income

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the per capita gross domestic product of the Turks and Caicos Islands was in each of the last five years. [256762]

Gillian Merron: (GDP) per capita calculations for the Turks and Caicos Islands (TCI) come from the TCI government's Department of Economic Planning and Statistics. We cannot confirm the accuracy of these figures and it is not unusual for estimates to be revised after they have been published.

Gross Domestic Product per capita (in current prices) for the last five years was:

	US$
2003	16,297
2004	17,661
2005	18,909
2006	21,742
2007[1]	23,768

[1] Preliminary

No estimates are yet available for 2008.

Turks and Caicos Islands: Prisons

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations his Department has made to the Turks and Caicos Islands government on the conditions in (a) police lock-ups in Providenciales and (b) the prison on Grand Turk. [256758]

Gillian Merron: The Governor has encouraged the Turks and Caicos Islands (TCI) Government to make available the necessary funding for the construction of a new police station in Providenciales, which will include purpose built lock-ups.

The Overseas Territories Prison Reform Coordinator, funded by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, has made recommendations to help alleviate the current overcrowding at the prison on Grand Turk, including the completion of a new female wing. These recommendations have been accepted by the TCI Government.

Venezuela: Anti-Semitism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the attack on the Tiferet Israel Synagogue in Caracas on 30 January 2009; and if he will make a statement. [256821]

Gillian Merron: The attacks on Tiferet Israel Synagogue in Caracas are a significant concern. Reports we have received stated that the Synagogue was attacked by 15 to 20 armed men and women who ransacked and desecrated the building. They also broke into the administration area and stole computers containing databases.

Our ambassador in Caracas has written to the Synagogue's Rabbi and to the Leader of the Jewish community in Venezuela to express our sympathy and solidarity.

We note the arrest of 11 people accused of the crime. We will continue to monitor the situation closely and encourage all to reject anti-Semitism as it is incompatible with democratic values.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on levels of anti-Semitism in Venezuela; and if he will make a statement. [256822]

Gillian Merron: We are concerned by a number of reports of anti-Semitism in Venezuela in recent weeks, and welcome the meetings that have taken place between the Venezuelan government and the leaders of the Venezuelan Jewish community to discuss the situation.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he plans to answer question number 246328, on Afghanistan, tabled on 17 December 2008. [257574]

Gillian Merron: This question was answered on 12 February 2009 Official Report column 2197W, following a delay due to an administrative error.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he will answer question 248749, tabled on 15 January 2009, on secondment to support the Quartet Middle East Envoy. [258214]

Gillian Merron: This question was answered on 23 February 2009 Official Report, column 381W. The delay in responding was due to administrative error.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Committees: Video Conferencing

Mr. Evans: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what assessment the Commission has made of the effectiveness of arrangements in place to facilitate the taking of oral evidence by select committees via video-conferencing. [259198]

Nick Harvey: Arrangements for video-conferencing by Select Committees are monitored by the Liaison Committee. The video-conferencing projection equipment in the Committee Rooms in Portcullis House is currently being updated to enhance the picture and sound quality of transmissions.

Houses of Parliament: VAT

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission whether valued added tax (VAT) is charged on VAT-liable items in each of the House restaurants, vending machines, bars and canteens; and whether retail prices on VAT-liable items have been reduced since December 2008. [258381]

Nick Harvey: VAT is payable on the sale of all restaurant and bar services and so all prices charged in the restaurants, bars and cafeterias in the House of Commons include VAT at the prevailing rate (currently 15 per cent.). Selling prices are rounded to the nearest 5 pence, and all prices were reduced in December 2008 if the impact of the VAT rate change was more than or equal to 5p.

VAT is also payable on food and drinks dispensed from vending machines. Prices were reviewed following the reduction in VAT in December 2008 but were unchanged due to the policy of rounding prices to the nearest 5p.

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission whether the retail prices in the House of Commons gift shop for items which attract valued added tax were reduced following the December 2008 reduction in value added tax. [258382]

Nick Harvey: Prices in the House of Commons souvenir shops are set to the nearest 5p. The selling prices of all goods on which VAT is payable were reduced in December 2008 if the impact of the VAT rate change came to 5p or more.

Members: Email

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission whether hon. Members and their staff are (a) permitted and (b) able to install Pretty Good Privacy encryption software on their computers; and what support PICT provides to hon. Members' offices in this regard. [258379]

Nick Harvey: Members and their staff do have the rights necessary to install their own software on their parliamentary computers. Members are responsible for the licensing and maintenance of any software that they install and, as the conditions of supply provide, PICT reserves the right to remove any software that is found to interfere with the proper operation of the hardware concerned, or the parliamentary network. This applies to encryption software. However, extra caution is needed with this type of product since, by its nature, it can prevent access and therefore could severely limit PICT's ability to provide support after it has been installed.

PICT has recently completed an evaluation of encryption software and Pretty Good Privacy (PGP) was found to be incompatible with Parliament's current version of VPN (remote access) software. Therefore, this product is not recommended for users of that service. As part of the evaluation PICT has identified another product that can be deployed to Members' loaned machines by PICT at no cost to Members. The software can also be acquired by Members at their own cost, if they wish to have it installed on machines that they have purchased through PICT.

Trade Unions

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Chichester of 19 February 2008, Official Report, column 546W, on trade unions, what the estimated cost to the public purse of the provision of facilities for the exclusive use of trade unions was in each of the last three years. [258659]

Nick Harvey: The estimated cost of the facilities was around £46,000 in each of the last three years.

Trade Unions: Political Levy

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission pursuant to the answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 64W, on the political levy, if he will amend the staff handbook for House of Commons staff to inform them of their right to opt out of the political levies operated by those recognised trade unions which have a political fund. [258664]

Nick Harvey: Yes.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Legislation: Henry VIII Clauses

Mr. Maude: To ask the Leader of the House how many Henry VIII clauses were contained in primary legislation enacted in Session 2007-08. [258694]

Chris Bryant: Henry VIII clauses, which confer on Ministers the power to amend the statute itself by delegated legislation, or to amend other statutes, are included in legislation for a variety of reasons.

In some cases, such as section 6 of the Smoke Detectors Act 1991, they confer power to make significant and wide-ranging amendments to the parent Act. In other cases they may be used to make incidental and consequential amendments to existing Acts.

The Government do not routinely collect or hold information about the number of Henry VIII provisions so the information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Members: ICT

Mr. Evans: To ask the Leader of the House if she will bring forward proposals to encourage hon. Members to use interactive digital technology to communicate with their constituents. [259036]

Ms Harman: It is up to individual hon. Members how best to engage with their constituents, using interactive digital technology as well as other means. Hon. Members may use the Communication Allowance to meet the cost of designing and running a website which is intended to inform constituents of their work as a Member, to consult with constituents or local groups, or to provide contact information.

I would be interested to hear of any specific examples of good practice in this area.

Statutory Instruments

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Leader of the House how many statutory instruments subject to the (a) negative and (b) affirmative procedure have been laid before the House in each year since 1990. [260074]

Chris Bryant: The information is only readily available on a sessional basis and is published each year in the Sessional Returns. The following table shows the number of statutory instruments laid before the House in each Session from 1990-91 to 2007-08.

Session	Affirmative instruments	Negative instruments
1990-91	201	1,072

2005-06	271	1,583
2006-07	223	1,135
2007-08	257	1,049

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Leader of the House how many statutory instruments subject to the (a) negative and (b) affirmative procedure have been debated in delegated legislation committees and their predecessor committees in each year since 1990. [260075]

Chris Bryant: The information, which is published each year in the Sessional Returns, is set out in the following table.

The total number of affirmative instruments considered in committee each Session will differ from the total number laid in that Session for a number of reasons: some instruments are considered on the Floor of the House or in a Grand Committee; some items which are not laid as instruments may be agreed by the House to be treated as such; instruments may be considered in the Session after the one in which they were laid; and instruments may be withdrawn before they are considered.

Information about the procedure to which an instrument was subject was not compiled before 1995-96.

Session	Affirmative	Negative	Other	Total
1990-91	—	—	—	139
1991-92	—	—	—	60

NORTHERN IRELAND

Hillsborough Castle

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what events he plans to host at Hillsborough Castle in 2009; and at what estimated cost. [257260]

Mr. Woodward: Each year I host events (including the annual Royal Garden Party) at Hillsborough to acknowledge the significant contribution a wide range of people make to life in Northern Ireland and beyond. These as usual include representatives from the voluntary and business sectors, the police and armed forces. Each year the Northern Ireland Office publishes a list of receptions held and the overall costs of those events.

WALES

Departmental Public Consultation

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many public consultations his Department has carried out in the last 12 months; for how long each consultation was open; how many responses were received to each consultation; and what the cost was of conducting each consultation. [259730]

Mr. Paul Murphy: None

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many staff in his Department were recorded as having been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December in each of the last five years. [257761]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Records for sickness absence are only available from April 2004.

The Wales Office is a small Department with less than 60 staff and therefore has had a very small number of staff on long term sick. In line with Cabinet Office guidance, we are unable to answer this question figuratively. This is in order to protect the privacy of individuals.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proposals he has to link schemes with environmental benefits to the single farm payment. [253899]

Jane Kennedy: The existing link between Single Payment Scheme (SPS) and environmental standards is provided by the requirements set under cross compliance. These standards are also a condition of entry to environmental stewardship which rewards farmers for additional positive management of the farmed environment under the rural development programme in England.

The Common Agriculture Policy 'Health Check' decision in November 2008 abolished the set-aside mechanism from January 2009. The UK supported this action on the condition that adequate measures were put in place to mitigate adverse environmental consequences. We were successful in achieving a new legal basis which allows member states to use cross compliance for this purpose.

Within this context, the Secretary of State asked Sir Don Curry to bring together key stakeholders to consider the impact of the loss of set-aside including investigating mitigation. Sir Don reported last July, since when we have been considering the details of how mitigation might be put into practice. We expect to be in a position to consult on possible mitigation measures shortly.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which UK producer organisations have been funded from EU budget line 05 02 08 03 in 2008; and how much has been awarded to each. [256100]

Jane Kennedy: Details of which UK producer organisations have been funded from EU budget line 05 02 08 03, and how much they have been awarded, are provided in the following table:

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what expenditure is funded under EU budget line 05 02 08 10, Free Distribution of Fruits and Vegetables; which UK bodies received support under this line in 2008; and whether disbursements have been made from this budget line to (a) political bodies and (b) trades unions. [256137]

Jane Kennedy: There has been no expenditure funded under EU budget line 05 02 08 10 in 2008.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much late payment compensation has been paid under the Single Farm Payment scheme since its establishment; and what guidance his Department provides to farmers on the procedure for claiming such compensation. [259453]

Jane Kennedy: £3.6 million late compensation has been paid under the Single Payment Scheme (SPS) since its establishment to end January 2009.

This has been in the form of interest payments made to farmers who have received their full SPS payment after the 30 June closing date of the regulatory payment window for the 2005, 2006 and 2007 scheme years. The payments have been made under conditions set out by the Secretary of State, which are published on the Rural Payments Agency's (RPA) website.

For the three scheme years to date, interest is paid at the London Interbank Offered Rate (LIBOR) plus 1 per cent., calculated from 1 July, subject to a minimum interest payment level of £50.

It is not necessary for farmers to claim interest as RPA makes interest payments once each final payment is made to the farmer for that scheme year, including payments made where entitlement adjustments have been completed.

Batteries: Waste Disposal

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the effects on the environment of the disposal of batteries. [259329]

Jane Kennedy: Disposing of portable batteries and accumulators can have a detrimental impact on the environment and on public and animal health. Some batteries contain hazardous substances such as cadmium, mercury and lead. Batteries disposed of incorrectly can lead to such heavy metals leaking into the ground, causing soil and water pollution and endangering wildlife

Further impacts may arise indirectly from the disposal of batteries, as they contain a range of metals that can be re-used. Disposing of such materials in landfill means that more resources have to be used to mine new metals.

The UK is currently transposing the EU Directive on Batteries and Accumulators, which aims to reduce the negative environmental impact of waste portable batteries. This includes regulations that ban chemicals such as mercury and cadmium (above trace levels) in new batteries. In addition, the UK is working to implement the directive's requirements that we collect and recycle 25 per cent. of portable batteries by 2012 and 45 per cent. by 2016, which will dramatically reduce the amount going to landfill.

Compost

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many in-vessel composting sites have been licensed by the Environment Agency in each region of England. [258196]

Jane Kennedy: The following table indicates the number of in-vessel and windrow composting sites that are licensed in each Environment Agency region to date. Prior to standard permits being introduced, the Environment Agency's permit recording system did not distinguish between in-vessel and windrow composting and it would therefore incur disproportionate cost to collate figures for in-vessel alone.

Domestic Waste: Waste Disposal

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the (a) public health and (b) environmental effects of fortnightly waste collections; and if he will make a statement. [257065]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 23 February 2009]: In order to help local authorities make informed decisions on waste management, DEFRA funded an independent research study (carried out by Enviros Consulting and Cranfield University) which looked into the environmental and health impacts of waste management, looking in particular at municipal solid waste. The report was published in 2004 and is available on the DEFRA website at this address:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/waste/research/health/

Food

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the value of food (a) spoiled and (b) disposed of in each of the last six years. [257430]

Jane Kennedy: Data are not available for the value of food spoiled and disposed of in each of the last six years.

However, WRAP undertook research in 2007 to quantify the amounts and types of household food waste produced in the UK.

According to research conducted in 2007, the estimated total annual cost of household food waste (avoidable and unavoidable) is £14.4 billion per year. The estimated annual cost of avoidable household food waste is £10.2 billion.

Foot and Mouth Disease

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what legal costs were incurred by his Department in relation to the outbreak of foot and mouth disease in (a) 2001 and (b) 2007. [257429]

Jane Kennedy: The resources needed to obtain the information in relation to the legal cost incurred by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, following the Foot and Mouth Disease Outbreak in 2001, would be disproportionate and over the £750 threshold.

The legal cost incurred by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, so far, following the Foot and Mouth Disease Outbreak 2007 is £27,030.05.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) lowest, (b) highest, (c) median and (d) mean monetary value of compensation claims awarded following the outbreak of foot and mouth disease in 2007 was. [257435]

Jane Kennedy: The monetary value of compensation awarded as a result of the outbreak of foot and mouth disease in 2007 is as follows:

Lowest	75
Highest	94,500
Median	41,714
Mean	21,453

The compensation payable in such circumstances is set out in section 31(c) and in schedule 3, paragraph 3(5) of the Animal Health Act 1981. These provide that Government must pay compensation at the value of the animals immediately before they became infected or were killed. Each animal was assessed by an independent valuer or official veterinarian prior to being culled and this valuation formed the basis of the compensation paid to the owner. Some businesses will have received more than one award.

Fresh Fruit and Vegetables Aid Scheme

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the Government's policy is on encouraging applications by growers to be recognised as producer organisations for the purposes of the Fresh Fruit and Vegetables Aid Scheme. [252580]

Jane Kennedy: The rural payments agency (RPA) publish comprehensive guidance about the scheme on their website, including information for prospective applicants. DEFRA, in conjunction with the devolved administrations and with the industry itself, has drawn up a national strategy in order to provide detailed advice that producer organisations (POs) can adopt with the aim of developing their businesses and gaining funding under the scheme. One of its aims is that this advice will encourage more growers to seek recognition under the scheme, either as new POs or as new members of existing ones. More generally, it is one of DEFRA's aims to encourage greater collaboration across the food chain. We have commissioned English Farming and Food Partnerships to undertake work to promote awareness and interest in the scheme with a view to encouraging greater uptake.

Fuels

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he has made an assessment of the potential use of used cooking oil as a secondary fuel for use in static generator engines. [258232]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA has made funding available to enable the Environment Agency to develop an end-of-waste protocol for waste cooking oil. Waste cooking oil which is treated to the standards set out in the protocol is accepted by the Agency to have been fully recovered and to have ceased to be waste. However this protocol only applies to biodiesel for use in automotive engines.

Landfill

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his estimate is of the amount of food waste that goes to landfill each year. [258004]

Jane Kennedy: The DEFRA-funded Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) does not have data for the total amount of food waste that goes to landfill every year.

However, WRAP undertook research in 2007 to quantify the amounts and types of household food waste produced in the UK. According to its report, "The Food We Waste", UK households waste 6.7 million tonnes of food every year: around one third of the 21.7 million tonnes we purchase.

Meat: Imports

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what legislation governs levels of hormones in meat imported into the UK. [257801]

Jane Kennedy: EU Council Directive 96/23 lays down measures to monitor certain substances and residues in animals and animal products. In terms of import controls this is implemented in England through the Products of Animal Origin Regulations (Third Country Imports) (England) 2006. The devolved Authorities have their versions of the Products of Animal Origin Regulations.

Metals: Recycling

Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of (a) the number of metal recycling sites affected by proposals to remove their exemptions from full environmental permitting, (b) the number of such sites which will (i) incur additional costs and (ii) risk closure under the proposals and (c) the cost to each site of obtaining the necessary planning approvals for their operations under the proposals. [257395]

Jane Kennedy: In England and Wales there are currently 1,893 sites operating under the existing exemption from environmental permitting which applies to the recovery of scrap metal or the dismantling of motor vehicles.

Under the proposed amendments to the exemptions from environmental permitting which the Department put out for consultation last year, and using best available information, it is estimated that about one third of scrap metal sites which are currently exempt might need to apply for an environmental permit. No decisions have yet been taken on the outcome of the consultation process, and until the exemption thresholds are finalised, it is not possible to determine precisely how many scrap metal sites would require an environmental permit and associated planning approval in the future. Any additional costs incurred by such sites would vary, depending on the particular circumstances of each site.

Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Environment Agency takes to inspect businesses engaged in scrap metal (a) recovery and (b) treatment for compliance with the requirements of the Environmental Permitting (England and Wales) Regulations 2007; what steps it takes to prosecute businesses which do not comply with the regulations; and what its budget for such enforcement activity for 2008-09 is. [257396]

Jane Kennedy: The Environment Agency's inspection regime for those scrap metal sites which require an environmental permit is determined by an Operator Pollution Risk Appraisal (OPRA), which assesses the environmental risks and hazards posed by and associated with an activity and how well they are being managed. Those scrap metal sites which qualify for an exemption from the need for an environmental permit are inspected on an annual basis.

Between April and December 2008, 97 scrap metal and end of life vehicles sites were subject to intervention by the Environment Agency including enforcement. This included shutting 78 sites down and bringing 19 sites into compliance. Sites which represent the highest environmental risk are dealt with as a matter of priority. During 2008, the Environment Agency carried out 14 prosecutions against operators treating, keeping, or storing waste illegally or breaching permit conditions involving metals and end of life vehicles only.

The Environment Agency works in partnership with the major trade associations, police forces, Home Office, DVLA, DEFRA and BERR in tackling waste crime. The agency spends about £15 million a year tackling illegal waste activity, which includes fly tipping and illegal wastes sites. It is not possible to say how much of this spend relates to scrap metal sites.

Pigmeat

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what guidance is given under the Public Sector Food Procurement Initiative to purchasers of pork in the public sector on procurement of pork products bearing the quality standard mark; [255347]

(2) when he last reviewed Public Sector Food Procurement Initiative guidance on pork purchases. [255348]

Jane Kennedy: The Department continues to update and improve the guidance on pork purchases provided under the PSFPI. On 19 January 2009 we published and disseminated a notice alerting public sector bodies to the EU ban on sow stalls from 2013 and its implications for the procurement of pork and pig meat products. This can be viewed on the PSFPI website at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/farm/policy/sustain/procurement/awareness.htm

Work is in progress to develop a model specification for the procurement of pork and bacon which will provide additional guidance on the appropriate use of quality standards for the procurement of pork products.

Recycling: Local Government

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which 10 local authorities had the (a) highest and (b) lowest rate of (i) materials recycled, (ii) waste sent to landfill and (iii) production of energy from waste in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [254805]

Jane Kennedy: The requested information is available on DEFRA's website.

Renewable Energy: Waste

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated to compare the different processes used in the extraction of energy from waste; and if he will make a statement. [256052]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA has commissioned the following research projects which compare different processes used in the extraction of energy from waste:

Optimising inputs and outputs from anaerobic digestion processes (WR0212, carried out by the University of Southampton)

Carbon balances and energy impacts of the management of UK waste streams (WR0602, carried out by ERM)

Emissions from waste management facilities: frameworks for assessment of data quality and research needs (WR0608, carried out by ERM)

Impact of energy from waste and recycling policy on UK GHG emissions (WR0609, carried out by ERM)

The optimisation and impacts of expanding biogas production (AC0406, led by Rothamsted Research (North Wyke site) in collaboration with the University of Exeter and AEA Technology) The project has not been completed, but has produced a report entitled "The optimisation and impacts of expanding biogas production", which is published. The final report will also be published.

Of the aforementioned, two projects are complete (WR0602, WR0609); of which WR0602 has been evaluated through a peer review.

Project reports from the completed projects have been published on the DEFRA website and reports from the ongoing projects will be published in due course.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Reconstruction

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate he has made of the number of short-term projects set up in Afghanistan to aid reconstruction. [258639]

Mr. Michael Foster: The information requested could not be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

Central African Republic: Overseas Aid

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding has been provided by his Department to the Central African Republic in each of the last three years; and what funding is planned in each of the next three financial years. [255308]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Details on the Department for International Development's (DFID) bilateral expenditure and imputed share of multilateral Official Development Assistance (ODA) are contained in the DFID publication 'Statistics on International Development'. This publication is available from in the Library and online at:

www.dfid.gov.uk

Relevant figures are produced in the table.

The Central African Republic does not have an individual allocation for funding over the next three years, as it is part of a wider regional programme. Allocations are made according to needs, and it is at this stage too early to sub-divide the main allocation.

DFID expenditure in the Central African Republic, 2005-06 to 2007-08

	DFID bilateral expenditure	DFID imputed multilateral shares

Departmental Accountancy

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many staff were employed by his Department's Internal Audit Department in each financial year since 1997-98. [258017]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development's (DFID) Internal Audit Department (IAD) employed the following numbers of staff from 2004-05 onwards:

	Number
2004-05	16
2005-06	17
2006-07	18
2007-08	15
2008-09 (to date)	17

IAD also supplements its in-house resources through using external consultants to deliver or support certain internal audit assignments.

Staff numbers are not available by Department within DFID for financial years prior to 2004-05 when a new human resources database was introduced.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make it his policy for his Department to sign the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258945]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Government welcomed the Promise as a commendable initiative to raise awareness of the importance of effective data protection safeguards, particularly for those organisations with no similar commitments already in place.

The Government take data protection very seriously. Following the Cabinet Office Review of Data Handling Procedures in Government, Departments have implemented a raft of measures to improve data security.

The Ministry of Justice is considering actively with the ICO how the Promise might add additional value to those measures we have already signed up to. These include the Information Charters, the recommendations of the Data Handling Review and the Thomas/Walport Review and, of course, our legal obligations under the Data Protection Act and other legislation and regulations.

Zimbabwe: Cholera

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what reports he has received on the operation of the UNICEF programme for distribution of potable water to the cholera-affected areas of Zimbabwe. [258289]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) is working closely with UNICEF and the World Health Organisation to ensure potable water reaches those in need. Our support includes: help to establish a cholera command and control centre (to co-ordinate the response); distribution of cholera response kits; provision of potable water in affected areas; and essential medicines and other vital support to health systems.

Distribution of potable water has been arranged in three ways: by fixing infrastructure and bringing in chemicals; through drilling of local boreholes; and ultimately by trucking in daily supplies where immediate needs can only be met this way. Indications are that where such measures have been instigated they have made a significant contribution to reducing the worst effects of the cholera outbreak.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Bed-and-Breakfast Accommodation: Young People

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many children under 16 years are living in bed-and-breakfast accommodation; and what steps are being taken to reduce that number. [258158]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about English local housing authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation (part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) is collected quarterly at local authority level. Data collected include the number of households accepted by local housing authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure that suitable accommodation is available). If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority must secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

Information on the number of dependent children (and expected children) in bed-and-breakfast style temporary accommodation (i.e. bed-and-breakfast hotels and other privately managed shared facility annexes) is reported quarterly by local authorities as at the last day of each quarter. This figure includes all children under 16 years old, and dependent children aged 16 to 18. On the 30 September 2008, there were an estimated 1,570 dependent children in bed-and-breakfast style temporary accommodation.

We have taken action to tackle the worst aspects of temporary accommodation use—families with children who were placed in cramped bed-and-breakfast accommodation for long periods of time. The effect of the Homelessness (Suitability of Accommodation) (England) Order 2003, which came into force on 1 April 2004, is that local authorities are no longer able to discharge their homelessness duty to secure suitable accommodation by placing households that include children or a pregnant woman in bed-and-breakfast accommodation except as a last resort and then for no longer than six weeks.

Furthermore, in 2005, we announced a target of reducing the number of households in temporary accommodation under the homelessness legislation. Following 12 consecutive quarters of decreases, the figure had fallen to 72,130 by the end of September 2008, and around 40 per cent. of local authorities have already met the target to halve the number of households in temporary accommodation by 2010.

We have provided over £200 million of homelessness funding to local authorities and the voluntary sector, to help them carry out this work.

Community Relations: Religion

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the Local Authority Guidance on including humanists and non-religious people in local authority religion and belief equality work produced by the Community Development Foundation. [259637]

Mr. Khan: Although some of the Community Development Foundation's published resources mention non-religious groups in the cohesion or equality context, it has not produced any publication specifically on the inclusion of humanists and non-religious people in local authority religion and belief equality work.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy for her Department to sign the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258949]

Mr. Khan: The Government welcome the Promise as a commendable initiative to raise awareness of the importance of effective data protection safeguards, particularly for those organisations with no similar commitments already in place.

The Government take data protection very seriously. Following the Cabinet Office Review of Data Handling Procedures in Government, Departments have implemented a raft of measures to improve data security.

The Ministry of Justice is considering actively with the ICO how the Promise might add additional value to those measures Departments have already signed up to. These include the Information Charters, the recommendations of the Data Handling Review and the Thomas/Walport Review and, of course, our legal obligations under the Data Protection Act and other legislation and regulations.

Eco-Towns

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department has spent on (a) publicity, (b) public consultation and (c) legal costs on eco-town policy since 23 July 2007, identifying separately in each case expenditure on (i) consultants, (ii) support for non-governmental organisations and (iii) consultation materials and exhibitions. [259164]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) on 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 108W. This sets out details of spending on the eco-towns programme, including publicity, public consultation and consultant costs.

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will estimate the amount of time spent by officials in her Department on the eco-town project since the publication of the eco-town prospectus on 23 July 2007; and how many officials in her Department are currently working on the project. [259165]

Margaret Beckett: In common with the normal practice of the Department, we do not keep a record of time spent on specific policies and projects, so it is not possible to provide an estimate of official time spent on the eco-towns project since 23 July 2007. Currently nine officials are part of the eco-towns team, but there are also a number of other officials across the Department that contribute to the project, including those working in the areas of planning and climate change.

Eco-towns: Middle Quinton

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will publish the PricewaterhouseCoopers interim financial viability study of the proposed Middle Quinton eco-town. [257080]

Margaret Beckett: The viability study prepared for us by PricewaterhouseCoopers on the eco-town proposal for Middle Quinton will be published shortly, alongside studies for other eco-town proposals.

Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which organisations other than faith-based groups received grants under Round (a) one and (b) two of the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund programme; and how much each such organisation received. [259653]

Mr. Khan: The following table shows the non-faith based groups that received funding in the two rounds of the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund programme. These groups all received funding to assist them with work to build relationships with and between faith communities.

Fire Services: Medals

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what consideration her Department has given to provision of funding for the award of fire brigade long service medals; and if she will make a statement. [258824]

Mr. Khan: The Department already provides full funding for the award of Fire Brigade long service and good conduct medals through the Office of the Chief Fire and Rescue Adviser, located within Communities and Local Government.

Government Offices for the Regions: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant property recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by the Government Offices for the Regions at (a) the Belgrave Centre, (b) the Westbrook Centre, (c) Riverwalk House, (d) 2 Rivergate, (e) Mast House and (f) Paradise Circus 77 is in 2008-09. [258537]

Mr. Khan: The property business rates for vacant space for the requested buildings as recorded on e-PIMS is as follows:

Belgrave Centre	14,550
Westbrook Centre	14,985
Riverwalk House	125,509
Rivergate	25,447
Mast House	16,761
Paradise Circus	72,815

Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which banks and building societies are participating in the Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme. [258675]

Margaret Beckett: The eight largest lenders covering 70 per cent. of the mortgage market—HBOS, Nationwide, Abbey, Lloyds TSB, Northern Rock, Barclays, RBS, HSBC—have agreed in principle to support the new scheme. We are now working with a wider group of lenders to finalise the scheme implementation plans and agree the draft Master Guarantee. All lenders will be invited to sign-up to the scheme in due course. RBS have confirmed that they will actively participate in the scheme once details are finalised.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects the Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme to begin. [258676]

Margaret Beckett: We expect the Homeowners Mortgage Support Scheme to be open for business with the first lenders in April now that the Banking Act, which is the legislative vehicle we have used to enable us to do this, has gained Royal Assent. The draft Master Guarantee is currently with lenders.

Lobbying

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1697-98W, on Lord Truscott, what information was given to Lord Taylor by her Department following his request for information on Newark as a growth point and related planning cases. [259460]

Mr. Khan: Baroness Andrews wrote to Lord Taylor in July 2008, giving him a factual update on recent planning proposals and growth point funding for Newark on Trent. All the information was in the public domain. She also informed him that the Government office for the east midlands had been asked to comment on an "Environmental Impact Assessment Scoping Report" for a proposed urban extension to the south of Newark, but had declined to comment—as to have done otherwise might have been seen to have prejudiced the Secretary of State's quasi-judicial role in the event that an application is referred to her for a decision in the future.

Mortgages: Government Assistance

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homeowners are currently in receipt of assistance under the Homeowner Mortgage Protection Scheme. [256188]

Margaret Beckett: On 3 December 2008, the Prime Minister announced additional support for homeowners facing financial difficulties through a new homeowners mortgage support scheme.

It became clear that legislative change was required. This was secured on 12 February when the Banking Bill received Royal Assent.

I wrote to lenders detailing the proposed key elements of the scheme in December. This letter is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/housing/homeownersmortgagesupport

We are now working urgently with lenders and debt advisers to confirm the final design and implementation details, and to open the scheme for borrowers in spring 2009.

Ordnance Survey: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by Ordnance Survey is in 2008-09. [258536]

Mr. Khan: Ordnance Survey has had no vacant property qualifying for empty property business rates during 2008-09. Ordnance Survey has some space within one building which has been vacant since 2007, and for which it is actively seeking a tenant. £21,111.72 has been paid in unified business rates on this space during 2008-09.

Peter Housden

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to pages 22-3 of her Department's Resource Accounts 2007-08, for what reason Mr. Peter Housden receives an interest-free housing loan; and for how many years he has received such a loan from her Department and its predecessor. [259578]

Mr. Khan: The loan was provided in 2002 when Mr. Housden worked for the DFES as part of a relocation package from Nottingham to London—the loan transferred to Communities and Local Government when Mr. Housden was appointed as permanent secretary on 24 October 2005. Packages of this kind are commonplace in many major organisations and are a key part of recruiting the very best candidates. The loan is counted as taxable income and is being paid back over a 10 year period. Rules governing loans are detailed in the Civil Service Code.

Refuges: Domestic Violence

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the findings of the report by the Equality and Human Rights Commission, Map of Gaps: The Postcode Lottery of Violence Against Women Support Services, on the provision of refuges by local authorities for victims of domestic violence. [257409]

Mr. Iain Wright: We have taken note of the report and continue to recognise the important role refuges can play in helping the victims of domestic abuse. We also recognise that there is a range of support for those victims; some will be accommodated in refuges, but sanctuary schemes and mainstream local authority accommodation may be an option for others, while some victims will pursue independent solutions with help and advice from support schemes as necessary.

However it is for individual local authorities to identify any gaps in service provision and put in place appropriate solutions to address this. We would expect local authorities to build services based on the needs of their communities, taking account of locally available data sources.

The Department have recently commissioned new research that will identify the current housing options available to households at risk of domestic violence, and to assess whether this provision meets current need. It will involve establishing the extent and type of temporary and settled accommodation available for households at risk of domestic violence in England, including the provision of housing related support services delivered to both temporary and settled accommodation, and to households' own homes.

In 2003 the Government announced major investment in refuge provision in England in 2003-06. A total of £34 million capital was allocated and 511 units of accommodation were refurbished or newly built. More recently the Hostels Capital Improvement Programme (2005-07) funded six new and refurbished refuges at a cost of £4 million.

CLG provides essential revenue support for victims of domestic violence through the Supporting People Programme.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make an assessment of the (a) geographical distribution, (b) quality and (c) effectiveness of (i) refuges for victims of domestic violence and (ii) services for victims of rape in England; and if she will make a statement. [259603]

Mr. Khan: There is a range of support for survivors of domestic abuse. The homelessness legislation provides a safety net for survivors and some will be accommodated in refuges, but Sanctuary Schemes and mainstream local authority accommodation may be an option for others, while some survivors will pursue independent solutions with help and advice from support schemes as necessary.

The Department has recently commissioned new research that will identify the current housing options available to households at risk of domestic abuse, and to assess whether this provision meets current need across England. It will involve establishing the extent and type of temporary and settled accommodation (including refuges) available for households who have experienced or are at risk of domestic abuse in England, including the provision of housing related support services.

The Quality Assessment Framework (QAF) was introduced in 2003 and sets out the standards expected in the delivery of housing-related support services, including domestic abuse refuges (funded through the Supporting People programme). Its purpose is to drive up quality standards across the sector and to ensure that services evolve to meet the changing needs and aspirations of clients.

The QAF has been one of the major successes of the Supporting People programme. The majority of administering authorities continue to use the QAF today and there is also evidence that other areas across authorities, such as adult social care, are also adopting the QAF as the standard tool to measure the quality of services being delivered.

A national Supporting People Outcomes Framework was launched in summer 2007. The framework monitors the outcomes delivered by housing-related support services, including domestic abuse refuges, across England for a wide range of client groups.

The Government are rolling out sexual assault referral centres (SARCs) and independent sexual violence advisers (ISVAs) across the country to support victims of rape. There are currently 27 SARCs and distribution is recorded by the Home Office. The Home Secretary has made a commitment to have one in each police force area by 2011. A method of assessing quality and effectiveness is currently being developed by the Department of Health. There are currently 36 ISVAs and there is a Government commitment to ensure all victims have access to an ISVA by 2011. Distribution of ISVAs is recorded by the Home Office and quality and effectiveness is currently assessed by regional Government offices.

Central Government do not collect information in respect of voluntary sector services for victims of rape.

Sheffield House: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant property recorded on the e-PIMS database of (a) Sheffield House, (b) Hempstead House and (c) the Community Development Foundation is in 2008-09. [258538]

Mr. Khan: The cost in business rates of the 1st floor Sheffield house being vacant during 2008-09 was £17,209.50. The estimated cost of business rates for the ground floor of Hempstead house being vacant was £14,823.

The Community Development Foundation property referred to is not vacant.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what date he plans to inform Parliament of the findings and implications of his Department's periodic review of Afghanistan strategy for 2008; and what form he expects this presentation to take. [256065]

David Miliband: Officials are preparing to publish shortly a paper outlining progress made in Afghanistan to date and the challenges we face going forward on the basis of the stocktake completed in December 2008. Parliament will be informed as soon the paper is ready. A copy will be placed in the Library of the House.

Bosnia and Herzegovina: Diplomatic Service

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his EU counterparts on the appointment of a new High Representative in Bosnia-Herzegovina. [253960]

David Miliband: This issue was discussed at the 26 January 2009 and 23 February 2009 at the General Affairs and External Relations Council in Brussels. Officials have also discussed the appointment with Peace Implementation Council partners.

The international community needs to find a credible successor to Miroslav Lajcak who can continue to assist Bosnia and Herzegovina in moving away from ethnic divisions towards a better future for all its citizens.

China: Family Planning

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions his Department has had with the government of China on trends in China's population since July 2008; and if he will make a statement. [259013]

Caroline Flint: No discussions have taken place between the UK and the Chinese government on trends in China's population since July 2008.

Conflict Resolution

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on which dates the Prime Minister's Special Representative on Conflict Resolution Mechanisms has visited (a) the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and (b) 10 Downing Street; and what the purpose was of each visit. [256829]

Bill Rammell: [holding answer 12 February 2009]: The right hon. Jack McConnell MSP, the Prime Minister's Special Representative on Conflict Resolution Mechanisms is based in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. He met officials from the European Council, European Commission and the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation on 9-10 December 2008 in Brussels and from the UN on 15-16 December 2008 in New York. Mr McConnell also met EU officials on 2-3 February 2009 in Bosnia. He plans to meet officials from the African Union shortly.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Armed Conflict

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions his Department has had with the government of (a) the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) and (b) Rwanda regarding the joint military operation involving their two countries in the East of the DRC; and if he will make a statement. [255053]

Gillian Merron: British officials have met senior representatives of the governments of the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) and Rwanda recently to discuss the ongoing military operations in eastern DRC. We have made clear our support for improved co-operation between the governments, and urged greater involvement by the UN in planning military action to ensure civilian protection is in place and human rights are upheld. The presence of the Democratic Liberation Forces of Rwanda (FDLR) militia is one of the fundamental causes of the instability in DRC. We welcome the commitment of the governments of DRC and Rwanda to addressing this.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to help strengthen the MONUC force in the Democratic Republic of Congo. [257352]

Caroline Flint: We fully support UN efforts to strengthen its peacekeeping Mission to the Democratic Republic of Congo (MONUC). The UK was a co-sponsor of UN Security Council Resolution 1843, which allowed MONUC's strength to be increased by over 3,000.

Since the adoption of that Resolution, we have lobbied potential troop contributing countries and led calls for the reinforcement to take place as soon as possible. The UK has identified ways in which it could lend support to MONUC, including through secondment of a small number of appropriately skilled individuals to fill key vacant posts on the MONUC staff, including the post of Deputy Force Commander.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) letters and (b) e-mails received by his Department had not been responded to as at 15 December 2008. [244705]

Caroline Flint: Only correspondence received by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Ministerial Support Unit (MSU) is logged centrally. To ask every department or overseas post within the FCO how many letters and e-mails had not been responded to by a particular date would incur a disproportionate cost.

MSU records are maintained on a rolling basis so it is not possible to identify how many pieces of correspondence had not been responded to as of 15 December 2008. Furthermore, we do not differentiate between types of correspondence so are unable to break down our response into the number of letters or e-mails we receive. However, I can confirm that, in-line with Cabinet Office guidance, of the 10,334 letters received from hon. Members in 2008, 87 per cent. were answered within 20 working days and of the 73,048 letters received from members of the public, 91 per cent. were answered within 20 working days.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how long on average it took his Department to send a substantive response to correspondence from members of the public in the latest period for which figures are available. [255589]

Caroline Flint: Only correspondence received by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) ministerial support unit (MSU) is logged centrally. To ask every Department or overseas post within the FCO how long on average it takes to issue a substantive response to correspondence from members of the public would incur a disproportionate cost.

MSU records do not allow us to identify the average length of time taken to substantively reply to correspondence from members of the public. However, I can confirm that of the 73,048 letters received from members of the public, 91 per cent. were answered within 20 working days.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many members of staff are employed to deal with requests under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in his Department. [255498]

Caroline Flint: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has 10 staff in its information rights team who are responsible for managing freedom of information and subject access requests under the Freedom of Information and Data Protection Acts respectively. However, a large number of staff in the FCO play a role in answering freedom of information requests and to find out exactly how many would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much has been spent on (a) departmental Christmas parties and (b) staff entertainment in the last three years. [243736]

Gillian Merron: This information is not held centrally, and to provide it would incur a disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pensions

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to advise staff of pension options available to them in relation to added years or additional voluntary contributions. [253273]

Caroline Flint: Our aim is that members of the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme receive an annual benefit statement showing the pension built up to date, and also a projection of their pension on retirement if they continue in service to scheme pension age. The benefit statement prompts the member to consider boosting their pension and provides details of the civil service pensions website where staff can obtain further information, including options for making additional voluntary contributions and a calculator to work out costs for added pension (previously added years).

For technical reasons 2009 will be the first year we issue benefits statements to all scheme members.

New entrants are informed of pension options in the employment offer and are provided with a pension information pack.

Departmental Public Appointments

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which of the public appointments for which his Department is responsible are due to be (a) renewed and (b) filled in the next 24 months; what the (i) remit, (ii) salary, (iii) political restriction, (iv) eligibility requirement and (v) timetable for each appointment is; and what records his Department keeps in respect of such appointments. [254239]

Caroline Flint: Information on the public appointments for which the Department is responsible is published on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/en/about-the-fco/what-we-do/building-strong-relationships-ol/stakeholder-groups/non-dept-public-bodies/

Vacancies may be advertised on the Cabinet Office Public Appointments website at:

www.publicappointments.gov.uk

The process for making a public appointment, including guidance on political activity and eligibility criteria, follows the Cabinet Office publication "Making and Managing Public Appointments". For appointments regulated by the Commissioner for Public Appointments, the appointments process also complies with the "Code of Practice for Ministerial Appointments to Public Bodies". Copies are in the Libraries of the House.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 23 June 2008, Official Report, column 75W, on departmental public expenditure, what his Department's forecast (a) net euro and (b) net US dollar exposure for the financial years (i) 2007-08 and (ii) 2008-09 was; and what revisions were made to those forecasts in light of foreign exchange movements. [243846]

David Miliband: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) forecasted net euro and net US dollar exposure as follows:

(i) The FCO's net euro and US dollar exposure in 2007-08 was:

(a) Euro: €274 million

(b) US dollar: $917 million.

During this year all foreign currency requirements were met through making separate "spot" deals for each individual invoice, subscription payment or funds transfer to cover running costs at overseas posts. Variations from budget estimates caused by exchange rate fluctuations were compensated by the Treasury's Overseas Price Movements mechanism, and no central forecast of foreign currency requirements was made.

(ii) The forecast net euro and US dollar exposure for 2008-09 was:

(a) Euro: €180 million

(b) US dollars: $767 million.

This comprised our commitments for subscriptions to international organisations and UN peacekeeping missions and overseas posts' estimates of the sums required for their running and other costs given at the beginning of the financial year.

Following approval from HM Treasury to forward purchase this exposure, contracts were placed with the Bank of England for the period July 2008 to March 2009. We agreed these would be limited to 80 per cent. of the total, in recognition of the possibilities that estimates might not be completely accurate, and/or that due to the weakness of sterling, the full amounts might not be affordable.

In total, the following amounts were forward purchased for the period July 2008 to March 2009:

(a) Euro: €102 million

(b) US dollars: $559 million.

In the light of exchange rate movements, the budgets for 2008-09 needed to be revised as follows:

(a) HM Treasury were asked for an additional £5 million towards International Subscriptions.

(b) We identified that across all currencies a further £90 million would be needed by budget holders from within the FCO's own resources in order to maintain the purchasing power for overseas posts and pay additional peacekeeping costs.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment has been made of foreign exchange movements on subscriptions to international organisations paid through his Department's budget. [243941]

David Miliband: The information requested is as follows:

(b) Subscriptions to each international organisation in 2009-10

The projected costs for 2009-10 are around £146 millions but are uncertain. In negotiating with international organisations as they set their budgets for 2009-10, the FCO will endeavour to limit budget increases to zero real growth. The fall in the value of the Sterling will have an impact on subscriptions paid in US Dollars and Euros. The FCO shares the burden of exchange rate movements on international subscriptions with the Treasury under the arrangement whereby HM Treasury funds 60 per cent. of any increase above a baseline of £102 million. Our foreign currency forward purchase contracts do include an element for our international subscription costs intended to help offset any further falls in the value of the Sterling.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the total cost to his Department was of subscriptions to international organisations in 2007-08; what the cost was with regard to each international institution; and what the total cost is projected to be in 2008-09. [243942]

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the effect on its budget and activities in 2009-10 of the Treasury's decision to withdraw support for the overseas price mechanism. [258208]

David Miliband: We continue to operate the Overseas Price Mechanism internally to maintain the purchasing power of our overseas posts' local budgets. The decline in the value of the sterling created a potential funding pressure of £60 million in the 2008-09 financial year (as of December 2008). At current exchange rates we expect an additional pressure of up to £30 million to continue our activities at current levels in 2009-10. This does not include the pressure on international subscriptions and peacekeeping. The impact of this shortfall has been minimised through delayed activity, by making additional efficiency savings, and implementing a strategy of forward purchasing of foreign exchange.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the Cultural Audit commissioned by his Department. [258207]

David Miliband: A copy of the Cultural Audit will be placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what use (a) his Department and (b) service providers under contract to his Department made of (i) 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers and (ii) revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; for which services such numbers are used; what prefixes are used for revenue-sharing numbers; how much revenue has accrued from revenue-sharing numbers in each of the last five years; what consideration his Department has given to introducing 03-prefixed telephone numbers for calls to all such services; and if he will make a statement. [247342]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has a Travel Advice line (0845 850 28290). The line offers an alternative method for accessing the same travel advice available on the FCO website. In the last six months, 2,642,989 people accessed FCO Travel Advice from the website, 52,251 used the Travel Advice phone line. Calls are charged at the standard rate from a British Telecom line (up to 5p/m) and the FCO receives no financial benefit from the arrangement. We are committed to providing the best possible service to British nationals seeking advice on living and travelling abroad and as part of this ongoing process the introduction of an 03 number will be considered as part of this year's Review of Consular Services.

UKVisas became part of the UK Border Agency International on 1 April 2008. Until that time, UKVisas was part of the FCO. UKVisas did maintain a live 0870 public inquiry line, but this service is not now operational and is unlikely to be used in the future.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the Answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1794W, what the (a) duration and (b) cost was of the training he received; and which organisations supplied the training. [245793]

Caroline Flint: Since June 2007, £6,700 has been spent on training for my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary on the presentation of foreign policy issues, and £85 on IT training.

Diplomatic Service

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many embassy and consular staff of each grade work in posts in (a) Germany, (b) France, (c) Russia, (d) China, (e) India, (f) Brazil and (g) the US. [255374]

Gillian Merron: The total number of UK civil servants currently serving at posts in these countries are as follows:

	Number
Germany	34
France	45
Russia	68
China	157
India	129
Brazil	29
United States	149

We are unable, for data protection reasons, to break the figures down by grade.

European Parliament

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many times he has visited the European Parliament on official business in the last 12 months. [259538]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has visited the EU Parliament on official business once in the last 12 months, on 8 October 2008.

Falkland Islands: Air Routes

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the economic effect on the Falkland Islands of recent increases in the cost of fares on the Falkland Islands airbridge; and if he will make a statement. [257811]

Caroline Flint: The South Atlantic Air-bridge contributes to the social and economic development of the South Atlantic Overseas Territories through providing a link to Britain and the outside world, contributing to tourism, the movement of freight, and facilitating business opportunities. The Ministry of Defence has not raised the cost of fares on the South Atlantic Air-bridge since August 2008, which was in response to the global increase in the price of oil.

Gaza: Diplomatic Service

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of reports from UNRWA Commissioner-General Karen Abu-Zayd that Israel has stopped UN staff based in Gaza from using the diplomatic pouch; and if he will make a statement. [244763]

Bill Rammell: The UN Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) informs us that it has suspended the diplomatic bag in and out of Gaza since mid-November 2008 after incidents in early November when officials carrying the bag were turned back from Gaza. UNRWA is following up with the Israeli authorities and has not requested our assistance.

Group of Twenty: London Summit

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many unique visitors the website www.londonsummit.gov.uk has received. [258931]

Caroline Flint: The London Summit website received 74,922 unique visitors between 29 January 2009, the day the site went live, and 23 February 2009, the day before this response was prepared.

Guantanamo Bay: Detainees

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what dates the US authorities acceded to his request to return Guantanamo Bay detainee Mr. Binyam Mohamed to the UK; and what form the communication of this decision took. [256380]

David Miliband: Over the last 18 months we have worked long and hard to secure Mr. Binyam Mohamed's release from Guantanamo Bay and return to the UK. After Military Commission charges against Mr. Mohamed were dropped in October 2008, we held a series of positive discussions with the US on the principle of his return.

President Obama's Executive Order of 22 January 2009 required a case-by-case assessment of all those detained at Guantanamo Bay. The new US Administration agreed to our request that Mr. Mohamed's case should be treated as a priority in this process. We concluded a written transfer arrangement for Mr. Mohamed's release and return on 20 February 2009, leading to his return to the UK on 23 February 2009.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what date Mr. Binyam Mohamed is expected to return to the UK. [256448]

David Miliband: Mr. Binyam Mohamed returned to the UK on 23 February 2009 following his release from Guantanamo Bay.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the policy of the Government is in respect of the cases of (a) Shaker Aamer, (b) Ahmed Belbacha and (c) Farhi Saeed bin Mohammed currently detained at Guantanamo Bay. [259026]

Bill Rammell: In order to support efforts to close the Guantanamo Bay detention facility, the UK has sought the release and return of five individuals who had been legally resident in the UK prior to their detention.

As a result of our representations, Mr. Abdennour Sameur, Mr. Jamil el Banna, Mr. Omar Deghayes and Mr. Binyam Mohamed have been returned to the UK.

The US have so far declined to agree Mr. Shaker Aamer's return but we have made clear that our request for his release and return stands, should their position change.

We are not seeking the release and return to the UK of Mr. Ahmed Belbacha, who we do not believe was here lawfully, or Mr. Farhi Saeed bin Mohammed, who we have no record of being in the UK.

Hezbollah and Hamas

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what official contacts there have been in the last four weeks between the Government and (a) Hezbollah and (b) Hamas. [254721]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 9 February 2009]: On 9 January 2009, our ambassador in Beirut attended a meeting of British parliamentarians with the Lebanese Foreign Affairs Committee. Representatives of all main political parties in Lebanon were present, including one MP from Hezbollah's political wing. During this meeting, our ambassador stressed the importance of all sides respecting the terms of UN Security Council Resolution 1701 which established the terms of the cessation of hostilities between Israel and Hezbollah in August 2006.

We do not believe it is productive to talk to Hamas directly. The Arab League has mandated Egypt to communicate with Hamas. We are in regular contact with both the Arab League and Egypt. Turkey, Syria, Qatar and others are also speaking to Hamas. The UK strongly supports intra-Palestinian reconciliation behind President Abbas which is the key for peace, stability and development.

Homecoming Scotland

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support his Department (a) has given and (b) plans to give to the Homecoming Scotland 2009 initiative. [257762]

Gillian Merron: Following a request from my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Scotland (Mr. Murphy), the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has taken the following steps:

Details of the initiative were published automatically on all FCO English language post websites (approx 150 countries).

We asked Scotland's 10 priority-country FCO websites to create a 'feature box' on their homepage. An example is on http://ukincanada.fco.gov.uk/en

Further website publicity for this initiative will be provided during the course of the year.

Iran: Baha'i Faith

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the arrest and charge of seven members of the Baha'i leadership in Iran on 11 February 2009; and if he will make a statement. [258481]

Caroline Flint: We have received several worrying reports confirming that the seven leading members of the Iranian Baha'i community have been charged with spying for Israel, "insulting religious sanctities" and "propaganda against the Islamic Republic" – charges which could carry the death penalty. We are concerned about the conditions under which they are being detained and that they have been systematically refused access to their lawyer. Reports suggest that the seven individuals are due to face trial in the coming weeks.

We are monitoring the situation closely and have called for Iran to allow independent observation of the judicial proceedings and to reconsider the charges brought against these individuals.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the Iranian authorities to allow independent observers to be present at any trial of the seven members of the Baha'i leadership in Iran charged on 11 February 2009. [258482]

Caroline Flint: We have called repeatedly for the Iranian government to release the seven leading members of the Iranian Baha'i community. Having been held for so long without due process, we are concerned that they may not receive a fair trial now that they have been formally charged.

My hon. Friend, the Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Bill Rammell, issued a statement on 16 February 2009, which was backed by an EU statement on 17 February 2009, expressing our concern and calling for the Iranian government to ensure that their trial is fair and to allow independent observation of the judicial proceedings. The statement may be found at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/en/newsroom/

We urge Iran to respect and protect its religious minorities and free all prisoners held due to their faith or religious practice.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which members of the pre-March 2003 Iraqi government have been detained by coalition forces or the Iraqi government since that time; for what period each was detained; whether each is still detained; and when charges were brought against each such detainee. [257964]

Isle of Man: EU Grants and Loans

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what funding the Isle of Man has received from the European Union in each of the last five years. [244050]

Caroline Flint: Neither the Foreign and Commonwealth Office nor the Ministry of Justice, the UK Department responsible for the UK's relationship with the Crown Dependencies, has knowledge of any funding received by the Isle of Man from the European Union in the last five years.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what occasions he has condemned (a) suicide and (b) other terrorist attacks in Israel; if he will place in the Library a copy of each such statement; and if he will make a statement. [242696]

Bill Rammell: We have consistently made clear that rocket attacks directed against Israeli civilians are utterly unacceptable. We led the work on UN Security Council Resolution 1860 which "condemns all violence and hostilities directed at civilians and all acts of terrorism".

This has been our longstanding policy and over the last year we issued statements addressing both rocket attacks and suicide attacks.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said on 2 March 2008 "I condemn the rocket attacks against Israel", and on 4 February 2009 "I utterly condemn this morning's suicide attack in Dimona".

Further statements can be found on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website.

http://www.fco.gov.uk/en/newsroom/latest-news/statements/

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of whether any of the weaponry or component parts thereof being used by the Israeli Defence Forces in Gaza has been manufactured in the UK or exported by a UK-registered company. [247806]

Bill Rammell: As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said in his statement to the House on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 21:

"No arms exports are granted where there is a clear risk that those arms could be used for internal repression or external aggression, and that is surveyed very closely. Also, we have no evidence of any of the exports that he has pointed to being used in this operation." [Official Report, 12 January 2009; vol. 486, c.29.]

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the oral statement of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 21-38, on Gaza, what consideration he has given to referring the allegations made on the conduct of both sides to the International Criminal Court. [247882]

Bill Rammell: As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary told the House on 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 504:

"allegations must be closely and speedily investigated. Obviously, the three key parties to that investigation are the United Nations, the International Committee of the Red Cross and the Government of Israel, and we are in touch with all of them." [Official Report, 19 January 2009; vol. 486, c.504.]

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the report of the Strategic Foresight Group on the Cost of Conflict in the Middle East. [257510]

Bill Rammell: The report of the Strategic Foresight Group on the Cost of Conflict in the Middle East highlights many of the negative consequences of the conflict. The Government share these concerns and continue to believe that a just and lasting peace is in the interests of all parties. We will continue to work to achieve such a peace.

Overseas Trade: Prices

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions his Department had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on support for the overseas price mechanism before the decision to withdraw support was taken. [256962]

David Miliband: There were extensive discussions between the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and HM Treasury at Ministerial and official level in the lead-up to the announcement of the Comprehensive Spending Review. They naturally covered the overseas price mechanism among other issues.

Sri Lanka: EU Action

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the outcome was of the Prime Minister's discussion with his EU counterparts on proposals to call for a ceasefire in Sri Lanka. [259006]

Caroline Flint: I refer my right hon. Friend to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 29 January 2009, Official Report, column 739W. In a statement of 23 February 2009, EU Foreign Ministers called for an immediate ceasefire. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary issued a joint statement with the US Secretary of State on 3 February 2009, calling for a temporary no-fire period. Copies of both statements will be placed in the Library of the House.

The UK remains committed to working with the Government of Sri Lanka and international partners to secure a lasting solution to the conflict in Sri Lanka.

Torture

Sir Malcolm Rifkind: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what factors his Department takes into account when making decisions on requests formally to espouse a legal claim of torture. [253314]

Caroline Flint: Where the Government consider that another Government is responsible under international law for an injury to a UK national, it may in certain circumstances take over and formally espouse a claim against that Government. Before that stage is reached the claimants should have made all possible effort to secure settlement of the claim through local or other legal remedies, if such remedies exist.

Any individual request would be considered on a case by case basis. On receipt of such a request, the Government would consider what factors may be relevant at that time.

Uganda: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in peace talks with the Lords Resistance Army (LRA) in Northern Uganda, including talks with those who have recently defected from the LRA. [257351]

Caroline Flint: The Juba peace talks between the Government of Uganda and the Lords Resistance Army (LRA) resulted in a negotiated Final Peace Agreement (FPA) initialled and agreed by the Government of Uganda and LRA negotiating teams. The agreement was originally due for signature in early April 2008 by President Museveni of Uganda and Joseph Kony, the leader of the LRA, in Juba, Southern Sudan. Mr. Kony refused to attend the signing ceremony on that occasion and failed to honour further commitments to sign the agreement at a later date. The Government of Uganda in co-operation with the Governments of the Democratic Republic of Congo and Southern Sudan subsequently initiated military action against the LRA on 14 December 2008.

The FPA includes provision for reconciliation and the reintegration into Ugandan society of LRA defectors. The Government of Uganda has publicly stated that it is committed to honouring those commitments even in the absence of a signed FPA.

USA: Russia

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications for the Government's foreign policy of changes in US foreign policy towards Russia. [258696]

Caroline Flint: The Government welcome the Obama Administration's readiness to make progress with Russia on non-proliferation and disarmament and other issues of importance, including Iran, security in Afghanistan and international economic reform.

The US Administration's approach of engaging with Russia on key issues of mutual interest mirrors that of the UK. The Government will be working closely with the US Administration in this area.

Wang Bingzhang

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on (a) the detention of Dr Wang Bingzhang by the Chinese authorities and (b) the physical condition of Dr Wang Bingzhang; what representations he has made to his Chinese counterpart on the matter; and if he will make a statement. [258642]

Caroline Flint: We have received reports that Dr. Wang Bingzhang is being held in Shaoguan Prison in Guangdong Province. There have been serious concerns about his health, and he is known to have gone on hunger strike in 2006. There are also reports that he has been punished for perceived bad behaviour.

Wang's case was last raised on an EU-China case list in October 2005.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects to answer Question 242200, tabled on 5 December 2008, on Georgia. [258146]

David Miliband: This question was answered on 12 February 2009, Official Report, column 2202W. The delay in answering was due to administrative error.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects to answer Question 246281, tabled on 17 December 2008, on the reorganisation of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. [258212]

David Miliband: This question was answered on 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 373W. I apologise for the delay in replying.

Zimbabwe: Human Rights

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the human rights situation in Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [258563]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 25 February 2009]: We continue to have serious concerns about the human rights situation in Zimbabwe, not least the on-going detention of political prisoners, credible reports of torture in custody and continuing suppression of peaceful protests.

The international community has agreed clear conditions for substantive re-engagement with Zimbabwe, including respect for human rights and the rule of law.

Initial indications of the new Government's commitment to respect for human rights and the rule of law include the release of political detainees. We will continue to monitor the situation on the ground closely.

Zimbabwe: Political Prisoners

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of political prisoners detained in Zimbabwe. [257817]

David Miliband: We understand there are roughly 30 to 40 political detainees in Zimbabwe. As I said in my press release of 11 February 2009, the release of all political detainees, and the rule of law more broadly, will be one of the conditions for sustained development support for the new Government.

JUSTICE

Anti-Semitism: Children

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) males and (b) females have been (i) prosecuted and (ii) convicted of verbally abusing Jewish children travelling to and from school in the last year for which figures are available. [259058]

Maria Eagle: Data held centrally by the Ministry of Justice on court proceedings do not include information about the circumstances behind each case beyond the description provided in the statute under which prosecutions are brought.

Civil Servants: Pay

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many bonus payments were made to (a) senior civil servants and (b) other staff in the (i) HM Courts Service, (ii) HM Prison Service, (iii) National Offender Management Service and (iv) Youth Justice Board in the last 12 months. [257744]

Mr. Straw: The information requested is as follows:

(i) HM Courts Service

Across the MoJ, end year non-consolidated performance payments are paid to high performing members of the senior civil service (SCS) to reflect their individual contribution during the previous performance year. During the last 12 months, 35 members of the SCS in HMCS were paid non-consolidated performance pay for performance during the 2007-08 performance year.

Payments of non-consolidated performance pay to staff below the SCS may be either "end of year" payments or "in year" payments.

"End of year" payments of non-consolidated performance pay are made as part of the annual pay award to staff who have performed at a level beyond that which would normally be expected throughout the performance year. 1,676 staff in HMCS (including Ministry of Justice HQ and the Tribunals Service) received end of year non-consolidated performance payments in the last 12 months. Payments were made in August 2008 at the time of the implementation of the 2008 pay award for performance during the 2007-08 performance year.

"In year" payments of non-consolidated performance pay are one-off payments to staff who have made an exceptional contribution on specific occasions. It is not possible to provide details of these payments made to staff in HMCS in the last 12 months, as distinct from those working in other parts of the Ministry of Justice, other than at a disproportionate cost. However, during the financial year 2007-08, 5,327 staff in HMCS (including MoJ HQ and the Tribunals Service) received "in year" non-consolidated performance pay.

(ii) HM Prison Service

Since 1 April 2008 Her Majesty's Prison Service and the National Probation Service have been part of the National Offender Management Service.

Details of the number of awards of non-consolidated performance pay to staff in HM Prison Service is available for the calendar year 2008. This is the most up-to-date data available without incurring disproportionate cost. During 2008, 29 members of the SCS received non-consolidated performance pay. In grades below the SCS 6,587 staff received non-consolidated performance pay during this period.

In the National Probation Service during the last 12 months, payments of non-consolidated performance pay were made to the chief executives of the six Probation Trusts. These exceptional payments were made to recognise work involved from April 2007 to April 2008 in preparation for trust status.

(iii) National Offender Management Service

The National Offender Management Service was established as an agency on 1 April 2008. The NOMS agency consists of HM Prison Service and the National Probation Service. The information contained in (ii) above covers both parts of the NOMS Agency.

(iv) Youth Justice Board

In the 12 months to the 31st January 2009, the Youth Justice Board paid one member of the SCS non-consolidated performance pay. Thirty-five members of staff received "in year" non-consolidated performance pay. Twenty-one members of staff received "end of year" non-consolidated performance pay.

Coroners and Justice Bill 2008-09

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps his Department will take if the Sentencing Council for England and Wales advises that there are insufficient resources to allow for the full implementation of an aspect of legislation, as provided for under the terms of clause 110 of the Coroners and Justice Bill, following the enactment of subsequent legislation. [257281]

Maria Eagle: The provisions in the Coroners and Justice Bill propose that a sentencing council will have a duty to monitor the impact of sentencing guidelines and to make assessments of the impact of Government proposals referred to it by the Lord Chancellor on prison, probation and youth justice services.

The proposed duties of the council in clauses 110 and 114 of the Bill are to make an assessment of the impact of guidelines or legislation, not to advise whether it is affordable. While it is proposed that the council will provide the Government with impact assessments it also proposed that it will remain the case that the Government alone are responsible for the way in which money voted by Parliament is spent and for making arrangements for the commencement of legislative provisions.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he plans to undertake a privacy impact assessment of the provisions on information sharing orders contained in the Coroners and Justice Bill. [258385]

Mr. Straw: The proposed information sharing clauses in the Coroners and Justice Bill would provide the power to make information sharing orders, providing certain conditions are met. The power in the Bill does not, in itself, allow personal information to be shared. Therefore, we do not plan to carry out a privacy impact assessment on the proposals in the Bill; rather such assessments will be a mandatory requirement for all orders proposed under the power in the Bill.

Crime: Economic Situation

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he has any plans to provide additional resources to (a) the police, (b) the courts, (c) the probation service and (d) prisons as a consequence of any changes to the level of crime during 2010 and 2011 resulting from the recession. [258568]

Maria Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor's reply on 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 1166W. There are no plans to increase the Department's budget, which was agreed in the comprehensive spending review 2007. Forecasts of demand for services have been taken into account when agreeing allocations to business groups for 2009-10, and there are no plans to provide additional resources for this year. Forecasts of demand will again be taken into account when agreeing financial allocations to departmental business groups for 2010-11, but these have not yet been agreed. The Department has set up a Performance and Efficiency programme to deliver ways of working more efficiently in order to deliver our objectives from within existing budgets. Police funding is the responsibility of the Home Office and not the Ministry of Justice.

Crime: Victims

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent steps his Department has taken to improve the services provided to victims of crime. [258855]

Maria Eagle: The Government have a comprehensive strategy to help victims of crime access appropriate services. We recently appointed a victims champion who will listen to the views of victims and the community and make recommendations on how to improve the system.

Since introducing a statutory code of practice for victims of crime which established minimum rights for victims, we continue to embed best practice across the CJS agencies. This includes working with local criminal justice boards to ensure they have comprehensive victim and witness strategies that make a difference on the ground.

We recognise the importance of working with third-sector organisations to deliver direct services for victims. We recently provided additional funding for the national organisation Victim Support to introduce an improved business process, so that victims can be contacted more quickly, have their needs assessed and offered a wider range of practical services than was previously available.

The Government have invested further resources into specialist services for victims. This includes sexual assault referral centres, independent domestic violence and sexual violence advisors and national and local specialist third-sector organisations. We have also made legal changes that will impact on certain victims: for example we ratified the Council of Europe Convention on Action Against the Trafficking in Human Beings creating minimum protection rights.

The recently published Youth Crime Action Plan sets out how we will improve support for young victims of crime. The plan has been developed jointly between the OCJR, Ministry of Justice, the Department for Children Schools and Families and the Home Office.

The Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority's major reform programme completely overhauled the case working processes. This included the introduction of geographically based teams; a new in-house telephone support service and the development of a new case working model placing greater emphasis on applicant support and focussing resources at the front end of the case working process.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in each year since the Department's inception; how much has been spent on wallpaper in that time; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248803]

Maria Eagle: The total expenditure for the provision of maintenance, decoration and additional costs to the Ministry of Justice HQ estate for period May 2007 to November 2008 is £4,099,439. There are no current plans for future spend on departmental decoration for the next two years on the HQ estate.

Departmental Furniture

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many items of furniture (a) were purchased and (b) remained in use following the refurbishment of 102 Petty France. [252834]

Mr. Straw: Phase 1 of the London Accommodation Programme (LAP) rationalised a number of MOJ buildings:

Selborne House (1,209 staff)

Abbey Orchard Street (353 staff)[1]

Steel House (221 staff)

together with a further six London locations, affecting an additional 330 staff. This has resulted in 2,113 staff moving into the refurbished 102 Petty France.

[1] Abbey Orchard Street was released fully furnished to Legal Services Commission

The original design capacity of the refurbished 102 Petty France was for 2,275 desks. Through the introduction of flexible workspace arrangements—moving from a 1:1 to an 80 per cent. average desk allocation and utilising 1600mm workstations—by August 2009, 102 Petty France will be able to accommodate approximately 3,300 staff. This will enable MoJ to reduce further the number of buildings it occupies. The projected savings from this estate rationalisation are approximately £10 million per year.

An early review of existing furniture in the affected offices identified three broad categories:

suitable for re-use within 102 Petty France; suitable for re-use within MoJ and other Government departments; furniture at the end of life and/or requiring refurbishment.

Damaged or unsuitable furniture has been disposed of via Greenworks—a not-for-profit enterprise—who will refurbish and distribute to charities, schools or small businesses.

This "cascade" policy has resulted in a zero landfill outcome. The units are summarised in the following table:

Furniture group	Purchased	Re-used	Greenworks
Workstations	1,955	665	656
Task Chairs	1,955	925	720
Meeting rooms	732	328	360
Pedestals	0	334	308
Business Storage	1,200	481	327
Miscellaneous	522	147	199
Total	6,364	2,880	2,570

Departmental Plants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department spent on cut flowers in each of the last three years. [256175]

Maria Eagle: The purchase of cut flowers has now ceased across the estate. Upon retender of the FM contract, the provision of cut flowers was seen as an area for immediate cost reduction and duly ceased in August 2008.

The total expenditure for the cut flowers across the Ministry of Justice HQ estate (formerly Department of Constitutional Affairs) between fiscal years 2006 to 2009 is shown in the following table:

2006-07	13,685.15
2007-08	13,304.73
2008-09	6,113.55

Government Departments: Privacy

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 871W, on Government Departments: privacy, how many privacy impact assessments for Government projects have been commissioned. [258662]

Mr. Straw: No central records are kept of the number of privacy impact assessments (PIAs) commissioned by Government Departments. The Data Handling Review mandated that all Government Departments carry out PIAs on new policies affecting privacy; there is no obligation to report these to MoJ.

Judges: Public Appointments

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) black persons, (b) Asian persons, (c) women and (d) men were appointed as judges in 2008. [256677]

Mr. Straw: There were 309 salaried judges and fee-paid judges appointed to courts and tribunals in England and Wales in 2008. Of these, 117 (37.8 per cent.) were women and 192 (62.1 per cent.) were men. We do not hold the ethnic breakdown in the form requested, but 28 (9 per cent.) appointees described their ethnicity as other than white, with 17 (5.5 per cent.) appointees not responding.

Offenders: Housing

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what period (a) hon. Members and (b) members of the public will have to make representations to agents acting for the National Offender Management Serviceprior to any purchase of property for subsequent use as housing under accommodation and support services for bail and home detention curfew provision. [259843]

Mr. Hanson: It is my practice to write to the appropriate hon. Member when this service is made available in his or her constituency. Planning permission is not required and there is no formal period for representations. For the most part the houses used for this service are leased, not purchased, by the contractor. The houses are the private rented homes of those living in them and it is not appropriate to consult local residents or the wider public. People bailed by the courts or released from prison return to live in the community without hon. Members or the public having any input as to where they may reside. It would be inappropriate and inequitable to identify as defendants or offenders those living at an address rented through ClearSprings when others on bail and home detention curfew living at private addresses are not subject to such identification. The contractor does consult the police, local authority and probation about the location of properties and they are provided with the opportunity to provide comments.

Hon. Members may write to the contractor at any time and I am always ready to consider representations from hon. Members before or after houses for this service are established in a constituency. The National Offender Management Service, regional offender managers and directors of offender management determine where the contractor is asked to source property. The requirement is defined in terms of towns and boroughs, not by constituency.

Members of the public are of course free to write at any time to the contractor, to the Ministry of Justice or to myself.

Offenders: Rehabilitation

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what percentage of offenders on the end of custody licence schemes have not completed their rehabilitation while in prison. [257638]

Mr. Straw: Rehabilitation may be a long and complex process and it is not always possible to determine when it is complete. Rehabilitation may continue to be provided on release from prison; this may be in the form of supervision by Probation Services according to sentence length, and/or assistance with accommodation, employment, resettlement, programmes, treatment or other support. This is risk and needs-assessed on an individual basis and in accordance with the sentence plan.

In custody, of the prisoners who participated in offending behaviour programmes in 2007-08, 0.03 per cent. failed to complete due to release and during the same period 5 per cent. of prisoners failed to complete drug treatment programmes due to release. The percentage of these who were released on ECL cannot be disaggregated without disproportionate cost as each prisoner record would have to be checked individually.

Prisoners required to undertake a treatment programme as a condition of their supervision licence are excluded from release on ECL unless arrangements can be made for the programme to be followed in the community.

Political Parties: Finance

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will review the regulations relating to donating to political parties in order to encourage smaller donations from a wider number of individuals. [259035]

Mr. Wills: There are no such plans. The Government believe it is for political parties to decide how to conduct their fundraising activities within the legislative framework. One potential option to change the legislative framework would be to introduce a cap on the level of permissible donations, and an associated increase in the amount of public funding available to parties. This option was put to the major political parties following the review conducted by Sir Hayden Phillips in 2007. However, the inter-party talks that followed that review did not result in agreement to proceed with the wider package of reforms that Sir Hayden recommended to the party funding legislation.

The Government's White Paper, "Party finance and expenditure in the United Kingdom" (CM7329) considered the issues of donation caps and public funding in considerable detail. The Government believe that any arrangements for increased public funding and associated cap on donations would need to be considered carefully as part of a wider public debate. There would need to be clear support from both the public and political parties before such steps could be taken. It is not clear that such a broad consensus of support currently exists. However, the Government stands ready to continue that debate.

Prisoners Release: Reoffenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many mandatory life sentence prisoners released on licence in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available have reoffended, broken down by offences committed. [258190]

Mr. Hanson: The only centrally held data on prisoners who reoffend while on licence are in respect of those offenders who are recalled to prison for reoffending. This information is available only from 2003 onwards.

Our records show that for the period from 1 January 2003 until 17 February 2009, there were 758 releases recorded of mandatory life sentenced prisoners, of which 48 (6.3 per cent.) were recalled and subsequently found guilty of a further offence or offences.

In addition, we have recorded a further 17 who were released prior to 2003, were recalled over the same period and subsequently found guilty of a further offence or offences.

This gives a total of 65 mandatory life licences recalled and convicted for further offences from 1 January 2003 to 17 February 2009.

The offences committed while on licence are listed as follows in order of recall.

Probation Officers: Manpower

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of trainee probation officers who qualified in 2008 and thereafter applied to join the Probation Service have not subsequently been employed by the Probation Service; and for what reason each was not employed. [258674]

Mr. Hanson: Of the 472 who qualified in 2008, 436 were offered employment as probation officers. Of the ones not offered employment: two left the service of their own volition; 18 were employed as PSOs (pending PO vacancies); three were unsuccessful at the internal interview for employment and 11 were deemed appointable but not offered employment because there were insufficient PO or PSO posts available.

Tobacco: Counterfeit Manufacturing

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent assessment he has made of the adequacy of guidelines on sentencing for offences relating to the smuggling and supply of illegal and counterfeit tobacco. [256865]

Maria Eagle: I understand that the independent Sentencing Guidelines Council will issue a draft guideline on fraud for consultation shortly. This is expected to cover the offence of fraudulent evasion or attempt at evasion of any duty chargeable on goods, including tobacco. The Government will respond in due course.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Theatres: Young People

9. Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress has been made in implementing his Department's scheme to provide young people with greater access to theatres; and if he will make a statement. [259235]

16. Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress his Department has made in its scheme offering young people access to theatre. [259243]

Barbara Follett: Arts Council England officially launched A Night Less Ordinary on 10 February. The scheme will provide approximately 618,000 free theatre tickets to under 26-year-olds over a two year period. Over 200 venues are involved in the scheme. My Department is supporting this initiative, which will help theatres fill their seats while building the audience of the future.

UK Film Industry

10. Mr. Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the recent performance of the UK film industry. [259236]

Barbara Follett: The United Kingdom's film industry is, I am glad to say, performing very well indeed, box office take was £100 million in January and the three most successful releases last year were British made.

In addition, British films have had unprecedented success in this year's awards season and I would like to congratulate all the British winners at the Oscars, the Baftas and the golden globes—especially Danny Boyle and all those involved with "Slumdog Millionaire"; and Kate Winslet. A mention also to Simon Chinn who got best documentary feature for "Man on Wire" (which received substantial funding from the UK film council).

But, that said, film production fell in the UK during 2008 but we are working closely with the UK film council to ensure better results in 2009.

Free Swimming Schemes

11. Mr. Plaskitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many local authorities are planning to take part in both the under 16-year-old and over 60-year-old free swimming initiatives. [259237]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Of the 354 eligible local authorities, 208 are planning to take part in both the under 16-year-old and over 60-year-old elements of the Government's Free Swimming Programme.

Cricket

13. David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions he has had with the England and Wales Cricket Board on the future of cricket in this country; and if he will make a statement. [259239]

Andy Burnham: I regularly meet the England and Wales Cricket Board to discuss current issues and the future of the sport in this country.

The increased popularity of cricket in England and Wales combined with the strength of the domestic and international game will ensure that cricket in this country has a strong future.

Sport: Young People

14. Liz Blackman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many young people participated in regular sport (a) in 1997 and (b) in the latest period for which figures are available. [259240]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The percentage of pupils aged five to 16 that have participated in at least two hours of high quality PE and school sport a week has increased from 62 per cent. to 90 per cent. between 2003-04 and 2007-08. Comparable data are not available prior to 2003-04.

Audio Description

15. Alun Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has to publicise the availability of audio description via a single button on set-top boxes in advance of the digital switchover in south Wales. [259241]

Andy Burnham: Information about the benefits of audio description and easy-to-use remote controls is contained in material that is sent to all people eligible for the Help Scheme.

Horse Racing

19. Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent assessment he has made of the effect of the current economic downturn on the future of horse racing; and if he will make a statement. [259246]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government recognise the important contribution of horse racing to national and local economies and my Department is working closely with the British Horseracing Association and others to monitor the impact of the economic downturn on the industry.

It is too early to make any assessment of economic trends in relation to horse racing, but we will continue to monitor the situation as we will do for other sectors for which my Department is responsible.

Publishing

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the likely effect of the recommendations contained in the interim "Digital Britain" report on the publishing industry; and if he will make a statement. [259238]

Andy Burnham: The Government recognise the importance of a vibrant publishing sector which contributes not only to the cultural and educational needs of our society but also with a turnover in excess of £18 billion, makes a significant contribution to the economy. It is a core part of the creative industries sector and a significant export earner.

The importance of publishing is reflected in the objectives laid out in the interim report of the Digital Britain initiative.

Gloucester City AFC

Mr. Dhanda: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will visit Gloucester City AFC to discuss the relocation of its ground. [259244]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have no plans to visit Gloucester City Football Club however I commend my hon. Friend for his continued efforts on behalf of the club and for his recent success in securing an adjournment debate on this subject.

The Department is aware of this issue and I understand Gloucester City Football Club has been working with the Football Association, Gloucester city council and county council to find a permanent home ground for the club.

Understandably there is a desire for a site to be found in the Gloucester area, not least to preserve local support, so I strongly advise the club to continue its discussions with the city and county councils as they are in the best position to assist in arriving at a positive outcome.

Local Television News

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his policy is on the future provision of local television news; and if he will make a statement. [259245]

Andy Burnham: Ofcom is creating more opportunities for local TV in the UK by releasing geographically targeted interleaved spectrum for auction. Ofcom has also commissioned analysis of the economic sustainability of different types of local television services. It will be important in considering local TV services to do so in the context of a sustainable local media ecology, also including print, radio, the internet and other relevant media.

Arts: Government Assistance

Hilary Armstrong: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress has been made towards meeting each of the objectives of the creative economy programme. [258503]

Andy Burnham: Working with our partners in other Government Departments and public and private sector organisations, DCMS' Creative Economy Programme has made good progress on realising the ambitions of Creative Britain in the year since publication. Covering talent, supporting creative business and clusters, Intellectual Property and innovation, the 26 commitments in Creative Britain seek to increase the contribution of the 13 creative sectors to the UK economy. Of the 26 commitments, 18 are now either well under way or completed.

I am arranging for copies of a document providing a specific update on each of the 26 commitments to be deposited in the Libraries of both Houses.

Hilary Armstrong: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what financial support his Department is making available to small and medium-sized enterprises in the creative industries which are in difficulties during the economic slowdown. [258504]

Andy Burnham: The Government are providing real help now to small and medium based enterprises which are in difficulties during the economic slowdown, including those within the creative industries.

Information on the support and advice available to all small and medium based enterprises can be accessed via the portal on the Business Link website:

www.businesslink.gov.uk/realhelp

http://www.businesslink.gov.uk/realhelp

Support available includes free health checks for businesses, help with accessing finance, and advice on a range of business issues, including cash flow and training.

Much of the real help on offer is part of solutions for business - the Government's streamlined portfolio of publicly-funded business support products and services, delivered via Business Link, which provides comprehensive assistance to help companies start, grow and succeed.

In February 2008 the Government published "Creative Britain: New Talents for the New Economy" which set out 26 commitments to support the creative industries. One of the commitments of Creative Britain has been to look at how Business Link works with the creative industries. It will also produce a framework for evaluation of future work with creative industries, allowing individual business links to monitor their performance which should lead to an improvement of the support given to creative industries businesses by business links. This report will be completed by the end of April.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make it his policy for his Department to sign the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258946]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government welcomed the promise as a commendable initiative to raise awareness of the importance of effective data protection safeguards, particularly for those organisations with no similar commitments already in place.

The Government take data protection very seriously. Following the Cabinet Office Review of Data Handling Procedures in Government, Departments have implemented a raft of measures to improve data security.

The Ministry of Justice is considering actively with the Information Commissioner's Office how the promise might add additional value to those measures we have already signed up to. These include the information charters, the recommendations of the data handling review and the Thomas/Walport Review and, of course, our legal obligations under the Data Protection Act 1998 and other legislation and regulations.

Departmental Regulation

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his latest estimate is of the cost to UK businesses of regulation within the responsibility of his Department. [258983]

Andy Burnham: The current estimate of the administrative burden of regulation which is the responsibility of DCMS, as measured by the Standard Cost Model, is £187.5 million. This figure represents a reduction of 45 per cent. against the baseline of legislation in place in May 2005. Further information on these costs and action to make further savings can be found in the Department's latest simplification plan, published in December 2008:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/images/publications/Simplification_Plan_2008.pdf

Digital Broadcasting

Mr. Charles Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent estimate he has made of the overlap between the 2 per cent. of households that cannot receive digital satellite services and the estimated 1.5 per cent. who will not have to be provided with a digital terrestrial signal after switchover; and if he will make a statement. [258455]

Andy Burnham: There has been no formal assessment of this overlap. However, research to estimate digital satellite coverage was carried out by Ofcom's predecessor, the Independent Television Commission, in 1999.

This research arrived at the 98 per cent. coverage figure which found that the main contributory factor which resulted in 2 per cent. of households being unable to receive any satellite signals was man-made obstructions in built-up areas. For terrestrial transmission, the opposite situation to satellite applies, with transmitters located so as to serve population centres. The locations not covered by these transmitters are largely in remote, sparsely populated areas. This means that the overlap between the 2 per cent. for satellite and 1.5 per cent. for terrestrial digital TV should be very small.

Digital Broadcasting: Disadvantaged

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what research his Department has undertaken into the UK digital divide since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [257078]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have been asked to reply.

Since 2001 the Government have commissioned a number of research reports on the UK digital divide through various UK Government Departments.

A copy of the full list will be placed in the Library.

Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by his Department is in 2008-09. [258528]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department has one vacant property, Oceanic House, recorded on the e-PIMS database. This has been vacant throughout 2008-09. Oceanic House is a listed building and is exempt from business rates while it is empty.

Gambling Commission: Pay

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the Gambling Commission spent on bonuses for its staff in each of the last three years. [258509]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Gambling Commission have advised that the following amounts have been paid to Gambling Commission employees in bonuses in each of the last three years. Bonus payments relate to performance in the period from 1 October to 30 September each year and are paid in November of that year.

Financial year	£
2006-07	[1]56,071
2007-08	94,360
2008-09	97,433

[1] The bonus payments in 2006-07 relate to the year preceding September 2006 when the Gambling Commission was still recruiting its full complement of staff.

Heathrow Airport: Tourism

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the implications of the Government's proposals to develop Heathrow Airport on tourism to the UK. [259242]

Barbara Follett: No specific assessment has been carried out. However, the response from the tourism travel sector to the decision by the Department for Transport to approve the development of a third runway for Heathrow airport has been broadly positive.

Olympic Games 2012: Finance

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the £1,650,000 transferred to his Department from the Department for International Development in respect of projects connected to the London 2012 Olympics will be spent on. [258098]

Andy Burnham: The transfer of £1.65 million from the Department for International Development formed part of the DFID funding commitment for the International Inspiration programme.

The International Inspiration programme has received the formal backing of the International Olympic Committee and funding commitments were announced in November 2008.

Recreation: Coastal Areas

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much public open space there is in (a) each principal seaside town and (b) each (i) ward and (ii) lower layer super output area in each seaside town. [257460]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not held centrally.

Swimming Pools

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many public swimming pools have closed in each of the last five years. [259279]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England have advised they collect data on the number of public swimming pool openings and closures in England. Sport England did not keep figures on public swimming pool closures prior to 2004 and figures for 2008 are still being compiled. The number of public swimming pool openings and closures for which figures are available is as follows:

	Pools opened	Pools closed
2005	93	60
2006	87	58
2007	57	33

TRANSPORT

Apprentices

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the answer of 4 June 2008, Official Report, column 930W, on apprentices, what progress his Department has made towards meeting its share of the Government's commitment to employ over 1,000 apprentices in central Government departments and agencies in 2008-09; and how many apprentices his Department now employs. [256258]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, my hon. Friend the Member for Portsmouth North (Sarah McCarthy-Fry) on Tuesday 24 February, Official Report, column 740-41W.

The Driver Vehicle Licensing Agency have since registered a further 91 modern apprenticeships giving a Department for Transport total of 175 apprenticeships for the period 2008-09.

Aviation

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of his meetings with (a) BAA on 15 October 2008, (b) British Airways on 20 October 2008 and (c) Virgin on 23 October 2008; and if he will make a statement; [259113]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of his officials' meetings with (a) BAA on 26 August 2008, (b) BAA on 3 September 2008, (c) BAA on 18 September 2008, (d) BAA on 3 October 2008, (e) the Confederation of British Industry on 23 October 2008, (f) BAA on 6 November 2008, (g) the Airport Operators Association on 7 November 2008, (h) BAA on 14 November 2008 and (i) BAA on 24 November 2008; and if he will make a statement; [259114]

(3) if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of his predecessor's meetings with (a) BAA on 23 July 2008 and (b) BAA on 4 September 2008; and if he will make a statement. [259115]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 26 February 2009]: It is not the normal practice of the Government to release details of meetings with private individuals or companies.

Bus Services: Concessions

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of (a) elderly and (b) disabled people in England affected by the withdrawal of (i) companion passes for those accompanying (A) deafblind and (B) other disabled people and (ii) peak travel entitlement since the introduction of the national concessionary bus fares scheme. [258265]

Paul Clark: The Government do not hold figures for the number of authorities offering companion passes and peak travel entitlement as they are not part of the statutory minimum entitlement. Consequently the Government also do not hold figures for the number of elderly and disabled people affected by the withdrawal of such concessions by local authorities.

Companion passes and peak travel entitlement are offered to eligible concessionaires at the discretion of individual local authorities based on their judgment of local needs and circumstances and their overall financial priorities. The introduction of the national concessionary travel scheme has not affected the flexibility of local authorities to offer such discretionary concessions.

Conwy Valley Railway Line

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the standard of maintenance of the Conwy Valley Line against the Route Availability 07 standards provided for by Network Rail. [258837]

Paul Clark: This is an operational matter for Network Rail as the owner and operator of the national rail network. The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to her question:

Iain Coucher,
Chief Executive,
Network Rail,
Kings Place,
90 York Way,
London, N1 9AG.

Departmental Leave

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 1384W, on departmental leave, why four out of the seven bargaining units in his Department do not grant disability leave to staff; and what assessment has been made of the compatibility of this practice with his Department's disability equality duties. [258197]

Mr. Hoon: Those bargaining units without a specific disability leave policy always give consideration to staff requests for time off for disability related medical appointments and rehabilitation. This is done on a case by case basis. Provision is also available to line managers to permit absence during working hours for rehabilitation, assessment or treatment.

Consideration is also given to making reasonable adjustments for staff with a disability such as reduced hours or change of working patterns where appropriate to enable them to attend the workplace in line with the Disability Discrimination Act 1995.

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many staff in his Department or its predecessors were on sick leave for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years. [256335]

Mr. Hoon: The numbers of Department for Transport staff on sick leave within the above parameters are:

Number

Working days	2005	2006	2007	2008
(a) over 30 days	527	574	592	614
(b) over 50 days	480	585	613	528
(c) over 100 days	313	328	390	274

Note:
Figures for 2004 were incomplete and have not been included.

The Department is committed to managing sick absence effectively and continues to look at initiatives to help reduce absence levels. The process includes clear guidance for managers to follow, early intervention by Occupational Health and conducting return to work interviews with staff. The Department is part of a Government-wide network that meets to discuss issues around attendance management and share best practice.

Heathrow Airport: Air Pollution

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on what date his Department's air quality technical group delivered its air quality modelling on the project for sustainable development of Heathrow for review and internal clearance within his Department; and on what date internal clearance was granted. [259633]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 27 February 2009]: Emerging results of air quality modelling were delivered over a period of time and reported to the Department's Heathrow Project Board. It was already clear by July 2007 that the air quality limits were likely to be met in the third runway scenarios. Final results, including for the mixed mode scenarios, were reflected in successive drafts of the consultation document reviewed by the board up to its conclusion in October 2007.

High Speed Two

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the company High Speed Two was incorporated; what type of company it is; when its (a) memorandum of association and (b) articles of association were drawn up; and what provisions of company law govern its operation. [258967]

Paul Clark: High Speed Two (HS2) Limited was incorporated on 14 January 2009. It is a private company limited by guarantee and its operation is governed by the normal provisions of company law set out in the Companies Acts. Copies of the Memorandum of Association and Articles of Association have been placed in the Library of the House.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the statement of 15 January 2009, Official Report, columns 359-60, on transport infrastructure, what further steps he has taken to establish High Speed Two; and which individuals he (a) has approached and (b) plans to approach to seek their involvement in the company. [259404]

Paul Clark [holding answer 27 February 2009]: Britain's transport infrastructure: High Speed Two, published in January 2009, stated that High Speed Two (HS2) Ltd. would draw on resources from Network Rail and the Department for Transport. The process for recruitment of these resources is a matter for the company.

Limousines

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many stretch limousines the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency has registered in each year since 1997. [259347]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Although the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency records details of vehicles being registered it does not have available a statistical breakdown of the numbers of stretch limousines being registered.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many stretch limousines have been registered following import from the United States in each year since 1997. [259348]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Although the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency records details of vehicles being registered it does not have available a statistical breakdown of the numbers of stretch limousines being registered following import from the United States.

M1: Bedfordshire

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has for the scheme to widen the M1 between junctions 10 and 13; and if he will make a statement. [258306][1]

Paul Clark: In January 2009 the Department for Transport published "Britain's Transport Infrastructure, Motorways and Major Trunk Roads" which summarises the results of assessments of hard shoulder (HSR) running as an alternative to widening on a number of sections of the motorway network including the M1 between junctions 10 and 13. This document is available in the Libraries of the House.

This work has concluded that hard shoulder running can deliver improvements more quickly than motorway widening, provides a better value for money solution and gives benefits in terms of safety and reliability. Additional capacity can be delivered at a lower cost than a more conventional road widening scheme with fewer environmental impacts. We have successfully and safely giving us confidence that we can do the same elsewhere on the network.

In the light of these findings, the January document confirmed that we plan to commence works on the implementation of hard shoulder running on the M1 between junctions 10 and 13 in the next financial year. The Highways Agency will be providing more detailed information on the scheme in spring 2009.

Railways: Finance

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much funding the Government has provided to the rail industry in each of the last 12 years. [259590]

Paul Clark: Details of historic Government spending on the railway is published annually by the Office Of Rail Regulation in their publication, National Rail Trends. Copies are available in the Library of the House or online at:

www.rail-reg.gov.uk

Rescue Services: Hope Cove

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what arrangements the Maritime and Coastguard Agency has made to provide rescue services in the operating area previously covered by the Hope Cove lifeboat; what plans he has to make payments to the Royal National Lifeboat Institution for the provision of such services; and if he will make a statement: [259340]

(2) what provisions will be made before 10am and after 6pm during spring and summer months to provide rescue services in the operating area previously covered by the Hope Cove lifeboat; and whether he plans to upgrade the services provided by the Bantham rubber duck boat. [259341][1]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A consultation about the search and rescue provision for the southern part of the south-west peninsula is being prepared.

Until that process is complete the Maritime and Coastguard Agency's boat at Hope Cove will be able to operate under necessary safety restrictions from 1 April 2009 until 31 October 2009.

The Royal National Lifeboat Institution (RNLI) has recently indicated a willingness to provide a beach life-guarding service specifically at Hope Cove, in addition to maintaining the existing provision at the nearby Bantham beach.

Provision and funding of beach safety services is generally a matter for the local authority.

The Department does not recognise the relevance of the acronym RIVU in this context.

Rolling Stock

Mr. Charles Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the new rail rolling stock recently announced by his Department will be suitable for use on routes north of Edinburgh which are served by the East Coast Main Line franchise. [258442]

Paul Clark: It is intended that Bi-Mode Super Express trains will operate north of Edinburgh to Glasgow, Aberdeen and Inverness.

Transport: Merseyside

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps are being taken to increase the co-ordination of activity between the Highways Agency and (a) the Mersey Partnership, (b) Merseytravel and (c) local authorities in order to deliver greater integration and cost-efficiency. [259478]

1. [Official Report, 12 March 2009, Vol. 489, c. 12MC.]

Paul Clark: The Highways Agency is working closely with its partners in Merseyside, including The Mersey Partnership, Merseytravel, and the five local authorities, to produce a Multi Area Agreement. This will deliver efficiency savings and better integrate the respective transport networks within Merseyside. Sharing technologies will be a key area, as well as collaboration on schemes in the Regional Funding Allocation.

Vehicle Number Plates

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the (a) remit and (b) timetable is for the informal consultation on regulations to legalise the display of national flags on number plates; and if he will make a statement. [258853]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency issued an informal consultation to 28 interested stakeholders on Wednesday 28 January and asked for comments to be received by Monday 2 March 2009. The consultation outlined the proposal to amend regulations to allow the display of national flags on number plates in Great Britain while excluding Northern Ireland at this time. All consultees were invited to express views on any aspect of the proposal.

OLYMPICS

Legacy: South-west

4. Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what assessment she has made of the legacy effects of the London 2012 Olympics on the south-west. [259259]

Tessa Jowell: The south-west stands to gain from the wide range of opportunities created by the London 2012 games.

The National Sailing Academy at Weymouth and Portland will host the Olympic and Paralympic sailing events in 2012. In terms of legacy it is already providing a state-of-the-art facility for elite training, competition and local community use.

We are also seeing progress in other areas—40 businesses registered in the south west have already won work with the ODA; there are also 61 facilities from the area included in the official London 2012 Pre-Games Training Camp Guide.

Apprenticeships and Training

5. Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many (a) apprenticeships and (b) training opportunities the Olympic Delivery Authority plans to make available on the Olympic park. [259260]

Tessa Jowell: The Prime Minister announced last month that 250 additional apprenticeships would be created on the Olympic Park and Village. This is in addition to the existing commitment for 2,000 trainee, apprenticeships and work placements over the life of the project (of which 100 will be apprenticeships).

This increase will be achieved partly by requiring companies bidding for new contracts worth a total of £500 million to provide apprentices as 3 per cent. of their workforce—three times the south east regional average for the industry—to win them.

This demonstrates the extent to which Government remain committed to retaining jobs and skills in important industries, and our continued investment in training and skills so important for the future of the UK.

Ticketing Policy

6. Jo Swinson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what ticketing policy has been established for the London 2012 Olympic games; and if she will make a statement. [259261]

Tessa Jowell: The London Organising Committee is responsible for the ticketing strategy for the London 2012 games. A plan is currently being developed and information about tickets will be made public in 2010. Tickets will go on sale in 2011.

Training Facilities: Scotland

7. Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what progress has been made on the provision of training facilities in Scotland for athletes in the London 2012 Olympics; and if she will make a statement. [259262]

Tessa Jowell: Scotland has 30 designated training facilities in the London 2012 pre-games training camp guide all offering Olympic sports training, 11 of which can host Paralympic sports.

Scotland has recently appointed a training camps co-ordinator for the 2012 games to promote Scotland's sporting offer to National Olympic Committees and National Paralympic Committees competing in London 2012.

Legacy: Equestrian Sports

8. Mr. Gray: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what plans she has for a legacy for equestrian sports from the London 2012 Olympics. [259263]

Tessa Jowell: The equestrian events at Greenwich will promote the sport to a new inner city audience, raising its profile both nationally and internationally.

The London Organising Committee also hope to relocate equipment from the competition around the UK.

Using the inspiration of the 2012 games the British Equestrian Federation launched the Hoof programme in December 2007, which aims to increase participation and awareness in equestrianism.

CLM Delivery Partners

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much was paid to CLM Delivery Partners in each of the last three years. [258343]

Tessa Jowell: Payments made by the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) to its Delivery Partner CLM are published in the ODA annual report. For the last two years the figures were as follows:

	£ million
2006-07	18.1
2007-08	87.6

The ODA has contracted CLM to undertake the procurement delivery and programme management of the venues, infrastructure, logistics facilities and other developments in the Olympic Park and selected non-Olympic Park venues. It also undertakes an overall programme reporting role.

Payments are linked to delivery performance against time, cost and quality. The level of payments reflects the fact that, with CLM's help, delivery of the ODA programme is currently on time and within budget.

Figures for 2008-09 will be published in the annual report this summer.

Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what steps she has taken to hold discussions with local authorities on how their areas can benefit from the London 2012 Olympics. [244176]

Tessa Jowell: I meet regularly with the Chair of the Local Government Association (LGA) and my officials work closely with the LGA. In December I addressed the LGA conference on the Olympics. I regularly attend meetings with the London Councils and meet the five London host borough representatives and on regional visits I meet with local authorities. For example, I visited Norwich in December 2008 and Doncaster in January 2009.

There are also a number of London 2012 schemes that I actively encourage local authorities to get involved in, for example:

The latest round of the Beacon scheme has had an Olympic legacy theme included in it to encourage communities to be more active in promoting best practice on London 2012 themes. I will be announcing the winners at the awards ceremony on the 3 March.

The Inspire Mark was launched in June 2008 to promote non-commercial projects and programmes inspired by the Olympic and Paralympic games. The Mark has already been awarded to seven local authority projects.

I have met with leaders and chief executives of nine London boroughs over the last 12 months to discuss their plans for 2012.

The Local Government Association is represented on the Nations and Regions Group which was set up to ensure that the benefits from London 2012 are UK-wide.

Further to these discussions local authorities are engaged with the Nations and Regions Group, which was set up to ensure that the benefits from London 2012 are UK-wide.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Anti-Terrorism Control Orders

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the cost of (a) the independent reviewer pursuant to section 14 (3) of the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005, (b) the control order review group, (c) the permanent team dedicated to control orders, (d) the special advocates, (e) supervision arrangements made under control orders and (f) the legal proceedings relating to oversight of the control order regime in the last 12 months. [258364]

Mr. Coaker: In the last 12 months—1 February 2008 to 31 January 2009—expenditure on control orders under the requested headings has been as follows:

(a) £7,650 on the independent reviewer of the operation of the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005, the Lord Carlile of Berriew, pursuant to section 14(3) of the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005;

(c) £681,543 on the permanent team dedicated to control orders in the Home Office. This figure includes pay, allowances, pension and national insurance contributions;

(d) £249,727 on the Special Advocates. This figure relates to charges made by the Special Advocate Support Office for their time and disbursements relating to control orders; and

(f) £2,157,230 on the legal proceedings relating to the judicial scrutiny and oversight of all control order cases.

The cost of providing a figure for the cost of supervision arrangements made under control orders and the cost of the quarterly Control Order Review Group (CORG) could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Asylum: Finance

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average length of time an asylum seeker remained on (a) section 4 and (b) section 95 support was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [255869]

Jacqui Smith: The way that the UK Border Agency records data on support under section 95 and section 4 of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999 does not enable the collation of the average length of time individuals spend on either of these forms of support without an examination of individual case records at disproportionate cost.

Asylum: HIV Infection

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to ensure that mechanisms for returning failed asylum seekers to their countries, with particular reference to the facilities in immigration removal centres, take account of the needs of HIV-positive people. [256340]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency examines with great care each individual case before detention and removal. They take into account all individual circumstances including, where appropriate, any serious medical conditions or other compassionate circumstances. Consideration is given to fitness to travel and whether the necessary medical treatment is available in the country to which the individual is being returned.

All UK border agency immigration removal centres have a healthcare team and medical practitioner who are responsible for the care of the physical and mental heath of all those detained, including failed asylum seekers. Detainees who are known to be HIV positive at the point of detention or who are diagnosed as being HIV positive while in detention will receive the appropriate medical care and treatment during their detention.

Removals are then carried out in accordance with Home Office policy and guidelines, and with every care and consideration to the dignity and health of the individual. Individuals diagnosed as suffering from a particular medical condition which requires ongoing treatment, including HIV, will be accompanied by a suitable medical escort.

Crime: Prosecutions

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions there have been for each criminal offence created by legislation since 1997. [254502]

Maria Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

There is no central system that routinely records the number of prosecutions for new offences created across Whitehall. To obtain the requested information, an investigation will be necessary in order to separately identify and list data for all new offences.

This information is being collated and I will write to the hon. Member as soon as it is available. A copy will be placed in the House Library.

Crime: Statistics

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what offences are included in the other miscellaneous offences category in Table 2 in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin 01/09, Crime in England and Wales: Quarterly Update to September 2008. [253045]

Jacqui Smith: The offences included within 'other miscellaneous offences' are as follows:

Absconding from lawful custody;
Adulteration of food;
Aiding suicide;
Bail offences;
Betting, gaming and lotteries;
Bigamy;
Blackmail;
Concealment of birth;
Customs and Revenue offences;
Dangerous driving;
Disclosure, Obstruction, False or Misleading Statements etc.;
Firearms Acts offences;
Going equipped for stealing, etc.;
Health and Safety offences;
Immigration Act offences;
Kidnapping;
Knives Act 1997 offences, relating to the unlawful marketing of knives;
Libel;
Obscene publications etc.;
Other notifiable offences;

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which offences fall within the recorded crime category of less serious wounding. [253047]

Jacqui Smith: The classification "less serious wounding" ceased to exist on 1 April 2008. All offences that were previously listed under this classification have since moved to other classifications.

For example, offences of "inflicting grievous bodily harm without intent" (new code 8F, covered by section 20 of the 1861 Offences Against the Person Act) are now a contributory part of a new most serious violence against the person category.

The offences that were included in Home Office classification 8A "less serious wounding", before abolition on 1 April 2008, are as following:

Wounding or inflicting grievous bodily harm, with or without weapon.
Offences against the Person Act 1861 Sec 20.
Administering poison with intent to injure or annoy.
Offences against the Person Act 1861 Sec 24.
Drivers injuring persons by furious driving.
Offences against the Person Act 1861 Sec 35.
Assault on person preserving wreck.
Offences against the Person Act 1861 Sec 37.
Assault occasioning actual bodily harm.
Offences against the Person Act 1861 Sec 47.
Assault with intent to resist apprehension.
Offences against the Person Act 1861 Sec 38.
Owner or person in charge allowing dog to be dangerously out of control in a public place injuring any person.
Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 Sec 3(1).
Owner or person in charge allowing dog to enter a non-public place and injure any person.
Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 Sec 3(3).
Excise, infibulate, aid, abet, counsel.
Female Genital Mutilation Act 2003 Sec 1(1), 2, 3 & 5.

It is not possible to separately identify the number of offences recorded under each piece of legislation.

Drugs: Crime

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences of possession of (a) cannabis, (b) cocaine, (c) heroin, (d) ecstasy, (e) ketamine and (f) LSD have been recorded by police in each of the last 10 years. [253046]

Jacqui Smith: Recorded offences of possession of cannabis have been collected separately since 2004-05 and the figures are given in the following table. Possession of other drug types are included in the Home Office classification 'Possession of controlled drugs (excluding cannabis)' but the drug type cannot be separately identified.

Recent rises in recorded possession of cannabis offences are largely associated with the increased police use of powers to issue warnings for cannabis possession, these powers first becoming nationally available from 1 April 2004.

Possession of cannabis offences recorded by the police in England and Wales

	Number of offences
2004-05	88,263
2005-06	119,917
2006-07	130,395
2007-08	158,086

Entry Clearances: Pakistan

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many visa applicants from Pakistan have had their applications refused in each of the last three years; how many have appealed against the refusal; how many such appeals have succeeded; how many decisions have been withdrawn prior to determination of the appeal; and if she will make a statement. [254147]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested is shown in the following table:

Pakistan

	2006	2007	2008
Visas refused	70,253	83,753	78,473
Appeals received	35,777	48,667	48,130
Appeals allowed	12,316	12,161	16,644

These data are unpublished and should be treated as provisional.

We are unable to readily separate applications where a decision has been revoked following receipt of an appeal from those where a decision has been revoked following an Asylum and Immigration Tribunal determination. Human Trafficking: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what training police officers in Essex have received on human trafficking; and if she will make a statement. [254783]

Mr. Alan Campbell: All police forces in England and Wales have sent officers to the training courses devised and delivered by the United Kingdom Human Trafficking Centre (UKHTC) and this work has been reinforced by the distribution of awareness-raising material sent electronically to all police officers. The UKHTC in conjunction with the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) are also in the process of rolling out training modules on human trafficking to be included in mainstream police courses. All of this work involves an element of training specifically on the convention.

The knowledge of police officers on human trafficking has been further reinforced as part of the successful nationwide Operations Pentameter 1 and 2, the latter of which additionally involved a trial of the national referral mechanism, a central component of the convention and which will be introduced from 1 April 2009.

Identity Cards

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which groups of people she plans to allow to use a third party address on a national identity card. [251681]

Meg Hillier: The cardholder's address will not be shown on the face of an identity card and so anyone who wishes to assert their identity will be able to show their identity card without needing at the same time to reveal their address.

Under the Provisions of the Identity Cards Act, individuals applying for an identity card will need to provide the address of their place of residence. Further definition under secondary legislation will provide that people who have no fixed abode, such as homeless people, may agree a suitable place of abode to be recorded as their place of residence. Each case will depend on the individual circumstances.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how long she expects the evaluation of the identity card pilot scheme to take. [258104]

Meg Hillier: It is intended to phase in identity cards at Manchester and London City airports to employees requiring airside access from autumn 2009. The first 18 months from the start of the scheme will be treated as an evaluation period for the airside workers scheme.

Immigration: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals who were last recorded as resident in Peterborough constituency and whose application for indefinite leave to remain had not been allowed have been removed from the UK in each quarter since 1 January 2007; and if she will make a statement. [249282]

Mr. Woolas: The requested information is not stored in the format requested and could be obtained only by examination of individual case records and therefore at disproportionate cost.

National Identity Register

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 158W, on the National Identity Register: data protection, what information beyond confirming the validity of data may be provided for the purpose of prevention and detection of crime; and what additional information may be made available for that purpose. [260338]

Meg Hillier: The identity information held on the National Identity Register, as listed in section 3 and schedule 1 of the Identity Cards Act 2006, may be provided to the security and intelligence services, police and Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs and Government Departments where specified in secondary legislation for the purposes, including the prevention and detection of crime, prescribed in section 17 of the Identity Cards Act 2006.

Offensive Weapons: Crime Prevention

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many hospitals with accident and emergency departments in the 10 police force areas that make up the Tackling Knives Action Programme are sharing information with the police under the programme; and what information is being shared by them. [253978]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 4 February 2009]: As at 30 January, police forces report that 37 hospitals in the 10 Tackling Knives Action programme areas (Metropolitan, Greater Manchester, West Midlands, Merseyside, Lancashire, West Yorkshire, Nottinghamshire, South Wales, Essex, and Thames Valley) are routinely sharing anonymised information relating to victims presenting at accident and emergency departments with injuries caused by violence. One additional hospital in a second tier TKAP area (South Yorkshire, Bedfordshire and Northumbria) is also sharing information. A total of 38 hospitals.

Police: Inspections

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which organisations have a power of inspection in respect of police forces. [254848]

Jacqui Smith: The main organisations which exercise powers of inspection in police forces are:

HM Inspectorate of Constabulary;

Audit Commission (including District Audit);

Independent Police Complaints Commission;

Independent Custody Visitors.

Work Permits: Africa

Hilary Armstrong: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many work permits were issued for (a) doctors and (b) nurses from each country in Africa in each of the last 15 years. [259662]

Mr. Woolas: The following tables show the number of work permit applications approved for doctors and nurses from each country in Africa in the last nine years. Data are not available before 1 January 2000.

1. Figures are rounded to nearest 5.
2. Because of rounding, figures may not add up to totals shown.
3. The figures quoted are not provided under National Statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

Caveats:

The figures do not equate to the number of individual nationals who were granted permits because they include those applications approved to extend or amend an existing permit or where the individual has moved to another job with a different employer. Not all those who were granted a permit took up the job and some may have been refused entry clearance or further leave to remain.

Hilary Armstrong: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many work permits were issued for (a) doctors and (b) nurses from Guyana in each of the last 15 years. [259458]

HEALTH

Ambulance Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the impact of the use of the NHS Pathways system by North East Ambulance Service on those patients who required an ambulance as part of their care; [259174]

(2) what the total was of the trial of the NHS Pathways system used by the North East Ambulance Service in the last two years. [259178]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department commissioned a research evaluation of the accuracy and safety of NHS Pathways by a group of researchers from three universities. The research looked at all types of patients assessed by NHS Pathways, including those who needed an ambulance. A copy of the evaluation, "An evaluation of the accuracy and safety of NHS Pathways", has been placed in the Library. Information is not available centrally on the cost of the trial of the NHS Pathways system by North East Ambulance Service as these costs were met locally.

Blood Transfusions: CJD

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the National CJD Surveillance Unit informed his Department of evidence of infection of a patient with a bleeding disorder with vCJD transmitted by a transfusion; and if he will make a statement. [258723]

Dawn Primarolo: The information on the finding of abnormal prion protein associated with variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (vCJD) in a spleen sample taken from a haemophilia patient at post mortem, was presented to the Department by National CJD Surveillance Unit on 6 January 2009. Before the finding was made public on 17 February, it was important to find out information about the patient's possible routes of exposure to abnormal prion protein associated with vCJD. The Health Protection Agency and the UK Haemophilia Centre Doctors' Organisation worked to prepare accurate information packs and letters for haemophilia centre doctors and their patients.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the potential financial liability to the NHS arising from claims from patients with bleeding disorders infected with vCJD from NHS transfusions; and if he will make a statement. [258724]

Dawn Primarolo: No such estimate has been made. The vCJD Trust is available to pay compensation to patients with clinical variant Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (vCJD) and their families and carers. No patients with bleeding disorders have been diagnosed with clinical vCJD.

Breast Cancer: Health Services

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much on average was spent on treating a breast cancer patient by each primary care trust in each strategic health authority in each of the last five years. [259394]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the format requested. The following table shows an estimate of the gross expenditure on cancers and tumours by the national health service in England for all cancer and tumour types for the last four available financial years. This information was first collected in 2003-04 and is not available for any previous years.

The table also shows gross expenditure on breast cancer for 2006-07, the first year that those data was collected at sub-category level.

Dental Services

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of adults in (a) North Wiltshire constituency, (b) Wiltshire and (c) England received treatment from a dentist under the NHS in each of the last 10 years. [258291]

Ann Keen: Information is not available in the format requested.

The proportion of the adult population registered with a national health service dentist in England, as at 31 March, 1997 to 2006 is available in Annex B of the "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report, England: 31 March 2006". Information is provided by primary care trust (PCT) and by strategic health authority (SHA).

This information is based on the old contractual arrangements which were in place up to and including 31 March 2006. This report has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dwtactivity.

Under the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006, patients do not have to be registered with an NHS dentist to receive NHS care. The closest equivalent measure to 'registration' is the number of patients receiving NHS dental services ('patients seen') over a 24-month period. However, this is not directly comparable to the registration data for earlier years.

Information on adult patients seen in the previous 24 months as a percentage of the adult population in England is available in Table D5 Annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics, Quarter 2: 30 September 2008" report. Information is available at quarterly intervals, from 31 March 2006 to 30 September 2008 and is provided by PCT and SHA.

This report has been placed in the Library.

This information is not available by constituency.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy for his Department to sign the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258951]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government welcomed the promise as a commendable initiative to raise awareness of the importance of effective data protection safeguards, particularly for those organisations with no similar commitments already in place.

Following the Cabinet Office Review Of Data Handling Procedures in Government, Departments have implemented a raft of measures to improve data security.

The Ministry of Justice is considering actively with the Information Commissioner's Office how the promise might add additional value to those measures we have already signed up to. These include the information charters, the recommendations of the Data Handling review and the Thomas/Walport review and, of course, our legal obligations under the Data Protection Act 1998 and other legislation and regulations.

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [256147]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has in excess of 200 database information owners. The cost of undertaking an exercise to determine the cost of maintenance and management would incur disproportionate cost for the Department alone. As a consequence, a response has not been requested from its agencies.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish a copy of his Department's website accessibility plan. [257218]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department's website accessibility policy and plan is currently in development and will be published by the end of April 2009.

The Department's website complies with the World Wide Web Consortium's (W3C's) Level A guidelines for accessibility. The Government web guidelines published by the Cabinet Office-Central Office of Information require all websites operated by central Government departments to be double-A conformant by December 2009.

Our website accessibility statement is published on our website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Help/DH_062766

Departmental Private Finance Initiative

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what private finance initiative projects his Department has entered into since 1997; what the total value of each contract was; who the successful contractor was; which projects have been subject to refinancing arrangements; what the monetary value of the refinancing arrangement was in each such case; and what the extent of the clawback has been. [259550]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on the capital value and estimated revenue payments for the lifetime of each private finance contract as well as the primary contractors (equity stakeholders in the project companies) involved has been placed in the Library.

Private finance initiative schemes which have been the subject of a refinancing agreement together with details of the value and the extent of the clawback to the NHS trust in each case are shown in the following table.

Scheme	Date refinanced	Total refinancing gain (net present values £ million)	Trust's share of refinancing share (percentage)	Trust's share of refinancing gain (net present values £ million)
Calderdale and Huddersfield NHS Foundation Trust	May 2002	12.0	30	3.6
Dartford and Gravesham Hospitals NHS trust	March 2003	33.4	35	11.7
Norfolk and Norwich University Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust	December 2003	115.5	34	29.3
Bromley Hospitals NHS Trust	February 2004	45.3	31.3	14.2
Swindon and Marlborough NHS Trust	September 2006	42.2	43	18.3

Down's Syndrome: Research

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his Department's plans are for commissioning new research into the causes of Down's syndrome. [253096]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

The Medical Research Council (MRC) is one of the main agencies though which the Government support medical and clinical research. The MRC is an independent body funded by the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills.

The MRC is currently funding one research project relating to Down's syndrome. The MRC does not, as a rule, earmark funds for particular topics: research proposals in all areas compete for the funding available. The MRC always welcomes high quality applications for support into any aspect of human health and these are judged in open competition with other demands on funding. Awards are made according to their scientific quality and importance to human health.

Health Authorities: Manpower

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent by (a) NHS hospital trusts, (b) ambulance trusts and (c) primary care trusts on temporary administrative staff in each of the last five years. [259179]

Ann Keen: The expenditure in national health service hospital trusts, ambulance trusts and primary care trusts on non-NHS staff under the 'administrative and clerical' heading are shown in the following table.

	NHS Hospital Trusts	Ambulance Trusts	Primary Care Trusts
2003-04	121,801,000	7,389,000	53,980,000
2004-05	105,520,000	6,339,000	60,926,000
2005-06	105,591,000	8,366,000	72,329,000
2006-07	90,191,000	8,374,000	73,640,000
2007-08	120,556,000	10,804,000	115,109,000

Note:
These figures do not include bank staff (either organised by the organisation itself or via NHS Professionals). Figures also do not include foundation trusts. Where an NHS trust obtains foundation trust status part way through any year, the data calculated are only for the part of the year the organisation operated as an NHS trust.

Maternity Services

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many babies were born in stand-alone, midwife-led units in each of the last 10 years; [260190]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the clinical safety of stand-alone, midwife-led units; [260191]

(3) how many midwife-led maternity units there are; and how many of these units are (a) co-located with consultant-led maternity services and (d) stand-alone. [260192]

Ann Keen: Midwifery led care may take place in the home, in a freestanding midwifery facility, an alongside midwifery facility or within a hospital delivery suite. Information of birth in midwifery facilities is not collected centrally. We have commissioned the National Perinatal Epidemiology Unit (NPEU) to undertake an integrated programme of research entitled 'Birthplace', which is designed to compare outcomes of births planned at home, in different types of midwifery units, and in hospital units with obstetric services—the NPEU are expected to report at the end of the year.

We do not routinely collect details of numbers of maternity units although a one-off survey by the Healthcare Commission suggested that in March 2007, there were 382 maternity units, of which 101 were midwifery-led. We do not know how many were stand-alone and how many co-located with consultant-led units.

NHS Foundation Trusts: Land

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether NHS funding allocations to NHS foundation trust hospitals take into account the income each trust receives from land sales. [259737]

Mr. Bradshaw: Revenue allocations are made directly to primary care trusts, not NHS foundation trusts. Capital allocations from the Department require a demonstration of need, and proceeds from land sales are taken into account when agreeing the financing of a project.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS Hospital foundation trusts have sold land since their establishment; how much was sold in each case; and how much each trust received from the sale. [259739]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are informed by the chairman of Monitor (the statutory name of which is the independent regulator for NHS foundation trusts (NHS FTs) that his organisation does not receive details or maintain a register of all land disposals by NHS FTs.

If an NHS FT intends to dispose of land, Monitor will be involved if the land is defined as a protected asset—one required for the delivery of a service commissioned by a primary care trust, or if the disposal qualifies as a major investment.

NHS: Equality

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department has taken in co-operation with voluntary sector organisations on (a) developing gender-sensitive policies and (b) reducing gender inequalities in the NHS in the last five years. [259644]

Phil Hope: The Department is committed to ensuring that health and social care services promote gender equality. This is set out as a core principle in the NHS Constitution for England, which was developed in consultation with a range of voluntary sector organisations and was published on 21 January 2009.

Over the past five years the Department has continued to work in co-operation with voluntary sector organisations on gender equality, including:

convening a Gender Equality Advisory Group (GEAG), including voluntary sector organisations, to advise the Department on current health inequality trends and providing a consultative forum on outward-facing policy initiatives that impact on the NHS; issuing guidance, developed with GEAG and published in March 2007 on "Creating a Gender Equality Scheme: A practical guide for the NHS" to ensure that all NHS organisations understand their gender equality duties. A copy has already been placed in the Library. Similar guidance was published in November 2008 specifically on transgender issues: "Trans: A practical guide for the NHS" and a copy has been placed in the Library; and commissioning research into the different ways in which men and women access health services.

As we move forward, gender inequalities will be a key area for our new third sector Strategic Partner Programme where we are investing in 11 third sector organisations, including the Men's Health Forum, to develop the capability of the sector and ensure they have an informed and coherent voice influencing health and social care policy.

We are also supporting a new 'Women's health and equalities consortium' which includes six national women's organisations led by YWCA, the establishment of this consortium offers a new opportunity to ensure that the women's voluntary sector are able to inform policy and affect change particularly gender inequalities.

NHS: Finance

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much and what proportion of the budget of each London (a) health authority and (b) foundation trust is expected to be top-sliced to fund debt in (i) 2009-10, (ii) 2010-11 and (iii) 2011-12; and if he will make a statement. [258262]

Mr. Bradshaw: The boards of all 31 primary care trusts (PCTs) in London have agreed in principle to support NHS London's medium term financial strategy, to address long term deficits within some national health service organisations in London. All PCTs, with the exception of those repaying historical deficits, will be contributing on average 0.8 per cent. of their resource baseline in 2009-10 and 0.75 per cent. in 2010-11 as part of the plan.

This is in line with the 2009-10 operating framework which states that strategic health authorities (SHAs) may determine and agree arrangements locally with their PCTs for the transfer and lodging of resources with the SHA, provided this is within the overall limits of the SHA planned surplus. SHAs will be accountable for the management of this flexibility.

London NHS trusts and NHS foundation trusts will not be contributing any of their income towards NHS London's medium term financial plan.

NHS: Publications

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many complaints were received by his Department on the accuracy of its literature relating to the provision of NHS services in the latest period for which figures are available. [259172]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information that the hon. Member requires about complaints received by the Department on the accuracy of literature relating to the provision of NHS services can be compiled only at disproportionate cost.

NHS: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the NHS is recorded in Estates Return Information Collection data as spending on the reduction of backlog maintenance in each year since 2000-01. [259377]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information is not available in the precise format requested. The amount invested by national health service trusts specially to reduce backlog maintenance costs was first collected through the Estates Return Information Collection in 2001-02.

The information which is available is shown in the following table.

Total amount of investment to reduce backlog maintenance costs, by NHS trusts in England

	£ million
2001-02	296.4
2002-03	402.4
2003-04	426.1
2004-05	[1]274.9
2005-06	[1]230.0
2006-07	[1]216.7
2007-08	[1]301.2

From 2001-02 to 2003-04 the data were provided on a mandatory basis. However, since 2004-05, NHS trusts have provided the data on a non-compulsory basis, and may therefore not be complete.

Investment to reduce backlog maintenance will be prioritised locally based on risk assessment, reconfiguration planning and available resources. In addition to the investment specifically to reduce backlog maintenance in buildings which are to remain in NHS use, the major hospital building programme has replaced many existing NHS buildings that had significant levels of backlog maintenance.

The data are as provided by the NHS and have not been amended centrally. The accuracy and completeness of those data is the responsibility of the provider organisation.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much each NHS organisation in England is recorded in Estates Return Information Collection data as spending on reducing its backlog of maintenance in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08; and what organisation code was provided on each occasion that such expenditure was incurred in the period. [259378]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information has been placed in the Library.

Patients

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the proportion of discharge letters which were received by GPs (a) two, (b) three, (c) four, (d) six, (e) 10 and (f) 12 weeks after the patients were discharged from hospital in (i) Westmorland and Lonsdale, (ii) Morecambe Bay Primary Care Trust area and (iii) England. [258148]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not held centrally. The hon. Gentleman may wish to contact his local NHS organisations for further information.

Rarer Diseases

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will take steps to increase levels of diagnosis and treatment of rarer diseases. [259402]

Ann Keen: The National Commissioning Group nationally commissions highly specialised services, which is how the national health service addresses rare conditions, on behalf of the NHS in England.

The National Commissioning Group considers new bids for additions to the national commissioning portfolio on an annual basis. The following services have been added to the national portfolio effective from 1 April 2009:

Ataxia telangiectasia service for children;

Autoimmune paediatric gut syndromes service;

Gender identity development service for children and adolescents;

Chronic pulmonary aspergillosis service;

Complex Ehlers Danlos syndrome service;

Complex Neurofibromatosis type 1 service;

Encapsulating sclerosing peritonitis surgical service;

Paroxysmal nocturnal haemoglobinuria;

Deaf child and adolescent mental health outreach service; and Ventricular assist devices as bridge to heart transplant for adults and children.

The National Commissioning Group is currently considering bids to be added to the national commissioning portfolio from 2010-11. Advice will be passed to Ministers in the autumn to make decisions about any new services proposed to be nationally commissioned.

Thalidomide: Health Services

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions his Department has had with the Thalidomide Trust on health care for people affected by Thalidomide in the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [260002]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has had no discussions with the Thalidomide Trust on health care for people affected by Thalidomide.

The trust has declined a recent offer of a meeting with Department officials to discuss health and social care support for those affected by Thalidomide.

Urinary System: Diseases

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of primary care trusts which fund the use of sacral nerve stimulation as a treatment for interstitial cystitis. [257500]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not collected centrally. It is for primary care trusts (PCTs) to decide their priorities for investment locally, taking into account both local priorities and the national health service operating framework.

Funding for sacral nerve stimulation would be made from PCT revenue allocations. Revenue allocations for 2009-10 and 2010-11 were announced in December 2008 and over the two years covered by this allocation, PCTs will receive an average increase in funding of 11.3 per cent., a total increase of £8.6 billion. The Department does not break down PCT allocations by policies, at either a national or local level.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Cold Weather Payments: Waveney

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for what reasons (a) residents of Carlton Colville have received one cold weather payment and (b) residents of Lowestoft, Southwold and Pakefield have received three cold weather payments in 2009 to date. [259632]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 27 February 2009]: A cold weather payment is made to an eligible customer when the average temperature has been recorded as, or is forecast to be, 0°C or below over seven consecutive days at the weather station linked to the customer's postcode.

Lowestoft is in postcode sectors NR32 and NR33; Carlton Colville and Pakefield are both in postcode sector NR33. Postcode sectors NR32 and NR33 are linked to Norwich airport weather station. Southwold is in postcode sector IP18 which is linked to Wattisham weather station. In 2009 to date (25 February), Norwich Airport weather station has met the temperature criterion once and Wattisham weather station has met it three times.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department spent on works and refurbishment to offices allocated to Ministers in his Department's buildings in the last 12 months. [252378]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department has an estates private finance initiative (PFI) contract with Trillium for the provision of fully fitted and serviced accommodation and for which the Department pays an all inclusive unitary charge. This unitary charge includes a risk price element for all aspects of building maintenance, repair, routine decoration and refurbishment, known as Life Cycle Works. These separate elements cannot be disaggregated from the unitary charge.

Some works and refurbishments are not covered by the unitary charge and are funded separately as capital expenditure. The capital expenditure on works and refurbishment of offices allocated to Ministers in departmental buildings in the last 12 months was £4,524.

Departmental Databases

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Rochford and Southend East (James Duddridge) of 13 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1303-04W, on departmental databases, what ACORN codes were used to help identify the postcode sectors in the 50 local authorities referred to in the answer. [258661]

Jonathan Shaw: The ACORN codes that were used to help identify the postcode sectors within the 50 local authorities referred to in the answer of 13 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1303-04W, are all within category 5 of ACORN: Group N, Group O, Group P, Group Q.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's most recent (a) IT and telephony satisfaction survey and (b) staff survey. [258767]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 25 February 2009]: The most recent IT and telephony satisfaction survey has been placed in the House of Commons Library. The most recent staff survey is available on the Department's website through the following link:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/resourcecentre/corporate-publications.asp

Employment Schemes

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what (a) pilots and (b) pathfinder areas his Department (a) has set up in each of the last two years and (b) plans to set up in each of the next five years; and what the cost of each is. [244490]

Mr. McNulty: The activities of the Department for Work and Pensions cover a very wide range of programmes and services. Pilots and pathfinders are a normal part of departmental business. Details of each such pathfinder or pilot and its cost are not collated centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Employment: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what links the new specialist disability employment programme will have with (a) local health and social care services, (b) further education colleges and (c) Valuing People initiatives. [259121]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 February 2009]: The procurement specification, due to be published at the end of March, will make it clear that prime providers will need to have close links to local health and social care services, further education colleges and Valuing People initiatives. This will ensure particularly that people with mental health conditions or learning disabilities will have good access to the new specialist disability employment programme. Some specialist local services will be able to refer people directly to the new programme.

European Globalisation Fund

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 422W, on EU grants and loans, when the European Globalisation Fund was established; what payments the Government has made to the fund; which EU member states have made applications for matched funding from the fund; which of these have been approved and for what purposes; how much has been paid out from the fund to date; what criteria govern the sources of matched funds; and if he will make a statement. [257414]

Jonathan Shaw: In his answer of 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 1422W, my right hon. Friend the Minister for Employment and Welfare Reform stated that the European globalisation fund draws on the EU budget where there may be underspends or decommitted funds. This means that Governments do not make additional payments into the fund.

Finland, France, Germany, Italy, Lithuania, Malta, Portugal and Spain have had EGF applications approved, totalling €67,646,697. Germany, Portugal and Spain have further applications still to be determined, totalling €14,621,200.

All these applications are for active labour market measures, including training, to reintegrate back into the labour market workers who lost their jobs as a result of a large scale redundancy, of at least 1,000 redundancies. This forms the main criterion for use of the fund.

More detailed information is in the EGF Regulation of 20 December 2006 and the Commission Communication on the EGF in 2007—Review and Prospects—published on 2 July 2008. Both were deposited in the Library. The Commission have also placed these on the Europa website, along with advice and guidance on using the EGF.

Housing Benefit: Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) written warnings have been issued and (b) sanctions have been applied in the pilot areas for the sanction of reduction of housing benefit related to anti-social behaviour under the provisions of the Welfare Reform Act 2007. [259130]

Kitty Ussher: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer given to him on 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 89W.

Incapacity Benefit: Christmas Bonus

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many incapacity benefit claimants received the £60 Christmas bonus in 2008-09; what the cost of such bonus payments was; and what the cost of such bonus payments to incapacity benefit payment claimants was in 2007-08. [259128]

Jonathan Shaw: The answer is in the following table:

Actual (2007-08) and forecasted volumes (2008-09) Christmas bonus payments to incapacity benefit claimants

	Volume of payments (to be) made	Total cost (£ million)
2007-08	1,080,000	11
2008-09	1,174,000	80

Notes:
1. Expenditure figures have been rounded to the nearest £ million and volumes have been rounded to the nearest 1,000.
2. The total volume of payments made in 2007-08 is not available so the figure has been estimated from the total sum paid.
3. For incapacity benefit customers Christmas bonus payments are only made to those who qualify for the long term rate. Those in receipt of severe disablement allowance and combined incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance have been excluded from the estimates. Those in receipt of pension credit and disability living allowance are not included in these estimates as the Christmas bonus hierarchy makes payments to recipients of these benefits first.

The 2007-08 expenditure figure for the Christmas bonus includes the normal payment of £10. The 2008-09 expenditure estimate for the Christmas bonus includes the £10 payment and the pre-Budget report 2008 announcement of an additional one-off payment of £60 to all Christmas bonus recipients.

Jobcentre Plus

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library a copy of the report by Lesley Strathie, chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, to which he referred in his speech on 25 June 2008 at the Centre for Economic and Social Inclusion Conference. [255263]

Mr. McNulty: The Report "Review of Adviser Discretion" has been placed in the Library.

Jobcentre Plus: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many job vacancies were notified to the Jobcentre Plus branch which serves residents of the London Borough of Bexley in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008. [259510]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not available in the format requested. The available information regarding the number of vacancies notified in the London borough of Bexley is in the following table.

Number of vacancies notified in the London borough of Bexley

	Vacancies
2006	6,909
2007	7,951
2008	8,125

Notes:
1. Data are unrounded.
2. Changes to Jobcentre Plus vacancy handling procedures have led to a major discontinuity in the vacancy statistics pre- and post- May 2006. Consequently, care should be taken in interpreting time-series data.
3. These are not whole economy figures. Coverage relates just to vacancies notified to Jobcentre Plus and as such represent a market share of vacancies throughout the whole economy. This proportion varies over time, according to the occupation of the vacancy and industry of the employer, and by local area. Comprehensive estimates of all job vacancies (not just those notified to Jobcentre Plus) are available from the monthly ONS Vacancy Survey since April 2001, based on a sample of some 6,000 enterprises. However, the ONS survey is currently designed to provide national estimates only.

Jobcentre Plus: Civil Proceedings

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many times legal action has been taken against (a) Jobcentre Plus and (b) individual jobcentre staff in each Jobcentre Plus district in each month since the creation of Jobcentre Plus in 2002; and what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department of such actions. [249423]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not available below regional/national level.

Jobcentre Plus: Manpower

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what plans he has to employ additional Jobcentre Plus staff in each region in each of the next five years to enable Jobcentre Plus to cope with the additional responsibilities accorded to it under the proposals in the Welfare Reform Bill; [257816]

(2) whether Jobcentre Plus staff will be given additional training in respect of their responsibilities under the proposals in Part 2 of the Welfare Reform Bill. [258261]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions asking:

What plans he has to employ additional Jobcentre Plus staff in each region, in each of the next five years, to enable Jobcentre Plus to cope with the additional responsibilities accorded to it under the Welfare Reform Bill.

Whether Jobcentre Plus staff will be given additional training in respect of their responsibilities under Part 2 of the Welfare Reform Bill. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus is currently undertaking detailed design and implementation planning for the range of initiatives contained within the Welfare Reform Bill. These initiatives are planned to be delivered progressively over the next three to five years. The implementation planning will include the location and timing of the specific pilots and trailblazers as outlined in the Bill, and any additional training requirements.

I am unable to provide the information you require in advance of the conclusion of this detailed planning work.

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many additional Jobcentre Plus staff he expects to be employed to take account of anticipated changes in the levels of employment in each region in each of the next five years. [258128]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The information requested is not available.

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Jobcentre Plus staff were employed in each region in each of the last five years. [258130]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1980W, to the hon. Member for Cardiff, Central (Jenny Willott).

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people were referred to the New Deal for Young People before they had been on jobseeker's allowance for six months in each quarter since the programme was introduced, broken down by reason for early referral. [257193]

Mr. McNulty: Information on the reason for early referral is not available. The available information is in the table.

Department for Work and Pensions, Information Directorate

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people aged under 24 years old have claimed the New Deal allowance in each month since the New Deal for Young People was introduced. [257194]

Mr. McNulty: The available information has been placed in the Library.

Pension Credit: Holocaust Victims

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which payments made to holocaust victims are exempted from the calculations made to determine eligibility for the pension credit. [246734]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Lump sum payments made to compensate those who were slave labourers, forced labourers or suffered personal injuries or property loss during the second world war are fully disregarded when calculating entitlement to pension credit.

In addition payments made to parents whose child died during the second world war are fully disregarded when calculating entitlement to pension credit.

Pensions paid by the German or Austrian Government which are the equivalent of the British state pension are fully taken into account. However pensions paid under special provisions by the German or Austrian Government to victims of National Socialist persecution are taken into account subject to a £10 disregard when calculating entitlement to pension credit.

Payments made to holocaust victims are not related to the German pensions paid to certain individuals who fled here from Nazi Germany as children before the start of the second world war in an initiative known as the 'Kindertransport'. Recent legislation in the Pensions Act 2008 has enabled these persons to opt to revoke their pre-1948 British national insurance contributions while retaining their British state pension with the effect of improving their German pension entitlement.

Personal Accounts

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the income distribution of those who will be automatically enrolled into a personal account under the Pensions Bill 2007 is. [249489]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Pensions Act 2008 requires employers to automatically enrol eligible workers into a qualifying work-based pension arrangement. Employers will choose the qualifying scheme they use, which could be the new personal accounts scheme.

The information in the table summarises the income distribution for those aged 22 to state pension age, working in the private sector, not already saving into a work-based pension scheme and earning more than £5,035 using data from the 2007 annual survey of hours and earnings.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate to the nearest whole pound the weekly pension income from a personal accounts pension for a single person auto-enrolling into a personal account in 2012 at the age of (a) 22, (b) 32, (c) 42 and (d) 52, earning a salary of (i) £11,500, (ii) £12,500, (iii) £13,500, (iv) £14,500, (v) £15,500, (vi) £16,500, (vii) £17,500, (viii) £18,500, (ix) £19,500, (x) £20,500, (xi) £21,500 and (xii) £22,500 which rises annually during their career each year in line with earnings, where that person stopped working at 68, annuitised at 68, and had no savings other than a personal account pension pot. [249450]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The following table shows the expected gross weekly private pension and total net weekly income for a male in the age and earnings groups requested.

These examples assume an annual management charge of 0.5 per cent., standard assumptions about factors such as investment growth and a lifestyled fund and phasing of contributions over a three year period. The whole of the pension pot is annuitised using RPI linked annuities, assuming the annuitant is male. Individuals are assumed to start working at the age of 22, with a state pension age of 68 and to contribute 5 per cent. (including tax relief) of their qualifying earnings and to receive 3 per cent. of their qualifying earnings from their employer. Net total income is total retirement income after tax for private pension income, basic state pension, second state pension and income related benefits. Figures are in 2008-09 earnings terms.

Progression to Work Model

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of personal advisers required to administer the Progression to Work model; at what Civil Service pay band the personal advisers administering the model will be graded; and what estimate he has made of the additional cost of the scheme to his Department. [257749]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: A cadre of skilled and capable personal advisers will be absolutely essential to effectively implement the Progression to Work model. The Department made clear in its recent discussion document "Realising Potential: developing personalised conditionality and support" that it will be necessary to think through the implications for the adviser role and implement a workforce development strategy within Jobcentre Plus. This is an issue we will discuss in detail with stakeholders. As such no final decisions have yet been made on the grading or number of personal advisers necessary to deliver the Progression to Work pathfinders. However all Jobcentre Plus personal advisers are currently band C grade staff.

The cost of the new Progression to Work pathfinders will depend on precisely what the personalised conditionality and work-related activity looks like. At this stage therefore, costs are uncertain. The impact assessment associated with the White Paper "Raising Expectations and Increasing Support – reforming welfare for the future" estimated that the increase in work-focused interviews and provision to support work and skills-related activity could cost up to an extra £20 million a year for parents with younger children. For employment and support allowance customers we are still working through the detailed design of the policy and assessing the appropriate balance between Jobcentre Plus and providers. Additional costs will be met from within the current agreed Department spending plans.

Rapid Response Service: East Riding

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many redundancies in the East Riding of Yorkshire have been designated as significant and dealt with by the Rapid Response Service; and if he will make a statement. [254045]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 3 February 2009]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question concerning how many redundancies in the East Riding of Yorkshire have been designated as significant and dealt with by the Rapid Response Service. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

A strengthened Rapid Response Service was launched on 12 November, doubling national funding from £3 million to £6 million in the current year and doubled again to £12million in 2009/10. Through the Rapid Response Service, Jobcentre Plus has access to funds to enable those individuals made redundant to receive the necessary help to get them back into work.

19 companies to date in the East Riding of Yorkshire have been designated as significant redundancies and dealt with by the Rapid Response Service. Of the 19 companies, 3 received full Rapid Response Funding to retrain redundant workers with the rest receiving retraining through other funding streams. In total 2,268 individuals accessed the Rapid Response Service.

Social Security Benefits

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the amount paid by his Department in benefits in relation to children diagnosed with foetal anti-convulsant syndrome caused by mothers receiving sodium valproate treatment during pregnancy in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [259373]

Jonathan Shaw: No estimate has been made of the amount of benefits paid in relation to children diagnosed with foetal anti-convulsant syndrome caused by mothers receiving sodium valproate treatment during pregnancy. However, the disabilities associated with this syndrome may mean that a child could be entitled to disability living allowance depending on the level of their personal care needs and/or mobility difficulties arising from those disabilities.

Social Security Benefits: Obesity

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of claimants of both employment and support allowance and incapacity benefit whose capability of work is limited by obesity. [259125]

Jonathan Shaw: Causes of incapacity are based on the International Classification of Diseases, 10th Revision, published by the World Health Organisation. To qualify for incapacity benefit/severe disablement allowance, claimants have to undertake a medical assessment of incapacity for work which is called the Personal Capability Assessment. Therefore, the medical condition recorded on the incapacity benefit/severe disablement allowance claim form does not itself confer entitlement to incapacity benefits. For example, the decision for a customer claiming incapacity benefit on the grounds of obesity would be based on their ability to carry out the range of activities in the Personal Capability Assessment.

DWP will be publishing National Statistics on Employment and Support Allowance in summer 2009.

As at August 2008, of the 2,632,000 claimants of incapacity benefit/severe disablement allowance, 2,130 claimants had a primary diagnosis of obesity.

State Retirement Pensions

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of women who have reached state pension age since April 2008 eligible to buy back one or more year of Class 3 national insurance contributions under the measures contained in the Pensions Act 2008; how many such women have taken up that option; whether people reaching state pension age are automatically notified of their rights under the Pensions Act 2008 when they are prompted to claim that state pension; and if he will make a statement. [255667]

Ms Rosie Winterton: [holding answer 9 February 2009]: The number of women who are estimated to reach state pension age between 6 April 2008 and 5 April 2009 and eligible to pay one or more year of Class 3 National Insurance contributions under the measure contained in the Pensions Act 2008 is 145,000.

No one can take up the option before the measure comes into force on 6 April 2009.

The Department for Work and Pensions and HM Revenue and Customs are currently working together to agree business procedures for the measure and what changes may be needed to leaflets, letters and forms.

Note:

Figures refer to women who are estimated to be resident in the UK and overseas.

Winter Fuel Payments: Chronically Sick

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department's estimate is of the cost of extending the winter fuel allowance to terminally ill people who would not otherwise qualify, excluding the one-off additional payment of £50 for 2008-09. [241070]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Winter fuel payments are made to people aged 60 or over including those who are disabled or terminally ill. The heating costs of terminally ill people arise throughout the year, not just in winter and disability living allowance provides additional weekly financial support of up to £5,915 a year related to an individual's circumstances.

The latest available data suggest that the annual cost of extending winter fuel payments to people aged under 60 in receipt of disability living allowance under the special rules applicable to people who are terminally ill and not expected to live for more than six months is estimated to be about £5 million. This is an estimate for 2008-09 and is based on a £200 payment, which excludes the one off additional payment of £50 for this year.

It is not possible to determine how many of the estimated beneficiaries live in a household that would already be entitled to a winter fuel payment.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to reply to Question 248845, on benefit payments to persons subject to control orders, tabled by the hon. Member for Newark on 13 January 2009. [257670]

Mr. McNulty: I replied to the hon. Member's question on 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 88W.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Adult Education

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was spent on preparing and publishing the Evaluation of the impact of skills for life learning report. [254364]

Mr. Simon: I have been asked to reply.

The costs involved in publishing and printing in respect of the published "Evaluation of the Impact of Skills for Life Learning" reports are approximately £400.

Three reports have been published as follows:

Evaluation of the impact of basic skills learning: report on Wave 1;

Evaluation of the Impact of Skills for Life Learning: Report on Sweep 2; and Evaluation of the Impact of Skills for Life Learning: Longitudinal Survey of Learners, Wave 3.

Child Minding

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he plans to increase the annual fee for child minders on (a) the Early Years Register and (b) the Ofsted Childcare Register. [260043]

Beverley Hughes: Following our consultation "Childcare Act 2006: Future Approach to Fees and Subsidies" we announced in June 2008 increases to the Early Years Register fees for child minders from £25 in 2008/09 to £30 in 2009/10 and £35 in 2010/11. There are no plans to increase fees for the voluntary or compulsory parts of the General Childcare Register in 2009.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the number of childminders who can join a locally-accredited childminding network is limited. [260051]

Beverley Hughes: The Government place no limits on the number of child minders who can join locally accredited child minding networks. Local authorities can limit places on networks according to resources available to them and their assessment of the need for networked child minders.

The Government's recent document "Next Steps for Early Learning and Childcare" indicates that we will work with stakeholders to improve access to networks in all local authority areas.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many locally-accredited child minding networks have reported demand for places on networks in the last 12 months. [260052]

Beverley Hughes: The Government are committed to ensuring access to high quality provision through a range of providers, including child minders. This is why in the recent document "Next Steps for Early Learning and Childcare" we clearly committed ourselves to working with stakeholders to improve access to networks in all local authority areas.

Specific information on the demand for places on child minding networks is not collected centrally.

Children: Day Care

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the effects of being on an Ofsted register are for child care settings. [260035]

Beverley Hughes: Registered providers on the Early Years Register and the General Childcare Register are required to meet the requirements of those registers, for example, in relation to ratio requirements, staff qualifications and CRB checks and are inspected by Ofsted against the requirements. Full details of the registration requirements can be found at:

http://www.ofsted.gov.uk/Ofsted-home/Forms-and-guidance/Browse-all-by/Care-and-local-services/Childcare/Registration

Registered providers are able to access training, support and advice from local authorities.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of men working in childcare settings; and what steps he is taking to increase that number. [260186]

Beverley Hughes: The 2007 Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey indicates that, in the majority of setting types, between 1 and 2 per cent. of staff are male.

The Children's Workforce Development Council (CWDC) is taking the lead in a national recruitment campaign that focuses on encouraging more men into the children's work force. Activity at the end of January secured substantial coverage in the national press and media. This campaign is being aligned with Early Years Professional Status recruitment activity, which will also include a focus on underrepresented groups including men.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children in each decile of income deprivation were excluded from child care settings in each of the last 10 years. [260187]

Beverley Hughes: The information is not collected centrally.

Departmental Data protection

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether his Department uses WPA2 encryption protocol on all its wireless networks. [259784]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I can confirm that the Department uses the WPA2 protocol to protect its corporate wireless network, which has been fully accredited by CESG, the National Technical Authority for Information Assurance.

The Department also provides a completely discrete wireless network for visitors to the Department to access the internet. This has no connection to the DCSF corporate network and does not utilise WPA2.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1322W, on departmental public expenditure, how much of the £800 million capital spending to be brought forward will be spent in each local authority area; what projects the money will be spent on; and if he will make a statement. [256433]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Applications from local authorities are currently being considered, and we will make an announcement shortly.

Pupil Referral Units: Standards

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which pupil referral units were assessed as inadequate by Ofsted in each year since 1997. [256423]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: This is a matter for Ofsted. HMCI Christine Gilbert has written to the hon. Member and a copy of the reply has been placed in the Libraries.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 20 February 2009:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

Tables A-K show all pupil referral units which have been placed in special measures in each academic year since 1997. Special measures is an Ofsted category, defined at present in the Education Act 2005, meaning that a school is failing to give its pupils an acceptable standard of education and the persons responsible for leading, managing or governing the school are not demonstrating the capacity to secure the necessary improvement.

Please be aware that the framework for inspecting pupil referral units changed in January 2000, September 2003 and September 2005. As a result, there has been no consistent "inadequate" category over this period. These tables are therefore limited to those pupil referral units placed in special measures, as this category has been in place throughout the period in question.

A copy of this reply has been sent to right hon. Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners, and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

Schools: Animal Welfare

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether his Department encourages schools to provide extra-curricular activities in the interests of promoting and educating pupils on animal welfare issues. [259535]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The new secondary curriculum has a range of opportunities for schools to teach about animal welfare. Citizenship helps young people to consider a wide range of political, social, ethical and moral issues. Pupils should also be taught about the way in which the environment and living things need protection. In personal, social, health and economic education (PSHE education), pupils learn that people and other living things have needs, and that they have responsibilities to meet them. Teachers have the freedom and flexibility to decide how to teach the curriculum and what activities best suits the needs of their learners.

To support and inspire all schools to harness the full potential of the living world as a cross-curricular teaching and learning resource, both within and beyond the school grounds the Department funds the Growing Schools programme. It focuses on farming, as well as food and environmental issues, and on ensuring pupils are given first hand, practical experience in the outdoor classroom. Through Growing Schools the Department supports the school farms network which offers support and assistance to school farms through materials and CPD.

Schools: Nurses

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many full-time equivalent school nurses there were in each local authority area in each year since 1997. [255655]

Ann Keen: I have been asked to reply.

This information is not held centrally.

School nurses are generally employed by primary care trusts (PCTs) although some school nurses will be directly employed by both state and independent schools. The national health service workforce census does not capture these. A number of qualified school nurses will also work across PCT boundaries but be directly employed by one single PCT.

A table showing the number of full-time equivalent school nurses employed by PCTs and national health service trusts from 2004-07 has been placed in the Library.

Special Educational Needs

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of providing (a) special needs education and (b) social care for children diagnosed with foetal anti-convulsant syndrome resulting from mothers receiving sodium valproate treatment during pregnancy in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [259372]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The budgeted net expenditure by local authorities in England on special educational needs is £5,098,916,000[1] for the financial year 2008-09. The Department does not collect data about local authorities' expenditure specifically on social care provision for children diagnosed with foetal anti-convulsant syndrome and no estimate has been made of the cost.

[1] The data are drawn from local authorities Children, Schools and Families Financial Data Collection Budget (Tables 1 and 2) submitted to the DCSF.

Special Educational Needs: Pupil Exclusions

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of pupils with statemented special educational needs of behavioural, emotional or social difficulties were given (a) one, (b) two, (c) three, (d) four, (e) five and (f) more than five fixed-period exclusions from (i) mainstream primary and (ii) mainstream secondary schools in 2007-08. [260289]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information on exclusions for the 2007/08 school year will not be available until the summer.

Teaching Methods

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment his Department has made of the comparative effect on educational attainment of streaming classes by ability and using mixed-ability classes. [260158]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Analysis of research suggests that no single model of pupil grouping will be of benefit to all pupils all of the time. For example, there is some evidence that being taught in a mixed ability class can be beneficial for low attainers, but that ability-based classes can be beneficial for high attainers.

We promote setting—the grouping of pupils according to their ability in a particular subject—as an effective way of ensuring that individual pupils are receiving personalised help appropriate to where they are in their learning. Similarly, we promote effective pupil grouping practices, and guided work, as tools for delivering the most appropriate curriculum to each individual in mixed ability classes.

We do not promote streaming—where pupils are assigned to classes on the basis of an overall assessment of their general ability and pupils remain in their streamed classes across the majority of subjects—as it assumes that children will have the same level of ability in all subjects.

We published "Grouping Pupils for Success" in September 2006 which provides guidance on effective setting and grouping practices, and highlights their associated advantages and disadvantages. "Personalised Learning—A Practical Guide", published in October 2008, also has chapters on both "High quality teaching and learning" and "Pupil Grouping", which describe the repertoire of teaching strategies and techniques practitioners can use to address the varied needs of a mixed-ability class. Copies of both of these documents have been placed in the House Libraries.

TREASURY

Banks: Iceland

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with the authorities in Iceland on payments to UK depositors in Icelandic banks; what assessment he has made of the position of these depositors in respect of compensation for monies lost; and if he will make a statement. [254757]

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what recent discussions he has had with the Icelandic government on Icelandic banks in respect of UK depositors and creditors. [255848]

Ian Pearson: The Government have taken urgent action to protect the interests of UK depositors in Icelandic banks and are actively pursuing a full resolution. The Government have and will continue to ensure that Parliament and the public are updated on developments as and when possible, without compromising negotiations with the Icelandic Government.

The Chancellor, along with the Governor of the Bank of England and the chairman of the FSA, gave details of discussions related to Icelandic banking situation to the Common's Treasury committee on 3 November 2008.

The Government continue to work closely with the Icelandic authorities to ensure the fair treatment for UK depositors and creditors.

Banks: USA

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether UK-based banks with entities or subsidiaries in the US are able to gain access to the US's Troubled Assets Relief Programme. [258126]

Ian Pearson: The Troubled Assets Relief Programme (TARP) is a US scheme and eligibility criteria for the TARP program are a matter for the US Administration.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what powers the Financial Services Authority has to investigate the operations of subsidiaries of United States-based banks operating in the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [259051]

Ian Pearson: This is an operational matter for the Financial Services Authority. I understand that the chairman of the FSA, Lord Turner, will write to the hon. Gentleman.

Departmental Data Protection

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what auditing his Department undertakes to ensure that IT security policies are being followed; and on how many occasions (a) IT security policies have been breached by employees and (b) a member of staff has been sanctioned for a breach of such policies in the last 12 months. [259714]

Angela Eagle: HM Treasury conduct periodic audits of IT systems and business processes, which include, where relevant, the degree to which IT security policies are being followed. In the last 12 months, there have been no identified cases of IT security policies has being broken by employees, and no employees have been sanctioned.

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's IT security hierarchy. [259715]

Angela Eagle: A copy of HM Treasury's IT security hierarchy will be placed in the Library of the House. Reference can be made to:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/d/hmt_orgchart.pdf

to see how the hierarchy fits into the overall HM Treasury organisational structure.

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what scanning for vulnerabilities his Department conducts of each of its IT devices; what method is used for IT device scans; and how many vulnerabilities have been detected as a result of such scans in the last 12 months. [259716]

Angela Eagle: The Department has a number of measures in place to scan for, and report on, vulnerabilities, including the use of more than one anti-virus software product. It is departmental policy not to publish precise details of the measures used and their detection rates, as this could provide useful information for individuals who might seek to attack our IT systems.

EC Budget

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the nature was of the fines levied on the United Kingdom recorded under Article 7 1 0 of the European Communities budget for (a) 2006 and (b) 2007. [256231]

Ian Pearson: Chapter Seven, Article 7 1 0 of the EC budget—fines, periodic penalty payments and other penalties—only relates to fines imposed by the European Commission on companies for infringements of EC competition rules and does not apply to member states. Details of competition fines imposed on companies in cartel cases by European Commission decisions are listed on the website of the Directorate-General Competition:

http://ec.europa.eu/competition/cartels/overview/faqs_en.html

Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by (a) HM Revenue and Customs and (b) HM Treasury residual estate is in 2008-09. [258516]

Angela Eagle: HMRC does not incur empty property business rates for vacant properties on their estate because the liability for rates passes to their PFI contractor as soon as HMRC vacate a property.

The estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties on the HM Treasury residual estate is £200,970.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by the Government Actuary's Department is in 2008-09. [258517]

Angela Eagle: The Government Actuary's Department does not have any vacant property and has not incurred any cost in empty property business rates.

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

Figures on European capital funding that has been made available to the UK, the North East and Tees Valley since 1997 are not held centrally and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost. The following table shows European structural funds allocations to the North East and the United Kingdom for the years 1997 to 2008.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the change in tax revenue which would occur if incomes at £100,000 and above were taxed at a marginal rate of 50 per cent. in 2009-10. [259620]

Mr. Timms: The table 'Additional full-year yield from the introduction of additional higher rates of tax on TAXABLE incomes over a specific amount' contains comprehensive information on income tax and is available in the Library of the House of Commons. The table excludes any estimate of behavioural response.

The version of the table currently available is based upon the 2005-06 Survey of Personal Incomes projected forward to 2008-09 in line with Budget 2008, including changes made on the13 May 2008. An updated table for 2009-10 based on the latest available survey will be placed in the Library before the summer recess.

Inflation

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with the Governor of the Bank of England on measures to maintain the target level of inflation. [260047]

Ian Pearson: The Governor of the Bank of England and the Chancellor discuss economic and financial developments on a regular basis.

Monetary policy decisions are made by the Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) of the Bank of England. The MPC has full operational independence from the Government in deciding how to meet the Government's inflation target of 2 per cent. on a consumer price index basis.

International Monetary Fund

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with the International Monetary Fund on its assessment of (a) public and (b) private debt in the UK since January 2009; and if he will make a statement. [259071]

Yvette Cooper: The Government continue to work closely with international partners in responding to the financial crisis. An IMF delegation visited the UK between 12 and 23 May 2008. During that time they held a large number of meetings, including with Ministers, Government officials, and external organisations, at which a broad range of economic issues was discussed.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was discussed in the meetings between his Department and representatives of the International Monetary Fund during their recent visit to the UK in May 2008; whether a record of each meeting was kept; who was present at each meeting; and if he will make a statement. [259148]

Ian Pearson: An IMF delegation visited the UK between the 12 and 23 May 2008. During that time they held a large number of meetings, including with Ministers, Government officials, and external organisations, at which a broad range of economic issues was discussed. These meetings then informed the Concluding Statement, which the IMF mission team published immediately following the Mission in May 2008, and the Article IV Staff Report and Public Information Notice (PIN), both of which were published by the IMF in August 2008.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what reports on the British economy have been produced by the International Monetary Fund in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [259149]

Ian Pearson: Under Article IV of the IMF's Articles of Agreement, the IMF holds bilateral discussions with members, usually every year. Staff reports produced in the context of these consultations can be found on the IMF's website at www.imf.org/external/country/GBR/index.htm

Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer who regulates Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander's (KSF's) activities in the UK; what steps (a) the Government and (b) other regulatory bodies have taken in relation to KSF assets in the last six months; what those assets were valued at (i) 1 September 2008 and (ii) the latest date for which figures are available; what compensation arrangements apply to (A) individuals, (B) local authorities and (C) other public bodies who have lost funds deposited in KSF; and what the relationship is between KSF and KSF Isle of Man. [250361]

Ian Pearson: Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander Ltd. (KSF), a UK subsidiary of Kaupthing Bank hf, is incorporated under English law and regulated by the FSA.

On 8 October 2008, the FSA concluded that Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander Ltd. no longer met threshold conditions and was in default for the purposes of the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS). The Treasury, using an order under the Banking (Special Provisions) Act 2008, transferred KSF's deposit book of "Kaupthing Edge" accounts to ING Direct. The Government also committed to paying out in full FSCS eligible depositors whose accounts were not transferred.

The remainder of KSF's business was subsequently placed into administration following due legal process. The administrators are responsible for managing the remainder of KSF's business and loan book to maximise recovery for creditors. The administrators will continue to deal with the assets in compliance with insolvency law and the provisions of the transfer order (including those provisions of the transfer order which confer certain limited functions on the Treasury in relation to the assets of KSF). Those depositors that are ineligible for FSCS compensation will be creditors of the bank in the normal way and paid out in accordance with UK insolvency procedures.

Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander (Isle of Man) (KSF IoM) is not a subsidiary of KSF in the UK, but of the Icelandic parent company.

Ian Pearson: Due to the large volume of correspondence received on these issues there has been a delay in sending some responses. The Financial Secretary hopes to be in a position to reply to the hon. Member shortly.

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Northavon, of 17 November 2008, sent on behalf of Chris Bolton, regarding HM Revenue and Customs, acknowledged by his Department with the reference PO REF: 1/63353/2008. [260109]

Mr. Timms: I replied to the hon. Member on 23 December.

National Debt

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much national debt was repaid in each year since 1997. [246574]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 12 January 2009]: The information requested is available on the Debt Management Office's website at:

www.dmo.gov.uk and the Office for National Statistics website at:

www.statistics.gov.uk

Revenue and Customs: North West

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to ensure that any in-house training undertaken by employees of HM Revenue and Customs offices at (a) Regian House, Liverpool, (b) Dukes House, Southport and (c) Birchen House, Birkenhead results in recognised accreditation for those employees. [259473]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs runs various programmes of training, to support its employees in the professional delivery of services to the public. Some of those programmes are accredited.

Programmes are accredited by awarding bodies where there is benefit to the taxpayer in doing so. Employees at the offices cited have available to them the full range of training needed to undertake their duties. Accreditation is not sought on the basis of location, but where employees in a location successfully complete accredited programmes they will receive the recognised accreditation.

Revenue and Customs: Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much HM Revenue and Customs and its agencies have spent on external public relations in the last 24 months. [250482]

Mr. Timms: HMRC and its agencies will have paid £318,715 to external public relation companies to run marketing campaigns raising public awareness of tax and benefits in 2007-08 and 2008-09 by the end of March 2009.

Saving Gateway Accounts

Dr. Ladyman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost of extending the availability of Saving Gateway accounts to recipients of carer's allowance. [255723]

Ian Pearson: I refer my hon. Friend to the comments I made on the floor of the House on 25 February 2009, Official Report, column 296.

Supply Estimates

Dr. Fox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to lay the 2009-10 Main Estimates before the House. [258876]

Yvette Cooper: The main estimates are presented within 25 working days after the Budget as normal, subject to Parliament sitting. If Parliament is not sitting the main estimates will be laid once Parliament has returned. The exact date will be determined shortly.

Taxation: British Overseas Territories and Crown Dependencies

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) taxes and (b) other fiscal levies his Department can raise in (i) Gibraltar, (ii) Anguilla, (iii) the Cayman Islands, (iv) the Falkland Islands, (v) the Isle of Man, (vi) Jersey and (vii) Guernsey. [259214]

Mr. Timms: Each of these jurisdictions is fiscally autonomous and United Kingdom taxes do not, therefore, extend to them.

It is important however that all of these jurisdictions provide assistance to the United Kingdom as required, to ensure that UK taxes are correctly assessed and enforced.

UK Financial Investments: Pay

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many staff of UK Financial Investments have remuneration packages of (a) between £100,000 and £149,999 and (b) over £150,000 a year; [258032]

(2) what the payroll expenditure of UK Financial Investments Limited is. [258033]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 23 February 2009]: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Altrincham and Sale, West (Mr. Brady) on 29 January 2009, Official Report, column 684W.

Valuation Office: Databases

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) of 20 November 2008, Official Report, column 776W, on the Valuation Office: reorganisation, whether the Valuation Office Agency will be able to use property data previously held by the Rent Service for council tax valuations once the transfer of functions has taken place. [258411]

Mr. Timms: The extent to which the VOA can use property data held by the Rent Service for council tax valuations is unaffected by the transfer of the Rent Service.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Carbon Emissions

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the UK's carbon dioxide emissions, defined in accordance with the Kyoto Protocol, were in each year since 1990, without adjustment for the effect of the EU Emissions Trading Scheme. [257599]

Joan Ruddock: UK greenhouse gas and carbon dioxide emissions are published as National Statistics.

Carbon dioxide emissions, according to the Kyoto Protocol and without the effect of the EU Emissions Trading Scheme from 1990-2007, can be found in Annex A—Breakdown of Headline results, on the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs website at:

www.defra.gov.uk/environment/statistics/globatmos/index.htm

Energy Supply: Research

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much the Government are spending on (a) nuclear fusion research and (b) research into renewables in 2008-09. [254880]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills provides funding to the Technology Strategy Board and the research councils. The Technology Strategy Board estimate of expenditure on applied research and development into renewables to date during 2008-09 is £10.9 million. The research councils' estimated expenditure on research and related training in 2008-09 is:

	£ million
Nuclear fusion[1]	35.7
Renewables[2]	37

[1] Includes underspend carried over from 2007-08 and a payment for some work carried out in 2007-08.
[2] NB Incomplete as data are not available from all councils. Includes research on networks and energy storage.

In addition, the research councils are providing funding of £13.88 million over the period 2004-09 for the UK Energy Research Centre (which undertakes a range of research relating to sustainable energy, including renewables), and energy is included in the work of the Tyndall Centre for Climate Change Research (which has some £15.8 million funding from the research councils over 2000-08). The Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council and Technology Strategy Board also provide funding to the Energy Technologies Institute, which is establishing a portfolio of development projects in low carbon energy technologies, including renewables.

The Carbon Trust, which receives funding from the Department of Energy and Climate Change, estimate expenditure of £4.1 million in 2008-09 on research into renewables.

Energy: Conservation

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he plans to publish the regulations for the Community Energy Saving Programme. [256857]

Joan Ruddock: The consultation for the Community Energy Saving Programme was published on 12 February 2009.

We will publish a draft order in the coming weeks, to illustrate how the policy proposals contained in the consultation document might be given legal effect.

The order will then be finalised once the Government have received and considered responses to the consultation process.

Fuel Poverty: EU Countries

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what information his Department holds on rates of fuel poverty in other EU member states. [242491]

Joan Ruddock: Comparable rates of fuel poverty are not produced across other EU member states. The Department holds fuel poverty rates for the UK and each country within it.

Fuel Poverty: Mobile Homes

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what plans his Department has to reduce fuel poverty among park home residents. [258686]

Joan Ruddock: Those residing in Park Homes are eligible for the Warm Front scheme providing that they receive one of the income or disability related qualifying benefits. However, many Park Homes can prove 'hard to treat' and may not be suitable for some of the measures currently available under Warm Front.

However, Warm Front is currently reviewing alternative products which could be used to heat and insulate park home properties, to assess their suitability for inclusion in the scheme.

Fuel Poverty: Travelling People

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what plans his Department has to reduce fuel poverty among Gypsy and Traveller communities. [258683]

Joan Ruddock: Those living in Gypsy and Traveller communities, and in receipt of a qualifying income or disability related benefit, are able to apply for assistance with heating and insulation measures through Warm Front. Indeed DECC ensures that the Warm Front scheme manager, eaga plc, actively targets minority ethnic groups to ensure they can benefit from the scheme.

Unfortunately, many of those of the Gypsy and Traveller communities live in properties including Park Homes, which can prove 'hard to treat' and may not be suitable for some of the measures currently available under Warm Front. However, we are currently reviewing options for alternative heating and insulation products which could assist these properties.

In addition, those who live in Gypsy and Traveller communities and are over 60 years of age would qualify for the winter fuel payment and, subject to their satisfying the grant eligibility criteria for applicants, could also qualify for assistance under the cold weather payments scheme.

Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate his Department has made of the proportion of UK from (a) travel, (b) domestic use and (c) agriculture in each of the last three years. [254132]

Joan Ruddock: The latest 2007 estimates of greenhouse gas emissions were published on 3 February 2009. DEFRA are currently publishing the DECC climate change statistics and please refer to the following link for the 2007 FINAL UK Greenhouse Gas Emissions National Statistics.

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/statistics/globatmos/index.htm

The proportion of UK greenhouse gas emissions from (a) travel (b) domestic use (residential) (c) agriculture UK for each of the last three years are shown in the following table. Emission reporting in the UK can be broken down into individual gases, and also by 'source' and on an 'end user' basis. For 'end user' the emissions are reallocated from the production and distribution of energy to the users of that energy. The main difference between source and end user emissions comes from the treatment of emissions from combustion of fossil fuels, the largest source of carbon dioxide in most countries. To derive emissions by end user, emissions from power stations and other fuel processing industries have been re-allocated to end users on an approximate basis according to their use of the fuel. Emissions by end user are subject to more uncertainty than emissions by source and should only be used to give a broad indication of emissions by sector.

Table 1 following shows greenhouse gas emissions by source category 2005-07.

Table 1: Greenhouse gas emissions by source (2005-07) for national communication categories of travel, residential and agriculture (2007 final figures, February 2009)

	Proportions (percentage)			Million tonnes CO_2 equivalent

Please also see table 2 following to see the latest available greenhouse gas emission figures using end user categories. The latest data available for end user are up to 2006.

Please also note that the differences in the totals in greenhouse gas emissions between each year is due to revisions in data. These are the official National Statistics.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire dated 2 December 2008 on cancer patients' fuel bills. [255349]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 9 February 2009]: I replied to the hon Member on 23 February and apologise for the delay, which was due to departmental reorganisation.

Nuclear Power: Consultants

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the answer of 21 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1431-2W, on nuclear power: consultants, what the total monetary value is of the contracts with each of the consultants engaged in connection with the generic design assessment. [255964]

Jonathan Shaw: I have been asked to reply.

The Nuclear Installations Inspectorate of the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) has engaged a range of external bodies and individuals to assist it with various technical aspects, process assurance and organisation of generic design assessment. The value, in connection with the Generic Design Assessment, of existing contracts is as follows:

	GDA cost (£)
Contractors: (listed in columns 1431W)
IAEA (International Atomic Energy Agency)	229,879.00
Washington E and C Ltd	70,000.00
EPRI	57,144.00
Health Protection agency (formerly NRPB)	16,564.40
Morson International	14,000.00
Imperial College London	800.00
OECD-NEA	352,312.84
AMEC NNC	19,314.00
Atkins Nuclear	22,483.02
Other contractors (used since)
DYCODA, LLC	10,000.00
Jacobsen Engineering Ltd	104,400.00
Serco Assurance	59,975.00
University of Liverpool	2,605.81
VTT Technical Research Centre Finland	66,600.00
Process review board: (column 1432W)
David Hughes	12,500.00
John Raine	15,016.00
Bernard Whittle	12,155.00
Phillip Woodward	12,155.00
Project assurance officer: (column 1432W)
James Furness	29,500.00

Not included are Technical Support Contractors (TSC) for GDA that are still pending. In line with the GDA Delivery plan, TSC costs will increase significantly in the next two years. Requesting Parties are aware of potential costs and receive annual estimates that are also updated quarterly.

Values in table are contract values not annual costs.

Power Stations: EC Law

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) whether his Department has plans to apply for a derogation from the EU large combustion plant directive; [256157]

(2) what discussions he has had with (a) EU institutions and (b) energy companies on applications for derogations from the EU large combustion plant directive. [256158]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

The large combustion plants directive (2001/20/EC) contains no derogations for which the United Kingdom has to apply and therefore no discussions with EU institutions have been necessary. It is open to the competent authority (the Environment Agency in England and Wales) to apply such derogations as are mentioned in the directive as it sees fit in the light of discussion with the plant operator concerned.

Public Sector: Computers

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps his Department is taking to encourage (a) thin computing and (b) environmentally-friendly computing practices in the public sector. [258068]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

DEFRA carefully considered the promotion of 'thin' clients, which are centrally managed computers with most of the function of the system located in a central server room. However, evidence to date has shown that the increased electricity consumption of these server rooms (e.g. through the air conditioning needed to cool the room) renders this technology less attractive than previously thought from an energy efficiency perspective.

The Government's "Greening ICT Strategy" published last year sets out a strategy for reducing the environmental impact of Government's computer systems. One of their main aims is to make the energy consumption of our ICT systems carbon neutral by 2012. We also mandated a set of minimum environmental standards for commonly-purchased products, including ICT.

Solar Power

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has conducted into excitonic solar cells. [255157]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

The Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council (EPSRC) and the Technology Strategy Board, funded through the Department's Science and Research, and Innovation Budgets respectively, support a portfolio of research into excitonic solar cells.

The EPSRC's current portfolio on excitonic solar research totals £10 million and includes £1.1 million for the SUPERGEN Excitonic Solar Cells Consortium.

The Technology Strategy Board currently has two collaborative R&D projects in this area providing total grant support of £833,000.

Basic and applied research funded by both organisations in areas such as materials and plastic electronics is relevant, but not captured in these figures.

Warm Front Scheme

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what progress has been made towards his Department's target to provide free loft insulation for pensioners over 70 to date; and if he will make a statement. [257522]

Joan Ruddock: The Department do not have a target to provide free loft insulation to pensioners over 70. However, the Government do have an ambition to help all households meet their energy efficiency potential by 2020, where practical. As a key contribution, we have set the major energy suppliers ambitious household carbon saving targets, which they meet through promoting subsidised energy efficiency measures. 40 per cent. of their targets have to be met in a priority group of vulnerable households on qualifying benefits and aged 70 and over. Currently, all six obligated suppliers offer priority group households free loft insulation and cavity wall insulation, where none exists, subject to a survey of the property. Under the supplier obligation, around 1.5 million priority group households have received loft insulation since the scheme first began in April 2002.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills pursuant to his Department's press release of 7 January 2009, on additional apprentices, how many of the 35,000 additional apprenticeship places for 2009-10 are additional to those referred to in his Department's press release of 8 December 2008. [254504]

Mr. Simon: The volume of apprenticeships we planned for 2009-10 were set out in my Department's grant letter of 18 November 2008 to the Learning and Skills Council.

All the 35,000 apprenticeship places announced on 7 January 2009 are additional to these planned volumes. Our press release of 8 December 2008 highlighted high street companies that are expanding their apprenticeship programmes and therefore helping us towards our ambitions for significant growth in the apprenticeship programme. Clearly, we will need to explore whether these companies and other employers, both large and small, across the public, private and third sectors can do more to help us provide extra places. Our national advertising campaign which started this week and the new National Apprenticeship Service will promote the value of apprenticeships to employers to ensure we deliver jobs and training for young people and adults. This will build further on the record number of apprenticeship starts and completions delivered last year; the best since 1997.

Since 1997 we have witnessed a renaissance in apprenticeships from a low point of 65,000 to a record 225,000 apprenticeship starts in 2007-08. Completion rates are also at a record high with 64 per cent. successfully completing an apprenticeship—up from 37 per cent. in 2004-05.

Apprentices: Cumbria

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many of those completing apprenticeship schemes in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland constituency obtained full-time permanent employment in each of the last five years. [255031]

Mr. Simon: An apprenticeship is a work-based programme and apprentices must have a job or a work placement as a condition of completing their apprenticeship framework. Many will already be in permanent employment prior to the end of their apprenticeship. Table 1 following shows apprenticeship completions in Cumbria local authority and Copeland constituency. Figures are presented from 2003/04 to 2007/08, the latest year for which fully audited data is available.

Table 1: Apprenticeship completions in Cumbria local authority and Copeland constituency—2007/08

	Cumbria local authority	Copeland constituency
2003/04	800	130
2004/05	1,100	190
2005/06	1,400	240
2006/07	1,500	240
2007/08	1,600	240

Information on the immediate destinations of apprenticeships upon completion of their apprenticeship is not readily available.

This type of information will in future be collected using the Framework for Excellence learner destination survey with the first results for all FE Colleges and Work based learning providers available in spring 2009. There are no current plans to produce this analysis at local authority or constituency level.

The Government are committed to rebuilding apprenticeships. Since 1997 we have witnessed a renaissance in apprenticeships from a low point of 65,000 to a record 225,000 apprenticeship starts in 2007/08. Completion rates are also at a record high with 64 per cent. successfully completing an apprenticeship—up from 37 per cent. in 2004/05.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will make it his policy for his Department to sign the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258953]

Mr. Simon: The Government welcomed the Promise as a commendable initiative to raise awareness of the importance of effective data protection safeguards, particularly for those organisations with no similar commitments already in place.

The Government take data protection very seriously. Following the Cabinet Office Review of Data Handling Procedures in Government, Departments have implemented a raft of measures to improve data security.

The Ministry of Justice is considering actively with the ICO how the Promise might add additional value to those measures we have already signed up to. These include the Information Charters, the recommendations of the Data Handling Review and the Thomas/Walport Review and, of course, our legal obligations under the Data Protection Act and other legislation and regulations.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which ICT projects initiated by his Department since its inception have been abandoned before completion; what costs were incurred on each project; who the contractors were; what the date of (a) commencement and (b) abandonment was in each case; and if he will make a statement. [256657]

Mr. Simon: DIUS is a new Department established in June 2007, substantially from parts of the former DTI and DfES. As far as we are aware, since June 2007 the Department has not abandoned any information technology projects.

No information technology projects were abandoned in the last five years for those functions brought over into DIUS from the former DTI.

It is not possible, without exceeding the disproportionate cost threshold, to determine if any information technology projects were abandoned in the last five years for those functions brought over into DIUS from the former DfES.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will publish a copy of his Department's website accessibility plan. [257219]

Mr. Simon: DIUS is committed to making its website as accessible to as many people as possible and strives to meet W3C WAI Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) to Double A standard. We currently publish a Website Accessibility statement on our interim corporate website at:

http://www.dius.gov.uk/accessibility/

The full DIUS site will be launched in March and this will also aim to meet W3C WAI Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) to Double A standard. In addition we are in the process of developing a full website accessibility plan which we will publish on our new website as soon possible after launch of the new site and no later than the end of May 2009.

Departmental Pay

Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of staff in his Department and its agencies have received bonus payments since it was established; what the total amount of bonuses paid has been; what the largest single payment has been; and if he will make a statement. [258085]

Mr. Simon: The Department was created on 28 June 2007. The Department's annual non-pensionable bonuses are awarded on 1 April 2008 for the 12 month performance reporting period ending on 31 March 2008.

Since the Department's establishment, bonuses awarded to its employees and its agencies are set out as follows.

Staff

	Number	Percentage	Total cost (£)	Highest single payment (£)
Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills	225	25	535,000	20,000
National Weights and Measures Laboratory (NWML)	15	24	15,303	2,166
The UK Intellectual Property Office (UKIPO):
Performance payment to members of senior civil service	22	66	137,864.00	13,000
Performance pay for staff below SCS
(a) for 1 August 2007	670	42.6	179,326.00	640
(b) for 1 August 2008	1,015	100	260,649.00	582

Notes:
1. Award date for SCS staff is 1 April 2008.
2. Award date for non-SCS staff is 1 August 2007 and 1 August 2008.

Education: Coastal Areas

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much funding his Department provided to each (a) further education and (b) higher education college in each of the principal seaside towns of England in 2007-08. [257412]

Mr. Simon: Table 1 shows total funding for adult (aged 19 or over) learners through the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) for FE colleges located in principal seaside towns in England.

Table 2 provides information on total funding through the Higher Education Funding Council for England for Higher Education Institutions located in principal seaside towns.

The information given here refers only to provision delivered in FE colleges and in higher education institutions. However, other providers may also deliver FE or HE provision, and may also receive funding from the LSC or HEFCE, so the figures given below do not necessarily represent the full funding available.

We have used the list of 37 "principal seaside towns" used in "England's Seaside Towns—A 'benchmarking' study" published in November 2008 by the Department for Communities and Local Government.

Education: Finance

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many submissions for capital projects were considered at the 17 December 2008 meeting of the Learning and Skills Council's National Council; and how many were applications in (a) principle and (b) detail; [258462]

(2) which (a) further education and (b) sixth form colleges made submissions for capital projects which were considered at the 17 December 2008 meeting of the Learning and Skills Council's National Council; and which of those submissions were applications in (i) principle and (ii) detail. [258463]

Mr. Simon: Capital funding for further education colleges is administrated by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). Mark Haysom, the LSC Chief Executive will write to the hon. Member with the information requested and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Libraries.

Education: Prisons

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much funding his Department allocated for (a) library services and (b) other education services in prisons in each of the last five years. [257632]

Mr. Simon: The total budget for offender skills and employment, including allocations for prison libraries and heads of Learning and Skills and funds passed to the Youth Justice Board for education in young offender institutions, is provided in the following table. The table also shows the total spend on prison libraries (including young offender institutions) as a subset of the total budget for each year.

	Total budget	£ million Library budget

2007-08	156	7.0

English Language: Education

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many courses in English for speakers of other languages paid for from the public purse were (a) started and (b) completed in each of the last five years. [258545]

Mr. Simon: Table 1 shows participation and achievements in Learning and Skills Council (LSC) funded courses in English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) for 2004/05 to 2007/08. The data prior to 2004/05 are calculated on a slightly different basis to these figures and have not been provided.

Table 1: Participation and achievements in LSC-funded courses in English for speakers of other languages (ESOL), 2004/05 to 2007/08

	Participation	Achievements
2004/05	111,500	31,500
2005/06	143,300	82,500
2006/07	164,400	101,800
2007/08 (provisional)	165,700	109,300

Notes:
1. Volumes are rounded to the nearest 100.
2. Figures in this table are a count of the number of learners that participated at any point during the year. Learners undertaking more than one course are counted only once for each data collection. However, learners that are included in different data collections, whether that relates to different years or different funding streams will be counted more than once.
3. Final data for 2007/08 will be published in March 2009.

Innovation

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which departments have published innovative procurement plans in the last 12 months. [258575]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 25 February 2009]: When the 'Innovation Nation' White Paper was published in March 2008, we anticipated that Departments would produce their plans in that calendar year. This has not proved practicable, and we have now asked Departments to put their plans in place by the end of the financial year. I can confirm that most major spending Departments expect to have their innovation procurement plans in place by the end of March. DIUS is working closely with the Departments and with the Office for Government Commerce to ensure that the Departments' plans achieve value for the buying Department while encouraging innovation in business, and to ensure that the effectiveness of the plans is appropriately monitored.

Research: British Antarctic Territory

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the cost of maintaining the UK's four research stations in the British Antarctic Territory was in the last 12 months. [248002]

Mr. Lammy: The British Antarctic Survey (BAS) operates three research stations in the British Antarctic Territory. The cost of operating them in the last financial year 2007-08 was about £4 million. This excludes the cost of the science and monitoring work undertaken at these stations. The total BAS resource budget is £45 million per year.

Students: Loans

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent assessment he has made of the effect of the economic downturn on the provision of (a) career development loans and (b) professional development loans by UK banks to students. [258439]

Mr. Simon: Career development loans (CDLs) are a successful GB wide programme administered by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) to help individuals invest in their future by financing vocational learning of their choice. CDLs are commercial loans provided by three high street banks, for which the Government pays the interest while people study.

The LSC monitors and analyses lending trends on a continuing basis. The number of loans given so far this year is lower than forecast. The LSC believe that, in part, this reflects the banks' concerns about the economic downturn.

However, as set out in January in "New Opportunities: Fair Chances for the Future", the Government believe that loans can play a greater part in helping people gain the skills they need. Expanded and rebranded professional and career development loans (PCDLs), which will be available for courses starting in September 2009, will offer reduced headline interest rates and allow for loans up to £10,000. PCDLs will help more people seeking professional and technical qualifications get on the right track in their career, and help those who have been made redundant retrain.

Students: Voluntary Work

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what Government (a) guidance and (b) funding initiatives are available to higher education institutions to support student volunteering. [259108]

Mr. Lammy: The Department, through the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE), has provided significant funding to higher education institutions (HEIs) to support staff and student volunteering—£52 million up to 2008-09 under the HE Active Community Fund (HEACF) and the Teaching Quality Enhancement Fund. The funding has now been mainstreamed and the intention is that institutions will decide how they continue to support student/staff volunteering through their block grants.

From 2002 to 2006 at least 60,000 people benefited from HEACF volunteer projects. The funding was focussed on helping HEIs to develop and grow volunteering opportunities to build closer links with the community and to help students further develop their employability and generic skills. HEFCE provided HEIs with guidance in support of this funding stream.

The Higher Education Academy's Annual Volunteer Awards recognises the important contribution of volunteering undertaken by staff and students in institutions.

Train to Gain Programme: Darlington

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people living in Darlington constituency have participated in the Train to Gain programme in each of the last three years. [258259]

Mr. Simon: Table 1 shows the number of Train to Gain starts in the parliamentary constituency of Darlington, in each academic year from 2005/06 to 2007/08.

Table 1: Train to Gain starts in 2005/06 to 2007/08

	Darlington constituency	All Train to Gain starts
2005/06	100	32,400
2006/07	460	206,300
2007/08	620	331,800

Notes:
1. Parliamentary constituency is based on learner's home postcode.
2. Numbers for Leeds West have been rounded to the nearest 10.
3. Numbers for England have been rounded to the nearest 100.
4. Train to Gain was created in April 2006. Therefore, figures for 2005/06 only include the months of April to July 2006.

WBL ILR

Train to Gain is the key service for supporting employers to invest in the future productivity and profitability of their businesses by investing in the skills of their employees. Train to Gain offers quality-assured, impartial advice from skills brokers, to help identify the business' skills needs at all levels and make the right, informed choices.

Vocational Training

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what schemes his Department has in place to assist with re-training people with more than five GCSEs. [258298]

Mr. Simon: The Department for Innovation, University and Skills assists people with more than five GCSEs wanting to re-train through the Train to Gain programme, apprenticeships and through further education provision. And all young people aged 19-25 are guaranteed fully funded training to achieve a level 3 qualification.

To meet the current and future demand for re-training as a result of the recession, flexibilities and additional funding have been introduced to give people the real help they need. Apprenticeships will be expanded by 35,000 places by 2009-10 funded by an additional £140 million. SMEs have priority for £350 million of Train to Gain funds to provide bite-size training in business critical areas, fully funded level 2 qualifications and subsidised level 3 qualifications, regardless of whether the employee already has a qualification at this level.

In addition, a joint package with DWP of £158 million has been made available for people who are currently facing redundancy or looking for work, and £83 million will provide high quality FE training places to around 75,000 people who have been out of work for six months or more.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Bankruptcy

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) bankruptcy orders and (b) individual voluntary agreements were issued in each year since 1996-97. [258120]

Mr. McFadden: The following table records the number of bankruptcy orders and individual voluntary arrangements (IVAs) in each financial year since 1996-97 in England and Wales.

Financial year	Bankruptcy orders[1]	IVAs[2]
1996-97	21,058	4,441

[2] Insolvency data for the current financial year are only available up to December 2008.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) bankruptcy orders and (b) individual voluntary agreements were recorded in (i) Winchester, (ii) Hampshire and (iii) England in each of the last three years. [258223]

Mr. McFadden: Table 1 shows the number of (a) bankruptcy orders and (b) individual voluntary arrangements recorded in (i) Winchester, (ii) Hampshire and (iii) England in each of the last three years. Regional figures are not yet available for 2008.

		2005	2006	2007
Bankruptcy orders	Winchester	99	107	113
	Hampshire	1,809	2,334	2,179

	England	18,537	40,635	39,084

Notes:
1. Classifying insolvent individuals into administrative geographies is done using the postcode that the person provides.
2. Inaccurate or missing postcodes mean that the numbers in the table will be subject to an element of missing data. Nationally, this proportion has been decreasing from about 12 per cent. in 2000 to less than 4 per cent. in 2007.
3. Figures for Hampshire include Isle of Wight.

Bankruptcy: Greater London

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many people were declared bankrupt in (a) Putney, Roehampton and Southfields, (b) Wandsworth and (c) London in each of the last 10 years. [258362]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 25 February 2009]: The following table shows the number of bankruptcy orders recorded in (a) Putney, Roehampton and Southfields, (b) Wandsworth and (c) London in each year from 2000-07. Regional figures are not yet available for 2008, nor for years prior to 2000.

2. Inaccurate or missing postcodes mean that the numbers in the table will be subject to an element of missing data. Nationally, this proportion has been decreasing from about 12 per cent. in 2000 to less than 4 per cent. in 2007.

Business: Government Assistance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many loans he estimates will be taken out under the Working Capital Scheme in the next 12 months; and what estimate he has made of the average value of such loans. [252244]

Ian Pearson: The working capital scheme is not available directly to businesses. The scheme enables participating banks to increase the amount of working capital they can make available to businesses.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to support (a) manufacturing industry, (b) the retail sector, (c) small businesses, (d) motor traders and (e) business start-ups; and if he will make a statement. [254476]

Ian Pearson: The Government are taking a range of steps to help businesses through the current economic downturn to boost capital and liquidity in the market. This is across all sectors of the economy. Key measures include the reduction in VAT, the introduction of a new Enterprise Finance Guarantee to support up to £1.3 billion of bank lending, a separate £10 billion guarantee facility to support further working capital bank lending, a £75 million Capital for Enterprise Fund to convert businesses' debt into equity and £25 million of regional funds.

There is also an extensive range of support for anyone considering starting their own business at:

http://www.businesslink.gov.uk

On manufacturing, the Government launched their new Manufacturing Strategy in September last year. It focuses on what the sector needs for success in the long-term—including seizing the opportunities of the low carbon economy, supporting skills, realising overseas opportunities and improving the perception and understanding of manufacturing.

It builds on existing areas of support such as R and D Tax Credits, the Technology Programme and the Manufacturing Advisory Service (MAS). MAS is monitoring the situation for small manufacturing companies and responding flexibly with suitable advice to help companies. We are also piloting increased support for MAS in the West Midlands.

In the longer term, we are ensuring that the policies within the Manufacturing Strategy work to bolster UK manufacturing and deliver the foundations of 21st century success such as world-leading R and D and a highly skilled work force.

The retail sector also has access to the package of help on offer. For example, 1,876 retailers/wholesalers and repair shops have, since October, benefited from a Business Link "Health Check". This is just one of the many schemes that can be accessed via the portal at:

www.businesslink.gov.uk/realhelp

On support for motor traders, I refer my hon. Friend to the statement I made on the automotive sector on 27 January 2009, Official Report, columns 165-67.

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much and what proportion of their budget was spent by each regional development agency on supporting (a) high technology businesses, (b) science, technology, engineering and mathematics skills, (c) innovative procurement and (d) social innovation and social enterprise in each year since 2005. [258999]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 26 February 2009]: The RDAs do not record expenditure as requested. Furthermore, to separate out this data would incur disproportionate cost.

Capital for Enterprise Fund

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will place in the Library a copy of the business plan for the Capital for Enterprise Fund. [254603]

Ian Pearson: The Capital for Enterprise Fund is a commercial investment fund which will be governed by a commercial limited partnership agreement between the fund manager and the investors in the fund. What the fund will do will be specified in the partnership agreement, summarised as follows:

The Capital for Enterprise fund will provide £75 million of equity, made up of £50 million Government funds and an additional £25 million from high street banks.

The fund will provide equity and quasi-equity of £250,000 to £2 million for companies under the EU SME definition, that is those with turnover of up to €50 million who have viable business models and growth potential in need of long term capital.

Risk will be shared equally between Government funds and those committed by banks.

Construction: Finance

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the effect on the construction and associated industries of reductions in credit insurance cover; and if he will make a statement. [258759]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 25 February 2009]: The reduction of credit insurance can exacerbate financial difficulties already being felt by firms. The Department is discussing the issue of reduction of credit insurance with industry.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Dr. Cable: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will estimate his Department's expenditure on the Export Credits Guarantee Department in each financial year from 2009-10 to 2014-15. [257650]

Ian Pearson: ECGD is self-funding and funds its operations out of the premium it charges for its support to exporters and the interest it charges on un-recovered claims.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much his Department's central media and communication unit spent on public surveys in each of the last three years. [247924]

Mr. McFadden: Public surveys are not procured through this Department's central communications directorate but, rather, across the business. Such information could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, the following figures are available relating to expenditure on public surveys procured through the Central Office of Information (COI) in the last three full financial years:

2007-08
Omnibus on nuclear attitudes	7,970
Consumer protection	34,700
Public attitudes to science research	68,100
Pregnancy leaflet awareness	17,100
Renewable energy	14,600
Total	142,470
2006-07
Renewable energy	14,000
Public attitudes to science research	29,800
Total	43,800
2005-06
Consumer direct	181,650
Renewable energy	23,375
Total	205,025

Export Credits Guarantee Department: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by the Export Credits Guarantee Department is in 2008-09. [258524]

Ian Pearson: ECGD does not own any property.

Government Departments: Procurement

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many contracts have been awarded through the supply2.gov website in each year since its creation; and what proportion of them were awarded to small and medium-sized enterprises. [253636]

Ian Pearson: The supply2.gov.uk site offers consolidated access to public sector opportunities and allows businesses to search and view open lower-value contract opportunities in a single place. The portal seeks to bring a greater level of transparency to public sector opportunities, enabling more small businesses to access opportunities that had historically been difficult to identify. It does not measure contract awards and consequently no estimate of the number of contracts awarded, or the proportion won by SMEs, through the site are available.

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many contracts have been awarded through the CompeteFor website in each year since its creation; what proportion of those contracts were awarded to small and medium-sized companies; and if he will make a statement. [253637]

Ian Pearson: The CompeteFor portal was only launched a year ago. It is early days in terms of contract opportunities as it is designed to capture contracts predominantly in the Olympic supply chain. 217 opportunities have been awarded that have been advertised on CompeteFor and 60 per cent. of these were to companies on CompeteFor. 82 per cent. of the contracts awarded to CompeteFor companies were to SMEs. In total 1,700 opportunities have been posted on CompeteFor and 850 of these opportunities have been posted since 10 December 2008.

Greater Manchester

Mr. Hands: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1311W, on departmental official visits, how much the agency which deals with overnight accommodation for his Department charged for hotel accommodation costs in Manchester on 7 January 2009. [258927]

Mr. McFadden: £129 per night.

Honours

Mr. Hands: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what meetings the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has had with members of the Honours Committees since his appointment. [251066]

Mr. McFadden: Honours Committees are composed of civil servants and independent members. Of the independent members, my noble Friend, the Secretary of State has had one meeting, to discuss BERR issues, with Professor Sir George Bain. He has had various meetings with some of the civil servants on the Honours Committees (including his permanent secretary): none of them have been to discuss the Honours process.

Israel: Arms Trade

Mark Williams: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether his Department has carried out investigations to determine whether export licences have been granted inappropriately for unmanned aerial vehicles used in the Gaza conflict. [257362]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 24 February 2009]: The UK operates a licensing system built around pre-licensing risk assessment. All export licence applications are rigorously assessed on a case by case basis against the Consolidated

EU and National Arms Export Licensing Criteria and any other relevant announced policies. Assessments of applications take account of all available information at the time of the application, including information about the situation in the receiving country. HMG seeks advice on export licence applications, as appropriate, from its advisors in diplomatic posts overseas, including for Israel.

Licences will not be issued if any of the Consolidated EU and National Arms Export Licensing Criteria would be breached by doing so. However, the Government reassess licences that are in force if circumstances change significantly in the destination country and can revoke these licences if, in the light of those changed circumstances, they assesses that the export covered by the licence would breach any of the criteria.

Keep Our Future Afloat Campaign

Mr. Maude: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East of 27 October 2008, Official Report, column 722W, on the Keep our Future Afloat campaign, to which bodies the North West Regional Development Agency provided funding to be used by the Keep our Future Afloat campaign. [258658]

Mr. McFadden: The north west regional development agency (NWDA) funding in support of Keep our Future Afloat Campaign (KOFAC) was paid direct to Furness Enterprise Limited who acted as Secretariat for KOFAC. Those funds were subsequently paid to the shipyard unions for KOFAC activity to attract naval jobs to the region outlined in my previous response to the right hon. Member on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 454W.

Motor Vehicles: Industry

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what progress his Department has made in discussions with the automotive industry on assistance for motor companies and their subsidiaries in the provision of finance for vehicle purchases. [258896]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 26 February 2009]: My noble Friend, the Minister for Trade and Investment, is exploring what solutions can be found to enable the car finance industry to access credit. He is consulting with a range of interested parties, including the Bank of England, banks and the motor finance industry.

Ofcom: Correspondence

John Penrose: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when the Chief Executive of Ofcom will reply to the hon. Member for Weston-Super-Mare's letters of 15 October 2008, 28 November 2008 and 5 January 2009 on behalf of his constituent, Mr Nicholas Carey-Harris. [256339]

Mr. McFadden: The Office of Communications (Ofcom) has informed me that they responded to the hon. Member's correspondence on 10 February 2009. I understand they also contacted him to explain and apologise for the delay.

Regional Venture Capital Funds

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many firms have received funding from each of the Regional Venture Capital Funds (RVCFs) in each year since the funds were established; how much was lent by each RVCF in each of those years; how many applications for funding were declined by each RCVF in each of those years; and if he will make a statement. [253635]

Ian Pearson: The RVCF programme was introduced to help address the equity gap for small and medium sized firms with growth potential seeking investment support up to £660,000.

At the end of September 2008, regional venture capital funds (RVCF) had invested a total of £126,704,755 in 346 firms. A break down of investment by each RVCF for each year since their creation is provided in the following tables. All of the funds have now reached the close of the investment period and therefore no further new investments will be made.

Consistent data on the approaches made by firms to funds that did not receive support are not available.

Small Business: Credit

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on access to credit for small businesses. [255830]

Ian Pearson: BERR Ministers and officials regularly have discussions with Her Majesty's Treasury on a range of issues including access to credit for small businesses.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how often the panel established to monitor lending to small businesses has met since it was convened. [256165]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 11 February 2009]: Officials from BERR, HMT and the Bank of England meet to monitor lending to small businesses on a monthly basis, and started in November 2008.

Small Businesses: Bank Services

Lindsay Roy: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to improve the flow of credit to small businesses. [253480]

Ian Pearson: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Glasgow, Central (Mr. Sarwar) on 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 1456W.

Small Businesses: Procurement

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate his Department has made of the number of small and medium-sized enterprises registered with the Supply2.gov.uk website in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; what projection he has made of the equivalent figure for 2008-09; and of these, how many renewed their annual registration in each such year. [246767]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 12 January 2009]: No figures are available for businesses registered on supply2.gov.uk. The number of supplier user registrations in 2006-07 and 2007-08 was 42,766 and 31,352 respectively. The projected number of supplier user registrations in 2008-09 is 55,834. There is no annual requirement on users to renew the free local location access.

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate his Department has made of the amount paid to Supply2.gov.uk in subscription fees for (a) Free Location Service, (b) Regional Area Service, (c) Home County Service and (d) National Service in (i) 2006-07, (ii) 2007-08 and (iii) 2008-09." [246768]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 12 January 2009]: The supply2.gov.uk service was let under a concession type contract, following a competitive tender. All the commercial risk is borne by the operator. The contract only requires the contractor to provide information on revenues where these exceed an annual threshold. This provision has not so far been triggered during the course of the current contract.

VAT: Channel Islands

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the number of businesses which have closed as a result of competition from businesses on the Channel Islands which operate under value added tax exemption rules; and if he will take steps to compensate those businesses which have closed. [256806]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

No such estimate has been made. In practice it is unlikely to be possible to attribute reliably the closure of any particular business to one specific factor.

Waterford Wedgwood

Mr. Cash: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he last met representatives of (a) Waterford Wedgwood and (b) JCB; and what steps (i) he and (ii) Advantage West Midlands have taken to provide advice and assistance to each company. [247889]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 15 January 2009]: My noble Friend the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) spoke to JCB on 9 January 2009 and JCB was also present, as a representative of the construction equipment sector, at the meeting between the automotive industry and BERR Ministers on 27 November 2008. Support for the automotive sector has been the subject of much recent discussion and I refer the hon. Member to my reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Chorley (Mr. Hoyle) on 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1315W.

Advantage West Midlands (AWM) has been working with other regional partners to explore ways in which they could assist industry, including these two companies. This includes support for the work force (comprising training for the existing work force, as well as support for company staff facing redundancy), support for suppliers and exploring the potential for redevelopment of parts of the companies estates.

Since Waterford Wedgewood went into administration, AWM have approached the administrators to further the discussion. In addition, a Ceramics Task Group involving AWM has been called by the North Staffordshire Regeneration Partnership to discuss support to the wider ceramics industry.

Working Hours: Fire Services

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will hold discussions with Shropshire and Wrekin Fire Authority on the effect of proposed changes to the EU Working Time Directive on Shropshire's retained firefighters. [258263]

Mr. McFadden: The UK Government recognise that losing the individual's right to opt-out of the 48 hour working week as set by the working time directive, would have a detrimental effect on the hours which firefighters working the retained duty system could be available for duty, especially the substantial numbers who work full-time for their primary employer. Many other workers also use this important flexibility and so we remain firmly of the view that this right should remain. We, along with a majority of other member states will be fighting for the retention of the opt-out as this dossier progresses through the European negotiation process.

I am very aware of the widespread concern on this issue among retained firefighters. Officials both from this Department and the Department for Communities and Local Government have worked very closely with the Retained Firefighters' Union and will continue to keep them informed throughout the negotiations.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

10 Downing Street

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make it his policy to enable members of the public to purchase 10 Downing Street gift shop products. [258613]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer the Prime Minster gave to the hon. Member for Shipley (Philip Davies) on 13 October 2008, Official Report, column 881W.

10 Downing Street: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood of 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 467W, on 10 Downing Street: repairs and maintenance, on what date the works in 10 Downing Street associated with Westminster City Council planning application reference 08/00696/1884 were (a) started and (b) completed. [258616]

Kevin Brennan: The work was carried out during August and September 2008.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Norwood of 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 467W, on Downing Street: repairs and maintenance, (1) which external contractors were used to undertake the works in 10 Downing Street associated with Westminster City Council planning application reference 08/00696/1884; [258693]

(2) what the estimated budget for the works in 10 Downing Street associated with Westminster City Council planning application reference 08/00696/1884 was before commencement of the works. [258617]

Kevin Brennan: The procurement of facilities services across the Cabinet Office estate is provided by the total Facilities Management provider for the Cabinet Office. Expenditure figures for 2008-09 will be available after the end of the financial year, once the Cabinet Office accounts have been audited.

Cancer

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the most recent five-year cancer survival rates are in each primary care trust. [259386]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated February 2009:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the most recent five-year cancer survival rates are in each primary care trust. I am replying in her absence. [259386]

Cancer survival rates are only produced for specific cancers. A figure giving the overall survival rate for all cancer patients is not produced as it would not be meaningful to combine figures for disparate conditions having very different survival rates.

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) does not produce survival rates for individual primary care trusts. ONS regularly publishes five-year survival rates for patients resident in the 'Spearhead Group' of primary care trusts in England, compared with those for patients resident in the rest of England. These survival rates for ten cancers (bladder, breast, cervix, colon, lung oesophagus, ovary, prostate, rectum and stomach) are available on the Office for National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=14821

The lowest geographical area for which cancer survival rates are available are strategic health authority areas. Five-year survival rates for patients resident in government office regions, and strategic health authorities for eight cancers (bladder, breast, cervix, colon, lung, oesophagus, prostate and stomach) are available on the Office for National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=11991&Pos=9&ColRank=1&Rank=272

Charity Commission: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant property of the Charity Commission as recorded on the e-PIMS database at (a) Woodfield House and (b) Harmsworth House is in 2008-09. [258540]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the Charity Commission. I have asked the Commission to reply.

Letter from Andrew Hind, 27 February 2009

As the Chief Executive of the Charity Commission, I have been asked to respond to your written Parliamentary Question on vacant office space.

The Charity Commission has no empty property on which it is paying business rates. Our entry on e-PIMS reflects this.

I hope this is helpful

Civil Servants: Computers

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many Macbook Air computers are on offer to civil servants as part of the showusabetterway.co.uk competition. [250334]

Mr. Watson: Show us a better way was a competition to stimulate ideas on how to improve public services through information. The prizes were: a £60,000 fund to develop ideas further and £20,000 for working prototypes.

There was an additional prize of a Macbook Air for the best idea from a civil servant. This was to encourage participation online and to stimulate and reward innovation within the service.

The Cabinet Office will be awarding a Macbook Air to one civil servant for their winning idea of a school catchment area tool.

Computer Software

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the Government's policy on the use of open source software is. [258366]

Mr. Watson: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Ealing, Acton and Shepherd's Bush (Andrew Slaughter) on 25 February 2009, Official Report, columns 592-3W.

Conditions of Employment: Parents

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many parents of young children in (a) England, (b) Yorkshire and the Humber and (c) the City of York have requested flexible working. [257974]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question on how many parents of young children in (a) England, (b) Yorkshire and the Humber and (c) the City of York have requested flexible working. (257974)

The available information is provided in the attached table.

Estimates are taken from the Labour Force Survey (LFS) household datasets. These are based on the number of parents in employment who are working agreed alternative working arrangements. It cannot provide the numbers of parents that have requested such working arrangements.

Parents of young children have been defined as those having at least one child aged 0 to 4 years.

The LFS is a sample survey covering over 53,000 households in the United Kingdom in each three month period. As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Number of parents[1] with dependent children aged under five in employment[2] with agreed flexible work arrangement[3], April to June 2008, not seasonally adjusted

	Number (Thousand)
England	529
Yorkshire and the Humber	56
City of York	[4]

[1] Parents are defined as people with dependent children who are residents in their household.
[2] Excluding those on college-based schemes.
[3] Agreed work arrangement includes: flexible working hours, annualised hours contract, term time working, job sharing, nine day fortnight, four and a half day week and zero hours contract.
[4] Sample size too small to provide an estimate.

Departmental Databases

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether the IT division of the Cabinet Office has a list of each database maintained by or on behalf of the Cabinet Office. [258611]

Mr. Watson: The IT division of the Cabinet Office has a list of each database maintained by or on behalf of the Department. For information regarding this list, I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given by me to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1696W.

Departmental Public Appointments

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which of the public appointments for which his Department is responsible are due to be (a) renewed and (b) filled in the next 24 months; what the (i) remit, (ii) salary, (iii) political restriction, (iv) eligibility requirement and (v) timetable for each appointment is; and what records his Department keeps in respect of such appointments. [254234]

Mr. Watson: Information on appointments made by the Department published in the Cabinet Office Public Appointments Plans, is available at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/reports/public_bodies.aspx

Copies are also available in the Libraries of the House. The report for 2008 is due to be published shortly. More detailed information about individual appointments is set out in the relevant body's Annual Report. Vacancies may be advertised on the Cabinet Office Public Appointments website at:

www.publicappointments.gov.uk

The process for making a public appointment, including guidance on political activity and eligibility criteria, follows the Cabinet Office publication "Making and Managing Public Appointments". For appointments regulated by the Commissioner for Public Appointments, the appointments process also complies with the "Code of Practice for Ministerial Appointments to Public Bodies". Copies are in the Libraries of the House.

Departmental Video Recordings

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the Answer of 14 January 2009, Official Report, columns 745-6W, on departmental video recordings, how much expenditure the Cabinet Office incurred in payments to each company in the last 12 months; and what the (a) title and (b) purpose of the video produced was in each case. [257488]

Mr. Watson: The Department has not used any of the companies on the list provided by the chief executive of the Central Office of Information.

Disadvantaged

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether the proposed new duty for the public sector to address social inequality contained in the New Opportunities White Paper is to apply to (a) executive agencies and (b) non-departmental public bodies. [258612]

Kevin Brennan: The Government are talking with interested parties about the concept and design of a duty to address socio-economic inequality, ahead of deciding whether to legislate. No decisions have been taken as to which public bodies the proposed duty might apply to.

Employment Level: Private Sector

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many British citizens were employed by the private sector in (a) 1997 and (b) the most recent year for which figures are available. [258597]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated February 2009

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many British citizens were employed by the private sector in (a) 1997 and (b) the most recent year for which figures are available (258597). I am replying in her absence.

The available information for UK nationals aged 16 and over is provided in the attached table.

The estimates are derived from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). These estimates are based on the respondents' views about the organisation for which they work. Citizenship is defined as the nationality reported by the respondents at the time of the survey.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

The figures have been derived from the LFS microdata which are weighted using the official population estimates published in autumn 2007. Consequently the 2008 estimate is not entirely consistent with the figures published in the monthly Labour Market Statistics First Release, which are weighted using more up-to-date population estimates.

UK nationals aged 16 and over employed in the private sector[1,2], three month period ending December, 1997 and 2008, United Kingdom, not seasonally adjusted

	Thousands/Persons
1997	19,724
2008[3]	*20,212

[1]It should be noted that private sector estimates are based on survey respondents' views about the organisation for which they work
[2]Includes self-employed and unpaid family workers
[3]Coefficients of variation have been calculated for the latest period as an indication of the quality of the estimates, as described below:
Guide to Quality:
The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV - for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220.
Key Coefficient of Variation (CV) (%) Statistical robustness
* 0 = CV <5 Estimates are considered precise.
 5 = CV <10 Estimates are considered reasonably precise.
 10 = CV < 20 Estimates are considered acceptable.
* CV = 20 Estimates are considered too unreliable for practical purposes.
It should be noted that the above estimates exclude people in most types of communal establishment (e.g. hotels, boarding houses, hostels mobile home sites etc)

Government Communications Network

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many individuals are members of the Government Communications Network. [241771]

Mr. Watson: The Government Communications Network is not a membership organisation. It is primarily an online network of professional communicators.

Any civil servant who considers all or part of their job to be communication can register online to gain access to GCN and the resources it provides through its website.

Government Departments: Internet

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent on transformational government projects in each year since 2005. [258333]

Mr. Watson: We do not hold this information centrally. However, in relation to the Cabinet Office's ICT expenditure I refer the hon. and learned Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Cardiff, Central (Jenny Willott) on 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 392W. More widely, the Cabinet Office publishes an annual report on Transformational Government which contains summary information about expenditure across Government Departments represented on the CIO Council. The reports for 2006 and 2007 can be found online on the CIO website:

www.cio.gov.uk

and copies are available in the Libraries of the House.

Government Departments: Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many full-time equivalent staff were employed in each (a) Government department, (b) executive agency and (c) non-departmental public body in (i) 1996-97 and (ii) the most recent year for which figures are available. [258593]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated February 2009:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning how many full-time equivalent staff were employed in each (a) Government department, (b) executive agency and (c) non-departmental public body in (i) 1996-97 and (ii) the most recent year for which figures are available, according to records held by (A) the Cabinet Office and (B) the Office for National Statistics. I am replying in her absence. (258593).

Estimates of employment for the home civil service from Q3 2004 onwards are taken from the Civil Service element of the Quarterly Public Sector Employment Survey (QPSES). These are the official employment estimates used by both the Cabinet Office and the Office for National Statistics. Estimates prior to this date are based on results from the Civil Service Statistics publication (Mandate collection), undertaken by Cabinet Office.

The number of full-time equivalent staff employed by government departments and executive agencies in 1996-7 was published by Cabinet Office and is available on- line: http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/documents/pdf/stats/css97.pdf

The number of full-time equivalent staff employed by government departments and their executive agencies are published on a quarterly basis by the Office for National Statistics. The most recent data are for Quarter 3 2008 (Annex A).

Estimates of employment for individual non-departmental public bodies are not published by either Cabinet Office or the Office for National Statistics.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many instances of the misuse of Government procurement cards within the Cabinet Office have been recorded in each of the last three years. [258609]

Kevin Brennan: There have been no cases recorded of the misuse of Government Procurement Cards within the Cabinet Office in the financial years 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08.

Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Chichester of 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 582W, which expert advisers other than those formally appointed as special advisers have been commissioned by his Department since June 2007. [258656]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested is not held centrally and cannot be obtained without incurring disproportionate costs.

Non-Departmental Public Bodies: Expenditure

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will publish figures for the total expenditure by each (a) advisory and (b) executive non-departmental public body in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08. [258731]

Mr. Watson: This information is not held centrally. Information on expenditure by individual non-departmental public bodies is published by relevant sponsoring departments. More detailed information is published in individual bodies' annual reports and accounts.

Non-Departmental Public Bodies: Pay

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the wage bill was of each non-departmental public body in (a) 1996-97 and (b) the most recent year for which figures are available. [258592]

Mr. Watson: This information is not held centrally. Detailed information on staff costs is published in individual bodies' annual reports and accounts.

Private Detectives

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the Answer of 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 873W, on private detectives, on how many occasions since January 2003 individuals from the panel of independent investigators have been used to undertake internal investigations; and how long each such investigation lasted. [258621]

Mr. Watson: It has been the practice of successive Governments not to comment on the conduct of leak investigations.

Private Sector: Pay

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the mean wage of a full-time (a) private and (b) public sector worker was in each year since 1996-97. [258618]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK statistics authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the mean wage of a full-time worker in (a) the private sector and (b) the public sector was in each year since 1996-97. (258618). I am replying in her absence.

Levels of earnings are estimated from the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE), and are provided for all full-time employees on adult rates of pay, whose pay for the survey period was not affected by absence. The ASHE, carried out in April each year, is the most comprehensive source of earnings information in the United Kingdom.

I attach a table showing the mean gross weekly earnings for all full-time employees in the private and public sector from 1997 to 2008.

Statistics and Registration Service Act 2007

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans he has to introduce secondary legislation to facilitate data sharing under the Statistics and Registration Service Act 2007 apart from the draft Statistics and Registration Service Act 2007 (Disclosure of Pupil Information) (England) Regulations 2009. [258713]

Kevin Brennan: The UK Statistics Authority has approved plans to take forward a number of data sharing measures that require secondary legislation.

In respect of the disclosure of information to the Office for National Statistics (ONS) by another public authority, there are plans for secondary legislation to share information on students in higher education (for improving population statistics), information from the Value Added Tax System (to reduce the reporting burden on business) and information from the Joint Unemployment and Vacancies Operating System (again to reduce the burden on business).

In respect of disclosure by ONS to other public authorities, there are plans for secondary legislation to disclose information from the Interdepartmental Business Register to the Bank of England. There are also plans for secondary legislation to disclose information from this source to the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment in Northern Ireland, although this will not require legislation in the UK Parliament.

Statistics: Employment

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether staff employed by (a) the Carbon Trust, (b) Envirowise, (c) the Energy Savings Trust, (d) Network Rail, (e) the regional development agencies and (f) UK Financial Investments Ltd., are deemed to be part of (i) the civil service, (ii) central Government and (iii) the public sector, for the purpose of Office for National Statistics sector employee headcounts. [258598]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK statistics authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning whether staff employed by (a) the Carbon Trust, (b) Envirowise, (c) the Energy Savings Trust, (d) Network Rail, (e) the Regional Development Agencies (RDAs) and (f) UK Financial Investments Ltd, are deemed to be part of (i) the Civil Service, (ii) central government and (iii) the public sector, for the purpose of Office for National Statistics sector employee headcounts. (258598). I am replying in her absence.

The Office for National Statistics collects employment statistics for the public sector, as part of the Quarterly Public Sector Employment Survey (QPSES). I can confirm that staff employed by the Carbon Trust, Envirowise, the Energy Savings Trust, Network Rail and UK Financial Investments Ltd are not currently deemed to be part of the Civil Service, central government or the public sector for the purpose of Office for National Statistics sector employee headcounts.

Regional Development Agencies (RDAs) are included in total public sector employee and central government headcounts. They are not deemed to be part of the Civil Service.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether staff employed in (a) non-Ministerial departments and (b) non-departmental public bodies are deemed to be part of (i) the Civil Service, (ii) central government and (iii) the public sector, for the purpose of Office for National Statistics sector employee headcounts. [258599]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated February 2009:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning whether staff employed in (a) non-ministerial departments and (b) non-departmental public bodies are deemed to be part of (i) the Civil Service, (ii) central government and (iii) the public sector, for the purpose of Office for National Statistics sector employee headcounts. (258599). I am replying in her absence.

The Office for National Statistics collects employment statistics for the public sector, as part of the Quarterly Public Sector Employment Survey (QPSES).

Staff employed in non-ministerial departments are deemed to be part of the Civil Service, central government and public sector for the purpose of Office for National Statistics sector employee headcounts.

Most non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) are classified to the central government sector and are included within estimates of total public sector employee headcounts. However, some NDPBs are also public corporations—the staff employed by these NDPBs are not deemed to be part of central government for the purpose of Office for National Statistics sector employee headcounts, but are included within total estimates of public sector employment and some within the Civil Service employee headcount totals (depending on the employment status of their employees). Most executive NDPBs are non-Crown, as such any staff they employ are not civil servants (although some will have civil servants on loan or secondment). There are 3 exceptions—ACAS, the Health and Safety Executive and the new Child Maintenance Enforcement Commission. These 3 bodies are Crown NDPBs and their employees are civil servants and are counted as being in the Civil Service, central government and total public sector for the purpose of ONS sector employee headcounts.

VAT

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether value added tax (VAT) is charged on VAT-liable items in (a) the Cabinet Office and (b) 10 Downing Street staff canteens; and whether retail prices on VAT-liable items have been reduced since December 2008. [258614]

Kevin Brennan: The Prime Minister's Office forms an integral part of the Cabinet Office. All canteen facilities within the Cabinet Office are provided by external suppliers, and as commercial entities, they are required to apply VAT in line with HM Revenue and Customs policy. This includes applying the reduction from 17.5 per cent. to 15 per cent. introduced in December 2008.

Regional Ministers

Andrew MacKinlay: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what guidance he issues to departments on the facilities to be made available to assistants to regional Ministers; and if he will make a statement. [257438]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Cabinet Secretary provided guidance to departments on the support that can be provided to parliamentary assistants to Regional Ministers. A copy has been placed in the Library of the House. Information about the number of visits where assistants to Regional Ministers have used transport provided by Government Offices is not held centrally.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many phosphorus munitions have been used by NATO forces in Afghanistan in the last two years. [257014]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 24 February 2009]: The MOD does not hold information on NATO forces expenditure of phosphorus in Afghanistan in the last two years. NATO forces in Afghanistan use phosphorus munitions to produce a smoke screen to provide cover and thus protection for troops on the battlefield, and not in an anti-personnel capacity.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009 to the hon. Member for Dunfermline and West Fife, on Afghanistan: peacekeeping operations, what modifications will be made to the Merlin helicopters; and which company he expects to undertake such modifications. [259451]

Mr. Hutton: We will provide our Merlin helicopters with modifications appropriate to the environmental conditions and hostile threats which the Merlin force is likely to encounter in Afghanistan. These modifications will include the fitting of improved rotor blades to allow the aircraft to operate in hot and high conditions and changes to the aircraft's defensive aids suite. Details of this equipment is being withheld as its disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

All procurement will be undertaken by AgustaWestland as the prime contractor.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Merlin helicopters are being upgraded for operations in Afghanistan; and what the average cost of the upgrade is. [259664]

Mr. Hutton: It is envisaged that all 28 Merlin Mk3/3a helicopters will eventually be upgraded at a cost in the region of £50 million. This equates to an estimated average of £1.8 million per aircraft.

The number of aircraft to be deployed on operations in Afghanistan is being withheld as disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Air Force: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many training hours flying time RAF fast jet pilots were able to undertake on average in each year since 2004. [258877]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to reduce levels of overstretch in the armed forces. [258823]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: While the current situation is manageable it is recognised that the continuing level of operations means that the demands on our armed forces remain significant. While the overall manning situation is improving, there remain challenges in maintaining overall manning levels and significant shortfalls remain in some specific trades. Additional measures to reduce the burden on personnel include: reducing the level on non-operational tasking and ensuring all deployments are essential; regularly reviewing the scale and mix of personnel deployed; increasing recruitment and training; and providing financial and non-financial incentives including retention bonuses for certain trades or specialisations that are experiencing shortfalls and continuance of Service beyond the end of engagements. The Services are also undergoing a restructuring programme to rebalance force structures. The continuing drawdown from Iraq will also improve tour intervals and stretch.

Armed Forces: Training

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his Department's Minute of 17 February 2009, concerning a contingent liability for the costs associated with the Defence Training Review which was laid before the House on that date, if he will refrain from incurring the liability described in the Minute until (a) the Public Accounts Committee and (b) the Defence Committee have completed their consideration of the matter. [259513]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 27 February 2009]: Copies of the departmental minute were provided to the Clerks of the House of Commons Defence Committee and the Public Accounts Committee on 17 February in accordance with established procedures. It is the MOD's normal practice when laying a departmental minute concerning a contingent liability to provide copies to the two Committees to ensure that they have ample opportunity to raise any issues with Ministers if they wish.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) in-service dates and (b) current out-of-service dates are for each armoured vehicle type in the Marines. [259212]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Royal Marines operate two armoured vehicles:

	In-service date	Out-of-service date
Viking	2005	2024
Beach recovery vehicle	2003	2028

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the current out-of-service dates are for each armoured vehicle type in the Army. [259213]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The information is provided in the following table.

	Out-of-service dates	Remarks
FV430 Bulldog	2030	FV430 Mk2—2010
Challenger 2	2035	Challenger armoured repair and recovery vehicle—2040

Mastiff	—[1]	UOR procurement
Saxon	2012	—
Titan	2040	—
Trojan	2040	—
Vector	2019	—
Warrior	2025	—

Defence Estates: Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the letter to him from General Sir Richard Dannatt on the venue for shooting events at the London 2012 Olympics. [242082]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 10 December 2008]: I have placed a copy of the note on Bisley that Gen Sir Richard Dannatt passed to my predecessor in September 2008 in the Library of the House.

We remain committed to working with the London Organising Committee of the Olympic games to enable the shooting events at the 2012 Olympics and Paralympics to take place at the Royal Artillery Barracks, subject to there being minimal disruption to army personnel, their families, and to the operations of the Barracks.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his Department's Spring Supplementary Estimate, what the reasons are for the £170 million increase in RfR 1 subhead U2; and which assets have fallen in value. [258869]

Mr. Hutton: The 2008-09 MOD Spring Supplementary Estimates requested £170 million of net additional resources for non-cash Annually Managed Expenditure (AME). This covers a £200 million impairment charge due to the downward revaluation of land and buildings (reflecting current UK property market conditions); and also the downward revaluation of land and buildings planned for disposal by Defence Estates. The Defence Estates total holding of land and buildings is currently valued at £20 billion. This increased gross AME provision request was partially offset by a £30 million decrease resulting from a revised equipment impairment forecast.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will break down his Department's Spring Supplementary Estimates 2009-10 on the same basis as in the answer of 14 July 2008 to the hon. Member for Aldershot, Official Report, column 167W, on departmental public expenditure. [259452]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Hercules Aircraft

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the original expected usage was of each type of Hercules airlift aircraft airframes; when each type came into service; what the expected length of their service life was on entry into service; and what the present rate of airframe usage is. [259668]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Hercules C-130K entered service with the RAF in 1967. Because of the long period of time that has since elapsed, details of the original planned service life and usage of these aircraft are no longer held centrally. As at 31 January 2009 the Hercules C-130K fleet had undertaken a total of 7,527 flying hours in the current financial year.

The Hercules C-130J entered service with the RAF in 1999 with an expected service life of 30 years. Details of the original planned usage of these aircraft are no longer held centrally. As at 31 January 2009 the Hercules C-130J fleet had undertaken a total of 15,680 flying hours in the current financial year.

HMS Vanguard

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department estimates it will cost to repair damage to HMS Vanguard as a result of its collision with Le Triomphant in the Atlantic. [259194]

Mr. Hutton: It is too early to say.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how far HMS Vanguard was from other identifiable vessels at the time of its collision with Le Triomphant. [259195]

Mr. Hutton: I am withholding this information on the grounds of national security.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment his Department has made of the adequacy of sonar equipment on Royal Navy submarines as a result of the collision between HMS Vanguard and Le Triomphant. [259197]

Mr. Hutton: It is too early to say as we need to await the conclusions of the review of the incident.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how long his Department estimates repairs to the damage to HMS Vanguard as a result of its collision with Le Triomphant will take. [259201]

Mr. Hutton: It is too early to say.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many crew members were on board HMS Vanguard at the time of its collision with Le Triomphant; and what the (a) maximum and (b) minimum crew levels are for HMS Vanguard. [259220]

Mr. Hutton: I am withholding this information on the grounds of national security. The declared complement of a Vanguard class SSBN is 135.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the decibel sound pressure level (dBSPL) of HMS Vanguard's nuclear reactors' water pumps was (a) before and (b) at the time of the collision with Le Triomphant. [259221]

Mr. Hutton: I am withholding this information on the grounds of national security.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence at what speed HMS Vanguard was travelling at the time of its collision with Le Triomphant. [259222]

Mr. Hutton: HMS Vanguard was travelling at very low speed when it came into contact with FS Le Triomphant. I am withholding further information on the grounds of national security.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will undertake an investigation of whether the collision between HMS Vanguard and Le Triomphant has had any impact on the marine environment. [259223]

Mr. Hutton: The MOD takes this incident very seriously and a thorough review is under way. We will act on any lessons that might be identified. I can confirm that there has been no compromise to nuclear safety.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department has begun disciplinary action as a result of the collision between HMS Vanguard and Le Triomphant. [259224]

Mr. Hutton: No disciplinary action has been initiated as a result of the collision between HMS Vanguard and FS Le Triomphant. However, the MOD takes this incident very seriously and a thorough review is under way. We will act on any lessons that might be identified.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions his Department will have with its French counterpart on investigation of the collision between HMS Vanguard and Le Triomphant. [259225]

Mr. Hutton: It is too early to say as we need to await the conclusions of the review of the incident.

Military Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of (a) the total air transport and tanker aircraft fleet in service and (b) the air transport and tanker aircraft forward air fleet were fit for purpose in each year since 2001, broken down by aircraft type. [258870]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information requested for the C-17, Tristar, VC-10 and Hercules fleets is provided in the following table. 'In service' has been taken to mean the effective fleet, which covers all aircraft barring those which are redundant, declared as surplus or awaiting disposal. Aircraft in the forward fleet (FF) are those that are available to the front line command for operational and training purposes including those that are classed as short term unserviceable; aircraft undergoing scheduled depth maintenance or planned routine fleet maintenance are not included. Aircraft defined as fit for purpose (FFP) are those considered capable of carrying out their planned missions on a given date.

The information requested is not available prior to 2005. Numbers have been rounded to the nearest aircraft.

Nuclear Submarines

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many submerged collisions involving British nuclear submarines there have been since 2000. [259984]

Mr. Hutton: Since 2000 the following incidents involving submerged royal navy submarines have taken place: HMS Superb in May 2008, HMS Tireless in 2003, HMS Trafalgar in 2002 and HMS Triumph in November 2000. HMS Tireless hit an iceberg while on Arctic patrol. The remainder were all grounding incidents. All the vessels, apart from HMS Superb, which was decommissioned in October 2008, were repaired and returned to service.

Nuclear Weapons

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) whether the Mutual Defence Agreement 2004 has been amended to enable co-operation on the Reliable Replacement Warhead programme: [258415]

(2) whether the Mutual Defence Agreement 2004 has been amended to enable the Atomic Weapons Establishment at Aldermaston to (a) undertake and (b) host work on the Reliable Replacement Warhead programme; [258426]

(3) whether the Mutual Defence Agreement 2004 has been amended in order to (a) give the United Kingdom access to information on the use of control technologies and (b) enable the United Kingdom to participate in the Reliable Replacement Warhead programme. [258433]

Mr. Hutton: No. While the duration of the Mutual Defence Agreement (MDA) was extended by another 10 years (to 2014) in 2004, no extension to its scope was made then or since. In my reply to an earlier question by the hon. Member on 4 November 2008, Official Report, column 308W, I confirmed that following the exchange of letters between the then Prime Minister and the then US President in December 2006, enhanced collaborations are taking place between the United Kingdom and the United States under the MDA in support of the UK's nuclear stockpile stewardship programme and which contribute to the ongoing review of warhead options announced in the 2006 White Paper—"The Future of the United Kingdom's Nuclear Deterrent (CMD 6994)".

I am withholding the information about the detailed nature of these enhanced collaboration, in the interests of national security.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether staff at the Atomic Weapons Establishment Aldermaston follow similar concept design, development and production processes as in laboratories in the United States. [258425]

Mr. Hutton: There are a number of similarities in approach between the Atomic Weapons Establishment and their counterparts in the United States national laboratories. These include the management of research, the assessment of technology readiness, and the fundamentals of science-based stockpile stewardship in the absence of underground nuclear tests. However, our warheads are based on a wholly UK design and differ from US warheads in a number of areas.

Peacekeeping Operations: Defence Equipment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) equipment failure reports and (b) serious equipment failures have been recorded by his Department for each (i) armoured vehicle type and (ii) small arms equipment type in (A) Iraq and (B) Afghanistan in each year since 2004. [258881]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The number of equipment failure reports (EFRs) and serious equipment failures (SEFs) recorded are shown in the following tables:

The EFR System is the mandated system for equipment users to report failures, such as accidental damage, maintenance related failures and breakdowns, or the failure of an item fitted to the vehicle. It does not incorporate the results of subsequent investigations and therefore does not differentiate between what might later prove to have been a problem caused by operator error or damage sustained as a result of operations. Nor does this data record the severity of a failure which might have no discernible impact on operational capability or safety.

A SEF is defined as a failure or suspected failure that results in, or has the potential to result in personal injury, loss of life or serious damage. An EFR can become a SEF, so some of the figures in the SEF table relate to the same incident in the EFR table. SEF figures for 2004 are not readily available and could be obtained and analysed only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) whether the cost of replacing equipment which is destroyed or has become unserviceable on military operations in Iraq or Afghanistan is met from (a) his Department's core budget, (b) the contingency reserve or (c) another source; [259159]

(2) whether the cost of repairing equipment following military operations in Iraq or Afghanistan is met from (a) his Department's core budget, (b) the contingency reserve or (c) another source. [259160]

Mr. Quentin Davies: While on current operations, all equipment costs that result from a level of activity that is higher than that programmed in the core budget are funded by the Treasury Reserve.

Territorial Army: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the current (a) trained requirement, (b) actual strength and (c) numbers fit for duty is for each infantry battalion of the Territorial Army. [258879]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As at 1 January 2009, the trained requirement and actual strength of Territorial Army battalions was as follows:

Battalion	Trained requirement	Actual strength
3rd Battalion the Royal Anglian Regt	480	450
7th Battalion the Rifles	460	510
4th Battalion the Duke of Lancaster's Regt (King's Lancashire and Border)	500	560
3rd Battalion the Princess of Wales's Royal Regt (Queen's and Royal Hampshires)	460	320
3rd Battalion the Royal Welsh	460	370
7th Battalion the Royal Regt of Scotland	530	390
The London Regt	420	320
5th Battalion the Royal Regt of Fusiliers	460	360
4th Battalion the Parachute Regt	400	380
6th Battalion the Royal Regt of Scotland	430	270
4th Battalion the Mercian Regt	670	600
4th Battalion the Yorkshire Regt	530	400
6th Battalion the Rifles	480	380
2nd Battalion the Royal Irish Regt	430	410

Note:
Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.

Information on number of 'fit for duty' personnel is not recorded for the Territorial Army and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Trident Submarines

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps are being taken to prevent collisions between Trident submarines and other submarines in the future. [259196]

Mr. Hutton: The MOD takes this incident very seriously and a thorough review is under way. We will act on any lessons that might be identified.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what collisions between Royal Navy submarines and other vessels have taken place since 1997. [259229]

Mr. Hutton: There have been no collisions between Royal Navy submarines and other vessels since 1997 other than the recent incident involving HMS Vanguard and the French submarine Le Triomphant.

War Pensions

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of cases considered by the war pension appeal tribunals resulted in (a) the rejection of an application by the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency for an appeal and (b) a settlement in favour of the claimant for each of the last five years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [258188]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The proportion of cases under the War Pension Scheme (WPS) considered by the Pension Appeal Tribunal/First-tier Tribunal (PAT/FTT) over the last five years which has resulted in a rejected application is 64.4 per cent. and (b) a settlement in favour of the claimant is 34.9 per cent. Table 1 gives a detailed breakdown of rejected and successful appeals by calendar year.

Table 1: Percentages of rejected and successful appeals by calendar year[1]

	Percentage of:
	rejected appeals	successful appeals
2004	66.0	33.1
2005	64.6	34.4
2006	61.5	38.0
2007	64.9	34.5
2008[2]	65.0	34.7
Total[3]	64.4	34.9

[1] Percentages of appeals that resulted in a rejected or successful application do not add to 100 per cent. as each year there were a small number of cases where the assessment was reduced by the PAT/FTT. These cases are considered to have been overturned but are not rejected or successful.
[2] January to September
[3] 2004 to September 2008

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what proportion of decisions on claims made under the (a) war pension and (b) armed forces compensation scheme by the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency were overturned (i) at a tribunal and (ii) by the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency following a request from the claimant for a review of the decision in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [258189]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Over the past five years—1 January 2004 to 30 September 2008—there have been 86,220 claims with an outcome under the War Pension Scheme (WPS). During the same period there have been 3,925 decisions overturned at a Pension Appeal Tribunal/First-Tier Tribunal (PAT/FTT). However it is not possible to directly associate claims with subsequent appeals on the War Pension Computer System. Therefore, it is not possible to calculate (i) the proportion of decisions on claims made in any one year that are overturned at Tribunal.

Table 1 presents a breakdown of claims with an outcome between 1 January 2004 and 30 September 2008, by calendar year.

[2] This includes successful entitlement and allowance appeals, which can be made following first and second claims, and also assessment appeals, where the award can be increased or reduced.
[3] January to September

Claimants under the WPS have no statutory right to request a review. Therefore it is not possible to provide information on (ii) the proportion of decisions on claims overturned by the Service Personnel and Veterans' Agency (SPVA) following a request for a review from the claimant. However, any decision may be reviewed at any time on any grounds. If a claimant is dissatisfied with their outcome, they may lodge an appeal either with or without having previously requested a review. Information on reviews is not held centrally.

The Armed Forces Compensation Scheme (AFCS) was introduced on 6 April 2005 and unlike the WPS includes the right to ask for formal review (known as a reconsideration) of decisions. Between 1 November 2005 and 30 September 2008, there have been 6,000 claims with an outcome under the AFCS.

Any claims with a decision made between 6 April 2005 and 31 October 2005 were recorded on an interim system prior to the introduction of the Compensation and Pension System (CAPS). Data held on the interim system are not compatible with CAPS and therefore it is not possible to analyse this data.

35 decisions on claims under the AFCS have been overturned at Tribunal and 95 decisions on claims under the AFCS have been overturned following a request from the claimant for a reconsideration of the decision.

Table 3 presents a breakdown of claims with an outcome between 1 November 2005 and 30 September 2008, by calendar year.

[2] Claims with an outcome during one calendar year may have had an overturned appeal/reconsideration in a later year. Therefore the number of overturned appeals/reconsiderations in a specific year cannot be directly compared with the outcomes in that year.
[3] Of the 35 appeals overturned at Tribunal, fewer than five were subsequently overturned again by the Pension Appeal Commissioner/ Upper Tribunal (PAC/UT).

Written Answers to Questions

Tuesday 3 March 2009

WALES

Departmental Art Works

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales which works of art from the Government Art Collection each Minister in his Department has selected for display in a private office. [259433]

Mr. Paul Murphy: None

Departmental Data Protection

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether his Department uses WPA2 encryption protocol on all its wireless networks. [259808]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office does not operate any wireless networks.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what auditing his Department undertakes to ensure that IT security policies are being followed; and on how many occasions (a) IT security policies have been breached by employees and (b) a member of staff has been sanctioned for a breach of such policies in the last 12 months. [259809]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office's IT services are provided by the Ministry of Justice, which has in place safeguards and auditing capabilities to ensure that IT policies are being followed by staff. No members of Wales Office staff have broken IT security rules in the last 12 months.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's IT security hierarchy; [259810]

(2) what scanning for vulnerabilities his Department conducts of each of its IT devices; what method is used for IT device scans; and how many vulnerabilities have been detected as a result of such scans in the last 12 months; [259811]

(3) what IT security policy his Department has; what procedures are in place to ensure the policy is being followed; what his Department's policy is on encryption of data when they leave departmental premises; and what sanctions are in place for failure to comply with this policy. [259852]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office is provided with its IT services by the Ministry of Justice, which is responsible for IT security. Safeguards and audit capabilities are in place to ensure their policies are followed.

When leaving departmental premises, all data are required to be encrypted, and the capability to copy data onto removable media such as CDs or memory sticks is significantly limited. Staff found not to be complying with this policy risk disciplinary action.

Departmental Postal Services

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many and what percentage of letters sent by his Department were given to (a) the Royal Mail and (b) another postal services provider for delivery in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [259978]

Mr. Paul Murphy: All the Wales Office's external mail is handled by the Royal Mail. All mail addressed to other Government Departments is handled by the Government Car and Despatch Agency.

TRANSPORT

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy for his Department to sign the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258947]

Mr. Hoon: The Government welcomed the promise as a commendable initiative to raise awareness of the importance of effective data protection safeguards, particularly for those organisations with no similar commitments already in place.

The Government take data protection very seriously. Following the Cabinet Office Review of Data Handling Procedures in Government, Departments have implemented a raft of measures to improve data security.

The Ministry of Justice is considering actively with the Information Commissioner's Office how the promise might add additional value to those measures we have already signed up to. These include the Information Charters, the recommendations of the Data Handling Review and the Thomas/Walport Review and, of course, our legal obligations under the Data Protection Act and other legislation and regulations.

Departmental Leave

Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for which bargaining units in his Department (a) public and privilege days and (b) annual leave entitlements accrue during (i) ordinary and (ii) additional maternity leave. [258629]

Mr. Hoon: All bargaining units within the Department for Transport except the Vehicle Certification Agency, allow accrual of public and privilege days and annual leave during both ordinary and additional maternity leave. Vehicle Certification Agency allows accrual of annual leave only during both ordinary and additional maternity leave.

Departmental NDPBs: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by (a) his Department, (b) the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency, (c) the Driving Standards Agency, (d) the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency, (e) the Government Car and Despatch Agency and (f) the Highways Agency is in 2008-09. [258522]

Mr. Hoon: The requested information is as follows:

(a) Central Department	7,970
(b) Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency	5,405
(c) Driving Standards Agency	24,000
(d) Vehicle and Operator Services Agency	0
(e) Government Car and Despatch Agency	0
(f) Highways Agency	64,087

Departmental Publications

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the terms of reference of his Department's staff handbook streamlining project are. [258619]

Mr. Hoon: To review the staff handbook and people management policies to ensure they are up to date, comply with any changes in employment law and support the Department in achieving its objectives.

DVLA: Personal Records

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) customer case and (b) other files containing personal information have been lost by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [259391]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Individual cases are managed via an electronic casework system. This has been accredited to Government security standards and there has been no data loss from this system.

There are paper-based casework files that are held both at the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency HQ and its local offices. These files are managed locally and the cost of collecting information for lost or misplaced files would be prohibitive.

Park and Ride Schemes: Coastal Areas

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many park and ride schemes operate in English seaside towns; where such schemes are located; what recent assessment he has made of the viability of such schemes; what the average public subsidy provided for such schemes in 2008 was; and if he will make a statement. [260005]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold central data on park and ride sites located in seaside towns. Local authorities are responsible for funding most park and ride schemes, mainly through the integrated transport block, which the Department allocates to support local transport plans (LTPs). The funding is for local authorities to invest in transport capital works, including park and ride, according to their local plans and priorities. It totals £576 million for the 2008-09 period.

Local authorities also make appropriate assessment of the on-going viability of park and ride schemes. It would not be appropriate to initiate a specific nationwide audit of park and ride schemes on top of the other audit and reporting processes Government require from local authorities.

The Department does provide funding for major transport projects of over £5 million. In 2008, one major scheme in a coastal town for which there was a park and ride element received £16.2 million of Government funding. However only a small proportion of that amount would have been dedicated to the park and ride element.

Park and ride schemes play an important part in helping to tackle congestion in many localities. They are one of a range of policy tools suggested by the full guidance on the second local transport plans (2006 to 2011), published in December 2004 and shortly due to be revised for the next planning round.

Railways: Sussex

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will direct a redrafting of the timetable for rail services in Sussex to take account of the needs of rail passengers as part of the Sussex Route Utilisation Strategy. [259781]

Paul Clark [holding answer 27 February 2009]: Route Utilisation Strategies seek to balance capacity, demand (passenger and freight), operational performance and cost, to address the requirements of funders and all stakeholders. Network Rail is in the course of developing a Route Utilisation Strategy for Sussex, in conjunction with, and on behalf of, rail industry partners and wider stakeholders. It would be inappropriate for Government to issue directions.

Rolling Stock

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reason he has required Southern to transfer rolling stock to First Capital Connect from April 2009; and what assessment he has made of the consequences of this requirement for passengers on Southern's services. [259405]

Paul Clark [holding answer 27 February 2009]: The Thameslink programme requires the introduction of a new timetable on the 22 March. This timetable is necessary to enable major works to start at London Blackfriars.

The timetable requires additional dual voltage rolling stock, which are currently being delivered from Bombardier.

Bombardier are late in the delivery of these new trains, and as a short-term measure, Southern are supplying up to eight dual voltage trains to First Capital Connect.

Southern will operate additional single voltage trains that can be provided from other operators maintaining the levels of service provided.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to reallocate coaches from the Gatwick Express service to other services operated by Southern; and if he will take account of current passenger loading in the reallocation. [259406]

Paul Clark [holding answer 27 February 2009]: There are currently no plans to reduce the number of coaches forming each Gatwick Express train. The class 460 trains will remain eight-car stock and it is envisaged that the refurbished class 442 trains will remain in 10-car formation.

Until the December 2008 timetable change, the Gatwick Express fleet was formed of 64 class 460 vehicles dedicated to use on Gatwick Express services.

Since December 2008, in addition to the class 460 services, six peak Gatwick Express services have been extended to and from Brighton. These services have been enabled through the leasing and refurbishment of 85 class 442 vehicles. Due to delays in the refurbishment programme, some of the extended Gatwick Express services have been formed of Southern class 377 trains. However, from 16 March it is envisaged that class 377 stock will no longer be used on the extended Gatwick Express service.

It is planned that, if sufficient class 442 vehicles are delivered from the refurbishment programme, they will also be deployed on the Eastbourne to London Bridge route from the end of March.

Bids for the replacement South Central franchise have now been received and are in the process of being evaluated. Contained within the bid submissions are the bidders' plans to accommodate existing passenger loads and to provide for future demand, including details of the rolling stock that they propose to lease. The award of the franchise, and the commitments made by the incoming franchisee, are scheduled for announcement in early June.

Safer Roads Humber

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much public money has been paid to Safer Roads Humber to support the discharge of its objectives; from what sources such funding has been drawn; what rules are in place to ensure value for money from such funding; and if he will make a statement. [260007]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government have provided financial support for road safety activities to the four local highway authorities in the area covered by the Safer Roads Humber partnership. The local authorities are responsible for final decisions about how much funding to allocate to the Safer Roads Humber partnership. The funding the local authorities put into the partnership is subject to the relevant audit requirements placed on the local authorities.

The funding support provided to the local authorities in the Humber area relating specifically to road safety in 2008-09 is shown in the following table.

Local authority	Contribution to area based grant	Specific capital grant
East Riding of Yorkshire	613,041	136,398

North East Lincolnshire	297,395	66,169
North Lincolnshire	341,202	75,916

Wheel Clamping: Scotland

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made for the purposes of policy formulation of the efficacy of the prohibition of wheel clamping on private land in Scotland. [259756]

Paul Clark: Wheel clamping on private land in Scotland is a devolved matter for the Scottish Executive. Wheel clamping on private land in England is a matter for the Home Secretary.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Cars: Theft

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many car-jackings have taken place in each district command unit in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [260142]

Paul Goggins: That is an operational matter for the Chief Constable. I have asked him to reply directly to the hon. Member, and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland with reference to the answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1163W, on redundancy, what estimate has he made of the annual payroll savings resulting from staff exit schemes in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07, (c) 2007-08 and (d) 2008-09 excluding the cost of severance packages; and what estimate he has made of the equivalent figures for 2009-10. [254469]

Mr. Woodward: Further to the answer given on 25 November 2008, as corrected on 24 February 2009, Official Report, column 1MC, all staff referred to left the Northern Ireland Office on early retirement terms and not on staff exit schemes.

Local Government: Elections

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the reasons are for the postponement of the 2010 local council elections in Northern Ireland until 2011; and if he will make a statement. [260028]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Assembly recently passed legislation to reduce the number of councils in Northern Ireland from 26 to 11. This reduction is being implemented and it is planned that it will be in place by 2011. For this reason Parliament recently approved legislation to postpone the local elections previously scheduled for 2009 in Northern Ireland until 2011, so that the next local elections can be held under the new 11 council model.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Anti-Semitism: West Midlands

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will request the Chief Constable of the West Midlands to compile a report on the (a) number and (b) location of reported anti-Semitic incidents in the West Midlands since December 2008; and if she will make a statement. [256535]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government abhor all forms of hate crime including that of anti-Semitism. From April 2008 police forces have been collecting hate crime statistics, using the race, faith, disability or homophobic flag to indicate whether an offence is considered to be aggravated by these factors. These data are for intelligence purposes, to better understand any trends in hate crime and to target resources. These will include anti-Semitic hate crime.

Appropriate Adults

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times an appropriate adult has been called to a police station because of concerns that a suspect is mentally disordered or mentally vulnerable in each police force area in each year since 2000; and if she will make a statement. [251162]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not held centrally.

Asylum

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her Department's policy is on granting asylum to applicants who claim to have been persecuted by members of (a) another ethnic group and (b) armed groups operating unlawfully in their country of origin. [259321]

Mr. Woolas: Our policy in deciding whether to grant asylum is set out in the immigration rules.

In accordance with this policy, UK Border Agency case owners carefully consider asylum claims to determine whether the person has a well-founded fear of persecution on grounds of race, religion, nationality, political opinion or membership of a particular social group. This will include persecution by members of another ethnic group or armed groups operating unlawfully in the country of origin where the state authorities, or the organisation (including international organisations) controlling the state territory, are unable or unwilling to provide protection against persecution or serious harm and where the individual cannot reasonably be expected to avoid the persecution by relocating within the country concerned.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what documentation her Department provides to asylum seekers when they claim asylum after arrival in the UK; and what services such people are entitled to receive on arriving in the country. [259655]

Mr. Woolas: Asylum applicants and their dependants are issued with an Application Registration Card (ARC) on or after arrival in the United Kingdom, as an acknowledgement of an asylum claim made to the UK Border Agency. The card contains information about the identity and immigration status of the holder.

Asylum applicants are also issued with information sheets which set out the services they are entitled to receive for the duration of their claim. This includes health care, schooling for children and, subject to their financial circumstances, access to legal representation and benefits.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to expand the Gateway refugee programme; and if she will make a statement. [260094]

Meg Hillier: We have no plans to increase the quota from its current level.

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 9 December 2004, Official Report, columns 733-7W, to the right hon. Member for Birkenhead (Mr. Field) on asylum and immigration, how many asylum seekers have been dispersed to each parliamentary constituency in the latest two-year period for which figures are available. [260455]

Mr. Woolas: Information on the number of asylum seekers that have been dispersed to each parliamentary constituency over a two-year period is not collated centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Statistics on the location of asylum seekers in the UK are published in tables 5 and 6 of the quarterly bulletin Control of Immigration on the number of asylum seekers in receipt of support at the end of the quarter, broken down by Government office, region and local authority.

Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html.

Further break downs by parliamentary constituency are available from the Library of the House.

Asylum: Children

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to bring forward proposals to amend the Leaving Care Act 2000 to allow unaccompanied asylum-seeking children to return to their country of origin. [257209]

Mr. Woolas: None; the Children Act 1989 as amended by the Children (Leaving Care) Act 2000 has no effect on the return of unaccompanied asylum seeking children to their countries of origin.

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress her Department is making in relation to special authority status for local authorities who are dealing with unaccompanied asylum seeking children. [257215]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency will shortly be seeking proposals from local authorities, or groups of local authorities, setting out the numbers of unaccompanied asylum seeking children they could accommodate, and at what cost.

Bail

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many persons arrested were later released on police bail of (a) less than three months, (b) three to six months, (c) six to nine months, (d) nine to 12 months and (e) more than 12 months in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07; [259470]

(2) how many persons were (a) arrested, (b) arrested and later released on police bail and (c) arrested but not charged in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07; [259471]

(3) how many persons arrested and later released on police bail sought a court review of their bail conditions in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; and how many such bail conditions were subsequently (i) varied and (ii) rescinded in each of those years. [259472]

Mr. Alan Campbell: There were 1,429,800 persons arrested in England and Wales in 2005-06 and 1,482,200 persons arrested in 2006-07.

There is no link between the arrests data reported to the Home Office and any subsequent outcome, therefore data on those arrested and then released on police bail are not available.

Crime: Economic Situation

Mr. Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the likely effect of the recession on levels of (a) acquisitive crime, (b) violent crime, (c) fraudulent crime and (d) social disorder in (i) 2008-09 and (ii) 2009-10. [258579]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office monitors crime levels quarterly through published statistics, and more often through management data to inform performance discussions. However, crime levels fluctuate in the short term, and it is too early to draw firm conclusions about longer term trends and the influence of individual factors on crime in 2008-09.

Academic research, including a study by the Home Office, has demonstrated an association between changes in the economy and some crime. However, in looking at future crime, these studies cannot fully allow for the impact of policy or other interventions and hence do not predict actual levels of crime.

Since March 2003, overall property crime has fallen by 18 per cent., exceeding the 15 per cent. target set out in the Home Office's public service agreement. That reduction is greater than would have been forecast based on economic factors alone.

The Government have long-standing, sound systems and flexible policies in place to deal with crime. These have led to significant reductions: overall crime, as measured by the British Crime Survey, has fallen by 39 per cent. since 1997. They also mean that we are well placed to prevent future rises in crime. As the Association of Chief Police Officers pointed out in January, the Police Service has never been in a better and stronger position to meet challenges caused by the economic downturn. The Department is confident that these policies and systems provide the flexibility needed to respond to future economic challenges.

Detainees: Prostitution

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what mechanisms are in place to monitor the number of individuals who have worked as prostitutes and have subsequently been detained in (a) prisons and (b) immigration removal centres; and what schemes are available to offer support to such individuals. [258271]

Mr. Alan Campbell: This information is not available.

Firearms

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department is taking to prevent the (a) conversion to live fire of and (b) distribution of blank-firing firearms. [258492]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We are working with the police to tackle the supply of all firearms. An action day in November 2007 resulted in 124 arrests and the seizure of 10 real and over a thousand imitation firearms. We are also working with both the Serious Organised Crime Agency and HM Revenue and Customs, who have increased the priority and resources they focus on this issue, to prevent and detect illegal firearms entering the UK, including readily-convertible blank firers which are prohibited under the provisions of the Firearms Acts. Regulations are being prepared under section 39 of the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 setting out the specifications to which blank firing imitation firearms must conform.

Genetics: Databases

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1249-51W, on genetics: databases, how many and what proportion of recorded crimes have been detected using DNA from the national DNA database in each month since April 2008; and if she will make a statement. [251166]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The number and proportion of recorded crimes detected in which a DNA match was available for 2008-09 to date is shown in table 1. Data on the number of crimes detected with a DNA match are collected on a quarterly, rather than a monthly, basis. The figures provided are for quarters 1 and 2 of 2008-09; the quarter 3 figures are not yet available. Table 1 also includes projected figures for the full year 2008-09 which are based on the figures for quarters 1 and 2.

The figures for the number of crimes detected in which a DNA match was available only include crimes detected in which a DNA match was reported by the National DNA Database (NDNAD). They do not include DNA matches which arise through case work in serious crime, which usually involve comparing DNA profiles in a forensic laboratory; these data are not collected centrally. It is also important to note that the detections are achieved through integrated criminal investigation, not through DNA alone.

The presentation of crimes detected with DNA as a proportion of total recorded crime undervalues the relative contribution of DNA to the crime detection rate.

It should be noted that the majority of recorded crimes do not have a crime scene (for example, minor assault, drugs offences, theft, fraud etc.) and do not have a crime scene examination. In 2007-08, just over 854,000 crimes had a crime scene examination (17 per cent. of recorded crimes). In those crimes which have a crime scene examination, some do not yield any forensic material (DNA or fingerprints). In 2007-08, potential DNA material was collected at 102,400 crimes, and of these, 41,800 crimes yielded DNA crime scene samples of sufficient quantity and quality for profiling and loading to the NDNAD. Of the 41,800 crimes in which a crime scene sample profile was loaded, a match was generated in 37,375 crimes (this represents 89 per cent. of crimes where DNA material was loaded to the NDNAD).

The proportion of 'crimes detected in which a DNA match was available', of those, 'crimes where potential DNA material was collected' is shown in table 2.

Table 1

[1] Additional detections may result from the original crime with the DNA match due to the identification of further offences through forensic linkage or through admission by the offender.
[2] The projected figures for 2008-09 are based on the actual figures for quarters 1 and 2 of 2008-09 multiplied by two.

[1] Additional detections may result from the original crime with the DNA match due to the identification of further offences through forensic linkage or through admission by the offender.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 23 January 2008, Official Report, column 2062W, on genetics: database, what research projects utilising data from the national DNA database have been approved since 15 January 2008; and if she will make a statement. [251244]

Mr. Alan Campbell: No research projects using data from the national DNA database have been approved since the previous answer of 23 January 2008, Official Report, column 2062W.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many trafficked persons identified as such by (a) police forces and (b) other authorities in each of the last three years are subsequently known to have been trafficked further. [256250]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Figures on re-trafficking of victims are not held centrally. Analysis of the outcomes of Pentameter 2 is currently being undertaken by the UK Human Trafficking Centre and will provide a more up to date picture of the extent of trafficking into the UK and the threat of re-trafficking of victims.

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many trafficked (a) women and (b) children discovered through police operations against human trafficking in each of the last three years have subsequently been registered missing and are thought still to be in the UK. [256251]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Figures on the number of those identified as trafficked women who have absconded are not held centrally.

Under Operation Pentameter 2, police recovered 16 children, 13 of whom had been identified as potentially trafficked for sexual exploitation, none of whom have been reported as having absconded and three for forced labour, of which, one absconded with the other two remaining in local authority care.

Human Trafficking: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many officers in Essex Police Force have received training on the Council of Europe Convention Against Trafficking of Human Beings in the last three years. [254784]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The UK signed the Council of Europe Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings in 2007 and ratified it in December 2008.

The UKHTC are currently developing a short DVD to be distributed to police officers in all forces on the National Referral Mechanism which is a core element of the requirements of the Convention.

All police forces in England and Wales have sent officers to the training courses devised and delivered by the United Kingdom Human Trafficking Centre (UKHTC) and this work has been reinforced by the distribution of awareness raising material sent electronically to all police officers. The UKHTC in conjunction with the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) are also in the process of rolling out training modules on human trafficking to be included in mainstream police courses. All of this work involves an element of training specifically on the Convention.

Forces were additionally made aware of the requirements of the convention as part of Operation Pentameter 2 which included a trial of the national referral mechanism to be introduced from 1 April 2009.

Personation

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department is taking to prevent fraud against private enterprises by persons impersonating individuals known to be dead. [258288]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Under the Police and Justice Act 2006 and the Local Electoral Administration and Registration Services (Scotland) Act 2006, the Registrars General for England and Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland can disclose death registration information to assist in the prevention, detection, investigation or prosecution of offences.

Under the Disclosure of Death Registration Information (DDRI) scheme, the supply of death registration records to vetted organisations commenced on 6 October 2008. The scheme is administered by the General Register Office for England and Wales on behalf of the three Registrars General. Six organisations are currently in receipt of a weekly supply of death registration records, and further applications to receive the data are being processed. The information is being used to prevent and detect fraudulent applications for financial gain. Early results show that pension funds, banks and mortgage companies have been using these data to check against loan and credit card applications, insurance payouts and pensions.

The Identity and Passport Service (IPS) has for some years matched death data against passport records and identified a number of fraudulently issued passports, as well as stopping fraudulent applications made using such identities. Close liaison with law enforcement agencies in taking action against those responsible would include consideration of wider criminality, including the impact on private enterprise, particularly the financial sector.

Police Community Support Officers: Chorley

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers operating in Chorley borough are (a) funded wholly by Lancashire Police, (b) funded in part by Chorley Borough Council and (c) funded wholly by Chorley Borough Council. [259671]

Mr. Coaker: Information on contributions from local authorities to fund or part-fund PCSO posts is not collected centrally.

Police: Accidents

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police vehicles were involved in road accidents which resulted in (a) slight injuries, (b) serious injuries and (c) fatalities in 2007-08. [256742]

Mr. Coaker: Figures available centrally show the numbers of casualties and degree of injury in road traffic collisions involving police vehicles in emergency/pursuit. Figures for 2007-08 have been provided for 38 of the 43 police forces in England and Wales. They show that there were (a) 617 slight injuries, (b) 20 serious injuries and (c) one fatality.

The data provided here are a supplementary series collected on behalf and released with the approval of Her Majesty's inspectorate of constabulary (HMIC). These data are normally used for inspection purposes only.

Police: Conferences

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the cost of policing the G20 summit to be held in London in April 2009. [258886]

Mr. Coaker: This is a matter for the chief officers of the forces concerned.

Police: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 23 February 2009, Official Report, columns 165-66W, on police: finance, how much funding was allocated to each police force in each year from 2004-05 to 2009-10; and if she will make a statement. [260143]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is set out in the following table.

Police: Firearms

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many claims have been made against her Department for being dilatory in paying compensation under the compensation schemes under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 to a person who has surrendered firearms and ammunition to police following the introduction of the prohibition on the possession, manufacture and sale of weapons under the Act. [258937]

Mr. Alan Campbell: One ex gratia payment was made in respect of a particularly complex claim where certain payments could have been made earlier.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) weapons and (b) items of ancillary equipment handed into police forces following the entering into force of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 remain in the possession of police forces. [258938]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office has issued disposal notices in respect of all but 92 of the 72,000 claims received. It is for individual chief officers to keep records of such items still in their possession.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many owners of weapons and items of ancillary equipment handed into police forces following the entering into force of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 have not received payment under the compensation schemes introduced under the Act. [258939]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Payments have been offered to all claimants in accordance with the terms of the schemes.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many requests to police forces have been (a) made and (b) granted for the return of items deemed to be ineligible for compensation under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 compensation schemes. [258940]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is not held centrally.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her most recent estimate is of the residual liability to the public purse for payments under the compensation schemes introduced under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997. [258941]

Mr. Alan Campbell: It is not possible to estimate any residual liability since some claimants may wish to resurrect issues of concern. However, we believe that claimants have all been paid in accordance with the schemes.

Prosecutions: Greater London

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of serious crimes reported to the police led to prosecutions in each London borough in the last 12 months. [258493]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information is not available in the form requested. The Home Office collects statistics on the number of offences recorded by the police and the method of detection where appropriate. One of the methods of detection is 'charge/summons' but there is no way of establishing how many recorded offences actually led to a prosecution. Data specifically on defendants proceeded against are collected by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform in the Ministry of Justice.

Prostitution

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will commission research on the primary reasons for an individual to start working as a prostitute. [259204]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office consultation, Paying the Price, which was published in 2004 and informed the Co-ordinated Prostitution Strategy considered the issue of routes into prostitution. It drew on an extensive range of existing research which considered the reasons for persons' involvement in prostitution.

Prostitution: Local Government

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what mechanisms are in place to monitor local authority provision of services to individuals who work as prostitutes. [258310]

Mr. Alan Campbell: No such mechanisms exist.

Sex Establishments: Licensing

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to ensure that the frequency exemption contained in lap dancing licensing reforms is removed. [258987]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Clause 25 of the Policing and Crime Bill will require all venues that wish to offer lap dancing on a monthly basis or more frequently to hold a sex encounter venue licence. The Government believe that this would capture venues offering lap dancing events on a regular basis and therefore as part of their core business. However, in response to concerns raised during the committee stage in the House of Commons, the Government have agreed to look into these issues further and are currently considering whether any amendments are required.

Speed Limits: Fines

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many drivers were fined for speeding in each police force area in 2008; and how much was paid in fines for such offences. [256741]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The number of magistrates courts imposed fines for speed limit offences by police force area in England and Wales for 2007 are given in the following table. Court proceedings data for 2008 are scheduled to be published in the autumn of 2009.

It is not possible to identify separately the payment rate of fines arising from speeding offences. The latest enforcement rate for all financial penalties imposed by the courts is 85 per cent for the period April-December 2008.

In addition to court fines, police officers have the power to issue fixed penalty notices under section 54 of the Road Traffic Offenders Act 1988 for speeding offences. The decision as to whether to issue a fixed penalty notice is a matter for the police. Currently the amount payable for a fixed penalty notice for speeding is £60.

Information on the number of fixed penalty notices issued in 2006 (latest available) broken down by police force area is provided in table 2. Data for 2007 are scheduled to be published in April 2009 with 2008 data to be announced.

Treaty of Lisbon

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Metropolitan Police have informed her of accusations of malfeasance they have received about the Lisbon Treaty ratification against (a) the Prime Minister and (b) other members of the Cabinet; and if she will make a statement. [251061]

Mr. Coaker: The Secretary of State for the Home Department has not been informed by the Metropolitan Police Service of any such accusations of malfeasance in relation to the ratification of the Lisbon treaty.

The UK ratified the Lisbon treaty on 16 July 2008, following Royal Assent to the EU (Amendment) Act, which was received on 19 June 2008. The Act was passed after 25 days of detailed consideration in both Houses.

War Crimes

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance she has issued to police forces on steps to be taken following an arrest of a person suspected to be guilty of an offence related to the violation of the laws or customs of war; and if she will make a statement. [257443]

Mr. Coaker: Guidance on this issue is a matter for the Metropolitan Police Service and the Counter Terrorism Division of the Crown Prosecution Service. They have an agreed national protocol in place for the handling of war crimes and crimes against humanity.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what additional funding will be made available through the EU's economic recovery plan to rural development, with particular reference to training in environmental improvement. [258816]

Huw Irranca-Davies: As part of the proposed European Economic Recovery Plan, the Commission is proposing a €1.25 billion package of measures to be delivered through Member States' Rural Development Programmes, of which €1 billion will be dedicated to rural broadband infrastructure projects and €250 million to projects in support of the 'new challenges' agreed as part of the recent CAP Health Check (climate change, renewable energy, water management, biodiversity and dairy sector restructuring). No agreement has yet been reached in the Council of Ministers on this package. The Commission is proposing that this funding should be allocated in proportion to existing shares of rural development funding. The United Kingdom would therefore receive around €15 million in total. No decisions have yet been made on how this funding might be used, if the package is agreed.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) cattle infected by bovine tuberculosis and (b) calves born to cows infected by bovine tuberculosis have been slaughtered in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and how much was paid in compensation to their owners. [251282]

Jane Kennedy: The following table shows the number of cattle slaughtered under bovine tuberculosis (TB) control measures either as test reactors or direct contacts, and the amount of compensation paid, in England, in the last 10 years.

Data on the number of calves slaughtered because they were born to cows affected by TB is not centrally collated in electronic format and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

	Number of cattle slaughtered[1]	Compensation paid[2] (£ million)
2007	19,794	15.2
2006	16,007	18.1
2005	23,135	32.1
2004	17,306	23.1
2003	17,551	25.2
2002	18,443	20.8
2001	4,438	4.6
2000	7,190	5.7
1999	5,580	3.2

[1] Data regarding the number of cattle slaughtered as test reactors or direct contacts are taken from the Animal Health Database (Vetnet). Data for 2006-07 are provisional and subject to change as more data become available and as a result of data validation and cleansing.

[2] Compensation includes payments to farmers for 'reactors' and 'direct contact' animals which are compulsorily slaughtered. For 1999 onwards these data have been taken from the DEFRA Oracle Financial System. 1998 data are drawn from the 1998 report of the Chief Veterinary Officer and are not directly comparable to later years.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make it his policy for his Department to sign the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258952]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Government welcome the promise as a commendable initiative to raise awareness of the importance of effective data protection safeguards, particularly for those organisations with no similar commitments already in place.

The Government take data protection very seriously. Following the Cabinet Office review of data handling procedures in Government, departments have implemented a raft of measures to improve data security.

The Ministry of Justice is considering actively with the ICO how the promise might add additional value to those measures we have already signed up to. These include the information charters, the recommendations of the data handling review and the Thomas/Walport review and, of course, our legal obligations under the Data Protection Act and other legislation and regulations.

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff in his Department or its predecessors were on sick leave for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years. [256324]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The information requested for the core Department is shown in the following table.

	Number of staff
Total working days absent in year	2006	2007	2008
30-49	80	81	50
50-99	72	66	41
100 plus	48	25	29

Information for the Executive agencies and for earlier years could be provided only by incurring disproportionate cost.

DEFRA has a policy to promote health and wellbeing and reduce sickness absence for its employees. It manages long term sickness absences by facilitating timely employee access to occupational health advice, medical or wellbeing interventions. Individuals are also encouraged to return to work through the use of occupational health expertise that enables them to undertake a structured programme of recuperative duties. This helps employees return to full working hours and duties as quickly as possible.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff in his Department were recorded as having been on sick leave for over 12 months on 31 December in each of the last five years. [256631]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The information requested for the core Department is as follows:

2006	1

Information for the Executive agencies and for earlier years could be provided only by incurring disproportionate cost.

DEFRA's strategy for managing employee sickness absence over 12 months is to ensure that individuals receive necessary occupational health interventions. Their managers also receive timely medical and human resources advice and information. Employees are further supported in returning to work by undertaking a structured programme of recuperative duties, agreed with their manager and the occupational health service. This helps them return to full working hours and duties as quickly as possible.

Drinking Water

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of litres of bottled (a) sparkling and (b) still water consumed in England in each year since 2000; and what percentage was supplied in bottles made of (i) plastic, (ii) glass and (iii) other materials. [259495]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The following table shows the estimated number of litres of mineral water purchased in the UK in each year since 2001.

	Total UK purchases of mineral water (Million litres)
April to March each year
2001-02	747

From 2006, the Expenditure and Food Survey switched to a calendar year basis. It is not possible to resample earlier data on the same basis. It is also not possible to account accurately for wastage during consumption. DEFRA has no compatible population figures on which to calculate purchases on a national basis, therefore it is not possible to provide similar estimates for purchases in England. However, the following table shows the estimated average number of litres of mineral water purchased per person in England in each year since 2001.

Entry Level Stewardship Scheme

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to introduce new cross-compliance measures into the entry level stewardship agreement. [258820]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Compliance with single payment scheme cross compliance requirements has been a requirement for environmental stewardship agreements entered into from January 2007. Cross compliance changes to be introduced in January 2010 as a result of the recent CAP health check agreement, will apply to these environmental stewardship agreements. A public consultation on the health check changes will be launched later this year.

Environment Protection

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations he has received on the cost of implementation of those provisions of the Stockholm Convention relating to environmental protection. [258833]

Huw Irranca-Davies: We have received no recent representations on the cost of implementation of those provisions of the Stockholm Convention relating to environmental protection.

Farmers' Markets: Finance

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding is available under the England Rural Development Programme to support the establishment of farmers' markets in 2008-09. [260183]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Under axis 1 of the Rural Development Programme for England (RDPE) funding is available for opening new marketing opportunities for agricultural and forestry products, putting the emphasis on quality. Under axis 3 of the RDPE, funding is available for the promotion of tourism activities linked to quality regional and local food culture. It is for each region to determine whether the establishment of farmers' markets is a priority for them.

Fisheries

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will meet representatives of the small and under-10 metre fishing fleet from the Thames Estuary and East Anglia Coast to discuss his Department's policy on inshore fishing. [259609]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Following the December announcement on a package of measures designed to bring short-term stability to the English inshore fleet, a project—Sustainable Access to Inshore Fisheries (SAIF)—is now under way in DEFRA to develop a strategy for the fleet's long-term sustainability. Through the SAIF project, DEFRA officials and I will engage with a wide range of industry and community representatives over the next few months. We intend to arrange a series of meetings around the coast, and I would be pleased to include the Thames estuary and East Anglian coast as areas for inclusion in the meeting schedule.

Royal Botanic Gardens Kew: Fees and Charges

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the retail prices for (a) entry and (b) guided tours have been reduced at the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew as a result of the December 2008 reduction in value added tax. [258387]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew reviews its prices regularly, using other, similar visitor attractions as a benchmark. Initial plans to raise entry prices by 50 pence for this year have now been deferred, with prices held instead at 2008 levels. This is to reflect the recent reduction in value added tax.

Guided tours at the Royal Botanic Gardens are either free of charge or specifically priced to meet individual customer requirements.

Sewers: Fats

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if his Department will introduce measures to require commercial hot food premises to have a grease control system to prevent the entry of fats, oils and greases into the sewerage system; [259319]

(2) what steps his Department and its associated public bodies are taking to prevent the discharge of fats, oils and greases into the sewerage system from commercial hot food premises; and if he will make a statement; [259317]

(3) what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of local voluntary schemes for installing control measures in commercial hot food premises as a means of preventing the discharge of fats, oils and greases into the sewerage system. [259318]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

There is a general requirement in building regulations, and more generally other public health legislation, that drains should be constructed in such a way as to minimise the risk of blockage. Grease from hot food premises is acknowledged as a significant cause of drain blockages. Drainage is dealt with in part H of the Building Regulations and when the guidance was comprehensively revised in 2002 additional guidance was added about the provision of grease control measures to hot food premises. Where drains malfunction, building legislation provides local authorise with enforcement powers to ensure that the problem is remedied.

In order to test the effectiveness of the above measure my department was party to a joint research project with the water industry. The outcome of this research has enabled water companies and local authorities to be more confident in their enforcement measures and has enabled some pilot projects to deal with some particularly troublesome cases and bring them to a satisfactory conclusion.

Welsh Language

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many members of staff at each grade in his Department identify themselves as Welsh speakers. [257792]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 23 February 2009]: DEFRA does not monitor the number of staff at each grade in the Department who identify themselves as Welsh speakers. DEFRA does however provide a Welsh language service for our customers through our customer call centres and through our telephone helplines.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departmental Art Works

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 54W, on departmental art works, what the (a) title, (b) artist and (c) Government Art Collection reference number is of each Government Art Collection item reported as stolen in each year since 1997-98. Departmental Public Bodies

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 1 July 2008, Official Report, column 880W, on Departmental non-departmental public bodies, how many times bodies for which his Department is responsible asked (a) his Department and (b) the Treasury to approve (i) capital projects of £6 million and above, (ii) gifts and non-statutory contingent liabilities of £100,000 and above, (iii) spending which exceeded limits set out in the relevant financial memoranda and (iv) spending which could have potentially set an expensive precedent, caused repercussions for others or which was novel or contentious in each of the last three years. [248884]

Andy Burnham: A survey of the last three financial years to date has indicated that my Department's non-departmental public bodies made the following requests, which are set out in the following tables. This may not be a complete list, however further information can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

(a) Requests for which DCMS approval is required

Economic Situation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what (a) summits, (b) conferences and (c) seminars his Department has hosted since January 2008 at which a primary subject of discussion was the effect of the economic situation on matters within his Department's responsibility. [259751]

Andy Burnham: The Department has held regular internal discussions on responding to the economic situation, including discussions with its Advisory Board. The Department is also working closely with its sponsored bodies to help our sectors continue to function effectively and manage the risks which the present economic situation presents.

Recent external meetings on this issue included a tourism summit in Liverpool on 9 January 2009 convened by VisitBritain, which considered ways to help support the tourism industry through the downturn and beyond. The Creative Economy Programme Ministerial Steering Board received a presentation by Will Hutton in December on the impact of the economic downturn on the Creative Economy.

OLYMPICS

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what her Office's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each year since its establishment. [251450]

Tessa Jowell: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it is ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House. General correspondence to the Minister for the Olympics on Olympic issues is responded to by officials at the Department for Culture, Media and Sport.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport aims to respond to letters from the public within 20 working days of receipt. Statistics on the percentage responded to within this target are available in the Department's annual reports. I am informed that the Department for Culture, Media and Sport could provide information on average response times to letters from the public only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much has been spent by her Office on staff reward and recognition schemes in each year since its inception. [248721]

Tessa Jowell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office the hon. Member for West Bromwich, East (Mr. Watson) to him on 24 February 2009, Official Report, column 578W.

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much (a) her Office and (b) the Olympic Delivery Authority has spent on recruitment agencies in each of the last three years. [250268]

Tessa Jowell: In each of the last three financial years, Government Olympic Executive (GOE) has spent the following on recruitment agencies. This has supported the recruitment of six senior managers, including the director general and the director of build and finance:

April 2008-20 January 2009	55,787.83
April 2007-March 2008	63,728.67
April 2006-March 2007	119,618.64

Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA)

The ODA's spend on recruitment reflects the requirement to recruit quickly at all levels to a newly established organisation while maintaining the delivery programme for the venues and infrastructure for the London 2012 Olympic Games and Puralympics Games. In each of the last three financial years, the ODA has spent the following on recruitment agencies, for the recruitment of 220 personnel at all levels of the organisation:

April 2008-December 2008	194,366.22
April 2007-March 2008	825,714.62
April 2006-March 2007	892,447.98

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information his Department holds on estimates by the World Health Organisation and the United Nations Fund for Population Activities on the number of people who died as a result of illegal abortions in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [259039]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have been asked to reply.

In 2007 the World Health Organisation (WHO) published estimates, on behalf of all UN agencies, of the incidence of unsafe abortion and associated deaths for the year 2003. This report which includes detailed information on the methodology used in calculating estimates can be found on the WHO website:

http://www.who.int/reproductive-health/unsafe abortion/

Given the clandestine nature of abortion in many settings and the difficulties in collecting data, it is likely that the true levels of unsafe abortion and related mortality are higher than estimated.

Worldwide an estimated 19-20 million unsafe abortions are estimated to occur each year. Millions of women and girls suffer complications following unsafe abortion and around 67,000 die as a result of these complications. Most of these abortions, complications and deaths could be prevented if people who wished to had access to family planning and if abortion services had been legally available and affordable everywhere. Progress to achieve Millennium Development Goal number five, Improve Maternal Health, cannot be made unless we are prepared to do something to reduce the death and disability caused by unsafe abortion.

Afghanistan: Drugs

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent progress has been made towards the eradication of poppy growing in Afghanistan. [259396]

Bill Rammell: The Afghan Government's poppy eradication campaign was launched on 5 February 2008 in Helmand province through the deployment of the poppy eradication force, followed by Governor-led eradication, which started on 15 February 2008.

So far 2,000 hectares of poppy has been destroyed, which represents good progress.

Eradication forms a key pillar of the Helmand food zone programme, led by Governor Mangal, whereby farmers have been informed that poppy grown within this area should be eradicated. Governor-led eradication efforts have commenced elsewhere and will continue until July 2009. However it is too early to predict what the final national eradication figure will be.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what UK armed forces are currently based in (a) Belize, (b) the British Indian Ocean Territory and (c) Ascension Island. [259328]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I have been asked to reply.

The number of armed forces personnel in each location, rounded to the nearest five, is as follows:

Location	Number
Belize	60
British Indian Ocean Territory (BIOT)	40
Ascension Island	15

Binyam Mohamed

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department has had discussions with the government of Ethiopia on the return of Mr Binyam Mohamed to that country. [259027]

Bill Rammell: We have kept the Government of Ethiopia informed of the progress of Mr. Binyam Mohamed's release and return to the UK but we have not made representations on his transfer to Ethiopia. Our goal has been to contribute to US Government efforts to close Guantanamo Bay by securing the release and return to the UK of those who were legal residents in the UK prior to their detention. Mr. Binyam Mohamed's return does not constitute a commitment by my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary that he may remain permanently in the UK.

Birtukan Mideksa

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department has made representations to the government of Ethiopia on the detention of Birtukan Mideksa; and if he will make a statement. [258690]

Gillian Merron: We have raised the detention of Birtukan Midekssa with the Ethiopian authorities on a number of occasions since her arrest on 29 December 2008. On 2 February 2009 my noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, the right hon. the Lord Malloch-Brown did so with the Ethiopian Prime Minister Meles Zenawi, pointing out the potential damage to Ethiopia's image of imprisoning an opposition leader politician.

We will continue to urge the Ethiopian government to resolve this issue quickly.

Bosnia and Herzegovina: Diplomatic Service

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications of the decision by Miroslav Lajcak, High Representative for Bosnia-Herzegovina, to step down from that post; and if he will make a statement. [253958]

David Miliband: The international community will need now to find a credible successor to Miroslav Lajcak who can continue to assist Bosnia and Herzegovina in moving away from ethnic divisions towards a better future for all its citizens.

A decision on this appointment is expected later this month.

Eventual closure of the Office of the High Representative will remain dependent on the fulfilment of the conditions set by the Peace Implementation Council, namely the so-called five objectives and two conditions. The Peace Implementation Council will meet again on 25-26 March 2009 to consider progress against those conditions.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many times he has visited Brussels on official business in the last 12 months. [259537]

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of allegations of links between Colombian President Alvaro Uribe and drug traffickers. [260003]

Gillian Merron [holding answer of 2 March 2009]: No reports have been received to support any such allegations.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what mechanisms are in place to ensure that counter-narcotics assistance provided by the Government to the Colombian security forces is not used for counter-insurgency purposes. [260004]

Gillian Merron [holding answer of 2 March 2009]: We scrupulously monitor all UK engagement with the government of Colombia on counter-narcotics. Our work continues to meet the highest standards of probity and effectiveness. We do not provide any counter-insurgency assistance.

We fully endorse the efforts of the Government of Colombia to legitimately tackle the influence of illegal, criminal and terrorist groups in a manner consistent with international humanitarian law.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by his Department. [256209]

Caroline Flint: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and FCO Services employ only UK nationals in permanent civil service positions (of which there are currently 5,935) in the UK or overseas.

Our missions overseas employ a total of approximately 10,000 locally-recruited staff of various nationalities, both EU and non-EU. We do not hold records centrally of the nationalities of these staff.

Departmental Plants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department has spent on (a) pot plants and (b) flowers in each of the last three years. [254877]

Gillian Merron: Spending on plants and flowers in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) UK estate in the last three years is as follows:

[1] Spending on flowers includes that incurred by Government Hospitality, part of the Protocol Directorate in the FCO. Government Hospitality have responsibility for the organisation of official ministerial hospitality for all Government Departments.

Information on how much is spent on plants and flowers at the FCO's overseas posts is not held centrally and would incur a disproportionate cost to collate.

Departmental Work Experience

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what opportunities for work experience directorates of his Department offer to university students who are not (a) entitled to a full maintenance grant and (b) eligible for work experience schemes offered to those from a minority ethnic background. [258627]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) offers an Undergraduate Placement Scheme to all UK university undergraduate students who are not in their final year at university and who fulfil the minimum nationality and residency eligibility criteria.

The FCO also participates in the Cabinet Office run Summer Placement Scheme. This is a work placement scheme for undergraduates/graduates who have a registered disability in accordance with the Disability Discrimination Act 1995.

More information on the Undergraduate Placement Scheme can be found at:

Family Planning

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports his Department has received on coercive family planning policies in other countries; and if he will make a statement. [259056]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have been asked to reply.

The Department for International Development (DFID) does not hold records on reports of coercive family planning overseas.

The UK government's policy on population and sexual and reproductive health in the developing world is about providing choice, not coercion. Couples and individuals should be able to decide freely and responsibly the number and spacing of their children, and have access to the information and services to be able to do so. DFID actively works to promote and uphold the principles of free and informed choice as set out in at the International Conference on Population and Development in Cairo in 1994.

Foreign Students

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what research his Department conducted on likely levels of demand for its Partner University Placement Scheme among eligible groups prior to the scheme's inception. [258547]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office used a Higher Education Standards Agency report to identify 10 universities that performed highest across three key standards: academic performance, social inclusion and ethnic diversity. We did not conduct specific research among the eligible groups into the likely levels of demand for the scheme.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when his Department's Partner University Placement Scheme was established; and how many students have taken part in the scheme. [258548]

Gillian Merron: The Partner University Placement Scheme was established in 2007. 21 students have taken part in the scheme to date.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the eligibility criteria for students wishing to take part in his Department's Partner University Placement Scheme are. [258549]

Gillian Merron: The eligibility criteria for the Partner University Placement Scheme are that students must be:

either from a minority ethnic background or in receipt of a full university maintenance grant (or Scottish equivalent).

and

from Bath, Bristol, Cambridge, Durham, Edinburgh, Nottingham, Oxford, King's College London, University College London or Manchester Universities, have been resident in the UK for two out of the last 10 years immediately prior to their application, at least one year of which must have been a consecutive 12-month period, unless they have served overseas with HM Forces or in some other official capacity as a representative of our Government, or have lived overseas a result of their parents' or partner's Government employment.

Group of Twenty: London Summit

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate has been made of the cost of accommodation for (a) foreign heads of state and government and (b) foreign delegations attending the G20 summit to be held in London in April 2009. [259365]

Bill Rammell: Participating countries are responsible for their own accommodation costs. There will be no cost to the Government.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library copies of proposed menus for meals to be provided to participants in the G20 summit in London in April 2009. [259366]

Bill Rammell: The planning for the London summit in April 2009 is still being formulated. Any hospitality offered by the Government during the summit will be commensurate with the nature of the occasion. As such menus for the hospitality around the London summit will be published, in accordance with normal practice, after the event.

Iran: Christianity

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received of (a) closures of churches in Iran and (b) the treatment of Christians in that country; what recent representations he has made to the Government of Iran on the matter; and if he will make a statement. [259541]

Bill Rammell: We have not received recent reports regarding the closure of churches in Iran, but we do have serious concerns about the treatment of Christians, in particular those who have converted from Islam to Christianity. We regularly raise these concerns with the Iranian authorities, both bilaterally and through the EU. We made over 40 representations in 2008, expressing our firm opposition to all forms of discrimination and oppression. We continue to urge Iran to respect and protect its religious minorities and free all prisoners held due to their faith or religious practice.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has had discussions with his Turkish counterpart on Gaza since the last meeting of the World Economic Forum in Davos. [260000]

Caroline Flint: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not discussed Gaza with his Turkish counterpart since the World Economic Forum in Davos. However, this remains an issue of ongoing concern and we would expect to engage with Turkey when the opportunity arises.

I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave on 11 February 2009, Official Report, column 2008W.

Pakistan: Christianity

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received of (a) closures of churches in Pakistan and (b) the treatment of Christians in that country; what recent representations he has made to the government of Pakistan on the matter; and if he will make a statement. [259539]

Bill Rammell: We have not received reports of closures of churches in Pakistan. Our officials in London and in Islamabad regularly meet with representatives of civil society and human rights organisations to monitor the treatment of minorities and inform our policy more widely. During these discussions, the closure of churches in Pakistan has not been raised as a concern.

With our EU partners, we regularly raise our concerns over the situation of christians and other religious minorities in Pakistan. We have called for the government of Pakistan to promote tolerance, take measures to protect freedom of religion or belief and repeal or reform discriminatory blasphemy legislation.

Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers have also met with organisations representing minority groups in Pakistan and have raised human rights concerns with the Government of Pakistan.

Roy Bennett

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to seek the release of Roy Bennett, designated Deputy Minister of Agriculture on the National Unity Government of Zimbabwe to (a) the government of Zimbabwe, (b) other states in the region and (c) international organisations; and if he will make a statement. [258839]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary in his statement of 11 February 2009 called for the immediate release of all political detainees. Our officials made clear to the Zimbabwean embassy in London our concerns about detainees on 16 February 2009 including Roy Bennett.

The Southern African Development Community (SADC) brokered the power-sharing agreement, and has responsibility for supporting its implementation. We will continue to work closely with SADC, EU partners and the international community to capitalise on this opportunity to promote reform and human rights in Zimbabwe.

The statement made by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary on 11 February 2009 is available for viewing at the following internet address:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/en/newsroom/latest-news/?view=PressS&id=13462857

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has had recent discussions with representatives of the Sri Lankan government on (a) the prevention of civilian casualties and (b) protection for displaced people in Sri Lanka. [258466]

Bill Rammell: When my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary telephoned President Rajapakse on 30 January 2009, they discussed the humanitarian situation. He made clear our concerns over the civilians caught up in the fighting in northern Sri Lanka.

In a statement on 2 February 2009, which is available for viewing on the internet at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/en/newsroom/latest-news/?view=PressS&id=13166258, he urged both the Sri Lankan Government and the Liberation Tigers Tamil of Eelam to respond appropriately to the deteriorating humanitarian situation, in particular by allowing the wounded to receive medical treatment; civilians to leave the conflict area; and unrestricted access for humanitarian agencies.

We continue to raise these issues with the Sri Lankan Government at the highest level.

Sri Lanka: Religious Freedom

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the Sri Lankan government on the provisions of the Prohibition of Forcible Conversions Bill restricting religious conversions. [254830]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 9 February 2009]: We have expressed our concern over religious freedoms to the Sri Lankan Minister of Human Rights and Disaster Management through our high commission in Colombo.

We will continue to raise our concerns over the Prohibition of Forcible Conversions Bill and any other legislation that reduces freedoms protected by international human rights law with the Sri Lankan Government.

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has had recent discussions with representatives of the Sri Lankan government on freedom of religious expression in Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [258467]

Bill Rammell: Our high commission in Colombo recently expressed our concerns over religious freedoms to the Sri Lankan Minister of Human Rights and Disaster Management.

In addition, in a statement on 23 February 2009, the EU expressed its concern about a draft Bill relating to religious freedoms, which is currently awaiting further discussion in the Sri Lankan Parliament. We will continue to raise our concerns with the Sri Lankan Government about any legislation that reduces freedoms protected by international human rights law.

Terrorism: Finance

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the Prime Minister's Statement of 14 November 2007, Official Report, columns 667-72, on national security, what the breakdown is of the £400 million to be spent to tackle radicalisation and promote understanding overseas in each of the next three years by each Government department involved; and if he will make a statement. [258918]

Bill Rammell: The actual figure invested through Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), British Council and the Department for International Development (DFID) to tackle radicalisation and promote understanding overseas during the period 2008-11 is approximately £386 million.

Working with partner Departments, the FCO leads on co-ordinating HMG PREVENT activity overseas, including prioritisation of funding against agreed objectives. The individual Departments' contributions over the three year period are approximately:

FCO - £80 million

DFID - £300 million (exact sum will be determined by assessment of the underlying drivers of poverty, exclusion and radicalisation in relevant countries)

British Council - £6 million

Tibet: Politics and Government

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has held with his Chinese counterpart on the status of Tibet in the last 12 months. [259926]

Bill Rammell: Over the last 12 months, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has discussed the status of Tibet with Foreign Minister Yang on a number of occasions. The issue was discussed during the Foreign Secretary's visit to Beijing in February 2008 and again while they were in New York for the UN General Assembly in September 2008.

The status of Tibet was also discussed when the Foreign Secretary was in China for the Asia-Europe meeting in October 2008, and most recently when the Foreign Secretary met Foreign Minister Yang in London on 1 February 2009 at the UK-China summit. During these meetings, the Foreign Secretary emphasised that the current political difficulties in Tibet can best be resolved through dialogue between the Chinese Government and the representatives of the Dalai Lama.

Turkey: Kurds

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his (a) Turkish and (b) Iraqi counterpart on the situation of Kurdish people in (i) Turkey and (ii) Iraq in the last 12 months. [259997]

Bill Rammell: Iraq's and in particular the Kurdistan Regional Government's (KRG) relationship with Turkey has greatly improved over recent months and continues to progress positively. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has raised with Turkish Foreign Minister Mr. Babacan the issues faced by the Kurdish population in Turkey's south-east in the context of its fight against terrorism. We have strongly encouraged an improvement in dialogue between Turkey and the KRG authorities to reach a co-ordinated approach to address the complex socio-economic issues of Turkey's south-east region. The Turkish Government has announced a comprehensive package to address these.

During his recent visit to Iraq and on previous meetings with the Iraqi leadership, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary also discussed the continuing efforts of reconciliation among the various communities within Iraq, including the Kurdish population. We continue to encourage both Arab and Kurdish leadership in Iraq to overcome their differences and compromise on issues of national importance.

United States: Visits Abroad

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many times he has visited (a) the United States, (b) Paris and (c) India on official business in the last 12 months. [259536]

Gillian Merron: Question 253497 was answered on 26 February 2009, Official Report, column 954W.

Zimbabwe: Asylum

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps are being taken to ensure the payment of pensions to former Zimbabwean public servants now residing in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [258266]

Gillian Merron: We are concerned about the non-payment of pensions by the Zimbabwean authorities, who have long been failing on their legal commitment to pay the pensions of former employees of the Southern Rhodesian Government and other Zimbabwean pensioners.

We are aware of the severe difficulties this causes to former Zimbabwean public servants now residing in the UK and will continue to remind the Zimbabwean authorities of their legal commitment.

TREASURY

Banks

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) subsidiaries and (b) branches each bank regulated by the Financial Services Authority has in (i) Jersey, (ii) Isle of Man, (iii) Guernsey, (iv) the Cayman Islands, (v) the Bahamas and (vi) Bermuda. [259375]

Ian Pearson: The Treasury does not collect or hold this information.

Banks: Finance

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with his counterparts in the Dutch government on a contribution from them towards the financial assistance provided by the UK Government to (a) ABN Amro and (b) other Dutch banks via their parent companies in the UK. [259131]

Ian Pearson: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations and international partners. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he plans to have with his counterparts in other governments on contributions from them towards the financial assistance provided to banks from their countries by the UK Government. [259132]

Ian Pearson: The current financial crises are global problems and require international, as well as domestic, solutions. The UK Authorities have been heavily involved in work at both EU and international level to enhance the stability and resilience of the global financial system.

The Government will continue to work in close co-operation with international partners.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what proportion of the capital provided from UK Government funds via UK Financial Investments Ltd to Royal Bank of Scotland has been used to provide additional capital to ABN Amro; [259133]

(2) what proportion of the capital provided from UK Government funds via UK Financial Investments Ltd to Lloyds HBOS has been used to provide capital to its overseas subsidiaries; [259134]

(3) what proportion of the capital provided from UK Government funds via UK Financial Investments Ltd to Royal Bank of Scotland has been used to provide capital to its overseas subsidiaries. [259124]

Ian Pearson: Under the recapitalisation scheme announced on 8 October 2008, the Government have invested £19.97 billion in Royal Bank of Scotland Group plc (RBS) and £16.96 billion in Lloyds TSB Group plc (Lloyds) and Halifax Bank of Scotland plc (HBOS). The recapitalisation agreements are between the Treasury and RBS, Lloyds and HBOS respectively.

It is a matter for each group to deploy capital where needed to support their businesses.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much public money is invested in fossil fuel exploration, transportation and generation through UK Financial Investments' shareholdings in (a) Royal Bank of Scotland, (b) Lloyds TSB/Halifax Bank of Scotland, (c) Northern Rock and (d) Bradford and Bingley. [260453]

Ian Pearson: It is a matter for each of these companies' management to release specific business updates or provide any required disclosures in their audited annual report and accounts.

The Government's investments are managed on a commercial basis by UK Financial Investments Ltd. (UKFI), a company which is wholly owned by the Government. Its overarching objectives are to protect and create value for the taxpayer as a shareholder, with due regard to financial stability and acting in a way that promotes competition.

Child Care Vouchers: Self-employed

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department is taking to encourage the use of child care vouchers by people who are self-employed. [260055]

Mr. Timms: Child care vouchers are not available to self-employed persons. Employer supported child care is reliant upon arrangements made between an employer and employee. Self employed persons can receive assistance with child care costs via the child care element of working tax credits, subject to the level of household income.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much his Department has spent on (a) creating and (b) managing its YouTube channel since June 2007; [260443]

(2) how many civil servants in his Department at each pay band (a) were employed in establishing its YouTube channel and (b) are employed on managing the channel. [260444]

Angela Eagle: The YouTube channel was launched at Budget 2008 and was established and continues to be managed by the Treasury's existing e-communications team. The team consists of four officials.

The channel was set up using the free tools provided by YouTube so there were no costs associated with creating the channel.

The e-communications team is responsible for developing and maintaining the Treasury's public web presence, intranet and extranet.

Income Tax: Tax Allowances

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will estimate the cost to the Exchequer of raising income tax personal allowances to provide for those earning no more than the national minimum wage to be exempt from income tax; [259675]

(2) by how much the personal allowance would need to be raised to take those working for 35 hours a week on the national minimum wage out of income tax liability; and what the cost of doing so would be in 2009-10. [260308]

Mr. Timms: The current hourly rate of national minimum wage can be found on the HM Revenue and customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/nmw/

The annual amount received by someone on the national minimum wage will depend on the weekly hours worked, and estimates of the cost of raising the income tax personal allowance to different levels can be approximated from table 1.6 'Direct effects of illustrative tax changes' on the HM Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/tax_expenditures/table 1-6.pdf

The figures exclude any estimate of behavioural response.

Mr. Byers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what increase in the personal income tax allowance would be achieved at a cost of £8.6 billion in 2009-10; and how many people would be removed from any income tax liability as a result of such an increase. [260310]

Mr. Timms: Raising the personal allowance by £1,520 to £7,995 for 2009-10 would cost around £8.6 billion and take approximately 1.7 million people out of income tax. This estimate is based on the 2005-06 Survey of Personal Incomes projected forward using pre-Budget 2008 assumptions. It refers only to income tax, not National Insurance contributions, and excludes any estimate of behavioural response.

Members: Correspondence

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead of 12 December 2008 on economic regulation and small businesses. [259686]

Angela Eagle: I have replied to the hon. Member.

Money Laundering

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in respect of what provisions of the Money Laundering Regulations 2007 the management and administration of is outsourced; what controls there are on companies to ensure the protection of data collected under the Regulations; and if he will make a statement. [259290]

Ian Pearson: Certain businesses ("relevant persons") are regulated under the Money Laundering Regulations 2007. Those Regulations transposed the Third Money Laundering Directive into UK law. Relevant persons may, in discharging the legal requirements, source a range of services from third parties.

Firms can, and typically do, subcontract a range of functions, buying in either expertise or access to information from specialist sources. Large retail firms also use information from consumer credit bureaux to help automate their customer identification and verification checks.

Relevant persons may rely on certain other regulated persons to carry out customer due diligence. In all of these cases relevant persons remain legally liable for the discharge of the responsibilities placed on them under the Money Laundering Regulations 2007.

Personal data obtained by relevant persons as a result of checks made under the Regulations are subject to the Data Protection Act, which places a number of requirements on those persons to safeguard those data. This means, for example, that businesses have to keep personal information secure, and ensure it is fairly and lawfully processed.

Regulators (including professional bodies) will also apply a variety of other safeguards to relevant persons who they supervise for money laundering and other purposes in order to monitor compliance with these requirements and relevant guidance.

Mortgages

Lorely Burt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of (a) the contribution of UK non-bank lenders to the mortgage market and (b) the effect on levels of mortgage lending of the levels of activity of UK non-bank and specialist lenders in the last 12 months; [259418]

(2) what response he has made to the recommendation in the Crosby Report on mortgage finance markets for the introduction of a new guarantee scheme for residential mortgage-backed securities available to banks, building societies and specialist lenders; [259419]

(3) how many meetings he has had with representatives of (a) banks, (b) building societies and (c) non-bank lenders to discuss measures to stimulate mortgage lending in the last three months; [259420]

(4) what assessment he has made of the effects of the Government's lending support initiatives on (a) competition among banks, building societies and non-banks in the mortgage market and (b) the availability of mortgage finance to consumers in the last 12 months; [259421]

(5) what steps his Department is taking to encourage a competitive and diverse market for mortgage finance; [259422]

(6) pursuant to the statement of 19 January 2009, Official Report, columns 483-86, on financial markets, what recent steps his Department has taken to support lending by the non-bank sector; [259519]

(7) pursuant to the statement of 19 January 2009, Official Report, columns 483-86, on financial markets, which of the lending support facilities announced will be open to non-bank lenders. [259522]

Ian Pearson: The Bank of England publishes statistics relating to lending, which are available at:

http://www.bankofengland.co.uk/statistics/index.htm

These statistics include data on the amount of lending by UK banks, building societies and other lenders.

On 19 January, the Government announced measures designed to reinforce the stability of the financial system, to increase confidence and capacity to lend, and in turn to support the recovery of the economy. These build on measures announced on 8 October last year.

This included a guarantee scheme for asset-backed securities to help improve lenders' access to wholesale funding markets. The scheme will commence in April 2009 subject to state aid approval. Further details will be announced by the Debt Management Office in due course.

These measures have raised confidence in the banking sector and helped to stabilise financial markets. This is an essential condition for lenders to develop greater confidence to lend in the future to creditworthy businesses, home owners and consumers.

The 2008 pre-Budget report announced that alongside its normal annual plan, the OFT will set out a specific financial services plan.

Ministers and officials meet with a wide range of representatives from the financial services sector including banks, building societies and non-bank lenders.

Mortgages: Complaints

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints relating to (a) mortgages and (b) mortgage endowments the Financial Ombudsman Service received in each year since 2001; and what percentage of such complaints the Ombudsman investigated. [259676]

Ian Pearson: The Financial Ombudsman Scheme publishes an annual review, which has information on how many complaints relating to (a) mortgages and (b) mortgages endowments the Financial Services Ombudsman received in each year since 2001.

It can be found at:

http://www.financial-ombudsman.org.uk/publications/annual-reviews.htm

Non-domestic Rates: South West

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many businesses in each parliamentary constituency in the South West did not pay the full rateable liability for national non-domestic rates in 2008-09. [259597]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

This information is not collected by the Department.

Pensioners: Income

Mr. Gray: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to increase the household incomes of pensioners. [259325]

Ian Pearson: The Government are committed to continuing to support pensioner incomes. To provide help to pensioners on the lowest incomes, the 2008 pre-Budget report announced an above indexation increase to the standard minimum income guarantee in pension credit in April 2009. This means no single pensioner need live on less than £130.00 a week in 2009-10 and no pensioner couple on less than £198.45.

A full basic state pension will increase by £4.55 to £95.25 a week in April 2009. To provide additional support sooner, an additional one-off payment of £60 for each pensioner is being made, equivalent to bringing forward the uprating of the basic state pension from April to January. To support those pensioners who pay income tax, the age-related tax allowances will rise in April 2009 to £9,490 for people aged 65 to 74 and to £9,640 for people aged over 75.

This support is in addition to other measures taken by the Government to assist pensioners, including the introduction of winter fuel payments, free eye tests and local off-peak bus travel, and free TV licences for households with someone aged over 75. The Chancellor keeps all tax and benefit rates under review as part of the Budget process.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department is taking to protect pensioners from the effects of recent reductions in interest rates on savings income. [259592]

Ian Pearson: The Government are committed to supporting pensioners through the global economic slowdown, providing support for all, but more for those who need it most. A range of measures was announced at PBR 2008 to support pensioners including an extra £60 payment, an increase in the pension credit by more than indexation, and further winter fuel payments of £200 for those aged 60+ (£300 for 80+). This is on top of the additional support announced in last year's Budget.

Private Finance Initiative

Gordon Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the monetary value was of each (a) private finance initiative and (b) public private partnership which was approved in (i) 2005, (ii) 2006, (iii) 2007, (iv) 2008 and (v) 2009 to date, broken down by location of project. [260280]

Angela Eagle: The full list of all signed PFI projects can be found on HM Treasury's website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/documents/public_private_partnerships/ppp_pfi_stats.cfm

For each PFI project, this list details the project name, the capital value, the annual cost, the constituency and the procuring authority.

Royal Bank of Scotland

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assumptions he made about (a) the state of the economy over the next five years and (b) the likely level of default on Royal Bank of Scotland (RBS) assets when setting the fee for RBS's participation in the asset protection scheme. [260304]

Ian Pearson: The consideration for the asset protection scheme takes into account a number of factors including the nature and risk of the assets protected, the interests of taxpayers, and the objective of ensuring financial stability.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Royal Bank of Scotland plans to use losses which it made in its last accounting year to reclaim corporation tax which it has already paid. [260311]

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether tax losses Royal Bank of Scotland (RBS) incurred in 2008 will be available for offset against tax paid by RBS in previous years in the context of the asset protection scheme. [260305]

Ian Pearson: RBS have agreed not to claim certain UK tax losses and allowances for a number of years, meaning that when they do return to profitability, they will not be able to benefit from the losses accrued in the intervening period.

Stocks and Shares: Taxation

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward legislative proposals to provide for a tax of one per cent. on all derivative products written by banks regulated by the Financial Services Authority. [259674]

Ian Pearson: All taxes are kept under review and the Chancellor announces any changes as part of the Budget process.

From a regulatory standpoint, the Government agree that it is important to take steps to make the derivatives infrastructure more robust and support efforts by the European Union and other international bodies to increase transparency and liquidity in the derivatives market.

Tax Avoidance

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many tax avoidance schemes are marketed by banks regulated by the Financial Services Authority. [259619]

Ian Pearson: Under the Disclosure of Tax Avoidance Schemes Regime, promoters are required to provide information to HMRC about avoidance schemes falling within certain statutory descriptions. This must be done within five days of the schemes being made available or implemented.

Disclosure Statistics are published six-monthly on the HMRC website. The statistics can be found at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/avoidance/avoidance-disclosure-statistics.htm

Valuation Office: Standards

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 6 May 2008, Official Report, column 829W, on the Valuation Office: standards, if he will place in the Library a copy of the updated version of the customer services manual. [258273]

Mr. Timms: The further updated version of the agency's customer service manual is available on the agency's website at:

http://www.voa.gov.uk/instructions/chapters/Customer-Service-Manual/Frame.htm

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Arms Trade: Exports

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the average length of time of each stage of the export licensing process was for licences in respect of exports to each country in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [258697]

Ian Pearson: The Government publish information on the average (median) number of days taken to process all Standard Individual Export Licences applications, by destination. The Government do not break this down into times taken for individual stages of the process.

The information can be viewed on the BERR website at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/whatwedo/europeandtrade/strategic-export-control/statistics/process-times/index.html

The latest date for which information is available is 30 June 2008. Officials will shortly be publishing the information for the quarter ending 30 September 2008.

Business: Government Assistance

Mr. Binley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what progress has been made against the Government's target announced in the 2006 Budget to reduce the 3,000 business support schemes to 100 by 2010; and how many of those 3,000 schemes have been (a) ended and (b) merged with other schemes. [254002]

Ian Pearson: My noble Friend the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform announced on 23 October 2008 that a streamlined portfolio of 30 national support products within the 'Solutions for Business' portfolio would be in place by March 2009. This portfolio draws on the best of existing and new schemes and represents a substantial reduction from the estimated 3,000 publicly-funded business support schemes that were previously available.

By March 2010 all Government business support products will either have closed, or been given notice to close or migrated to the portfolio. As products wind down businesses will be steered to Solutions for Business products according to need.

Credit

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assistance is provided by his Department to help individuals obtain (a) loans and (b) credit; what plans he has to assist individuals in obtaining finance over the next 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [259066]

Mr. Thomas: The Government recognise the difficulties that many individuals as well as businesses are having in obtaining credit at the moment. The Government are particularly concerned about access to credit for low income families.

The Government have implemented a number of measures to support low income families during these difficult times. We are investing £80 million in the Growth Fund to support the expansion of affordable credit alternatives through credit unions. The Growth Fund is tackling financial exclusion in England, Scotland and Wales and has already supported more than 130,000 loans to financially excluded people, worth over £56 million.

We have also acted decisively and without delay taking action to stamp out unfair treatment of borrowers to ensure access to credit for all is maintained throughout the downturn. Following the credit card summit in November 2008 we secured agreement from credit card lenders to develop fair principles for any interest rate increase they introduce on reviewing an individual's risk profile. These came into force in January 2009 and provide extra protections when a customer or group of customers' interest rate is changed as a result of a perceived change in their ability to repay their debts.

Where a lender increases their rates customers will be given the option to close down their account and repay their remaining balance at the existing rate of interest. Lenders also agreed not to increase rates for customers who have failed to make two or more consecutive minimum payments, where an agreed repayment plan is in place for the account, or where lenders have been notified by a not-for-profit debt advice agency that the customer is in serious discussion with it.

Credit card lenders will also give a breathing space of up to 60 days to borrowers in difficulty. During this time lenders will not commence debt collection proceedings, giving borrowers time to agree a repayment plan with the help of a not-for-profit debt advice agency.

I have established the Consumer Finance Forum to allow the Government a platform to continue to monitor the credit market closely throughout the downturn. The forum will regularly bring together representatives from the financial services industry, consumer groups and Government to address issues facing borrowers during the downturn.

Credit: Insurance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the level of claims on credit insurance has been in each of the last five years. [260018]

Mr. Thomas: This Department does not currently collate or distribute this information.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by his Department. [256217]

Mr. McFadden: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 9 January 2008, Official Report, column 668W.

Departmental Gifts

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many members of staff in his Department and its predecessor have received gifts valued at £100 or higher in the course of their duties in each of the last three years; what these gifts were; and from whom they were received. [242023]

Mr. McFadden: The rules and guidance on receipt of gifts by civil servants are set out in the Civil Service Management Code, and in BERR's Staff Handbook. The following table shows gifts staff have received valued at £100 or higher over the last three years.

	Gifts	Estimated value (£)	From
2007	Nintendo Lite with two games	200	Science Museum—one part of the public sector accepting a gift from another part
2008	Nano Ipod combined with marketing items	120	Virgin Media

Gifts valued at more than £50 are surrendered to the Department unless the individual pays for the value of the gift. None of the above items were kept by the individual recipients but retained by the Department.

Drugs: Industry

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the effect of the recession on the pharmaceutical industry; and if he will make a statement. [260019]

Ian Pearson: This Department is monitoring closely the impact of the recession on all business sectors. The immediate effects of the downturn on large pharmaceutical companies has not been as pronounced as those in many other manufacturing sectors. However ongoing restructuring and cost-cutting programmes which have been established over the last few years by large multinational pharmaceutical companies are leading to an overall loss of pharmaceutical jobs in the UK and globally.

On 27 January 2009, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister chaired a meeting of Government and biopharmaceutical business leaders. The overarching aim of the meeting was to identify a long-term framework to help the UK maintain its world class bio-pharmaceutical industry. Government and industry agreed to work together to develop a strategy for the biosciences industry. Action to drive this work forward is being taken forward through the Office for Life Sciences.

Electronic Equipment: Waste Disposal

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations his Department has received on the effect of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive on business costs; what his latest estimate is of those costs; how many businesses met the deadline for compliance with the Directive's provisions in the UK; how many fines have been imposed for failure to comply; and if he will make a statement. [258698]

Ian Pearson: The Department has regular discussions with a range of stakeholders on the impact of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive (WEEE) in the UK. These discussions have included the costs incurred by business. A full Regulatory Impact Assessment was published alongside the UK WEEE Regulations 2006.

Under the UK WEEE Regulations all producers of Electrical and Electronic Equipment have an obligation to register with a Producer Compliance Scheme (PCS) to discharge their obligation. 4,348 producers were registered with PCSs for the 2007 compliance period. This has risen to 5,190 for the 2008 compliance period. All PCSs met their obligations on behalf of their producer members for the 2007 compliance period. No fines have been imposed for failure to comply.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent assessment has been made of levels of compliance with the provisions of the EU Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive. [259288]

Ian Pearson: The responsibility for enforcement and on-going monitoring of compliance under the UK Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment (WEEE) Regulations lies with the Environment Agency (England and Wales), the Scottish Environment Protection Agency (SEPA), and the Department of the Environment in Northern Ireland. All producer compliance schemes discharged their members obligations for the 2007 compliance period.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will estimate the cost of introducing a de minimis rule in relation to business compliance with the requirements of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive. [259654]

Ian Pearson: There is currently no scope to offer a de minimis in relation to business compliance within the requirements of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive (WEEE).

Environment Protection

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the comparative strengths of different subsectors of the UK's environmental industries. [256466]

Ian Pearson: This Department published on 23 June 2008 a study commissioned from Ernst and Young on 'Comparative Advantage and Green Business'.

The main conclusions were that a green economy will be one in which lower carbon and resource efficiency will permeate all products and services throughout the entire economy, and that more focus should be given to the sectors where the UK currently has comparative advantage.

Ernst and Young identified the following specific key sub-sectors where the UK currently exhibits comparative advantage and could develop green business opportunities: software, electronic equipment, business services, financial services and machinery equipment.

The full report can be accessed at http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file46793.pdf.

Gulf Co-operation Council

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his Department's policy is on negotiations on a free trade agreement between the EU and the Gulf Co-operation Council; and if he will make a statement. [258954]

Mr. Thomas: The UK would support the completion of negotiations for a free trade agreement between the EU and the Gulf Co-operation Council, which have been ongoing since 1989. Progress was made in the technical negotiations at the end of last year, and the UK supports continuation of this effort. However, there remain outstanding issues, which we would need to see resolved before negotiations are completed, in particular with regard to the key political clauses, and with regard to the imposition of export duties in Gulf States.

Supermarkets: Complaints

Tim Farron: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of a supermarket ombudsman in each of the next six years. [257434]

Mr. Thomas: The Department has made no such assessment. The Competition Commission (CC) is continuing to pursue implementation of all aspects of the Groceries Supply Code of Practice. Should no voluntary agreement be possible and the matter be referred to Government, we would need to consider the costs and benefits of a range of options before deciding on a way forward.

However, in its report the CC produced some initial annual costs associated with this remedy which were in the region of £3.9 million to £5.4 million comprising £3 million retailer costs and £0.9 million to £2.4 million costs for the Office of Fair Trading (OFT). There may be additional costs incurred by the Ombudsman driven largely by the number of disputes.

Television: Waste Disposal

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what restrictions there are on the export of television sets forming part of a local authority's household waste under the provisions of the EU Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive. [259287]

Ian Pearson: Article 6 of the waste electrical and electronic equipment directive (WEEE) requires that the shipment of any WEEE, including waste television sets, between member states or out of the Community for treatment should be in compliance with the EC Waste Shipments Regulation (EC/2006/1013). The controls that apply depend on the classification of the waste and the destination country. In practice, waste televisions may be sent for recovery only to other countries which are members of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development ("OECD countries").

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Members: Allowances

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many staff are engaged in processing hon. Members' Additional Cost Allowance claims. [260006]

Nick Harvey: Staff in the Department of Resources typically have responsibilities for functions which deal with more than one parliamentary allowance. Over 6,000 claims for Additional Costs Allowance are processed each year and it is estimated that this requires the equivalent of some four full-time staff.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Equality: Prosecutions

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality which public bodies have been prosecuted for failing in their statutory equality duties in each of the last four years; and if she will make a statement. [257452]

Maria Eagle: The Equality and Human Rights Commission (EHRC) is the Government agency responsible for promoting and enforcing the statutory equality duties. It is not within the Commission's remit to prosecute public bodies, however they have a range of legal powers set out in the Equality Act 2006, which they can and do use to enforce the public sector duties.

The EHRC can issue a compliance notice where they are satisfied a public authority has failed to meet its specific duties. If a public authority fails to comply with a requirement of the notice either to comply with the duty or provide further information, the EHRC may apply for a court order requiring compliance.

The court may grant the order in the terms that the EHRC applied for or in more limited terms. If the court makes an order and the authority does not abide by it, the authority may be held in contempt of court.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan and Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many officers of each rank have served in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan in each year since 2003. [258432]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Data on the numbers of officers who have served in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan in each year during the period 2003-07, broken down by rank are not held centrally in individual level databases and as such could only be provided a disproportionate cost.

Due to ongoing validation of data from the joint personnel administration (JPA) system, data on the numbers of officers who have served in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan in 2008, broken down by rank are not available and as such could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British armed forces personnel are stationed in Kabul and the surrounding area. [259922]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Some 500 UK Service Personnel are currently stationed in and around Kabul, although the precise number fluctuates on a daily basis. This is for a variety of reasons, including mid-tour rest and recuperation, temporary absence for training, evacuation for medical reasons and the roulement of forces.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost of NATO's deployment in Afghanistan was in 2007-08. [259955]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The underlying principle is that costs incurred by nations deploying their forces on NATO-led operations are borne individually by Allies. The net additional cost to the UK of operations in Afghanistan in 2007-08 (i.e. expenditure above that which would have been incurred anyway, such as salaries) was £1,504 million. Other nations' contributions to multinational operations are a matter for them.

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what proportion of RAF passenger carrying flights from Brize Norton to Afghanistan have left more than three hours after the scheduled time of departure since 1 January 2009; and if he will make a statement. [260365]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: 10 passenger flights from Brize Norton to Afghanistan were delayed for more than three hours between 2 January 2009 and 26 February 2009. This figure represents 21 per cent. of the total numbers of flights.

Severe winter weather conditions were a factor in many of the delays. Additionally, minor technical faults, which were quickly corrected, lead to some flights losing their departure or arrival slot, which had a disproportionate effect on departure times.

Aircraft Carriers

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his most recent estimate is of the cost to his Department of the two aircraft carriers under construction; and what change this represents from estimates made in 2006. [259920]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Defence, gave on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 76W to the hon. Members for Aldershot (Mr. Howarth) and Dunfermline and West Fife (Willie Rennie).

Armed Forces: Casualties

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what criteria the armed forces use to determine whether to report and make public instances of individual service personnel who have been (a) wounded, (b) seriously wounded and (c) killed. [259665]

Mr. Hutton: It is MOD policy to publish casualty statistics. These statistics, which cover all those admitted to field hospitals with serious injuries and diseases, are updated on a fortnightly basis. They do not include minor treatments. They are available openly on the MOD website.

The MOD releases the names of deceased personnel after their Next of Kin have been informed. The names of those who have been wounded, whether seriously or otherwise, are not publicized, unless specifically requested by the individual concerned, in order to preserve the privacy of the patient and their family during convalescence.

Armed Forces: Compensation

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 328W, of the 38 personnel who were very seriously injured in Afghanistan in 2006 and 2007 and whose claim for compensation had been registered by 13 November 2008, what the (a) 10th, (b) 25th, (c) 50th, (d) 75th and (e) 90th percentiles were for the amount awarded in respect of the claims that were settled by 13 January 2009; and how many of the claims had been determined by 13 January 2009. [249580]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Unfortunately Defence Analytical Services and Advice are currently unable to provide information on compensation amounts paid out to personnel that were very seriously injured in Afghanistan during 2006 and 2007. However, I will write to the hon. Member when the information is available.

Of the 38 personnel who were very seriously injured in Afghanistan in 2006 and 2007, and whose claim for compensation had been registered by 13 November 2008, all have had their claims determined as at 13 January 2009.

Letter from Kevan Jones, dated 3 March 2009:

I undertook to write to you in answer to your Parliamentary Question on 3 February, (Official Report, column 111W) about the 42 personnel who were seriously injured in Afghanistan in 2006 and 2007 and whose claim for compensation had been registered by 13 November 2008. You requested information on the 10th, 25th, 50th, 75th and 90th percentiles for the amounts awarded in respect of the claims that were settled by 13 January 2009; and how many of the claims had been determined by 13 January 2009.

Of the 42 personnel who were seriously injured in Afghanistan during 2006 and 2007, and whose claim for compensation had been registered by 13 November 2008, 40 have had their claims determined as at 13 January 2009.

Table 1 presents the 10th, 25th, 50th, 75th and 90th percentiles for total lump sum payments awarded to the 40 personnel with a determined claim.

Table 1: Lump sum amounts awarded to seriously injured personnel, percentiles[1]

50th percentile	20,000
75th percentile	67,000

[1] Figures are rounded to nearest £1,000

In addition to a lump sum award, two personnel that had left Service were also in receipt of an ongoing tax-free, index-linked Guaranteed Income Payment (GIP) as at 13 January 2009. Rounded to the nearest one thousand, the total GIP paid to these personnel over the next forty years will average £503,000.

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, columns 327-8W, of the 42 personnel who were seriously injured in Afghanistan in 2006 and 2007 and whose claim for compensation had been registered by 13 November 2008, what the (a) 10th, (b) 25th, (c) 50th, (d) 75th and (e) 90th percentiles were for the amount awarded in respect of the claims that were settled by 13 January 2009; and how many of the claims had been determined by 13 January 2009. [249581]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Unfortunately Defence Analytical Services and Advice are currently unable to provide information on compensation amounts paid out to personnel that were seriously injured in Afghanistan during 2006 and 2007. Armed Forces: Hearing Impaired

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many one-off payments were made to people discharged from the armed forces since 1980 due to defective hearing; and what the average amount of such payments was. [259865]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 2 March 2009]: Information is not held in the format that identifies how many one-off payments were made under the War Pensions Scheme (WPS) to people discharged from the armed forces between 1980 and 1994 due to defective hearing; and what the average amount of such payments was. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Defence Analytical Services and Advice hold data for personnel medically discharged between 1 January 1995 and 31 December 2007. However, it is not possible to relate medical discharges to awards made under the WPS.

Personnel medically discharged due to defective hearing caused by service on or after 6 April 2005 are considered under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme (AFCS). Successful applicants who have hearing loss in both ears of 50 decibels or more will be awarded a lump sum tariff payment.

Rounded to the nearest five, five of the 75 personnel medically discharged with hearing loss between 6 April 2005 and 31 December 2007 were awarded a lump sum tariff payment for hearing-related conditions under the AFCS. The amount of that payment depends on the nature and extent of the hearing loss—for example hearing loss in both ears of between 50 and 75 dB attracts a tariff award at level 13, current value £5,775.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people have been discharged from the armed forces owing to defective hearing in each year since 1980; and what percentage of those people had hearing loss of (a) over 20 per cent. and (b) between 15 and 19 per cent. at time of discharge. [259866]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 2 March 2009]: Information for those discharged from service due to defective hearing between 1980 and 1994 is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The number of service personnel medically discharged each year between 1995 and 2007 with the principal reason for discharge due to hearing loss is contained in the following table. All numbers presented have been rounded to the nearest five to avoid disclosure of individual identities.

Table 1: Naval service, Army and RAF medical discharges due to hearing loss[1], 1995 to 2007

Information on the percentage of hearing for these personnel is not held electronically and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armed forces pensions have been awarded to people who were discharged from the armed forces with defective hearing since 1980. [259867]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 2 March 2009]: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what compensation is payable to a member of the armed forces discharged with hearing loss of under 20 per cent. if the hearing loss increases subsequently. [259868]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 2 March 2009]: Under War Pension Scheme and Armed Forces Compensation Scheme legislation there is no compensation payable to personnel with noise induced hearing loss of less than 20 per cent. The body of medical opinion confirms that hearing loss caused by excessive noise does not increase once exposure to the source of the noise ceases. Any subsequent hearing loss cannot therefore be due to service.

Armed Forces: Languages

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British military personnel have received training in the (a) Farsi or Dari, (b) Arabic, (c) Urdu and (d) Pashto languages in each year since 2007. [258874]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information is not held in the format requested. The numbers of exams taken in the years 2007-09, however, are as follows:

	Total
Arabic
2006-07	329
2007-08	230
2008-09[1]	195

Armed Forces: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the current (a) trained requirement, (b) actual strength and (c) numbers fit for duty is for each regiment of the (i) Royal Logistics Corps, (b) Royal Artillery, (c) Royal Signals and (d) Royal Engineers. [258878]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Mental Illness

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many and what percentage of armed forces personnel who have served in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan have been diagnosed with a mental health condition; [253720]

(2) how many service personnel who have served in (a) Afghanistan since 2001 and (b) Iraq since 2003 his Department has recorded as having a mental health condition of each type in each year since 2001. [258871]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 3 February 2009]: Since July 2007 the Defence Analytical Services and Advice (DASA) organisation has reported on the Psychiatric Morbidity of the UK armed forces. Quarterly reports for the whole of 2007 are available to view both in the Library of the House and on the DASA website at:

www.dasa.mod.uk

Equivalent verified data prior to 2007 are not available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The morbidity report shows the number of new attendances at military Departments of Community Mental Health (DCMHs) during each quarter and the results of the initial mental health assessment. The figures shown in the following table are extracted from the morbidity report and show initial assessments of mental disorder broken down by operational deployment for the calendar year 2007.

Initial mental disorder assessments in 2007: ICD-10 groupings by deployment

[1] Does not include personnel deployed to Afghanistan during the period January 2003 to October 2005.
[2] Records supplied without identifiers.
[3] Data for disorders due to use of alcohol are not available for the period January – March 2007.

DASA's statistics show that the total number of new patients assessed with a mental health disorder during their first appointment at MOD's out-patient DCMHs during 2007 is 19.9 per 1,000 strength of the armed forces, or 1.99 per cent. This figure covers all patients, including those who had not deployed operationally. Of the 190,400 regular members of the armed forces in service on 1 January 2008, 56 per cent. had previously deployed on operations to Iraq, Afghanistan or both theatres.

Armed Forces: Pay

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people in (a) the armed forces and (b) his Department receive the X-factor adjustment to military pay, broken down by rank. [258428]

Mr. Kevan Jones: X-Factor is paid in addition to base pay to reflect the relative disadvantage between the conditions of service experienced by members of the armed forces over a full career and conditions in civilian life. It is only paid to service personnel and is for the duration of their Service career regardless of where they are serving.

All Regular, mobilised reserve and full-time reserve service personnel receive full X-Factor, which is currently 14 per cent. of base pay, up to the rank of lieutenant colonel and equivalent. Beyond this point it tapers in recognition of the diminishing impact of the X-Factor components on higher ranks. The level of X-Factor for other reserve personnel is set at either 0 per cent. or 5 per cent. of base pay depending on their level of commitment.

The following table gives approximate numbers, by rank, of personnel who receive X-Factor. For simplicity, NATO ranks have been used.

Defence: Procurement

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the estimated cost of the Support Vehicle programme was on 31 March (a) 2002, (b) 2003, (c) 2004, (d) 2005, (e) 2006, (f) 2007 and (g) 2008, broken down by (i) direct resource departmental expenditure limit (DEL), (ii) indirect resource DEL and (iii) capital DEL. [257776]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The information requested is shown in the following table. The figures include the cost of the assessment, demonstration and manufacture phases. There are no records of support vehicle project costs prior to 2003.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 2 February 2009 to the hon. Member for Chesterfield, (Paul Holmes) Official Report, column 872, on departmental data protection, in what format his Department records information on staff dismissal for loss of departmental property. [259599]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Central records have been held since 2002 of all civilian staff dismissals and the disciplinary cases which lead up to them. Cases are recorded electronically under general classification headings, but those are not sufficiently detailed to enable identification of cases specifically related to loss of property. More detail about each case is recorded as free text of varying length which can be individually examined and which would include more detail about the precise nature of the offence.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons his Department's departmental expenditure limit for 2008-09 was increased in the Winter Supplementary Estimates. [260122]

Mr. Hutton: The principal reason for the increased MOD departmental expenditure limit (DEL) was the net increase in the RfR2 of £2.302 billion direct resource DEL, £1.063 billion capital DEL, and indirect resource DEL of £0.350 billion to reflect the forecast costs of peacekeeping operations in Iraq, Afghanistan and the Balkans.

Details of the 2008-09 Winter Supplementary Estimate increased DEL request are set out in my written ministerial statement on 25 November 2008, Official Report, columns 59-60WS. Further explanation can be found in the Winter Supplementary Estimates Memorandum, published in the House of Commons Defence Select Committee Report in the 2008-09 Winter Supplementary Estimate Evidence Section (HC52).

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which external organisations his Department has engaged to provide training for fast stream civil service staff in the last three years; and how many civil servants in his Department have participated in provision of training for external organisations in that period. [252226]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Over the past three years, the MOD Fast Stream has sourced training from the following external providers: Eclipse Management, Common Purpose, University of Central London, Westminster Explained, Alistair Grant and Co., BPP Professional Education Ltd., University of London (School of Oriental and African Studies), University of London (Birkbeck), Institut Francais, Cactus language, Alliance Francais, Goethe Institute, King's College London.

In the last three years, 83 civil servants were involved in the 87 training courses that the Defence Academy ran for external organisations.

Detainees

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his statement of 26 February 2009, whether officials in his Department had been informed in 2004 of the transfer of detainees to which he referred. [260501]

Mr. Hutton: There is evidence that a piece of related correspondence from another Government Department was copied to an MOD official on 7 October 2004, some months after the transfer had taken place, although detailed searches have not found this document within MOD records and the individual in question has no recollection of it. I am satisfied that those officials within my Department who advised Ministers on these issues were unaware of the case and that they acted in good faith at all times.

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when officials in his Department first became aware that the answer given to the hon. Member for Carmarthen East and Dinefwr of 7 February 2006, Official Report, column 1083W, on extraordinary rendition, was inaccurate. [260518]

Mr. Hutton: The case of the two detainees transferred from Iraq to Afghanistan by the US outlined in my statement of 26 February, was brought to my attention on 1 December 2008, during the final stages of an MOD review of records of detentions. I directed that MOD officials conduct follow-up work to establish the facts and in doing so it became clear to them that inaccurate answers had been given to earlier questions in the House. This led to my statement on 26 February 2009.

Future Large Aircraft

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the contract specification for delivery dates for the A400M aircraft is; and what penalty clauses there are for late delivery in the contract. [259667]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The A400M contract specifies delivery of the 25 A400M UK aircraft at agreed dates starting in March 2010 and ending in April 2015. The contract does not include penalty clauses but does include provisions for liquidated damages for late delivery against the contractually specified delivery dates.

Military Aircraft: Helicopters

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of (a) the total helicopter fleet in service and (b) the helicopter forward air fleet were fit for purpose in each year since 2001, broken down by service and type. [259156]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The percentages of the total helicopter fleet and the forward helicopter fleet which are fit for purpose are not recorded as a matter of course, and are not therefore available from 2001 in all cases.

"In Service" has been taken to mean the Effective Fleet, which covers all aircraft barring those which are redundant, declared as surplus or awaiting disposal.

"Forward Fleet" aircraft are those that are available to the Front Line Commands for operational and training purposes, including those that are classed as "short term unserviceable"; aircraft undergoing scheduled depth maintenance, or planned routine fleet maintenance are excluded.

"Fit for Purpose" aircraft are those in the Forward Fleet considered capable of carrying out their planned missions on a given date.

Navy: Piracy

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the assistance of the Royal Navy has been requested by individuals whose vessels have been involved in incidents of piracy or attempted piracy in the last three years. [259564]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 27 February 2009]: There are no records held centrally of the Royal Navy having received any direct requests for assistance by individuals whose vessels have been involved in incidents of piracy or attempted piracy.

However, RN vessels have responded to incidents through recognized channels in the Gulf of Aden, acting on behalf of the international counter-piracy operations. Comprehensive statistics are not available.

Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the cost of operations in Iraq, broken down on the same basis as note 2.3 of his Department's Annual Report and Accounts 2007-08, was in (a) 2002-03 and (b) 2003-04; [258865]

(2) what the cost of operations in Afghanistan, broken down on the same basis as note 2.3 of his Department's Annual Report and Accounts 2007-08, was in each financial year from 2001-02 to 2003-04. [258866]

Mr. Hutton: The costs for Afghanistan in 2001-02 were not compiled in the format now used in our annual reports and cannot be reproduced on the same basis. The major cost areas for that year were:

	£ million
Resource expenditure	187
Capital expenditure	34

Somalia: Piracy

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) ships and (b) other units of the Armed Forces have been committed to the protection of merchant shipping from pirate attack in the Gulf of Aden. [258014]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As part of Standing NATO Maritime Group 2 (SNMG2), HMS Cumberland provided protection to vulnerable vessels, including World Food Programme shipping, when it transited through the gulf of Aden between October and December 2008.

The EU counter-piracy mission Operation Atalanta took on this protection role as its primary objective when SNMG2 left the region. As part of this, HMS Northumberland carried out World Food Programme shipping support between January and February 2009.

We are providing a frigate—currently HMS Portland—to conduct broader maritime security operations within the Combined Maritime Forces in the gulf of Aden. RFA Wave Knight continues to provide shipping and refuelling support to military vessels involved in counter-piracy activities in the region.

The UK takes the protection of merchant shipping very seriously and many personnel both in the UK and overseas are engaged in activities relating to the provision of maritime security. This includes co-ordination of, and support to, merchant shipping, as well as the provision of command and control functions for both UK and international military vessels.

Territorial Army: Fulham

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when his Department plans to make funds available for the refurbishment of the proposed Territorial Army Centre in Rylston Road, Fulham. [259371]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Initial funding has already allowed works to be carried out to make the proposed Territorial Army Centre in Rylston Road, Fulham, safe and secure.

Funding for development works such as the provision of office and stores accommodation has been allocated for Financial Years 2013-14 and 2014-15.

Territorial Army: Pay

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much back pay was owing to Territorial Army soldiers who have seen active service in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan on the latest date for which figures are available; what steps are being taken to make payments which are owed; and if he will make a statement. [259408]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 2 March 2009]: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

There are no known systematic problems with any back pay owed to TA soldiers who have undertaken active service in Iraq or Afghanistan.

Tornado Aircraft: Weapons

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the 3P233 runway denial munition carried by RAF Tornado aircraft is a cluster munition within the meaning of the Convention on Cluster Munitions. [260222]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The UK withdrew the JP233 from service in 1998 in order to meet its obligations under the Ottawa Convention. JP233 would also have been rendered prohibited under the Convention on Cluster Munitions.

Veterans Advice Unit: Manpower

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff in his Department worked in the Veterans Advice Unit in each of the last five years for which figures are available; how many currently work in the Unit; and how many he estimates will work in the Unit in the next financial year. [260371]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Veterans Advice Unit (VAU) was staffed by three service personnel from 1999 until 2002 providing veterans with dedicated information and advice. In 2002, its responsibilities were transferred to the Veterans Agency now the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency providing a fully integrated set of 'through life' personnel services to both service and ex-service personnel. It has a single point of access through its free helpline on 0800 169 2277 and website, www.veterans-uk.info.

The helpline employs a total of 26 staff (21 in whole-time equivalent posts) and its veterans advice team answering written inquiries employs four staff. Manning levels for the next financial year are not yet available.

Warships

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) in-service dates and (b) current out-of-service dates are for each (i) submarine, (ii) frigate and (iii) destroyer in the Royal Navy. [258922]

Mr. Quentin Davies: It is departmental policy to release in-service dates only for those vessels for which the main investment decision has been taken. Our present planning assumptions, which are routinely updated as required, are as follows:

Submarines

The MOD currently plans to procure seven Astute submarines. Four submarines are on contract, and in various stages of production at BAE Systems Submarine Solutions facilities at Barrow-in-Furness. The planned in-service dates for HMS Astute, the First of Class, Ambush, Artful and Audacious are subject to continuing detailed review by MOD, BAE Systems and other key stakeholders.

Frigates

The Royal Navy's current Type 22 and Type 23 frigates will be replaced by the Future Surface Combatant but the programme has not yet reached the main investment decision stage. However, on current plans, we expect the first vessel to enter service around the end of the next decade.

Our present planning assumptions for out-of-service dates are as follows:

Vanguard class

It is not possible to give precise out of service dates for the four Vanguard class submarines. As indicated in the December 2006 White Paper on the future of the United Kingdom's nuclear deterrent we believe that we can extend the original design life by around five years and that accordingly the first Vanguard class submarine would go out of service around 2022 and the second around 2024 and work is ongoing to determine the optimum out of service dates for the remaining two.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Civil Servants: Pensions

John McDonnell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many retired civil servants receive a Civil Service pension of less than (a) £1,000 and (b) £2,000 per annum. [258363]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 25 February 2009]: As at 24 February 2009 the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme is paying 40,191 pensioners a gross pension of less than £1,000 a year and a further 60,830 pensioners are receiving a gross pension of between £1,000 and £2,000 a year. "Pensioners" includes retired officers but not those in receipt of a dependant's pension.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to page 5 of his Department's Civil Superannuation Resource Accounts 2007-08, HC 60, for what reason the decision was taken to close the Standard Life and Scottish Widows With-Profits Civil Service Additional Voluntary Contribution Scheme funds. [258727]

Mr. Watson: The Cabinet Office, as manager of the Civil Service Additional Voluntary Contribution Scheme (CSAVCS), has commissioned Hewitt Associates Financial Services Limited to advise it on the suitability of the CSAVCS providers and the funds they offer. An Annual Review, which covers all aspects of the scheme, including fund performance, forms part of this advice.

In its 2006-07 review report, Hewitt confirmed that Standard Life and Scottish Widows remained suitable AVC providers but raised concerns about the suitability of the With-Profits funds for CSAVCS investors. In line with Hewitt's advice Cabinet Office closed all With Profits funds to new investors from November 2007. Cabinet Office also wrote to existing investors in With Profits, giving these members the choice of transferring to another fund or leaving their accumulated fund in With-Profits and continuing to make contributions.

Departmental Data Protection

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) on what date his Department's policy on the management of its electronic records first took effect; and on what dates it has subsequently been reviewed; [259389]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's policy statement on the management of its electronic records. [259388]

Mr. Watson: A Records Management Policy Statement governing the management of electronic records in the Cabinet Office was published in August 2006. This information has been placed in the Library.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will publish a copy of his Department's website accessibility plan. [257229]

Mr. Watson: The Department has not yet finalised its website accessibility plan. The plan will be published by May 2009. The Department's web accessibility statement http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/terms_and_conditions.aspx

states that we adhere to COI guidance

http://www.coi.gov.uk/guidance.php?page=188

and W3C guidelines

http://www.w3.org/WAI/

We use several services and forms of specialist software to incorporate better accessibility for people with cognitive, hearing, visual and physical disabilities.

Departmental Staff Surveys

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much the Cabinet Office spent on staff surveys in each of the last five years; and which company was contracted to conduct each such survey. [259682]

Mr. Watson: The following table sets out Cabinet Office's contracted price on staff surveys in each of the last five years and which company was contracted to conduct each survey:

	Spent on survey	Company contracted
2008-09	13,226	ORC International
2007-08	25,000	Towers Perrin ISR
2006-07	15,505	ORC International
2005-06	15,120	ORC International
2004-05	15,810	ORC International

The additional costs for the contract in 2007-08 reflected a change in methodology to provide more in-depth employee engagement analysis for the first time.

In 2008-09, the Cabinet Office is participating in a pilot of a single civil service survey, alongside nine other Departments, resulting in significantly reduced costs for the Department.

Employment

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what proportion of the increase since 1997 in the number of people of working age in employment is accounted for by (a) UK-born workers, (b) workers from outside the UK and (c) workers from outside the EU; and how many people there were in each category on the latest date for which figures are available; [257366]

(2) what proportion of the increase since 1997 in the number of people aged over 16 in employment is accounted for by (a) UK-born workers, (b) workers born outside the UK and (c) workers born outside the EU; and if he will express these figures (i) in numbers and (ii) as a percentage. [257388]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Questions asking:

What proportion of the increase since 1997 in the number of people of working age in employment in the UK is accounted for by (a) UK-born workers, (b) workers from outside the UK and (c) workers from outside the EU; and how many people there were in each category on the latest date for which Figures are available. (257366)

What proportion of the increase since 1997 in the number of people aged over 16 in employment in the UK is accounted for by (a) UK-born workers, (b) workers born outside the UK and (c) workers born outside the EU; and if he will express these figures (i) in numbers and (ii) as a percentage. (257388)

The requested information is shown in the attached tables.

The estimates are derived from the Labour Force Survey. As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

The figures in the table are derived from the LFS microdata which are weighted using the official population estimates published in autumn 2007. Consequently the 2008 estimates are not entirely consistent with the figures published in the monthly Labour Market Statistics First Release, or the migrant workers figures published every quarter, which are weighted using more up-to-date population estimates.

[2] Includes those whose country of birth was not known.
[3] Coefficients of Variation have been calculated for the latest period as an indication of the quality of the estimates. See Guide to Quality below.

Guide to Quality:
The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV - for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220.

Key Coefficient of Variation (CV) (%) Statistical robustness
* 0 = CV <5 Estimates are considered precise.
 5 = CV <10 Estimates are considered reasonably precise.
 10 = CV <20 Estimates are considered acceptable.
* CV = 20 Estimates are considered too unreliable for practical purposes.

Note:
The estimates exclude people in most types of communal establishment (e.g. hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites etc.).

Government Departments: ICT

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what estimate the Cabinet Office has made of the number of Government IT projects initiated in the last five years which are (a) over budget and (b) behind schedule. [258595]

Mr. Watson: During the past five years, we have initiated eight major IT projects in the Department. Of these one is currently behind schedule and two were delivered one month late. No major IT project initiated in this period is currently over budget.

Each Government Department is responsible for the management of its own IT projects. The Cabinet Office does not keep information centrally about IT projects managed by other Departments.

Ministerial Policy Advisers: Public Relations

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many Government special advisers there were whose primary role was in dealing with the media (a) in 1997 and (b) at the most recent date for which information is available; [258606]

(2) with reference to paragraph 72 of his Department's memorandum to the House of Lords Select Committee on Communications of 14 October 2008, who the 13 special advisers were in post at 17 September 2008 who were employed primarily in the area of communications; [258714]

(3) with reference to paragraph 72 of his Department's memorandum presented to the House of Lords Communications Select Committee inquiry into Government communication of 14 October 2008, how many special advisers were employed primarily in the area of communications in 1996. [258715]

Mr. Watson: The Government are committed to publishing an annual statement on the names and cost of special advisers. Information for the financial year 2007-08 was published on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 99WS. Information for 2008-09 will be published as soon as it is ready after the end of the financial year.

The most up to date information held in respect of special advisers who are employed primarily in the area of communications remains as set out in the Cabinet Office memorandum to the House of Lords Select Committee in October 2008. Information on the numbers of special advisers employed primarily in the area of communications in 1996 and 1997 is not held centrally.

Non-departmental Public Bodies: Recruitment

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what information his Department holds on numbers of people resident in Northern Ireland who have (a) applied for and (b) been appointed by Ministers to posts in UK-wide non-departmental bodies in each of the last three years. [259726]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 27 February 2009]: This information is not held by Government. The Government are, however, committed to promoting diversity in public appointments and ensuring that people from all parts of the UK have an equal opportunity to serve on the boards of UK public bodies.

Voluntary Organisations: Government Assistance

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which elements of the Recession Action Plan for the Third Sector are funded from existing budgets of Government departments and non-departmental bodies. [260487]

Kevin Brennan: All elements of Real Help for Communities: Volunteers, Charities and Social Enterprises have been funded from existing budgets across Government in order to invest in the sector now.

This includes funding from the Department of Work and Pensions, up to £10 million and £11.5 million from the Department of Health. The remaining funding is a £13.5 million draw down on end-year flexibility and £7.5 million from within existing Office of the Third Sector budgets.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many women were referred by national health service GPs to the British Pregnancy Advisory Service for an abortion in the last period for which figures are available, broken down by the (a) age of the woman, (b) length of gestation of the pregnancy at referral and (c) region of residence of the woman; [259041]

(2) how many early medical abortions were performed by the British Pregnancy Advisory Service at the request of the national health service in the last year for which figures are available, broken down by the (a) age of the woman, (b) length of gestation of the pregnancy and (c) region of residence of the woman. [259042]

Dawn Primarolo: Information on referrals for abortion by general practitioners is not collected.

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) schoolchildren and (b) adults have been diagnosed with autism in (i) County Durham and (ii) Easington constituency; and if he will make a statement. [260179]

Phil Hope: This information is not collected centrally. It is the responsibility of primary care trusts to plan, develop and improve services according to the healthcare needs of their local populations, and this includes services for people with autism.

Breast Cancer: Health Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of women in Hemel Hempstead with suspected breast cancer saw a specialist within two weeks of referral in each of the last five years. [260104]

Contraceptives

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department defines long acting reversible methods of contraception act as abortifacient; and if he will make a statement. [259040]

Dawn Primarolo: No form of contraception, including long acting reversible methods is an abortifacient. On 18 April 2002, Justice Mumby ruled that the supply and use of emergency contraception is lawful and that the prevention of implantation, which is brought about by emergency contraception products, which include the insertion of an intrauterine device, does not amount to procuring a miscarriage under the 1861 Offences Against the Person Act.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women in each (a) age group and (b) NHS trust area had subdermal implants removed in each of the last 10 years. [259643]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not currently collected centrally.

Contraceptives: Finance

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will publish the quarterly strategic health authority progress reports on allocation of the £26.8 million funding for contraception; [257369]

(2) how much of the £26.8 million spending on contraception announced by his Department on 6 February 2008 is allocated to each (a) primary care trust and (b) strategic health authority; and whether any of the funding was re-allocated from other budgets; [257372]

(3) pursuant to the answer of 10 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1934-40W, on teenage pregnancy, if he will assess the effectiveness of programmes intended to reduce the number of teenage pregnancies since 2005. [257447]

Dawn Primarolo: We expect to have a standard format that provides sufficient information without over-burdening the NHS for the next set of returns due in March. Once we have agreed the standard reporting arrangements, we will place the reports in the Library as they become available.

Of the £26.8 million additional contraceptive funding £12.8 million was included in the Primary Care Trusts' (PCT) overall general allocations. These are not ring-fenced. PCTs have the flexibility to decide how best to use their resources in delivering the national requirements and local priorities as set out in the NHS Operating Framework.

The 10 strategic health authorities (SHAs) were allocated funding based on a formula of a flat £0.5million each then an allocation based on the weighted capitation formula used for the PCT allocations. The individual SHA allocations are set out in the following table:

Strategic health authority	£000
North East Strategic Health Authority	780,000
North West Strategic Health Authority	1,210,000
Yorkshire and the Humber Strategic Health Authority	1,010,00
East Midlands Strategic Health Authority	900,000
West Midlands Strategic Health Authority	1,000,000
East of England Strategic Health Authority	1,000,000
London Strategic Health Authority	1,300,000
South East Coast Strategic Health Authority	900,000
South Central Strategic Health Authority	900,000
South West Strategic Health Authority	1,000,000

£1 million was allocated to SHAs (£100,00.00 per SHA) for work with further education colleges to improve contraceptive services for students.

£0.5 million was used for the development of a national contraception awareness campaign.

£1.5 million was used to support the 'You're Welcome programme', to make health services more young-people friendly, particularly contraceptive services.

£0.5 million was used to set up the 'Healthy Further Education Programme', which will put in place a framework to improve the contribution of colleges to health and well-being, with priority this year for sexual health.

£0.5 million was used to support more schools to gain 'Healthy School Status', including satisfying the criteria for delivering good quality Sex and Relationship Education.

None of the £26.8 million additional contraceptive funding was reallocated from any other budget.

England's under-18 conception rate is 41.7 per 1,000 and has fallen by 10.7 per cent, since the launch of the teenage pregnancy strategy. The under-16 rate is 8.3 per 1,000 and has fallen by 6.4 per cent, over the same period.

Statistics published on 26 February 2009 by the Office of National Statistics show that in 2007 the under-18 conception rate rose by 2.6 per cent. Despite the rise in national figures in 2007 the long-term trend is still downward.

The success of the teenage pregnancy strategy relies on all local areas applying it effectively. However, there is still significant variation at a local level, with some areas achieving reductions of over 30 per cent. whereas in other areas, rates have increased.

We have identified a range of factors that are in place in the areas where they have made most progress, which are either absent or being delivered less intensively in areas performing less well. These are highlighted in the document Teenage Pregnancy Next steps - guidance for Local Authorities and Primary Care trusts on effective delivery of local strategies a copy of which has been placed in the Library.

We have asked all local areas to ensure that they take account of these key ingredients and to update their local strategies as necessary. In addition, the NHS was reminded of the importance of provision of the full range of contraception to reduce teenage pregnancy in the NHS Operating Framework for 2009-10. An additional £20.5 million has been allocated for 2009-10 to support this work.

Dementia: Greater London

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people resident in (a) the London Borough of Bexley and (b) Greater London have been diagnosed with dementia in each of the last five years. [259506]

Phil Hope: The national Quality and Outcomes Framework (QOF) for England gives the number of people recorded on practice disease registers with a diagnosis of dementia. This register count is available only for the two latest releases of QOF, covering 2006-07 and 2007-08.

This information is available for health areas only; in this instance Bexley care trust and the London strategic health authority (SHA).

The number of people recorded on practice disease registers with a diagnosis of dementia for these organisations is shown in the following table:

	2006-07	2007-08
Bexley care trust	878	900
London SHA	23,023	23,871

Note:
QOF was introduced as part of the new general medical services contract on 1 April 2004. The published QOF information was derived from the Quality Management Analysis System which is a national system developed by NHS Connecting for Health.

Dental Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the cost to the General Dental Council of administering the annual registration fee for dental technicians was (a) in total and (b) per technician in 2008; [259776]

(2) what the net cost incurred by the General Dental Council in licensing each registered dental technician annually was in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [259777]

Ann Keen: This information is not held by the Department. The information may be available from the General Dental Council which is an independent, statutory body.

Dental Services: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dentists were operating under (a) general dental services contracts and (b) personal dental services agreements in (i) Hemel Hempstead and (ii) Hertfordshire in each year since 1997. [260081]

Ann Keen: Information is not available in the format requested.

The number of national health service dentists, by contract type, in England as at 31 March, 1997 to 2006, are available in table 4 of the "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006".

The number of NHS dentists, as at 31 March, 1997 to 2006 are available in annex E of the above report. Information is available by strategic health authority (SHA) and by primary care trust (PCT). Annex G contains information by parliamentary constituency.

This measure counted the number of NHS dentists recorded on PCT lists as at 31 March each year. This information is based on the old contractual arrangements, which were in place up to and including 31 March 2006. This report, published on 23 August 2006, has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dwfactivity

Information by contract type at a regional level is not available under the old contractual arrangements.

The number of dentists with NHS activity, by contract type, during the years ending 31 March, 2007 and 2008 are available in table G2 of annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics for England: 2007/08" report. Information is provided by SHA and by PCT but is not available by constituency. This information is based on the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006. This report, published on 21 August 2008, has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental0708

Following a recent consultation exercise, this measure is based on a revised methodology and therefore supersedes previously published work force figures relating to the new dental contractual arrangements. It is not comparable to the information collected under the old contractual arrangements. This revised methodology counted the number of dental performers with NHS activity recorded via FP17 claim forms in each year ending 31 March.

Further work is currently being undertaken to determine whether the new definition used under the new dental contractual arrangements can be applied to the years under the old contractual arrangements to produce a consistent time series.

Both sets of published figures relate to headcounts and do not differentiate between full-time and part-time dentists, nor do they account for the fact that some dentists may do more NHS work than others.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much NHS funding has been allocated to dentistry provision in Hemel Hempstead in each year since 2004. [260105]

Ann Keen: Prior to April 2006, most primary dental services were provided under former General Dental Service (GDS) arrangements. These were demand led services where the pattern of dental expenditure was largely determined by where dentists chose to practice, and how much national health service work they chose to undertake.

The former GDS arrangements were replaced with effect from 1 April 2006, when primary care trusts (PCTs) were given responsibility for planning and commissioning primary dental services and provided with local, devolved, dental budgets. The primary dental service funding allocations made to West Hertfordshire PCT for each of the three years since PCTs assumed full responsibility for primary dental care services are in the following table. These are net of income from dental charges paid by patients, which are retained locally to supplement the resources available for dentistry. Actual expenditure levels are determined by the pattern and type of services commissioned by each PCT. PCTs may also dedicate some of their other NHS resources to dentistry if they consider this an appropriate local priority. Allocations are not apportioned by individual constituencies or towns; PCTs determine the distribution of resources within their area on the basis of local needs and priorities.

Primary dental service net funding allocations for West Hertfordshire PCT

	Allocation (£000)
2006-07	19,217
2007-08	20,439
2008-09	22,659

Notes:
1. The allocation figure for 2006-07 is the aggregate of the allocations made initially to the Dacorum, Hertsmere, St. Albans and Harpenden, and Watford and Three Rivers PCTs before they merged to form the West Hertfordshire PCT with effect from 1 October 2006.
2. PCTs are awarded separate funding allocations to meet the cost of any dental vocational trainees who may be placed with dental practices in their area.

Departmental Data Protection

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department uses WPA2 encryption protocol on all its wireless networks. [259717]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department uses Wi-Fi Protected Access encryption on all its wireless networks.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what auditing his Department undertakes to ensure that IT security policies are being followed; and on how many occasions (a) IT security policies have been breached by employees and (b) a member of staff has been sanctioned for a breach of such policies in the last 12 months. [259718]

Mr. Bradshaw: Compliance audits are routinely and regularly undertaken. These include but are not limited to checks for removable computer media being left unsecured, passwords not carelessly written down and that accounts are being used in accordance with the Acceptable Use of information technology (IT) policy. These are either promoted in advance, but without giving a specific time or area, or carried out without warning. There are three types of compliance audit, one type focuses on IT security and six of these were performed in the last year. The Department is regularly reviewed against the Information Security Management Standard, ISO 27001.

On 154 occasions there were minor breaches of the IT security policies such as storing personal photographs or poor housekeeping. None warranted referral to HR. However, on each of these occasions the individual concerned was notified of the area of concern via their section head, was reminded of the relevant security policy and asked to modify their future behaviour.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's IT security hierarchy. [259719]

Mr. Bradshaw: Following is an organisational list showing the Department's information technology (IT) security hierarchy. The Departmental Security Officer reports both to the Director of Information Services and to the Permanent Secretary as appropriate, for instance for leak inquiries.

Department of Health Security Organisational List:

Permanent Secretary
Director General of Finance, Chief Operating Officer and Senior Information Risk Officer
Director of Information Services
Departmental Security Officer
IT Security Office

Eating Disorders

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to increase levels of awareness amongst GPs of bulimia and anorexia. [259400]

Phil Hope: We take the issue of eating disorders, especially among young people, very seriously. To help general practitioners (GPs) and other practitioners we commissioned clinical guidelines from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence on the core interventions in the treatment and management of anorexia nervosa, bulimia nervosa and related eating disorders. We expect GPs to refer to this guidance.

We have also increased funding for Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services by over 60 per cent. in three years and, to provide better support for adults with common mental health problems, including anorexia, we announced a £170 million expansion of psychological therapies.

Foetal Anti-convulsant Syndrome

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) children and (b) adults have been diagnosed with foetal anti-convulsant syndrome resulting from their mothers receiving sodium valproate treatment during pregnancy; and if he will make a statement. [259374]

Dawn Primarolo: Foetal anticonvulsant syndrome describes a group of disorders in which birth defects and developmental disorders occur in association with a characteristic facial appearance in children whose mothers took antiepileptic drugs during pregnancy. Information on the total number of individuals diagnosed in the United Kingdom with foetal anticonvulsant syndrome is not available, however epidemiological studies suggest that the incidence of birth defects in babies born to mothers receiving antiepileptic medicines is approximately two to three times higher than the background rate in the general population.

The UK Epilepsy and Pregnancy Register was established in 1996 in order to gather further information on the outcomes of pregnancies in women receiving antiepileptic medicines. All pregnant women taking antiepileptic medicines are encouraged to notify their pregnancy or allow their clinician to notify their pregnancy to this register. Findings from this register were published in 2005 and suggested that almost 96 per cent. of live-births born to women with epilepsy did not have a major birth defect. It also confirmed that the likelihood of a baby being born with a birth defect is increased if the woman is taking more than one antiepileptic medicine (polytherapy).

The best established risk of abnormalities is associated with sodium valproate. An increased incidence of birth defects (including head and face deformities, deformities of the bones, malformations of the arms and legs and defects of the spinal cord and spine such as spina bidifia) has been shown in children born to mothers who took sodium valproate during pregnancy. For sodium valproate taken as monotherapy, the report from the UK Epilepsy and Pregnancy Register suggests that approximately five babies are born with a major birth defect for every 100 women taking this drug. This risk increases to approximately nine in 100 at higher doses (over 1,000 mg per day).

The authorised product information on sodium valproate for prescribers and the patient information leaflet contain clear advice about its safety of use during pregnancy. This includes information about the potential for birth defects and recommends that any woman taking sodium valproate who is likely to become pregnant should receive specialist advice on these risks. There is also a recommendation that if taken during pregnancy sodium valproate should be used as monotherapy at the lowest effect dose. Folic acid supplementation prior to pregnancy is also recommended as this may reduce the risk of having a baby with spina bifida.

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has published a clinical guideline covering the diagnosis, treatment and management of epilepsies in adults and children. This clinical guideline specifically covers the treatment and management of epilepsy in pregnancy.

Great Western Hospital: Waiting Lists

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) average and (b) maximum waiting time for (i) in-patient and (ii) day case admissions was at the Great Western Hospital in each year since 1997. [259490]

Mr. Bradshaw: The data for the Great Western Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust, formerly known as the Swindon and Marlborough NHS Trust, as at March for each specified year, are given as follows.

Notes:

1. Figures show the median waiting times for patients still waiting for admission at the end of the period stated.
2. In-patient waiting times are measured from the decision to admit by the consultant to the admission to hospital.
3. Median waiting times are calculated from aggregate data, rather than patient level data, and therefore are only estimates of the position on average waits.
4. Data no longer collected by in-patient/day case split after 30 September 2007
5. Waiting times data collected in weekly time bands from 1 April 2007 and the maximum time band show the patient with the longest wait at the end of that period
6. Swindon and Marlborough NHS Trust was in existence until December 2008, it then became the Great Western Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust.

Health Services: Complaints

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many responses his Department received to its consultation on proposed changes to the legislative framework for health and social care complaints; [258322]

(2) in what ways the proposed new social care complaints procedure for adults will differ from the procedure for complaints in social care for children; [258469]

(3) what mechanisms there are in the proposed new social care complaints procedure to enable a director of adult care to highlight faults in the system; [258470]

(4) whether complainants will retain their right to independent scrutiny of their complaint under the proposed new social care complaints procedure; and if he will make a statement; [258471]

(5) what assessment he has made of the merits of the proposed changes to the social care complaints system whereby complaints would be dealt with by front line staff who provide the complainant's care. [258474]

Ann Keen: There were 191 responses to the consultation on "Reform of health and social care complaints: Proposed changes to the legislative framework". Prior to this the Department ran a consultation on the policy and principles of the new approach to complaints handling in the national health service and social care in 2007, entitled "Making experiences count: a new approach to responding to complaints". There were 376 written responses to this earlier consultation, the majority of which were positive and supportive of the new approach.

Under the new approach as provided for in the forthcoming legislative framework the Local Authority Social Services and National Health Service Complaints (England) Regulations 2009 laid before Parliament on the 27 February and coming into force on 1 April 2009, every local authority, NHS body, and primary care provider must designate a complaints manager to be responsible for managing the procedures for handling and considering complaints in accordance with the complaints regulations. Front line staff who provide the complainant's care may be required to contribute to investigations of complaints and provide explanations or reports as necessary, but not to take responsibility for managing complaints.

Under the new system, complainants will retain the same rights as now to take their complaints either to the parliamentary and health service ombudsman for NHS complaints, or to the local government ombudsman for social care complaints for independent investigation, where they are dissatisfied with the response they have received from the local organisation. In addition the flexibility of the new system allows for local independent investigation of complaints where appropriate.

In social care this will give adult social care complaints managers greater freedom to determine whether their handling will contain a single response, or stages, and at what point senior managers will become involved in considering the complaint. They will also decide whether and how independent consideration of the complaint will be addressed (i.e. whether there will be investigating officers conducting an investigation, and whether these will be independent of the organisation, and also whether there will be independent advocacy).

The procedures for complaints about social care for children are remaining separate and unchanged under the Children Act 1989, and complainants will continue to receive a three stage procedure. This features an automatic right to advocacy for any young person, independent consideration of all stage 2 complaints through an independent person, and also a review panel (with a minimum of two independent people on it) for all stage 3 complaints. The director of children's services will normally become involved with complaints that reach stage 3 (though s/he will be briefed on complaints in general and all significant cases by the complaints manager).

Under the Children Act, the complaints manager must be a direct employee of the local authority; this is no longer a feature of the reforms for adult services.

The new system for the NHS and adult social care will require chief executives of local authorities and NHS bodies to be responsible for ensuring compliance with the new arrangements and in particular ensuring that action is taken if necessary in the light of the outcome of a complaint. It is envisaged that in local authorities chief executives may delegate this role to directors of adult social services.

Hospital Beds

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 11 February 2009, Official Report, column 2079W, on hospital beds, if he will make it his policy to collect and hold information from each NHS hospital trust on how many days each trust has been placed on its highest level of alert because of a shortage of beds; and if he will make a statement. [259289]

Ann Keen: It is not the Department's policy to collect and hold information from each national health service hospital trust on how many days each trust has been placed on its highest level of alert because of a shortage of beds. It is for individual trusts to ensure they have the necessary bed capacity to treat patients.

Hospitals: Cleaning Services

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department and NHS organisations took to improve levels of hospital cleanliness in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; and how much was spent on such activities in each year. [259995]

Ann Keen: Patients have a right to clean safe care and the national health service is working hard to ensure that hospitals are clean and safe for patients. The results of the most recent Healthcare Commission in-patient survey reflect this hard work with the NHS achieving its highest ever cleanliness rating.

During the two years in question, the Department took a number of key steps to improve hospital cleanliness including:

the provision of £62.6 million funding for a deep clean of all hospitals in 2007-08; the requirement that trusts' strategic and operational cleaning plans make provision for on-going deep clean activity;

all NHS bodies being subject to Health Act 2006 Code of Practice on the Prevention and Control of Healthcare Associated Infections, which came into force on 1 October 2006;

Healthcare Commission inspections against the duties set out in the code which require NHS bodies to have appropriate management and clinical governance systems in place to deliver effective infection control;

a national cleanliness summit held in February 2008, hosted by the NHS Chief Executive to discuss key national issues related to hospital cleaning; an increase in the number of matrons, to 5,000 in May 2008, with more powers over cleaning and matrons and clinical directors reporting to Trust boards on a quarterly basis on infection control and cleanliness; publication of 'Board to Ward' guidance highlighting the commitment needed to ensure that all staff understand the role they play in preventing infections and providing a clean environment. A copy has been placed in the Library; the revision of the national specifications for cleanliness in the NHS setting the standard of cleanliness expected across a range of elements that need cleaning, together with suggested cleaning frequencies; enhancement of patient environment action teams (PEAT) assessment of hospital cleanliness to contain an element relating to year round cleanliness; and the publication of the strategy document , Clean Safe Care Reducing Infections and saving lives drawing together key initiatives to tackle healthcare associated infections (HCAIs) and cleanliness. A copy has already been placed in the Library.

During the period in question, the NHS spent a total of £1.383 billion on cleaning and cleaning services with expenditure of £663 million in 2006-07 rising to £720 million in 2007-08.

Hospitals: ICT

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many hospitals are connected to the national NHS IT system; [259942]

(2) what timetable has been set for hospital trusts to introduce the national NHS IT system. [259943]

Mr. Bradshaw: The NHS IT programme is delivering front-line systems and services that are providing major benefits for national health service organisations in England, staff and patients, enabling significant changes in the way the NHS operates, and delivering major system reform. All acute trusts have at least one system which has been delivered through the programme.

As at the end of February 2009, a total of 146 patient administration systems had been deployed as part of the programme to 45 acute, 24 mental health and 77 primary care trusts. Information on which of the organisations concerned include a hospital site, and which may have more than one hospital site, is not held centrally.

It is not possible to provide comprehensive details of the future number, location and sequencing of future deployments. This is because meeting the needs and priorities of individual trusts that are maintaining normal business operations requires flexibility in deployment planning, and inevitably means that plans will always be subject to potential change. Detailed implementation planning became the responsibility of individual trusts and the chief executives of strategic health authorities from April 2007. Taking the country as a whole, however, as reported in the National Audit Office 16 May 2008 report on the programme, it is likely to be 2014-15 before all trusts have fully-deployed care records systems, though some should receive the final releases of the software in late 2009.

Learning Disability

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what basis the sum to be transferred from his Department to local authorities when they take responsibility for support for learning disabled people will be calculated. [259566]

Phil Hope: From April 2011 the intention is that allocations of social care resources will be made directly from the Department to local authorities. We will consider the best way of achieving the allocation beyond 2011 once primary care trusts and local authorities have reported the outcome of their local agreements and the results have been analysed at a national level. The Department will consult on the determination of these allocations before its intention to allocate directly to local authorities is implemented.

Lung Cancer: North West

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 5 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1497-8W, on cancer, what steps his Department is taking (a) to reduce the incidence of lung cancer and (b) to reduce the incidence of smoking by young people under the age of 16 years in the North West. [259469]

Ann Keen: The cancer reform strategy, published in December 2007, sets out guidance to the local national health service on how to improve cancer prevention, speed up the diagnosis and treatment of cancer, reduce inequalities, improve the experience of people living with and beyond cancer, ensure care is delivered in the most appropriate settings and ensure patients can access effective new treatments quickly. It is for primary care trusts (PCTs) to use the funds made available to them and work in partnership with strategic health authorities, local services, cancer networks and other local stakeholders to deliver these aims. Information on the work being done in the north-west can be obtained from the individual PCTs directly.

Through the cancer reform strategy's national awareness and early diagnosis initiative, the Department, in partnership with Cancer Research UK, is co-ordinating a programme to support local interventions to increase cancer symptom awareness, and encourage people to seek help early.

'High Quality Care for All', the final report of the NHS next stage review, said that every PCT will commission comprehensive wellbeing and prevention services, in partnership with local authorities, with personalised services offered to meet the specific needs of their local populations. It stated that efforts must be focused on a number of key goals, including reducing smoking rates.

Reducing smoking among young people is a priority for the Government. Much has already been achieved in this area, including raising the age of sale of tobacco products and legislation to strengthen sanctions available against retailers who persistently sell tobacco to children and young people. Smoking is also addressed in the national curriculum and through the healthy schools programme.

Protecting children and young people from smoking was one of four key aspects of the Department's consultation on the future of tobacco control published on 31 May 2008. Responses to the consultation are informing the development of a new strategy on tobacco control, which will include action to continue to tackle the uptake of smoking by young people.

The Government this year are taking forward tobacco control legislation intended to protect and support young people in the Health Bill. The Health Bill includes a prohibition on the display of tobacco products, which will help to eliminate the marketing of tobacco products, to which young people are susceptible. The Bill will also provide powers to restrict or ban the sale of tobacco from vending machines, removing a major source of tobacco for young people.

Local stop smoking services are able to provide a range of support options to anyone wanting to quit smoking, including young people. Resources are also available that can be accessed by smokers direct on smoking cessation, these include the national health service 'gosmokefree' website and from the general NHS smoking helpline (0800 169 0169).

Maternity Services

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what proportion of pregnancies where a home birth had been requested resulted in a hospital delivery in 2007-08; [259991]

(2) what proportion of births were home deliveries in (a) 2000-01 and (b) 2007-08; [259992]

(3) how many maternity beds there were in England in (a) 2000 and (b) 2008. [259993]

Ann Keen: The Office for National Statistics publishes home birth statistics. The latest available data are for the calendar year 2007 and can be found in Birth Statistics, Series FM1, table 8.1.

The information in the table is summarised as follows.

Number and percentage of women giving birth at home[1], England and Wales, 2000-07

	Number of women giving birth at home	Total number of women giving birth	Percentage of women giving birth at home
2000	12,803	598,580	2.1
2001	12,115	588,868	2.1
2002	12,697	590,453	2.2
2003	13,590	615,787	2.2
2004	14,506	633,728	2.3
2005	16,501	639,627	2.6
2006	18,100	662,915	2.7
2007	19,594	682,999	2.9

[1] The figures provided show the number and percentage of women who gave birth at home i.e. home maternities, rather than the number of babies born at home. A maternity is a pregnancy resulting in the birth of one or more live-born or stillborn babies.

Source:
Office for National Statistics

The numbers of planned home births that resulted in a hospital delivery are not collected centrally.

The average daily number of available maternity beds in England was 10,203 in 1999-2000, 9,767 in 2000-01 and 8,441 in 2007-08. This period has seen shorter hospital stays and a growth in maternity day assessment units, where women at high risk can be monitored during the day but are able to return home at night.

Maternity Services: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the tariff uplift breakdown for 2009-10, published by his Department on 5 February 2009, and pursuant to the answer of 20 January 2009, Official Report, column 1378W, on maternity services: finance, under what tariff headings the additional funding his Department plans to provide for maternity services in 2009-10 is included. [259304]

Ann Keen: Additional funding for maternity services in 2009-10 is not included in the tariff uplift breakdown for 2009-10, as this is the general uplift applied to all tariff prices. Instead, money has been targeted at maternity services, including a £20 million uplift to the maternity out-patient attendance tariff.

Further information on this funding can be found in paragraphs 20 and 21 of the "Payment by Results Guidance for 2009-10", which has been placed in the Library.

Medical Records: Data Protection

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS staff have accessed the NHS spine without appropriate authorisation in each of the last three years. [256787]

Mr. Bradshaw: Access to the national health service care record 'spine' is strictly controlled by the use of smartcards, which are only issued on proof of identity and residence. The smartcards contain role-based profiles that restrict access to patient information depending on the role performed.

There are clear processes for NHS trusts to follow in the administration of smartcards and for adherence to information governance standards. However, legal responsibility for the secure handling and managing of patient data rests with individual NHS organisations.

Details of which staff have been authorised by their employing organisation, and which staff have not been so authorised, are therefore held locally, not by the Department. The cost of collecting and maintaining this information centrally would be considerable and disproportionate to the benefit in doing so. However, there is no evidence that inappropriate access currently happens other than very exceptionally.

Mental Health Services

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were re-admitted into a mental health hospital in each year since 1997. [260393]

Phil Hope: The information requested is not held centrally.

Mental Health Services: Restraint Techniques

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many times restraint was used on a mental health patient in each Strategic Health Authority area in each year since 1997; and on how many such occasions the incident was not logged within 24 hours. [260489]

Phil Hope: The information requested is not held centrally.

NHS Foundation Trusts

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which categories of patient services NHS Foundation Trust hospitals have decided to (a) commence and (b) terminate since their inception. [259738]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are informed by the chairman of Monitor (the statutory name of which is the independent regulator of NHS foundation trusts (NHS FTs) that his organisation does not hold a list of all services commenced and terminated by NHS FTs. However, all NHS FTs are required to provide details of the services that have been agreed with their primary care trust (PCT). These are listed as 'mandatory services' in the NHS FT's terms of authorisation.

Any changes to the mandatory services listed in the terms of authorisation including termination of specific services requires approval from Monitor and can be done only once those changes have been agreed between the PCT and the NHS FT.

NHS: Legal Costs

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the NHS spent on defending legal proceedings taken against it by private individuals seeking to reverse local decisions on health provision and facilities in 2007-08. [259988]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not held centrally.

NHS: Manpower

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) nurses and (b) doctors there were in each NHS Trust in each year from 2000 to 2007, with data adjusted to reflect the current configuration of trusts. [259381]

Ann Keen: The information could be provided in the form requested only at a disproportionate cost. An unadjusted table containing the number of doctors and nurses in each national health service trust for the years requested has been placed in the Library.

NHS: Redundancy Pay

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many senior managers given redundancy payments as part of the last primary care trust reorganisation are working in another part of the NHS. [259948]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally.

Patient Choice Schemes

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of doctors in each health trust have used the choose and book system in each month since the introduction of the scheme. [259940]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect the data on the proportion of general practitioners (GPs) using choose and book. The Department does collect data on the number of GP practices using choose and book, which is shown in the document Percentage of GP Practices using Choose and Book monthly by primary care trust, which has been placed in the Library.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of appointments have been made using the choose and book system in each health trust in each month since the scheme was introduced. [259941]

Mr. Bradshaw: Data on the percentage of appointments made to consultant-led out-patient appointments following a general practitioner (GP) referral using the Choose and Book system in each primary care trust (PCT) in each month since April 2006 are shown in the document, Percentage of GP referrals to first outpatient appointments made using Choose and Book, monthly by primary care trust, which has been placed in the Library.

Prior to April 2006, the Department did not calculate utilisation at a primary care trust level.

Perinatal Mortality: Research

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department has allocated to spending on research into the prevention of stillbirth in (a) 2008-09 and (b) each of the subsequent three years; which research projects are being funded; where these projects are being carried out; and how much is planned to be spent on each project. [260102]

Dawn Primarolo: Estimated expenditure in 2008-09 by the Department's National Institute for Health Research (NIHR) and its Policy Research Programme (PRP) on research related to stillbirth is £2.2 million.[1] Further details are shown in the following table.

[1] Excludes the cost of the one National Perinatal Epidemiology Unit work stream of which stillbirth research forms a part.

PRP	The Northern congenital abnormality survey: a collaborative survey of congenital anomalies in the Northern region	Dr. Judith Rankin, University of Newcastle	427,174

Information in respect of Medical Research Council (MRC) expenditure in this area in 2008-09 is not yet available.

The usual practice of the Department's NIHR and of the MRC is not to ring-fence funds for expenditure on particular topics: research proposals in all areas compete for the funding available. Future levels of expenditure on stillbirth research will be determined by the success of relevant bids for funding.

Prescription Drugs: Costs

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost to the NHS of unused prescribed drugs and medicines was in 2007-08. [259924]

Dawn Primarolo: Research to determine the scale and cost of waste medicines is progressing. The research findings are expected later in 2009 and will inform the development of Government policy for influencing both health professionals and members of the public to reduce the amount of unwanted medicines and provide better value for money for the national health service.

The Department currently supports a range of initiatives including repeat dispensing and medicines use reviews, through the contractual framework for community pharmacy, where pharmacists help patients get the most from their medicines, while at the same time minimising wastage by optimising use.

Prescriptions

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many FP10 forms have been lost in transit from pharmacists to the Prescriptions Pricing Division of the NHS Business Services Authority in each year since 1997. [255594]

Dawn Primarolo: The NHS Prescription Services of the NHS Business Services Authority are aware of 241 separate instances, from April 1997 to November 2008, where batches of FP10 prescription forms, submitted for reimbursement by pharmacies in England to NHS Prescription Services, were lost, in transit to NHS Prescription Services.

Where forms have been lost or stolen, NHS Prescription Services or pharmacies followed this up with the postal service, courier or the police as appropriate.

On this basis, the number of FP10 forms estimated by NHS Prescription Services as lost or stolen in transit from pharmacists to the NHS Prescription Services are shown in the following table.

Financial year	Estimated number of FP10 prescribing forms lost or stolen in transit from pharmacies to the NHS Prescription Services (England) (thousand)[1]	Number of FP10 forms processed for pharmacies in England (thousand)	Number of FP10 forms lost as a % of the total number of FP10s processed for pharmacies in England

Ritalin: Children

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children have been prescribed Ritalin in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [259483]

Phil Hope: This information is not collected centrally.

Sickle Cell Diseases

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to build capacity in the voluntary sector to support patients with sickle cell disease. [259335]

Ann Keen: The voluntary sector has an important role to play in the development of services closer to home for people with long-term conditions such as sickle cell and thalassaemia (haemoglobin disorders).

We are already working with key stakeholder organisations, such as the Sickle Cell Society and the UK Thalassaemia Society, to develop a clinical service model for haemoglobin disorders. We will give further consideration to how best we can facilitate support for the voluntary sector to develop capacity in community services.

Social Services

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether care home residents who are in receipt of personal expenses allowance have received (a) the one-off payment of £60 and (b) the one-off payment of £10 to Christmas bonus recipients; and if he will make a statement. [260454]

Phil Hope: The Department for Work and Pensions pays the Christmas bonus according to entitlement rules in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992. To be eligible to receive the Christmas bonus for 2008-09, individuals must be living in the United Kingdom or elsewhere in the European Union or the European economic area and be entitled to receive certain benefits in the week commencing 22 December 2008.

The personal expenses allowance (PEA) is not a benefit but the amount of the resident's own money which he or she must be left with after charges for residential care have been deducted. People who get PEA only receive the Christmas bonus if they meet the entitlement rules. However, any care home resident who is eligible to receive the Christmas bonus will receive it in full, as it is disregarded from the financial assessment for charging for residential care.

The Department does not hold information on the number of people receiving PEA who have received the Christmas bonus.

Social Services: Finance

Roger Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1349W, on autism, what plans he has to ensure that individual budgets are effective for people with (a) sensory impairments and (b) autism; [259611]

(2) what steps he plans to take to ensure local authority resource allocation systems for individual budgets reflect the needs of people with (a) sensory impairments, (b) autism and (c) complex needs. [259613]

Phil Hope: As part of the programme to transform adult social care, local authorities are expected to provide personal budgets to all adults eligible to receive social care over the period 2008-11. This will include people with autism and sensory impairments. From April 2009, we will be consulting on a new national strategy for autism. Local authorities will need to take into account any requirements arising from the strategy when providing personal budgets to people with autism.

Practical guides issued by the Department to help local authorities develop resource allocation systems for personal budgets advise councils to consult advocacy groups and other groups representing disabled people and older people, and representatives of carers. The needs of all service users, including people with autism, sensory impairment and complex needs, should be reflected in the questions included in the self-assessment which forms the basis of the resource allocation system.

Sunbeds

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will bring forward legislative proposals to prevent children from using sun-beds in tanning shops; and if he will make a statement; [259919]

(2) if he will introduce legislation to ban the unsupervised use of sun-bed machines; and if he will make a statement; [260037]

(3) if he will introduce legislation to ban the use of coin-operated sun-bed machines; and if he will make a statement. [260038]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government advise against the use of sunbeds for cosmetic purposes, particularly by minors, including the use of unsupervised or coin-operated sunbeds. The Cancer Reform Strategy commits the Government to reviewing options for possible regulation of the sunbed industry, but firstly to gather information to inform the review. This is currently under way.

Teenage Pregnancy

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department (a) has undertaken, (b) plans to take and (c) has evaluated on the effect of greater access to family planning on numbers of underage (i) conceptions and (ii) abortions; when his Department last undertook an evidential review of the issue that drew on (A) UK and (B) international research; and if he will make a statement. [259045]

Dawn Primarolo: The "1999 Social Exclusion Unit Teenage Pregnancy Report" on which the teenage pregnancy strategy is based references the evidence and research papers that informed the development of the strategy. The teenage pregnancy strategy is multi-faceted and is based on the best international evidence on what works.

One of the priority actions identified in the 1999 report was to ensure effective advice and contraception for young people. The strategy has continued to develop over time and relevant national and international evidence is kept under review to inform the development of the strategy. There is increasing evidence that contraception can have a significant impact on teenage conceptions. Research published in the "American Journal of Public Health" in 2006 found that 86 per cent. of the decline in United States teenage pregnancy rates between 1995 and 2002 could be attributed to improved contraceptive use.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which (a) individuals and (b) organisations who were sent copies of Healthy lives brighter futures: The strategy for children and young people's health; at what cost; and if he will make a statement; [259069]

(2) how much was spent by his Department on (a) researching and (b) producing Healthy lives brighter futures: The strategy for children and young people's health; who his Department consulted before (i) drafting and (ii) publishing it; who drafted the publication; what input Ministers in his Department had; and if he will make a statement. [259070]

Ann Keen: All chief executives of primary care trusts and directors for children and learners at each regional Government offices in England were sent a copy of "Healthy lives, brighter futures: The strategy for children and young people's health" and the "Securing better health for children and young people through world class commissioning" documents. In addition to this we sent a copy of each to a number of organisations. A list of these organisations are shown as follows. Both documents have already been placed in the Library and are also available from the Department of Health and Department for Children, Schools and Families websites, where hard copies may be ordered.

The cost of production of the strategy and the commissioning document, including VAT, totalled £82,879. The cost of packing, handling and posting hard copies of the documents, including VAT, totalled £2,708.91.

"Healthy lives, brighter futures" built on a large body of existing research and no new research was commissioned specifically for the strategy. The Secretaries of State for Health and Children, Schools and Families were involved at key stages in the development of the strategy. Both Secretaries of State hosted a deliberative event for parents and teenagers in June 2008, and further deliberative events were held with other groups, including child health professionals and parents of children with complex health needs. The cost of these events totalled £125,120.07, including VAT. Other work to develop the strategy was carried out by officials from the Department of Health and Department for Children, Schools and Families and through a range of meetings with stakeholders. Costs for this work cannot be identified separately.

Since 1997 we have witnessed a renaissance in apprenticeships from a low point of 65,000 to a record 225,000 apprenticeship starts in 2007/08. Completion rates are also at a record high with 64 per cent. successfully completing an apprenticeship—up from 37 per cent. in 2004/05. A remarkable achievement.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many institutions have been overpaid by the Higher Education Funding Council for England in each of the last 10 years; and by how much in each case. [259145]

Mr. Lammy: Overpayments can be identified for a variety of reasons following an audit of an institution's records. There is then a process of mitigation to determine the extent of any repayment. In addition there are ongoing adjustments to grant throughout the year to reflect student recruitment against indicative plans. As a result the information requested is not readily available. It is held across a disparate set of paper and electronic records and would take a considerable amount of time and resource to assemble. This information is therefore available only at disproportionate cost.

JUSTICE

Bailiffs: Powers

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when the draft regulations for the Tribunals Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 in respect of bailiff powers will be published. [259135]

Bridget Prentice: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 372W. The enforcement provisions in the Tribunals, Court and Enforcement Act 2007 are far reaching reforms. The provisions have recently undergone a comprehensive reassessment by Ministers to ensure that they remain appropriate even under this difficult financial climate. This assessment has now been concluded and a statement will be made shortly.

Children: Abuse

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prosecutions for child abuse were made in the years ended March (a) 2004, (b) 2005, (c) 2006, (d) 2007 and (e) 2008. [256394]

Maria Eagle: The number of persons aged 18 and over proceeded against at magistrates courts for offences relating to child abuse from 2003 to 2007 in England and Wales is shown in the following table. As there is no specific offence of "child abuse" statistics are provided only where the age of the victim can be identified as a child from the description of the offence. Furthermore the term "child abuse" describes harm caused to a child arising from emotional, physical, sexual abuse or neglect caused by a parent or carer. A number of other offences such as offences against the person including physical assault may frequently be used by the police to charge offenders.

These data are on the principal offence basis. The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Court proceedings data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

Community Orders

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to inform the public about work being undertaken by convicted criminals serving community service orders. [259561]

Mr. Hanson: Local probation areas promote the work they do locally with offenders serving community sentences and in particular in the case of Community Payback. Nationally, the Ministry of Justice is also working with the cross-Government National Crime and Justice Group on developing communications that will include messages about Community Payback in local areas. Plans will be announced shortly.

The Government are committed to increased public visibility and involvement in Community Payback so that local communities are aware of both offenders being punished and the work that they undertake. A forthcoming Green Paper will outline how the Government intend to give the public more opportunities to propose work for offenders in local areas by, for example, expanding the citizens panels, which are currently being piloted in six areas.

To increase visibility to the public high visibility distinctive clothing for offenders undertaking Community Payback was introduced on 1 December.

Criminal Cases Review Commission

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) complaints and (b) items of correspondence have been received by the Criminal Cases Review Commission in relation to historical sex abuse investigations in the UK in each year since 2001. [259302]

Maria Eagle: Since 2001, there has been one complaint made to the Commission in relation to a care home sexual abuse case. This complaint, made in 2001, was by an applicant who had applied unsuccessfully to the Commission for his case to be reviewed in 1999 and who was dissatisfied with the way in which the Commission determined his case. The complaint, which was not upheld, was investigated by the Commission's complaint manager in accordance with the Commission's formal complaints procedure.

Since 2001, the Commission has received 39 applications relating to cases of this nature. By year:

	Number of applications
2001	8
2002	8
2003	7
2004	5
2005	5
2006	1
2007	5
2009 to date	0

It has not been possible in the time available to calculate the exact figure, or identify the year in which a particular item of correspondence has been received. The Commission estimates that, since 2001, it has received 1,940 items of correspondence in relation to the 39 cases of this nature.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent changes the Criminal Cases Review Commission has made to the way in which it (a) assesses cases and (b) determines which cases are (i) eligible and (ii) ineligible for review. [259481]

Maria Eagle: There have been no changes in the way in which the Commission assesses cases. Every case is assessed independently and on its own merits. The Commission reviews applications to decide whether there is a real possibility that the relevant appeal court will quash a conviction or amend a sentence.

There has also been no change in the way in which the Commission assesses which cases are eligible for review. The conditions for eligibility for review are set down in sections 9-12 of the Criminal Appeal Act 1995. As a consequence, the only substantive ground on which the Commission can refuse to accept an application to review a case is where the applicant has not been convicted of a criminal offence in England, Wales or Northern Ireland.

There are other criteria that normally have to be met before an application is accepted such as that the applicant needs to have exhausted the normal appeal processes before applying to the CCRC. However, Section 13 of the Criminal Appeal Act provides that, in exceptional circumstances, conditions other than the requirement to have a relevant conviction can be waived.

Dangerous Dogs Act 1991

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 20 January 2009, Official Report, column 1332W, on dangerous dogs: convictions, how many of the offences for which persons were found guilty fell under (a) section 1 and (b) section 3 of the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991. [259663]

Maria Eagle: Data showing the number of persons found guilty of offences under sections 1 and 3 of the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 in England and Wales from 1997 to 2007 (latest available) are shown in the following table.

Number of persons found guilty at all courts of offences under sections 1 and 3 of the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991, England and Wales, 1997 to 2007[1, 2]

As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates' courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department has allocated for staff bonuses in 2008-09. [252252]

Mr. Straw: 'Year end' non-consolidated performance payments are paid to high performing members of the senior civil service (SCS) to reflect their individual contribution during the previous performance year. In the 2008-09 financial year £1,648,000 was paid to SCS staff.

Within the Ministry of Justice there are different methods of reward for former DCA staff and staff in the National Offender Management Service (NOMS).

Payment of non-consolidated pay to former DCA staff below the SCS level may be either 'year end' or 'in year' performance payments. 'Year end' performance payments are paid only to staff who achieve the highest possible performance marking for the previous reporting year, which runs from 1 April to 31 March. The amount of 'year end' payments made in August 2008 to staff in the former DCA was £2,011,200.

'In year' payments are made, at local management discretion, to staff whose performance is exceptional as part of the Department's recognition and reward policy.

For the former DCA, the amount allocated for the period 1 August 2007 to 31 July 2008 was 0.4 per cent. of the 2007-08 paybill of £575,514.

The amount allocated for the period 1 August 2008 to 31 July 2009 is 0.5 per cent. of the 2008- 09 paybill of £597,641.

NOMS operate a performance management system which provides for 'year end' performance payments and recognises outstanding performance with 'in year' payments. It is not possible to give a figure for the total paid in performance payments for the current financial year i.e. 2008-09. However, such payments cannot exceed 0.5 per cent. of the paybill in any unit.

Performance payments are funded within existing paybill controls, have to be re-earned each year against pre-determined targets, and, as such, do not add to future paybill costs.

Performance payments, which are non-consolidated and non-pensionable, are paid to high performing individuals as part of the Department's reward strategy. Such payments are a cost-effective means of encouraging and rewarding high performance and drives continuous improvement throughout the organisation.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many bonus payments were made to (a) senior civil servants and (b) other staff working in (i) HM Courts Service, (ii) HM Prison Service, (iii) the National Offender Management Service and (iv) the Youth Justice Board in 2007-08; and how much was paid in such bonuses to people in each category. [254131]

Mr. Straw: The information requested is set out as follows:

HM Courts Service

Across the MoJ, end year non-consolidated performance payments are paid to high performing members of the senior civil service (SCS) to reflect their individual contribution during the previous reporting year. During 2007-08, 54 members of the SCS were paid non-consolidated performance pay amounting to £383,000, in respect of performance during the 2006-07 reporting year.

Payments of non-consolidated performance pay to staff below the SCS may be either 'end of year' payments or 'in year' payments.

'End of year' payments of non-consolidated performance pay are made as part of the annual pay award to staff who have performed beyond expectations throughout the performance year. In HM Courts Service 1,667 staff received end of year non-consolidated performance pay during the 2007-08 financial year for performance in the 2006-07 reporting year. The amount paid was £666,800. This was paid in October 2007 at the time of the implementation of the 2007 pay award for all staff.

'In year' payments of non-consolidated performance pay are one-off payments to staff who have made an exceptional contribution on specific occasions. It is not possible to provide details of payments made to staff in HMCS separate from those working in other parts of the Ministry of Justice, other than at a disproportionate cost.

During the financial year 2007-08 5,327 staff in Ministry of Justice (including HMCS) received 'in year' non-consolidated performance pay totalling £2,665,212.

HM Prison Service

During 2007-08, 25 members of the SCS were paid non-consolidated performance pay amounting to £231,000.

Payments of non-consolidated performance pay to staff below the senior civil service may be either 'end of year' or 'in year' payments of non-consolidated performance pay.

'End of year' non-consolidated performance payments are made as part of the annual pay award to staff who have performed at a level beyond expectations throughout the performance year. In HM Prison Service 4,816 staff received an end of year payment of non-consolidated performance pay in the 2007-08 financial year, totalling £1,096,766.

'In year' non-consolidated performance payments are one-off payments to staff who have made an exceptional contribution on specific occasions. During the financial year 2007-08, 3,888 staff in HMPS received 'in year' payments totalling £1,333,039.

There were no payments of non-consolidated performance pay to any member of staff employed by local probation boards or trusts during the financial year 2007-08.

National Offender Management Service

The National Offender Management Service was established as an agency on 1 April 2008. The NOMS Agency consists of the HM Prison Service and the national probation service. The information contained in (ii) covers both of these parts of the NOMS Agency.

Youth Justice Board

During the financial year 2007-08, one member of the SCS was awarded non-consolidated performance pay of £15,000.

In grades below the SCS, 43 staff were awarded non-consolidated performance pay 'in year' totalling £23,350. There were 21 'end of year' awards of non-consolidated performance pay to staff in relation to annual performance marking. These payments amounted to £18,090.

Departmental Public Consultation

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many public consultations his Department has conducted in the last 12 months; how long each consultation was open for; how many responses were received in each case; and what the cost of conducting each consultation was. [259572]

Mr. Wills: The information requested is shown in the following table, which sets out details of the 37 formal written public consultations, carried out by the Ministry of Justice in the last twelve months. The printing and web publication costs of a standard consultation are met centrally by the Department. The only other cost of a standard consultation is the cost of staff time in preparing individual consultations. No breakdown exists for these costs and to provide one would incur disproportionate cost. But where activity over and above a standard consultation has been carried out and those cost details are available I have provided them.

Emergency Calls: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many non-emergency calls were made to (a) the English language telephone number and (b) the Welsh language telephone number in each police force in Wales in the last year for which figures are available. [256429]

Mr. Coaker: I have been asked to reply.

Data for the period from April 2008 to January 2009 are shown in the following table.

Non emergency calls to Welsh Police forces from April 2008 to January 2009

Police force	English language	Number Welsh language
Dyfed Powys Police[1]	311,458	8,127
Gwent Police	185,170	[2]—
North Wales Police	513,579	12,583
South Wales Police[3]	59,547	1,385

[3] South Wales Police do not collect force-wide data. The data shown here are for Cardiff only.

Howard League for Penal Reform

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many requests for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 his Department has received from the Howard League for Penal Reform in the last 12 months; in respect of how many a substantive response has not been provided to date; what the date of the oldest such request is; and if he will make a statement. [259363]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice has received six requests from the Howard League for Penal Reform in the last 12 months. One—made in August 2008—remains outstanding. I can assure the hon. Member that this request is being treated with the utmost priority, and that the requester will receive a response in the near future.

Legal Aid: Children

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many applications for legal aid the Legal Services Commission received from firms working on behalf of persons under 16 in each year since 1997; and how many were accepted in each such year. [259678]

Mr. Malik: The information is being collated and I will write to the hon. Member when it is available.

Legal Aid: Housing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many applications for acts of assistance relating to housing the Legal Services Commission (LSC) received in each of the last five years; and what percentage of the total number of requests to the LSC relating to housing each figure represents. [259677]

Mr. Malik: Applications for acts of assistance by way of legal help are received by the supplier, for example the solicitor or advice bureau, and central records are not kept by the Legal Services Commission (LSC). However, the LSC does have records of applications granted in terms of the number of new matters started, as reported to it by suppliers. Table 1 as follows shows the number of housing new matters started in each of the last five financial years. These figures include matters started under Community Legal Service Direct telephone advice scheme introduced in July 2004.

The LSC directly receives applications for acts of assistance by way of civil representation. The number of such applications received for housing matters, and the proportion granted are shown as follows at table 2.

Table 1: Legal help

	Housing new matters started	Proportion of all new matters started (percentage)
2007-08	127,257	15.8
2006-07	133,311	15.7
2005-06	110,315	14.1
2004-05	83,193	12.7
2003-04	80,260	11.3

Table 2: Civil representation

	Housing applications	Applications granted	Proportion of total civil representation applications (percentage)
2007-08	14,402	11,743	8.4
2006-07	15,130	12,021	8.0
2005-06	15,786	12,374	8.1

Mentally Disturbed Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 474W, on the Bradley Review, when he expects to receive Lord Bradley's report. [260452]

Mr. Hanson: Lord Bradley has now submitted his report and the Government expect to be able to publish it, along with the response, before the end of April 2009.

Policing and Crime Bill 2008-09

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what sanctions would apply for the non-payment of fines imposed under the provisions of Clause 26 of the Policing and Crime Bill 2008-09. [257037]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I have been asked to reply.

Non-payment of this particular fine will be treated no differently to the non-payment of any other fine.

The Courts Act 2003 introduced a series of measures aimed at improving fine collection. These included making it mandatory that a Deduction from Benefits Order or an Attachment of Earnings Order be the first form of enforcement to be applied following default or history of default. It introduced clamping of vehicles, fines payment work (currently being piloted), fine increases and the registration of financial credit (which may affect their ability to obtain credit). Other enforcement tools include warrants of execution, delivery and/or possession (where a bailiff may seize goods, money and land to the value of the debt). Imprisonment is the ultimate sanction for the non-payment for financial penalties, where the court has exhausted all other enforcement options.

Prison Sentences: Ethnic Groups

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent assessment he has made of the comparative rates of imprisonment of (a) black males and (b) white males; how these rates compare with the proportions in the overall population; and if he will make a statement. [259554]

Maria Eagle: The most recent assessment of the comparative rates of imprisonment for both males and females together are as follows.

For British nationals, the proportion of black prisoners on 30 June 2007 relative to the population was 7.4 per 1,000 compared to 1.4 per 1,000 for white persons. For the overall population it was 1.5 per 1,000.

The latest data therefore indicates that black people are over five times more likely to be in prison than their white counterparts.

Data are not currently available for males alone.

Prisoners Transfers

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average daily number of prisoners transferred from each prison in England and Wales to another prison in England and Wales solely as a result of overcrowding was in 2008. [260446]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the reasons for every movement of a prisoner is not kept. Information will be held by the Inter Prison Transfer monitor on the total number of transfers carried out using the IPT fleet but no breakdown is available on the reasons for these transfers.

Prisoners: Expenditure

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much money has been spent on rehabilitating prisoners who had been considered to be violent and a threat to society since 1991. [260450]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service delivers a broad range of interventions to address the particular risks and needs of offenders. There are a number of accredited offending behaviour programmes which address violence including thinking skills, anger management, domestic and other types of violent crime as well as sexual offending. A range of interventions is available for prisoners with an alcohol problem. Other regime activities such as training, education, work, non accredited courses and resettlement also have a significant part to play in reducing risk and preparing a prisoner for release. This work is delivered as part of prison baseline funding and it is not possible to disaggregate accurately the costs. NOMS is currently undertaking a specifications, benchmarking and costings exercise which will provide costings of the interventions delivered.

Reoffenders

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will commission research on the effects on the re-offending rate of (a) penal custody, (b) restorative justice programmes and (c) local authority secure accommodation. [259559]

Mr. Hanson: The Ministry of Justice has an ongoing research and analysis programme which addresses a wide range of interventions. The programme for 2009-10 is currently being agreed.

On (a) penal custody: Reoffending statistics are published regularly by the Department. The proven re-offending rate for offenders discharged from prison was 46.5 per cent. in 2006.

On (b) restorative justice: Between 2001 and 2004 the Government invested around £5 million in the crime reduction programme restorative justice pilots and their evaluation, including a two-year reconviction study. Four reports were published. Restorative justice has proven itself as a way of increasing victim satisfaction with the criminal justice process, and may also help to reduce reoffending for adults.

On (c) local authority secure accommodation: The Youth Justice Board commissioned a research study in 2008 which aims to explore reoffending rates of different types of custodial provision, including local authority secure accommodation.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of offenders re-offended within (a) six months, (b) one year, (c) two years and (c) three years of release from a custodial sentence in each of the last five years. [259616]

Mr. Hanson: Table 1 shows the one year reoffending rates for adults leaving custody in the first quarter of the years 2002 to 2006. The table shows the number and proportion of offenders that committed at least one further offence. The number of offences committed per 100 reoffenders is now the headline measure of reoffending—this has also been included in the table.

Table 1: one year reoffending rates, offenders leaving custody 2002-2006

Cohort	Number of offenders	Number of reoffenders (1 year)	Percentage proportion of offenders offending (1 year)	Number of offences per 100 offenders (1 year)
Quarter 1
2002	15,578	8,574	55.0	288.2
2003	14,358	7,738	53.9	279.1
2004	15,761	8,185	51.9	253.1
2005	14,595	7,165	49.1	228.5
2006	14,380	6,686	46.5	208.4

Two year reoffending rates are available for the 2000 to 2005 cohorts. The number and proportion of offenders that committed at least one further offence are shown in table 2.

Table 2: two years reoffending rates, offenders leaving custody 2000-2005

	Number of offenders	Number of reoffenders (2 years)	Percentage proportion of offenders offending (2 years)
Quarter 1
2000	16,527	10,709	64.8
2002	15,887	10,708	67.4
2003	15,305	10,071	65.8
2004	16,385	10,601	64.7
2005	14,713	9,140	62.1

It should be noted that comparisons between the one and two year rates should be interpreted with caution. This is due to a slight improvement in the method used to count offenders released from custody (or starting court orders under probation supervision) when we moved to measuring reoffending over one year rather than two.

Data on six month and three year reoffending rates are not currently available. The Ministry of Justice is currently undertaking a programme of work to investigate reoffending rates over longer time periods. This will include analysis of three year reoffending rates.

Further information on the one year rates of reoffending can be found in:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/reoffendingofadults.htm

Further information on the two year rates can be found in:

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) with reference to his Department's report,

Re-offending of adults: new measures of re-offending 2000-05, how many offenders have had multiple offender entries in each of the last five years; [259617]

(2) with reference to his Department's report, Re-offending of adults: new measures of re-offending 2000-05, how many individual offenders entered the cohort and committed a further offence and were discharged from prison or commenced a community sentence within the same quarter in each of the last five years. [259618]

Mr. Hanson: A multiple offender entry (MOE) is an individual offender who, after entering the cohort (by either being discharged from prison, or commencing a court order under probation supervision), commits a reoffence and is further discharged from prison or commences a court order within the same 1st quarter period in a given year. MOEs are excluded from our analysis of reoffending, in order to ensure that there is no double-counting in each cohort.

The following table shows the number of offenders who are MOEs and their respective number of entries between 2000 and 2006 (the latest available data). Most MOE offenders appear twice in the cohort and the number of MOEs has been constant, at around 2.5 per cent. of the entire cohort of offenders since 2000.

Q1

Multiple offender entries (MOEs)	2000	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
2x	1,018	1,006	1,088	1,239	1,040	1,307
3x	31	34	36	75	38	52
4x	5	2	3	5	3	6
5x	—	—	—	1	—	—
6x	—	—	—	—	3	—
Total MOEs	1,054	1,042	1,127	1,320	1,084	1,365
Percentage of total cohort	2.4	2.3	2.5	2.8	2.4	2.7

Note:
Data are not available for 2001 due to a problem with archived data on court orders. Since it will not substantially increase knowledge on the current progress on reoffending, no resources have been allocated to fix this problem.

We have assumed that the second question is also related to multiple offender entries, and that the term 'within the same quarter' refers to the quarter in which the cohort is compiled (between 1 January and 31 March of a given year). A break down of these figures by prison and court orders is not available.

Further information on multiple offender entries can be found in Annex C of the publication Reoffending of Adults: results from the 2006 cohort:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/reoffendingofadults.htm

Suicide: Internet

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on how many occasions inquests have identified internet sites as a contributory cause of suicide in each of the last five years; and in how many such cases the suicide was committed by someone under the age of (a) 15, (b) 18, (c) 21 and (d) 25 years. [259491]

Bridget Prentice: Information collected by the Ministry of Justice relates solely to the number of verdicts of suicide returned: no information is collected regarding the circumstances of each case. Although the Ministry of Justice is collecting from coroners, as part of the annual statistical return, data on the age at death of those persons whose deaths have been the subject of inquests, the information collected will not reveal the age profile relating to suicide, or any other particular verdict.

The total number of verdicts of suicide returned at inquests by coroners in England and Wales in each of the last five years for which data are available is, as follows:

Total number of verdicts of suicide returned by coroners in England and Wales

	Number
2003	3,255
2004	3,368
2005	3,235
2006	3,220
2007	3,007

Note:
Statistics for 2008 are not available.

Young Offender Institutions

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what percentage of inmates in young offender institutions are taking part in programmes to rehabilitate them into society. [259860]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service delivers a broad range of interventions to address the particular risks and needs of offenders. This includes a number of accredited offending behaviour programmes and interventions that address drug misuse. These are a key element of the Service's work to reduce re-offending. The number of individual prisoners accessing interventions is not collated centrally. However, the number of intervention commencements is recorded.

In 2007-08 there were 1,246 offending behaviour programme commencements in establishments whose primary role was a young offender institution (YOI).

All YOIs provide a comprehensive drug treatment framework, based on the National Treatment Agency's revised models of care, to address the different needs of drug-misusers. The interventions available are designed to meet the needs of low, moderate and severe drug misusers—irrespective of age, gender or ethnicity.

Interventions include:

Clinical services (detoxification and/or maintenance prescribing)—available in all YOIs in England and Wales.

Counselling, Assessment, Referral, Advice and Throughcare services (CARATs)—available in all YOIs in England and Wales.

Intensive Drug Rehabilitation programmes:

The Short Duration programme is available in six YOIs (1)

P-ASRO (prisons Addressing Substance Related Offending)—available in seven YOIs.

Young People's Substance Misuse Service (YPSMS)—a non-clinical service for those under the age of 18 in custody in England and Wales, combining education and prevention with treatment.

The following table shows the number of drug interventions delivered in establishments whose primary role was a YOI in 2007-08.

	2007-08
Clinical treatment (detoxification or maintenance)	1,370
CARATs initial assessments	6,040
YPSMS Initial assessments	7,380
Intensive Drug Rehabilitation programmes	1,250
Total	16,040

Notes:
1. NOMS categorises establishments by their main role only. Establishments that have more than one role are placed in the category that represents the primary or dominant function of the prison. Some young offenders—including all young female prisoners—are held in separate Young Offender units in adult establishments.
2. Individuals could access more than one type of intervention or more than one of the same intervention in any one year.

All figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

Young Offenders: Greater London

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many persistent young offenders were (a) arrested and (b) sentenced for a criminal offence at (i) magistrates' courts and (ii) the Crown Court in (A) the London Borough of Bexley and (B) London in each year since 1997. [259511]

Mr. Hanson: Statistics on persistent young offenders (PYOs) are only available for those offenders that are arrested and then found guilty. These statistics, split by court type as requested in the question, are only available from 1999 onwards. The figures for Bexley are only available from 2002.

The PYO figures are designed to measure the speed and efficiency of the youth justice system; through monitoring the pledge to halve the average time from arrest to sentence for dealing with PYOs in England and Wales from 142 days in 1996 to 71 days. They are not designed to measure overall trends in youth crime, and will give a misleading picture of the true trend if used for this purpose.

The table following on this response shows the number of PYOs dealt with in England and Wales, London and for the London borough of Bexley. The counts of this type of offender are split by court jurisdictions for England and Wales and the London area. The figures for Bexley are very small and therefore subject to year-on-year volatility.

On 10 December 2008, the Secretary of State for Justice announced in a written ministerial statement that the PYO pledge would be dropped with effect from the end of 2008. This is therefore the last year for which PYO statistics will be published and compiled.

Notes:
1. The Police National Computer data can contain records where the type of court in which the case was heard was unknown. This missing information only impacts a very small minority of cases, and was more a feature of the data in the past than in the present. Thus, the sum of cases heard in magistrates courts and the Crown court in each year is less than all cases heard in England and Wales.
2. The counts of persistent young offenders for the London borough of Bexley are very small subsets of the overall London and England and Wales populations, and as such are subject to year-to-year volatility.
3. The counts for 2008 are based on provisional (incomplete) data and are therefore subject to being revised. Any revision should not result in a substantial increase in these counts.

Departmental Art Works

Mr. Vara: To ask the Leader of the House which works of art from the Government art collection each Minister in her Office has selected for display in a private office. [259450]

Chris Bryant: The Office of the Leader of the House has 10 works of art on loan from the Government art collection. These are listed as follows:

Departmental Public Consultation

Mr. Vara: To ask the Leader of the House how many public consultations her Office has conducted in the last 12 months; how long each consultation was open for; how many responses were received in each case; and what the cost of conducting each consultation was. [259688]

Chris Bryant: The Office of the Leader of the House of Commons conducted one public consultation in the last 12 months, on the Draft Legislative programme. The consultation began on 14 May 2008 and concluded on 6 August 2008.

With regard to the responses and cost of the consultation, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given on 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 1016W. £32,035 was spent on publishing the Government's Draft Legislative programme for 2008-09. The cost of the consultation exercise on the Government's Draft Legislative programme for 2008-09 was £30,922.38.

The Government's Draft Legislative programme for 2008-09 received the views of around 1,900 people and organisations. These comprised 566 responses to the Leader of the House of Commons' website, at least 1,200 people and organisations who participated in the 62 regional events and 115 individuals and organisations who responded by post.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Carbon Emissions

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what progress has been made on developing a carbon accounting framework. [255139]

Joan Ruddock: We are developing a carbon accounting system for UK carbon budgets pursuant to sections 26, 27 and 28 of the Climate Change Act 2008. A consultation on our proposals for this system closed on 19 January, and we are currently analysing responses. We plan to lay regulations implementing the system in the spring, alongside the regulations setting the level of the first three carbon budgets.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the objectives are of developing a carbon accounting framework. [255140]

Joan Ruddock: A carbon accounting system is required to determine compliance with the carbon budgets and targets in the Climate Change Act 2008. It will set out the detailed rules for calculating the "net UK carbon account", which must not exceed the budget at the end of each budget period. This will include determining which types of carbon units can count towards the account, the circumstances when carbon units can be credited to and debited from it, and the system that will keep track of the units.

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will encourage local authorities to switch from burning fossil fuels to burning wood pellets to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. [258277]

Joan Ruddock: The Government's Biomass Strategy, published in 2007, and the 2008 consultation document on the Government's Renewable Energy Strategy, issued by the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, discuss the potential impacts on air quality from the use of biomass for local heating. These recognise the benefits in carbon reduction from the use of biomass, such as wood pellets, over fossil fuels such as coal or fuel oil, but that in some cases, this would result in increased emissions of air pollutants. The consultation document sets out ways the Government are seeking to facilitate uptake of biomass heat without compromising air quality or public health. A final strategy is due to be published later this year.

Copies of the published documents are available on the Department's websites:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/ENVIRONMENT/climatechange/uk/energy/renewablefuel/pdf/ukbiomassstrategy-0507.

Climate Change

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what climate models his Department (a) has access to and (b) uses, with particular reference to the climate model used by Lord Stern in his Review on the Economics of Climate Change. [255977]

Joan Ruddock: The Department has access to and utilises the findings from the suite of climate models that have been developed and continue to be refined by the Met Office Hadley Centre (MOHC), through its Integrated Climate programme. The Department, together with the Ministry of Defence and the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, jointly funds this programme which aims to monitor, understand and predict climate change. As part of its climate modelling work, the MOHC collaborates with other research centres in the UK and internationally in the development of these models.

The outputs from the MOHC's climate models are a key element of the scientific evidence base that underpins our policy development and international negotiations on climate change. My Department also uses the findings from the international set of climate models and associated modelling work that contributed to the Fourth Assessment Report of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change.

The simple model for climate policy assessment (SiMCaP) climate model was used to provide mitigation trajectories for the global carbon finance (GLOCAF) model, developed by the Office of Climate Change to look at the costs to different countries of moving to a low carbon global economy, and the kind of international financial flows this might generate.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he plans to meet (a) the US Energy Secretary and (b) the White House Energy Co-ordinator to discuss (i) the outcome of the UN Climate Change Conference in Poznan, (ii) a funding mechanism for the UN Climate Change Adaptation Fund and (iii) the transfer of carbon-neutral and clean technologies to the developing world; and if he will make a statement. [255733]

Joan Ruddock: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has had initial discussions with both the US Energy Secretary and White House staff. He will have further discussions with the US Administration during his visit to the United States in March.

Combined Heat and Power: Oils

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will take steps to encourage the use of combined heat and power generated from cooking oil recycled by means of gravity separation and filtration techniques; and if he will make a statement. [258815]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Good quality combined heat and power benefits from a number of support mechanisms, such as exemption from the climate change levy and enhanced capital allowances. Combined heat and power produced from a renewable fuel meeting the legal requirements also benefits from the operation of the renewables obligation.

Departmental Foreign Workers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals are employed by his Department. [256211]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information that has been requested is not held centrally by BERR or DECC HR and is not therefore available to us without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Appointments

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether he plans to appoint a Chief Engineering Adviser in his Department. [255160]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: DECC currently has no plans to appoint a Chief Engineering Advisor. The Chief Scientific Adviser for DECC, who will be appointed shortly, will deal with issues relating to science, engineering and technology—as does the Government Chief Scientific Adviser and Chief Scientific Advisers in other Departments.

Energy Supply

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what percentage of the UK's power is generated by (a) wind farms, (b) solar, (c) nuclear power stations, (d) coal-fired power stations, (e) clean coal-fired power stations, (f) gas-fired power stations, (g) oil-fired power stations, (h) tidal sources and (i) geo-thermal power stations. [259544]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Separate data are not yet available for tidal, geo-thermal, because of the small number of sites using these technologies. For 2007, the percentages of UK generation by the other sources requested are given in the following table. Corresponding figures for 2008 will be published on 30 July 2009.

	Generation (GWh)	Share of total UK generation (percentage)
Gas	164,473	41.5
Coal	136,685	34.5
Nuclear	63,028	15.9
Oil	4,693	1.2
Wind	5,274	1.3
Solar	11	<0.1
Other fuels	21,978	5.5
Total	396,142	100.0

Energy: Prices

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the average amount billed for fuel consumption for (a) a one-bedroom flat, (b) a two-bedroom flat, (c) a three-bedroom house and (d) a four-bedroom house in (i) North Wiltshire constituency, (ii) Wiltshire, (iii) London and (iv) England in the last 12 months. [258280]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: DECC does not hold data on energy bills split by size of property, or on a constituency or county basis.

However, DECC does hold information on the average annual gas and electricity bills a household is likely to incur in each PES (public electricity supplier) area and gas LDZ (local distribution zone). These bills are based on standard consumption levels of 3,300 kWh for electricity and 18,000 kWh for gas.

The latest data, published by DECC in Quarterly Energy Prices, suggest that in 2008 customers paying their bill on receipt (standard credit) would pay:

	Electricity	Gas	£ Total
Wiltshire[1]	380	571	951
London[2]	392	572	964
England	405	570	975

[1] For Wiltshire the PES electricity area is southern and the LDZ for gas is south west.
[2] For London the PES electricity area is London and the LDZ for gas is North Thames.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the average amount billed for fuel consumption for a (a) one-bedroom flat, (b) two-bedroom flat, (c) three-bedroom house and (d) four-bedroom house in (i) Hemel Hempstead and (ii) Hertfordshire in the last 12 months. [260086]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: DECC does not hold data on energy bills split by household size, or on constituency or county basis.

However, DECC does hold information on the average annual gas and electricity bills a household is likely to incur in each PES (Public Electricity Supplier) area and gas LDZ (Local Distribution Zone). These bills are based on standard consumption levels of 3,300 kWh for electricity and 18,000 kWh for gas.

The latest data, published in Quarterly Energy Prices, suggest that in 2008 customers paying their bill on receipt (standard credit) would pay:

Hemel Hempstead (Eastern PES/LDZ)

Electricity	393
Gas	575

Fines

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether any administrative financial penalties may be levied by his Department. [253595]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) was formed on 3 October 2008, bringing together policy responsibility for energy (formerly with the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR)) and climate change (formerly with the Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs (Defra)).

Fuels: Prices

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of trends in the pump price of (a) liquefied petroleum gas and (b) other motor fuels in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [258687]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: DECC does not hold disaggregated data on the retail price of liquid petroleum gas. Petrol and diesel prices are published weekly and are available at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/whatwedo/energy/statistics/source/prices/page47818.html

A more extensive assessment can be found in DECC's 'Quarterly Energy Prices' publication, which is available at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/whatwedo/energy/statistics/publications/prices/index.html

Home Energy Conservation Act 1995

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps he is taking to improve the implementation of the Home Energy Conservation Act 1995. [255166]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: DEFRA consulted on the future of the Home Energy Conservation Act 1995 (HECA) in late 2007 and set out possible options for its future, which included repeal. Policy responsibility for HECA now rests with the Department of Energy and Climate Change and there will be an announcement on its future shortly.

Marine Renewables Deployment Fund

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1379W, on Marine Renewables Deployment Fund, which projects are being supported by the Marine Renewable Deployment Fund; and how much the Fund has provided for each such project in each year since the Fund was established. [257672]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: A breakdown of funds provided and in each financial year for the six research related projects and one infrastructure project supported by the Marine Renewables Deployment Fund since the Fund was established is given as follows:

		Financial year (£)

Members: Correspondence

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Northavon of 20 October 2008 on behalf of Mr. Peter Kendall regarding Government grants for home insulation. [259080]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I replied to the letter from the hon. Member for Northavon the (Steve Webb) on behalf of Mr P Kendall on 26 February.

Renewable Energy

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the effect of the economic recession on the renewable energy sector; and if he will make a statement. [258313]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The current global economic climate is one of a number of factors determining investment in renewable energy projects. The Government are working to create the right conditions for rapid deployment of renewable energy—both to meet challenging climate change goals and maintain energy security.

The global recession will affect availability and cost of capital to all firms, not just renewables. For the most part vertically integrated companies are well placed to manage their own capital requirements. Smaller companies may find it harder to raise capital but Government are providing a range of financial help in addition to the main financial support provided through the renewables obligation.

We also have a range of measures already in place to bring on more renewables development, including onshore and offshore wind, in order to meet our targets. Our Renewable Energy Strategy, due to be finalised in spring 2009, will build on these to provide an attractive framework for investment. Furthermore, the Secretary of State announced in the pre-Budget report that we would be extending the renewables obligation (RO) until 2037. This will ensure that investors can plan with confidence for the future so that over the next decade the market will continue to deliver the renewables projects that we need to achieve our 2020 target.

We take very seriously the concerns that some developers have raised regarding renewable energy developments in the current economic climate. We are maintaining a close dialogue with developers and stand ready to consider any evidence they bring to our attention.

Renewable Energy: Public Sector

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will make it his policy to increase the proportion of energy used in public sector buildings which comes from renewable sources. [258982]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: We are making it a priority to increase the proportion of renewable energy in the public sector estate and have commissioned the Sustainable Development Commission to come up with a series of recommendations on how we should do this. They will report in early April.

Renewable Energy: Scotland

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) whether he has had recent discussions with Scottish Executive Ministers on the effect of the National Policy Statements for Renewable Energy on marine spatial planning in (a) waters out to 12 nautical miles off the Scottish coast and (b) the renewable energy zone off the Scottish coast; [259200]

(2) what assessment he has made of the likely effect of the National Policy Statement for Renewable Energy on the operation of Marine Scotland; [259208]

(3) whether he has had recent discussions with Scottish Executive Ministers on the effect of the National Policy Statement for Renewable Energy on their consenting powers for (a) offshore and (b) onshore renewables under section 36 of the Electricity Act 1989. [259209]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: To date there have been no assessments of the effects of National Policy Statements (NPSs) on Marine Scotland nor have there been discussions with Scottish Executive Ministers on NPSs as they are at early stage of drafting. However, there will be public consultation on my Department's NPSs later in 2009 and my Department will want to engage with the Scottish Executive on them before then.

With the exception of certain oil and gas pipelines that cross into Scotland, the IPC will only have powers to determine applications for nationally significant energy infrastructure projects in England and Wales and the territorial sea adjacent to England and Wales and the Renewable Energy Zone (except those parts where Scottish Ministers have functions), where a relevant NPS is in place. Therefore, the NPSs only directly apply to decisions for new infrastructure in those areas. However, energy policy is generally a reserved matter and the Scottish Executive must have regard to policy statements on energy as a relevant consideration in decisions. NPSs are, for these purposes, a statement of Government policy, so we expect that NPSs will be a relevant consideration for decisions by Scottish Ministers on energy infrastructure in Scotland.

Sight Impaired

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what guidelines his Department follows in respect of making printed materials and forms accessible to people suffering red/green colour blindness. [245714]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) follows the Central Office of Information (COI) recommendation that the use of red and green together as text/background should be avoided. DECC also follows the COI recommendation that using yellow and blue together should also be avoided.

Warm Front Scheme

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what consideration he has given to using installers approved by the manufacturers of central heating boilers for installations under the Warm Front scheme. [255633]

Joan Ruddock: Eaga selects installers based on a competitive tendering process, in line with European public procurement regulations. Installers are chosen according to a range of criteria, including price tendered, customer service, health and safety procedures and financial probity.

At present Warm Front does not limit procurement to installers specifically approved by manufacturers, as this would lead to a restricted installer base. This could potentially result in higher prices and could disadvantage small and medium-sized enterprises.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much was (a) budgeted for and (b) paid out in grants to individual households for (i) renewable energy installations and (ii) energy efficiency measures in each year since 1997; and what the equivalent figures are for 2008-09 to date. [257666]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 23 February 2009]: Under previous grant programmes which started in 2002 the following grants were paid to householders:

Major PV Demonstration Programme with a budget of £31 million committed £11.5 million to small scale projects including householders.

Major PV Demonstration

Financial year	£
2002-03	875,828.57
2003-04	1,913,572.82
2004-05	2,884,563.52
2005-06	4,052,158.18
2006-07	1,864,398.91
Total	11,590,522.00

Out of a budget of £12.5 million the Clear Skies scheme paid the following household grants:

Household grants paid by Clear Skies

2003-04	559,000
2004-05	1,559,650
2005-06	1,329,400
2006-07	806,810
Total	4,254,860

Currently under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme a £2,500 maximum grant amount can be claimed per household for up to three technologies and grant levels vary according to the technology installed. Out of a total budget of £36 million the Low Carbon Buildings Programme phase 1 has paid out the following amount in household grants:

Low Carbon Buildings Programme grants paid to householders

Wind Power

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many wind farms he expects to begin being constructed in each of the next five years. [259459]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: In order for the UK to meet its share of the EU renewables target, we expect new wind farm projects to begin construction in the next five years. However, it is not possible at this stage to predict the exact number and timings.

There are currently 176 onshore and offshore wind developments (7855.1 MWe) which have received consent and are awaiting construction in the UK. The years in which these projects will begin construction depend on developers' plans.

Additionally, there are 224 onshore and offshore wind projects (7261.7 MWe) currently in the planning system. These may not all receive consent. However, a number of those that do receive consent may begin construction in the next five years. Further projects not currently in planning may also come forward in this timeframe.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many wind turbines he expects to begin being constructed in each of the next five years. [259507]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to his question 259459 today regarding the number of wind farms expected to begin construction in the next five years. It is not possible to provide a precise figure for the number of turbines as this will vary by site according to factors such as location and wind speed. In addition, larger turbines are being developed, meaning fewer turbines may be needed.

However, taking an average turbine size of 3 megawatts (MW) it is possible to estimate the number of turbines which may be built for projects awaiting construction and those presently in the planning system.

For example, there are currently 7855.1 MWe of onshore and offshore wind developments awaiting construction. This would be equivalent to 2618 3MW turbines. For those in planning, 7261.7 MWe of onshore and offshore wind would be equivalent to 2420 3MW turbines. However, not all of these projects may receive consent.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departmental Catering

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which (a) food and (b) drinks suppliers have been used by his Department in each of the last three years; and how much his Department paid to each such supplier in each of those years. [248388]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department authorises the expenditure of public funds on food and drink only where it is in the public interest and conducive to the conduct of public business. Such expenditure is in the context of a Department of over 100,000 staff dealing, on a daily basis, with many thousands of employers, suppliers and other partners.

In 1998 the Department entered into a 20 year Private Finance Initiative deal with Trillium, known as the PRIME Contract, for the provision of fully serviced accommodation, including catering, for which the Department pays a fully inclusive unitary charge. Services are delivered through a network of Service Partners and Trillium's Service Partner for catering is Eurest. Local suppliers are used where Eurest is unable to provide a service at a particular site. Expenditure with Eurest for the three years and with the other suppliers for 2006-07 and 2007-08 is provided in the following table.

Non-Eurest expenditure information for 2005-06 is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Detail is provided for the top five suppliers only, as there are almost 400 other suppliers.

	Supplier	Expenditure[1] (£)
2005-06	Eurest	540,000
Total		540,000
2006-07	Eurest	590,000
	O'Briens Sandwich Bar	40,000
	Le Mange Tout	20,000
	Northern Land and Leisure	10,000
	Archers Catering	10,000
	Celebration Caterers	10,000
	Others	220,000
Total		900,000
2007-08	Eurest	760,000
	MacLellan International Ltd.	90,000
	O'Briens Sandwich Bar	40,000
	Northern Land and Leisure	40,000
	Compact Catering	40,000
	Amanda's	20,000
	Others	620,000
Total		1,610,000

[1] In December 2006 a software improvement was introduced on the Department's Resource Management (RM) computer system, which enabled hospitality to be captured more accurately for the last three months of 2006-07 and for all of 2007-08. While the effect of this has caused an apparent increase in hospitality between 2006-07 and 2007-08, there is no evidence that actual hospitality expenditure has increased.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 573W, on departmental data protection, whether the Customer Information System (a) is accredited to his Department's information systems security standards and (b) was so accredited before 1 July 2008. [259702]

Jonathan Shaw: The Customer Information System was accredited for compliance with the Department's prevailing information system security standards in 2005. The system has not subsequently been accredited to the new standards published by the Cabinet Office last year, which only apply to those systems introduced from 1 July 2008. All current systems that are not accredited to the new standards are fully authorised for use with any residual risks having been identified and managed.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 573W, on departmental data protection, whether a privacy impact assessment has been carried out on the Customer Information System. [259706]

Jonathan Shaw: The Cabinet Office requirement for privacy impact assessments applies to new systems introduced after 1 July 2008. The Customer Information System was introduced several years ago, and therefore a privacy impact assessment is not required.

Departmental Pay

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the hourly rate of pay was for the lowest paid staff in his Department in each of the last five years. [258016]

Jonathan Shaw: The DWP pays employees an annual salary and does not use an hourly rate.

The following table details the minimum of the AA/Band A National pay scale, along with an hourly rate equivalent. As at December 2008, 393 of the Department's total staff of 94,297 (full time equivalent) were on this rate.

	AA National minimum annual salary	AA National minimum hourly rate equivalent[1]
2008	12,850	6.65
2007	12,590	6.52
2006	12,340	6.39
2005	11,750	6.08
2004	11,190	5.79

[1] The hourly calculation is based on net 37 hours per week, the required full-time working hours.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the policy of his Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement. [252005]

Jonathan Shaw: The information is as follows:

(a) Obligations and rights concerning the working day and breaks at work are contained in a collective agreement with departmental trade unions.

Time off in lieu for working lunch breaks is not granted. The Department recognises that working for long periods without taking a break is not good for an individual. For this reason DWP staff are expected to take a meal break at an appropriate point in the day.

(b) Time off in lieu of working evenings is only available to individuals not contracted to work this pattern.

(c) As a result of working outside contracted hours and as an alternative to extra hours or overtime pay, an employee may, with their line manager's agreement, take time off in lieu for the hours actually worked, excluding meal breaks. In agreeing to this, a line manager will balance the individual's request with business needs.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours, in the last year for which figures are available. [252006]

Jonathan Shaw: DWP does not maintain central records of the total or average days taken off in lieu by employees. To extract this information from individual records for the period requested would incur a disproportionate cost. Non-departmental public bodies do not hold this information.

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in receipt of (a) attendance allowance and (b) disability living allowance have recorded dementia as a qualifying medical condition on their applications for benefit; what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on automatic enrolment for the (i) 25 per cent. council tax discount for two person households where one of the residents is in receipt of attendance allowance or disability living allowance and (ii) 100 per cent. council tax discount where a single person household is in receipt of attendance allowance or disability living allowance; what estimate his Department has made of the take up of the (A) 25 per cent. and (B) 100 per cent. council tax discounts among households in receipt of attendance allowance or disability living allowance; and if he will make a statement. [258726]

Jonathan Shaw: As at the end of August 2008, there were 107,130 people in receipt of attendance allowance and 10,300 people in receipt of disability living allowance where their main disabling condition has been recorded as dementia.

There have been no discussions at ministerial or official level with the Department for Communities and Local Government regarding automatic enrolment for council tax discounts. No estimates have been made about the take-up of council tax discounts among households where someone is in receipt of attendance allowance or disability living allowance.

Notes:

1. Disability living allowance figures are rounded to the nearest 100 and have been adjusted to be consistent with WPLS data. Attendance allowance caseload figures are rounded to the nearest 10.

2. Although the preferred data source for benefit statistics is 100 per cent. Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study, the 5 per cent. sample data have been used in this case because they provide some detail not yet available from the 100 per. cent data sources, in particular, more complete information on the disabling condition of disability living allowance claimants.

3. Where more than one disability is present only the main disabling condition is recorded.

4. A diagnosed medical condition does not mean that someone is automatically entitled to disability living allowance. Entitlement is dependent on an assessment of how much help someone needs with personal care and/or mobility because of their disability. These statistics are only collected for administrative purposes.

5. Totals show the number of people in receipt of an allowance, and exclude people with entitlement where the payment has been suspended, for example if they are in hospital.

Disability Living Allowance: EC Nationals

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many nationals of each non-UK EU member state were in receipt of each rate of disability living allowance for the most recent period for which figures are available. [259650]

Jonathan Shaw: The information is not collected centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Electronic Data Systems

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department (a) is contractually obliged to spend and (b) plans to spend on services provided by EDS in (i) 2008-09 and (ii) 2009-10. [260214]

Jonathan Shaw: The information requested is as follows:

(a) The amounts the Department is contractually obliged to spend with EDS for IT services are: £190 million in respect of 2008-09 and £181 million in respect of 2009-10.

(b) The current estimated expenditure with EDS is £554 million in 2008-09 and £434 million in 2009-10.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which of his Department's IT projects EDS is involved with; and which are project managed by (a) EDS employees and (b) officials of his Department. [260215]

Jonathan Shaw: Although the Department for Work and Pensions does not have any discrete IT projects, it has a number of projects and programmes that include changes to, or new, IT to a greater or lesser extent.

The following table includes:

the projects and programmes currently on the Department's Portfolio where the IT element of the project or programme results in the development and/or implementation of services that underpin the delivery of departmental business; and with which EDS have involvement to a greater or lesser extent.

All the projects listed are managed by departmental officials.

Initiatives that are associated with ongoing system improvements or enhancements as part of business as usual are excluded.

Table 1: Current DWP IT projects which have EDS involvement

Project	Purpose
Employment and support allowance	The project delivers the systems, processes and training to support delivery of the new Employment and Support Allowance.
Customer information system	This project will deliver a database of key citizen information to be shared across DWP. The database will complement information currently available in the Department's key customer information systems, i.e. Personal Details Computer System and Departmental Central Index, and become their replacement. Consideration is being given for wider use of CIS by other Government Departments.
Central payments system	A modern integrated central payment engine and accounts payable system to improve accounting for benefit/pension payments. The system will also reduce risks of service failure, increase speed and efficiency, and provide information to improve customer service and reduce fraud and error.
Pensions transformation programme	The programme will transform The Pension Service, bringing together business and IT change in ways that improve customer service and deliver efficiencies.
Pension reform delivery programme	To co-ordinate, manage and deliver a range of measures and consequential impacts which will establish a new structure for the UK Pension System long term.
Document repository service	This project seeks to support the Department's modernisation programmes through the provision of a document repository to store digitised images of documents received from customers (letters, faxes, emails etc.), cutting down paper in the organisation.
Data centre strategy	The project is addressing the ongoing continued threat of business service continuity with a replacement strategy for Washington Data Centre.
DWP change programme	This programme brigades a number of complementary initiatives to deliver the DWP Business Vision. Employment Services: Redundancy

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the additional £3 million funding for the Jobcentre Plus Rapid Response Service will be available; how many additional staff will be employed by the Rapid Response Service as a result of the additional funding; and how the additional £3 million of funding will be allocated. [255183]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 9 February 2009]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking when the additional £3 million funding for the Jobcentre Plus Rapid Response Service will come into effect; how many additional staff will be employed by the Rapid Response Service as a result of the additional funding; and how the additional £3 million of funding will be allocated. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

An additional £3 million is available for the Rapid Response Service (RRS) in the 2008/09 financial year to support the expansion of the service. A further £6 million is also available for the next financial year, 2009/10. In total therefore there is now £6 million available for RRS in 2008/09 and £12 million in 2009/10.

The additional funds for 2008/09 are available already. This funding is to provide direct support to individuals facing redundancy rather than for extra Jobcentre Plus staffing.

I should set the position in its full context. We typically deliver our Rapid Response Service in partnership with other local agencies—for example local authorities, the Learning and Skills Council in England and others. It is very common for these partnerships to be able to provide the support and services individuals need from within their existing resources—for example, local Jobcentre Plus staff would make initial workplace presentations, existing publicly funded training opportunities would be made available to people.

In that context, our Rapid Response Service funding is designed to ensure that we are able to deliver support which individuals need in a specific situation, but which cannot be sourced from partners' existing programmes and operations. Examples of the uses of RRS funding include providing individuals with a Skills Transfer Analysis, enabling individuals to undertake job-related training that is not available through partners' existing programmes and supporting individuals to be able to take up a new job, for example with initial travel costs.

I should add that each Jobcentre Plus district has appointed a Rapid Response Manager to co-ordinate RRS support. Those posts have however been funded from the resources for extra staff announced for Jobcentre Plus in the Pre-Budget Report rather than from the additional funds for RRS.

We have allocated the additional RRS funding equally between each English region, Scotland, and Wales. A similar amount is held centrally in a contingency fund for those who need to call on any extra funds.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many and what proportion of incapacity benefit claimants in each region have been in receipt of incapacity benefits for five years or more; and what those numbers are per 100,000 population in each region; [258096]

(2) how many and what proportion of incapacity benefit claimants had been in receipt of the benefit for five years or more in each of the last four quarters for which figures are available. [258097]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The information is in the following tables.

Invalid Vehicles: Elderly

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent assessment his Department has made of provision for motor assistance for those aged over 65 years who are ineligible for the Motability scheme. [260382]

Jonathan Shaw: No recent assessment has been made specifically of the provision of motor assistance for those aged over 65 years. Recipients of benefits paid to those aged over 65 years are free to spend their benefit according to their own priorities.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how long on average it took to process a claim for jobseeker's allowance in the last four weeks for which figures are available; and how many claims took over 14 days to process in this period. [253727]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 2 February 2009]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Members: Correspondence

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Northavon of 29 October 2008 on behalf of Alison Crump, regarding legal advice given to those completing benefit forms. [259081]

Jonathan Shaw: A reply was sent to the hon. Member on 26 February 2009.

Social Security Benefits: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 24 February 2009, Official Report, column 22WS, on disability benefits, what changes his Department has made to the eligibility criteria for payment of disability benefits as a consequence of the consideration of the European Court of Justice decision of 18 October 2007. [260373]

Jonathan Shaw: There have been no changes to the eligibility criteria for payment of disability benefits applied domestically, as a consequence of the European Court of Justice judgment of 18 October 2007.

For people going to live or already living in another European economic area (EEA) state or Switzerland, their claims must be considered under the provisions of the sickness benefit chapter of the European Regulation 1408/71. For these customers, the ordinary residence and presence conditions, which apply domestically, are not applied. Other domestic conditions of entitlement, such as the disability conditions and the past presence test, still apply. The latter test, under domestic legislation, requires a customer to be present in Great Britain for not less than 26 out of the last 52 weeks and it applies for every day that a customer claims benefit. However, for people going to live or already living in another EEA state or Switzerland, the test has been modified: for customers taking the benefit away with them, it is last applied on the date of 'export' and for customers claiming from another EEA state or Switzerland it is applied only once, on the date on which entitlement to benefit can be established.

State Retirement Pensions

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) when he will publish details of the scheme under the Pensions Act 2008 allowing people to buy back additional years of Class 3 National Insurance contributions; from what date the new Act will apply; and if he will make a statement; [255299]

(2) whether he plans to (a) publish explanatory literature, (b) establish a telephone help contact point and (c) provide other public information on the terms of the scheme under the Pensions Act 2008 for people to buy back additional years of Class 3 national insurance contributions; what personalised advice services will be provided to individuals on making such payments; and if he will make a statement. [255465]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 9 February 2009]: On 24 October the Government announced that certain people reaching state pension age between 6 April 2008 and 5 April 2015 could pay up to six extra years of voluntary class 3 national insurance contributions for tax years from 1975, providing they already have 20 qualifying years (including full years of home responsibilities protection). This measure was contained in the 2008 Pensions Act.

Information about the measure is available on the Pension Service website at:

www.thepensionservice.gov.uk/state-pension/basic/faqs.asp

That information can also be accessed from the HM Revenue and Customs website. We will update the information before the measure comes into force on 6 April 2009. I am placing a copy in the Library.

The Department for Work and Pensions and HM Revenue and Customs are also currently working together to agree business procedures for the measure and what changes may be needed to leaflets, letters and forms.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Rural Community Enterprises

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what support she plans to make available to community enterprises in rural areas in 2009-10. [259892]

Hazel Blears: My Department is finalising the details of our £70m Community Builders programme which will support and sustain community led organisations in local neighbourhoods to improve opportunities for local people. All community enterprises, both rural and urban, are welcome to apply.

Traveller Sites

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the latest guidance to local authorities is on provision of sites for Travellers. [259893]

Mr. Sadiq Khan: Planning Policy for the provision of sites for Gypsies and Travellers is set out in ODPM Circular 01/2006.

Local Authorities and Gypsies and Travellers: A Guide to Responsibilities and Powers was published in May 2007 and is available on the Communities and Local Government website.

Rough Sleeping

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what methodology her Department uses to estimate levels of rough sleeping. [259894]

Mr. Iain Wright: The methodology is set out in the Department's guidance on evaluating the extent of rough sleeping which has been developed in conjunction with the voluntary sector. Our new rough sleeping strategy 'No One Left Out' will bring in changes that will enable more in-depth reporting of rough sleeping.

Social Housing: Oxfordshire

12. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding she plans to make available for social housing in Oxfordshire in the next five years. [259895]

Margaret Beckett: Nearly £26 million has so far been committed for affordable housing in Oxfordshire from the Homes and Communities Agency's 2008-11 programme. This will support provision of 1,400 units, around 60 per cent. of which are planned to be for social rent. Further funding will depend on value for money and deliverability of schemes.

Working Neighbourhoods Fund

13. Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what changes to the Working Neighbourhoods Fund will be introduced as a result of the recent consultation on the revision of eligibility criteria for local authorities. [259896]

Hazel Blears: The changes are that the third criterion is revised to make use of the most up-to-date population estimates, and that the cut-off point is extended from 40 to 50 authorities. This enables us to maintain in broad terms the number of authorities who qualify for Working Neighbourhood Fund.

Flood Risk: Development

14. Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what planning guidance her Department has issued to local planning authorities on development of areas at risk of flooding. [259897]

John Healey: Planning Policy Statement 25 (PPS25), Development and Flood Risk, provides the policy framework for local planning authorities to avoid, manage and reduce flood risk to new development. This is supported by the Practice Guide we published in June 2008 to assist local planners in implementing PPS25 policy.

Regional Fire Control Rooms

15. James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for the establishment of regional fire control rooms. [259898]

Mr. Sadiq Khan: We are aiming to achieve cutover to the first three regional control centres in the North East, East Midlands and South West in summer 2010—nine months later than previously expected, with the full system in place by spring 2012, five months later than originally planned.

Repeat Planning Applications

16. Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to planning authorities on procedures applicable to repeat planning applications. [259899]

Mr. Iain Wright: The current guidance to local authorities on repeat applications is in the departmental circular 08/2005. This provision, from the "Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004", extends the existing power to decline to determine planning applications dismissed on appeal to include those repeat applications refused by the planning authority and where there was no appeal to the Secretary of State in the last two years.

House Building

17. Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions her Department has had with representatives of the construction industry on likely levels of house-building during the economic downturn. [259900]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has lead responsibility for sponsorship of the construction industry. However, my Department, and our agencies, such as the Homes and Communities Agency, have regular dialogue with those sectors of the industry most directly engaged in meeting our departmental strategic objectives. This includes, but is not restricted to, house builders and developers and their supply chain partners. The dialogue is maintained largely through regular meetings with both individual representatives and representative bodies, such as the Home Builders Federation, as well as participation in round-tables, seminars and other fora. The downturn in house building levels has featured regularly in these discussions, as have many other issues facing the industry. The Government have been keen to explore ways to ensure that the effects of the downturn on house building output can be mitigated, so that vital new homes continue to be constructed, jobs and skills can be protected, and so that everything possible is in place to assist a rapid recovery in the market.

Gypsy and Traveller Sites

18. Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans her Department has for the future provision of Gypsy and Traveller sites. [259901]

Mr. Khan: Planning policy for the provision of Gypsy And Traveller sites is set out in ODPM circular 01/2006: "Planning for Gypsy and Traveller Caravan Sites". Local authorities have a duty to assess the accommodation needs of Gypsies And Travellers and identify enough land to meet the number of pitches set out in the regional spatial strategy. The Homes and Communities Agency will continue to provide funding for the provision of new public sites.

Social Housing: North-West England

19. Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many families were re-housed into social housing from social housing registers in the North West in each of the last five years. [259903]

Mr. Iain Wright: My Department does not gather the information in the form requested. However, it does gather the information on the number of social homes let.

The following information is for the North West and covers the period requested.

	Total
2003-04	65,649
2004-05	57,555
2005-06	50,041
2006-07	51,477
2007-08	47,442

Business Rates: Humber Ports

21. Shona McIsaac: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her policy is on the retrospective levying of business rates in the Humber ports; and if she will make a statement. [259905]

John Healey: The review of ports by the Valuation Office Agency was to ensure that all individual business within and outside of ports are treated in the same way. In the current economic climate the Government understand it could be harder for businesses that are faced with significant unexpected backdated bills of more than 33 months from 1 April 2005 to discharge their liabilities, which is why legislation has been laid before Parliament so that businesses facing such bills in those circumstances will not be required to pay their backdated liability within the financial year at present, and will be able to do so in equal interest-free instalments over eight years.

Repossessed and Empty Houses

22. Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of changes in the number of (a) repossessed and (b) empty houses in the last 12 months. [259906]

Mr. Iain Wright: In the 12 months to December 2008 there were 40,000 repossessions in the UK. This compares to 26,200 in the 12 months to December 2007.

Source:

"Council of Mortgage Lenders".

Right-to-buy Sales

23. Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many right-to-buy sales of council houses she expects to take place during 2009-10; and if she will make a statement. [259907]

Mr. Khan: The information requested is not available. It is up to each individual tenant who qualifies for the right-to-buy to decide whether to purchase their homes, in the light of their personal circumstances.

Sustainable Communities Act 2007

24. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what mechanisms her Department uses to evaluate the effectiveness of the Sustainable Communities Act 2007. [259908]

Mr. Khan: Last October the Secretary of State invited local authorities to submit proposals under the Sustainable Communities Act. Local authorities have until 31 July 2009 to put forward proposals. The Local Government Association and Communities and Local Government will consider the lessons from the first round as it develops, and will publish information on further invitations in due course.

Asylum: Expenditure

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department spent on the Gateway refugee programme in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008. [260093]

Mr. Khan: The Gateway refugee programme is administered by the United Kingdom Borders Agency. Communities and Local Government makes no financial contribution.

Compulsory Purchase: Travelling People

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local planning authorities on the use of compulsory purchase powers to obtain land for new authorised Traveller pitches. [259606]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1278W.

Council Housing: Standards

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1778W, on council housing: Crosby, how much funding has been allocated to Sefton Borough Council in 2008-09 to reduce the number of council homes that do not meet the Decent Homes Standard. [260154]

Mr. Iain Wright: No funding has been allocated to Sefton metropolitan borough council in 2008-09 to reduce the number of council homes that do not meet the Decent Homes Standard. The council transferred its stock to One Vision Housing (a Registered Social Landlord) under large scale voluntary transfer arrangements in October 2006).

Council Housing: Sustainable Development

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much on average it cost a local authority to build a unit of new social housing to Code for Sustainable Homes Level 5 standard at the latest period for which figures are available. [258960]

Mr. Iain Wright: There are no requirements for new homes funded by Government to be built to code level 5, only level 3. Currently, the only costs analysis we have completed of building to the code are those in "Cost Analysis of the Code for Sustainable Homes" published in July 2008, written by Cyrill Sweett. The report is available to download at http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/planningandbuilding/codecostanalysis

We are currently in the process of updating the cost analysis for the consultation on the code, in light of changes to Building Regulations in 2010.

Disadvantaged

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Epsom and Ewell of 16 October 2008, Official Report, column 1410W, on pensioners: low incomes, what the 2007 Indices of Multiple Deprivation data on emergency admissions to hospital are, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [259515]

John Healey: Indices of Multiple Deprivation data on emergency admissions to hospital are published at lower super output area level (geographical units with an average of 1,500 population).

We do not produce a score for this at parliamentary constituency level.

European Regional Development

Sir Alan Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what restrictions she has placed on applications by English regions for unspent European Regional Development funding. [259902]

John Healey: The 2000-06 ERDF programmes were scheduled to cease spending as of 31 December 2008. Therefore the issue of the placing of restrictions does not apply.

HomeBuy Scheme

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes were purchased under (1) the New Build HomeBuy Scheme in (a) each region and (b) each London borough in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; and how many have been purchased in each area in 2008-09 to date; [258965]

(2) the Open Market HomeBuy Scheme in (a) each region and (b) each London borough in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; and how many have been purchased in each area in 2008-09 to date. [258966]

Margaret Beckett: The following table shows the regional distribution of open market homebuy and new build homebuy completions for 2006-07, 2007-08 and up to end of January 2009 for 2008-09. These are based on the local authority in which the property is located.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many developers have submitted bids to the Homes and Communities Agency to participate in the HomeBuy Direct scheme; and if she will make a statement; [259429]

(2) how many individuals had applied for assistance under the HomeBuy Direct scheme at the latest date for which figures are available; [259521]

(3) when she expects the HomeBuy Direct scheme to be fully operational; and if she will make a statement; [259524]

(4) by what date she expects the first properties to be purchased via the HomeBuy Direct scheme. [259684]

Mr. Iain Wright: Allowing for bids from different operating companies within recognised overall group structures, 133 organisations submitted bids to the Homes and Communities Agency to provide the HomeBuy Direct scheme on more than 23,000 properties. This strong response from developers has allowed us to expand the scheme to help up to 18,000 first time buyers (rather than up to 10,000 as was originally planned).

The scheme is now in the process of being rolled out. 3,000 HomeBuy Direct properties are available to purchasers now, and further properties will become available very soon.

The Homes and Communities Agency does not collect data on the number of applications from individuals for the scheme.

New build starts and completions from P2 monthly and quarterly returns submitted by local authorities and the National House-Building Council to Communities and Local Government.

Housing: Expenditure

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much central Government expenditure there was on housing in (a) cash and (b) real terms in each year since 1979. [260103]

Mr. Khan: Data on public expenditure by function are published annually in "Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses". The latest edition was published in April 2008 (HC 489) and includes data from financial year 1987-88 up to and including 2007-08.

Housing: North West

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking to increase access to affordable housing in (a) Warrington and (b) the North West. [259315]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Joint Economic Commission for the North West is looking at actions to ensure that affordable housing continues to be delivered during the economic downturn. The Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) has made £526 million available between 2008 and 2011 to support authorities across the North West. In Warrington, the HCA has already allocated nearly £13 million to deliver 318 homes. This is in addition to a range of other proposals being considered by Warrington borough council, the HCA and local housing associations.

Lobbying

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1697-8W, on Lord Truscott, whether Baroness Andrews was involved in decisions on the application for the development of a natural gas storage facility at Preesall Saltfield, Fleetwood, Lancashire. [259456]

Mr. Iain Wright: Ministerial decisions on recovered planning appeals and called-in planning applications are all taken in the name of the Secretary of State, often by other planning Ministers. In this particular case, the decision was taken by Baroness Andrews. Ministers adhere to strict propriety rules when making decisions on planning cases, as set out at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/planningandbuilding/guidanceplanningpropriety

Local Government Finance

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much on average it cost a local authority to service a debt of (a) £500,000 and (b) £1,000,000 borrowed (i) on the private markets and (ii) from the Public Works Loans Board in each of the last five years. [258959]

John Healey: The costs to a local authority of servicing a debt covering money borrowed will depend on a number of factors, such as for example, whether the loan was taken out on a fixed rate or a variable basis. Both the Public Works Loan Board (PWLB) and the private sector offer a number of different loan arrangements. Local authorities are under a responsibility to ensure that they can afford the self-financed borrowing, as set out in the prudential system.

Local Government Finance: Eastbourne

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of invoice payments made by Eastbourne Borough Council in 2007-08 were made within the Government's 10-day target period. [258825]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the right hon. Member for East Yorkshire (Mr. Knight) on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 242W.

Local Government Finance: Westminster

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what grants her Department has given to Westminster City Council in each year since 2005-06; what sums were awarded; in what category of expenditure each grant fell; and what grant allocations have been made for 2009-10. [259753]

Mr. Khan: In respect of 2005-06 to 2007-08, I refer the hon. Member to the answer my hon. Friend gave on 12 June 2008, Official Report, column 502W.

The following table shows forecast expenditure in 2008-09 and planned expenditure in 2009-10.

Programme capital	2008-09 (forecast)	£ million 2009-10 (plan)
Programme revenue
Revenue Support Grant	21.5	33.5
National Non Domestic Rates	154.3	145.3
Local Authority Business Growth Incentives Scheme (LABGI)[1]	4.4	—
Housing Revenue Account Subsidy	6.9	6.9
Homelessness (inc Overcrowding)[2]	6.8	6.8
Housing and Planning Delivery Grant[3]	0.1	—
Area Based Grant	15.7	16.2
Total	209.7 4	208.7
Supporting People	17.1	17.1
Hostel Capital Improvement	0.8	0.0
Housing and Planning Delivery Grant[3]	0.1	—
Disabled Facilities Grant	0 5	0 5
Total	18.5	17.6

[1] The outturn for LABGI in 2007-08 was £13.3 million and expenditure for 2009-10 is yet to be announced.
[2] The Homelessness programme was transferred to the Homes and Communities Agency in December 2008.
[3] Housing and Planning Delivery grant for local authorities in 2009-10 is yet to be determined.

The Westminster city council local area agreement finishes at the end of March 2009. The council will then be able to claim Performance Reward Grant up to a maximum of £7.056 million depending on the level of success it achieves over its 12 targets. The maximum payments that will be made in 2009-10 will be £3.528 million (revenue) and £3.528 million (capital). This programme will operate in a similar way to the local public service agreement programme.

Local Government: Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if her Department will take steps to encourage local authorities to sign up to the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258943]

John Healey: This is a voluntary initiative and is a matter for individual local authorities who, like all public sector organisations are required to comply with data protection legislation.

My officials are working with the Local Government Association (LGA) to ensure that local authorities are aware as to how the "Personal Information Promise" relates to the guidance contained in LGA's recently published local government data handling guidelines.

Local Government: Standards

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the cost of comprehensive performance assessments to (a) local authorities and (b) the Audit Commission in the latest period for which figures are available. [260130]

John Healey: The reply I gave to the hon. Member on 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 104W, explained that the cost to local authorities of Audit Commission fees for comprehensive performance assessment (CPA) is offset by revenue support grant and that the cost of the Audit Commission's work on CPA is covered by a mixture of those fees and direct grant from my Department.

The letter from the chief executive of the Audit Commission supplied as part of that answer set out two schedules providing details of the Commission's funding, covering its work on CPA for local authorities and for fire and rescue authorities, on an annual basis. Those schedules therefore provide information about the inspection fees paid by local authorities, and the Audit Commission's funding to cover the costs of carrying out CPA, up to 31 March 2008.

The Department's grant funding to the Audit Commission for 2008-09 includes an estimated £15.7 million to complete the final CPA inspection programme for local authorities. In addition, the inspection fees paid to the Commission by local authorities are estimated to be £8.3 million for the year ending 31 March 2009.

The Department also makes grant funding to the Audit Commission for the CPA inspection programme for fire and rescue authorities. For 2008-09 this is estimated to be £1.8 million.

Migrant Workers Northwest

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether Migrant Workers Northwest has received funding from (a) her Department, (b) the Government Office for the North West and (c) the North West Regional Assembly since 2007. [259651]

Mr. Iain Wright: Migrant Workers Northwest receives no funding from Communities and Local Government, from the Government office for the north-west or from 4NW (the successor organisation to the North West regional assembly).

Non-Domestic Rates

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will introduce an element of transitional rate relief for non-domestic rates for the 2009-10 financial year. [259595]

John Healey: Transitional relief is used to reduce the impact of revaluations for those most affected by the changes in rateable value. For the last revaluation in 2005, limits were set so that the increases were phased in over a period of up to four years.

Non-Domestic Rates: Small Businesses

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the application of small business rate relief and the non-domestic multiplier is planned to be revenue neutral (a) in each year and (b) over the five year revaluation cycle. [259745]

John Healey: The funding of the small business rate relief is intended to be revenue neutral in each year.

Regional Government: South West

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what timetable has been set for the South West Councils' Strategic Leaders' Board to be designated as a regional planning body. [259760]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Secretary of State is currently considering a request from the South West Councils Strategic Leaders Board to be designated as the regional planning body for the region with effect from April 2009.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the South West Council's Strategic Leaders' Board plans to assume the functions of the South West Regional Assembly. [259761]

Mr. Iain Wright: The South West Councils Strategic Leaders Board (SLB) was set up in December 2008. The SLB has proposed that it should be vested with the functions of Regional Planning Body (and also take on the housing and scrutiny roles of the Regional Assembly) as an interim arrangement from April 2009, in advance of introduction of the new regional governance arrangements outlined in the Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Bill. No decision on the timetable has yet been taken.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what arrangements she plans to make for public consultation on the constitution of the proposed Strategic Leaders' Board of the South West Council; and what the timetable for the introduction of the board is. [259762]

Mr. Iain Wright: The South West Councils Strategic Leaders Board (SLB) set itself up in December 2008. Arrangements for public consultation on any aspect of its constitution are a matter for the SLB.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether hon. Members representing constituencies in the South West will have any role in relation to the South West Council's Strategic Leaders' Board. [259763]

Mr. Iain Wright: It is a matter for the South West Councils Strategic Leaders Board to decide whether they wish to give a formal role to hon. Members representing constituencies in the region.

Regional Ministers: Travel

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what dates the Government Office for each region has funded transport for assistants to Regional Ministers since their appointment; for what purpose in each case; and if she will make a statement. [257243]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 23 February 2009]: I have been asked to reply.

The Cabinet Secretary provided guidance to Departments on the support that can be provided to parliamentary assistants to Regional Ministers. A copy has been placed in the Library of the House. Information about the number of visits where assistants to Regional Ministers have used transport provided by Government Offices is not held centrally.

Regional Planning and Development

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance she has issued on (a) the composition of the proportion of a decision-making body designated as a regional planning body under the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 to be comprised of stakeholders and (b) the treatment of hon. Members as stakeholders for the purposes of the 2004 Act. [259764]

Mr. Iain Wright: No specific guidance beyond the provisions contained in Section 2 of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 and Regulation 4 of the Town and Country Planning (Regional Planning) (England) Regulations 2004 has been issued on either of the points contained in (a) or (b) of the question. However the provisions of the Act and regulations are briefly explained in paragraphs 2.2 and 2.3 of Planning Policy Statement 11: Regional Planning Strategies.

Rented Housing: Safety

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) socially rented homes, (b) private rented homes and (c) homes were assessed under the Housing Health and Safety Ratings Scheme in 2008-09; and of these, how many were defined as Category A hazards in (i) England, (ii) each English region and (iii) each London local authority area. [259930]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is not held centrally.

Squatting

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of people who were (a) squatting, (b) facing eviction, (c) in temporary accommodation, (d) living in severe overcrowding and (e) staying with friends or family because they had no accommodation at the latest date for which figures are available. [258153]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about the number of people who are squatting is not collected centrally.

Information about the number of people who are facing eviction is not collected centrally.

Information about English local authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation (part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) is collected quarterly at local authority level, about households rather than individuals.

Data collected include the number of households accepted by local housing authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure that suitable accommodation is available). If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority must secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

The total number of households in temporary accommodation, as at 30 September 2008, was 72,130.

Levels of overcrowding are measured through the Survey of English Housing and assessed against the 'bedroom standard'. The latest estimate is that 59,000 households, containing 362,000 people, live in severely overcrowded conditions. This is the estimate for 2007-08.

Information about the number of people staying with family and friends because they have no accommodation is not collected centrally.

Tenants Rights: Crosby

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will commission research into the effect of changes to council tenants' rights since 2005 in Crosby; and if she will make a statement. [259480]

Mr. Iain Wright: There were no substantive changes to tenants' rights following the transfer of homes from Sefton council to One Vision Housing in 2006 following a vote by tenants. One Vision Housing is regulated by the Tenant Services Authority, which will be developing new standards for landlord performance in 2009.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which maintained secondary schools have been (a) converted into and (b) replaced by academies since 1997. [258315]

Jim Knight: We do not make a distinction between schools which have been converted into Academies and those that have been replaced by Academies. The following list contains all maintained secondary schools that have been replaced by Academies since 2002, which is the first year that Academies opened.

Beverley Hughes: The Department collates statistics relating to children in the care system on an annual basis. The Children and Families Court Advisory Service (CAFCASS), an NDPB sponsored by the Department, holds data on the number of care applications received within each month.

The following table shows the number of care applications (Section 31 applications) received by CAFCASS from July to December 2008.

Children in Care

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was spent on children in care in (a) secure units, homes and hostels, (b) other residential settings and (c) residential schools in each year since 1997. [258669]

Beverley Hughes: The total amount spent on children looked after in England who are placed in (i) children's homes, (ii) secure accommodation (welfare), (iii) fostering services, (iv) other children's services as well as the amount spent in all of these categories for all children looked after is shown in table 1 as follows. Data prior to 2000-01 were not collected on the same basis and is therefore not comparable. The expenditure by residential schools is not separately identifiable from existing data sources.

[2] The PSSEX1 return was first collected in 2000-01 by the Department for Health. Since 2004-05 the return has been the responsibility of the Information Centre for health and social care.

[3] Includes the costs of looking after children for continuous periods of more than 24 hours.

[4] Children's homes exclude residential care in Voluntary Children's and Registered Children's Homes as defined in Children Act 1989. It includes: community homes, associated independent visitor costs and relevant contact payments under sections 20/34 of the Children Act 1989, homes where education is provided, but does not attract education department funds, and boarding schools. Includes the social services share of the costs of community homes with education provision and the social services element of accommodating children with special education needs in schools where the education element is met by the education department. Note: the funding of the children's education is recorded in the Education SEA. Excludes mother and baby homes (these are included in 'other children looked after services' category) and secure units attached to community homes (these are included in the 'secure accommodation (Welfare)' category). Also excludes respite care for those children not meeting the definition of children looked after.

[5] Includes the costs of providing or purchasing secure accommodation for children who pose a risk to themselves, to others or have a secure accommodation requirement for welfare, rather than youth justice reasons, under the Children Act 1989.

[6] Includes all fees and allowances paid to foster parents and the costs of social worker and other support staff who support foster carers. Including: mainstay placements, link placements, permanence placements, temporary/respite fostering, placements with relatives/friends, other than a parent, under foster care arrangements (see other children looked after services as follows), placed pending adoption under S13 (1) Adoption Act 1976, associated independent visitor costs and relevant contact payments under sections 20/34 of the Children Act 1989. Children: Databases

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he plans to take to protect children whose data are compromised by breach of security in ContactPoint. [260498]

Beverley Hughes: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to his earlier question on 26 February 2009, Official Report, column 1068W.

Children: Day Care

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to ensure access for disabled children to child care facilities in each local authority area. [259281]

Beverley Hughes: All local authorities are required to pay particular attention to the needs of families with a disabled child in meeting their duty to ensure there is sufficient child care in their areas.

The Government's "Aiming High for Disabled Children" programme, announced in May 2007, included additional funding of £35 million for the period 2008-09 to 2010-11 to develop projects to improve access to child care for disabled children and young people and to reduce attitudinal barriers. Pilots began in September 2008 in 10 local authorities, to test out the ways of meeting the needs of disabled children in their areas, with best practice subsequently being rolled out more widely.

Children: Protection

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to ensure that 16 and 17 year olds have sufficient access to child protection services. [249167]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 19 January 2009]: "Working Together to Safeguard Children" (2006) sets out clearly that a child for the purposes of the Children Acts 1989 and 2004 respectively is anyone who has not yet reached their 18th birthday. It also stresses that the fact that a child has reached 16 years of age does not change his or her entitlement to services or protection under the Children Act 1989.

In recognition of the fact that a significant number of young people who are the subject of a child protection plan or otherwise known to children's services may have or are being neglected, the Department of Health and Department for Children, Schools and Families has commissioned York university undertake a study on the neglect of adolescents. This includes a review of the literature on the neglect of adolescents and the preparation of evidence-based materials to improve practice in this important area. The work will be published in the spring and disseminated widely within children's services.

Children: Social Workers

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills about the training of social workers for children. [259326]

Beverley Hughes: In December 2008, we announced a Social Work Taskforce which will make recommendations for long-term reform of social work; social worker initial training will be considered as part of this. The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills with its remit for higher education is an important partner in responding to these recommendations and ministers and officials from the two Departments are in regular conversations.

Children's Centres

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many Sure Start children's centres there are in the London borough of Barnet; and if he will make a statement; [259741]

(2) what Sure Start children's centres there are in Hendon constituency; when each opened; which centres are planned in Hendon constituency; when each is planned to open; and if he will make a statement. [259742]

Beverley Hughes: There are 14 designated Sure Start Children's Centres in the London borough of Barnet with a further eight centres planned to be delivered by 2010, to provide universal access to children's centre services for children under five and their families.

Seven children's centres are open in Hendon. Details are given in the following table. There are no additional children's centres planned for Hendon.

Centre	Designation date
Parkfield Community School and Children's Centre	6 September 2006
Wingfield Children's Centre	14 March 2006
Barnfield Children's Centre	8 February 2008
Bell Lane Children's Centre	8 February 2008
Hyde Children's Centre	11 February 2008
Stonegrove Children's Centre	6 March 2008
The Kennedy Leigh Children and Family Centre	11 February 2009

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) children and (b) families are receiving services at each Sure Start children's centre in Hendon constituency; how many have received services at each centre since its inception; what estimate he has made of the number of children and families which will receive services at each planned centre; and if he will make a statement. [259740]

Beverley Hughes: The Department does not collect information centrally about the numbers of people accessing individual Sure Start Children's Centres. We expect local authorities and children's centres to collect data on the take up of services as part of their local performance management arrangements. Sure Start Children's Centres provide universal services for families with children under the age of five years. By 2010 there will be at least 3,500 Sure Start Children's centres—one for every community.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the capital start-up cost of each Sure Start children's centre in Hendon constituency was; what the revenue costs of each have been in each year since it opened; what the current annual revenue cost of each is; how much (a) his Department, (b) the NHS and (c) local authorities contributed to the (i) capital start up costs and (ii) annual revenue costs of each; what estimate he has made of the (A) capital start up costs and (B) annual revenue costs of each planned centre in Hendon constituency; and if he will make a statement. [259743]

Beverley Hughes: The Department allocates funding to local authorities for the capital start up and revenue costs of Sure Start Children's Centres through the Sure Start, Early Years and Childcare Grant. It is for local authorities to determine how to allocate the funding between individual centres and the Department does not collect information on how much is allocated and spent at centre level. Information on Barnet's capital and revenue allocations for 2008-11 is given in the following table. The Department does not collect information on NHS or local authorities' contributions to the programme.

	2008-09	2009-10	2010-11
Children's Centre Revenue	3,651,335	4,912,063	5,983,537
Sure Start, Early Years and Childcare Capital Allocation[1]	2,342,190	3,199,744	2,520,657

[1] Includes capital funding streams for children's centres and early years and childcare quality and access. Local authorities have flexibility to decide how much to spend on each element.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the performance against objectives of each Sure Start centre in Hendon constituency; and if he will make a statement. [259744]

Beverley Hughes: Local authorities, working with their partners within Children's Trusts arrangements, are responsible for the overall delivery of the Sure Start Children's Centres programme in England. They are responsible for monitoring and managing the performance of individual children's centres in their area. The Department provides a performance measurement framework, including a self evaluation form, for centres and local authorities to use to monitor performance but performance of centres is not assessed centrally. Together for Children, the consortium the Department has under contract to support local authorities during the national roll-out of centres, is also providing additional guidance to local authorities on the performance management of their Sure Start Children's Centres.

Cross-department Assessment Panel

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 11 February 2009, Official Report, column 2105W, on Cross-department Assessment Panel, what the names of the panel members are. [258055]

Beverley Hughes: I refer the hon. Member to my previous answer of 11 February 2009, Official Report, column 2105W.

Education Maintenance Allowance: Hemel Hempstead

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many students aged 16 to 18 years in receipt of an education maintenance allowance attend each educational institution in Hemel Hempstead. [260088]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom the LSC's chief executive, will write to the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Libraries.

Education: Children in Care

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Training and Development Agency for Schools is taking to improve the educational achievement of children in care. [259295]

Jim Knight: Support for the children's workforce in improving outcomes for children in care is led by the Children's Workforce Development Council (CWDC). This work includes a planned initiative to support the growing number of Virtual School Heads who have a role in promoting the educational attainment of children in care. The CWDC works in partnership with other children's workforce agencies including the National College for School Leadership and the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA). The TDA is responsible for the training and development of the whole school workforce, and high quality teaching and learning are an essential part of ensuring the success of all children, including the most vulnerable such as looked after children.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families of those pupils achieving A* and A grades at GCSE, how many were at (a) comprehensive, (b) independent and (c) grammar schools in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [247780]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the number of pupils at the end of key stage 4 achieving at least one A* or A grade at GCSE and the number of these pupils who studied at comprehensive, independent and grammar schools.

Secondary School Achievement and Attainment Tables

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 6 June 2007, Official Report, column 496W, on educational attainment, (1) how many (a) maintained secondary schools and (b) independent secondary schools fell within each percentage point in terms of the proportion of pupils at the end of key stage 4 who achieved seven or more GCSEs at A* to C including English and mathematics in 2008; [248565]

(2) how many (a) maintained secondary schools and (b) independent secondary schools fell within each percentage point in terms of the proportion of pupils at the end of key stage 4 who achieved nine or more GCSEs at A* to C including English and mathematics in 2008. [248566]

Jim Knight: The information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 30 April 2007, Official Report, columns 1468-69W, on GCSE, if he will list the bottom 200 schools in terms of proportions achieving five or more GCSEs at A* to C including English, mathematics, science and a modern foreign language. [248568]

Jim Knight: The information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Learning Disability

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what mechanisms are in place to ensure that funding allocated to local authority learning disability budgets is not spent on other areas; and if he will make a statement. [260531]

Jim Knight: We allocate revenue funding to local authorities via the Dedicated Schools Grant. The allocation to each local authority recognises through proxy indicators the needs of pupils in the authority but is provided for all defined responsibilities of local authorities and schools. It is not possible to specifically identify a sum for learning disabilities. The local authority will then apply its local funding formula, which will have been developed in consultation with the Schools Forum, to allocate funding to the schools in their area and to ensure that their formula takes account of the individual needs and pressures of their schools.

Schools have a duty under section 317 of the Education Act 1996 to use their best endeavours to make the necessary provision for pupils with SEN. In May 2008, an interactive website was published on the Audit Commission website, which helps schools determine if their spending on children with special educational needs is offering value for money and making real improvements to outcomes.

Members: Correspondence

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Northavon of 2 October 2008 on behalf of Mr. Mike Burgess, which was transferred to his office for reply by the Prime Minister's office. [259079]

Jim Knight: I replied to the hon. Gentleman on the 23 October 2008 as Minister with responsibility for this policy area.

Pre-School Education

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 27 January 2009, Official Report, columns 490-91W, on pre-school education, how many and what proportion of children (a) under the age of two, (b) aged two, (c) aged three and (d) aged four years were in (i) full day care, (ii) full day care in children's centres, (iii) sessional care, (iv) after school clubs, (v) holiday clubs, (vi) childminder care, (vii) nursery schools, (viii) primary schools with nursery and reception classes and (ix) primary schools with reception but no nursery in each year since 1997. [260057]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey collects information on the ages of children in child care and early years providers in England. The following tables show the number and proportion of children attending child care settings for each year for which data are available. Data in the following tables are from the 2005, 2006 and 2007 Childcare and Early Years Providers Surveys. Data are not available separately for those aged under one year. In the 2005 survey data are only available for two age bands: under two, and between two and four years. Data for earlier years are not available.

[1] These providers were only asked to provide data on the age groups where proportions are presented.

Notes:

1. Children may attend more than one provider and therefore will be included in the figures and proportions for more than one of the provider types in the tables. For this reason some columns total more than 100 per cent.
2. Sessional care: defined as "facilities where children under eight attend day are for no more than five sessions a week, each session being less than a continuous period of four hours in any day. Where two sessions are offered in any one day, there is a break between sessions with no children in the care of the provider."

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 1478W, on pre-school education, by what date he expects the extension of free early education entitlement to nursery care from 12.5 hours to 15 hours a week to apply in the case of two-year-olds in all local authority areas. [260141]

Beverley Hughes: The extension to the free early education entitlement for three and four year-olds from 12.5 hours to 15 hours a week will be delivered, in all local authorities, by September 2010.

An offer of free early education to 15 per cent. of the most disadvantaged two-year-olds and their families will begin to be delivered in all local authorities by September 2009. We will be testing offers of both 10 and 15 hours in different local authorities, while we evaluate the best approach to further roll out of the offer.

Decisions regarding the pace and scale of wider roll out will be taken based on evidence gathered from the pilot and in the light of wider fiscal considerations as part of the next comprehensive spending review.

Pupil Referral Units: Young Offenders

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of children in young offender institutions were previously in pupil referral units on the latest date for which figures are available. [259094]

Beverley Hughes: Data on the number of children in young offender institutions (YOIs) who were previously in pupil referral units are not collected centrally.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of children in pupil referral units were subsequently detained in young offender institutions in the last year for which data are available. [259095]

Beverley Hughes: Data on the number of young people in pupil referral units who were subsequently imprisoned in young offender institutions (YOIs) are not collected centrally.

Pupils: Computers

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been spent on the Electronic Learning and Mobility Programme to date; how many laptops have been provided to qualifying pupils under this scheme; and how many laptops issued (a) are out on loan, (b) have been returned damaged and (c) have not been returned and are considered lost or stolen. [259531]

Jim Knight: The Electronic Learning and Mobility Project (E-LAMP), which provides quality distance learning opportunities for children who travel for part of the school year, is managed by the National Association of Teachers of Travellers (NATT+). NATT+ works with 50 local authorities and over 1,000 Gypsy, Roma and Traveller pupils on this project. NATT+ has reported that 1,317 laptops were issued from 2004-05 to 2008-09 and that the vast majority of these are still out on loan to the students. There have only been seven incidents of minor accidental damage. One laptop was sold by the family, but recovered quickly as it had been tagged by the local authority and the appropriate action taken to recover the cost. DCSF funding to NATT+ to support the project will comprise £600,000 for the two years beginning September 2008.

Residence Orders

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many applications for residence orders were made by grandparents in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008. [258303]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

Figures on the number of applications by grandparents for Section X Private Law residence orders in county and High Courts in England and Wales are given in the following table. Public law applications (few in number) are not included, figures for family proceedings courts, where around 15 per cent. of applications are made, are also not provided as comprehensive information on applicant relationships is not available. Please note that the figures for 2008 are provisional and remain subject to change.

Around 5 per cent. of applications have more than one applicant to child relationship specified. This could happen for a number of reasons. It could be that the applicant has a different relationship with each of the children in the case, that the application is made by more than one person or there may be counter applications made by two or more people. The table shows the total number of applications where any of the applicant-to-child relationships was specified as "grandparent", even if other such relationships existed in connection with the same case.

Table 1: Relationship to child of applicants for Section 8 residence orders in England and Wales: County and High Courts applications made, including transfers, counted by child

Total applications	32,382	32,940	35,501
Total applicant to child relationships	33,956	34,681	37,227
Total applications by grandparents	3,194	3,464	3,893

Notes:
1. The figures include transfers from other courts.
2. Included in the figures are applications made in 2 different months. This may be because the case was transferred or because a second applicant made a counter application in a later month. Where this occurs the application will be counted twice in the total.

School Meals

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effects of the new requirements for nutritional analysis of school lunches on the capacity of schools to (a) maintain their own menus and (b) provide nutritionally-balanced meals; what representations he has received from schools on the matter; and if he will make a statement. [260445]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Nutrient-based standards have been mandatory in primary schools since September 2008 and come into effect in secondary and special schools from September 2009. The School Food Trust has undertaken pilots in both primary and secondary schools to assess the practical steps schools and catering organisations would need to take in order to implement the standards. Both sets of pilots found that while implementing the nutrient-based standards does require schools to change those menus that are not compliant, the standards are nevertheless achievable and essential to improving the nutritional health of children. The lessons learned from both the primary and secondary pilots have been published in the trust's guidance on introducing nutrient-based standards which includes case studies at primary and secondary level.

The School Food Trust has produced a caterer's guide to enable caterers to gather the information needed to demonstrate compliance with the standards. It has also undertaken an independent review of Nutritional Analysis Support Packages; this has been published as a guide and distributed to schools who manage their own catering services.

While we are aware of concern in some parts of the sector around introducing nutritional standards in secondary schools from September, no representations from schools have been received on these.

Schools: Buildings

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many schools have adopted alternative performance standards from those set out in Building Bulletin 93 (a) in 2008 and (b) since Building Bulletin 93 came into force; [260386]

(2) how many schools have been found to be non-compliant with Building Bulletin 93 for acoustic conditions (a) in 2008 and (b) since Building Bulletin 93 came into force. [260387]

(3) how many schools have been tested for the quality of acoustics (a) in 2008 and (b) since Building Bulletin 93 came into force. [260388]

Jim Knight: The Department does not have any figures for the numbers of schools that have adopted alternative performance standards, as permitted by Clause 1.2.1 of BB93. However many new schools use Clause 1.2.1 to inform some minor aspects of the acoustic design.

All new school designs and major refurbishments are required to comply with the Building Regulations Part E on Acoustics. This quotes BB93 as the normal means of compliance. Checks for compliance with Building Regulations are made by Local Building Control Bodies and records on the levels of non-compliant schools are not held centrally.

BB93 recommends that the client requires acoustic performance tests to be conducted but testing is not required for Building Regulations compliance.

Schools: Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average length of a school Private Finance Initiative contract was in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [258956]

Jim Knight: The average length of a school private finance initiative contract in each year since 2001 is given in the following table:

Schools: Rural Areas

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools defined as rural there were in each county in each year since 1997. [256454]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the number of maintained (a) primary schools designated as rural in 2007 and 2008 and (b) secondary schools currently defined as rural in each county in England.

Rural primary schools were first designated in 2007 by a special Order. The Order was updated in 2008 when the Department adopted the common classification system developed by the Office of National Statistics. We do not have a record of schools defined as rural prior to 2007.

Rural secondary schools are not designated. They are identified by the classification on the Department's register of schools. Once the register has been updated we do not retain the historic data and we are only able to provide the current number of secondary schools defined as rural.

[1] Excludes academies

Sixth Form Education: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what recent progress has been made in closing the funding gap between sixth form colleges and school sixth forms; and if he will make a statement; [249883]

(2) what estimate he has made of the cost of closing the funding gap between sixth form colleges and school sixth forms; and if he will make a statement. [249884]

Jim Knight: By the end of 2008-09 academic year I fully expect that we will have reduced the funding gap between schools and colleges to around 5.6 per cent. This is in line with our commitment made in 2004-05 to reduce the gap by 8 percentage points. We will continue to close the gap further as funding allows but our priority is to maximise participation in learning by young people.

The LSC have the detailed information required to calculate what the cost would be to close the funding gap between 16-18 pupils in school sixth forms and sixth form colleges/FE colleges. Mark Haysom, the LSC's Chief Executive, has written to the hon. Member setting out that in the current year the estimated cost of closing the gap would have been more than £135m. A copy of his letter will be placed in the Libraries.

Letter from Mark Hayson, dated 23 February 2009:

Further to your question to the SOS for Children, Schools and Families and the reply by Jim Knight, Minister for Schools, I am supplying the additional information referred to in his answer.

In his response Mr Knight mentioned that the gap in funding currently stands at 5.6%. Our funding system which came into effect for 2008/09 uses standard funding rates per standard learner number (SLN, a measure of the number of learners and the breadth of their learning). The base rates per SLN in 2008/09 are £2,945 for school sixth forms and £2,860 for FE college learners (including Sixth Form Colleges).

As this is a new system there are no equivalent figures for 2007/08 but one may use the difference between the two base rates (£85) as a proxy for the difference in funding in 2007/08, as the rates have both increased by the 'minimum funding guarantee' of 2.1%. We estimate that the number of SLNs in FE in 2007/08 was 1,002,322. Therefore the cost of bringing up the base funding rate per learner in all colleges would be approximately £85 million. In addition, schools receive a further £50 million towards pension payments for teachers. There are also a number of other factors influencing the funding differences between school sixth forms and FE, which are explored in more detail in a report undertaken for the LSC by KPMG, published on 6 May 2008. This is available on the LSC's website at:

http://readingroom.lsc.gov.uk/lsc/National/nat-fundinggap-may08.pdf

We are continuing to work with DCSF and schools and colleges to review this funding difference and to look at ways of equalising funding.

I hope you find this information useful.

Special Educational Needs: Young Offender Institution

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 11 February 2009, Official Report, columns 2097-8W, on special educational needs: young offenders, what estimate he has made of the cost of undertaking an educational needs assessment within 10 days for a young offender placed in a young offenders institution to the (a) Prison Service and (b) local authority within whose area the young offenders institution is located; and how these costs compare to those which would be incurred if the local authority in which the young offender was resident immediately prior to a custodial sentence being imposed were required to provide copies of relevant psychological reports and assessments within the same time frame. [258830]

Beverley Hughes: Cost estimates sought in this question are not available. However, I can report that:

(a) It is not possible to separate out the cost of conducting an educational assessment on a child or young person in juvenile custody from other delivery as the cost is incorporated into the hourly rate paid to staff working in juvenile custodial establishments. As custodial establishments vary in size, the larger ones will carry out proportionately more assessments and will therefore benefit from economies of scale in price negotiations within awarding bodies.

(b) Local authorities are currently not responsible for assessing the educational needs of young people in young offender institutions because local authorities do not currently have responsibility for providing education and training for young people in juvenile custody. The current Apprenticeships, Skills, Children and Learning Bill proposes legislation to change this to make local authorities responsible for securing education and training for persons in juvenile custody.

Sure Start Programme

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1710W, on Sure Start programme, how many new Sure Start centres were designated in each month in (a) 2007 and (b) 2006. [260033]

Beverley Hughes: The figures in the following table show the number of Sure Start children's centres designated in each month in 2006 and 2007.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1710W, on Sure Start programme, how many new Sure Start centres are planned to be established in each month in (a) 2009 and (b) 2010. [260034]

Beverley Hughes: Local authorities are responsible for planning the delivery of Sure Start children's centres so that by 2010 there will be at least 3,500 children's centres, providing universal access to services for children under five and their families. Local authorities successfully exceeded the target for 2,500 Sure Start children's centres in March 2008. There are now over 2,900 centres offering services to over 2.3 million children under five and their families.

Together for Children, the Department's delivery partner for the children's centre programme, is supporting local authorities in finalising their plans and timescales for delivery and will monitor progress against those plans.

Swimming

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what estimate he has made of the number of children under the age of 16 years who are receiving swimming lessons from Qualifications and Curriculum Authority Level 2-trained swimming teachers; [259840]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of Qualifications and Curriculum Authority Level 2-trained swimming teachers in (a) 1998 and (b) 2008; [259841]

(3) what estimate he has made of the number of vacancies for Qualifications and Curriculum Authority Level 2-trained swimming teachers in (a) 1998 and (b) 2008. [259842]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Under the national curriculum for physical education, swimming is compulsory for all pupils in Key Stage 2 in primary schools. Across all primary and secondary schools, 85 per cent. provide swimming.

All primary school teachers with qualified teacher status are able to deliver school swimming, subject to a risk assessment carried out by the head teacher. The recommendation from the Amateur Swimming Association (ASA)—the national governing body for the sport—is that ideally school swimming is taught by instructors with ASA/UK Coaching Certificate Level 2, and that they should be supported by a class teacher, who has undertaken at least Module One of the ASA National Curriculum Training Programme. Some local authorities insist that school teachers undertake this additional training in order to deliver school swimming in their pools.

The Department does not collect data on swimming teachers or coaches. We understand from the ASA that there were 27,001 ASA/UK Coaching Certificate Level 2 swimming teachers in 1998 and 45,856 in 2008. The Department is not aware of a QCA-based qualification.

The ASA does not have any data on the number of vacancies in 1998 and 2008.

Teachers: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of teachers employed in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire are recorded as being disabled. [260106]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Teachers: Males

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many male primary school teachers there are working in schools, broken down by indices of deprivation for (a) school location and (b) pupil residence. [259104]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the full-time equivalent number of teachers employed in local authority maintained primary schools broken down by the decile of rank multiple deprivation for school location. The equivalent information broken down for pupil residence is not available.

Full-time equivalent male teachers employed in local authority maintained nursery and primary schools by decile of rank multiple deprivation. Year: 2008 Coverage: England

Teachers: Pay

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make an assessment of the adequacy of provisions for overtime pay for teachers for activities undertaken outside their contracted hours of employment. [259879]

Jim Knight: The statutory School Teachers' Pay and Conditions Document (STPCD), paragraph 52, provides for the relevant body (local authority or governing body) in a maintained school to make such payments as they see fit to a teacher, including a head teacher, in respect of:

(a) continuing professional development undertaken outside the school day;

(b) activities relating to the provision of initial teacher training outside the school day;

(c) participation in out-of-school hours learning activities agreed between the teacher and the head teacher or, in the case of the head teacher, between the head teacher and the relevant body.

Westminster City Council

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what grants his Department and its predecessors made to Westminster City Council in each year since 2005-06; and what grants are planned for 2009-10. [259527]

Jim Knight: Tables showing the grants allocated by the Department for Children, Schools and Families, and its predecessors[1], to Westminster city council for each year since 2005-06, and planned for 2009-10, broken down between revenue and capital funding, will be placed in the Libraries.

The revenue grant totals for 2006-07 onwards are not comparable with figures in 2005-06, because the introduction of the Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG) in 2006-07 fundamentally changed how local authorities are funded for education services.

Before 2006-07 local authorities were funded through education formula spending (EFS). This formed part of the annual local government finance settlement. EFS comprised school functions and local education authority (LEA) central functions, whereas DSG only covers the school functions. The DSG is based on each local authority's spend on schools in 2005-06, up rated each year for cost pressures and adjusted for changes in pupil numbers. LEA central functions are still funded through the local government finance settlement but cannot be separately identified. Consequently, there is a break in the Department's time series as the two sets of data are not comparable. For information the EFS figure for Westminster in 2005-06 was £97.5 million.

The Teachers Pay Reform Grant was transferred to Dedicated Schools Grant in 2006-07.

Children's Services grant transferred to the Formula Grant paid by the Department for Communities and Local Government in 2008-09.

Capital figures exclude PFI credit allocations, and supported borrowing allocations as part of Building Schools for the Future. Allocations for targeted capital projects are shown in the year the project started.

[1] The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) and the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) were established under machinery of government changes on 28 June 2007. The tables only cover those areas of responsibility for children and schools held by their predecessor the Department for Education and Skills and the DCSF

Young People's Learning Agency

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what (a) responsibilities and (b) powers the Young People's Learning Agency will have with regard to academies. [259091]

Jim Knight: Provisions in the Apprenticeships, Skills, Children and Learning Bill give the Secretary of State powers to ask the YPLA to carry out certain functions relating to academies. These will include the funding, performance management and support of open academies. The YPLA will carry out these functions on behalf of, and at the request of, the Secretary of State, to whom it will be answerable in relation to this role.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent estimate he has made of the average annual cost, including salary, of the posting of a civil servant in his Department in (a) Kabul and (b) Helmand province. [251700]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: In 2009 the average unit cost of a UK member of staff based in Kabul is estimated to be £270,000 and the average unit cost of a UK member of staff based in Helmand is estimated to be £460,000. This constitutes salaries, allowances, administrative costs, accommodation, running costs and security, with the latter constituting the largest proportion.

The additional cost of deploying a member of staff to Helmand mainly relates to providing security for civilian staff to relieve this burden from the military, and covering a fair share of costs in the use of military assets for transport.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Overseas Aid

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department plans to increase the assistance it provides to (a) disarmament, (b) demobilisation, (c) repatriation, (d) reintegration and (e) rehabilitation programmes in the Democratic Republic of Congo. [258689]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UK Government are firmly committed to assisting disarmament, demobilisation, repatriation, reintegration and rehabilitation programmes in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC). We have provided $35 million (around £19 million) to the World Bank-led seven year multi-country demobilisation and reintegration programme (MDRP). The MDRP has invested more than $200 million in the first phase of demobilisation and reintegration in the DRC. The UK Government have also recently granted an additional £1 million to the World Bank emergency trust fund focusing on reintegration of combatants, including children associated with armed forces, in Eastern Congo, and an additional $450,000 to the UN mission in DRC (MONUC) to support the repatriation of Rwandese combatants to their country of origin.

Departmental Broadcasting

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) television and (b) radio programmes his Department has funded over the last 12 months; and at what cost. [256599]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) funds a scheme with the commonwealth broadcasting association which grants (up to £10,000 maximum) for travel bursaries and programme development costs to help develop programmes focused on the developing world.

DFID has used radio and television programmes as a way to get messages to a wide audience in developing countries across country programmes and policy areas, however, it would incur disproportionate cost to disaggregate this expenditure from overall development programme spend.

Departmental ICT

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much was spent on the implementation of Quest for (a) additional fees to consultants and (b) staff overtime. [246885]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information is as follows.

(a) Several consultants worked on the Electronic Document and Records Management (EDRM) System project in addition to the main supplier contract. They provided expertise in project management, procurement, benefits management, knowledge and information management, training and support. The following table sets out the costs of additional consultants taken on during the project, in addition to the systems integrators (Logica) who delivered the system, provided some change management advice and training support and now continue to support the ongoing operations of Quest.

	Consultancy costs
2002-03	347,265
2003-04	194,982
2004-05	110,519
2005-06	1,189,000
2006-07	323,000
2007-08	346,000
Total	2,510,766

These costs include travel expenses for visits by consultants and trainers to the Department for International Development's (DFID) offices in the UK and over 60 overseas offices.

(b) We do not hold figures for the cost of the small amount of DFID staff overtime during the project and providing them would incur disproportionate costs.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will publish a copy of his Department's website accessibility plan. [257220]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development has published its accessibility plan on its website:

www.dfid.gov.uk

The accessibility section appears in the footer of the website.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to increase its recruitment of people with disabilities in line with targets for the Civil Service for 2008-09. [259474]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) holds the Job Centre Plus Two Ticks disability symbol which offers a guaranteed interview to applicants who declare a disability and meet the minimum standard for the post.

DFID is currently reviewing its recruitment strategy for reaching a diverse audience. Over the last two years, DFID placed adverts in the 'Disability Now' publication. We are in the process of analysing the results, exploring alternative opportunities and consulting with other Government Departments.

The civil service has set a target of 5 per cent. disabled staff within the senior civil service over the next five years. DFID will aspire to meet 4 per cent. by 2011. DFID continues to monitor and analyse disability through its annual diversity report. The 2008-09 report will be published in April.

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many people his Department (a) sought for and (b) recruited into its general faststream in 2008; and how many of those recruited into its general faststream were undertaking first degree courses at university when they successfully applied to his Department. [259344]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In 2008, the Department for International Development (DFID) bid for no fast streamers, but recruited six new entrants. Of the six new entrants, none were undertaking first degree courses when they successfully applied to the Department.

Departmental Video Conferencing

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the Answer of 20 January 2009, Official Report, column 1310W, on departmental video conferencing, where the video conferencing facilities are located (a) in the UK and (b) world-wide. [259476]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development's (DFID) video-conferencing units in the United Kingdom are located in the Headquarters offices at 1 Palace Street, London and in East Kilbride, Glasgow. Departmental Visits Abroad

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which hotels in Nairobi are designated as preferred for the purposes of his Department's officials' travel arrangements as set out in the departmental staff handbook. [259648]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The current marker hotel for Nairobi is the Fairview Hotel. This selection was arrived at following a joint exercise conducted by the Department for International Development (DFID) and the British high commission. The criteria for selection included value for money, proximity to the office and acceptable security standards. If that hotel is fully booked, the Serena Hotel is used as the next best option.

DFID and the high commission are currently re-tendering hotel accommodation and will select two marker hotels by the end of March 2009, using similar criteria.

International Planned Parenthood Federation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what records his Department holds on the uses to which the core funds of the International Planned Parenthood Federation have been put over the latest year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [259016]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The International Planned Parenthood Federation (IPPF) receives core funding from the Department for International Development (DFID) of £8.6 million per annum. This is in recognition of their improved performance and global leadership in support of global sexual and reproductive health and rights. Core funding is provided to support IPPF's global plan of work and DFID does not require IPPF to separately track and account for DFID funding.

DFID provides funding to IPPF for its work to promote reproductive health. IPPF produces an annual report and audited accounts which are used by DFID for monitoring purposes. DFID also attends IPPF's annual donor consultation meeting to consider issues such as performance and effectiveness. The IPPF Annual Report is available on-line at:

Joint Environment, Infrastructure and Livelihoods Retreat

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the (a) date, (b) duration and (c) location was of the Joint Environment, Infrastructure and Livelihoods Retreat run by his Department and supported by HTSPE Ltd in 2008, reference number 200808420. [259463]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The joint environment, infrastructure and livelihoods retreat in 2008 was held between June 30 - 4 July. The venue was Wyboston Lakes, conference centre, Wyboston, Bedfordshire UK.

Mass Media

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost of his Department's contracts with press monitoring services was in each of the last five years. [251222]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development's (DFID) press office has three types of contracts for coverage monitoring. Press cuts are provided by EDS (Electronic Distribution Service), broadcast coverage by the MMU (Media Monitoring Unit) and online coverage by Meltwater. The latter is relatively a new service from 2006. Details of DFID spend on press monitoring is displayed in the following table:

Financial year	Total cost (£)
2004-05	70,310.85
2005-06	120,257.07

Financial year	Total cost (£)
2006-07	130,370
2007-08	202,604
2008-09 (to date)	103,264

Population: China

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether account is taken of the human rights implications of the Chinese one-child policy in his Department's decisions on aid to China; and if he will make a statement. [259022]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) works closely and has ongoing constructive dialogue with the Chinese Government regarding sexual and reproductive health and rights. This is an important element of our support for reproductive health (through agencies such as UNFPA and IPPF) and HIV prevention. The UK Government do not support China's one-child policy or its implementation. We are working to promote and uphold the principles of free and informed choice as set out at the International Conference on Population and Development in Cairo in 1994.

Although the one-child policy remains in place, China has made good progress in ensuring reproductive rights more generally, especially through its implementation of the 2002 Law of Population and Family Planning. The law spells out rights and responsibilities for clients, service providers and family planning officials. Most provinces have enacted their own regulations in accordance with national law.

UN Population Fund

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of the annual report of the United Nations Population Fund for each of the last two years; and if he will make a statement; [259015]

(2) if he will place in the Library copies of reports on population control in China received by his Department from the (a) International Planned Parenthood Federation and (b) United Nations Fund for Population Activities; and if he will make a statement; [259162]

(3) if he will place in the Library copies of recent comments made by (a) the United Nations Population Fund and (b) the International Planned Parenthood Federation relating to coercive population policies in China; and if he will make a statement. [259017]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Copies of the last two annual reports published by the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) will be placed in the Library. UN agencies publish their annual reports on their external websites:

www.unfpa.org/about/report

The Department for International Development (DFID) does not hold copies of reports and/or comments on population control in China from or with regard to (a) UNFPA and (b) the International Planned Parenthood Federation (IPPF). The UK Government do not support China's one-child policy or its implementation. We are working to promote and uphold the principles of free and informed choice as set out at the international conference on population and development in Cairo in 1994. UNFPA and IPPF are both working to promote reform and change in China. Neither supports the one-child policy or its implementation. As a condition of UNFPA support, the Chinese authorities have removed birth quotas and targets within the counties in which UNFPA provides support.

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development who the UK representative on the Executive Board of the United Nations Population Fund is; and what relevant (a) specialist and (b) general qualifications and experience this representative has. [259023]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The British representative on the Executive Board of the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) is an accredited member of the United Kingdom Mission to the United Nations, acting under the direction of the UK ambassador to the UN.

The current incumbent has specialist skills and qualifications in both economics and international relations. They also have seven years of practical experience working across government in the UK and four years experience working in the multilateral system.

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions (a) Ministers in his Department and (b) officials have had with the United States Administration on its decision to (i) reinstate the US contribution to the United Nations Population Fund and (ii) rescind the Mexico City policy; and if he will make a statement. [259024]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Meetings have been held at official level with both the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) and the US President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR) since the new Administration took power. Both USAID and PEPFAR are experiencing considerable transition and it will take some months before policy and funding changes are clarified. Discussions will be on-going to engage with and where appropriate to influence this process.

The UK Government welcome early signs of the new US Administration's support for family planning and sexual reproductive health and rights. Rescinding the Mexico City Policy paves the way for organisations such as the International Planned Parenthood Fund (IPPF) to apply for US funding. In addition the US President has made a clear statement in support of UNFPA and the US Congress has already passed the omnibus financial year 2009 Spending Bill that provides for US$50 million for UNFPA.

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the United Nations Population Fund in promoting non-coercive approaches to family planning in China since October 2007; and if he will make a statement. [259161]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) has successfully demonstrated that non-coercive family planning methods can be effective in China. UNFPA's policies and activities in China, as in the rest of the world, are in strict conformity with the unanimously adopted programme of action of the international conference on population and development in 1994.

UNFPA's policy of constructive engagement with the Chinese Government is helping to influence China's approach to reproductive health and rights. For example the Chinese national population and family planning commission and the Ministry of Health have begun to harmonise standards of service delivery protocols to include UNFPA quality of care principles, such as counselling, to enable informed choice and promote client rights.

Zimbabwe: Drinking Water

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the ability of the population of Zimbabwe to access clean water; and if he will make a statement. [260276]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A recent household survey conducted by UNICEF in Zimbabwe showed that 77 per cent. of households across rural areas relied on a safe water source. A large number, therefore, do not have good enough water to prevent exposure to diseases such as cholera. In urban areas, where most people rely on piped municipal water, a breakdown in infrastructure and a lack of chemicals has placed an increasingly large number of households at risk.

Zimbabwe: Food

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the ability of the population of Zimbabwe to obtain food; and if he will make a statement. [260274]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We expect that 7 million people will have received food aid in February, and more disease outbreaks are possible. The Government of Zimbabwe have failed to procure the share of food necessary, in turn creating additional pressure on existing supplies. Although the harvest looks set to be reasonable, it will be small in scale. It is expected that a significant food aid programme will be required in the coming year.

The Department for International Development (DFID) is doing everything it can to help save lives in Zimbabwe. This financial year we expect to deliver a programme of £49 million—including in the areas of food security; combating HIV and AIDS; supporting orphans and vulnerable children; providing essential medicines; and fighting cholera.

Zimbabwe: Health Services

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the ability of the population of Zimbabwe to access health services; and if he will make a statement. [260275]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Years of political and economic mismanagement have eroded a once very fine health service in Zimbabwe. General health status indicators have fallen in the last few years and especially since the failed elections of 2008. The number of preventable deaths has increased significantly as public health services have been depleted. Rural transport networks have become expensive and the majority of Zimbabweans have found it increasingly difficult to access health services.

The Department for International Development (DFID) is supporting the preservation of basic life-saving health services for the Zimbabwean people through the procurement and distribution of vital medicines and supplies, the retention of health workers, support for the cholera response and to the on-going, crippling HIV and AIDS epidemic. Altogether, DFID will contribute over £20 million this year to protect access to basic health services in Zimbabwe, as part of a £49 million programme to help meet the essential needs of the Zimbabwean people, in terms of food, medical and other assistance.

Zimbabwe: Sanitation

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of levels of sanitation in Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [260273]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A recent household survey conducted by UNICEF in Zimbabwe showed that 40 per cent. of households across rural areas had access to a functional toilet. A large number therefore have poor levels of sanitation that increases exposure to diseases such as cholera. In urban areas, where most people rely on piped municipal water and piped sewerage, a breakdown in infrastructure and a lack of chemicals places increasingly large numbers of households at risk.

On 26 November 2008 the UK Government announced a £10 million package of support to provide life-saving assistance and respond to the escalation of cholera in Zimbabwe. We are working closely with UNICEF and the World Health Organisation to tackle the crisis. Our support includes: help to establish a cholera command and control centre (to coordinate the response); distribution of cholera response kits; provision of potable water in affected areas; and essential medicines and other vital support to health systems.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent estimate he has made of the average annual cost, including salary, of the posting of (a) a private soldier and (b) a civil servant in his Department to (i) Kabul and (ii) Helmand province. [251701]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 27 January 2009]: No such recent estimate has been made. Calculating the cost of posting a private soldier and a civil servant on Operations would involve collating data from various sources across the Department at disproportionate cost.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many helicopters have been made available to NATO forces in Afghanistan in the last six months. [259985]

Mr. Hutton: I am withholding detailed information on the number of helicopters deployed to Afghanistan as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number of unexploded land mines in Afghanistan; and what steps the Government are taking to help remove them. [259998]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There is no single reliable estimate of the total number of unexploded land mines within the sovereign territory of Afghanistan. The HALO Trust estimates that up to 640,000 mines were laid from 1979 until 1999, which saw the entry into force of the Ottawa convention.

DFID is providing around £10.6 million to the HALO Trust over five years (2008-13) to clear land mines and unexploded ordnance in Herat province (western Afghanistan). In addition, as part of the UK's annual commitment of £10 million p.a. to de-mining across the world, the HALO Trust receives £3 million p.a. Of this, it is expected to commit around £150,000 to de-mining work in central and northern Afghanistan this year.

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many soldiers serving in Afghanistan since Operation Herrick began have returned from Afghanistan as a (a) single and (b) multiple amputee; and if he will make a statement. [260368]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 3 March 2009]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend, the Defence Secretary gave to the hon. Member for Romford (Andrew Rosindell) on 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 554W.

We are currently reviewing the available information concerning amputations which have occurred as a result of Operation Herrick, while ensuring that patient confidentiality is maintained. I will write to the hon. Member with the results of this review.

Ballistic Missile Defence

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether work is being carried out in the United Kingdom to support the development of a Next Generation Fuze for US inter-continental ballistic missiles. [260557]

Mr. Hutton: Technical exchanges are carried out on a regular basis under the auspices of the 1958 Mutual Defence Agreement on a range of issues of joint interest and of relevance to the safety, security and reliability of our respective nuclear stockpiles. They are also being undertaken to support the examination of the optimum life of the UK's existing nuclear warhead and the range of replacement options that might be available to inform decisions, likely to be necessary in the next Parliament, on whether and how we may need to refurbish or replace the existing warhead. I am withholding details of the precise nature of this work in the interests of national security.

Departmental Art Works

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which works of art from the Government Art Collection each Minister in his Department has selected for display in a private office. [259439]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I have four works of art from the Government Art Collection (GAC) on display in my private office. They are:

'Gunner Paul March (Canadian Forces)' by Henry Lamb

'A Merchantman at Catania' by Bernard Hailstone

'Dust in Normandy, August 1944' by Stephen Bone

No other Ministers have art from the GAC on display in their private offices.

Nuclear Submarines

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 17, on the collision of nuclear submarines, when Parliament will be informed of the findings of the inquiry; and if he will make a statement. [260524]

Mr. Hutton: I anticipate that the inquiry into the incident involving HMS Vanguard and Le Triomphant will report to me shortly. I will consider what and how to report to Parliament once I have received that report and bearing in mind the need to protect information in the interests of national security.

Warships

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the estimated cost of maintaining a (a) Type-42 destroyer and (b) Type-23 frigate is in 2008-09. [258882]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The cost of maintaining a Type 42 Destroyer in Financial Year 2008-09 has been estimated as £1.2 million while that for a Type 23 Frigate is estimated as £0.9 million. These figures are based on maintenance costs that are typically incurred by these vessels while meeting their operational commitments; they do not include costs incurred for upkeep work, such as refits and docking periods.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Big Lottery Fund: Travelling People

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the Big Lottery Fund has provided for projects to assist Traveller groups since the fund was established; and what projects have been supported by such expenditure. [259425]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In the Department for Culture, Media and Sport there is one member of staff working on tourism issues who has a qualification in economics: and there are seven staff in the Department who are currently members of the Government Economic Service.

Football: Betting

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions he has had with the Football Association on plans for a pan-European approach to the subject of football match-fixing. [259874]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Ministers at the Department meet representatives from the Football Association (FA), as well as a wide variety of other sports bodies, on a regular basis to discuss a number of issues. The general subject of integrity in sports betting has been discussed during those meetings, but the Secretary of State has not met the FA specifically to discuss plans for a cross-Europe approach to the subject of football match-fixing.

The Government take any allegations relating to the integrity of sport seriously. The Gambling Act 2005 (the Act) introduced tough new penalties to ensure gambling is free from crime and corruption. In particular the Act established the offence of cheating at gambling where any person found guilty faces a maximum prison sentence of two years.

Museums and Galleries: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much (a) Sport England, (b) English Heritage, (c) the Heritage Lottery Fund, (d) the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council, (e) the Big Lottery Fund and (f) Arts Council England spent on (i) transcripts or recordings, (ii) fees to the Newspaper Licensing Authority and (iii) analysis of press coverage in each of the last three years. Sports: Disabled

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent steps the Government are taking to promote sport for people with a disability. [260167]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England has advised that it gave the English Federation of Disability Sport (EFDS) £1.1 million of core funding in 2008-09 for the organisation to promote inclusion and achieve equality of sporting opportunities for disabled people.

Sport England has been a key partner in the development of the Playground to Podium framework which supports the identification and development of disabled players and athletes. As part of this framework Sport England has recently given £3,066,821 of funding to six National Governing Bodies (NGBs): Athletics (£604,100), Boccia (£56,532), Football (£521,200), Swimming (£721,989), Table Tennis (£569,900), and Wheelchair Basketball (£593,100).

Sport England is now working with all of the London 2012 Paralympics sports including Boccia, Wheelchair Rugby, and Goal ball to support the recognition of NGBs and the development of stronger infrastructure within these sports. Boccia, Wheelchair Rugby, and Goal ball have been allocated over £1.65 million for the 2009-13 period.

Each of the 46 sports that have submitted funding applications to Sport England for the 2009-13 period had their submissions assessed on commitment of the sport to developing opportunities for under-represented groups including people with a disability.

Theatre: Concessions

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent steps the Government are taking to promote the free theatre tickets initiative. [260168]

Barbara Follett: The Free Theatre Ticket for under 26s Scheme, known as A Night Less Ordinary, which has received widespread media coverage, is managed by Arts Council England. It went 'live' across the country on 16 February 2009 to coincide with spring half-term. Individual theatres participating in the scheme are responsible for marketing their own free theatre ticket offer.

Arts Council England has agreed a partnership with Metro to help promote the A Night Less Ordinary scheme in newspapers and online.

There is a dedicated website:

http://www.anightlessordinary.org.uk/where users can find details of local participating theatres and sign up to receive a newsletter providing regular information about the scheme. Between the website's first day of operation on 10 February and 26 February 2009, the website had received over 170,000 visits. 4,500 people had signed up to receive the newsletter. There is also an A Night Less Ordinary Facebook group.

Tourism: South West

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the contribution made by tourism to the economies of (a) South West England, (b) Cornwall and (c) South East Cornwall in the last five years. [259416]

Barbara Follett: The South West Regional Development Agency have advised that their estimate of the contribution made by tourism to the economies of (a) South West England, (b) Cornwall and (c) South East Cornwall for 2001, 2003, 2005 and 2006, based on the Value of Tourism reports for those years is as follows:

Region	2006	2005	2003	2001
South West	8,940,949	8,874,636	8,007,744	8,846,006

Caradon (S.E. Cornwall)	185,740	173,793	178,348	194,509

2007 district data are being worked on at the moment and should be available shortly.

Value of Tourism reports were produced every two years up until 2005.

Video Games

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many video games were sold in the UK in each of the last five years. [260344]

Barbara Follett: I am advised by the Entertainment and Leisure Software Publishers Association (ELSPA), who hold this information, of the following numbers of video games sold in the UK in the last five years:

	Number
2008	79,165,615
2007	68,359,144
2006	58,846,462
2005	55,170,044
2004	52,807,808

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many video games presented to the British Board of Film Classification have been refused a classification in each of the last five years. [260345]

Barbara Follett: In 2007 the British Board of Film Classification (BBFC) rejected the full version of the video game Manhunt 2. This game remains banned in the UK. The BBFC also rejected a toned down version of Manhunt 2 but this ban was overturned on appeal to the Video Appeals Committee and this modified version is on sale in the UK. No other games were refused a classification in this period.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many video games consoles were sold in the UK in the latest (a) week, (b) month and (c) year for which information is available. [260346]

Barbara Follett: I am advised by GfK Chart-Track, the UK charts authority responsible for monitoring retail sales of video games in the UK, of the following available figures:

(a) 106,000 consoles sold in week 8 of 2009

(b) 444,000 consoles sold in February 2009

(c) 9.3 million consoles sold in 2008.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what research his Department has conducted on the average age at which children begin (a) playing video games and (b) using the internet. [260348]

Barbara Follett: The Byron Review: "Safer Children in a Digital World" report reviewed a comprehensive range of available research looking at how children interact with video games and the internet. However, no specific research has been undertaken by my Department to determine the age children begin playing video games or using the internet.

OLYMPICS

Departmental Plants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much her Department spent on (a) pot plants and (b) cut flowers in each of the last three years. [256172]

Tessa Jowell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office (Mr. Watson) on 11 March 2008, Official Report, column 324W.

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what the average number of days sick leave per member of staff per year in her Office has been since the Office was established. [256387]

Tessa Jowell: Annual sick leave statistics, including average number of sick leave days per member of staff, are published on the Cabinet Office website at:

http://beta.civilservice.gov.uk/and in the "Analysis of Sickness Absence in the Civil Service", a copy of which has been placed in the Library.

Olympic Games 2012: Expenditure

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much had been spent on the aquatics venue at the latest date for which figures are available; and what the estimated final cost of the venue is. [256583]

Tessa Jowell: At the end of December 2008, £33 million had been spent on the aquatics centre project.

The original November 2007 budget for the project was £214 million. This was increased to £246 million due to the transfer of £28 million to the aquatics centre budget from that of the F10 Bridge—the land bridge that will form part of the roof of the venue—and increases in scope to allow for enhanced community use of the venue in legacy. There is a potential cost pressure relating to a possible scope change for additional athlete facilities, which may or may not arise, estimated at £5 million.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Administration

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2009, Official Report, column 935W, what assessment the House of Commons Commission has made of the merits of the (a) accounting and administration systems for and (b) systems for provision of information to the public on hon. Members' expenses in place in the (i) Scottish Parliament and (ii) National Assembly for Wales; and whether the Commission has considered adopting elements of those systems for use by the House authorities. [260603]

Nick Harvey: The Scottish Parliament and the National Assembly for Wales operate systems of allowances and governance that differ from those that apply in the House of Commons. In the case of the provision of information, the Scottish Parliament is subject to separate access to information legislation and associated scrutiny. In reaching its own decisions in relation both to the administration of Members' allowances and publication of information about them the Members Estimate Committee has drawn on a range of sources including the other UK legislatures and Assemblies. For example the Committee drew extensively on the experience of the Scottish Parliament in its Review of Allowances (HC 578) published in June 2008.

Medical Examinations

Dr. Gibson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if the House of Commons Commission will make provision for the Occupational Health, Safety and Welfare Service to offer voluntary annual medical checks to all (a) hon. Members, (b) staff of hon. Members and (c) staff of the House. [260208]

Nick Harvey: Currently, the Occupational Health, Safety and Welfare Service offer medical checks for Members of both Houses (every three years but Members can request an earlier appointment if they wish) and staff of the House (over 55s only). There is no provision for health checks for staff of hon. Members. There are no plans to increase the frequency of health checks or to extend the eligibility to other groups. Although the formal screening programme is not open to staff of hon. Members, there is provision for them to make use of the minor treatment facility and the physiotherapist.

Members' Allowances

Mr. Doran: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what arrangements are being made for the House to publish further information about Members' allowances. [261408]

Nick Harvey: Annual totals for 2007-08, using the 10 main headings of previous annual publications, will shortly be sent to Members for checking, and will be published before the Easter recess.

Work is continuing on preparing for publication scans of receipts and forms for the years 2004-05 to 2007-08.

Snow and Ice

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission pursuant to the answer of 5 February 2009, Official Report, column 1391W, on snow and ice, if he will assess the merits of issuing all hon. Members with snow shovels. [260618]

Nick Harvey: No. As I said in my reply to the hon. Member on 5 April, the cleaning contractor, who has responsibility for snow clearance, has increased the number of snow shovels held on the parliamentary estate to 20.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Government of Pakistan on their agreement with the Taliban in Swat province. [259987]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's last discussions with the Government of Pakistan were with President Zardari on 9 February 2009. He has not discussed Pakistan Government's announcement of a halt to military operations in Swat.

Binyam Mohamed

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the use by Moroccan intelligence services of intelligence gathered by (a) UK and (b) US authorities during the interrogation of Binyam Mohamed; whether he authorised the release of such information to the Moroccan intelligence services; what discussions he has had with the US Administration on the release of such information (i) prior and (ii) subsequent to its release; and if he will make a statement. [259028]

Bill Rammell: It is the long-standing policy of the Government not to comment on intelligence matters. The Intelligence Security Committee's 2007 Report on Rendition stated that > "there is a reasonable probability that intelligence passed to the Americans was used in relation to Mr. Mohamed's subsequent interrogation."

Colombia: Drugs

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 358W, on Colombia: armed forces, what consideration his Department has given to the merits of providing counter-narcotics assistance to Colombia through the UN Office on Drugs and Crime. [260544]

Gillian Merron: We support a number of projects on counter narcotics in Colombia and elsewhere in the Latin American region that are implemented by the UN Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC).

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office supports the following recent or ongoing UNODC projects in Colombia:

(i) Expanding regional legal assistance programmes (multi-year 2007-10)

(ii) Training against money laundering (2007-08)

(iii) Best practices in trials and investigation (multi-year 2007-09)

(iv) Colombia/Venezuela border (multi-year 2008-09)

(v) Risk of money laundering in Commerce and Trade (multi-year 2009-11)

(vi) Regional criminal justice sector reform (multi-year 2009-12)

(vii) Implementation of Best Practices in Civil Asset Forfeiture (Colombia/Peru) (2009)

(viii) Integrated monitoring system for illicit crops (2007-08)

English Language: Education

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Prime Minister's announcement on English—the World's language on 17 January 2008, what progress has been made in inviting offers from telephone, telecom, internet, broadcast and website companies to make the latest and most dynamic English learning, teaching and practice materials available through their channels. [259166]

Caroline Flint: Following my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's announcement, the British Council is in detailed discussions with a major global IT business and a web-based learning company about providing its English language materials for global distribution.

In April 2008, the British Council, in partnership with the BBC and UK English language teaching publishers, launched the 'TeachingEnglish' website which now attracts 350,000 unique visitors a month. The British Council is also piloting a new voice over internet protocol offer in workplace English for young Chinese professionals with a Chinese company.

The 'TeachingEnglish' website is available for viewing at:

http://www.teachingenglish.org.uk/

Nuclear Disarmament

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many copies of his Departmental report, "Lifting the Nuclear Shadow: Creating the Conditions for Abolishing Nuclear Weapons", have been published; what methods he has used to publicise and distribute the paper; who was present at the launch of the paper at the International Institute for Strategic Studies on 4 February 2008; and which non-governmental organisations were consulted in preparation of the report. [255774]

Bill Rammell: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) printed an initial run of 3,000 copies of the report. It is also available for download from the FCO website; to date, over 1,000 copies have been downloaded. The paper is being publicised and distributed online, via e-mail, and through overseas posts. The launch event for the paper at the International Institute for Strategic Studies on 4 February 2008 was attended by interested non-governmental organisations (NGOs), academics, parliamentarians, the media, representatives of foreign embassies and International Institute for Strategic Studies members. NGOs consulted in preparation of the report were:

Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament
VERTIC
The Acronym Institute for Disarmament Diplomacy
Pugwash Conferences on Science and World Affairs
Medact
British American Security Information Council
Kings College London
Royal United Services Institute
UK Defence Academy
Southampton University
University of Wales
International Institute for Strategic Studies
Council on Foreign Relations
Carnegie Endowment
Nuclear Threat Initiative

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with (a) members of the UN Security Council and (b) his Commonwealth counterparts on the political situation in Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [260162]

Bill Rammell: We remain of the view that a political solution that addresses the legitimate concerns of all communities in Sri Lanka is the only way to bring a sustainable end to the conflict. We will continue to discuss this with international partners. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has discussed the situation in Sri Lanka with a number of UN Security Council, Commonwealth and EU counterparts.

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will seek a special session of the United Nations Human Rights Council on the situation in Sri Lanka. [260164]

Bill Rammell: The UK, both independently and as part of the EU, regularly addresses the human rights situation in Sri Lanka and plans to do so again at the UN Human Rights Council which will be in session from 2-27 March 2009.

Sri Lanka: Foreign Relations

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the remit of the Prime Minister's special envoy to Sri Lanka is. [259927]

Bill Rammell: We hope that my right hon. Friend the Member for Kilmarnock and Loudoun (Des Browne) in his role as the Prime Minister's special envoy for Sri Lanka, will be able to focus on the immediate humanitarian situation in northern Sri Lanka and the Government of Sri Lanka's work to set out a political solution to bring about a lasting end to the conflict. We want him to work closely with the Sri Lankan Government, leaders from all communities in Sri Lanka, international agencies and the wider international community in this role. As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary explained to the House on 24 February 2009, Official Report, column 140, he remains in active discussion with the Sri Lankan Government to encourage them to work with him.

USA: Israel

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government have received notification from the United States Administration in the last six months of any US transfer of armaments to Israel through UK airspace. [254694]

Mr. Hutton: I have been asked to reply.

The Ministry of Defence has a system in place that requires all countries to seek clearance for aircraft registered as military or state aircraft that wish to enter, fly over or depart from UK airspace or for civilian aircraft wishing to land at a military base. All other types of aircraft are subject to the requirements of the Civil Aviation Authority. A request for clearance from the MOD includes the final destination of the flight and details of dangerous cargo that may be in transit. I can confirm that we have had no such requests from the US with regards to flights to Israel through UK airspace in the last six months.

Western Sahara: Fisheries

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of the effects on UK trawlers of the declaration of an exclusive economic zone in relation to the waters off Western Sahara. [257506]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not received any reports about the effect the declaration by the Polisario of an exclusive economic zone off the waters of Western Sahara has had on the activities of UK trawlers.

In line with UN Security Council Resolution 1813, 30 April 2008 the Government continue to call on all the parties to the dispute to work in a spirit of realism and compromise towards a mutually acceptable political solution, providing for self-determination for the people of Western Sahara.

Western Sahara: Human Rights

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will request the UN High Commissioner on Human Rights to release the Commission's report on its missions to Rabat, El Ayoun, Tindouf and Algiers in May and June 2006. [260525]

Bill Rammell: The Office of the High Commissioner on Human Rights (OHCHR) visited Morocco, Western Sahara, refugee camps in Tindouf, (Algeria) and Algiers in May-June 2006 to gather information on the human rights situation. The OHCHR shared its report privately with Morocco, Algeria and the Polisario on 8 September 2006, but did not publish it, in line with terms of reference agreed by all parties prior to the visit. The UN High Commissioner for Human Rights continues to maintain the position that the report should remain an internal document, not for official publication, and the UK respects this decision.

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will support the inclusion of a peacekeeping role and a human rights monitoring function for the United Nations Mission for the referendum in Western Sahara upon the renewal of its mandate in April 2009. [260526]

Bill Rammell: The UK continues to support the UN Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara (MINURSO). The mandate of MINURSO does not include human rights monitoring.

However, success in the negotiations depends upon building greater confidence between the parties. In this respect, the UK remains open to supporting UN human rights monitoring in the Western Sahara if it can be shown to enhance the mutual confidence of the parties.

Western Sahara: Politics and Government

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on the inclusion in a UN plan for Western Sahara of a referendum with independence as an option. [248472]

Bill Rammell: The UK continues to believe that progress towards a negotiated solution to the dispute in Western Sahara providing for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara is best achieved under the auspices of the UN. We fully support the efforts of the UN Secretary-General to this end and welcome the appointment of his new personal envoy to the Western Sahara, Christopher Ross.

The UK believes that a referendum on the future status of Western Sahara should result from the negotiation process currently under way, with the options for any eventual referendum to be agreed by all the parties.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has allocated for staff bonuses in 2008-09. [252254]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Performance related pay schemes encourage high attainment, help drive performance in Departments and agencies and support better public service delivery. DEFRA uses non-consolidated payments to reward high performance during the year and these are based on the how well an individual has met or exceeded set objectives, relative to their peers.

These are one-off payments and do not count towards pension. They are funded within existing pay bill controls, have to be re-earned each year and, as such, do not add to future pay bill costs. They are allocated from a 'pot' expressed as a percentage of the salary budget each year.

For the senior civil service (SCS) the size of the pot available is agreed centrally each year following recommendations from the senior salaries review body. In recent years, this pot has increased as greater emphasis is placed on non-consolidated performance pay with proportionately smaller increases to consolidated base pay.

The size of the pot for non-SCS is determined individually by Departments and agencies through the pay remit process and in negotiations with the trades unions.

In 2008-09, £4,913,971 was allocated for non-consolidated performance pay for staff in DEFRA and its executive agencies. The total paybill for the period is £384,631,197, of which, 1.28 per cent. is used for non-consolidated performance payments.

The median payment for staff in core DEFRA (including staff who transferred to DECC in October 2008) and those agencies covered by core DEFRA's terms and conditions (Animal Health, Veterinary Medicines Directorate, Marine and Fisheries Agency and Government Decontamination Service and until 1 April 2008 Pesticides Safety Directorate) was £750. In CSL it was £507.57; in VLA it was £266.23; in CEFAS it was £956; and in the RPA it was £800.

Departmental Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost of his Department's contracts with public relations consultancies was in each of the last five years. [251532]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In DEFRA, public relations covers a wide range of activity which forms an important element of a broader communications mix. This can include advertising, direct marketing, live events and publications. The following table shows what public relations activity was procured via DEFRA's Communications Directorate since FY 2004-05 using the COI public relations framework.

Financial year	PR agency	Campaign	Expenditure (£)
2004-05	Amazon PR	Sustainable Development	58,788

Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by his Department is in 2008-09. [258513]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The estimated cost of vacant business rates for Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs sites, recorded as vacant on e-PIMS for 2008-09 is £1,285,135.10. One large building in Central London accounts for £736,769.95 of this, which is being actively marketed.

We have a further two sites that have been vacant in 2008-09 and the estimated cost of vacant business rates on these sites is £19,320.

Floods

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the proportion of flooding caused by (a) overflowing waterways and (b) blocked watercourses, culverts and drains in 2008. [259989]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency collects information on flooding from rivers and the sea. It has not estimated the proportion causes of flooding from these sources in 2008.

Floods: Canvey Island

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment has been made of the effect on the flood plain of the works planned in the flood risk area of Canvey Island in relation to the Roscommon Way extension; and if he will make a statement. [259639]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency has informed the Highways Authority consultants, Mouchel Parkman that a flood risk assessment (FRA) must be submitted as part of the planning application for the Roscommon Way extension. The FRA must determine the flood risk impact of the road and propose mitigation measures so there is no increased flood risk to the surrounding land. To date the Environment Agency has not been consulted on the flood risk assessment.

Genetically Modified Organisms: Crops

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans his Department has for managing the coexistence of genetically-modified (GM) and non-GM crops. [260185]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In 2006 DEFRA published a consultation paper on proposals for managing the coexistence of GM and non-GM crop in England. This is available at

On 8 November 2007, Official Report, column 16WS, we made a written statement confirming that we would await further developments before finalising our coexistence plans. That remains the current position.

National Hazards Team

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects the national hazards team to be established. [256544]

Mr. Watson: I have been asked to reply.

The Civil Contingencies Secretariat is recruiting members of the natural hazards team now and expects to establish the team very soon; in the meantime, work is in hand to initiate the project to identify and counter the risks to national infrastructure from natural hazards.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent estimate he has made of the required average annual reduction in carbon dioxide emissions per passenger relating to aircraft departing from UK airports between 2005 and 2050 in order to achieve the Government's target of keeping aviation-derived carbon dioxide emissions in 2050 below the 2005 level. [260131]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In announcing their new target to bring UK aviation carbon dioxide emissions in 2050 below 2005 levels, the Government asked the Committee on Climate Change to advise on the best basis for its development. The Committee is due to report by December 2009. The Committee's advice will inform the Government's approach in ensuring achievement of the target.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average annual change in carbon dioxide emissions has been per passenger in relation to aircraft departing from UK airports in each year since 1990. [260132]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following table provides estimates of aviation carbon dioxide emissions per passenger for all domestic and international air passengers flying from UK airports in each year from 1990 to 2007.

Based on these data, average CO_2 per domestic passenger has decreased from 0.10 tonnes in 1990 to 0.09 tonnes in 2007 and per international passenger from 0.41 tonnes in 1990 to 0.36 tonnes in 2007; this equates to an average annual fall of 1 per cent. in CO_2 per passenger.

Table: Estimates of average CO_2 emissions per passenger flying from UK airports, 1990-2007

	Domestic aviation			International aviation
	Carbon dioxide (million tonnes)	Departing passengers (million)	Average CO_2 per passenger (tonnes)	Carbon dioxide (million tonnes)	Departing passengers (million)	Average CO_2 per passenger (tonnes)

2007	2.14	24.4	0.09	34.97	98.0	0.36

Notes:
1. Domestic aviation includes all departures from UK airports flying to another UK airport. International aviation includes all departures from a UK airport flying to a destination outside of the UK. These will carry both UK and foreign passengers.
2. The aviation CO_2 emissions are derived from bunker fuel sales, which broadly equates to all departing aircraft (excluding military aircraft). Therefore the figures in the table do not reflect emissions from surface access nor emissions from airport buildings.
3. Emissions from freighter aircraft have been allocated to passengers in these illustrative figures.
4. The CO_2 emissions do not account for non-CO_2 climate change effects of aviation emissions.

Sources:
Carbon dioxide emissions - AEA Energy and Environment / DECC. Passengers - Civil Aviation Authority statistics.

The average CO_2 per passenger figures in the table above have been calculated by dividing total CO_2 emissions from departing flights by the number of departing passengers. They do not therefore reflect a weighted average of emissions to account for the relative numbers of flights flying different trip lengths. The level of emissions per passenger will be affected by such factors as load factors, type of aircraft used, fuel efficiency changes, etc.

Aviation: Taxation

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his forecast is for the constrained air passenger demand in 2030, taking into account (a) the implementation of the increases in air passenger Duty announced in the 2008 Pre-Budget Report, (b) expectations of future levels of gross domestic product as set out in the 2008 Pre-Budget Report and (c) the effect of aviation being included in the EU Emissions Trading Scheme on the basis of current proposals; and what adjustment would be made to this forecast if it is also assumed that a barrel of oil will cost $150 in 2030. [260133]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport's UK Air Passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts, page 48, reports the forecast of 2030 constrained air passenger demand for: each of the individual scenarios (a), (b), (c); and, a 2030 oil price of $150 per barrel (in 2007 prices). This report is available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/atf/co2forecast09/

No assessment has been made of the forecast of 2030 constrained air passenger demand taking into account (a), (b) and (c) together. Therefore, no assessment has been made of the adjustment that would be made to such a forecast if a barrel of oil were to cost $150 (in 2007 prices) in 2030.

BRB (Residuary): Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by the British Railways Board (Residuary) Ltd is in 2008-09. [258523]

Mr. Hoon: The estimated empty property business rates payable for the year 2008-09 is approximately £1.2 million.

The properties comprise approximately 121,244 sq m of largely office accommodation originally leased by the then British Railways Board to accommodate their own administrative staff. The properties were transferred to BRB (Residuary) Ltd (BRBR)—a wholly owned subsidiary of the Secretary of State—in 2002. The accommodation is now sub-let to a mixture of civil service Departments, the railway industry and other private sector tenants.

The day to day management objective for the Estate is to keep operating costs to a minimum, including empty rates. This is done by renting out as much space as possible, consistent with value for money.

The e-PIMs database identifies some 30,126 sq m as available to let. However, part of this space is also earmarked for redevelopment and early disposal. For example, the Rail House, Manchester space is subject to a major redevelopment to create over 10,000 sq m of accommodation for the civil service, with the Training and Development Agency moving up from London. The Furlong House and John Peyton House properties (6,200 sq m) are currently in the late stages of sale.

Bus Services: Merseyside

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many low-floor wheelchair-accessible buses are used on services funded by Merseytravel in (a) Merseyside and (b) Sefton (i) in total and (ii) as a proportion of the size of the fleet. [259479]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold the information requested as the vehicle specification and funding for supported services is a matter for local authorities.

Careless Driving: Fixed Penalties

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to bring forward proposals to give police forces the powers to issue fixed penalty tickets for careless driving; and if he will make a statement. [260376]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Proposals to make careless driving a fixed penalty offence were outlined in the Department's Road Safety Compliance Consultation which closed on 27 February. We are currently considering the responses and an announcement will be made in due course.

Departmental Art Works

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which works of art from the Government Art Collection each Minister in his Department has selected for display in a private office. [259437]

Departmental Data Protection

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what period of time elapses before his Department's electronic records are (a) archived and (b) destroyed; and what percentage of such records created in (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008 have been destroyed. [259353]

Mr. Hoon: The following table shows relevant information for the central Department and the Executive agencies:

	Record management
DfT Central	The archival and destruction arrangements for all documents held as part of the official record, including those electronically produced, are subject to business need and agreement between business units and the Departmental Records Officer. Information on the number of electronic records created and destroyed is not available.
Highways Agency	All HA electronic records have a standard retention period of 7 years followed by a review. At the end of the review period they will be retained, destroyed or transferred to the National Archives at the appropriate time. No archiving is done within the HA. The HA electronic records management system went live on 1 February 2009, therefore no formal electronic records were created in 2007 and 2008.
Vehicle and Operator Services Agency	Policies are in place for the archive and deletion of electronic data but the period for these actions varies in accordance with the business needs. No areas have deleted records for 2007 and 2008.
Government Car and Despatch Agency	Records management is the responsibility of individual units within the Agency. Destruction numbers are not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.
Maritime and Coastguard Agency	The MCA keep all of its records in hard copy format with archive and destruction following agreed retention and disposal agreements. As a result, no electronic records are archived or destroyed.
Vehicle Certification Agency	VCA does not have a separate electronic records policy but guidelines are in place for records management arrangements throughout the agency.
Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency	DVLA core business data relate to full driver and vehicle records. These records are retained indefinitely to meet our core business requirements, for example law enforcement.
Driving Standards Agency	DSA applies different archiving and destruction timescales according to the nature of the data. Records are not kept on the creation or destruction of electronic information.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on what date his Department's policy on the management of its electronic records took effect; and on what dates it has been reviewed. [259354]

Mr. Hoon: The dates on which the central Department and Executive agency policies on record management took effect and were reviewed is set out in the following tables:

	Date records policy took effect	Date records policy reviewed
DfT(C)	Prior to formation of DFT in 2002	Regularly reviewed and updated when necessary, most recently in December 2007 and October 2008
HA	1994	Reviewed annually; January 2009
VOSA	2003	Parts of the policy are currently being reviewed

	Date records policy took effect	Date records policy reviewed
GCDA	Working to DFT(C) records policy	Will review GCDA records policy in 2009-2010
MCA	Working to DFT(C) records policy	Subject to DFT(C) review of policy and policy updates
VCA	Working to DFT(C) records policy	The policy for VCA is currently being reviewed
DVLA	2008 (for management of registered files)	Reviewed annually; December 2008

The dates on which the Driving Standards Agency's policies on record management took effect and were reviewed is set out in the following table:

DSA policy	Approved	Reviewed
HR Data Retention Policy	November 2002	Currently under review
DSA Records Management Policy	March 2003	Currently under review
Appropriate use of IT and Communications Equipment Policy	August 2006	Reviewed version published July 2008
Annex M of Pearson Data Processor Agreement	December 2007	July 2008
Retention Schedule for the Integrated Register of Driver Trainers	May 2008	Review date not yet set
Fraud and Integrity Retention and Disposal Schedule	January 2009	Review date not yet set

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's policy on the management of electronic records. [259355]

Mr. Hoon: A copy of the central Department's policy on the management of electronic and paper records has been placed in the Library along with records policies for the Highways Agency and the Vehicle Operator Services Agency. The Driving Standards Agency has also placed the following documents in the Library:

DSA Records Management Policy

HR Data Retention Policy

Appropriate use of IT and Communications Equipment Policy

Retention Schedule for the Integrated Register of Driver Trainers

Fraud and Integrity Retention and Disposal Schedule

Annex M of Pearson Data Processor Agreement.

The Driving and Vehicle Licensing Agency has policies on the storage, transmission and destruction of electronic protectively marked material but they are themselves protectively marked and it would not be appropriate to make them publicly available.

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average number of days sick leave per staff member in his Department was in each of the last five years. [256389]

Mr. Hoon: Sickness absence is monitored by the central Department and its agencies on a monthly basis. The average number of working days lost for the Department for Transport is as follows:

	Average number of working days lost
2003	10.2
2004	10.7
2005	10.4
2006	10.2
2007	11.0
1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008	10.8
1 July 2007 to 30 June 2008	9.9
1 October 2007 to 30 September 2008	9.3

The figures to 2006 have been previously published in the "National Audit Office Report: The management of staff sickness absence in the Department for Transport and its agencies" dated 8 June 2007. The figures are based on an agreed departmental reporting methodology and reported within a calendar year. Figures for 2007 onwards are in accordance with the Cabinet Office reporting methodology introduced for all Government Departments. Reporting is now within financial years on a rolling year basis.

Heathrow Airport

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many discrete views were expressed in responses to the adding capacity at Heathrow airport consultation, broken down by (a) the code allocated to the view under the code frame used by Detica and (b) the response type in which the view was expressed; [259110]

(2) how many responses to the adding capacity at Heathrow airport consultation were received in the form of (a) Justine Greening Petition and (b) 'Justine Greening your views of Heathrow' postcards, as categorised by Detica under its code frame; and how many of these responses included free-text. [259111]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 26 February 2009]: A detailed analysis of the responses to the adding capacity at Heathrow airport consultation can be found in the "adding capacity at Heathrow airport report on consultation responses", which was published on 15 January. Chapter 4 discusses response volumes, and Appendix B explains in detail the code frames used. 1549 'Justine Greening your views of Heathrow' postcards, and 584 'Justine Greening Petition' responses were received. However as the postcards were received before the start of the consultation, they were not analysed as individual responses. A detailed breakdown of discrete views contained both in petition and postcard responses, and in all other responses, can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

High Speed Two

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what terms of reference he has given to the High Speed Two company. [259407]

Paul Clark [holding answer 27 February 2009]: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of Sate for Transport on 15 January 2009, Official Report, columns 355-60, and the accompanying document "Britain's Transport Infrastructure: High Speed Two", which was deposited in the House Libraries on the same day.

Limousines

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what regulations apply to the carriage of passengers in stretch limousines; and if he will make a statement. [259349]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport has published guidance for operators of stretch limousines, which provides an overview of the requirements that apply to the use of such vehicles. The guidance is available on the internet at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/regional/taxis/limousines and a copy will be placed in the Library.

Motor Vehicles: Petrol Alternatives

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) research and (b) trialling his Department has conducted on the provision of (i) hydrogen supply and (ii) electric charge points networks for road vehicles powered by hydrogen and electricity in the last five years; and what (A) funding and (B) other resources his Department has provided for (1) local authorities and (2) regional development agencies to create such networks in that period. [259591]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport (DfT) commissioned the Health and Safety Laboratory to examine the issues around hydrogen refuelling infrastructures. In 2008 they produced the reports "Assessing the safety of delivery and storage of hydrogen" and a "Review of the regulatory framework around hydrogen refuelling", available on:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/scienceresearch/futures/horizons/june08

The Department and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform commissioned Cenex (UK Centre of Excellence for Low Carbon and Fuel Cell technologies), along with the consultancy firm Arup, to examine and advise on the issues relating to the mass market introduction of electric vehicles. Their report is available at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file48653.pdf

DfT has provided grant funding for electric recharging points of £171,000 through the alternative refuelling infrastructure grant programme of which £80,546 was provided directly to local authorities. There were no grants provided for the regional development agencies for electric recharging points. No grants were provided for hydrogen refuelling infrastructure.

New Trains: Investments

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the Statement of 12 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1531-4W, on new trains (investments), by what date he expects the last of the 1,400 new carriages announced to be in service. [259610]

Paul Clark: The Intercity Express programme (IEP) order is for up to 1,400 vehicles, the last of which are expected to enter service in 2018.

Property Development

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the powers available to him under the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 2006 in respect of proposed development sites. [259324]

Paul Clark: Powers are available to the Secretary of State for Transport under the General Permitted Development Order[1], which give planning permission in respect of works undertaken in exercise of the functions of the Secretary of State under the Highways Act 1980, or works in connection with or incidental to the exercise of those functions. No assessment has been made of these powers.

[1] The Town and Country Planning (Application of Subordinate Legislation to the Crown) Order 2006 SI 2006/1282

Public Transport: Disabled

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding his Department has made available to improve disabled access transport services in North Wiltshire constituency. [258290]

Paul Clark: In November 2007, the Department for Transport announced the allocation of over £50 million to Wiltshire county council, which covers the North Wiltshire constituency, to support delivery of capital investment included in the last three years of its local transport plan. This funding is not ring-fenced and Wiltshire has discretion to spend allocations in line with its priorities, including disabled access to transport services. Revenue expenditure on transport is generally supported through the Department for Communities and Local Government's formula grant.

Local transport legislation contains an obligation for local transport authorities to have regard to the transport needs of older people and people with mobility difficulties when developing transport plans and policies.

Railways: Overcrowding

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to introduce additional rolling stock on the Newport-Hereford line to reduce passenger overcrowding. [259393]

Paul Clark: Services on this route are provided by the Arriva Trains Wales franchise, and responsibility for their specification is devolved to the Welsh Assembly Government. Additional services were introduced on the route in December 2008.

Roads: Snow and Ice

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many days stock of gritting agent the Highways Agency held on (a) 31 January 2009 and (b) 6 February 2009; and if he will make a statement. [258543]

Paul Clark: The Highways Agency defines its salt stocks by the number of days that salt treatments could be delivered for snow conditions, across the strategic road network in England, without further deliveries being received. This assumes six treatments per day, at a salt spread rate of 20 g/m2 per treatment.

During a normal winter season, the Highways Agency will seek to maintain a minimum salt stocks level of six days. For the requested dates, the salt stocks held by the Highways Agency were as follows:

	Days
31 January 2009	7.64
6 February 2009	4.16

This reduction in stocks enabled the Agency to make some of its supplies available to individual local authorities and for new supplies of salt to be shared with local authorities and devolved Administrations across Great Britain, reflecting stocks held and forecast weather.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will bring forward legislative proposals to require local authorities to clear pavements of snow in areas with high numbers of pedestrians. [259877]

Paul Clark: Section 41 of the Highways Act 1980 places a duty on highway authorities

"to ensure, so far as is reasonably practicable, that safe passage along a highway is not endangered by snow or ice".

It is for each local highway authority to determine how best to discharge this duty. The Government see no need for further legislation.

Rolling Stock

Mr. Charles Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether any of the new rail rolling stock recently announced by his Department will be fitted out for use as sleeper accommodation. [258440]

Paul Clark: These trains will be designed to be longer and carry up to 21 per cent. more passengers but will not be fitted out for use as sleeper accommodation.

Mr. Charles Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he plans to support the provision of sleeper rail services where these compete with domestic or short-haul international air travel services; and if he will make a statement. [258441]

Paul Clark: Sleeper services between Scotland and London are provided by First ScotRail as part of the franchise agreement with transport Scotland. Sleeper services between Penzance and London are provided by First Great Western. There are no other plans for sleeper services.

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Lewes of 9 February 2009, Official Report, column 1606W, on rolling stock, what the timetable is for ordering the remaining 877 of the 1,300 carriages referred to in the 2007 White Paper, "Delivering a Sustainable Railway". [258719]

Paul Clark: It is currently expected that the new train orders will be placed as follows:

Operator	Vehicles	Expected order date
NXEA	120	2009
LM	88	2009-10
GoCo	202	2009
SWT	140	2009-10
TLK	Up to 1,300	2009-10

However, this is subject to agreement with the train operators concerned and a satisfactory value for money assessment.

Wheel Clamps

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport under what circumstances the owner of a vehicle may be held liable for a payment to release a wheel clamp where the vehicle in question had been parked by a person other than the owner. [259346]

Paul Clark: Few local authorities use immobilisation as part of their parking enforcement activities. If an immobilised vehicle had been parked on the public highway by a person without the keeper's consent, the keeper would have to pay the release fee but can make representations to the local authority and, if this is refused, can appeal to an adjudicator on this ground.

I understand from the Home Office that if such a vehicle was immobilised on private land, the way that the vehicle keeper was treated would be at the discretion of the immobilisation staff.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Bereavement Benefits

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 1010W, on bereavement benefits, how many payments of (a) bereavement allowance and (b) bereavement payment were (i) made within the target times and (ii) not made within the target times in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [255835]

Kitty Ussher: There is no national target for the processing of applications for bereavement benefits although we aim to deliver bereavement allowance within 15 days and bereavement payment within 10 days.

Information about average actual clearance time for bereavement allowance, widowed parents allowance and bereavement benefit payments for the last five years is in the following tables.

Bereavement allowance and widowed parents allowance average actual clearance times

	Days
2004-05	15.4
2005-06	14.8
2006-07	15.4
2007-08	18.8
2008-09 to date	15.1

Bereavement payment average actual clearance times

	Days
2004-05	7.8
2005-06	7.8
2006-07	8.9
2007-08	11.9
2008-09 to date	9.2

Departmental Consultants

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many consultants his Department retains; in what areas of his Department's work each operates; for how long each has been contracted to work within his Department; and at what cost. [259778]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 27 February 2009]: The Department does not keep centralised records of individual consultants retained and therefore the answer could only be provided at disproportionate cost. We can however confirm that consultants are currently engaged in the following areas:

Human Resources
Finance
IT
Communications
Jobcentre Plus
Pension, Disability and Carers Service
Work, welfare and equality group

Departmental Telephone Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many telephone numbers for which callers are charged at the rate applicable to 0845 numbers are used by (a) his Department and (b) its executive agencies for public access to services. [246992]

Jonathan Shaw: DWP and its executive agencies; Jobcentre Plus, Pension, Disability and Carers Service and Rent Service currently publish 129 0845 numbers for primary contact for customers accessing their services.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249132]

Jonathan Shaw: The information requested is not collated centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Housing Benefit: Essex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) if he will publish information on changes in the level of benefits experienced by local housing allowance claimants resident in (a) Southend-on-Sea and (b) Essex who move address; and if he will make a statement; [255104]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number and proportion of persons residing in (a) Southend and (b) Essex who will receive (i) an increase, (ii) a decrease and (iii) no change in benefit paid following the introduction of local housing allowance; what recent representations he has received on this issue; and if he will make a statement; [255105]

Kitty Ussher: We have no immediate plans to publish specific information on the level of benefit change experienced by local housing allowance claimants who move address. We are in the process of carrying out a two year review of local housing allowance.

A claimant who is receiving the local housing allowance and who moves address within their existing broad rental market area, and who has no other changes to their family composition, will normally see no change in the amount of local housing allowance that they receive.

From 7 April 2008, the local housing allowance is being rolled out to customers making new claims for benefit and customers who change address. The local housing allowance provides a clear and transparent set of allowance rates that helps tenants know how much financial help is available. A claimant can obtain details of the relevant rate of local housing allowance in advance, allowing them to make an informed choice about the affordability of specific accommodation.

Information on all local housing allowance rates and details of broad rental market areas are available from the rent service website at:

www.therentservice.gov.uk/

The Department carried out a full public consultation before introducing the local housing allowance. We have received a wide range of representations about all aspects of local housing allowance. Details of individual representations, and our response to them, could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Mortgage Interest Rate Relief

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what mortgage interest rate his Department is currently paying claimants entitled to assistance with mortgage interest; how many claimants have been paid less than this interest rate since the pre-Budget report; by how much those claimants have been underpaid; when he expects to be able to make good the payments to those claimants; and if he will make a statement. [251941]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 27 January 2009]: On 24 November 2008, the Chancellor announced in the pre-Budget report that because of the exceptional circumstances in the economy and the housing market, the Government would maintain, for six months, the level of support for mortgage interest based on a standard interest rate of 6.08 per cent.

Some people will experience a temporary drop below 6.08 per cent. (to 4.58 per cent.) because our IT systems had been programmed to track the Bank of England base rate. When the Chancellor's decision was made, our IT systems that are used to assess and pay DWP benefits had started automatically to implement the 1.5 per cent. reduction in the base rate announced by the Bank of England on 6 November.

We were able to re-adjust the rate back to 6.08 per cent. for people getting income-based jobseeker's allowance and income-related employment and support allowance. This amounted to 5 per cent. of the affected cases.

We could not do so for those getting income support and pension credit without a high risk of disrupting the normal running of our IT systems, most critically the uprating of benefits, which would have affected many more people than just those getting support for mortgage interest.

We estimate that 80,000 income support customers and 115,000 pension credit customers receive support for mortgage interest and these are currently being paid at 4.58 per cent.

We are taking urgent action to ensure that these customers do not lose out, and that cases are corrected to reflect the Chancellor's commitment. I can assure the House that no one is being paid support for mortgage at an interest rate below 4.58 per cent.

In total, departmental expenditure on support for mortgage interest is currently being underpaid at £1.5 million per week. In the vast majority of cases, we transfer customers' support for mortgage interest direct to their lender, so the customer will not see a fall in the amount of money they themselves receive each week. However, we estimate that, on average, support for mortgage interest in respect of pension credit customers will have been underpaid by £7 per week and in respect of income support customers by £11 per week.

We will make a corrective adjustment for a period of five weeks from 2 February to 8 March 2009. During this period, customers will receive an increase in their benefit to compensate them for the earlier reduction. Then, from 9 March benefit will be readjusted to the correct level with the standard interest rate set at 6.08 per cent.

Mortgage lenders, via the Council of Mortgage Lenders, have also been advised about the situation to ensure that lenders are aware of exactly what is happening.

Our staff have been fully briefed and we have issued clear guidance to local authority staff.

Pension Schemes

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of people who are auto-enrolled into the pension's savings scheme from 2012 will receive more than (a) £5, (b) more than £6, (c) more than £7 and (d) £8 or more worth of value for each £8 invested in their pension. [258219]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Pages 55-56 of the report 'Saving for retirement: Implications of pensions reforms on financial incentives to save for retirement', DWP Research Report 558, contain information about the modelled expected returns for individual contributions to a defined contribution pension with employer contribution after 2012. Distributions of returns are shown by birth cohort and results are shown for a range of case studies.

Pensioners: Poverty

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his most recent estimate is of the percentage of pensioners resident in (a) the London borough of Bexley and (b) London living in poverty. [259512]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Poverty is a complex and multidimensional issue and, as such, there are many possible measures of poverty.

Our public service agreement "Tackle poverty and promote greater independence and wellbeing in later life" includes a range of indicators related to low income for pensioners. These are relative low income (below 50 and 60 per cent. contemporary median household income), and absolute low income (below 60 per cent. of 1998-99 median income uprated in line with prices), all measured after housing costs have been taken into account.

The data source does not allow us to provide robust numbers for estimates below the level of Government office region. The information that is available for the percentage of pensioners in London below each of these thresholds is given in the following table.

Percentage of pensioners falling below various thresholds of median household income, after housing costs, London, 2004-05-2006-07

	Percentage
Below 60 per cent of contemporary median household income	22
Below 50 per cent of contemporary median household income	12
Below 60 per cent of the 1998/99 median household income uprated in line with prices	12

Notes:
1. Three survey year averages are given as robust single year estimates cannot be produced because of small sample sizes.
2. The income measures used to derive the estimates shown employ the same methodology as the Department for Work and Pensions publication "Households Below Average Income" (HBAI) series, which uses disposable household income, adjusted (or "equivalised") for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living.
3. The figures are based on OECD equivalisation factors.
4. Figures are based on survey data and as such are subject to a degree of sampling and non-sampling error.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his most recent estimate is of the percentage of pensioners living in poverty resident in (a) Winchester constituency and (b) Hampshire. [260598]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Poverty is a complex and multidimensional issue and, as such, there are many possible measures of poverty.

Our public service agreement "Tackle poverty and promote greater independence and wellbeing in later life" includes a range of indicators related to low income for pensioners. These are relative low income (below 50 and 60 per cent. contemporary median household income), and absolute low income (below 60 per cent. of 1998-99 median income uprated in line with prices), all measured after housing costs have been taken into account.

The data source does not allow us to provide robust numbers for estimates below the level of Government office region. The information that is available for the percentage of pensioners in the south east Government office region below each of these thresholds is given in the following table.

Percentage of pensioners falling below various thresholds of median household income, after housing costs, south east Government office region, 2004-05 to 2006-07

	Percentage
Below 60 per cent. of contemporary median household income	16
Below 50 per cent. of contemporary median household income	9
Below 60 per cent. of the 1998-99 median household income uprated in line with prices	8

Notes:

1. Three survey year averages are given as robust single year estimates cannot be produced because of small sample sizes.
2. The income measures used to derive the estimates shown employ the same methodology as the Department for Work and Pensions publication 'Households Below Average Income' (HBAI) series, which uses disposable household income, adjusted (or "equivalised") for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living.

4. Figures are based on survey data and as such are subject to a degree of sampling and non-sampling error.

Poverty: Children

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 28 January 2009, Official Report, column 575W, on poverty: children, for which years information on the number of children born into families in relative poverty is available; and if he will make a statement. [260100]

Kitty Ussher: Information on the number of children born into families in relative poverty is not available for any period.

This is because the main source of income data, the Family Resources Survey, is a snap-shot survey, capturing a household's situation at the time of interview. This means that the sample size for households with new born children will be small. It may also be the case that the response rate from families with very young children will be lower than usual and therefore may not be representative.

Roscommon Way Extension

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what advice the Health and Safety Executive provided in relation to (a) Phase I and (b) Phase II of the Roscommon Way extension, Canvey Island. [258357]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 25 February 2009]: The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) has not been formally consulted by the planning authority on the health and safety implications of this development's proximity to major accident hazard sites and pipelines on Canvey Island.

In 2008 HSE advised a consultant acting for Essex county council and, separately, a member of the public that it would not advise the planning authority against a development comprising a single carriageway road passing through the consultation distances around major accident hazard sites in the vicinity.

HSE also confirmed that Essex county council were aware of the presence of hazardous pipelines in the area and provided the consultant with information on their approximate location. HSE also advised the consultant to contact Calor Gas Ltd for more detailed information on two liquefied petroleum gas pipelines.

Social Security Benefits

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in (a) each region of England, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland receive both working tax credit and housing benefit. [259525]

Kitty Ussher: 200,000 families received both working tax credit and housing benefit in the UK in 2006-07, the latest year for which figures are available.

The Family Resources Survey (FRS) has been used to provide this estimate but sample sizes do not permit results at a regional level.

Notes:

1. Figures have been rounded to the nearest 100,000.
2. Administrative data do not hold this information as these two benefits are not cross-referenced on the administrative systems.
3. The FRS collects information on the incomes and circumstances of private households in the United Kingdom. The FRS is a nationally representative sample, covering approximately 26,000 households in 2006-07.
4. The estimates are based on sample counts that have been adjusted for non-response using multi-purpose grossing factors which align the FRS to Government office region populations by age and sex. Estimates are subject to sampling error and remaining non-response error.
5. The FRS undercounts benefit caseload receipt when compared to administrative data. In 2006-07 the FRS undercounted housing benefit by 12 per cent. and undercounted working tax credit by 19 per cent. It is not possible to calculate how this under-recording affects the estimate of the number of families receiving both working tax credit and housing benefit.
6. A family refers to a benefit unit, which is defined as a single adult or a couple living as married and any dependent children. Same-sex partners (and cohabitees) are also included in the same benefit unit. Housing benefit and working tax credit are awarded on a benefit unit basis.
7. Working tax credit is administered by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs.

State Retirement Pensions

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 10 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1807-08W, on state retirement pensions (1) what the cost of the (a) payments and (b) administration of the age addition was in the last 12 months; and if he will estimate the cost of increasing the age addition to (i) 50p, (ii) £1, (iii) £5 and (iv) £10 in 2009-10; [257554]

(2) if he will estimate the cost of increasing the age addition to (a) 50 pence, (b) £1, (c) £5 and (d) £10 and linking it to (i) earnings and (ii) prices in each of the next five years; and how many people currently receive the addition. [258707]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The estimated cost of payments of the age addition in the last 12 months is £35 million.

The information is not available for the costs of administration of the age addition in the last 12 months. The Pension, Disability and Carers Service do not separately identify the administration costs of delivering the age addition to state pensions.

The estimated cost of increasing the age addition to (a) 50p, (b) £1, (c) £5 and (d) £10 and linking it to prices and earnings in each of the next five years are shown in the following tables.

Notes:
1. The cost for payments of the age addition in the last 12 months is as of March 2008 and is in £ million, for Great Britain, in 2008-09 terms, rounded to the nearest £5 million.
2. For the costs of administration of the age addition in the last 12 months, most of the process is automated and the clerical elements are so minor that it is incorporated into normal daily actions and not identified separately.
3. In tables 1 to 4, costs are in £ million, for Great Britain, in 2008-09 terms. For values less than £100 million, rounding is to the nearest £5 million, otherwise, to the nearest £10 million.
4. Treasury Economic Assumptions have been used for linking the age addition to earnings and prices.
5. The estimated number of individuals who currently receive the age addition is as of March 2008.

There are currently approximately 2.7 million individuals who receive the age addition.

Winter Fuel Payments

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the (a) average, (b) lowest and (c) highest number of days was between the conditions for a cold weather payment being met and the payment being made to eligible recipients in the last 12 months, broken down by weather station area; [249440]

(2) what the average time between the cold weather payments being triggered and payments being made was in respect of the most recent period of below-freezing temperatures when the payment has been made (a) manually and (b) automatically. [249446]

Kitty Ussher: The information is not available in the requested form.

Triggers based on recorded periods of seven consecutive days are notified on the day after the last day of the recorded period. Triggers based on forecast periods of seven consecutive days are notified on the first day of the forecast period. (This holds except when a trigger would be notified on a Saturday or a Sunday, when it is actually notified on the following Monday.) Payment scans are run at a weekend for triggers notified on the previous Monday to Thursday or on the Friday prior to that. Scan payments into bank accounts should arrive on the Wednesday after the weekend and cheque payments should be posted on the Monday after the weekend. Thus scan payments into bank accounts should arrive seven to 13 days after the temperature criterion has been met. Payments made clerically are not made as quickly as payments which can be made automatically. Information is not available on the split between payments into bank accounts and cheque payments, or on the time taken to process clerical payments, so the two questions cannot be answered.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people held in (a) Rampton, (b) Broadmoor, (c) Ashworth, (d) Carstairs and (e) Southall hospitals received the winter fuel payment in 2008-09. [258835]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not available.

People qualify for a winter fuel payment if, during the qualifying week in September, they are aged 60 or over and normally living in Great Britain or Northern Ireland.

Some groups of people do not qualify for a winter fuel payment. A person will not qualify for a payment if during the qualifying week they were in hospital getting free in-patient treatment and had been getting such treatment for more than 52 weeks or they were in custody serving a sentence imposed by a court.

TREASURY

Bank Services: Identity Theft

Jim Dowd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the merits of identity theft insurance policies in relation to bank accounts; and what discussions his Department has had on the matter with (a) the Association of British Insurers and (b) the Royal Bank of Scotland. [260390]

Ian Pearson: The Government have established an independent system of financial regulation that works through the Financial Services Authority (FSA), the lead regulator and the Office of Fair Trading. The Treasury is not responsible for the merits of the design of individual insurance products.

Banks: Directors

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment the Financial Services Authority has made of whether the (a) chief executive, (b) chairman and (c) board members of each bank in receipt of public money meet the fit and proper person test. [256984]

Ian Pearson: The Financial Services Authority (FSA) is an independent non-governmental body, given statutory powers by the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (FSMA). FSMA requires that persons carrying on certain controlled functions within an FSA authorised firm hold "approved person" status (including the "governing" functions such as executive director, non-executive director and CEO).

Details of the regime and processes applied to assessing the fitness and propriety of a person to perform a particular controlled function can be found on the FSA's website at:

http://www.fsa.gov.uk/Pages/Doing/Regulated/Approved/persons/index.shtml

In March 2008 the FSA published its "lessons learned" review following the events at Northern Rock. The recommendations can be found at http://www.fsa.gov.uk/pages/Library/Communication/PR/2008/028.shtml and include reference to the need to increase the emphasis on assessing the competence of firms' senior management.

Banks: Regulation

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward legislative proposals to require all financial businesses to register derivatives with the Financial Services Authority. [260406]

Ian Pearson: Section 19 of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 requires that anyone dealing in, or arranging deals in, investments, be authorised by the Financial Services Authority. This includes firms or individuals trading in derivative products. The Government support the industry initiative to clear more credit default swaps through central counterparties (CCPs) and that the regulations for CCPs should be updated.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much has been claimed in reimbursable expenses by special advisers in his Department in 2008-09 to date. [260341]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 1 September 2008, Official Report, column 1477W to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban).

Economic Situation: Canada

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with his Canadian counterpart on the economic downturn. [259996]

Ian Pearson: The Government's immediate priority is to continue to support the economy through these difficult times. As part of that, in addition to its regular monitoring of developments, HM Treasury has regular engagements with other Governments, including Canada, on a range of issues relating to the economy.

Financial Services: Regulation

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what dates (a) he, the Chairman of the Financial Services Authority and the Governor of the Bank of England and (b) their deputies met in their capacity as principals of the tripartite regulatory system between 1997 and 2007. [260583]

Ian Pearson: The three authorities meet at a number of levels under the auspices of the memorandum of understanding (MOU) on a very regular basis. As a matter of course, we do not comment on meetings of the Standing Committee.

Interbank Lending Scheme

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the value of lending guaranteed by the Interbank Lending Scheme is. [256181]

Ian Pearson: On 8 October 2008, the Government announced, as part of a comprehensive package of measures, the Credit Guarantee Scheme. The scheme took effect on 13 October and assists eligible institutions in refinancing maturing wholesale funding. Banks have drawn down some £100 billion of guarantees.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to reply to the letter from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton of 15 January 2009 on Mr. K. Williams. [260399]

Ian Pearson: A reply has been sent to the right hon. Member.

Mortgages: Repossession Orders

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps the Government are taking to discourage banks from repossessing homes of people in mortgage arrears. [257987]

Ian Pearson: The Government introduced FSA regulation of mortgages in 2004. The FSA's regime provides important protections for borrowers. It requires lenders to treat their customers fairly, and to treat repossession as a last resort.

FSA regulation is supported by the new mortgage pre-action protocol introduced in November 2008. This sets out clear guidance on what actions the courts expect lenders to take before bringing a claim in the courts, to help ensure that repossessions are a last resort and that lenders have tried to discuss and agree other alternatives with the borrower.

Through the new Lending Panel, announced in the 2008 pre-Budget report, the Government are working closely with lenders, consumer groups and regulators to monitor lending and support best practice by lenders. The major lenders on the Lending Panel have committed not to repossess where the owner-occupier is less than three months in arrears.

In December 2008, the Government announced a new Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme, which will enable households that experience a significant and temporary loss of income as a result of the economic downturn to defer a proportion of the interest payments on their mortgage for up to two years. Further details are available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/buyingselling/mortgagesupportscheme/

The Government have also launched a Mortgage Rescue Scheme to help borrowers facing repayment difficulties remain in their homes and this scheme has been extended to include second charge lending. Depending on homeowners' circumstances, local authorities and housing associations can either buy a property and then rent it back to them, or buy a share of the property to reduce the household's overall mortgage costs. More information is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/buyingselling/mortgagerescuemeasures/

National Debt

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his policy is on the maximum amount of public debt which should be permitted as a percentage of gross domestic product. [259881]

Yvette Cooper: The Government set out their policy on public debt in paragraphs 3.20 to 3.23 of the Government's Fiscal Framework, published alongside the 2008 pre-Budget report. This document is available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/prebud_pbr08_fiscalframework.htm

Royal Bank of Scotland: Bank Services

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what instructions his Department has given to the Royal Bank of Scotland in relation to loan requests made by small and medium-sized businesses to cover bad debt. [256868]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 23 February 2009]: Under the recapitalisation scheme announced last October, the Government have invested £19.97 billion in RBS. As part of their investment, the Government have agreed a range of commitments with RBS, including its restoring and maintaining the availability and active marketing of competitively priced lending to SMEs, at a level at least equivalent to that of 2007, until the end of 2011.

On 26 February, RBS announced its intention to participate in the Government's Asset Protection Scheme. As part of its agreement with the Government, RBS will increase its lending to businesses by £16 billion in 2009.

The Government's shareholdings in the banks supported by the recapitalisation scheme are managed on a commercial basis by an arm's length company, UK Financial Investments Ltd. (UKFI). UKFI's objective is to protect and create value for the taxpayer as shareholder with due regard to the maintenance of financial stability and to act in a way that promotes competition.

Royal Bank of Scotland: Sponsorship

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what role the directors of the Royal Bank of Scotland who are appointed by UK Financial Investments Ltd. have had in determining the bank's budget for sport sponsorship in 2009. [260461]

Ian Pearson: UK Financial Investments (UKFI) is the body set up to manage the Treasury's shareholding in recapitalised banks.

As part of the recapitalisation scheme, UKFI has the right to agree with RBS management the appointment of new independent non-executive directors.

The directors will serve on the RBS board, and as part of this, share with other directors responsibility for major strategic and operating decisions—including decisions on sponsorship spending.

UK Financial Investments

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many shares in (a) Lloyds TSB, (b) HBOS and (c) the Royal Bank of Scotland were taken up by UK Financial Investments; and at what price. [249912]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer my hon. Friend the Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury (Angela Eagle) gave the hon. Member for Wellingborough (Mr. Bone) on 12 February 2009, Official Report, columns 2142-43W.

UK Financial Investments: Manpower

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many people employed by UK Financial Investments Ltd. are former employees of his Department; [260375]

(2) how many people are employed by UK Financial Investments Ltd. [260456]

Ian Pearson: UK Financial Investments Ltd. is not part of the civil service, but a small number of civil servants (around five) are expected to be seconded into it. Total staffing is currently expected to be around 15.

The Solicitor-General: 100 per cent. of the IT systems are fully accredited to the Government's security standards.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Solicitor-General on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in the Law Officers' Departments have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249136]

The Solicitor-General: None

No payments were made in respect of congestion charge fines.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Public Inquiries: Costs

7. Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse to date of all public inquiries taking place in Northern Ireland. [259272]

Mr. Woodward: The Bloody Sunday inquiry is expected to cost a total of £190 million, including costs incurred by the Ministry of Defence. The Hamill, Wright and Nelson Inquiries are expected to cost a combined total of £117 million. The total cost to the end of January 2009 of all four public inquiries is £267 million, of which 70 per cent. of those costs relate to the Bloody Sunday Inquiry.

11. James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost of payments made to legal firms used by public inquiries taking place in Northern Ireland for which his Department is responsible has been to date. [259276]

Mr. Woodward: £127 million has been paid to all legal representatives for work in relation to the ongoing public inquiries. Almost £100 million of this relates to the Bloody Sunday inquiry, including costs incurred by the Ministry of Defence.

Lessons were learned from the experience of the Bloody Sunday inquiry. For the Hamill, Wright and Nelson inquiries, caps on lawyers' hourly fees and the number of hours they could claim were imposed at the outset.

Paramilitary Organisations

8. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of current levels of activity of paramilitary organisations in Northern Ireland. [259273]

Mr. Woodward: Dissident republican activity remains at a very high level. They remain determined to kill or injure police officers and have a reckless disregard for public safety. In relation to loyalists, this House has sent a very strong message that they have one last opportunity to decommission.

Republican Paramilitary Groups

9. Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of links between dissident republican groups and drug-related crime in Northern Ireland. [259274]

Paul Goggins: The IMC has confirmed that dissident republican groups are involved in drug-related crime. The PSNI will continue to work with the other members of the Organised Crime Task Force to disrupt their criminal activities.

Vehicle Excise Duty

10. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on rates of vehicle excise duty evasion in Northern Ireland. [259275]

Paul Goggins: I have had no such discussions as Northern Ireland Office Ministers are not responsible for these matters. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport has responsibility for the registration and licensing of vehicles and the enforcement of vehicle excise duty across the UK.

Consultative Group on the Past

12. Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the recommendations of the Consultative Group on the Past; and if he will make a statement. [259278]

Mr. Woodward: I am reflecting carefully on the proposals, and want to hear a wide range of views before developing the Government's full response.

It is clear that there is no consensus on the recommendation of recognition payments and I have stated that the Government will not be accepting that recommendation. But this was just one of over 30 recommendations and I hope that the other proposals can now receive the careful consideration they deserve.

Saville Inquiry

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what his most recent estimate is of the cost of the Saville inquiry. [259269]

Mr. Woodward: I have taken urgent steps to ensure the remaining running costs of the Bloody Sunday inquiry are kept as low as possible, and a package of measures has been agreed to reduce the projected cost by 20 per cent. over the remaining stages. The final cost of the inquiry is now expected to be in the region of £190 million.

Billy Wright Inquiry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Wright inquiry has spent on security for (a) legal companies and (b) witnesses. [257115]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised that the Billy Wright inquiry has spent £577,000 on security to the end of January 2009. There have been no specific costs associated with providing security for either legal teams or witnesses.

Robert Hamill Inquiry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Hamill inquiry has spent on security (a) overall and (b) for (i) legal companies and (ii) witnesses. [257127]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised that the Robert Hamill inquiry has spent £641,000 on security to the end of January 2009. There have been no specific costs associated with providing security for either legal companies or witnesses.

Rosemary Nelson Inquiry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Nelson inquiry has spent on security for (a) legal companies and (b) witnesses. [257107]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised that the Rosemary Nelson inquiry has spent £957,000 on security to the end of January 2009. There have been no specific costs associated with providing security for either legal teams or witnesses.

Royal Ulster Constabulary: Reserve Forces

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will bring forward proposals formally to recognise the work of part-time reserve officers of the Royal Ulster Constabulary. [259270]

Paul Goggins: Service within the PTR is already recognised in a number of ways:

unlike special constables in GB, the part-time reserve are paid, in recognition of the special circumstances in which they operate in Northern Ireland;

PTR are awarded the long service medal after 15 years' service;

the specific conditions in Northern Ireland have been recognised by payment of a NI transitional allowance to all police officers from 1974, including the PTR on a 'pro rata' basis;

a stakeholder pension scheme was introduced in 2001 to provide pension provisions for all part-time workers. Favourable rates were secured for PTR members; and the Secretary of State recently paid tribute to the men and women of the PTR during a reception at Hillsborough Castle in recognition of the service of members of the Royal Ulster Constabulary Part-Time Reserve on 11 October 2008.

I have sought information and advice from officials on how this Government might make further recognition for the service given by the Part-Time Reserve and I am currently considering this.

Terrorism

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has had made of levels of paramilitary violence in Northern Ireland. [259267]

Paul Goggins: The Chief Constable has made it clear that the dissident republican threat has increased in recent months. Loyalists must continue to make progress and take advantage of the recent extension to the decommissioning legislation.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children under the age of 15 years have been cautioned or arrested for drunken behaviour in (a) North Wiltshire, (b) Wiltshire, (c) London and (d) England in each of the last 10 years. [255328]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Cautions, reprimands and final warnings data are collected centrally at police force area level and are not further broken down. Therefore data for the constituency of North Wiltshire are not available.

The number of persons aged under 15-years issued with a caution for offences of drunkenness in the Wiltshire police force area, the Metropolitan police force area (including the City of London) and England, from 1998 to 2007, are given in the following table.

Number of persons aged under 15-years cautioned[1] for offences of drunkenness, by area, 1998 to 2007[2, 3, 4]

	Wiltshire police force area	Metropolitan police force area[5]	England
1998	2		44
1999	3		24
2000[6]		6	30
2001		5	19
2002		2	8
2003		5	17
2004		1	30
2005			18
2006			14
2007			8

[1] From 1 June 2000 the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. These figures have been included in the totals.
[2] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when these data are used.
[4] Includes the following statutes and corresponding offence descriptions:
Licensing Act 1872 s.12
Being found drunk in a highway or other public place
Sporting Events (Control of Alcohol etc) Act 1985 ss.1(4) and 1A(4)
Drunk on a vehicle
Sporting Events (Control of Alcohol etc) Act 1985 s.2(2)
Drunk in, or when entering, a designated sports event
Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s.12
Alcohol consumption in designated public places
Offences against similar provisions in Local Acts
[5] Includes the City of London police force area.
[6] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

Alternatives to Prison

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment her Department has made of the effectiveness of community service alternatives to prison sentences in reducing rates of re-offending; and if she will make a statement. [259560]

Mr. Hanson: I have been asked to reply.

The following table shows the latest re-offending figures for people who were released from a custodial sentence, or commenced a court order under probation supervision, between 1 January 2006 and 31 March 2006. The table shows the number of offenders in the cohort, the proportion of offenders that committed at least one further offence and the number of further offences committed per 100 offenders.

	Number of offenders	Actual re-offending rate	Number of offences per 100 offenders
Court Orders[1]	36,777	36.1	121.7
Custody	14,380	46.5	208.4

[1] Court orders include pre-CJA 2003 community sentences, new community orders and suspended sentence orders.

These statistics should not be compared to assess the effectiveness of sentences as there is no control for known differences in offender characteristics. There are known differences between characteristics of these two groups of offender which may affect the choice of disposal, such as number of previous offences.

For a time series, and more detailed breakdown of the aforementioned table, please see table A5 in the publication Re-offending of Adults: results of the 2006 cohort:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/reoffendingofadults.htm

The Government want community sentences to be tough, effective and visible. Part of this programme of work has been creating seven Intensive Alternatives to Custody (IAC) demonstrator projects, which provide intensively delivered and supervised community sentence options to courts as an alternative to short-term custody. These projects were announced by the Justice Secretary on 5 December 2007 and the first project commenced operations in March 2008. The seven projects will run for three years and will be subject to a rigorous evaluation to be delivered in 2011.

Antisocial Behaviour: Fixed Penalties

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many enhanced disclosures issued by the Criminal Records Bureau have disclosed penalty notices for disorder. [260068]

Meg Hillier: The Criminal Records Bureau does not hold this information.

Asylum

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many local authorities had signed up to take part in the Gateway refugee programme on 31 January 2009. [260096]

Meg Hillier: There are 15 local authorities currently participating in the Gateway protection programme.

Crime Prevention: International Cooperation

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps she has taken to (a) monitor compliance with those United Nations conventions on drug control which have been ratified by the UK and (b) assist the work of the International Narcotics Control Board. [256804]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The UK has ratified three United Nations conventions on drug control—the 1961 single convention on narcotic drugs, the 1971 convention on psychotropic substances and the 1988 convention against the illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances. The 1961 and 1971 conventions form the basis of drug control in the UK and are given effect through the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971. Compliance with the UN conventions is, therefore, an ongoing process through the daily operation of the 1971 Act and its subordinate legislation. As custodian of the UN conventions, the Home Office supports the work of the International Narcotics Control Board by supplying manufacturing and transaction data and ensuring industry adherence to the statutory controls, both national and international, through a system of vetting and licensing of those companies involved in the manufacture and trade of controlled substances.

Crimes of Violence: Football

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she plans to take to reduce violence by spectators at football matches. [247946]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Serious violence at football matches is now extremely rare compared to the period between 1970 and 2000. On average there is just one arrest in connection with football matches played in England and Wales; and that covers arrests at any place within 24 hours either side of a match.

The English and Welsh football strategy for minimising football safety and security risks introduced after Euro 2000 has proven to be very successful. The strategy is based upon effective partnerships between Government, police, football authorities and supporter groups and on the concept of isolating risk fans whilst empowering the overwhelming majority of fans to take responsibility for their actions and self-police.

The football banning order arrangements introduced in 2000 continue to be a highly effective cornerstone of the strategy and an important means for excluding known risk fans and deterring misbehaviour amongst the rest. The orders have proven to be a highly successful rehabilitative measure with around 94 per cent. of individuals whose orders have expired being assessed by police as no longer posing a risk of football disorder.

The strategy is now universally recognised as the best in the world and is being replicated around the globe. However, there can and will be no complacency.

Customs Officers: Manpower

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many front-line customs officers work at each port on the UK border. [260091]

Mr. Woolas: Through intelligence-led and risk-based interventions by flexible and mobile teams the UK Border Agency aims to maintain a permanent cover of all points of entry into the UK.

Nationally there are approximately 4,500 front line customs officers that are now part of the UK Border Agency.

More detailed information cannot be disclosed as this would provide information of value to those seeking to circumvent the controls, thereby prejudicing the prevention and detection of crime.

Departmental Consultants

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost of her Department's contracts with management consultants was in each of the last five years. [251372]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Department engages consultancy firms to support and augment civil servants in the delivery of a wide range of work, including large IT development programmes and, where more cost effective, longer-term service delivery programmes.

The Department's expenditure on these services is consequently allocated across a wide range of firms, from small, specialist companies with niche expertise and few employees, to global multinational organisations offering a broad spectrum and substantial depth of consultancy expertise.

The Department's policy seeks to award contracts in competition according to the EU Procurement Directives based on value for money.

The Department uses OGC framework agreements where appropriate. The use of external consultants provides the Department with specialist knowledge, skill, capacity and technical expertise that would not otherwise be available.

We are able to provide figures for consultancy expenditure for the previous three complete financial years. Owing to an accounting systems change prior to that time we are unable to provide equivalent figures for the two earlier years.

The Home Department's expenditure including its executive agencies (United Kingdom Border Agency, Identity and Passport Service and Criminal Records Bureau) rounded to nearest £1 million in the financial years 2005-06, 2006-07, and 2007-08 on consultancy services is set out in the following table.

Table 1

Financial year	Consultancy expenditure (£ million)
2005-06	139
2006-07	148
2007-08	96

Departmental Freedom of Information

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Freedom of Information Act 2000 requests to her Department were refused on the ground of cost in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) January to June 2008. [254922]

Mr. Woolas: Figures for the number of occasions in 2006 and 2007 information has been withheld in full using section 12 of the Freedom of Information Act because the cost of providing a response would exceed the cost limit have been published in the 2006 and 2007 annual reports on the operation of the FOI Act in Central Government.

http://www.justice.gov.uk/docs/foi-annual-report-central-gov-2006.pdf

2007

http://www.justice.gov.uk/docs/foi-report-2007-final-web.pdf

In the period January-June 2008 the number of request received and refused on grounds of cost was 124.

Departmental Work Experience

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals have worked in her Department on (a) paid and (b) unpaid work experience or internships in each of the last three years; on average how many hours a week were worked by such people in each year; what types of work each was involved in; what proportion were in full-time education; what proportion did not complete their set period of work experience; and how much those who received remuneration were paid on average per week in each year. [242124]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Offers provides around 30 placements annually to graduates and undergraduates from a minority ethnic background and/or a registered disability. They are paid an allowance within the executive officer range.

The information requested on unpaid work experience is not recorded centrally in the Home Office or its agencies. Work experience placements are authorised and organised locally by managers in business units.

Deportation: Offenders

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer given to the hon. Member for Beaconsfield of 20 November 2008, Official Report, column 720W, on deportation: offenders, what progress has been made on (a) the 11 cases where her Department is seeking to deport individuals on grounds of national security because of their suspected involvement in terrorism and (b) the 19 cases where action on national security grounds was commenced but later discontinued. [259167]

Mr. Coaker: Of the 11 cases we are seeking to deport on national security grounds 10 remain at various stages of the deportation and appeals process including the European Court of Human Rights. Deportation proceedings have ceased against one individual as it was considered that such action was no longer appropriate due to the circumstances of the case.

There has been no change in the 19 cases where deportation was discontinued.

Detention Centres

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations she has received from non-governmental organisations on the operation of immigration removal centres in the UK. [259656]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency detention services who are responsible for the operation of the immigration detention estate have not received any recent representations from non-governmental organisations on the operation of removal centres in the UK.

However, quarterly meetings are held between UKBA detention services and representatives from non-governmental organisations under the heading of the detention user group. This forum gives representatives the opportunity to raise any concerns they may have regarding the operation of removal centres and detention in general and for the agency to update them on any operational or policy developments.

Driving Offences

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many motorists were (a) charged with and (b) convicted of (i) failure to accord precedence at pedestrian crossings, (ii) failure to comply with traffic signs, (iii) speeding offences, (iv) driving after consuming alcohol or taking drugs, (v) reckless driving and (vi) driving while disqualified in each police force area in 2007-08. [256693]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Available information held by the Ministry of Justice covering total findings of guilt at all courts, for 2006 and 2007, is provided in tables A-F placed in the House Library.

Data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

Entry Clearances: Overseas Students

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many international students who have been enrolled in courses of longer than four years duration have been granted visas in each of the last five years. [260076]

Mr. Woolas: Figures are as follows:

	Number
2004	6,186
2005	6,482
2006	7,776
2007	6,838
2008	6,971

Foreign Workers: Agriculture

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many migrant workers were employed in agriculture in the UK in each month of each of the last three years. [258818]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated March 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many migrant workers were employed in agriculture in the UK in each month of each of the last three years. (258818)

Reliable estimates for non-UK born people employed in agriculture are not available.

Identity Cards: Airports

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate her Department has made of the number of airside workers in each airport who will be enrolled in the identity card scheme. [258108]

Meg Hillier: The Identity and Passport Service is working closely with Manchester and London city airports to confirm the roll-out approach for identity cards, taking account of the numbers working airside at each airport.

Identity Cards: Domestic Violence

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions her Department has had with organisations representing women who have been victims of domestic violence about the registration of third parties' addresses on national identity cards. [253517]

Meg Hillier: As the cardholder's address will not be held on the identity card it will assist anyone who wishes to assert their identity without revealing their address.

Several different organisations have contributed to discussions on how the Identity and Passport Service will be able to accommodate the needs of vulnerable individuals who want extra assurance that their identity information will be held securely, including groups representing the needs of survivors of domestic violence.

Illegal Immigrants

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had at European level on (a) harmonisation of legislation on family re-unification, (b) medical assistance for illegal migrants and (c) admitting the children of illegal migrants to schools. [259323]

Mr. Woolas: Home Office Ministers have not taken part in any recent discussions at European level on these specific topics. EU legislation on asylum and immigration matters, apart from rights of free movement for EEA nationals and their family members, is subject to the UK's opt-in protocol. We will opt in only if this is consistent with maintaining our frontier controls and in the national interest.

In respect of family reunification, to date the UK has not opted into the Family Reunification Directive. In respect of illegal immigration, I strongly support the principle stated in the European Pact on Migration and Asylum, which calls for illegal migrants to be removed to their countries of origin and transit.

Illegal Immigrants: Deportation

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many illegal immigrants were deported in 2007-08 to each country of origin; what modes of transport were used in relation to each country; how many such people were refused entry to their destination country; and what happened to each such person. [259320]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Office publishes statistics on the number of persons removed and departed voluntarily from the UK, broken down by destination, on a quarterly and annual basis. National statistics on immigration and asylum are placed in the Library of the House and are available from the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html

Statistics covering the fourth quarter of 2008 up to December were published on 24 February.

Enforced removals to all countries are generally undertaken via a combination of scheduled or charter flights.

There are a variety of reasons why a person, during the removals process, may be refused entry to their country of destination. Due to this each case will be handled differently. Generally the person will be returned to the UK and re-enter the removals process.

The number of individuals refused entry to their destination country and what happens to them is not centrally recorded. The information requested could be obtained only by the detailed examination of individual case records at disproportionate cost.

Immigration

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with which countries of origin of migrants the UK has readmission agreements; when each such agreement was signed; and with which countries her Department is negotiating such agreements. [259657]

Mr. Woolas: The UK has always maintained the position that all countries are under an obligation to readmit their own nationals who are removed from another country, independently of readmission agreements. The UK wants to build international alliances to help deliver our policies. A key element of this is to co-operate on migration through bilateral and multilateral relationships with other countries. To this end the UK has formal agreements and informal arrangements with various countries to readmit their nationals.

Only where there is a specific need does the UK seek to negotiate readmission agreements. There is a bilateral readmission agreement in force with Switzerland, signed on 16 December 2005, and we also have another with Algeria which was signed on 11 July 2006. There are currently no negotiations being undertaken for a bilateral readmission agreement with any third country.

The UK also works closely with our European partners in the area of returns. The European Union has its own framework of agreements called European Community Readmission Agreements (ECRA). These are negotiated and signed by the European Commission on behalf of the member states and Ministers decide on the UK's opt-in position to these agreements.

There are 11 European Community readmission agreements which have been signed and are now in force as follows:

Hong Kong signed on—27 November 2002

Macao signed on—13 October 2003

Sri Lanka signed on—4 June 2004

Albania signed on—14 April 2005

Russia signed on—25 May 2006

Ukraine signed on—18 June 2007

Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia signed on—18 September 2007

Serbia signed on—18 September 2007

Montenegro signed on—18 September 2007

Bosnia Herzegovina signed on—18 September 2007

Moldova signed on—10 October 2007

There are also open ECRA mandates with the following countries, but these are at various stages of negotiation and agreements have yet to be signed: China, Pakistan, Algeria, Morocco, Turkey and Georgia. The UK has opted into all ECRAs negotiated so far, and to all negotiating mandates proposed to date.

Immigration: Manpower

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of her Department's front-line immigration staff are working (a) in Calais and (b) in France outside Calais. [260082]

Mr. Woolas: The number of front-line immigration staff working in France as at end of January 2009, stated as full time equivalents, are set out as follows:

Area of France	Number of staff stated as full-time equivalents
Calais	399.15
In France outside Calais	319.80

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many front-line immigration officers are working at each port on the UK border. [260090]

Mr. Woolas: The numbers of immigration officers working within each regional operations area on the UK border are as follows:

Region	Number of front-line immigration staff[1]
North	483.3
South	626.0
Central	477.9
Heathrow	1,112.6
European operations	945.35

Region	Number of front-line immigration staff[1]
Total	3,645.15

[1] Expressed as full-time equivalents.
Includes assistant immigration officers; immigration officers; chief immigration officers, and inspectors.
Note
Figures have been quoted according to regional command, as staff are deployed on a risk-assessed, intelligence-led basis to smaller ports within their operational region.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of her Department's front-line immigration staff are working in Belgium. [260097]

Mr. Woolas: The number of front-line immigration staff working in Belgium as at end of January 2009, stated as full-time equivalents, is 30.

In addition to this, UK border force operates a European operations mobile response team, which deploys staff to Zeebrugge and Ostend to conduct vehicle searches and provide assistance with dog patrols, in conjunction with the Belgian federal police.

Migrant Workers

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department is taking to provide information to migrant workers on their employment rights. [259859]

Mr. Woolas: We include information material in the registration pack for accession state workers registering with UKBA. Furthermore, we provide all workers registration scheme and A2 applicants with the TUC booklet "Working in the UK" explaining their rights at work.

The employment pages of the UKBA website provide useful links to relevant material including the TUC booklet.

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what cars are (a) owned, (b) leased, (c) hired and (d) otherwise regularly used by her Department, broken down by cubic capacity of engine. [250144]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Hoon) on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W, about cars provided by the Government Car and Despatch Agency.

The Home Department and its Executive Agencies operates other official cars and details of these are provided in the following table broken down by cubic capacity of engine.

Organised Crime

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been charged with criminal offences as a result of investigations conducted by the Serious Organised Crime Agency in (a) 2006-07, (b) 2007-08 and (c) the first six months of this financial year. [255275]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information is as follows:

(a) The 2006-07 annual report stated that SOCA casework in the UK led to 749 arrests, 283 cases reaching court and 271 convictions. Data on the number of individuals charged for that period are not available.

(b) In 2007-08, 345 people were charged in the UK as a result of SOCA casework.

(c) The figures for the first six months of 2008-09 are subject to internal validation and will be finalised at the end of the current financial year.

Police: Demonstrations

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her estimate is of the number of police hours spent on policing public protests in the last 12 months; and how much of the policing budget was allocated for such work in 2008-09. [260283]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not hold data on number of police hours spent on policing public protests or a breakdown of police budgets dedicated to such work.

Police: Manpower

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) police officers and (b) police community support officers there were in each London local authority area in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2008-09; and what the total strength of the Metropolitan police service was in each of those years. [259931]

Mr. Coaker: Police personnel statistics are collected by police force area and not by local authority. However, there are strength data available at basic command unit level, which within London equates with local authority, from 2002-03 onwards.

There were 26,667 full-time equivalent police officers working for the Metropolitan police and 859 working for City of London police as at 31 March 1997. Police community support officers were not introduced until 2002-03. Data for the current financial year will not be published until July 2009. Police service strength data for 2007-08 can be found at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/hosb0808.pdf

and supplementary tables for strength at BCU level at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/hosb0808add_tab.xls

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers are working at each port of entry on the UK border. [260085]

Mr. Coaker: Police personnel statistics are not collected within the Home Office by UK ports, but rather by police force authorities in England and Wales only. Following consultation with ACPO, data regarding police officers whose primary function is "ports" are, under section 31 (Law Enforcement) of the Freedom of Information Act, withheld from the public domain as disclosure may be likely to prejudice the prevention or detection of crime.

Reoffenders: Crime Prevention

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of the effectiveness of (a) secure remand and (b) tagging in reducing re-offending rates. [259556]

Mr. Hanson: I have been asked to reply.

To our knowledge no estimates have been made on the impact of secure remand. There is little evidence available on the impact of tagging in reducing re-offending rates.

In a 2006 House of Commons Committee of Public Accounts report this lack of evidence in relation to the effectiveness of Home Detention Curfew (HDC) was highlighted and a request for further research made. As a result of this a feasibility study on assessing the effectiveness of HDC was commissioned to the London School of Economics and research using existing administrative data has now been conducted. Publication of the report is expected by mid-2009.

Research carried out for the Home Office and published in 2001 showed a difference in re-offending rates within six months of release between those released on HDC compared with those not given HDC. However this was not determined to prove that HDC reduced re-offending but that the risk assessment process was effective. The results of the most recent research mentioned above will provide an important contribution to our knowledge of the impact of HDC.

Telecommunications: Databases

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1630W, on telecommunications: databases, what her most recent estimate is of the cost of the Interception Modernisation Programme to the nearest billion pounds. [258582]

Mr. Coaker: The IMP will require a substantial level of investment which will need to tie in with the Government's three-year CSR periods. The scale of overall economic investment is very difficult to calculate because of the complexity of the programme and wide-ranging implementation solutions currently being considered. Further detail on budgetary estimates for the IMP will however become available once the public consultation process (announced by the Home Secretary on 15 October 2008) commences.

Telephone Services: Commuters

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what estimate has been made of the cost of providing a personal telephone line for commuters to call to be told their safest route home over the next five years; and how much would be spent on (a) staff costs, (b) IT costs and (c) advertising; [254599]

(2) what estimate has been made of the number of people who would use a personal telephone line for commuters to call to be told their safest route home over the next five years; [254600]

(3) what IT systems her Department has considered for use in locating callers to a telephone line for commuters to be told their safest route home; [254601]

(4) whether (a) focus groups and (b) polling were used by her Department to assess the proposal of a personal telephone line for commuters to call to be told their safest route home. [254602]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office has not done any work to develop a personal telephone line for commuters to call to be told their safest route home.

UK Border Agency: Inspections

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what work the UK Border Agency chief inspector has undertaken since his appointment; and if she will make a statement. [260621]

Mr. Woolas: Since his appointment the independent chief inspector has been undertaking a wide range of preparatory work to establish his function. He has recruited around 20 staff and has developed provisional methodology and protocols for his inspections, drawing on best practice from other inspection and regulatory bodies. He has worked with the independent monitor to see the work she undertakes; met key managers in UK Borders Agency and visited a range of operations. He has also engaged with an extensive range of external stakeholders, including welfare groups, other inspectorates, legal bodies, passenger and freight carriers and representatives of foreign Governments. The chief inspector will shortly commence a series of pilot inspections.

Westminster City Council: Finance

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what grants her Department has made to Westminster city council in each year since 2005-06; what sums were awarded; in what category each grant was made; and how much has been allocated for grants in 2009-10. [259755]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Office has made the following grants to Westminster city council.

Grant	Category	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09	£ 2009-10

Young People Substance Misuse Partnership	Resource	588,610	530,176	500,734	142,615	142,615

[1] To be confirmed.

For the former young people substance misuse partnership grant, from 2008-09, the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF), Home Office and the Department of Health agreed to change how their contributions were dispersed to local areas.

Patterns of drug, alcohol and volatile substance use by young people vary greatly from place to place, so the Government moved to a more flexible and local needs-led approach to tackling the problem.

Some of the former young people substance misuse partnership grant is going out to all areas through the area-based grant which is paid on a non-ring fenced basis to allow maximum local flexibility. Other elements are paid to primary care trusts through the pooled treatment budget and to youth offending teams through the Youth Justice Board. These funding arrangements are in place between 2008-09 to 2010-11.

The Home Office allocation to Westminster city council 2008-09 to 2010-11 for this grant is as follows:

Area-Based Grant	142,615
Youth Offending Teams	39,644

The enabling grant is for the London Regional Migration Strategic Partnership. Payments were made via Westminster council who, along with the Greater London authority (GLA), represents the partnership. From 2008-09, payments are being made via the GLA.

The Drug Intervention Programme funding is made up of the main grant of £1,196,447 plus Advance Apprenticeship £5,000 and CJIT funding of £367,027.

There may also be additional grant payments funded by the Home Office that are received by Westminster city council, for instance, tackling violent crime programme grant and partnership performance improvement fund. However, the funding is not direct from the Home Office, but is channelled through Government offices. As such, information on specific allocations or payments made throughout the requested period is not retained by the Home Office.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Bus Services: Concessions

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to measure the number of day visitors to local authority areas in order to facilitate the provision of funding for concessionary bus fares through Formula Grant. [259596]

John Healey: We use a model to determine the indicator of day visitors within the Environmental, Protective and Cultural Services Relative Needs Formula. There is no consistent reliable source of the number of day visitors to an authority's area.

Cambridge Online Learning

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 17 July 2008, whether the Government Office for Yorkshire and the Humber has completed its investigation into the circumstances of the award of EU Objective 1 funding to Cambridge Online Learning Ltd; and if she will make a statement. [259282]

John Healey: Government office for Yorkshire and the Humber has recently completed its investigation into the award and potential loss of Objective 1 ERDF funds to Cambridge Online. It has concluded that ERDF payments made to Cambridge Online were irregular. Cambridge Online received ERDF payments through a contract with Business Link South Yorkshire. The funds involved have been recovered from Business Link South Yorkshire.

Community Relations: Religion

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding (a) her Department and (b) each Government Office for the Regions has provided to each regional faith community to date. [259528]

Mr. Khan: Face to Face and Side by Side: A framework for partnership in our multi faith society was launched on 21 July 2008, and sets out how, over the next three years, CLG will support a stronger dialogue between people of different faiths and beliefs in every community by encouraging practical inter faith cooperation and collaborative social action.

The practical steps that Government will take to support the delivery of the Framework for Partnership includes a programme of investment over three years in Regional Faith Forums (2008 to 2011) to support and build their capacity and the capacity of local communities.

The following table sets out the amounts which each Regional Faith Forum has received, to date, from CLG or from a Government office.

(a) Faith Forum	2008-09 (total to date) (£)
East	91,362.50
East Midlands	90,000.00
London	86,073.59
North East	107,092.00
North West	0.00
South East	91,550.00
South West	87,958.00
West Midlands	99,798.00
Yorkshire and Humberside	87,000.00

(b) In addition, Government offices have funded Regional Faith Forums, as follows:

	Funds (£)
North East	10,000.00
South East	17,000.00
Yorkshire and Humberside	20,000.00

Eco-Towns: Middle Quinton

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make an assessment of (1) the Middle Quinton Eco-Town Proposals: Independent Viability Assessment commissioned from CB Richard Ellis by the Joint Authorities Eco-Town Working Group of Worcestershire, Warwickshire and Gloucestershire; and if she will make a statement; [260217]

(2) the report by Advantage West Midlands on Economic Evaluation of the Middle Quinton Eco-Town Proposal commissioned by the Joint Authorities Eco-Town Working Group of Worcestershire, Warwickshire and Gloucestershire; and if she will make a statement; [260218]

(3) the review by Colliers CRE of the Initial Retail Capacity Assessment of the Middle Quinton Eco-Town proposal commissioned by the Joint Authorities Eco-Town Working Group of Worcestershire, Warwickshire and Gloucestershire; and if she will make a statement; [260219]

(4) the report by Ove Arup and Partners on Middle Quinton Eco-Town: Review of Strategic Transport Assessment commissioned by the Joint Authorities Eco-Town Working Group of Worcestershire, Warwickshire and Gloucestershire; and if she will make a statement. [260220]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 3 March 2009]: I welcome the additional technical assessment reports that have been commissioned by local councils in the locations of the shortlisted eco-towns, including Middle Quinton. Together with the consultation documents, which I published on 4 November 2008, and the financial viability study, which I expect to publish shortly, these reports and similar material in other localities will help to inform the responses of local councils, and others to the second stage consultation. This will provide us with a good base upon which to make our decisions on those locations with potential to be an eco-town and which should be included in the Eco-towns Planning Policy Statement. We have also extended the consultation deadline until 30 April to ensure that all parties, irrespective of their views, are given the full opportunity to have their say.

Audit Commission

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Audit Commission charged each fire and rescue authority in each region in (a) value added tax, (b) fixed element fees, (c) fees based on gross expenditure and (d) total in respect of audit fees in each year since 2003. [259568]

John Healey: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission and I have asked the Chief Executive of the Audit Commission to write to the hon. Member direct.

Letter from Steve Bundred:

I have been asked to respond to your Parliamentary Question about how much the Audit Commission has charged each fire and rescue authority in each region since 2003.

It is not possible to provide an analysis of audit fees in the form you have requested. While the statutory scale fee is made up of a fixed element and an element that varies according to gross expenditure, the actual fees charged to each fire and rescue authority may vary from the scale fee, reflecting the auditor's professional assessment of risk and the complexity of the audit.

We cannot provide complete information on Value Added Tax paid, as it is payable on audit fees at the prevailing rate at the time that a fee, or part thereof, is invoiced. We do not hold billing information for the approximately one third of audits where firms are the appointed auditors.

We are currently analysing the information we do hold, so that we can give you as helpful a breakdown as possible of the fees charged. I will write to you again by 6 March, providing this information for the period from 2003 to 2007. Audit fees for 2007/08 audits will only be finalised when it is clear that all audit work for that financial year has been completed, when all variations from the scale fee will need to be approved formally by the Commission Board.

A copy of this letter will be placed in Hansard.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Audit Commission charged each public service in each region in (a) value added tax, (b) fixed element fees, (c) fees based on gross expenditure and (d) total in respect of audit fees in each year since 1997. [259569]

John Healey: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission and I have asked the Chief Executive of the Audit Commission to write to the hon. Member direct.

Letter from Steve Bundred:

I have been asked to respond to your Parliamentary Question about how much the Audit Commission has charged each public service in each region since 1997.

We cannot provide detailed information back to 1997, as we are required to retain financial records for six years only.

The way we have constructed scales of audit fees over the period has varied. In 2000/01 we moved from a per diem, input-based scale to an output based approach, known as 'fee for the audit'.

It is not possible to provide an analysis of audit fees in the form you have requested. While the statutory scale fee is made up of a fixed element and an element that varies according to gross expenditure, the actual fees charged to each audited body may vary from the scale fee, reflecting the auditor's professional assessment of risk and the complexity of the audit.

We cannot provide complete information on Value Added Tax paid, as it is payable on audit fees at the prevailing rate at the time that a fee, or part thereof, is invoiced. We do not hold billing information for the approximately one third of audits where firms are the appointed auditors.

However, we are currently analysing the information we do hold, so that we can give you as helpful a breakdown as possible of the fees charged. I will write to you again with this information by 13 March.

A copy of this letter will be placed in Hansard.

Local Government Finance: Greater London

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the percentage change in the rate support grant settlement for each London local authority in (a) cash and (b) real terms has been since 1990. [259570]

John Healey: It is not possible to provide these data on a like for like (that is, comparable) basis.

The Department only holds data on year-on-year changes in formula grant on a like-for-like basis from 1997-98. This is because it only became necessary to make these calculations when guarantees were introduced to ensure that no authority could lose grant year-on-year on a like-for-like basis.

It is not possible to provide data on the change across the period 1997-98 to date since we do not adjust data earlier than the previous year on a like-for-like basis.

Local Government Services: Essex

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what assessment her Department has made of the likely effects of Transformational Services and Delivery Support, the procurement exercise being proposed by Essex county council, on service delivery; and if she will make a statement; [259956]

(2) what discussions her Department has had with representatives of Essex county council on its proposed Transformational Services and Delivery Support procurement exercise; [259957]

(3) what assessment she has made of the extent to which Essex county council's proposed procurement exercise, Transformational Services and Delivery Support, complies with her Department's guidance on involving the workforce in transfer issues in Best Value contained in Annex C of ODPM circular 2003/03. [259958]

John Healey: Subject to their legal duties, including the duty of Best Value and public procurement law, local authorities are responsible for taking their own procurement decisions. The Department has no plans to assess the likely effects of the procurement exercise being proposed by Essex county council. However, the Department has sought factual background information from the council on its procurement proposals.

In undertaking their procurement activities, local authorities will need to have regard to relevant guidance, including that on workforce matters in ODPM Circular 03/2003 and on Best Value in Creating Strong, Safe and Prosperous Communities: Statutory Guidance (July 2008). Any concerns that a local authority has not achieved best value should be addressed to the auditor in the first instance.

Microgeneration: Planning Permission

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many micro-generation installations on non-domestic buildings required full planning permission in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008. [260602]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 118W, on microgeneration, when she first advised the micro-power industry of plans to consult on the introduction of permitted development rights on the installation of micro-generation units on non-domestic buildings; and if she will make a statement. [260667]

Mr. Iain Wright: Planning applications for the installation of non-domestic micro-generation installations are considered by local planning authorities on a case-by-case basis and information on the number of such installations that required planning permission is not available centrally.

A commitment was made in the White Paper Planning for a Sustainable Future published in May 2007 to review and wherever possible extend permitted development rights on microgeneration to non-renewable uses including commercial and agricultural development. The White Paper also proposed consultation on detailed proposals.

The Killian Pretty Review: Planning applications: A faster and more responsive system published in November 2008 recommended that the Government should consult on the scope for extending permitted development further allowing opportunities for small-scale renewable facilities on non-domestic buildings and land.

The answer given by my hon. Friend, the Member for Tooting, (Mr. Khan) given on 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 118W stated that we aim to consult on proposals this summer.

Roads: Canvey Island

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make an assessment of the effects on (a) socio-economic development, (b) regeneration and (c) traffic flow of the Roscommon Way Extension, Canvey Island Phase I; and what assessment she has made of progress on Phase II. [259640]

Margaret Beckett: A planning application for Roscommon Way Extension with a full environmental impact assessment has been submitted to Essex county council. It would not be appropriate for CLG to review at this time. CLG has thus made no assessment on the progress on Phase II.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to reply to Question 257080, on the proposed Middle Quinton eco-town, tabled on 10 February 2009. [261215]

Margaret Beckett: I replied to the hon. Member's Question on 2 March 2009, Official Report, column 1227W.

Zero Carbon Delivery Unit

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding has been allocated to the zero-carbon hub since its inception. [260668]

Mr. Iain Wright: Budget 2008 announced that the Government would provide pump-priming funding for a new delivery unit to guide, monitor and coordinate the zero-carbon homes programme. The Zero Carbon Hub, a company limited by guarantee, was launched in June 2008 to take on this role and is now fully functioning. In 2008-09, the Department has agreed to allocate up to £500,000 to the Zero Carbon Hub on a match funding basis and subject to a satisfactory business plan.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Africa: Overseas Aid

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of state for International Development what recent steps the Government has taken to support humanitarian relief in Africa. [260313]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UK Government provided £205 million in Africa for humanitarian relief in the financial year 2007-08. Further details on the Department for International Development's (DFID) humanitarian strategy in Africa can be obtained from the Department for International Development publication "DFID Humanitarian Allocations in Africa 2007/2008" which is available in the publications section of the DFID website:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/pubs/files/2007-8-Africa-humanitarian-spend-analysis.pdf

Asia: Development Aid

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the Government has taken to support developing countries in Asia in the last 12 months. [260314]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) provided around £930 million in bilateral aid to Asia during 2007-08. Between 2008-11, UK bilateral aid will grow by over 13 per cent. This assistance is targeted at the public service agreement (PSA) countries in Asia—Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Cambodia, India, Nepal, Pakistan, Vietnam, and to a lesser extent the Non PSA countries, Burma, China, Indonesia. We also make a contribution through humanitarian assistance and the cross-government conflict prevention pool in Sri Lanka.

Examples include the following:

In India, home to a third of the world poor, DFID is providing £410 million for education between 2003-10. This has helped to reduce the number of out of school children from 25 million to less than 10 million.

In Nepal £20 million is allocated to the Safe Motherhood Programme during 2004-09 contributing to an almost halving of maternal mortality rates in the country.

In Vietnam DFID support to the national poverty reduction programme has helped half a million people escape poverty, increased school enrolment rates to 90 per cent., helped open 4,000 new primary schools and given 600,000 more people access to clean drinking water.

Further information on DFID's strategy in Asia is available on the DFID website and also in the annual report which is available in the Library of the House and online:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/

Civil Society Challenge Fund

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the (a) longest and (b) mean length of time was for decisions to be made on applications to the Civil Society Challenge Fund in each of the last three funding rounds. [260423]

Mr. Michael Foster: The deadline for submission of full proposals to the Civil Society Challenge Fund (CSCF) is 31 July every year. In order to allow rigorous appraisal of the high numbers of proposals received, guidelines published for the 2006, 2007 and 2008 rounds indicated that applicants would be notified of decisions in the following March (up to 246 days after submission).

In the last three funding rounds, decisions were announced on the following dates:

Round	Date decision was announced
2008	7 April 2008
2007	20 April 2007
2006	3 March 2006

The longest time for decisions to be announced was therefore 266 days in 2007. The mean time for decisions to be announced was 246 days.

Departmental Art Work

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which works of art from the Government Art Collection each Minister in his Department has selected for display in a private office. [259446]

Mr. Michael Foster: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development has the following works of art from the Government art collection on display in his private office: 'Zoom' by Richard Smith;

'Composition of Figures' by Robert Medley; 'Night Dreams' by John Reginald Brunsdon; and 'Untitled' by John Hoyland.

No other Ministers at the Department for International Development (DFID) have artwork from the Government Art Collection on display in their private offices.

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the (a) salary and (b) other costs of employment were for the Communications Officer provided for his Department to support the Sudan Darfur—Darfur Dialogue and Consultation by Coffey International Development Ltd in 2008. [259465]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The post of communications officer to support the Darfur Darfur dialogue and consultation (DDDC) is provided through a Framework Agreement between the Department for International Development (DFID) and Coffey International (Coffey) and was awarded following competition. As the communications officer is an employee of Coffey, rather than DFID, DFID does not hold details of the officer's salary or other employee remunerations. DFID pays Coffey a fee rate of £795 per day, as set out in the Framework Agreement.

Departmental Disclosure of Information

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) how often he plans to aggregate data from his Department's country office template reports to provide an overall analysis of expenditure on HIV and related issues; [260478]

(2) whether data from his Department's country office template reports will be made publicly available. [260479]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In December 2008, the UK Government released a document on monitoring performance and evaluating impact which sets out how progress against the commitments in "Achieving Universal Access" will be assessed and reported. The Government will publish biennial reports over the seven-year lifetime of the strategy which will ensure transparency and accountability for its implementation. This document can be found on the Department for International Development (DFID) website, http://www.dfid.gov.uk/news/files/12919_Evaluating_Aids_6th.pdf.

The biennial reports will present and analyse data from a series of templates, primarily focusing on our efforts at country level, but also on our wider efforts and in the context of global progress.

Departmental Film

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on what dates and on which channels the Nile Basin Documentary Film produced by Wild Dog Ltd with funding from his Department has been broadcast. [259468]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Nile Basin documentary film has not been broadcast to an external audience to date. It was produced for use by the Nile Basin Initiative (a programme of water resource cooperation led by the Nile Basin countries) and for the Nile Basin Discourse (a parallel civil society engagement programme). The film is to be used as part of their broader communications strategy and will be linked with other communication materials.

The Department for International Development (DFID) is contributing funding to both organisations and has encouraged them to strengthen understanding and support for improved management of the Nile's water resources through the media. We are regularly in contact and will continue to support them as they develop their communications.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much has been claimed in reimbursable expenses by special advisers in his Department in 2008-09 to date. [260356]

Mr. Michael Foster: The total amount claimed in expenses by special advisers in the Department for International Development (DFID) for financial year 2008-09 to date is £237.20.

DFID's procedures for reimbursing staff expenses are set out in the staff handbook and are in line with the provisions set out in the Civil Service Management Code. The code can be viewed at:

www.civilservice.gov.uk/iam/codes/csmc/index.asp

Departmental Public Consultations

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many public consultations his Department has conducted in the last 12 months; how long each consultation was open for; how many responses were received in each case; and what the cost of conducting each consultation was. [259567]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has run 22 public consultations on its website during the last 12 months. The consultations were open for at least 12 weeks, as set out in the government guidance on public consultations. Information on responses and expenditure on public consultations is not held centrally and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Rail Travel

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on (a) standard and (b) business class rail travel in each of the last three financial years. [259621]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development's (DFID) expenditure on rail travel for the last three financial years is given in the following table.

	Total rail expenditure (£)
2005-06	421,720
2006-07	441,823
2007-08	450,570

Data broken down by class of travel could not be produced without incurring disproportionate cost.

The totals in this table include data on reimbursable rail expenditure claimed by staff which was not previously available.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will place in the Library a copy of the Stakeholder survey—working across Whitehall, produced by PricewaterhouseCoopers for his Department in 2008, reference number 200708205. [259467]

Mr. Michael Foster: A copy of the Department for International Development's (DFID) Stakeholder Survey, carried out by PricewaterhouseCoopers in 2008, will be placed in the Library.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on staff surveys in each of the last five years; and which companies were contracted to carry out the surveys. [260252]

Mr. Michael Foster: Since 2004-05, the Department for International Development (DFID) has carried out six staff surveys. Details are shown in the following table.

	Survey	Provider	Cost (£)
2004-05	Better Balance Audit	Robertson Cooper Ltd.	25,850
2005-06	Management Survey	Internally delivered	n/a
2006-07	Management Survey	Internally delivered	n/a
2007-08	Management Survey	Internally delivered	n/a
2008-09	Better Balance Audit	Robertson Cooper Ltd.	27,000
2008-09	Pulse Survey (under way)	Oxford Policy Management	17,000

1 Budget.

Developing Countries: Climate Change

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much (a) the World Bank, (b) multilateral development banks and (c) other international finance organisations have spent on (i) alternative sources of energy, (ii) energy efficiency and (iii) adaptation to climate change in developing countries in each of the last two years; what proportion of this spending was from funds provided by the UK; and if he will make a statement. [259411]

Mr. Michael Foster: An internationally agreed definition of what constitutes spending on (iii) adaptation to climate change does not currently exist, and the international financial institutions do not have publicly available estimates of their own spending in this area for the last two years. The Department for International Development (DFID) is working with the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) and Development Assistance Committee (DAC) to develop a methodology for collecting statistics from donors on support to adaptation.

DFID does, however, hold the following information on expenditure on (i) alternative sources of energy, and (ii) energy efficiency:

The World Bank Group recently reported $476 million of lending to renewable energy projects, and $1,192 billion to energy efficiency for the year ending 30 June 2008. Disaggregated data are not available for the previous year. Together, this represents 35 per cent. of total World Bank Group energy sector lending for 2008.

The Asian Development Bank's (ADB) investments in alternative sources of energy for the last two years are $121 million in 2007 and $1,152 billion in 2008. ADB's investments in energy efficiency for the last two years are $547 million in 2007 and $547 million in 2008.

The Inter-American Development Bank's (IADB) lending and investments in low carbon programmes, including alternative energy and energy efficiency, totalled $960 million in 2008.

For the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD), data from 2007 (the only year for which we have accurate data) shows that of total energy sector lending of €1,020 billion, 67 per cent. went to 'clean energy' activities, mainly energy efficiency.

It is not possible to state what percentage of spend by the Multilateral Development Banks (MDBs) on clean energy projects is as a result of UK funding. MDB projects are funded through a variety of sources, including funds leveraged through their capital resources and lending and funding through concessional windows like the International Development Association (IDA), to which donors contribute directly.

HIV Infection

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the terms of reference for the cross-departmental working group on HIV/AIDS led by his Department are. [260211]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Cross-Whitehall Working Group on tackling AIDS in the developing world is the main mechanism for cross-departmental work on AIDS. The current terms of reference are as follows:

To support implementation of "Taking Action: "The UK's strategy for tackling HIV and AIDS in the developing world" by HMG by increasing coherence across Government Departments.

To exchange information about policy initiatives and directions related to "Taking Action The UK's strategy for tackling HIV and AIDS in the developing world."

To identify opportunities for closer co-operation across departments to maintain UK and International political momentum, provide briefing, and consider new policy directions.

To link with existing Whitehall co-ordination mechanisms including the Access to Medicines Working Group.

These terms of reference are currently being revised to make explicit the Group's role in monitoring the commitments set out in the UK Government's updated AIDS strategy "Achieving Universal Access" launched in June 2008. It is expected that the revised terms of reference will be agreed at the next meeting of the Cross-Whitehall Working Group on tackling AIDS in the developing world.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the Government has taken to prevent the spread of AIDS-related illnesses in third world countries in the last 12 months. [260315]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In June 2008 the UK Government launched "Achieving Universal Access" the UK's strategy for halting and reversing the spread of HIV in the developing world. This reaffirms the UK's global leadership on AIDS, including through a commitment to spend £6 billion over seven years to 2015 to strengthen health systems and services. This is in addition to the UK Government's long-term commitments of £1 billion (2007-15) to the Global Fund to fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria.

Preventing people from becoming infected with HIV is our best hope of stopping the epidemic and related illnesses. "Achieving Universal Access" sets out how the UK will intensify prevention efforts that have proven to be effective, such as prevention of mother-to-child transmission, family planning and reducing the harm from injecting drug use. The strategy recognises that an effective response to AIDS also requires action outside the health sector. The UK government is therefore committed to a multisectoral response to AIDS that includes action in education, social protection and justice.

"Achieving Universal Access the UK's strategy for halting and reversing the spread of HIV in the developing world" was published on 2 June 2008 and is available on the Department for International Development (DFID) website and in the Library of the House.

Kosovo

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will place in the Library a copy of the Policy note on economic growth and job creation for donor conference, Kosovo commissioned from the University of Manchester in 2008, reference numbers 200808402 and 200808318. [259464]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Policy Note produced by the university of Manchester will be placed in the Library.

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how his Department's aid for reconstruction in Gaza is to be distributed. [259475]

Mr. Michael Foster: At the Sharm el Sheikh conference, the international donor community agreed that aid to Gaza should be delivered in line with core humanitarian principles and through existing international and regional mechanisms. There are established mechanisms for aid delivery in Gaza, such as the United Nations Relief and Works Agency and the European Commission's PEGASE. The UK will continue to use these and also continue to fund non-governmental organisations with staff on the ground to meet immediate humanitarian needs and rebuild critical infrastructure such as homes, schools and hospitals.

On 1 March, the Secretary of State for International Development pledged £30 million for recovery in Gaza. The pledge includes a new £20 million provision and £10 million from the support announced in January. This brings the UK response to the recent conflict in Gaza to £46.8 million. Of this we have already allocated nearly £16 million.

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what reports his Department has received on the number of bombings of civilian hospitals in the Vanni region in Sri Lanka; what assessment his Department has made of the humanitarian impact of these attacks; and if he will make a statement. [260161]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has received public reports from the United Nations (UN) and the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC). Because of the restrictions on access, it is not possible to provide accurate details of the number of bombings. We deplore the reported attacks on hospitals and the other incidents of civilian casualties in Sri Lanka. We have repeatedly called on both the Sri Lankan Government and the separatists to end hostilities, allow full humanitarian access and respect humanitarian law; which prohibits attacks on medical facilities. We applaud and support the work of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) in evacuating some 2,000 wounded civilians but condemn the necessity for doing so.

We have committed £5 million in humanitarian aid to support the relief and protection work of the ICRC, United Nations and other agencies.

Sri Lanka: Politics and Government

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of conditions for civilians in government welfare villages in Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [260155]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has been unable to make our own first-hand assessment because although we have sent humanitarian staff to Sri Lanka for this purpose, the Sri Lankan Government have refused permission for them to travel to the conflict area.

According to secondary sources, the Sri Lankan Government have not provided welfare villages for displaced civilians but transit camps, using buildings such as schools and community centres. Reports indicate that these sites are overcrowded, have a large government military presence and impose very restricted movement. However, it is also reported that their management is now improving, with water, sanitation, food and other necessities being provided.

With other Governments and the United Nations, we have repeatedly pressed the Sri Lankan Government and the separatists to allow unrestricted humanitarian access, to reach an urgent ceasefire and ensure full protection and relief for the civilian population. We have committed £5 million in humanitarian aid to support the protection and relief work of the International Red Cross, the United Nations and other agencies.

St. Helena: Airports

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when the pause on the construction of an airport on the island of St. Helena commenced; when it will finish; what its purpose is; and if he will make a statement. [259193]

Mr. Michael Foster: We announced on 8 December 2008, Official Report, columns WS46-47 that there will be a pause in negotiations over the St. Helena airport contract. We are reviewing whether it is right to proceed with this project in the present difficult economic climate. We will announce the outcome of our considerations as soon as we are able to.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what effect the exchange rate between the euro and sterling has had on the pause currently in force on the construction contract of an airport for the island of St. Helena. [259192]

Mr. Michael Foster: The St. Helena airport tender called for bids in up to four international currencies. The 30 per cent. drop in the value of the UK pound against the euro since the bids were submitted in November 2007 has served to increase the likely out-turn cost of the project.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Civil Servants

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) applicants and (b) posts to available for such applicants there were to join the Civil Service fast stream in each year since 1996-97. [249954]

Mr. Watson: Application and recruitment figures for the Fast Stream as a whole, which consists of the Graduate Fast Stream, the Economist Fast Stream, the Statistician Fast Stream and, since 2007, the Technology in Business Fast Stream, are as follows:

	Applications	Vacancies
1996	11,842	310
1997	10,144	277
1998	9,037	235
1999	9,814	306
2000	14,409	426
2001	11,777	421
2002	14,528	411
2003	20,032	510
2004	8,548	467
2005	12,957	504
2006	13,945	476
2007	13,619	380

Civil Servants: Pensions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether he plans to increase the retirement pension age for the Civil Service pension schemes in line with the planned changes to the state retirement age. [258604]

Mr. Watson: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement made by my hon. Friend the then Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office (Gillian Merron) on 26 July 2007, Official Report, column 105WS, which gave details of the package of Civil Service pension reform. There are no plans to increase the retirement pension age at present. If costs go up at future actuarial valuations, action will be taken to limit the contributions paid by Civil Service employers. This could include increasing the pension age.

Civil Service: Disclosure of Information

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent assessment he has made of the effect of the Public Disclosure Act 1998 on (a) the Civil Service and (b) public authorities. [258594]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

I keep the operation of the Public Interest Disclosure Act under review but have undertaken no specific assessment of its impact on the Civil Service and public authorities.

Departmental Absenteeism

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many staff of his Department were recorded absent for non-medical reasons on (a) 2 February 2009 and (b) 3 February 2009; what estimate he has made of the (i) cost to his Department and (ii) number of working hours lost due to such absence; and what guidance his Department issued to staff in respect of absence on these days. [260473]

Mr. Watson: Guidance was issued to staff that they should follow Cabinet Office policy on dealing with transport domestic emergencies.

Short periods of special leave with pay are authorised and recorded by managers and not held centrally. To obtain this information in relation to 2 and 3 February 2009 would represent a disproportionate cost.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many staff in (a) the Prime Minister's Office and (b) the Leader of the House's Office were disciplined for (i) bullying and (ii) harassment of colleagues in each of the last three years. [254077]

Mr. Watson: It is not the policy of the Cabinet Office to release personal data relating to individual staff. I can confirm that in the period specified, there were fewer than five cases in the Department where staff were disciplined for bullying and harassment of colleagues. It would not be appropriate to provide a further breakdown.

Futurebuilders Fund

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what funding the Cabinet Office has allocated for Futurebuilders in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; [260488]

(2) what recent assessment he has made of the effect of the Recession Action Plan for the Third Sector on the funding of Futurebuilders. [261220]

Kevin Brennan: The Futurebuilders Fund draws down funding from the Cabinet Office when commitments made by the Fund are ready to be disbursed to third sector organisations. The budget allocations made by the Cabinet Office are indicative only, and for transparency, the annual actual and audited expenditure is recorded separately in the Cabinet office Annual Report and Accounts.

The budget allocations for Futurebuilders for 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 are in the following table:

Budget including management charge

	£ million
2008-09	30.26
2009-10	59.96
2010-11	51.28

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether there have been any changes to the Futurebuilders operational budget since the publication of the Government's Recession Action Plan for the Third Sector. [261184]

Kevin Brennan: The operational budget for the Futurebuilders Fund is set out in the contract between the Cabinet Office and Adventure Capital Fund Management, which was signed on 4 February 2008. The Fund Manager is paid a fixed fee for managing the Futurebuilders fund with a small, additional sum to cover contingency and a performance-related bonus. Since the agreement was signed, this has not changed.

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether there have been any changes to the contractual operating terms under which Futurebuilders operate in the last 12 months. [261216]

Kevin Brennan: The contractual operating terms for the Futurebuilders Fund were set out in the contract between the Cabinet Office and Adventure Capital Fund Management, which was signed on 4 February 2008. This contract came into effect on 1 April 2008. Since the original agreement, the contractual operating terms have not changed.

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what changes have been made to the allocation of funding to Futurebuilders since the start of the current comprehensive spending review. [261217]

Kevin Brennan: The Futurebuilders Fund draws down funding from the Cabinet Office when commitments made by the fund are ready to be disbursed to third sector organisations. Due to the time it can take for third sector organisations to become fully investment ready following an in principle commitment from the Futurebuilders Fund, it is often difficult to accurately predict expenditure of the Fund in any given financial year. Budget allocations to the Fund are therefore updated on a regular basis.

For our current indicative budget allocations to the Fund I refer the hon. Member to the answer I have given to parliamentary question number 260488.

Government Departments: Data Protection

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which Government departments have fully implemented the recommendations of the review of data handling procedures in Government; and what recent steps he has taken to set cross-Government standards on the management of information. [260401]

Mr. Watson: Departments have already reported on information risk management and implementation of the Data Handling Report (DHR) requirements in their annual resource accounts and will continue to do so on an annual basis. The DHR stated that a report on information risk and assurance will be placed before Parliament following annual reporting from departments on the 2008-09 financial year. This report will also cover departments' implementation of the recommendations of the DHR and information risk in general. Indications so far are that departments are making good progress, and are focused on completing the implementation of the DHR requirements.

Recent steps taken by my Department include: the rolling-out of a civil service wide e-learning package for all staff on data+security with around 100 different public sector organisations accessing the training to date; the delivery of updated guidance on information risk assessments and reporting procedures; further and ongoing training and development sessions for Senior Information Risk Owners across departments.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Carbon Emissions

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how the funds for protection of the forest environment announced at the UN Conference on Climate Change in Poznan will be allocated; and from which budget the funds will be allocated. [260824]

Joan Ruddock: The contribution comes from the UK's £800 million Environmental Transformation Fund – International Window. The funding will provide support to countries seeking to initiate change towards low carbon emission and climate resilient sustainable forest management. It will help to demonstrate and implement the measures required for a country to reduce overall emissions from forestry and potentially access payments from a future Reduced Emissions from Deforestation and Degradation (REDD) funding mechanism.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what plans he has to commission further research into the use of international financial mechanisms to reduce levels of forest loss. [260825]

Joan Ruddock: It is clear that Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and Degradation (REDD) cannot be financed by public funds and carbon markets alone. There is a strong case for early action and a public-private partnership to mobilise additional funding for REDD.

The Department of Energy and Climate Change and the Department for International Development have commissioned a study to examine the options for financing mechanisms that use public funding to mobilise substantial private investment into sustainable forest management, leading to reduced emissions from deforestation and degradation with environmental and developmental co-benefits. We hope to be able to consult on the outcomes of this in April this year.

Carbon Emissions: EC Action

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the efficacy of the European Union Emissions Trading Scheme in the light of the recession. [259356]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: In the EU carbon market we are currently witnessing lower carbon allowance prices due to a variety of factors including reduced manufacturing output and lower electricity demand. The fall in the price of carbon allowances has also followed the fall in other commodity prices. Allowing carbon allowance prices to reflect these changing market fundamentals is necessary for achieving fixed emissions reductions at least cost as it incentivises participants to change their behaviour accordingly.

The level of environmental ambition of the EU Emissions Trading System (EU ETS) is set by the cap and will not be affected by the price of carbon allowances.

Carbon Emissions: Research

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has (a) evaluated and (b) commissioned on the volume of carbon dioxide emitted from processes involving the use of indigenous deep-mined coal compared to similar processes involving the use of tar sands, shale and other unconventional oils. [247399]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Government agrees with the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change in its Fourth Assessment Report which shows that the emissions associated with extraction and conversion of these unconventional sources of energy are several times those associated with conventional sources of oil per unit of energy produced. The Government have not made an assessment of the volumes of carbon dioxide produced by processes involving unconventional sources of oil compared with indigenous coal.

Climate Change: Indonesia

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what funding he has allocated to the work of the UK-Indonesia Working Group on Environment and Climate Change (WGECC); when and where the group will next meet; and which UK organisations will participate in the WGECC. [260021]

Joan Ruddock: A joint MoU (DECC/DEFRA with the Indonesian Environment Ministry) establishing the WGECC was signed in Poznan in December 2008. The first meeting of the WGECC is due to take place in April in London. There will be UK representatives from DECC, DEFRA, DFID, FCO, DFT, and UKTI.

Funds have not yet been allocated to the work of the WGECC as a work programme is yet to be agreed. April's meeting will consider the shape of the work programme and help to identify funding requirements.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public has been since it was established. [251434]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of departments in replying to Members' correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

With respect to correspondence from members of the public, this information cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate costs. The Department does however aim to respond to all written correspondence within 15 working days.

Statistics on the handling of letters from members of the public are published in the DEFRA annual report which will be available later in the year.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will make it his policy for his Department to sign the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258950]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Government welcomed the Promise as a commendable initiative to raise awareness of the importance of effective data protection safeguards, particularly for those organisations with no similar commitments already in place.

The Government take data protection very seriously. Following the Cabinet Office Review of Data Handling Procedures in Government, Departments have implemented a raft of measures to improve data security.

The Ministry of Justice is considering actively with the ICO how the Promise might add additional value to those measures we have already signed up to. These include the Information Charters, the recommendations of the Data Handling Review and the Thomas/Walport Review and, of course, our legal obligations under the Data Protection Act and other legislation and regulations.

Departmental Responsibilities

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when his Department will publish its corporate plan. [255163]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: No decision has yet been made about this.

Electricity

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many homes were without electricity supply for a period of more than four hours during January 2009. [259498]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State does not collect detailed data on supply interruptions which would enable numbers of electricity customers interrupted for more than four hours to be calculated on a monthly basis. Existing statutory reporting requirements relate only to major interruptions and not to all interruptions.

Distribution Network Operators will, however, report interruptions data for the 2008-09 regulatory year to Ofgem on 30 April 2009.

Energy: Meters

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will place in the Library of the House a copy of the minutes of each meeting held by officials in his Department at which smart meters have been discussed since the creation of his Department. [255847]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Officials have met a wide range of individuals and organisations to discuss smart metering issues, including energy supply companies, network operating companies, trade union representatives, metering businesses, environmental and consumer organisations and others with an interest in smart meter roll-out.

I do not intend to place records of the meetings in the Libraries of the House. There would be disproportionate costs involved, for instance in the clearance of such records with the relevant individuals and organisations.

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what (a) organisations and (b) individuals, officials in his Department have met to discuss smart meters since his Department's inception. [255992]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Officials have met numerous organisations and individuals to discuss smart metering issues, including energy supply companies, network operating companies, trade union representatives, metering businesses, environmental and consumer organisations and others with an interest in smart meter roll-out.

Energy: Supply

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent estimate he has made of the effect of the economic downturn on UK energy demand. [255218]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: National Grid estimates that current electricity demands are approximately 2 gigawatt's lower than they would expect under similar weather conditions but with last winter's usage patterns. It expects that over the summer the demand reduction will continue, and are forecasting electricity demand about 1.3 gigawatt's lower than last summer's.

National Grid believes gas demand from industrial, commercial and domestic customers has seen a significant downturn since the start of winter, when compared with the same period last year assuming normal weather conditions. However, growth in power generation and exports to mainland Europe have resulted in the same overall level of demand as last winter.

The Department estimates that in the three months to December 2008 petrol demand fell by 6 per cent. and diesel demand by 5 per cent. when compared with the previous year.

It is not known how much of the change in energy demand is due solely to the economic downturn.

Environmental Transformation Fund

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the revenue source of the Environmental Transformation Fund is. [256621]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 12 February 2009]: As announced in the 2007 Budget the Environmental Transformation Fund is funded equally from the Department for International Development and my Department's budgets. Prior to DECC's creation, funding was supplied by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs. Decisions on how much to allocate to departmental budgets are made at spending reviews.

Housing: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Charles Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department has awarded under Phase 2 of the Low Carbon Buildings programme in each quarter since it was established. [258456]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Under the Low Carbon Buildings programme Phase 2 the following amount of money was committed in each quarter since the programme was established:

Quarterly commitment for LCBP2

	Committed rate (takes account of withdrawn projects)	Grant committed (cumulative)
November-December 2006	–	–
January-March 2007	119,290	119,290
April-June 2007	1,644,850	1,764,140
July-September 2007	2,253,115	4,017,255
October-December 2007	2,250,882	6,268,137
January-March 2008	2,768,237	9,036,374
April-June 2008	3,299,059	12,335,433
July-September 2008	4,819,009	17,154,442
October-December 2008	5,857,419	23,011,862
January 2009	3,429,338	26,441,200

Mr. Charles Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department has awarded to microgeneration of heat and electricity projects under Phase 2 of the Low Carbon Buildings programme, broken down by specific technologies supported. [258457]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: To date under Phase 2 of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme the total of £26,441,200 was allocated to 1,324 projects broken down by technologies as follows:

Heat
Solar thermal	2,789,912
Ground source heat pumps	2,591,002
Biomass	390,139
Total	5,771,053
Electricity
Photovoltaic	19,547,780
Wind turbines	1,122,367
Total	20,670,147

Industrial Diseases: Compensation

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many addresses his Department has provided to the Legal Complaints Service in order to advise claimants under the Coal Health Compensation Scheme about their ability to complain about double charging by solicitors; and how many such addresses his Department holds. [253320]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department provided 3,651 living claimant addresses from the Rother Valley constituency to the Legal Complaints Service (LCS) in July 2007, following which each individual claimant was written to and invited to attend an information session headed by my right hon. Friend the Member for Rother Valley (Mr. Barron).

Since then, the LCS has amended its approach to taking this work forward and has reached agreement with some solicitors, representing a large proportion of all claimants under the Coal Health Compensation Schemes, for them to write directly to their clients explaining how they can seek redress. The Department may need to provide further data in future to enable the LCS to contact claimants whose solicitors do not agree to follow the LCS' preferred approach and arrangements for this are under discussion.

The Department holds the addresses of 588,739 claimants under the schemes and any requests for the disclosure of such personal data are considered in accordance with the provisions of the Data Protection Act 1998 and the requirement for enhanced data security given the personal data involved.

Microgeneration

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has commissioned into the effectiveness of (a) ground and (b) air source heat pumps. [257586]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Energy Saving Trust is currently undertaking the first-of-its kind field trial of heat pumps in the UK with support from DECC and other stakeholders. The trial is measuring the in-situ performance of 80 ground and air-source heat pumps installed in domestic properties. The field trial was launched in 2008 after extensive consultation with relevant stakeholders in government, industry, and academia. The project will collect data for one calendar year from all sites. The trials are due to report in January 2010 and we look forward to the results.

Natural Gas

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps his Department is taking to increase the capacity of storage facilities for gas. [259588]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Government are working to facilitate new gas storage projects by implementing the reforms to the consents procedures under the Energy and Planning Acts 2008. National Grid's recent "10 Year Statement" identifies 17 commercial gas storage projects in various stages of development. A further major project has also recently been announced. If all these projects go ahead GB's gas storage capacity could increase to some 20 per cent. of current annual demand levels by around 2020.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what proportion of domestic gas consumption was obtained from domestic sources in each of the last 15 years; and if he will make a statement. [259589]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Because the UK's gas consumption needs are met by domestic production, imports (net of exports) and changes in gas stocks it is not possible to identify the exact proportion of domestic production physically consumed in the UK. Given the complexities a simplified measure is shown in the following table. This shows the UK's dependence on imported gas over 15 years to 2008. A negative net import figure means the UK was a net exporter of gas. The final column shows that between the years 1996 and 2003 (inclusive) the UK was self-sufficient in gas.

	Gas available for consumption in the UK (TWh)	UK net imports (TWh)	UK net imports as a percentage of gas available for consumption in the UK	Implied UK consumption as a percentage of UK production
1994	727	+23	3	97
1995	779	+8	1	99
1996	924	+5	0	100
1997	929	-8	-1	100
1998	955	-21	-2	100
1999	1,011	-72	-7	100

Natural Gas: Russia

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the effects of Russia's decision to stop European gas supply on such supplies in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [249518]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Russia's decision to stem European gas supply had no direct impact on gas supply in the UK as the UK is estimated to receive less than 2 per cent. of its gas from Russia. However, the shortage of gas supplies to the continent was likely to have been the reason for the exports of gas from the UK to Europe through the Interconnector of, on average, 35 million cubic metres per day, in response to price signals. This was at a time of year when the UK would normally be importing through the Interconnector. The UK's diverse sources of gas supplies helped to ensure that gas supply in the UK continued to meet demand, which was high due to cold weather conditions prevailing at the time.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether he plans to review the viability of the Nord Stream pipeline project. [255199]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: No.

Natural Gas: Ukraine

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what percentage of gas consumed in the UK is sourced from the Ukraine. [259545]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: UK consumption of any gas sourced via the Ukraine (be it Russian or Ukrainian in origin) is negligible. Ukraine consumes its own domestic gas production with minute exports, but does act as a transit country for Russian gas entering the EU. There are only two routes to the UK for gas via the Ukraine. These are the Balgzand-Bacton pipeline from the Netherlands and the Bacton-Zeebrugge pipeline with Belgium. The physical origins of the gas through these pipelines are not available. It is possible that a very small amount of gas via the Ukraine finds its way across continental Europe to the UK, but given the gas pipeline infrastructure it is believed that most of the gas from the Netherlands is sourced from the Dutch sector of the North sea, and that most of the gas from Belgium is sourced from Norway via Zeepipe (which terminates at Zeebrugge).

Monthly imports and exports of natural gas by country are published in Energy Trends Table 4.3 on the DECC/BERR website at the following address:

http://stats.berr.gov.uk/energystats/et4_3.xls

Nuclear Power Stations

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) whether he proposes to provide further opportunities for the nomination of potential nuclear new build sites after the current period closes on 31 March 2009; [256855]

(2) what consideration he gave to providing for a period of evaluation of other than two months for the nomination of potential nuclear new build sites; and for what reasons two months was the preferred period. [256888]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The strategic siting assessment is a process for identifying and assessing sites which are strategically suitable for the deployment of new nuclear power stations by the end of 2025. The Government believes that it is important to focus on sites which can come on stream in good time to contribute to our goals on climate change and energy security. 2025 provides sufficient focus to facilitate the achievement of these goals whilst avoiding an unnecessarily long list of potential sites which may not come on stream for some years. Should the need arise the Government will issue a second call for nominations for credible sites which might be deployed after 2025.

The Government Response to Consultation on the SSA process and siting criteria, published in January this year set out the next steps, including nomination forms, guidance to nominators and the timetable of assessment. The deadline for nominations is 31 March 2009. The nominations will be published on the DECC website and there will be a month long period for public comment prior, and in addition, to public consultation later in the year.

In the consultation on the SSA process and siting criteria Government set out the proposal that the nomination window would be eight weeks. Having considered the responses to the consultation, the Government believes that an eight week window for nominations gives nominators sufficient time to absorb the changes to the criteria resulting from the consultation, to complete nominations and to perform their engagement activities. The Government did consider leaving time between the publication of the criteria in the Response and subsequently calling for nominations, but felt that this would introduce complexity into the nomination period. The Government's conclusions in relation to the nomination window are set out more fully in the Government Response to the SSA Consultation.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many nuclear power stations he expects to begin being constructed in each of the next five years. [259509]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: It will be for energy companies to determine how much capacity is built and when.

There should be no cap on the amount of new nuclear build that industry can propose. We are taking active steps to facilitate rapid early deployment of new nuclear build in the UK.

Interest in building new nuclear power stations in the UK is strong. This is demonstrated by events such as EDF's recent purchase of BE, and by the development of Joint ventures by RWE and E.ON, and Iberdrola, GDF Suez and SSE to participate in the development of new nuclear power stations.

Renewable Energy: International Co-operation

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Morley and Rothwell of 16 June 2008, Official Report, columns 641-2W, on renewable energy: international co-operation, what recent assessment he has made of the merits of the establishment of an international renewable energy agency in the light of other existing organisations and initiatives in the field of renewable energy. [253724]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 10 February 2009]: We have fully supported the proposal for an International Renewable Energy Agency (IRENA). During 2008, we were engaged in the process for establishing IRENA and more recently we participated in the founding conference on 26 January and the first session of the Preparatory Commission of IRENA on 27 January 2009.

We continue to be keen on joining IRENA and have been in close contact with the German Government on the details of the new organisation. For example, we have been talking to Germany about how IRENA can contribute to the roll-out and deployment of renewables and how we can help to get other countries such as Canada, China, Japan, India and the US to join. We also want to make sure that IRENA works closely with, and avoids overlap and duplication with, other international bodies and organisations, such as the International Energy Agency (IEA) and the renewable energy and energy efficiency partnership (REEEP). The IEA has a good understanding of the potential for renewable energy and its technology roadmaps published in its Energy Technologies Perspectives 2008 set out what needs to be done. The policy and analytical expertise of the IEA needs to be used by IRENA to accelerate deployment of renewable sources of energy.

United Nations Environment Programme

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent meetings Ministers and officials from his Department have had with representatives of the United Nations Environment Programme on energy and climate change related matters. [255165]

Joan Ruddock: DECC Ministers have not had any recent meetings with representatives from the United Nations Environment Programme. However, my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change, attended a climate change meeting on 18 February 2009 as part of the United Nations Environment Programme Conference in Nairobi.

Windfall Tax: Energy

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on levying a windfall tax on the profits of energy companies; what representations he has received from (a) trades unions and (b) consumer groups on an energy windfall tax; what the reasons were for deciding against such a tax; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the transcript of his comments to Radio Five Live on 23 September on energy windfall taxes. [246222]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has regular discussions with the Chancellor on various economic issues relating to the energy markets, and receives representations on issues relating to the energy markets from a broad range of organisations. All taxes are kept under review by the Chancellor as part of the Budget and pre-Budget report process. Any decision to levy a tax on the profits of energy companies would need to consider the impact on UK competitiveness and the long term investment required to move to a low-carbon economy.

My officials have tried on a number of occasions to obtain from the BBC the transcript the hon. Gentleman requested without success so far.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Vocational Training

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many learner places funded by the Learning and Skills Council have been taken up by people with (a) learning difficulties, (b) disabilities and (c) mental ill health in each year since 2003-04. [258579]

Mr. Simon: Table 1 shows the number of learner enrolments/starts which were funded by the Learning and Skills Council, from 2004/05 to 2007/08 academic year.

Information is shown by: learners with learning difficulties and/or disabilities; disability (including mental ill health) and learning difficulty. Data cannot be provided on a comparable basis for 2003/04.

[2] A value of less than 50.
Notes:
1. Volumes are rounded to the nearest hundred, and therefore may not sum to totals.
2. Disability and learning difficulty is not shown separately for ACL as they are not mandatory ILR fields for this return.
3. Data for ACL, FE colleges and Ufi are based on learner enrolments. One learner may enrol on more than one course, e.g. two A-levels, and will be counted for each learning aim they are recorded on.
4. Data for WBL and TtG are based on learner starts, by year in which the programme of learning was started. Learners starting more than one course will appear more than once.
5. Data for WBL includes apprenticeships (all levels) and entry to employment.
6. Based on learner's self-assessment. It is recognised that many learners for whom information is recorded in this field will not be able to identify themselves as having learning difficulties. This information will be recorded as a result of interview.
7. Train to Gain was launched in April 2006, so comparable data does not exist for 2004/05.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families for what purpose he has commissioned an analysis of academy schools from PricewaterhouseCoopers; what skills and capabilities provided by PricewaterhouseCoopers for this purpose are not available in his Department; and how much his Department has paid to PricewaterhouseCoopers for this project. [259670]

Jim Knight: In 2002, as the first cohort of academies opened, the Department decided that it was important to have an independent evaluation of the programme, given the high-profile and innovative nature of the scheme.

The Department tendered for an external organisation to carry out a five year evaluation and PricewaterhouseCoopers were selected on the strength of their proposals. They were able to provide a team of professional educationalists with experience in academic educational research, who were available to work on the evaluation for five years, bringing continuity of personnel. The value of the contract was £1,559,940 and their fifth and final report in the contract was published last November

Academies: Special Educational Needs

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which 10 academies had the highest (a) number and (b) proportion of pupils with statements of special educational needs in the last school year for which records are available. [258348]

Jim Knight: The requested information is set out in the following table. In addition, provisional data from the School Census 2008 shows that the proportion of pupils with special educational needs (SEN) statements for all maintained schools is 2.8 per cent. Provisional School Census 2008 data also shows that the proportion of pupils with SEN (with and without statements) in academies is 32.7 per cent. compared to a national average of 20.0 per cent.

Children: Day Care

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the reasons for changes to the cost of childcare. [260632]

Beverley Hughes: As part of the duty to secure sufficient child care local authorities have a responsibility to assess costs and affordability issues alongside demand and supply in order to ensure that the child care market is meeting the needs of local families.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which childcare settings he expects to be exempt from being on an Ofsted register. [260630]

Beverley Hughes: Child care provision for children aged 8+ is not required to register. For younger children the following categories of child care provision are exempt from registration:

Provision in hotels where this occurs between 6 pm and 2 am for no more than two clients;

Provision where individual children are looked after for two hours or less per day;

Childminding in the parents' own home (for example, nannies);

Childminding provided only between 6 pm and 2 am;

Activity-based provision designed to offer not more than two activities (and where children aged three to five spend less than four hours a day);

Provision where individual children are cared for for four hours or less and where parents remain on the premises or within their immediate locality;

All provision where this is being made as part of a "home education arrangement" for children of compulsory school age;

Open Access Schemes (for example supervised adventure playgrounds);

All provision made on particular premises for 14 days or fewer in any year and where Ofsted are notified in writing at least 14 days before the first day of operation;

Provision made in maintained, approved non-maintained or independent schools for a child who is a registered pupil at the school but has not yet attained the age of three when admitted but will do so before the expiry of his or her first term at the school.

Children in Care

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many English children in care were placed in children's homes in (a) Wales, (b) Scotland and (c) Northern Ireland in each year since 1997. [259291]

Beverley Hughes: There were 59,500 looked after children in England at 31 March 2008, of which 6,300 were placed in children's homes. In total 540 of the children looked after by English local authorities at 31 March 2008 were in placements outside England and 90 of these were in children's homes, this includes those in placements in Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland. These figures exclude those children looked after under an agreed series of short term placements.

It is not possible to provide figures for earlier years or to give figures for Wales, Scotland or Northern Ireland separately due to data availability.

Children in Care: Boarding Schools

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1418W, on children in care: boarding schools, when he expects the school census team to provide the information which is to be placed in the Library. [249909]

Beverley Hughes: The information has now been placed in the Libraries.

Children: Databases

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much Capgemini has been paid for its work on ContactPoint in each year since the inception of the project. [259398]

Beverley Hughes: The Department paid Capgemini £3.9 million in 2006-07, £19.7 million in 2007-08 and £9.9 million in the first 10 months of financial year 2008-09, for work on the ContactPoint Project.

Children's Centres

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects the programme for the provision of Sure Start children's centres to be complete. [260678]

Beverley Hughes: The Government's aim is to have at least 3,500 Sure Start Children's Centres up operational during 2010. Local authorities are responsible for planning the delivery of Sure Start Children's Centres and they are currently finalising their local plans to achieve this target.

Children's Play

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether play workers running open-access schemes are required by his Department to register on the Ofsted (a) early years and (b) childcare register. [260124]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 2 March 2009]: There is no requirement for open access provision—as defined by the Childcare (Exemptions from Registration) Regulations—to be registered on either the (a) Early Years Register or (b) the General Childcare Register.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make it his policy for his Department to sign the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258972]

Jim Knight: The Government welcome the Promise as a commendable initiative to raise awareness of the importance of effective data protection safeguards, particularly for those organisations with no similar commitments already in place.

The Government take data protection very seriously. Following the Cabinet Office review of data handling procedures in Government, departments have implemented a raft of measures to improve data security.

The Ministry of Justice is considering actively with the ICO how the Promise might add additional value to those measures we have already signed up to. These include the Information Charters, the recommendations of the Data Handling Review and the Thomas/Walport Review and, of course, our legal obligations under the Data Protection Act and other legislation and regulations.

Departmental Operating Costs

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the running cost of his Department and predecessor departments was in each of the last 10 years. [249887]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The following table shows the annual running costs of the Department and predecessor Departments for the last 10 years.

Ear to Listen

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what response he has made to the recommendation of the Administrative Justice and Tribunals Council that his Department give the findings of the Ear to Listen education advocacy project run by Save the Children UK serious consideration. [245087]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department has studied the "Ear to Listen" report, and feels there is merit in a number of the recommendations.

The Department will be undertaking a consultation on giving pupils under 18 a right of appeal following their permanent exclusion from school, and as part of this will consult on a child's right of appeal in other related policy areas, including admissions and special education needs (SEN). The consultation will consider the type of support that pupils, particularly those with communication difficulties, might need in taking forward their right of appeal. In addition, following a recent consultation on handling parents' and young people's complaints about individual school issues, we will consider the place of mediation as part of the complaints handling process and how it could be used to best effect.

On the recommendation related to providing children with a suitable education, since September 2007 schools have been required to arrange a suitable full-time education for all pupils excluded from the sixth day of any period of fixed period exclusion of six days or longer. Local authorities are likewise required to arrange suitable full-time education from the sixth day of permanent exclusion. The term "suitable" education is not defined by law but should be suitable in relation to the individual pupil's needs and take account of any special educational needs. Parents should be notified of their child's continuing educational entitlement in the letter that notifies them of the exclusion and either that letter or a subsequent letter should provide them with detail about the provision, its address and start times.

On the recommendation related to further investigating the reasons behind exclusions of children with SEN, as committed in the "Children's Plan", we are already working to identify good practice in this area, and are about to begin a fact-finding study to determine further the factors which lead to high numbers of exclusions of children with SEN.

Education Maintenance Allowance: Wiltshire

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many students aged 16 to 18 years in receipt of an education maintenance allowance there are at each educational institution in North Wiltshire constituency. [259503]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom the LSC's chief executive, will write to the hon. Member for North Wiltshire with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the Libraries.

Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by his Department is in 2008-09. [258530]

Jim Knight: The cost of empty property business rates to the Department for Children Schools and Families for 2008-09 was £50,038.

GCSE

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils did not obtain five GCSEs at any grade excluding equivalents in 2008. [244293]

Jim Knight: The number of pupils that did not obtain five GCSEs at grades A*-G (excluding all equivalents) in 2008 was 88,430.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of pupils eligible to receive free school meals attained a GCSE in (a) German, (b) French and (c) Spanish at grade A* in 2008. [246083]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The table shows the number and percentage of pupils achieving grade A* in French, German and Spanish by eligibility of free school meals in 2008 as a proportion of pupils at the end of KS4.

GCSE: Disadvantaged

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of pupils eligible for free school meals did not gain one or more C grades or above at GCSE in 2008. [251297]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 26 January 2009]: In 2008, 29,886 (40.0 per cent.) of pupils eligible for free school meals in maintained schools did not achieve one or more grades A*-C at GCSE.

National Curriculum Tests

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department has spent on the Key Stage 2 single level tests in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [259487]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) develops and delivers the single level test (SLT) strand of the Making Good Progress pilot. QCA advises that the total amount spent on SLTs for both key stage 2 and key stage 3 in the period 1 February 2008 to 31 January 2009 was £6,986,404. This includes spending on development work associated with the June 2009 test round. It is not possible to extract the specific costs associated with key stage 2.

Nurseries: Vacancies

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 3 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1067-8W, on nurseries: vacancies, if he will estimate the number of full-time vacancies there were in local authority maintained nurseries in 2008. [260616]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey collects information on the number of childcare places in maintained nursery schools in England. Information regarding the number of full-time vacancies in maintained nurseries in 2008 is not yet available. The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey 2008 will be published later this year.

Ofsted: Finance

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding his Department has provided to Ofsted in each year since 1997; and how much of this has been spent on (a) inspections and (b) inspections of early years settings in each year. [250969]

Jim Knight: Ofsted is a non-ministerial Government Department and its funding is provided by the Treasury through a separate estimates process. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has therefore written to the hon. Member on this matter and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Libraries.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 10 February 2008:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response.

Ofsted is a non-ministerial government department and its funding is provided by HM Treasury. Table A shows the total funding provided to Ofsted in each year since 1997, as well as Ofsted's total expenditure and expenditure related to inspection and regulation activity, including that on early years settings.

Ofsted accounts refer to inspection costs under the category of total costs of inspection and regulation activity. The financial data in this response are derived from Ofsted's audited accounts using this wider definition, reflecting as consistently as possible the cost of inspection and regulation. The total programme cost of inspection and regulation activity includes only direct costs incurred by Ofsted in delivering inspection and regulation activity.

Please note that Ofsted has undergone considerable change since the financial year 1997-98. From 1997-98 to 2000-01, Ofsted was primarily responsible for the inspection of schools, local education authorities and teacher training. As stated above, from 2001-02, Ofsted's remit expanded to include early years inspection and regulation. Since April 2007, Ofsted has also had responsibility for the inspection and regulation of care for children and young people, and the inspection of education and training for learners of all ages. Over the same period, improvements in the way we deliver inspection and regulation have enabled Ofsted to make substantial savings. These changes have affected the cost of early years regulation and inspection and year on year comparison of these costs. Further explanatory notes accompany the table below.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Rt Hon Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Table A: Ofsted's total funding and expenditure in each year since 1997

£ million

Financial year	Total funding	Total gross expenditure	Total programme cost of inspection and regulation activity	Total programme cost of Early Years Inspection and regulation activity
1997-98	151.3	151.0	118.2	0
1998-99	133.4	112.1	79.8	0
1999-2000	96.5	87.2	53.6	0
2000-01	103.9	104.4	90.5	0
2001-02	155.6	155.0	130.5	40.8
2002-03	200.2	200.2	170.5	68.2
2003-04	211.6	211.1	181.3	68.4
2004-05	217.5	215.3	190.8	[1]82.3
2005-06	225.3	223.0	199.2	79.0
2006-07	208.4	185.7	157.7	[2]52.2
2007-08	236.3	228.1	206.6	[3]53.5

Notes

1. In the financial year 2005-06, Ofsted used an improved method for calculating total costs of inspection and regulation. The 2004-05 figures above are the recalculated figures based on this new method.
2. Between the financial years 2004-05 and 2006-07 Ofsted established a new regional structure, rationalising the support for inspections within three regional offices. These changes led to substantial reduction in the cost of inspection and regulation activity.
3. Since April 2007, Ofsted has had responsibility for the inspection and regulation of care for children and young people, and the inspection of education and training for learners of all ages. Consequently, total funding and gross costs increased sharply.

Parents: Advisory Services

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what legal requirements local authorities have to inform parents about choice in childcare and schools. [259085]

Jim Knight: Local authorities have a duty to ensure fair access to educational opportunity and to provide information to the public on childcare and related services.

Local authorities are required to consult on their school admission arrangements in accordance with the school admissions statutory framework once every three years, unless changes in the criteria are proposed. Each year, they publish information in a prospectus about each of the maintained schools, including academies, in their relevant area to ensure parents have access to information when applying for a school place.

The Childcare Act 2006 extended local authorities' existing duty to provide information to the public on childcare and related services.

Primary Education

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he plans to change the age at which children start their reception year. [260631]

Beverley Hughes: The remit for the Independent Review of the Primary Curriculum, asks Sir Jim Rose to consider whether it be appropriate to allow more choice and flexibility in start dates for children entering school who are summer born.

Sir Jim Rose's interim report has recommended that entry into reception class in the September immediately following a child's fourth birthday should become the norm and the Review is exploring how this might be achieved without unduly restricting parental choice. The final report and recommendations will be published this spring. Ministers will consider the recommendations of the Review in due course and have not yet made any decisions.

Pupils: Food

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children of (a) primary and (b) secondary school age in each local authority area have been referred for food intolerance testing in the last 12 months. [250708]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: This information is not collected by the Department.

Schools: Closures

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many secondary schools in (a) rural and (b) urban areas closed in each of the last 10 years. [256451]

Jim Knight: The following table sets out the numbers of maintained secondary schools in (a) rural and (b) urban areas that have closed in each year since 2000. We do not have reliable information about decisions made prior to 2000.

	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008	Total

Urban	3	6	11	11	22	12	6	8	7	86

Figures include middle deemed secondary schools

The table shows closures where the schools ceased to be maintained and were not replaced. There are other circumstances involving school closure which have been excluded from the table because replacement provision was established, for example in the case of a change to a school's religious character or an amalgamation of an infant and junior school to form a primary school.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many rural schools have closed in each year since 1996. [259101]

Jim Knight: The following table sets out the numbers of maintained rural schools that have closed in each year since 2000. We do not have reliable information about decisions made prior to 2000.

Schools: Construction

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects building work under the primary strategy for change programme to commence; and if he will make a statement. [259486]

Jim Knight: The 23 pathfinder authorities have already started work on their exemplar projects. We expect most to be completed by the end of this year. The programme is being rolled out nationally from April 2009. Early indications are encouraging. My statement of 12 November 2008, Official Report, column 56WS, confirmed that 133 strategies for change have already been either fully approved or approved with modification, enabling the Department to confirm 2009-10 funding for around 90 per cent. of eligible authorities. Local authorities collectively have reported that they are planning to start projects at more than 1,500 schools over the three year period 2008-11.

Schools: Finance

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which local authorities will receive school capital funding brought forward under arrangements announced in the pre-budget report; and how much each will receive. [259086]

Jim Knight: Applications are in the final stages of consideration. I intend to make an announcement shortly regarding the school capital funding which will be brought forward from 2010-11 to 2009-10.

Schools: Inspections

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether Ofsted inspected all maintained schools and pupil referral units for progress towards his Department's Public Service Agreement 11, in the latest period for which data is available. [258082]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Libraries.

Schools: Standards

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what methodology is used by his Department for the calculation of contextual value added scores. [259153]

Jim Knight: A detailed explanation of the statistical model and the calculations used to produce the Contextual Value Added measures can be found in the "Technical Guide to Contextual Value Added 2007/2008 Model" publication at:

www.dcsf.gov.uk/performancetables/schools_08/documents.shtml

I have also placed a copy in the Libraries.

Social Services: Parents

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Parenting Early Intervention pathfinders in meeting their objectives; and if he will make a statement. [247250]

Beverley Hughes: The Department for Children, Schools and Families has funded the Parenting Early Intervention Programme (PEIP) since 2006. Findings from an independent evaluation of the 18 PEIP pilots carried out by Warwick university found that the programme attracted a large number of parents in need of support to manage their children's behavioural difficulties. The evaluation found that the pathfinder was successful in rolling out three evidence-based parenting programmes across 18 local authorities with high levels of positive gains for parents and their children.

The final PEIP evaluation report was published in July 2008 and can be found on the DCSF website at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/RRP/u014941/index.shtml

We do not believe there is any need for the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families to make a statement on this matter.

Special Educational Needs

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 23 February 2009 to question 256859, what other ways of obtaining information on looked after children are being explored; and when he expects this process to have been completed. [259306]

Beverley Hughes: The Department is working on a project to match looked after children data from the SSDA 903 collection with the National Pupil Database. If successful this would enable us to produce analysis for looked after children on a range of attainment indicators and characteristics, including information on special educational needs.

We are hoping to report on the findings including on the robustness of the matching exercise by the end of 2009.

Specialised Diplomas

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils of each age are studying for each diploma subject. [259898]

Jim Knight: The information held centrally about the number of pupils studying each Diploma subject is broken down into two categories of pre and post-16, as follows:

	Pre-16	Post-16	Total
Construction and the Built Environment	1,372	330	1,702
Creative and Media	2,527	1,169	3,696
Engineering	2,293	538	2,831
Society, Health and Development	1,087	764	1,851
Information Technology	1,289	723	2,012

Teachers: Equality

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many responses there were to the recent consultation on the General Teaching Council draft code on diversity rules; and how many of them expressed concern about principle 4, bullet point 3. [260193]

Jim Knight: The General Teaching Council for England's (GTCE) public consultation on its draft Code of Conduct and Practice for registered teachers ran from 28 November 2008 to 27 February 2009. At the close of the consultation, 3,683 responses had been received by the GTCE to their online questionnaire and they are currently being analysed. A breakdown of subject areas that drew a response will be published by the GTCE after 16 March. In addition to the online questionnaire, the GTC received 563 letters from individual respondents specifically on Principle 4, Clause 3; each respondent has received a reply from the GTCE dealing with any concerns they may have raised about this aspect of the draft Code of Conduct and Practice.

Teachers: Male

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 10 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1969-70W on teachers: male, what the equivalent figures were in each local authority area in each of the last 10 years. [257576]

Jim Knight: The table, which is to be placed in the House Library, shows the number of local authority maintained primary and secondary schools in England that employed fewer than 10 per cent. 2 per cent. and 3 per cent. qualified full-time equivalent male teachers in each local authority in England, January 1997 to 2008.

Teachers: Offenders

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1710W, on teachers: offenders, whether his Department has information on where the requested information is held. [257821]

Jim Knight: Information on any convictions or police warnings that teachers have received may be held by their employers, local authorities or individual schools as appropriate.

The Department for Children Schools and Families does not hold information relating to convictions or any police cautions received by teachers as it does not employ them directly.

Truancy

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of (a) male and (b) female (i) free school meal and (ii) non-free school meal pupils have been classed as persistent absentees in each of the last three years. [260615]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information enabling analysis of pupil enrolments classed as persistent absentees was collected for the first time for the school year 2005/06. The requested information for 2005/06 and 2006/07 is shown in the following tables:

Primary, secondary and special schools[1, 2]: persistent absentees, gender and free school meal eligibility[3]: 2005/06 and 2006/07: England

Young People: Leisure

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate his Department has made of the percentage of young people who live more than one hours' travel time by public transport from at least one of a bowling alley, an ice rink, a theatre, a cinema or a recording studio. [260672]

Beverley Hughes: The Government do not collect these data. Local authorities have a duty to secure access to positive activities for young people. Statutory guidance produced in relation to this duty sets out how local authorities and their partners should consider whether transport is a barrier to young people's access to positive activities, taking into account local circumstances. We also made a commitment in Aiming High for Young People: a 10-year strategy for positive activities (DCSF July 2007) to produce guidance for children's trusts and transport planners to encourage joined up planning and commissioning of local transport for young people. This guidance will be published in the spring and showcases a range of innovative transport solutions to accessing positive activities developed by local authorities and their partners.

Youth Services: Finance

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many myplace projects have been initiated by (a) local authorities and (b) young people. [260670]

Beverley Hughes: To date, myplace funding of £240 million has been awarded to 62 projects. Thirty-three of those projects are local authority led.

Myplace aims to deliver world class youth facilities driven by the active participation of young people and their views and needs. All myplace projects have demonstrated clear evidence that young people, particularly disadvantaged young people, have been and will be fully involved in the development, design and future running of the project.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many proposals for myplace projects have been rejected by local authorities. [260671]

Beverley Hughes: All myplace applications need to be endorsed by the relevant top tier local authority to demonstrate that the project responds to local needs and priorities. Of the 240 myplace applications received to date, 12 have been rejected due to the application not having local authority endorsement.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Broadband

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his most recent estimate is of the extent of broadband internet access. [249001]

Mr. McFadden: Ofcom Research indicates that over 99 per cent. of households are connected to a broadband enabled exchange. Satellite broadband is geographically available to 100 per cent. of the UK.

Broadband coverage of 512 kbps is available to over 98 per cent. 1 Mbps to over 97 per cent. and 2 Mbps to 93 per cent. Access to 50 Mbps service would be available to over 45 per cent. of households by the end of 2009.

Ofcom's Communication Market Report 2008 stated that the proportion of homes taking broadband services grew to 58 per cent. by Q1 2008, a rise of six percentage points on a year earlier.

Broadband: Pensioners

John Battle: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of levels of broadband access for pensioners; and if he will make a statement. [255469]

Mr. McFadden: Over 99 per cent. of households are connected to a broadband enabled telephone exchange. Ofcom stated in 2008 that 46 per cent. of those over 65 had broadband access at home. This contrasts with 57 per cent. of adults in the same period.

The Government recognise digital inclusion as being a very important challenge facing the UK. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales and my noble Friend the Minister for Communications, Technology and Broadcasting, have formed a dedicated Cabinet Committee—MISC 34 and established a cross-government co-ordination unit. The Government have engaged a wide range of stakeholders in developing the cross-government report "Delivering Digital Inclusion - An Action plan for Consultation" in order to have a coherent and concerted drive to address digital inclusion and increase access to broadband/digital technologies for pensioner households and people with disabilities. The action plan details over 70 Government actions taking place to advance digital inclusion. The action plan and details are available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/communities/deliveringdigitalinclusion

and

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/communities/digitalinclusionannex

Broadband: Rural Areas

Mr. Gray: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent assessment he has made of the likely economic effect on rural small businesses of not having access to broadband in the next two years. [258444]

Mr. McFadden: This Department has made no recent assessment on the likely economic effect on rural small businesses of not being able to access broadband in the next two years. However, I recognise the importance of broadband access in rural areas and will be developing plans for a universal service commitment to be effective by 2012 as part of the Digital Britain report. We will set out our plans for the level of service which we believe should be universal and anticipate that this consideration will include options up to 2Mbps.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make it his policy for his Department to sign the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258948]

Mr. McFadden: The Government welcome the promise as a commendable initiative to raise awareness of the importance of effective data protection safeguards, particularly for those organisations with no similar commitments already in place.

The Government take data protection very seriously. Following the Cabinet Office Review of Data Handling Procedures in Government, Departments have been required to implement a number of measures to improve data security.

The Ministry of Justice is considering with the Information Commissioner's office how the promise might add additional value to those measures that are already in place within Government, including published departmental information charters.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will publish a copy of his Department's website accessibility plan. [257234]

Mr. McFadden: The Department's website accessibility statement is available at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/administration/accessibility

BERR is currently working with external accessibility specialists to develop a full accessibility plan, and this will also be published at the above address when completed.

The Department re-launched its website in September 2008 working with accessibility specialists to ensure that the site meets level double-A of the web content accessibility guidelines (WCAG 1.0). This included testing the site with disabled users and training web publishers. When content is discovered that fails to meet the double-A standard it is fixed immediately.

The Department will be moving to a new website content management system in March 2010. Achieving accessibility levels of at least WCAG level double-A will be a requirement of the new system and website.

Departmental Visits Abroad

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what the cost of (a) flights, (b) accommodation, (c) gifts and (d) other expenses was for the Secretary of State's visit to Russia in October 2008; and how many departmental staff accompanied him; [254634]

(2) what the cost was of (a) flights, (b) accommodation, (c) gifts and (d) other expenses for the Secretary of State's visit to the Gulf region in November 2008; and how many departmental staff accompanied him; [254635]

(3) what the cost was of (a) flights, (b) accommodation, (c) gifts and (d) other expenses for the Secretary of State's visit to India in January 2009; and how many departmental staff accompanied him. [254671]

Mr. McFadden: Since 1999, the Government have published a list of all overseas travel by Cabinet Ministers costing over £500. Information for the last financial year, 2007-08, was published on 22 July 2008 and for the first time included details in respect of all Ministers. Details for the current financial year will be published as soon as possible after the end of the financial year. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

Employment Agencies

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will consult trade unions and employers on an extension of statutory periods of notice for agency workers. [258895]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 26 February 2009]: The Government reviewed the current framework and coverage of employment rights, including the question of statutory notice periods, and the outcome was published in our policy document "Success at Work; protecting vulnerable workers, supporting good employers", in March 2006. We concluded that the existing framework met the labour market's current needs and there was no need for further legislation in this area.

We will be launching a consultation in the near future on the implementation of the EU Agency Worker's Directive, which will, consistent with the CBI-TUC agreement of June 2008, introduce equal treatment for agency workers in respect of basic working and employment conditions after 12 weeks in a given job.

Employment Agencies: EU Law

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what timetable he has set for consultation on the implementation of the EU Agency Workers Directive; [258850]

(2) what progress he has made on the implementation of the EU Agency Workers Directive. [258851]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 26 February 2009]: Now that agreement has been reached in Europe on the EU Agency Workers Directive the Government hope to introduce the necessary legislation in the current parliamentary session. There will be a detailed consultation on how we intend to implement the directive. We hope to launch an initial policy consultation in the near future followed by a second stage consultation later in the year with the proposed draft regulations.

Environment Protection

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what studies his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the job creation potential of the UK's environmental industries. [256465]

Ian Pearson: This Department commissioned from Innovas Solutions Ltd. last year a study to asses the current size of growth potential of the UK Low Carbon and Environmental Goods and Services sector. We plan to publish this shortly.

Foreign Workers: North West

Robert Neill: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much funding the North West Regional Development Agency has provided to Migrant Workers Northwest for employment support for migrant workers in 2008-09 to date. [259652]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 27 February 2009]: My noble Friend the Secretary of State met Richard Hooper on 8 October and 21 November 2008 to discuss Hooper's analysis of the challenges facing the postal sector, and his recommendations for policies which will sustain the universal postal service.

Royal Mail

Kate Hoey: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much his Department has spent in hiring UBS to evaluate interest from prospective bidders for a stake in Royal Mail. [259658]

Mr. McFadden: Details of the fees agreed between the Government and UBS for this work is commercially sensitive information and the Department is unable to release it.

Royal Mail: Finance

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment his Department has made of the merits of options for raising revenue for Royal Mail apart from selling a minority shareholding. [260125]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 2 March 2009]: The Government are taking forward a package of measures to maintain the universal postal service and to secure the future of Royal Mail. These include Royal Mail entering into a strategic partnership with an experienced postal or network operator. Partnership is not simply about giving Royal Mail access to capital. A partner will deliver corporate experience of major transformation of a network business at all levels of the business. This will reduce the current risks to a successful modernisation of the company and accelerate the company's response to changes in the communications market.

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment his Department has made of the effects on Royal Mail's finances of establishing a universal support fund as provided for under the EU Postal Directive. [260128]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 2 March 2009]: The Government recognise that the universal service has a cost. We do not believe that a levy and fund to finance the universal service is necessary at this time. However, we intend to legislate for a power to create such a levy and fund if this is needed in the future.

Mr. Byers: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much of the £1.2 billion loan made by the Government to Royal Mail has been spent; when the loan was expected to be taken up; when the full amount of the loan will have been taken up; and if he will make a statement. [260309]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 3 March 2009]: Royal Mail has spent or committed £600 million on modernisation so far and is expected to draw down the full £1.2 billion loan facilities Government have made available over the next two years, to assist with implementation of their existing transformation plan.

Royal Mail: Pensions

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what independent assessment Royal Mail's Pension Fund trustees have commissioned of the projected numbers of new pensioners to the fund between 2010 and 2015; [259627]

(2) what independent assessment Royal Mail pension trustees have commissioned of their fund's deficit projections between 2010 and 2015; [259628]

(3) upon what independent actuarial analysis the Chairman of the Royal Mail's Pension Fund trustees based her estimate of the 2009 fund deficit. [259629]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 27 February 2009]: This is a matter for the Royal Mail Pension Fund trustees.

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many meetings the Chairman of Royal Mail's Pension Fund trustees has had with Ministers and officials in his Department since September 2008; and what matters relating to the Pension Fund were discussed. [259630]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 27 February 2009]: My noble Friend the Secretary of State has had three meetings with the Chair of the Royal Mail's Pension Fund Trustees during this period. The discussions at these meetings related to the upcoming triennial valuation and the challenges presented by the large deficit in the scheme.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform who the trustees of the Royal Mail Pension Fund are; what recent discussions he has had with those trustees on the status of the pension fund; and when he was first informed of the recent report issued by the trustees on the fund deficit. [259844]

Mr. McFadden: Royal Mail Pension Trustees Ltd. are the trustees of the Royal Mail pension plan. Its board comprises an independent chair, Jane Newell OBE, plus ten other members, five nominated by Royal Mail Group (of which two are independent), four nominated by the unions and one is selected by a pensioner ballot.

My noble Friend the Secretary of State has had three meetings with the chair of the Royal Mail Pension Plan Trustees since September 2008. The discussions at these meeting related to the upcoming triennial valuation and the challenges presented by the large deficit in the scheme.

My noble Friend the Secretary of State was updated by the chair of the Trustees on the current position of the fund in her letter of 19 February 2009.

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether there has been a meeting of the Royal Mail Pension Fund Trustees to discuss the Fund's deficit, since the Secretary of State's recent meeting with the Chairman of Trustees. [259869]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 2 March 2009]: This is a matter for the Royal Mail Pension Fund trustees.

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what mechanisms his Department plans to use to assess the (a) financial strength and (b) current and future pension funding liabilities for existing employees of overseas companies expressing interest in a minority shareholding in Royal Mail. [260126]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 2 March 2009]: Negotiations with companies interested in entering into a partnership with Royal Mail will be commercially sensitive. The Government will use the following criteria to judge potential partners' suitability:

the price offered for a minority stake or partnership and their ability to finance the investment; ability to add value to Royal Mail as a whole, including by assisting in the transformation of Royal Mail's letters business and the modernisation of its network; and capacity to manage stakeholder issues successfully, including relations with trade unions.

Trade Unions: Political Levy

Mr. Maude: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many and what proportion of members of each trade union with a political fund have exercised their right to opt out of the political levy, according to the records held by the Certification Officer. [258377]

Mr. McFadden: The figures requested are in the following table.

Union Modernisation Fund

Mr. Maude: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1319W, on the union modernisation fund, what his Department's policy is on taking minutes at official meetings. [257527]

Mr. McFadden: The Department has a general requirement to keep an appropriate record of departmental business; but does not have a specific policy on taking minutes.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1319W, on the union modernisation fund, what the (a) remit and (b) function of the Supervisory Board is. [257528]

Mr. McFadden: The functions and remit of the UMF supervisory board, established following a public consultation, are:

The board advises Ministers on the projects which they consider should be supported by the fund in each bid round in the light of their assessment against the selection criteria. The final authority for approving bids rests with Ministers;

At the request of Ministers, the board will advise Ministers on matters relating to the performance or operation of the fund, including its future development; and

The board will be advised and supported by BERR officials. Subject to this, the board is responsible for determining its own procedures, including protocol in cases of possible conflicts of interest.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1319W, on the union modernisation fund, on what dates the Supervisory Board has met in the last 24 months. [257530]

Mr. McFadden: The UMF supervisory board has met twice over the last 24 months on

2-3 July 2007;

7 November 2008.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1319W, on the union modernisation fund, for what reasons minutes were not produced for the Supervisory Board meetings. [257531]

Mr. McFadden: No minutes are taken at the UMF supervisory board at the request of the board members in line with its terms of reference.

World Economic Forum

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the cost of (a) flights, (b) accommodation, (c) gifts and (d) other expenses was for the visit by the Secretary of State, the Minister for Economic Competitiveness and Small Business and Minister for Trade, Investment and Consumer Affairs to the Davos summit in January 2009; and how many departmental staff accompanied them. [254633]

Mr. McFadden: The BERR Ministers who went to Davos were the Secretary of State, the Minister for Competitiveness and Small Business and the Minister for Trade and Investment.

Since 1999, the Government have published a list of all overseas travel by Cabinet Ministers costing over £500. Information for the last financial year, 2007-08, was published on 22 July 2008 and for the first time included details in respect of all Ministers. Details for the current financial year will be published as soon as possible after the end of the financial year. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

JUSTICE

Antisocial Behaviour: Fixed Penalties

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he has plans to provide for penalty notices for disorder to be issued to 10 to 16 year olds; and what conclusions were drawn from the pilot scheme that ran from July 2005 to June 2006. [260073]

Mr. Hanson: The evaluation report on penalty notices for disorder (PNDs) for 10 to 15-year-olds was published on 5 November 2008. The report highlighted the benefits of the scheme, such as the impact of PNDs on young people's behaviour and savings in police time. Some of the police forces involved in the pilots are continuing to use PNDs because they consider them an effective tool for dealing with certain offences by this age group. The evaluation report also suggests improvements that could be made to the administration of the scheme. We are discussing the learning from the report with key stakeholders.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether (a) consultants and (b) other external staff were engaged to develop and maintain his Department's Youtube video channel. [259767]

Mr. Straw: No consultants or external staff were engaged to develop and maintain the Ministry of Justice Youtube channel, which we are not actively using at present, and the Youtube channel set up for the Governance of Britain programme which has been used as an embedded mechanism to engage and inform external audiences. Youtube hosts video free of charge.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much has been spent on video recording equipment for the purposes of providing content for his Department's Youtube video channel. [259768]

Mr. Straw: A total of £785.34 has been spent on two cameras and a camcorder which are used for ministerial visits and events. These are used for press and media purposes as well as providing content for the Department's Youtube video channel.

No video recording equipment costs have been incurred for work done for the Governance of Britain Youtube channel.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many staff in each pay grade work on his Department's YouTube video channel; [259769]

(2) how many staff work on (a) maintaining and (b) supplying content for his Department's YouTube video channel. [259770]

Mr. Straw: We currently have no members of staff who are solely dedicated to work on the YouTube video channels. Ad hoc work has been undertaken but this has minimal resourcing implications and does not constitute an ongoing resource requirement at present.

In addition to the small proportion of time spent by the permanent staff, some content was supplied by a contractor on a short-term contract as part of other work. This did not constitute a full headcount.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department has paid to website designers for the design of its YouTube video channel. [259771]

Mr. Straw: No website designers were employed to work on the design of its YouTube channel or of the Governance of Britain Youtube channel, and so no costs were incurred.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost was of producing each video available for the Department's YouTube video channel. [259772]

Mr. Straw: Videos produced for the Ministry of Justice YouTube channel have been prepared by existing staff and a contractor on a short-term contract as a small part of their work during the year, for example when attending ministerial visits, and because of this it is difficult to separately cost the proportion of work undertaken for the YouTube channel.

Videos produced for the Governance of Britain YouTube channel were part of a wider programme of work to support the Governance of Britain programme.

Five of these were produced to provide a record of public regional events in June and July 2008 in Bristol, Brighton, Newcastle, Nottingham and London. The total cost of producing and editing these five videos was £3,965.62

Four other videos produced as part of the Governance of Britain programme of work were produced by an in house film crew who work for HM Prison Service, and the estimated costs of all four videos amount to £1,434.20.

Departmental Legislation

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what Acts for which his Department has policy responsibility received Royal Assent between 1 May

1997 and 1 January 2009; which provisions of those Acts (a) have not yet come into force, (b) have been repealed prior to coming into force and (c) have been repealed after coming into force; and how many prosecutions have taken place for each offence created under each of those Acts. [260666]

Mr. Wills: There is currently no central record of the information required. In order to obtain this information, a detailed investigation will need to be undertaken which will take some time. This information is being collated and I will write to the hon. Member as soon as it is available. A copy will be placed in the House Library.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much has been claimed in reimbursable expenses by special advisers in his Department in 2008-09 to date. [260359]

Mr. Straw: Between 1 April 2008 and 28 February 2009. a total of £640.85 was claimed in reimbursable expenses by the Department's special advisers.

Departmental Surveys

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department spent on staff surveys in each of the last five years; and which companies were contracted to carry out the surveys. [260253]

Mr. Wills: There has been one staff survey for the Ministry of Justice since its creation on 9 May 2007. This was a Staff Engagement Survey held in September 2008.

In 2007-08 £30,000 (£35,250 inc. VAT) was spent on preparatory work. The cost incurred in 2008-09 was £186,184.70 (£212,459.70 inc. VAT).

Towers Perrin-ISR conducted the survey and ORC International provided the analysis and reporting outputs.

Domestic Violence

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) arrests, (b) prosecutions and (c) convictions for offences relating to domestic violence there were in (i) North West Cambridgeshire constituency, (ii) Cambridgeshire, (iii) the East of England and (iv) England and Wales in each of the last 10 years; and what proportion of victims of the offences were (A) male and (B) female. [254428]

The Solicitor-General: I have been asked to reply.

The following table shows the number of defendants in domestic violence proceedings, prosecuted by the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS), whose case was completed in each of the three years for which reliable data are available. The table also shows the number and the proportion which resulted in a conviction and in an unsuccessful outcome.

No separate data are held for the hon. Member's constituency. The data provided represent the domestic violence cases prosecuted by the Northern Prosecution Team within CPS Cambridgeshire, which covers the city of Peterborough and surrounding villages. These cases comprise part of the data shown in the next section of the table covering the whole of CPS Cambridgeshire. Figures are also provided for the Eastern Group of the CPS, comprising Cambridgeshire, Essex, Norfolk and Suffolk; and for England and Wales as a whole.

The CPS capacity to record data relating to the gender of victims of crime is under development. In those cases where gender was recorded nationally during 2007-08, 85.7 per cent. of victims of domestic violence were women and 14.3 per cent. were men. No comparable figures are held for CPS Cambridgeshire.

The information requested on arrests is not collected centrally.

The arrests collection held by the Home Office covers arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) only, broken down at a main offence group level, covering categories such as violence against the person and robbery.

From these centrally reported data we are not able to identify specific offences from within the main offence groups.

Electoral Register

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what steps his Department has taken to encourage electoral registration officers to obtain information from other local government databases to improve their electoral registers; [260135]

(2) if he will bring forward proposals to amend data protection legislation to allow the exchange of information between local authority departments for purposes of compilation of the electoral register; and if he will make a statement. [260172]

Mr. Wills: Electoral Registration Officers are required to take all steps that are necessary for the purpose of complying with their duty to maintain the electoral registers, and these steps include inspecting any record which the ERO is permitted to inspect by law.

The Electoral Commission has issued guidance to EROs encouraging them to use the power to inspect records and advises on the sources that may be inspected, which will help EROs to obtain and cross-check information to assist them in their registration duties. In addition, the Commission has published a final set of Performance Standards for Electoral Registration Officers in Great Britain in July 2008. These standards require EROs to provide information on their use of the databases available to them. The Commission intends to publish the results of ERO self-assessments against the performance standards in spring 2009.

The Government remain concerned about the need to address levels of under-registration in Great Britain. To this end, we have recently tabled amendments to the Political Parties and Elections Bill that will allow the Secretary of State to pilot data matching schemes, under which public authorities will provide registration officers with information to assist them in maintaining an accurate and comprehensive register. In addition, we plan to introduce secondary legislation to enable EROs in areas where there are two-tiers of local government to access data held by the higher tier to help them identify individuals who are not registered to vote. This will mirror arrangements in place for EROs in single tier areas.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) which local authorities (a) do and (b) do not give turnout targets for their electoral registration departments as part of their corporate policy goals; [260169]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of people eligible to but not registered to vote in each region of the UK; [260171]

(3) if he will commission further research into the reasons for low levels of voter registration; [260173]

(4) if he will (a) issue guidelines to local authorities on how to increase voter registration and (b) regularly publish a league table of the local authorities in respect of levels of voter registration they achieve; and if he will make a statement. [260175]

Mr. Wills: Issuing guidelines to electoral registration officers (EROs) on how to increase electoral registration falls within the remit of the Electoral Commission. The current guidelines, published in February 2008, include advice on the activities that EROs should undertake to comply with their duty to take all steps that are necessary to maintain the electoral register, including sending the annual canvass form more than once, making house to house inquiries in connection with the canvass, making contact by such other means as the ERO thinks appropriate with a person who does not have an entry in the register, and inspecting any record that the ERO is permitted by law to inspect.

The Government have not made an estimate of the number of people eligible, but not registered, to vote, in each region of the UK and there are currently no plans to commission research into low levels of registration. However, in their research report, "Understanding Electoral Registration", published in September 2005, the Electoral Commission estimated that 3.5 million eligible electors were not registered to vote.

Since this report was published the number of people registered to vote in the UK as reported by the Office for National Statistics has continued to increase. Following the 2007 annual canvass the number of parliamentary electors grew by 307,669 to 45,082,854 and the number of local government electors grew by 463,340 to 45,920,503. In 2008, the number of parliamentary electors grew by 111,595 to 45,194,449 and the number of local government electors grew by 227,374 to 46,147,877.

The Government remain concerned about the need to address levels of under-registration in Great Britain. To this end, we have recently tabled amendments to the Political Parties and Elections Bill that will allow the Secretary of State to pilot data matching schemes under which public authorities will provide registration officers with information to assist them in maintaining an accurate and comprehensive register. In addition, we plan to introduce secondary legislation to enable EROs in areas where there are two tiers of local government to be able to access data held by the higher tier to help them identify individuals who are not registered to vote. This will mirror arrangements in place for EROs in single tier areas.

The Government have no current plans to produce a league table of electoral registration officers' performance in respect of registration rates. However, the performance standards framework established by the Electoral Administration Act 2006 provides for the Electoral Commission to set and monitor performance standards for electoral administrators, including EROs.

The Electoral Commission published a final set of performance standards for Electoral Registration Officers in Great Britain in July 2008, details of which have been laid before the House. The Commission will publish the results of EROs' self-assessments against the standards in spring 2009.

It is not known which local authorities (a) do and (b) do not give turnout targets for their electoral registration departments as part of their corporate policy goals as this is not collected centrally.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many electoral registration staff in each local authority area have a recognised national certificate or diploma; and what plans he has to encourage electoral registration staff to study for such qualifications. [260170]

Mr. Wills: Working in partnership with key stakeholders, including the Association of Electoral Administrators (AEA), the Electoral Commission (EC) undertook to produce a set of National Occupational Standards (NOS) for Electoral Registration Officers. A final set of NOS for this group of workers was approved by Skills Plus in August 2007.

Information on the number of electoral registration staff in each local authority area who have a recognised national certificate or diploma is not collected centrally and to do so now would result in disproportionate costs as each authority would have to be contacted individually. However, the following numbers have been awarded since 1997 when the AEA Qualification (which is now linked to NOS) was launched:

AEA Certificate

England/Wales—296

Scotland—42

AEA Diploma

England/Wales/Scotland—30

The Qualification was only launched in Northern Ireland in 2008.

While it is for each local authority to identify their employees' training needs, officials from the Ministry of Justice will meet with representatives from the EC and AEA to see if there is anything we can do to help encourage electoral registration staff to study for such qualifications.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will assess the merits of using (a) council tax registration, (b) census and (c) labour force survey data to augment the electoral register; and if he will make a statement. [260174]

Mr. Wills: Electoral registration officers (ERO) are authorised to inspect the records kept by the local authority that appointed them, and those kept by any registrar of births and deaths, for the purpose of their registration duties. Those records include council tax records. By virtue of provision made in the Electoral Administration Act 2006, EROs are required to make such use of these powers as are necessary to comply with their duty of maintaining electoral registers. The Government remains concerned about the need to address levels of under-registration in Great Britain. To this end, the Government tabled amendments to the Political Parties and Elections Bill that we accepted at Commons report that will allow the Secretary of State to pilot data matching schemes under which public authorities will provide registration officers with information to assist them in maintaining an accurate and comprehensive register.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much was spent per elector on voter registration in each local authority area ranked in descending order of expenditure for the last year in which figures are available. [260176]

Mr. Wills: As my hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Ministry of Justice (Bridget Prentice) explained in answer to a similar question from the hon. Member on 18 June 2008, (Official Report, columns 999-1000W), funding for electoral registration activities such as advertising is included in the local authority formula grant issued by central Government. Once these funds are allocated, decisions on how they are utilised are a matter for the local authorities concerned. It is not known how much was spent in total or per elector for electoral registration in each local authority area, as these figures are not collected, and therefore no rankings are available. There has been no recent UK-wide assessment of the trends in the annual expenditure of local authority electoral registration officers. However, as part of its work in developing Performance Standards for electoral services, the Electoral Commission launched a financial information survey across Great Britain on 10 September 2007. Electoral Registration Officers and Returning Officers were asked to complete the survey and return it by 31 July 2008. The Commission is currently analysing this information in conjunction with CIPFA (the Chartered Institute of Public Finance Accountants) and will publish results in due course.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment his Department has made of the main reasons for non-registration of voters. [260177]

Mr. Wills: The Government have not commissioned or evaluated any recent research on the reasons for non-registration. However, the Government did utilise some existing research concerning the attitudes and motivations of the electorate, as commissioned by the then Department of Constitutional Affairs in 2005, as a basis for further work towards identifying an evidence base for policy development and service targets in the electoral field.

The Electoral Commission found in their report, 'Understanding Electoral Registration', published in September 2005 that the most likely electors not to be registered to vote included young people, those residing in private rented accommodation and those belonging to certain minority ethnic groups.

Section 9 of the Electoral Administration Act 2006 placed a new, explicit duty on Electoral Registration Officers (ERO) to take all steps that are necessary for the purpose of complying with their duty to maintain the registers. These steps include sending the annual canvass form more than once, making house to house inquiries in connection with the canvass, making contact by such other means as the ERO thinks appropriate with a person who does not have an entry in the register, and inspecting records that the ERO is permitted to inspect, which should help to tackle under-registration.

The Government remain concerned about the need to address levels of under-registration in Great Britain. To this end, we have recently tabled amendments to the Political Parties and Elections Bill, that will allow the Secretary of State to pilot data matching schemes, under which public authorities will provide registration officers with information to assist them in maintaining an accurate and comprehensive register. In addition, we plan to introduce secondary legislation to enable EROs in areas where there are two tiers of local government to be able to access data held by the higher tier to help them identify individuals who are not registered to vote. This will mirror arrangements in place for EROs in single tier areas.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what guidelines have been issued on follow-up procedures to be used by electoral registration officers in relation to individuals who have failed to register; whether he plans to amend those guidelines; and if he will introduce a duty on local authority canvassers to visit people eligible to but who do not register to vote. [260178]

Mr. Wills: The Electoral Administration Act 2006 introduced a new, explicit requirement for Electoral Registration Officers (EROs) to take all steps that are necessary for the purpose of complying with their duty to maintain the electoral registers. These steps, as set out in the legislation, include sending the canvass form more than once, making house to house inquiries in connection with the canvass, making contact by such other means as the ERO thinks appropriate with a person who does not have an entry in the register, and inspecting any record that the ERO is permitted by law to inspect. There are, therefore, already requirements on EROs to make contact with people who are not included on the register where necessary. We are happy to keep under review ways in which the duty could be made more explicit in a way that would be useful.

Issuing guidelines for EROs falls within the Electoral Commission's remit and they published a guidance manual on all aspects of managing electoral registration to support EROs in Great Britain on 24 February 2008. This manual is regularly updated and specifically deals with matters in relation to undertaking an annual canvass, the appointment of canvassers and the requirement to make house visits to non-responding households.

Freedom of Information

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will bring forward legislative proposals to repeal section 53(2) of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [260040]

Mr. Wills: The Government have no plans to bring forward legislative proposals to repeal section 53(2) of the Freedom of Information Act.

Government's Trading Funds Review

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what consultation his Department has conducted with external organisations as part of the review of Government Trading Funds; [260199]

(2) what discussions his Department has had with Treasury officials on the future of the Land Registry as part of the Government's Trading Fund Review; and if he will make a statement; [260202]

(3) what discussions his Department has had with the Shareholder Executive as part of the Government's Trading Fund Review; and if he will make a statement. [260203]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice have not consulted external organisations as part of the review of Government trading funds, prior to the emerging findings of the study being reported at Budget 2009. However, officials leading the trading funds assessment held discussions with interested public, private and third sector organisations in helping to develop the work of the study.

MOJ officials are, however, fully involved in continuing discussions with HM Land Registry, the Shareholder Executive and Treasury as part of the trading funds assessment.

Jean Charles de Menezes

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what his latest estimate is of the cost of the de Menezes inquest; and if he will make a statement; [260586]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 9 December 2008, Official Report, column 405, on the de Menezes inquest, what discussions he has had with the London boroughs of Southwark, Lambeth, Lewisham and Greenwich on sharing the cost of the inquest; and if he will make a statement. [260585]

Mr. Straw: The estimated cost at 17 December 2008 is £2.157 million although this figure is not final. The Government have agreed that this inquest is exceptional and financial support to the local authorities will therefore be provided. Officials from the Ministry of Justice and the Home Office are now discussing the details with the local authorities.

Prison Sentences

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the (a) shortest, (b) longest and (c) average sentence tariff handed down to offenders sentenced to indeterminate sentences for public protection was in (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008. [260437]

Mr. Hanson: In 2007 the shortest tariff handed down to a prisoner sentenced to an indeterminate sentence for public protection was 28 days. The longest tariff was 11 years and 11 days. The average tariff was two years and 348 days.

In 2008 the shortest tariff was 39 days. The longest tariff was 14 years and 235 days. The average tariff was three years and 140 days.

The Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008 introduced changes to the sentencing framework for indeterminate sentenced for public protection. The amendments introduced a minimum tariff of two years below which an indeterminate sentence for public protection cannot be given except where offenders have committed extremely serious crimes in the past. These changes apply to cases sentenced on or after 14 July 2008.

These figures are taken from the Public Protection Unit Database within the National Offender Management Service. As with any large scale recording system, it is subject to possible errors arising from either data entry or processing.

Prisoners Release

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much expenditure has been incurred by (a) prison governors and (b) his Department making subsistence payments to offenders on end-of-custody licence. [259775]

Mr. Straw: The End of Custody Licence (ECL) scheme was announced on 19 June 2007 and came into effect on 29 June. The available information covers the period from 1 July 2007 to 31 December 2008 and is set out in the following table.

Paid direct to prisoners by Prison Governors and Directors of contracted out prisons	2,368,300
Paid to prisoners by the Department of Work and Pensions (DWP) on behalf of the National Offender Management Service (NOMS)	3,115,874
Paid to DWP by NOMS for provision of the payment service	428,957
Total Expenditure	5,913,131

When the ECL scheme was first introduced, offenders released for the maximum of 18 days received their subsistence payments in instalments through the Department of Work and Pensions (DWP), who make payments on behalf of the Ministry of Justice. Prisoners released for less than 18 days were paid in full by prisons on release. From 23 June 2008, payment in instalments by DWP was extended to prisoners spending 15 days or more on ECL. From 15 December, payment in instalments by DWP has been further extended to offenders spending 8 days or more on ECL. The advantage of the system of payments through DWP is that prisoners receive their subsistence in instalments rather than in a single lump sum.

The administrative costs incurred in individual prisons in arranging payments cannot be separately identified as the work is carried out as part of the wider discharge process.

Prisons: Drugs

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which prisons in England and Wales have the integrated drug treatment system (IDTS) in operation; and in those prisons, how many and what proportion of prisoners with an identified need for IDTS do not have access to it. [260438]

Mr. Hanson: From 2006-08 onwards 29 prisons receive both NOMS and DH funding for full IDTS. A further 24 receive DH funding for enhanced prison clinical drug treatment only. In 2008-09, a further 38 prison/PCT partnerships received funding for enhanced prison clinical drug treatment.

All 53 first and second waves of Integrated Drug Treatment System (IDTS) prisons have an operational service providing all key elements of IDTS clinical services.

The 91 prisons currently funded are listed.

Prisons: Religious Practice

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners were banned from attending religious services in each prison in England and Wales on the most recent date for which information is available; what the reason for the ban was in each case; and if he will make a statement. [260435]

Mr. Malik: Information on this is not collected or collated centrally and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost. Prisoners are free to attend corporate worship for the faith in which they are registered subject to certain specified circumstances set out in Prison Service Order 4550, a copy of which is in the House Library.

Prisons: Security

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which prisons in England and Wales have Boss body-scanning chairs in operation. [260434]

Mr. Hanson: The following prisons currently use one or more Body Orifice security scanner:

HMP Altcourse
HMP Belmarsh
HMP Brixton
HMP/YOI Chelmsford
HMP/YOI Doncaster
HMP Dovegate
HMP Frankland
HMP Full Sutton
HMP Lowdham Grange
HMP Long Lartin
HMP Manchester
HMP/YOI Pare
HMP Rye Hill
HMP Wakefield
HMP Wandsworth
HMP Whitemoor
HMP Woodhill

The Government response to David Blakey's report, "Disrupting the Supply of Illicit Drugs into Prisons", published in July 2008, committed to providing all prisons with BOSS chairs. The chairs have now been procured and will be distributed during March.

Public Interest Immunity Certificates

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many public interest immunity certificates Ministers in his Department have signed since the Department was established; and what matters such certificates relate to. [260039]

Mr. Wilks: No Ministry of Justice Minister has signed a public interest immunity certificate since the department was created in May 2007.

Women's Prisons

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what account was taken of the recommendations of the Corston Report in the redesignation of HMP/YOI Drake Hall and HMP Morton Hall. [260408]

Mr. Hanson: The re-designate of HMP/YOI Drake Hall and HMP/YOI Morton Hall as closed prisons takes account of Baroness Corston's recommendation of the establishment of multi-functional units close to population centres. I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer of 23 January 2009, Official Report, column 360W.

The effect of the change allows for greater flexibility in the use of the estate; improving closeness to home and families for some women, allowing appropriate lifer and indeterminate sentenced women to be placed so as to better meet their needs, and in general enable more women to access the resettlement regimes available at the two prisons.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Art Works

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland which works of art from the Government Art Collection each Minister in his Department has selected for display in a private office. [259431]

Ann McKechin: The Secretary of State has not selected any works of art from the Government Art Collection for display in his private office. I have selected 10 prints of modern sketches by Christine Borland, an artist from Glasgow.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Billy Wright Inquiry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many press officers the Wright Inquiry employs; how many press releases the Inquiry has published, broken down by month; and what the budget for the press office is in 2009. [257102]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Billy Wright Inquiry that the Inquiry does not employ a press officer. Media inquiries and media relations are handled as part of the duties of other Inquiry staff.

The Inquiry has issued 18 press notices, as follows:

Press notices issued

	Number

The Billy Wright Inquiry does not have a budget for a press office in 2009.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people the Wright Inquiry has employed since its inception, broken down by (a) month and (b) role. [257110]

Mr. Woodward: From October 2004, there has been one civil servant working as solicitor to the Inquiry.

The following staff changes have occurred:

In February 2005, a secretary to the Inquiry was recruited

In April 2005, a deputy solicitor to the Inquiry was recruited

In June 2005, an assistant solicitor was recruited

In July 2006, the assistant solicitor was released

In November 2006, a document evidence manager and a finance accommodation officer were recruited

In April 2007, two personal secretaries were recruited

In May 2007, a witness liaison manager was recruited

In November 2007, an assistant solicitor was recruited.

Bloody Sunday Tribunal of Inquiry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many press officers the Saville Inquiry employs; how many press releases the inquiry has published, broken down by month; and what the budget for the press office is in 2009. [257109]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Bloody Sunday Inquiry that the Inquiry does not currently employ a press officer and there is no dedicated budget for press office facilities. Since November 2004, all press enquiries have been handled by the Secretary and Deputy Secretary to the Inquiry. An average total on-call allowance of £400 per month is paid to cover out-of-hours press inquiries.

The Inquiry has released 196 press notices to date:

December	3	—	1	3	3	3	1	—
Total	8	13	12	38	46	57	20	2

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people the Saville Inquiry has employed since its inception, broken down by (a) month and (b) role. [257117]

Mr. Woodward: The Bloody Sunday Inquiry does not directly employ staff. The inquiry has engaged a number of people on loan or secondment from Government Departments/agencies to undertake specific posts and roles. A number of other people have been issued with Northern Ireland Office fixed-term contracts to work with the inquiry. Given the duration of the inquiry, detailed monthly breakdowns could not be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

Over its lifespan, the number of staff in the inquiry peaked at 38 during hearings in April 2003. Posts included the secretary and deputy secretary to the inquiry, five inquiry solicitors, one costs solicitor, one assistant solicitor, one press officer, one assistant press officer, three legal assistants, two researchers, six witness liaison, one finance assistant, one archivist, two personal assistants and 12 administrative support staff.

The inquiry has since reduced its complement to eight staff, including the secretary to the inquiry (part-time), costs solicitor (and acting inquiry solicitor), deputy secretary, finance assistant, personal assistant to the chairman, legal assistant to the tribunal, archivist and an administrative officer.

The inquiry also holds contracts with employment agencies for the provision of temporary staff for administration services. These have not been included in this response, as their employer is the temporary staff agency.

Economic Situation

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent discussions he has had with EU officials on the current economic climate. [257143]

Mr. Woodward: I have held no such discussions recently.

The Government have put in place a raft of targeted and co-ordinated measures to underpin the financial sector, stimulate growth, increase employment and provide real help now. Northern Ireland will benefit from many of these measures and I will continue to represent the interests of Northern Ireland at the National Economic Council and consult with Northern Ireland Ministers to establish how we can best work together for the benefit of the Northern Ireland economy.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the economic situation in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [260045]

Mr. Woodward: Economic policies are partly reserved and partly devolved. It is the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment in Northern Ireland who monitors, and regularly comments on, the state of the Northern Ireland economy within the devolved field.

Her Department published its latest Quarterly Economy Review on 6 February 2009. It indicated that Northern Ireland, in common with other UK regions, is facing very significant economic pressures and will not be sheltered from the impacts of the downturn. The review revealed that 2009 will see continuing falls in output and employment in the region. The Minister also highlighted that the structure of the economy—with its large public sector and small financial services sector—should help ensure that Northern Ireland is, broadly speaking, no worse affected than other UK regions.

I concur with this assessment. The Government have put in place a raft of targeted and co-ordinated measures to underpin the financial sector, stimulate growth, increase employment and provide real help now. Northern Ireland will benefit from many of these measures and I will continue to represent the interests of Northern Ireland at the National Economic Council and consult with Northern Ireland Ministers to establish how we can best work together for the benefit of the Northern Ireland economy.

Robert Hamill Inquiry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many press officers the Hamill Inquiry employs; how many press releases the inquiry has published, broken down by month; and what the budget is for the press office in 2009. [257116]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Robert Hamill Inquiry that the inquiry does not employ a press officer. It retains the services of a public relations consultancy, which provides the full range of press office support, including duties such as handling day-to-day media enquiries, out-of-hours media enquiries, monitoring media coverage and providing professional advice to the inquiry staff and panel.

The Hamill Inquiry has issued 14 press releases to date:

	Press notices issued
2005
May	1
June	1
July	1
2006
August	2
November	2
December	1
2007
July	1
August	1
2008
March	1
July	1
November	1
2009
January	1

The Hamill Inquiry does not have a budget for a press office. The predicted expenditure on public relations consultancy services in the calendar year 2009 is £49,222.50.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people the Hamill inquiry has employed since its inception, broken down by (a) month and (b) role. [257124]

Mr. Woodward: From November 2004 there have been two civil servants working as secretary and solicitor to the inquiry.

The following staff changes have been made:

In January 2005, a deputy solicitor, assistant solicitor and deputy secretary were recruited.

In February 2005, a finance officer was recruited.

In March 2005, a higher executive officer and administrator were recruited.

In August 2005, the deputy secretary was released.

In November 2005, the deputy solicitor and assistant solicitor were released.

In January 2006, the administrator was released and a deputy solicitor was recruited.

In September 2006, the deputy solicitor was released and an assistant solicitor was recruited.

In January 2007, a finance/administration officer was recruited.

In May 2007, a deputy solicitor was recruited.

In July 2007, the assistant solicitor was released.

In September 2007, the secretary was released and the solicitor took on the secretarial role.

In January 2008, a witness information officer (50 per cent. full-time employment), a personal assistant (75 per cent. full-time employment) were recruited, and the finance officer moved to 50 per cent. full-time employment.

In February 2008, the witness information manager and personal assistant became full-time, and the 50 per cent. FTE finance officer was released.

In April 2008, a senior finance officer was recruited.

In July 2008, a witness team member (50 per cent. FTE) was recruited.

In August 2008, the witness team member became full time.

In November 2008, an assistant to counsel was recruited.

Rosemary Nelson Inquiry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many press officers the Nelson Inquiry employs; how many press releases the Inquiry has published, broken down by month; and what the budget for the press office is in 2009. [257101]

Mr. Woodward: I am advised by the Rosemary Nelson Inquiry that the Inquiry uses one press officer on an ad-hoc basis. The press officer is available to provide the full range of press office support, including duties such as handling day-to-day media inquiries, out-of-hours media inquiries, and providing professional advice to the Inquiry staff and Panel.

The Inquiry has released 10 press notices to date:

Press notices issued

	Number

December 2005	1
September 2006	1
October 2006	1
July 2007	1
October 2007	1
April 2008	1

The Rosemary Nelson Inquiry does not have a budget for a press office. The predicted expenditure for the Rosemary Nelson Inquiry's press officer in the calendar year 2009 is £12,405.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people the Nelson Inquiry has employed since its inception, broken down by (a) month and (b) role. [257103]

Mr. Woodward: From November 2004, there have been two civil servants working at the Inquiry, acting as solicitor and secretary to the Inquiry. The following staff changes have occurred:

In January 2005, two legal support officers, an evidence manager, a finance officer and an admin support officer were recruited.

In February 2005, a deputy secretary was recruited.

In March 2005, a deputy solicitor was recruited.

In May 2005, a finance manager was recruited.

In June 2005, one legal support officer was released and a second finance officer recruited.

In September 2005, an admin support officer was released.

In October 2005, one finance officer was released.

In November 2005, the evidence manager was released and one legal support officer was recruited.

In December 2005 one assistant solicitor, one legal support officer and one admin support officer were recruited.

In January 2006, one legal support officer was recruited.

In April 2006, a second assistant solicitor was recruited.

In August 2006, a team secretary was recruited.

In January 2007, a bundle manager was recruited.

In February 2007, an admin support officer was released.

In March 2007, one legal support officer was released.

In April 2007, three legal support officers were recruited.

In August 2007, an admin support officer was recruited.

In September 2007, a finance officer was released.

In October 2007, an assistant solicitor and a legal support officer were released.

In January 2008, an admin support officer was released and a writer/researcher was recruited.

In March 2008, an admin support officer was recruited.

TRANSPORT

A14

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to publish the documentation on the environmental impact of the A14 improvement scheme between Ellington and Fern Ditton. [261101]

Paul Clark: The A14 Ellington to Fen Ditton scheme was included in the roads programme announcement "Britain's Transport Motorways and Major Trunk Roads" on 15 January 2009.

As part of the scheme development work the Highways Agency is producing an Environmental Statement that will set out the environmental impacts of this scheme. This Environmental Statement is due to be published alongside draft Highways Act Orders in the early summer 2009.

Air Travel Trust Fund

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the current balance of the Air Travel Trust Fund is; and what the limit of its overdraft is. [260903]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The balance of the Air Travel Trust Fund at the end of the 2007-08 financial year and its credit facilities are both detailed in the Air Travel Trust 2008 Report and Accounts at:

http://www.caa.co.uk/docs/33/ATT2008web.pdf

Audited accounts for 2008-09 are not yet available. However, given the collapse of XL Leisure Group in September 2008 we expect that the fund will be more in deficit at the end of the 2008-09 financial year.

Aviation

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will bring forward proposals to amend reform to the Chicago Convention to allow the market pricing of airport departure slots. [259390]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The main legal framework for the management of airport slots is set out in the EC slot allocation regulations (the EC regulations). In April 2008 a European Commission Communication clarified the Commission's view that secondary slot trading, whereby the exchange of slots takes place with monetary and any other consideration, is compatible with the EC regulations.

Any further moves towards market pricing of slots would require the EC regulations to be amended. We understand that the Commission has no current plans to review the EC regulations. In the case of any proposed change, the Government would consult fully with stakeholders.

Aviation: Taxation

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will bring forward proposals to extend the one pound levy per passenger per flight to all operators of leisure flights originating in the UK; and if he will make it his policy not to increase the amount of the levy. [260908]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government are not planning to extend financial protection for consumers to flight-only sales. However, we are exploring other options for the reform of the ATOL scheme, with a view to increasing the clarity and simplicity of ATOL for the consumer and reducing burdens to ATOL companies.

The Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) intends to consult ATOL license holders this spring on a proposed increase to the ATOL Protection Contribution (APC), currently £1 per passenger. All consultation responses will be carefully considered and a final decision will be made by the Secretary of State in due course.

Departmental Planning Permission

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the estimated average time was for planning clearance of major infrastructure projects commissioned by his Department in each year since 1997. [261008]

Paul Clark: The Crossrail project was given outline planning approval by means of legislation that took three years five months to pass through Parliament.

Otherwise, the only major infrastructure projects specifically commissioned by the Department for Transport are schemes undertaken by the Highways Agency on the Strategic Road Network. The information requested on the planning timetable for such schemes is not held centrally and could be assembled only at disproportionate cost.

Driving: Licensing

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what procedures his Department has in place to remind drivers of the expiry date of 10 year driving licences. [260869]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Photocard licence holders are sent a personalised renewal reminder two months in advance of the date of expiry of their photograph.

The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency also provide advice on how to check the expiry date on the photocard in a leaflet issued with every new licence.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many drivers were stopped and fined in Scotland for driving without a valid licence in each of the last five years. [260870]

Jim Fitzpatrick: This is a devolved matter for the Scottish Executive.

eCall

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the merits of mandatory equipping of new vehicles with an eCall facility. [261099]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Reducing the numbers of people killed or seriously injured on our roads is one of the Department's key objectives and we believe that technology has an important role to play. However, any potential measure needs to be assessed against its expected costs and benefits.

Our most recent research suggests that the costs of mandatory eCall implementation would be greater than the benefits it would bring. However, we are working closely with the European Commission to ensure we have the best available data and will review our position in the light of any new evidence. The Department is also actively supporting the recently established group that will advise on issues around the voluntary implementation of eCall across Europe.

Electric Vehicles

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress the Government is making in the reduction of carbon dioxide emissions through the development of battery-powered vehicles. [260740]

Jim Fitzpatrick: On 15 January 2009, the Secretary of State for Transport announced that £250 million would be made available to create a system of consumer incentives to build the market for ultra-low emission vehicles, including battery-powered vehicles. Final decisions on how this money will be used are yet to be taken, but we expect that the bulk of the money will be available between 2011 and 2014 and will mainly be used reduce the purchase price of the vehicles, with the remainder used for targeted infrastructure provision.

This money is in addition to support, worth over £100 million, provided for research, development and demonstration of battery-powered, and other low emission, vehicles through the Technology Strategy Board's Low Carbon Vehicle Innovation Platform.

Battery-powered vehicles are also generously supported through the taxation systems, for example, exemption from paying vehicle excise duty and fuel duty. Government have also provided funding, through the Alternative Fuel Infrastructure Grant Programme, to support the installation of electric vehicle charging points.

Freight: North West

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the availability of freight facilities grants in the North West; and if he will make a statement. [261098]

Jim Fitzpatrick: On 22 January 2008 the Department announced that Freight Facilities Grants (FFG) will no longer be available for investment in intermodal terminals in the North West of England (i.e. the Manchester, Liverpool, and Widnes conurbations).

This decision reflected the increasing competitiveness of the sector with a number of terminals and freight hauliers active in the market. The Department's decision was taken to ensure that FFGs do not distort the market and give competitive advantage to those receiving grants versus those who do not.

Heathrow Airport

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of the responses to the Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport consultation said (a) that they were partially or totally opposed to Heathrow expansion, (b) that they did not believe Heathrow expansion could take place whilst meeting the Government's air quality limits without further measures and (c) that they did not believe Heathrow expansion could take place whilst meeting the noise contour limit of 127 square kilometres at the indicated levels of air traffic, broken down by (i) campaign postcards and petitions and (ii) postal response, (iii) free-text responses and (iv) online response form; and if he will make a statement. [261096]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A detailed analysis of the responses to the Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport consultation can be found in the Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport Report on consultation responses, which was published on 15 January. Sections 2.2 to 2.13 of the above report provides an executive summary, detailing responses to the consultation.

25,331 respondents stated that they did not want any further expansion at Heathrow. Of these, 4,945 used the postal response form, 2,500 the online response form, 4,614 were free text responses, and there were 13,272 postcards/petition responses. The responses were not coded as being either 'partially' or 'totally' opposed to expansion.

61 respondents specifically stated that air quality limits could not be met without further measures. Of these, nine used the postal response form, 51 were free text responses, and there was one postcard/petition response. In addition, of 16,049 respondents who replied to the question about air quality using the online response form, 73 per cent. disagreed with the statement that expansion was possible while meeting the air quality limits.

37 respondents stated that they did not believe that expansion could take place while meeting the noise contour limit. Of these, three used the postal response forms, 33 were free text responses and there was one postcard/petition response. In addition, of 15,999 respondents who replied to the question about the noise contour limit using the online response form, 74 per cent. disagreed with the statement that expansion was possible whilst meeting the noise contour limit.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on the Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport: Report on consultation responses publication in relation to (a) fees for analysis and preparation of the report paid to Detica, (b) fees for analysis and preparation of the report paid to Ipsos Mori and (c) production and distribution costs; and if he will make a statement. [261097]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department procured Detica to analyse consultation responses and produce the report Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport: Report on consultation responses. The total costs paid to Detica were £939,989.18 including VAT. Ipsos Mori was subcontracted by Detica for their input into this work.

The Department printed 1,500 copies of the Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport: Report on consultation responses. The cost for this was £13,947 including VAT. Copies of the report were placed in the House Libraries, and can also be obtained from the Department's distribution centre. Distribution costs have been marginal.

Heathrow Airport: Air Pollution

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer to question 259633, on what date the work carried out by the Project for Sustainable Development of Heathrow was first assessed as sufficiently robust to conclude the (a) air quality limits and (b) noise contour limit of 127 sq km had been met in relation to (i) third runway scenarios and (ii) mixed mode scenarios consulted on in the Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport public consultation; and if he will make a statement. [261275]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Further to the reply I gave on 2 March 2009, Official Report, column 1270W, on air quality, the critical point on noise was to establish the number of movements that could initially be accommodated within the noise contour limit with a third runway around 2020; that was not clear until mid-September 2007. Similarly, the results reported in the consultation document for mixed mode were not complete until mid-September 2007.

High Speed Trains

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to encourage the provision of a direct high-speed rail service from London to Amsterdam to coincide with the completion of the Brussels-Amsterdam high-speed line. [259392]

Paul Clark: The Government are currently undertaking the restructuring of London And Continental Railways, as enabled by the Channel Tunnel Rail Link (Supplementary Provisions) Act 2008. Among the principal aims of this restructuring is to free Eurostar from past liabilities, enabling it to further develop its service offering; and to encourage the introduction of more services from a potential range of operators onto High Speed 1.

Motor Vehicles

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his Department's most recent estimate is of the number of vehicles operating outside the law on (a) registration, (b) vehicle testing and (c) insurance on the basis used in its Roads Policing Operations V79 paper published in September 2006. [261545]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The most recent Operation V79 was carried out in March 2008. 6,689 vehicles were stopped at random by police and checked for compliance with driver and vehicle licensing regulations. The full report of the operation was published in November 2008 and is available on the Department for Transport's website.

The 2008 results show increased compliance levels in respect of vehicle registration, vehicle testing and insurance compared with the previous survey in 2006.

The level of incorrectly registered vehicles was recorded at 3.6 per cent. of vehicles stopped, compared with 6.1 per cent. in 2006.

The recorded level of uninsured drivers fell to 1.2 per cent. from 1.9 per cent. in the previous survey.

The level of vehicles found without a valid MOT was 1.5 per cent. as opposed to 4.2 per cent. in 2006.

Public Transport: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was spent by his Department per capita on public transport in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire in each year since 1997. [260080]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport supports local authority capital expenditure on public transport mainly through the allocation of Integrated Transport block funding, which is used for capital investment in small-scale transport improvements. This funding is not ring-fenced and local authorities have discretion to spend their allocations in line with their priorities. Local authority revenue expenditure on transport, for example spend on supporting bus services or concessionary fares, is mainly supported through the Department for Communities and Local Government's formula grant.

The Department also supports bus services through Bus Service Operators' Grant, and provides funding for rail services, but these amounts are not available on the basis of local authority boundaries.

Integrated Transport block allocations provided to Hertfordshire county council by the Department, together with specific funding provided for urban and rural bus projects and, in 2008-09, for concessionary travel, are shown in the following table. Comparable data are available for 2000-01 onwards.

DFT allocations to Hertfordshire county council

	Allocation on public transport (£ million)	Per capita (£)
2008-09	15.034	14.103
2007-08	12.369	11.602
2006-07	12.148	11.476
2005-06	13.692	13.022
2004-05	13.613	13.029
2003-04	16.292	15.623
2002-03	14.459	13.916
2001-02	13.196	12.743
2000-01	5.851	5.682

Note:
Per capita figures are based on Office for National Statistics population estimates for Hertfordshire. Estimates were not available for 2008-09—the 2007-08 estimate has been used for this year.

Rescue Services: Northern Ireland

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many emergency calls were received by each HM Coastguard office in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [260140]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) has one Maritime and Rescue Co-ordination Centre (MRCC) in Northern Ireland at Bangor, Belfast MRCC.

The MRCC can receive multiple calls about a single incident as well as hoax calls.

The MCA does not have data on the number of individual emergencies in a readily available format. However, the MCA's records show that from October 2004 (when the current search and rescue recording system was introduced in Belfast) to date, that Belfast MRCC allocated resources to respond to 1,756 incidents of an emergency category, a number of which would have attracted multiple calls or resulted in the calls being of a false nature.

Road Markings: Safety

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the merits of road markings on motorways to inform drivers of safe minimum distances between vehicles. [261100]

Paul Clark: Since the Department for Transport published their guidance on road separation markings in 2005, further research work on this type of road marking and the associated signing options is being carried out by the Highways Agency on the A34 in Oxfordshire.

Roads: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of road safety partnership grants in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire. [260776]

Jim Fitzpatrick: No projects led by Hertfordshire county council or any other local authorities within Hertfordshire have been supported by road safety partnership grants.

Shipping

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to publish the results of his recent consultation on proposed regulations under section 130 of the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 to control ship-to-ship oil transfers within UK territorial waters; and when he expects to lay regulations before Parliament. [260915]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department's Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) has been considering the responses to the consultation exercise, and I anticipate that the summary of the responses will be published on the MCA website later this month.

The MCA are developing the draft regulations in the light of the consultation responses and have identified areas of the draft regulations which will need to be changed. We will also be discussing possible changes to the draft regulations with other Government Departments which have a policy involvement. In view of the developments to the draft regulations arising from the consultation responses, and the discussions with other Government Departments, it is possible that we will have to conduct a second consultation exercise. Accordingly, it is not possible to say at this stage when we will lay the regulations before Parliament.

Tour Operators: Licensing

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people flew overseas for tourism or leisure purposes in 2008; and how many of them were (a) covered and (b) not covered for consumer protection through the ATOL scheme. [260905]

Jim Fitzpatrick: According to the Office for National Statistics' "MQ6 Transport, Travel and Tourism" reports, around 37 million visits abroad were made by UK residents for holiday purposes in the period from the final quarter of 2007 to the third quarter of 2008 at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/STATBASE/Product.asp?vlnk=1905

According to the Civil Aviation Authority, the total number of visits abroad made under the ATOL scheme in the same period was around 19 million.

Transport Infrastructure

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the statement of 15 January 2009, Official Report, columns 355-60W, on transport infrastructure, what assessment his Department has made of the effect of using the green slot principle on levels of carbon dioxide emissions. [261274]

Jim Fitzpatrick: As set out in the statement of 15 January, the Department for Transport will be consulting on the green slots principle for use in allocating slots created by additional capacity at Heathrow. Subject to the outcome of the consultation, the intention is that the use of green slots will mean that airlines will need to allocate their cleanest and least noisy aircraft to secure priority for slots from the additional capacity at Heathrow.

Box 3.2 of our latest 'UK Air Passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts' (published in January 2009) shows the extent to which the fuel efficiency of the newest aircraft—and thereby CO_2 emissions—has improved in recent years and is forecast by various independent sources to continue improving in years to come.

'UK Air Passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts' is available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/atf/co2forecasts09/

Aircraft using 'green slots' are likely to be younger than the average and, like for like, there would therefore also be consequential CO_2 benefits.

DEFENCE

Aircraft Carriers

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2009, Official Report, column 1062W, on future strategic tanker aircraft, what initial payment is specified in the private finance initiative contract relating to the Future Strategic Aircraft Carrier; when he expects that payment to be made; what estimate he has made of his Department's monthly expenditure on invoices to be presented under the contract; and if he will make a statement. [261288]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Information on the estimated unitary charges over the lifetime of the Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft (FSTA) project is recorded centrally on the Treasury's website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/ppp_pfi_stats.htm

The first invoice for the Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft (FSTA) programme should be presented in December 2011 with the first payment being made in January 2012.

Armed Forces: Animals

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what re-homing schemes his Department uses for animals which have been utilised in defence-related activity. [260702]

Mr. Kevan Jones: When considering a military animal for re-homing, the key issues are the care and welfare of the animal and the duty of care to the public.

In the case of dogs, service units will often identify an appropriate home with the dog's last or former handler. Otherwise, the dog is returned to the Defence Animal Centre who seek to retire it as a pet with a member of the armed forces or the public.

With regard to horses, those that have served for long periods will, wherever possible, be sent to a home that has been found suitable following inspection.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British armed forces personnel are deployed in East Africa; and in which countries such personnel are based. [259921]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: While exact numbers fluctuate on a regular basis, there are currently some 1,200 armed forces personnel deployed in Kenya, the majority of whom are on exercise, and two in the defence section in Uganda. There are no armed forces personnel deployed in Tanzania.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make it his policy for his Department to sign the Information Commissioner's Personal Information Promise. [258944]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Government welcomed the promise as a commendable initiative to raise awareness of the importance of effective data protection safeguards, particularly for those organisations with no similar commitments already in place.

The Government take data protection very seriously. Following the Cabinet Office Review of data handling procedures in Government, Departments have implemented a raft of measures to improve data security.

The Ministry of Justice is considering actively with the ICO how the promise might add additional value to those measures we have already signed up to. These include the Information Charters, the recommendations of the Data Handling Review and the Thomas/Walport Review and, of course, our legal obligations under the Data Protection Act and other legislation and regulations.

Departmental Private Finance Initiative

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what private finance initiatives have been entered into by his Department since 1997, indicating in each case (a) the total value of each contract, (b) the name of the contractor and (c) whether each contract has been subject to refinancing arrangements; what the monetary value of the refinancing arrangement was in each such case; and what the extent of the claw back has been. [259549]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Information on the capital value and estimated revenue payments for the lifetime of each private finance contract as well as the primary contractors (equity stakeholders in the project companies) are recorded centrally on the Treasury's website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/ppp_pfi_stats.htm

Since November 2000, it has been the MOD's policy, in common with other government departments, that all Private Finance Initiative (PFI) contracts and those Public Private Partnership contracts involving the use of private finance must contain legally binding conditions whereby any gains from refinancing are shared with the MOD on a 50:50 basis. For contracts signed before November 2000, the right to share a refinancing gain is governed by a code of conduct agreed with industry.

PFI projects that have been the subject of a refinancing agreement together with details of the value and the extent of the claw back to the MOD in each case are shown in the following table:

Project Name	Date refinanced	Refinancing share (Percentage)	MOD share of refinancing gain (£ million)
Joint Services Command and Staff College	June 2002	30	0.38
Central Scotland Family Quarters—Bannockburn	June 2003	30	1.82
Medium Support Helicopter	December 2004	[1]28	1.35
VLF Fleet Communications (MOD project)	December 2006	30	1.62
Tornado GR4 Simulator	March 2007	30	0.562
Strategic Sealift	December 2007	30	0.464

[1] The calculation of the refinancing gain was based on HMT policy but it also includes a package of contract changes guaranteeing the Department a total of £1.35 million.

Future Large Aircraft

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what formula has been used to calculate the cost of the contract for the A400M aircraft. [259669]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Development and production costs are based on a negotiated agreement between Airbus Military and the customer Nations. Development costs are shared on a pro-rata basis with other Nations according to numbers of aircraft being purchased; UK therefore pays 25/180 of the total development cost. There is a variation of price formula to cover variation of economic conditions, in prescribed circumstances.

RAF Menwith Hill

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which (a) US and (b) UK contractors are currently working at RAF Menwith Hill. [260260]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The contractors presently working at RAF Menwith Hill are:

US Contractors

Lockheed Martin

Northrop Grumman

UK Contractors

Haden Young

Clark Construction

Britcon

SGW (Middlesbrough)

Shaylor Construction

IUS

Paragon

HC Engineering

Balfour Beatty
Wrekin

OLYMPICS

Government Olympic Executive: Pay

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much was spent on the salaries of civil servants working in the Government Olympic Executive in each of the last three years. [260983]

Tessa Jowell: In each of the last three years, the amount spent on the salaries of civil servants working in the Government Olympic Executive (GOE) was:

2006-07	1,687,876.45
2007-08	2,869,649.18
2008-09 (to end February 2009)	3,899,380.87

The amount spent on salaries reflects the increase in the number of civil servants (full-time equivalents (FTEs)) working in the GOE, from 34.8 FTEs in February 2007 to 69.4 FTEs in February 2009.

This planned increase in staffing (a) reflects the wider role the GOE has taken on during this period—GOE is now the only organisation overseeing the entire Olympic project, integrating the work of multiple delivery bodies, and ensuring the games is delivered within the £9.3 billion public sector funding provision; (b) is a planned response to the expected growth in work to deliver the Government's commitments and guarantees, as 2012 approaches; and (c) is consistent with GOE's staffing and resource plan for 2008-09 to 2010-11, which was agreed early in 2008.

Olympic Delivery Authority: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many businesses from the London Borough of Bexley have won contracts from the Olympic Delivery Authority. [261426]

Tessa Jowell: To the end of January 2009, five businesses registered in the London borough of Bexley had won contracts directly supplying the Olympic Delivery Authority.

Businesses interested in getting involved in the games should be encouraged to sign up to CompeteFor, the electronic brokerage service that is designed to give business across the country access to contracts in the London 2012 supply chains and any support they need to get ready to compete for them. To date, over 2,000 opportunities have been posted on CompeteFor.

Olympic Games 2012: Expenditure

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much had been spent on the velopark at the latest date for which figures are available; and what its estimated final cost is. [256584]

Tessa Jowell: At the end of December 2008 £5.6 million had been spent on the VeloPark project. As reported in the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games Annual Report 2009, the potential final cost of the project is £105 million. This figure takes into account all known cost pressures and opportunities, in particular the more complex foundations and ground conditions encountered on the VeloPark site, following its slight relocation to the west to enhance the legacy configuration of facilities.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Departmental Surveys

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much his Department spent on staff surveys in each of the last five years; and which companies were contracted to carry out the surveys. [260251]

Mr. Simon: The Department was created on 28 June 2007. Since it was established, the Department has conducted one full staff survey in October 2008. The survey was delivered in house and the results were analysed by ORC International Ltd.

The cost of the staff survey was £19,515 inc. VAT.

Graduates: Employment

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he plans to take in response to the decline in the number of graduates being recruited by businesses. [260787]

Mr. Lammy: We recognise that graduates will not be immune from the downturn. However, graduates should not panic: a recent AGR survey suggests that many companies will continue to recruit graduates in the knowledge that it is in their long term interests, and that many graduates will still get graduate level jobs. The Government are committed to helping new graduates to improve their prospects for work, so we are promoting volunteering, development of entrepreneurial skills and further study to graduates who do not yet have a job, and working alongside major employers to encourage more internships.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps his Department is taking to make students aware of Government initiatives to help them into employment. [260796]

Mr. Lammy: The Government are committed to helping new graduates to improve their prospects for work. Our message to students is that they should take advantage of the professional support available from university careers services and take every opportunity to gain the experience and broad range of work related skills that are valued by employers. To help them to do this we are working with employers in the public, private and charitable sectors to increase the availability of volunteering and internship opportunities, and are encouraging new graduates to consider self employment opportunities. The Department has recently created a new section on DirectGov:

http://www.direct.gov.uk/en/EducationAndLearning/UniversityAndHigherEducation/ChoicesAfterYouGraduate/DG 4017755 to get these messages across to graduates and to offer detailed advice and information on graduate options. We are also working in partnership with the National Union of Students to produce further guidance in time for the spring graduate fairs.

Work Experience

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which companies have agreed to take part in the National Internship Scheme in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10, (c) 2010-11 and (d) 2011-12; and (i) how much the Government plans to spend on the scheme for internships in the (A) private and (B) public sectors and (ii) how many graduates are expected to take part in the scheme in each of those years. [260606]

Mr. Lammy: The Government are committed to helping new graduates to improve their prospects for work in these challenging economic times. We are encouraging graduates to consider the range of opportunities available to them including internships which will help them to build the work ready skills they will need for permanent employment. We are currently talking to key stakeholders in the public, private and charitable sectors about the best way to increase internships this autumn and it is too early to confirm any details.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Standard Employment Contract

4. David Taylor: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what representations the House of Commons Commission has received on the merits of a standard employment contract for the staff of hon. Members; and if he will make a statement. [260753]

Nick Harvey: The issue of a standard employment contract for hon. Members' staff was considered in the Members Estimate Committee's Review of Allowances last year (HC 578). Discussions were held with a number of Members on employment arrangements for staff. The MEC concluded that the current arrangements, whereby a standard contract is provided by the Department of Resources, continued to be the most appropriate employment model for Members' staff. No additional representations have been received.

Energy Efficiency

5. Simon Hughes: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what steps the House authorities have taken to improve the energy efficiency of the Palace of Westminster in the last 12 months. [260754]

Nick Harvey: The House authorities have, in the last 12 months, reconfigured building management systems; installed new remote energy meters, kitchen ventilation and lighting controls, energy efficient lighting and movement sensors; developed design standards for energy consuming services and conducted building energy surveys.

A feasibility study of energy supply options is under way as part of the mechanical and electrical services upgrade project and insulation will be targeted during the imminent roof overhaul project. In addition, a new post of head of fire safety and environment has been created and filled.

Electricity Expenditure

6. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if the House of Commons Commission will make an estimate of the potential effect on House of Commons expenditure on electricity of the installation and use of light-emitting diode (LED) lighting. [260755]

Nick Harvey: The House authorities are not yet in a position to be able to estimate the potential effect on House of Commons expenditure on electricity of the installation and use of light emitting diode (LED) lighting.

Several trials of LED technology are under way including the lower waiting hall, nurses' offices and maintenance offices. The trials will inform Parliament's lighting programme for the future.

Members' Expenses

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission when the most recent analysis of hon. Members' expenses will be published. [260756]

Nick Harvey: Annual totals for 2007-08, using the 10 main headings of previous annual publications, will shortly be sent to Members for checking, and will be published before the Easter recess.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Parliamentary Scrutiny

8. Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Leader of the House what plans she has to improve the House's ability to scrutinise those Government Bills where many different groups of new clauses and amendments are selected for consideration at Report stage. [260757]

Chris Bryant: The number of groups of amendments and new clauses selected for debate is not usually known until the day of the debate itself.

The Government will always try to ensure that adequate time is available for debate at Report stage, especially where new matters of substance are to be introduced into the Bill.

Procedure Committee

9. Philip Davies: To ask the Leader of the House if she will bring forward proposals to merge the Procedure Committee and the Modernisation of the House of Commons Committee. [260758]

Chris Bryant: I have always been committed to a strong Select Committee system. Important work is done every week by all of the committees of the House and the Modernisation Committee has made a number of recommendations in the past on which the House has acted.

The Modernisation Committee has yet to complete its inquiry into recall and dissolution. Once that work is complete, my right hon. Friend and I will give further consideration to the best way to take forward the Modernisation agenda.

Debates

John Robertson: To ask the Leader of the House what plans she has to make debates on the floor of the House more understandable to the general public. [260750]

Chris Bryant: If the House is to retain its place at the heart of our national political life, it is vital that we continue our work to engage more effectively with the public. Promoting public knowledge and understanding of Parliament through the provision of information and access is a high priority for my right hon. Friend and one of the House of Commons Commission's three primary objectives.

Departmental Consultants

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on management consultants in 2007-08. [260884]

Mr. Sutcliffe: According to the Department's financial records the expenditure attributed to management consultants in 2007-08 was £31,339.

Departmental Data Protection

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether his Department uses WPA2 encryption protocol on all its wireless networks. [259788]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My Department has no wireless networks connected to the main corporate network. Those wireless networks used by visitors and for testing are set up to use WPA2.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what auditing his Department undertakes to ensure that IT security policies are being followed; and on how many occasions (a) IT security policies have been breached by employees and (b) a member of staff has been sanctioned for a breach of such policies in the last 12 months. [259789]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My Department undertakes both internal and independent external auditing of compliance. No members of staff have been sanctioned for breaches of our IT security policies in the last 12 months nor have any such breaches been reported.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's IT security hierarchy. [259790]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My Department does not provide this information on security grounds.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what scanning for vulnerabilities his Department conducts of each of its IT devices; what method is used for IT device scans; and how many vulnerabilities have been detected as a result of such scans in the last 12 months. [259791]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My Department carries out a range of vulnerability scans and uses independent outside auditors to carry out additional reviews. We do not provide information on scanning methods or vulnerabilities on security grounds.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what IT security policy his Department has; what procedures are in place to ensure the policy is being followed; what his Department's policy is on encryption of data when it leaves departmental premises; and what sanctions are in place for failure to comply with this policy. [259857]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My Department has a range of security policies in place which support our compliance with SPF and IS27001. The policies are subject to regular and independent audit. All departmental laptops and memory sticks are encrypted and are the only approved means for taking sensitive data out of the office. Any failures to comply with the policy would be dealt with as per the standard rule on security breaches.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on (a) alcohol and (b) food in each of the last five years. [261165]

Mr. Sutcliffe: All expenditure is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on principles set out in Treasury guidance on Managing Public Money and Regularity and Propriety.

Expenditure on food and alcohol is not recorded separately on the Department's management accounts. This information can be obtained only by manually analysing invoices and expense claims over the period which would incur disproportionate cost.

Digital Technology: Community Development

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment his Department has made of the effect of the growth in digital media upon levels of (a) community stability and cohesion and (b) participation in democratic political activities. [259593]

Andy Burnham: My Department has not carried out any such assessment. However, the Digital Britain interim report recognised that the growth of digital media was impacting on local radio and news provision. In light of this, we have invited the Office of Fair Trading, together with Ofcom and other interested parties, to undertake an exploratory review across the local and regional media sector and make appropriate recommendations.

Leisure: Industry

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent steps the Government has taken to support (a) cultural, (b) media and (c) sporting industries. [260166]

Andy Burnham: My Department works closely with a range of partners including industry to support, and maximise the contribution to the UK economy of, the Culture, Media, Sport and Leisure Sectors. Examples of recent activity in these important sectors include the Creative Economy Programme, Digital Britain, a Decade of Sport, and the Free Swimming initiative.

In February 2008 the Government published Creative Britain: New Talents for the New Economy which set out 26 commitments to support the creative industries. Working with our partners in other Government Departments and public and private sector organisations, DCMS' Creative Economy Programme has made good progress on realising the ambitions of Creative Britain in the year since publication. Of the 26 commitments, 18 are now either well under way or completed.

In January 2009 the Government published the Digital Britain Interim Report, a plan to secure Britain's place at the forefront of the global digital economy. The report contains more than 20 recommendations on how to maximise the opportunities for communications sector, its crucial contribution to the economy and its role in building Britain's industrial future. These are being taken forward with a range of partners including industry.

In January 2009 Government also announced plans for a Decade of Sport, from this year's World Twenty20 Cricket, through London's Olympics, to the Ryder Cup and the cricket World Cup, and the opportunity to bid for or host an incredible range of world class sports events. We also announced unprecedented investment in elite and grassroots sport and the start in April of free swimming for under 16s and over 60s in England.

Public Houses

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many public houses were in operation in England and Wales in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [261071]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The DCMS Statistical Bulletin on Alcohol, Entertainment and Late Night Refreshment does not identify the number of pubs in England and Wales; but rather the number of premises authorising the sale or supply of alcohol by means of a premises licence or a club premises certificate. These figures apply not only to public houses, but also to other licensed premises such as hotels, off licences and convenience stores.

However, industry estimates for the number of public houses in England and Wales are available from the market research company Market and Business Development using data from the British Beer and Pub Association:

http://www.cateresearch.com/Articles/2008/10/06/53051/number-of-pubs-in-the-uk-industry-data.html

We are unable to assess the quality of these statistics as these are not official Government statistics.

Swimming

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funding his Department has allocated to the Learn to Swim package as part of its free swimming schemes; which organisations will receive such funding; and if he will make a statement. [259634]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 3 March 2009]: As part of the Government's £140 million Free Swimming Programme, we are working with the Amateur Swimming Association and Sport England on the detailed design and funding arrangements for an integrated suite of measures to get more new swimmers into the pool, including the Learn to Swim package to achieve 100,000 more swimmers.

Swimming lessons as part of the initiative will be organised by a national network of County Swimming Co-ordinators who will be working closely with local authorities participating in the Free Swimming Programme.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps he is taking to ensure levels of swimming are increased as part of the Olympic legacy; and if he will make a statement. [259635]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 3 March 2009]: The Free Swimming Programme will contribute to the Government's ambition of getting 2 million more people more active by 2012. The programme has been designed to attract new participants as well as encouraging existing swimmers to swim more often, and to focus on sustaining increases in participation.

Swimming: Finance

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the source is for the funding for his Department's free swimming initiatives for those aged over 60 and under 16 years in Chorley. [259672]

Andy Burnham: Chorley is due to receive a total of £30,743 for the over 60s, and £60,603 for the under 16s, for each of the financial years 2009-10 and 2010-11.

Free swimming is a cross-Government initiative with funding contributions from the Department of Health, the Department for Work and Pensions, Department for Communities and Local Government, the Department for Children, Schools and Families and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Burma: Storms

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much the Government is providing for post-Nargis recovery work in Burma in the next three years. [260297]

Mr. Michael Foster: The UK Government are considering what contribution to make to the continuing international response to Cyclone Nargis, and will reach a decision shortly.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many staff surveys his Department has commissioned or carried out since 2007. [261208]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has carried out three staff surveys between January 2007 and March 2009.

Overseas Aid

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will place in the Library a copy of the Guidelines for incentives on aid effectiveness in donor agencies, produced for his Department by PricewaterhouseCoopers in February 2008, reference number 200808318. [259466]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The report "Good Practice for Donor Agencies on Incentives for Aid Effectiveness", and an accompanying self-assessment tool will be placed in the Library.

Palestinians: International Assistance

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will place in the Library a copy of the job description and terms of reference for the information officer employed by the UN Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs for Gaza with support from his Department. [261199]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The terms of reference and job description for this post will be placed in the Library.

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the adequacy of humanitarian aid to Gaza; and if he will make a statement. [256090]

Mr. Michael Foster: The international community and international agencies responded generously and quickly to the humanitarian crisis in Gaza and so far, donors have provided $336 million in humanitarian assistance. The UK Government swiftly allocated £26.8 million to address immediate humanitarian needs.

At the recent conference on reconstruction in Gaza, held in Sharm el-Sheikh, the Egyptians concluded that $4.5 billion had been pledged, but it remains unclear exactly how much of this is new money. The UK announced £30 million for early recovery in Gaza to help rebuild damaged hospitals, schools and homes. Our pledge includes a new £20 million provision, and £10 million from the support announced in January.

The humanitarian situation in Gaza will remain dire for some time to come. Limited access for humanitarian supplies and staff remains a key challenge, and access will also be critical for the longer-term recovery effort. The UK Government take the issue of humanitarian access extremely seriously and we have been working closely with all our international partners to get progress on this issue.

Repatriation

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the (a) name, (b) relevant country, (c) aim, (d) amount of expenditure, (e) activities undertaken, (f) duration and (g) number of individuals assisted is of each project under the Returns and Reintegration Fund that is (i) ongoing, (ii) completed and (iii) planned; and what the procedure is for identifying and selecting projects to receive such funding. [261112]

Bill Rammell: I have been asked to reply.

The Returns and Reintegration Fund aims to increase the numbers of failed asylum seekers and foreign national prisoners who are returned to their country of origin and helps to tackle illegal immigration to the UK. It delivers projects in overseas countries which face challenges in accepting back and reintegrating their nationals; provides rehabilitation and reintegration assistance to individuals who return voluntarily; and helps improve the process of removal from the UK.

The Fund began on 1 April 2008 and is a pooled fund comprising the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), Department for International Development, Ministry of Justice and UK Border Agency financial resources and expertise, managed by the FCO. Projects are identified with overseas governments and/or by the UK Government Departments which are party to the Fund. To date we are financing or have in development 83 projects, some of which are still subject to approval. As this amounts to a large volume of material, I have placed a list of the projects in the Libraries of the House. We do not keep records of the numbers of individuals who are assisted through each project.

Binyam Mohamed

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to paragraph 9 (ix) of the High Court judgment in the case of R (Binyam Mohamed) v Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs of 21 August 2008, whether the legal adviser to his Department was requested to give an opinion on UK responsibilities in Afghanistan consequent upon the observations made about the treatment of persons detained by or on behalf of the United States in Afghanistan by an officer of the Secret Intelligence Service. [259898]

Bill Rammell: It is the long-standing policy of the Government not to disclose whether legal advisers have given advice, nor whether their advice has been or is going to be sought on any particular issue.

China: Family Planning

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions his Department has had with the government of China on the Population and Birth-planning Law 2002 since 2008; and if he will make a statement. [259020]

Bill Rammell: Foreign and Commonwealth officials last discussed the One Child Policy during the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue in Beijing in January 2008. We do not dispute China's right or need to implement family planning policies but we do believe they should be based on the principles of consent and not coercion.

Democratic Republic of Congo: War Crimes

Mr. Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Congolese government on the requirement to arrest Bosco Ntaganda in line with the International Criminal Court indictment against him. [260300]

Gillian Merron: The United Kingdom is strongly supportive of the International Criminal Court. We have reminded the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo of their obligations in respect of the warrant for the arrest of Bosco Ntaganda.

Departmental Correspondence

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the average time was for his Department to reply to hon. Member's correspondence in the last 12 months. [255496]

Caroline Flint: Only correspondence received by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) ministerial support unit (MSU) is logged centrally. To ask every department or overseas post, within the FCO, how long on average it takes to issue a response to correspondence from hon. Members would incur a disproportionate cost.

MSU records do not allow us to identify the average length of time taken to respond to correspondence from hon. Members. However, I can confirm that, in line with Cabinet Office guidance, of the 10,334 letters received from hon. Members in 2008, 87 per cent. were answered within 20 working days.

Departmental Policy Advisers

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 28 January 2009, Official Report, columns 598-600W, how many policy positions in his Department were (a) created and (b) deleted in each financial year since 1997. [253963]

David Miliband: The answer of 28 January 2009, Official Report, columns 598-600W, referred to a centrally co-ordinated exercise to re-deploy staff resource in order to deliver the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) new strategic framework. In addition, all FCO directors routinely keep staffing levels and deployments in their areas under review on an ongoing basis, in the light of changing circumstances and priorities.

Records of the details of these changes since 1997 could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Recruitment

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many new employees his Department recruited in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07, (c) 2007-08 and (d) 2008-09; how many he estimates will be recruited in (i) 2009-10 and (ii) 2010-11; and how many such recruits are (A) permanent, (B) temporary and (C) agency staff in each such year. [254395]

Gillian Merron: The following tables show the number of permanent and temporary employees the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and FCO Services, a trading fund of the FCO, have recruited in the UK in financial years from 2005-06 to 2008-09. They do not include (a) staff recruited locally to work at Posts overseas and (b) agency staff. We could not obtain figures for these without incurring disproportionate cost.

FCO

	Permanent employees recruited into FCO	Temporary employees recruited into FCO
2005-06	137	44
2006-07	266	55
2007-08	94	51
2008-09	[1]180	51

[1] Of these 90 have come through FCO recruitment processes but have not yet started work at the FCO.

FCO Services

	Permanent employees recruited into FCO Services	Temporary employees recruited into FCO Services
2005-06	45	16
2006-07	73	11
2007-08	43	19
2008-09	68	10

In 2009-10 the FCO plans to recruit approximately 175 permanent staff in the UK and FCO Services plans to recruit approximately 160.

In 2010-11 the FCO plans to recruit approximately 175 permanent staff in the UK and FCO Services plans to recruit approximately 100.

Guantanamo Bay: Detainees

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 11 February 2009, Official Report, column 2002W, on detainees: Guantánamo Bay, what the names of the two detainees are; and in which country each was held (a) before and (b) after rendition through Diego Garcia. [260123]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 2 March 2009]: We are unable to provide further information on this matter other than that given by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary in his oral statement of 21 February 2008, Official Report, column 547. We re-iterate, as said in that statement, that the US government has informed us that neither of these individuals was a British national or a British resident.

India: British Council

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Prime Minister's announcement on English—the World's language on 17 January 2008, how many new master trainers have been recruited by the British Council in India to date; how many will be recruited over the next two years; how much will be spent by the British Council on new master trainers in India in 2008-09; what the budget for the programme is for the next two years; and if he will make a statement. [259140]

Caroline Flint: One of the strategic aims of the British Council's regional English Language project is to train master teacher-trainers of English in all 28 Indian States. To date professional training has taken place in: West Bengal, Andhra Pradesh, Delhi State Capital, Punjab, Kerala and Tamil Nadu where master-trainers will cascade their learning to teachers across these states. As of March 2009 the programme has trained 1,300 master trainers and learning has been cascaded to 402,000 state school language teachers. Over the next two years a further 1,700 master trainers will be recruited.

Total direct investment by the British Council in 2008-09 will amount to £75,000 and anticipates making a similar contribution in 2009-10 and 2010-11. To date total contributions from the Indian states involved, both cash and in-kind, have amounted to almost £3 for every £1 the British Council has contributed. The British Council anticipates a similar level of support from them in 2009-10 and 2010-11.

Iran: Nuclear Power

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment has been made of the merits of imposing further (a) UN and (b) EU sanctions on Iran in light of Iran's failure to respond to UN Security Council resolutions demanding the suspension of its enrichment-related activities; and if he will make a statement. [260257]

David Miliband: We have supported five UN Security Council resolutions that require Iran to halt its uranium enrichment programme and co-operate fully with the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA). The IAEA's most recent report makes clear that Iran has done neither.

I strongly urge Iran to comply with these obligations by halting enrichment and engaging with the E3+3. It can then enjoy all the benefits set out in the E3+3's generous offer of June 2008. However, if it continues to refuse to co-operate with the international community we shall do all we can to pursue further sanctions in the UN and the EU.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects to reply to the letter from the right hon. Member for Richmond, Yorks of 15 December 2008, on Somalia. [256384]

David Miliband: My noble Friend, Lord Malloch-Brown, the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, replied to the right hon. Member for Richmond, Yorks on 11 February 2009.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions (a) he, (b) Ministers and (c) officials in his Department have had with (i) Arab states and (ii) the government of Israel on (A) the compliance of Hamas with international law in Gaza, (B) allegation of the use by Hamas of human shields in Gaza and (C) allegations of the storage of weapons by Hamas among women and children in Gaza; what response was received from each; and if he will make a statement. [247985]

Bill Rammell: The UK is clear in its calls for Hamas to adhere to the Quartet principles, including a renunciation of violence, and to adhere to the international law. My right hon. Friends the Foreign Secretary and the Prime Minister have spoken frequently to their counterparts in Israel and around the Arab world since the beginning of this crisis. They have made clear our opposition to the methods employed by Hamas and the need for an immediate and permanent ceasefire.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy to refer to Jewish refugees from Arab states and Palestinian refugees in any relevant official document or resolution at the United Nations; and if he will make a statement. [247991]

Bill Rammell: We are focused on realising a comprehensive approach to resolving the conflicts in the Middle East, bringing peace between Israel and the whole Arab world. Doing this will mean addressing grievances on all sides, but it is not clear how the policy the hon. Member proposes would advance our goal.

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what facilities in Gaza have been funded by the European Union; at what cost; and which of them have been damaged or destroyed by Israeli military action since the current offensive against Gaza began. [248495]

Bill Rammell: We do not readily have access to data on EU funded facilities in Gaza. The humanitarian consequences and the damage caused by the military operation are still to be fully assessed.

Mr. Galloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the number of (a) mortar shells, (b) white phosphorus shells and (c) missiles, flechette bombs and dime bombs fired from (i) drones and (ii) aircraft by the Israeli armed forces in each year since 2001. [257729]

Bill Rammell: The Department does not hold such figures.

Nuclear Weapons: Arms Control

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking towards multilateral nuclear disarmament. [259925]

Bill Rammell: On 4 February 2009, my right hon. Friend, the Foreign Secretary launched a policy information paper entitled "Lifting the Nuclear Shadow" which laid out six concrete steps towards further multilateral nuclear disarmament. We are committed to driving forward progress on these key steps.

I also refer the right hon. and Learned Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Defence Secretary to PQ 228112 on 23 October 2008, Official Report, columns 476-77W.

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of reports that the Sri Lankan Government are using cluster bombs in the conflict with the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam in the northern region of the country. [253350]

David Miliband: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given by the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, my hon. Friend the Member for Harlow (Bill Rammell) on 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1176W. The most recent reports from organisations based in the conflict areas suggest that cluster munitions have not been used, however we will continue to follow up with the Government of Sri Lanka.

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports his Department has received on the alleged use of multi-barrel rocket launchers by the Government of Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [260157]

Bill Rammell: We are aware of reports alleging the use of heavy artillery such as multi-barrel rocket launchers in the conflict in Sri Lanka. The on-going military hostilities and the lack of independent information coming from northern Sri Lanka make it difficult to verify these claims. As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has made clear, we condemn the killing of civilians in the strongest possible terms and have urged all parties to the conflict in Sri Lanka to adhere to international humanitarian law and to take action to avoid civilian casualties.

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions his Department has had with representatives of the Government of Sri Lanka on the political situation in Sri Lanka. [260159]

Bill Rammell: As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary explained to the House on 24 February 2009, Official Report, column 140, the UK has made it clear to the Government of Sri Lanka that a political solution that addresses the legitimate concerns of all communities in Sri Lanka is the only way to bring a sustainable end to the conflict. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister wrote to President Rajapakse in January. On 30 January 2009, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary telephoned the President. Our high commission in Colombo is in regular contact with the Sri Lankan Government.

Thailand: Demonstrations

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of British citizens who were unable to leave in Thailand during the closure of Bangkok Airport in December 2008. [259038]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 2 March 2009]: We do not have exact numbers of British nationals who were in Thailand and seeking to leave at the time of the airport closures but in normal circumstances around 1,000 British nationals would leave each day through Bangkok during late November and early December. Bangkok's commercial airports were closed from 26 November 2008 to 3 December 2008, so we estimate that up to 6,000 British nationals had their travel plans disrupted. About 1,300 British Nationals registered with the embassy using the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's on-line registration service, LOCATE, during the airport closures.

United Nations

Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what objectives his Department has set for outcomes from (a) the 53rd Session of the UN Commission on the Status of Women and (b) the 42nd Session of the UN Commission on Population and Development. [260459]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 4 March 2009]: The Government's overall objective for the 53rd Session on the UN Commission on the Status of Women is to evaluate progress on gender equality internationally, identify challenges, set global standards and formulate concrete policies to promote gender equality and the advancement of women worldwide. This is particularly important in the current economic climate.

Throughout the 53rd Commission on the Status of Women, the Government will also be working to promote discussion of this year's priority theme on the equal sharing of responsibilities between women and men, particularly in relation to the interrelated issues of care-giving and the gender pay gap.

For the 42nd Session of the UN Commission on Population and Development the Government aims to ensure that the UN is effective in promoting the International Commission on Population and Development (ICPD) Platform of Action in order to improve the sexual and reproductive health and rights of women, girls, men and boys worldwide. In particular, during this Commission on Population and Development, the UK aims to:

highlight the importance of focusing, during Millennium Development Goal (MDG) processes in 2010, on the key contribution that MDG target 5b (on universal access to reproductive health) makes to the achievement of not only MDG 5 but also goals pertaining to women's empowerment, poverty, child health and the environment; emphasise the need to re-invigorate the family planning agenda and to address unmet needs for family planning; and call attention to the value of and need for the full participation of all sectors-public, private and civil society-in processes and actions to achieve the ICPD goal of universal access to reproductive health by 2015.

Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs who the Government representatives at (a) the 53rd Session of the UN Commission on the Status of Women and (b) the 42nd Session of the UN Commission on Population and Development will be. [260460]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 4 March 2009]: The Government will be represented at the 53rd Session on the UN Commission on the Status of Women by officials from the Government Equalities Office, as the lead Department. They will be supported by an official from the Department for International Development (DFID) and a Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) official from the Our Mission to the UN in New York.

As in previous years the Government will be represented at the 42nd Session of the UN Commission on Population and Development by FCO officials from the Our Mission to the UN in New York. They will be supported from London by DFID officials. The Government will be represented at the 53rd Session on the UN Commission on the Status of Women by officials from the Government Equalities Office, as the lead Department. They will be supported by an official from DFID and an FCO official from Our Mission to the UN in New York.

As in previous years the Government will be represented at the 42nd Session of the UN Commission on Population and Development by FCO officials from Our Mission to the UN in New York. They will be supported from London by DFID officials.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects to answer Question 246259, tabled on 17 December, on the survey of the UK's reputation in the US, China and India. [258118]

David Miliband: The right hon. Member's question 246259 was answered on 12 February 2009, Official Report, column 2198W.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Departmental Scientists

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's budget for scientific advice and research is in 2008-09; for what purposes the equivalent budget for 2007-08 was used; and how many people employed in her Department have a science or engineering degree. [260772]

Mr. Khan: The Department's budget for scientific advice and research (we have taken this question to include economic and social research), in 2008-09 is £27.2 million. In 2007-08, the equivalent spend was £24.9 million. The purposes for which this spend was used cover hundreds of individual projects. We do however maintain details of research projects commissioned by Communities and Local Government (and its predecessors), which is available from our research database (RD) at:

http://www.rmd.communities.gov.uk/

This database provides information on projects commissioned by Communities and Local Government and predecessor Departments going back to 30 November 2001. This includes the subject and cost of each research contract.

The Department does not maintain records of those staff who hold a science or engineering degree. To gather this information would involve a Department-wide survey and would incur disproportionate costs in terms of staff time.

Empty Property: Bedfordshire

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many empty homes there were in South Bedfordshire at the most recent date of counting; and what number of these homes were empty on a long-term basis. [260912]

Mr. Iain Wright: In October 2008, South Bedfordshire council reported there were 1,396 empty dwellings in their area, of which 518 were regarded as long-term empty dwellings.

Fire Prevention

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the change in the number of dedicated fire safety officers has been since the coming into effect of the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005. [260839]

Mr. Khan: It is for individual fire and rescue authorities to plan and resource the delivery of their audit and enforcement responsibilities under the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005. We do not collect this information centrally.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has provided to local fire authorities on standards for implementing the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005. [260840]

Mr. Khan: To help responsible persons comply with the provisions of the order, my Department has made available a suite of fire safety risk assessment documents to explain the risk assessment process and offer detailed advice on what technical fire precautions are likely to deliver an acceptable level of fire safety. While the order is non-prescriptive the guidance refers, where appropriate, to British Standards and standards provided by other bodies.

This guidance is not aimed at FRAs directly. However, we expect them to have regard to its availability as a tool to assist responsible persons in discharging their duties under the order. The extent to which individual premises comply with the provisions of the order by delivering an adequate level of fire safety to minimise the risk to life in the event of a fire is a matter of professional judgment based on an appropriate level of technical fire safety expertise.

Housing: Construction

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many affordable homes have been started in each London local authority area since 2005. [259935]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table shows affordable homes started in each London borough since 2005-06.

The figures for affordable housing starts are from P2 house building returns to CLG from local authorities, and the National House Building Council building control figures. The tenure of the dwelling may not be known when starts are recorded, as some RSL starts may be recorded as "private enterprise" on the P2 returns.

PSA20 indicator 3 measures gross affordable housing supply, using housing completions and acquisitions figures. Figures showing the number of affordable homes provided (completions and acquisitions) each year are shown in live tables 1000 to 1009 on the CLG website.

Housing: Sustainable Development

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) six, (b) five, (c) four, (d) three, (e) two and (f) one star homes have been built since the introduction of the Code for Sustainable Homes. [249775]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 20 January 2009]: Due to the time lag from when homes are registered, designed, built and assessed against the Code for Sustainable Homes there are relatively few completed code homes at present. As of 31 January 2009 there were 34 homes that had received code post construction certificates, of these, two were code level 5, four at code level 4, 27 at code level 3 and one at code level 2. There are 843 homes that have received design stage certificates—some of these homes may well have been built but have yet to obtain a post construction certificate.

Landlords: Mortgages

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions she has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on the availability of mortgage finance to private landlords. [259518]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government Ministers meet colleagues across government regularly to discuss all aspects of housing policy.

Mortgage finance is a matter for HM Treasury. Ministers are in regular contact with mortgage lenders and landlord associations. We welcome access to mortgage finance for responsible private landlords.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to reply to the letter of 15 January 2009 from the hon. Member for Wycombe on details of the Preventing Violent Extremism Pathfinder fund. [260597]

Hazel Blears: I have now replied to the hon. Member's letter.

Migration Trust Fund

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding has been allocated from the Migration Trust Fund in 2008; and to which projects. [260814]

Mr. Khan: In February 2008, we announced a fund to manage the transitional impacts of migration which will be available to public services to promote innovative ways of working in this area. The fund will raise tens of millions of pounds and will start from April 2009.

Mortgages: Government Assistance

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 23 February 2009, Official Report, columns 113-4W, on homelessness, how much has been allocated to each eligible local authority as part of the Mortgage Rescue Scheme; what her definition of vulnerable homeowners is; how many applications for funding have been (a) made to the rescue scheme and (b) granted support; when the Homeowners Mortgage Support Scheme will be operational; what role local authorities will play in its delivery; what the eligibility criteria of the rescue scheme are; and if she will make a statement. [260622]

Margaret Beckett: The £200 million Government Mortgage Rescue Scheme has been operational across the country since 1 January 2009. Under the scheme's financial structure, funding is not allocated directly to local authorities. Instead, it is drawn down by participating registered social landlord (RSL) providers after negotiations have take place with a household's lender and once a debt management plan has been agreed, the property has been visited and a decision has been taken on the most appropriate form of rescue. In addition, all English local authorities receive a homelessness grant, which forms part of their strategic responsibility to tackle and prevent homelessness effectively.

The scheme is targeted at vulnerable households who fall within one of three priority need categories and who would be owed a duty by a local authority to secure accommodation under the homelessness legislation (section 189(1)(a)-(c) of the Housing Act 1996) if they became homeless.

The three priority need categories are that the homeowner must be:

1. a person with whom dependent children reside or might reasonably be expected to reside;

2. a pregnant woman or a person with whom she resides or might reasonably be expected to reside; or

3. a person who is vulnerable as a result of old age, mental illness or handicap or physical disability or other special reason, or with whom such a person resides or might reasonably be expected to reside.

An informal telephone survey of 60 local authorities was conducted by officials at Communities and Local Government on 18 February 2009. This showed that over 500 applications had been made, resulting in approximately 180 cases meeting the eligibility criteria. Formal monitoring arrangements for all local authorities will be in place this month.

We expect the Homeowners Mortgage Support Scheme to be open for business with the first lenders in April now that the Banking Act, which is the legislative vehicle we have used to enable us to do this, has gained Royal Assent and the scheme design has been confirmed. The draft Master Guarantee is currently being agreed with lenders. This is a lender-led scheme so we do not expect local authorities to play a direct role in its delivery. The full eligibility criteria are available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/buyingselling/mortgagesupportscheme/

Planning

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) when she plans to respond to the 2006 consultation on the General Permitted Development Order 1995 (Demolition of Sports Buildings); [260466]

(2) if she will bring forward proposals to (a) replace the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995 and (b) revise Planning Policy Guidance 17 to provide for the protection of sports buildings from demolition and redevelopment under the planning system. [260467]

Mr. Iain Wright: A summary of responses to the 2006 consultation on a proposal to make demolition of sports buildings subject to planning permission, has been published on the CLG website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/planningandbuilding/demolitionsportsbuildings

The responses were largely in favour of the proposal and we are aiming to introduce the necessary amendments to the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, and the Town and Country Planning (Demolition—Description of Buildings) Direction 1995, later this year.

Planning Policy Guidance (PPG) Note 17 already states that sport and recreational buildings (and land) should not be built on unless an assessment has been undertaken which has clearly shown the buildings to be surplus to requirements.

Planning Permission: Wanstead

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government who (a) was consulted and (b) made representations to her Department before her decision to lift the Article 4 direction in relation to Chepstow, 49 Leicester Road, Wanstead in 2008. [260342]

Mr. Iain Wright: This Article 4 direction was submitted by the London borough of Redbridge under the provisions of Article 5(4) of the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995. The decision not to confirm the direction was made by the Government office for London, which is the normal practice in such cases and consultations are not undertaken before making such a decision. Two representations were received, on behalf of a developer and a local residents' association, and were taken into account before the decision was made.

Private Rented Housing

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of (a) the contribution of the private rented sector to meeting housing need and (b) the availability of mortgage finance for the provision of privately-rented accommodation. [259423]

Mr. Iain Wright: Last year the Government commissioned an independent review of the private rented sector from Julie Rugg and David Rhodes of the Centre for Housing Policy at the University of York. One of the key elements of the terms of reference for the review was the role of the sector in meeting housing need and its ability to do so in the future. The review findings were reported in October last year and we are considering our response.

Mortgage finance is a matter for HM Treasury. Ministers are in regular contact with mortgage lenders and landlord associations. We welcome access to mortgage finance for responsible private landlords.

Recreation Spaces: Coastal Areas

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the recommended amount of public open space is in each of the principal seaside towns in England by (a) ward and (b) lower layer super output area. [261185]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 2 March 2009, Official Report, column 1267W.

Rents

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the number of persons entitled to claim housing benefit where rents are set in line with her Department's guideline rent changes; and if she will make a statement. [259605]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities set rent levels having regard to Housing Revenue Account determinations, existing rent levels, and local financial and affordability issues. The Department has not estimated the number of persons who might be entitled to housing benefit in 2009-10.

Rents: Arrears

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of (a) local authority and (b) registered social landlord tenants were estimated to be in rent arrears in (i) England, (ii) each English region and (iii) each London local authority area in the most recent quarter for which figures are available. [259933]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is not held centrally.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what percentage of registered social landlords of shared ownership purchasers were in arrears in respect of either rent or service charges in each English region in each quarter since December 2007. [259934]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is not held centrally.

Repossession Orders

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many properties in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency were repossessed in each year since 2004. [260961]

Mr. Iain Wright: There are two independent sources of data on actual numbers of mortgage possessions: The Council of Mortgage Lenders and the Financial Services Authority. However both are only available for the United Kingdom as a whole.

The Council of Mortgage Lenders data are available on their website at:

http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/media/press/2108

The Financial Services Authority data are available on their website at:

http://www.fsa.gov.uk/pages/Doing/Regulated/Returns/IRR/statistics/

Trading Funds

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what consultation her Department has conducted with external organisations as part of the review of Government Trading Funds. [260198]

Mr. Iain Wright: Shareholder Executive officials with responsibility for Ordnance Survey were represented on the Trading Funds Assessment Steering Group alongside officials from other Trading Fund owner Departments, Shareholder Executive, HM Treasury, OFT and OPSI.

As part of the Trading Funds Assessment, officials held regular discussions with interested public, private and third sector organisations.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the definition of Ordnance Survey's Public Tasks as part of the Government's Trading Fund Review; and if she will make a statement. [260200]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Trading Funds Assessment intended to clarify Government policy on re-use of information produced by a group of Trading Funds—including the Ordnance Survey—both within and outside their public task.

Specific changes to Trading Funds' public tasks were not considered as part of the Assessment. If any redefinition of Ordnance Survey's public task is undertaken as a result of the Trading Funds Assessment, it will be done so in close discussion with all interested parties, including the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions her Department has had with the Shareholder Executive as part of the Government's Trading Fund Review; and if she will make a statement. [260201]

Mr. Iain Wright: Officials from Communities and Local Government (CLG) worked very closely with the Shareholder Executive on the Trading Funds Assessment. In the case of Ordnance Survey, CLG delegated responsibility to Shareholder Executive for advising Ministers directly on shareholding and financial issues but this is done in close communication with CLG officials.

Shareholder Executive officials with responsibility for Ordnance Survey were represented on the Trading Funds Assessment Steering Group. There were regular discussions on the Assessment between CLG and Shareholder Executive officials and CLG Ministers

Travelling People: Caravan Sites

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 10 February 2008, Official Report, column 1844W, on Travelling people: caravan sites, what targets for the number of pitches to be provided by each local authority have been included in the most recent draft regional spatial strategies. [259583]

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many 18 to 21 year-olds were admitted to each (a) hospital and (b) university hospital following alcohol-related incidents in each of the last 10 years. [260920]

Dawn Primarolo: Data on the number of alcohol-related finished hospital admissions in England for 18 to 21-year-olds has been placed in the Library.

Data is only available from 2002-03 to 2006-07 and that data for admitted patients for 2007-08 has not yet been released but should be available next month. The Department will arrange for the information to be placed in the Library.

Ambulance Services: East of England

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the average time taken by an ambulance in the East Anglia Ambulance Service to travel from the scene of an incident to hospital in each of the last five years. [259871]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Data on performance against ambulance response time targets, which measure the amount of time before the ambulance reaches the scene of the incident, is published annually by the NHS Information Centre in the statistical bulletin Ambulance Services England. The latest bulletin, "Ambulance Services, England 2007-08", has already been placed in the Library and is available at the following link:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/audits-and-performance/ambulance/ambulance-services-england-2007-08

Arthritis: Health Services

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he plans to encourage the adoption of individualised care plans to provide social, psychological and lifestyle advice and clinical support for patients diagnosed with rheumatoid arthritis. [260397]

Ann Keen: We have no plans to encourage the adoption of care plans which provide social, psychological and lifestyle advice, this is discretionary.

Successful care planning is person-centred and recognises that the patient's needs will change over time. It may be simple or complex depending on the medical condition and the range of services needed. The care plan is owned by the person, and the relevant multidisciplinary team members need to review it regularly with them.

The care planning process is likely to include an assessment of all immediate and potential future health and social care needs, including housing, transport, benefits, employment, and health promotion issues such as weight management and smoking cessation.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to improve (a) education for primary healthcare professionals, (b) diagnostic procedures and (c) referral times for the treatment and long-term care of patients diagnosed with rheumatoid arthritis; and if he will make a statement. [260398]

Ann Keen: We have no plans to develop diagnostic procedures, or referral times for treatment, specifically for those with rheumatoid arthritis. The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence produced guidance on the management of rheumatoid arthritis in adults in February 2009. This guidance includes detailed advice for health professionals on the most appropriate diagnostic tests and investigations, referral to specialist services, and treatment regimes, for patients with this condition.

The development of education for health care professionals is the responsibility of the Royal Colleges.

Care Homes: Fees and Charges

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 27 January 2009, Official Report, columns 15-16WS, on the personal expenses allowance, what level of personal expenses allowance persons in adult social care are entitled to; what plans he has to increase the personal expenses allowance in April; if he will make a provision for a substantial increase; and if he will make a statement. [260902]

Phil Hope: The personal expenses allowance (PEA), which is the minimum amount of a care home resident's own money he or she must be left with after charges for residential care have been deducted, is currently £21.15 per week. It is raised annually in line with the increase in average earnings to ensure it retains its value. From 6 April, it will increase to £21.90.

As my statement of 27 January 2009, Official Report, columns 15-16WS, made clear, the estimated cost of raising the PEA to £40 a week, for example, is £250 million a year. None of this extra expenditure would increase the availability, choice or quality of care services, or support the transformation of adult social care provision. Focusing finite social care resources on these aims must remain our priority.

In the longer term, the Government are committed to reforming the care and support system. The forthcoming Green Paper on the future of care and support will consider how care should be funded in the future.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent from the public purse on free nursing care for care home residents in each year since 2003. [261491]

Phil Hope: Data on the spending on free nursing care for care home residents are not collected centrally.

Clinical Physiologists: Regulation

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures are in place to regulate the operation of clinical physiologists. [260984]

Mr. Bradshaw: Proposals for the statutory regulation of clinical physiologists will be resolved as part of a separate consultation, as outlined in "The Future of the Healthcare Science Workforce Modernising Scientific Careers: The Next Steps: A Consultation" published in November 2008. A copy has already been placed in the Library.

Plans for a separate consultation on proposals for regulation, will be announced in due course.

Dementia

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 24 February 2009, Official Report, column 640W, on dementia, where the pilot will take place; how much his Department will spend on the pilot; how many advisers will be employed to work on the pilot; by what process such advisers will be recruited; what qualifications he expects such advisers to hold; and how the outcomes of the pilot will be evaluated. [260834]

Phil Hope: The Department has allocated £4.5 million to fund demonstration and evaluation of dementia advisers. An announcement about the nature and number of the demonstrator sites will be made in the near future. The Department will commission an evaluation of the demonstrator sites to determine lessons learnt for implementation of the National Dementia Strategy.

Dental Services: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the provision of NHS dentistry in (a) Hertfordshire and (b) Dacorum. [261211]

Ann Keen: The numbers of courses of treatments (CoTs) and units of dental activity (UDAs) performed by national health service dentists, in England, are available in Table C6 of Annex 3 of the NHS Dental Statistics, Quarter 2: 30 September 2008 report. Information is available for 2006-07 and quarterly since 2007-08. Information is provided by primary care trust (PCT) and strategic health authority (SHA).

This report, published on 26 February 2009, has been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dentalstats0809q2

Information for the first two quarters of 2008-09 remain provisional as they are revised in each subsequent report to account for treatments reported too late for inclusion in the previous quarterly report. In the end of year report, published in the August following the end of the financial year, all quarterly activity data are revised for a final time.

Further information about CoTs and UDAs is contained in the above report.

The numbers of dentists with NHS activity during the years ending 31 March, 2007 and 2008 are available in Table G1 of Annex 3 of the NHS Dental Statistics for England: 2007-08 report. Information is provided by PCT and SHA. This report, published on 21 August 2008, has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental0708

Following a recent consultation exercise, this measure is based on a revised methodology and therefore supersedes previously published workforce figures relating to the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006. It is not comparable to the information collected under the old contractual arrangements. This revised methodology counted the number of dental performers with NHS activity recorded via FP17 claim forms in each year ending 31 March.

Workforce figures relate to headcounts and do not differentiate between full-time and part-time dentists, nor do they account for the fact that some dentists may do more NHS work than others.

Information in both reports is based on the PCT boundaries which came into effect on 1 October 2006.

Departmental Scientists

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his Department's budget for scientific advice and research is in 2008-09; for what purposes the equivalent budget for 2007-08 was used; and how many people employed in his Department have a science or engineering degree. [260766]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department's research and development budget for the national health service for 2008-09 is £792 million and for its policy research programme is £33 million. The Department has no separately identifiable budget attributable to scientific advice.

The NHS research and development budget provides the means of delivery of the Government's health research strategy and in 2007-08 was in part used to support the work of the National Institute for Health Research and in part allocated to NHS trusts. The policy research programme provides the evidence base for policy development and for the evaluation of policy implementation in health and social care.

The Department does not collate data on the type of academic qualifications held by its staff.

Disabled: Expenditure

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent from the public purse on (a) the Supporting People Fund, (b) continuing health care, (c) independent living funds, (d) the disabilities facilities grant, (e) funding under section 256 of the National Health Service Act 2006, (f) funding under section 28A of the National Health Service Act 1997, (g) disability support transport and (h) other disability support services in each year since 1997. [260535]

Phil Hope: 'Continuing health and social care' is a package of care that involves services from both the national health service and social care and based on an individual's assessed healthcare (mental or physical) needs. The amount that has been spent in this area alone is not collected centrally.

To calculate the amount of public funding that has gone to fund projects and initiatives under section 256 of the National Health Service Act 2006, section 28A of the National Health Service Act 1997, disability support (for) transport and other disability support services in each year since 1997 would incur disproportionate costs as the information is not collected centrally.

Drugs: Rehabilitation

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what treatment centres for alcohol and drug misuse there are in England. [260416]

Dawn Primarolo: A centrally-held record exists only for those agencies which report to the national drug treatment monitoring system which includes the national Alcohol Treatment Monitoring System. There is known to be an element of under-reporting. The agencies are listed by locality at:

www.ndtms.net

Mike Wood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the average waiting time for a methadone prescription was in each primary care trust in England in the last 12 months; [260856]

(2) what the average waiting time was for referral of a drug user for residential treatment in each primary care trust in England in the last 12 months. [260857]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Treatment Agency for Substance Misuse collects data on waiting times via the national drug treatment monitoring system. These data are collected in the form of the percentage of people who waited under and over three weeks to access a particular drug treatment intervention.

A table giving average waiting times figures for specialist and general practitioner prescribing, in-patient treatment and residential rehabilitation, as a first and subsequent intervention for each local drug partnership in England has been placed in the Library.

Economic Situation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) summits, (b) conferences and (c) seminars his Department has hosted since January 2008 at which a primary subject for discussion was the impact of the economic situation on matters within his Department's responsibility. [260150]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department routinely considers the impact of the economic situation on health and social care and engages on this with a range of organisations including the national health service and other Government departments as appropriate.

Responding to the economic situation is a priority for the Government. Summits, conferences and seminars are some of the methods used to engage stakeholders in this work and ensure action is coordinated and effective.

Food: Jersey

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions officials from the Food Standards Agency have had with officials in Jersey on the implications of the review of the Jersey food hygiene law for foodstuffs exported from Jersey to the UK; and when they expect the review to be completed. [261013]

Dawn Primarolo: The Food Standards Agency has not had any discussions with officials in Jersey regarding their review of their food hygiene legislation.

General Practitioners

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what data his Department collects on the number of (a) requests for house calls by GPs and (b) house calls made by GPs. [258673]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not routinely collect the information requested. Copies of studies commissioned by the Department on changing workload patterns for general practice have been placed in the Library.

Health Services: Republic of Ireland

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 23 February 2009, Official Report, columns 216-17W, on health services: Republic of Ireland, which aspects of the claims process prevent determining whether previous payments the Government has made to the Republic of Ireland were overpayments. [260830]

Dawn Primarolo: Under the terms of the bilateral agreement, the United Kingdom makes payments to the Republic of Ireland based on average costs. This is in line with European Union regulations. As calculating average costs and having them agreed in Brussels is a lengthy process, the UK makes payments based on estimates until the process is complete. Until average costs for previous years are formally agreed and current bilateral discussions are completed, it is not possible to establish whether any previous payments the UK has made, represent overpayments.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 23 February 2009, Official Report, columns 216-17W, on health services: Republic of Ireland, when bilateral discussions started; and when they will be completed. [260831]

Dawn Primarolo: Bilateral discussions between the United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland have been ongoing over the last two years. It is hoped that agreement on the substantive points of discussion will be reached before the end of this year.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 23 February 2009, Official Report, columns 216-17W, on health services: Republic of Ireland, what the new evidence which has come to light on payments to be made under the agreement is. [260833]

Dawn Primarolo: Under the terms of the bilateral agreement, the United Kingdom makes payments for a number of pensioners in the Republic of Ireland. Part of the bilateral discussions have been about effectively managing demographic changes. For example, due to changes in working history, far more people have an entitlement to an Irish pension. This results in a shift in the liability for healthcare costs.

Learning Disability: Social Services

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take to ensure that his Department's funding allocation for social care in the next comprehensive spending review period is adequate to meet the needs of adults with a learning disability. [260516]

Phil Hope: Her Majesty's Treasury have yet to announce the timing of the next spending review and make available the associated guidance. Within the remit given to us by the guidance, my Department plans to make the best possible case for adequate funding for all adults with social care needs—including those with a learning disability—based on available data and evidence.

Decisions on the outcome of spending reviews reflect priorities across the whole of Government, including the overall fiscal position.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding he plans to transfer from the NHS to local government in the transfer to local authority social services departments of commissioning responsibilities for social care for people with learning disabilities. [260534]

Phil Hope: The transfer of specialist social care funding for people with learning disabilities will be made locally from primary care trusts (PCTs) to local authorities for the final two years of this spending review period, 2009-10 and 2010-11.

The figure will be based on returns made to the Department by 1 December 2008 with final agreement between PCTs and local authorities submitted to the Department from all areas by 31 March 2009.

Medicine: Channel Islands

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what analysis the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency has made of the compatibility of the Medicines (Human and Veterinary) (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2008 with the requirements of the European Medicines Directive; and if he will make a statement; [261011]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1360W, on dietary supplements: EU law, what the outcome of the meeting between officials from Jersey and officials from the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency on 11 February 2009 to discuss implementation of the Medicines Directive in Jersey was; and if he will make a statement. [261012]

Dawn Primarolo: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) has reviewed the Medicines (Human and Veterinary) (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law 2008 in respect of human medicinal products and believes that it is not consistent with the Medicines Directive 2001/83/EC. The meeting held on 11 February 2009 between officials from Jersey and officials from the MHRA opened discussions on the implementation of the Medicines Directive in Jersey, these discussions are ongoing.

Mental Health Services

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the drop out rate for those who started a course of cognitive behavioural therapy was in each of the last three years; [260481]

(2) what assessment he has made of the merits of the administration of cognitive behavioural therapy treatments by clinical psychologists; [260482]

(3) how many cognitive behavioural therapy sessions the NHS provided on average to persons with (a) a mild disorder and (b) a serious disorder in the last 12 months. [260490]

Phil Hope: Improving Access to Psychological Therapies (IAPT) services consist of both qualified staff and trainees, the latter are required to attend state of the art training in the delivery of cognitive behavioural therapy (CBT) and are supervised by experienced psychological therapists with expertise in this therapy.

Current clinical psychology training courses are required to provide training in two evidence-based psychological therapies, one of which must be CBT. However, clinical psychologists trained in the past may not be sufficiently competent to deliver CBT to the standards required of IAPT. Therefore, before staff are employed in Improving Access to Psychological Therapy services and regardless of their professional background their previous training and experience is assessed to ensure that they are competent to provide cognitive behavioural therapy and supervise trainees; these assessments are reviewed by regional clinical leads.

Many different professions are trained to deliver cognitive behaviour therapy including counsellors, nurses, occupational therapists, psychiatrists, social workers, as well as counselling and clinical psychologists. In 2008, 21 per cent. of qualified staff employed in IAPT service were clinical psychologists.

The IAPT programme has been proactive in recruiting newly qualified clinical psychologists as trainees therapists within IAPT services and 10 per cent. of high intensity trainees were clinical psychology graduates in 2008.

Advertisements will shortly be issued to appeal to those graduating this summer. Furthermore, clinical psychology courses are reviewing with the Deaneries how they might fulfil the requirements of IAPT in the future.

Information on average numbers of cognitive behaviour therapy sessions and drop out rates has not been collated nationally. New IAPT services collect the IAPT minimum data set which includes clinical outcomes measures and enables services manage patient care and monitor the flow of patients through services. The programme is currently developing a national data standard to enable the national collation of this data by 2011.

Mental Health Services: Elderly

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions he has had with (a) NHS organisations and (b) older people's charities on (i) the commissioning of specialist in-reach services from older people's mental health teams and (ii) the provision of mental health services for older people; and if he will make a statement. [260624]

Phil Hope: The Department has not held any recent discussions with national health service organisations and older people's charities on the commissioning of specialist in-reach services from older people's mental health teams and the provision of mental health services for older people.

Mesothelioma: Research

Lindsay Roy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department is spending on research on mesothelioma in 2008-09. [260591]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave the right hon. Member for Leeds, West (John Battle) on 11 February 2009, Official Report, column 2082W.

NHS Treatment Centres: Southampton

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department spent on legal services in relation to the contract for the new independent sector treatment centre in Southampton. [259939]

Mr. Bradshaw: Through the financial years 2006-07, 2007-08 and 2008-09, the Department has spent approximately £1 million on legal services for the Phase 2 independent sector treatment centre Hampshire and Isle of Wight scheme. This includes the contract for Southampton NHS Treatment Centre at the Royal Southampton Hospital and the Lymington part of the scheme which was withdrawn as a result of the revalidation process.

It is not possible to separate the costs for the Southampton contract itself, but legal costs for the entire scheme included advice on the procurement process, contract drafting and extensive negotiation with bidders. The proportion of legal costs to the contract value is in line with other public sector contracts with the private sector.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many operations took place at the independent sector treatment centre in Southampton in each month since its establishment. [259947]

Mr. Bradshaw: The number of operations by month carried out at Southampton Independent Sector Treatment Centre since its opening is shown in the following table.

Number of operations carried out at Southampton ISTC

	Month	Number of operations
2008	[1]November	581
2008	December	442
2009	January	553

[1] Includes activity undertaken in October 2008

NHS: Meals

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of meals were recorded as untouched in Estates Return Information Collection data for each NHS organisation in England in each year since 2002-03. [260848]

Ann Keen: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Food is left untouched or unserved for a variety of reasons, but generally this through the need to provide sufficient food to ensure a choice is available or through changing requirements of patients after the food orders have been made, for example changed clinical status, being discharged, moved or absent for treatment.

Since 2004-05, the data provided have not been collected on a mandatory basis and therefore will not be complete.

The data have been provided by national health service organisations to the Department and have not been amended centrally. The completeness and accuracy of these data are the responsibility of the provider organisation. Where no data or zero data was provided, the NHS trust has been omitted for brevity.

NHS: Research

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) medical research and (b) research on the development of medical treatment is being funded by the Department of Health. [261087]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department funds research and development through the National Institute for Health Research, a virtual institute set up to deliver the Government's health research strategy. The Institute provides the national health service infrastructure needed to promote patient involvement in health research and to translate scientific discoveries into new treatments; and supports programmes under which research focussed on improving health and care is commissioned. Details can be found at:

www.nihr.ac.uk

NHS: Working Hours

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date his Department commissioned Sheffield University to conduct research on the effects of the EU working time directive on the NHS; on what date the completed report was submitted to his Department; and if he will place in the Library a copy of that report. [259383]

Ann Keen: In November 2008, Sheffield university was commissioned by the Department to undertake a study on the effects of the European working time directive on the national health service.

The report was delivered 4 March 2009 to the Department. The Department will now consider this information together with the partner organisations who jointly commissioned the work and publish as soon as all comments are on board.

Surgery: Young People

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether a doctor is required to inform the parents of a child aged between 13 and 16 years in cases where the child requires an operation, other than termination of pregnancy; what guidance has been issued by his Department on this issue; and if he will make a statement. [259849]

Ann Keen: Doctors are not required to inform the parents of a child aged between 13 and 16 years where it is believed that the child requires an operation, and should not do so where this would breach the confidentiality of a child judged to be competent who has requested that parents should not be informed. It is best practice, however, for a doctor to encourage a child to involve parents in decisions about care and treatment, and where a child lacks competence the doctor must act in the best interests of the child, which would normally mean that parents should be told.

Guidance on confidentiality has been provided by the Department in its publication "Confidentiality: NHS Code of Practice" which is available at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Managingyourorganisation/Informationpolicy/Patientconfidentialityandcaldicottguardians/DH_4100550

A copy has already been placed in the Library.

Teenage Pregnancy

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of programmes intended to reduce the number of teenage pregnancies. [260790]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave on 3 March 2009, Official Report, column 1457W, to the hon. Member for Guildford (Anne Milton).

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps the Government is taking to tackle anti-social behaviour. [258856]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 2 March 2009]: Tackling antisocial behaviour has been a top priority for this Government since 1997. Under leadership of the Home Office Departments across Government (including the Ministry of Justice, the Department for Children, Schools and Families, and the Department for Communities and Local Government) are working together to combat it. Over the past 10 years we have introduced a wide range of tools and powers to tackle antisocial behaviour which are being used by practitioners to bring relief to communities across the country.

Last year we announced new initiatives for tackling ASB focusing on early intervention. These included the publication of a definitive guide for ASB practitioners and the establishment of a new action squad to help police and local agencies make full use of all the tools and powers available to tackle antisocial behaviour. We also introduced premises closure orders to allow police forces and local authorities to take action on premises which cause significant and persistent disorder or serious nuisance to the community. Strengthening the supportive and preventative tools is very important and from February this year we have introduced mandatory one-year review of antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) and extended the use of individual support orders (ISOs) for young people. The NAO report on Tackling Antisocial Behaviour in 2006 confirmed that our approach works. It found that 65 per cent. of people desisted from ASB after one intervention and nine out of 10 had desisted after three interventions.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders have been issued in the last five years in Greater London; and how many persons to whom such orders have been issued have demonstrated antisocial behaviour in that period. [258711]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The latest available data on the number of antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) issued is up to the end of 2006. Between 2002 and 2006 there were 1,498 ASBOs issued at all courts in Greater London. Details of the behaviour that led to the ASBO being made is not recorded centrally.

Antisocial Behaviour: Fixed Penalties

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effect of the introduction of penalty notices for disorder on the efficiency of police forces in England and Wales. [260065]

Mr. Coaker: We have made no overall assessment. It is a matter for the individual judgment of police officers and police community support officers whether they issue such notices under the guidance and instructions issued by their chief officers taking account of the Police Operational Guidance for Penalty Notices for Disorder issued by the Home Office in March 2005.

The "Diary of a Police Officer" was a study undertaken by PA Consulting in 2001 and published as Police Research Paper 149 in November 2001. Calculations based on the "Diary of a Police Officer" indicate that the time saved in issuing a PND compared to arrest and case preparation is about 7.6 hours for each PND issued in custody. A PND issued on the street would save 9.9 hours for each PND.

Antisocial Behaviour: Merseyside

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether her Department holds statistics on the number of occasions Merseyside police officers have returned children aged 16 years or under to their homes after nine o'clock at night from a designated area since the introduction of this power. [259477]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information received from Merseyside police for the period from 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2008 show that 73 children aged under 16 were returned to their homes after 9 pm from a designated area in that police force area.

Asylum: Employment

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers have applied for permission to work in the UK under European Directive 2003/9/EC since it was introduced; and how many of these applications have been (a) granted and (b) refused. [254613]

Mr. Woolas: Under the provisions of the European directive for reception of asylum seekers, since 5 February 2005 asylum seekers in the United Kingdom have been able to apply for permission to work when a decision on their asylum application has been delayed for at least one year and where that delay was not caused by the applicant. When such permission to work is given, it continues only until such time as the asylum claim is finally determined.

The requested information on the number of applications for permission to work under this arrangement and those granted and refused, is not collated and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost through examination of individual case records.

Closed Circuit Television

Mr. Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of closed circuit television cameras in each local authority area in England (a) in total, (b) operated by or on behalf of local authorities and (c) operated by or on behalf of police forces. [259526]

Mr. Alan Campbell: This information is not available centrally, although this is one of the areas that we will be considering through the National CCTV Strategy in the future.

The National CCTV Strategy was published by the Home Office in October 2007 and contains 44 recommendations designed to increase and measure the effectiveness of CCTV in the United Kingdom.

Crime Prevention: International Cooperation

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she has received representations seeking a review of the United Nations conventions on drug control which have been ratified by the UK; and what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of those conventions in meeting her Department's objectives on drug control. [256805]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Representations to review the United Nations conventions on drug control were made to the Government during the debate on 22 January, in another place, on the ten-year review of the 1998 United Nations Political Declaration on countering the world drug problem. On 25 February I met Baroness Meacher, Lord Cobbold and Chris Mullin MP for further discussion of the Government's approach to the ten-year review. The Government stands by the existing international drug control system under the three Conventions. It considers that the international system is a viable basis for control, and that there is no international consensus for reviewing them. The Government believes that the way forward is to build on existing international co-operation to improve the operation of the system.

Crimes of Violence

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the national violent crime rate was in (a) 2006, (b) 2007, (c) 2008 and (d) the last four months of 2008. [259514]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Victimisation surveys provide the best estimate of rates of violent crime because they include crimes not reported to or recorded by the police. There are separate surveys covering England and Wales (the British Crime Survey), Scotland (the Scottish Crime and Victimisation Survey) and Northern Ireland (the Northern Ireland Crime Survey). All of these surveys report findings on the basis of financial years rather than calendar years.

The violent crime rate per 10,000 adults for England and Wales in 2006-07 and 2007-08 can be found in Table 2.02 in the latest 'Crime in England and Wales 2007-08' publication, a copy of which is in the House of Commons Library.

The violent crime rate per 10,000 adults for Northern Ireland in 2006-07 and 2007-08 can be found in Table A6 in the 'Experience of Crime: Findings from the 2007-08 Northern Ireland Crime Survey' publication at the following link:

http://www.nio.gov.uk/nics_2007-08_experience_of_crime_bulletin.pdf

The violent crime rate per 10,000 adults for Scotland for 2005-06 can be found in Table A2.4 in the '2006 Scottish Crime and Victimisation Survey: Main Findings' publication at the following link:

http://openscotland.gov.uk/Resource/Doc/200037/0053443.pdf

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by (a) her Department and (b) its agencies was in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [256151]

Mr. Woolas: The requested information is not held by the Department.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 238W, on departmental ICT, how many staff in her Department and its agencies have the status of embedded communicators and are not listed in the Central Office of Information White Book. [258589]

Mr. Woolas: The following table gives details of embedded communicators (members of the Government Communication Network) in these grades not listed in the Central Office of Information White Book. The Identity and Passport Service does not recognise communication grades.

	Embedded communicators
Home Office crime reduction and community safety group	4
Office for security and counter-terrorism	5
UK Border Agency	14

Departmental Internet

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will publish a copy of her Department's website accessibility plan. [257224]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Office intends to comply with Level Double-A of the W3C Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (version 1.0 or the version 2.0 equivalent) by December 2009. A copy of the Home Office website accessibility policy is published at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/accessibility/

Departmental Sick Leave

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff in her Department were on sick leave for (a) over 30 days, (b) over 50 days and (c) over 100 days in each of the last five years. [256327]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Office management information database do not record sickness information in the categories requested and to obtain it would incur a disproportionate cost.

All Government Departments provide sickness absence data to the Cabinet Office which is subsequently published in annual sickness statistics. Sickness absence reports which contain information on the length of absences and date back to 2003 are available on the Cabinet Office website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/statistics/sickness.asp

Domestic Violence

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the Government's policy is on measures to reduce rates of domestic violence. [259552]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government's National Domestic Violence Delivery Plan provides the framework to tackle domestic violence. The plan ensures agencies work together to identify, track and risk assess domestic violence cases and better share information so that more offenders are brought to justice, victims are protected and better supported; and further violence is prevented.

One of the key outcomes in our National Domestic Violence Reduction Delivery Plan is to reduce the prevalence of domestic violence, particularly in high incidence areas and/or communities. We are revisiting our delivery plan to ensure a greater focus on prevention. An example would be exploring how to change attitudes and behaviours of key audiences.

One initiative which is currently being promoted through the school curriculum provides scope for education on addressing the underlying causes of violence and abuse relationships. One example is SEAL (social and emotional aspects of learning), which helps children develop their capacity to empathise, show respect and form positive relationships with other people. This can be expected to apply to any form of violent behaviour and thus prevent future incidences of domestic violence.

Domestic Violence: Females

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many female victims of (a) murder and (b) manslaughter as a result of domestic violence there have been in each year since 2002. [259547]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Available data relate to currently recorded offences of homicide where the victim's relationship to the principal suspect is 'partner or ex-partner' and were published in table 1.05 of "Homicides, Firearm Offences and Intimate Violence 2007/08" (HOSB 02/09).

Domestic Violence: Offences Against Children

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children under the age of 16 years have been (a) murdered by their parents or carers and (b) subject to manslaughter as a result of domestic violence in each year since 2002. [259548]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Available data relate to currently recorded offences of homicide where the victim's relationship to the principal suspect is 'son or daughter', and were published in table 1.04 of 'Homicides, Firearm Offences and Intimate Violence 2007-08' (HOSB 02/09).

Drugs: Crime

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what advice she has sought from addiction psychiatrists in formulating her policy on drug misuse. [257416]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government's drug strategy Drugs: protecting families and communities was published on 27 February 2008. The development of the strategy was informed by formal consultation of the public and experts in issues relating to drug misuse. The consultation document Drugs: Our Community, Your Say was launched on 25 July 2007, and the consultation period closed on 19 October 2007.

The Home Office received 1,001 formal written responses to the questions in the full consultation document and the shorter consultation leaflet. Responses were received from a wide range of bodies, including primary care trusts, mental health trusts, treatment services, and voluntary and community sector organisations, such as the Royal Society for the encouragement of Arts, Manufactures and Commerce (RSA). A full list of organisations providing formal responses to the consultation is included as an appendix in the consultation report, which is available to download at:

http://drugs.homeoffice.gov.uk/publication-search/drug-strategy/ipsos-moh-report

While addiction psychiatrists were not explicitly targeted through the consultation process, we can be confident that opportunities were provided for their views to have been represented in the returns received from those organisations responding to the consultation. The Home Office continues to engage experts in a range of fields through regular policy seminars covering issues across the full breadth of the strategy.

Drugs: Misuse

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department allocated for programmes to counter the misuse of illegal drugs in each year since 1997; and whether she plans to increase the funding available for such programmes. [259558]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Home Office direct investment in programmes to counter the misuse of illegal drugs and to reduce the harm caused by their use is identified in the Home Office Departmental Report. Figures for each year since 2000-01 are set out in the table.

These figures do not take account of complementary mainstream funding made available by the Home Office which local partnerships draw upon to support delivery of the drug strategy. They form only one element of total Government labelled expenditure on the drug strategy, which in 2008-09 is almost £1 billion. Overall total Government labelled expenditure on the drug strategy has continued to rise since 2000-01.

Changes in the classification of funding in Spending Review 2000 mean that comparison with previous years is not possible.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many non-British citizens have been convicted and subsequently imprisoned in relation to human trafficking offences in each of the last five years. [243319]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Figures from the UK Human Trafficking Centre show a total of 92 foreign nationals have been convicted and imprisoned for the offence of human trafficking.

Kent

Dr. Ladyman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much (a) revenue payment, (b) capital grant and (c) supported borrowing funding has been made available by her Department to (i) Kent county council, (ii) Thanet district council and (iii) Dover district council in 2008-09; and how much such funding is planned for 2009-10 in each case. [255089]

Mr. Woolas: The following information conveys the structural funding provided to local councils; it does not include any ad hoc grants paid to specific local councils for individual projects. To provide information to this level would incur disproportionate cost.

Local authority	Funding type	Fund	2008-09 (£)	Planned 2009-10 (£)
Kent county council	Revenue payment	Basic command unit fund	840,965	840,965
Kent county council	Revenue payment	Area based grant	1,984,100	1,984,100
Kent county council	Revenue payment	Drug intervention programme	1,406,770
Thanet district council	Revenue payment	Basic command unit fund	79,969	79,969

Local authority	Funding type	Fund	2008-09 (£)	Planned 2009-10 (£)
Kent county council	Capital grant	Safer stronger communities fund	514,269	514,269

* Not yet known.

A breakdown of other allocations to Thanet district council and allocations to Dover district council are not retained by the Home Office.

No supported borrowing funding has been provided to Kent county council or its constituent district councils by the Home Office.

Learning Disability: Females

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will bring forward proposals to amend legislation for which her Department is responsible to remove the term 'female defective' to define a woman with learning difficulties; and if she will make a statement. [259553]

Maria Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The term 'female defective' was used in section 7 and section 9 of the Sexual Offences Act 1956.

This term was considered as part of a major review of sexual offences which informed the Sexual Offences Act 2003. The review noted that this was an "insulting and unhelpful' term which stemmed from a bygone, unscientific age ("Setting the Boundaries", volume 2, published July 2000).

Section 7 and section 9 of the Sexual Offences Act 1956 were subsequently repealed when the Sexual Offences Act 2003 came into effect on 1 May 2004.

Members: Correspondence

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when a reply will be sent to the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood's email to the UK Border Agency of 30 January 2009 on behalf of Amina Mohammed Osman (Home Office Reference Number 01064728, acknowledgement reference B3194/9). [260079]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency wrote to the right hon. Member on 26 February 2009.

Ministers: Security

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost of special protection for Government Ministers and officials was in 2007-08. [259954]

Mr. Coaker: It is long established policy not to comment upon matters of personal protective security and their associated costs. Disclosure of such information could compromise the integrity of those arrangements and affect the security of the individuals concerned.

Offenders: Drugs

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of those arrested subsequently tested positive for Class A drugs in 2008; and what the level of voluntary take-up for treatment was. [259557]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Drug testing of offenders for specified Class A drugs (heroin and cocaine/crack) in police custody takes place in 107 BCUs. Offenders arrested or charged with a "trigger offence"—largely acquisitive crime related offences—are required to provide a sample to be tested.

The average rate of positive tests for specified Class A drugs for offenders arrested or charged with a trigger offence in 2007-08 was 38.7 per cent.

The figure for number of offenders entering treatment through DIP includes individuals from both DIP intensive areas (i.e. the 107 BCUs operating drug testing and related interventions) and the non intensive areas of the programme. Offenders from the DIP non intensive BCUs are not drug tested.

The data on the proportion of those who test positive and voluntarily agree to treatment is not available in the format requested. The Drug Interventions Programme does not routinely hold data on those entering treatment only as a result of a positive drug test.

In 2007-08 the number of offenders entering treatment voluntarily through the Drug Interventions Programme was 43,903.

Offensive Weapons

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of the knives used in knife crimes where convictions have been secured in the last 12 months were domestic or kitchen utensils. [249879]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information held centrally by the Ministry of Justice does not provide details of the weapon used. This information may be held on individual court records, but due to their size and complexity are not reported to the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. The cost involved investigating these court records would be disproportionate.

Olympic Games: China

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost was of policing the Olympic torch relay in London in April 2008; and if she will make a statement. [261577]

Mr. Coaker: The Metropolitan Police reported to the Metropolitan Police Authority that the costs of policing the relay event was £746,000.

Police Community Support Officers: Hemel Hempstead

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers operating in Hemel Hemsptead are

(a) funded wholly by Hertfordshire Police, (b) funded in part by Dacorum borough council and (c) funded wholly by Dacorum borough council. [260087]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information on contributions from local authorities to fund or part-fund PCSO posts is not collected centrally.

Police: Accountability

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government is taking to ensure transparency in the administration and operation of police forces. [258858]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 2 March 2009]: The Government are committed to ensuring that policing is transparent and responsive and are taking a number of steps to achieve this. Key to ensuring the operation of policing meets this ambition is the Policing Pledge, which has now been implemented in all 43 forces. The pledge sets out a national standard on what the public can expect from the police, underpinned in each area by a set of local priorities, agreed by people in each neighbourhood. The views of local people must also be considered in the drawing up of local policing priorities. These priorities must be contained in the three year policing plan that each police authority is required to produce annually, explaining how they intend the force to realise their objectives.

To bring more transparency to the administration of policing, this work will be supported by the new, more independent role or Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC), which will mean that information on the way policing is administered will be available to the public in a readily accessible way for the first time.

The Policing and Crime Bill seeks to improve both transparency and responsiveness in the operation and administration of policing by placing a new duty on police authorities to consider the views of the public in the exercise of their functions. It will also ask HMIC to consider the extent to which this duty has been met when they inspect a police authority.

Police: Deployment

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers will be deployed to police the G20 meeting in London in April; and what the estimated cost of policing the meeting is. [260281]

Mr. Coaker: This is a matter for the Chief Officers of the forces concerned.

Police: Firearms

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been paid to how many people under the compensation schemes pursuant to section 18 of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997. [258936]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Over £97 million has been paid out under the schemes in respect of 72,000 claims.

Risk Analysis UK

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 723W, on Risk Analysis UK, what use her Department made of (a) Kroll Associates, (b) Risk Analysis UK Ltd. and (c) other private investigators between June 2001 and May 2005; and for what purposes. [258588]

Mr. Woolas: From records the Home Department inclusive of its agencies has had no contracts with private investigators, Kroll Associates or Risk Analysis UK Ltd. between June 2001 and May 2005.

Security: Entertainers

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost was of policing the wedding of Jade Goody. [259203]

Mr. Coaker: This is an operational matter for the chief constable of Essex.

Theft: Metals

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) functions, (b) budget and (c) timetable for operations of the National Metal Theft Crime Unit are; and if she will make a statement. [260449]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 3 March 2009]: The National Metal Theft Crime Unit (NMTCU) is currently being piloted regionally. The unit will enforce compliance of scrap metal dealers with relevant existing legislation, including the Scrap Metal Dealers Act and Environmental legislation. The operation brings together all the agencies with enforcement powers around the scrap and waste recycling industry including, police, local authority, Environment Agency, HMRC, Trading Standards, Health and Safety. It will ensure compliance with existing legislation and demonstrate the positive affect of working with the legitimate businesses to reduce opportunities for thieves to dispose of their stolen material and profit from crime.

The budget for the NMTCU pilot is £175,000.

The regional pilot is running from 19 January to 31 March 2009.

Victim Support Schemes

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people she plans to appoint to work with the Victims' Champion; what budget her Department will provide for the Victims' Champion for 2009-10; and what arrangements have been made to enable the public to contact the Victims' Champion. [259622]

Maria Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

Ms Payne is supported by a dedicated team at the Office for Criminal Justice Reform comprising one full-time and one part-time (three days per week) members of staff. The budget for the Victims' Champion for this calendar year is £60,000.

Members of the public can contact the Victims' Champion via e-mail at:

victimschampion@cjs.gsi.gov.uk or in writing c/o Office for Criminal Justice Reform. These contact details are available to the public via the Home Office, Ministry of Justice or Attorney-General's Office. The Victims' Champion is keen to hear from members of the public but will not be taking on individual cases or complaints.

JUSTICE

Antisocial Behaviour: Fixed Penalties

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many times information concerning penalty notices for disorder has been disclosed in the context of seeking an anti-social behaviour order. [260069]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not available.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps are being taken to improve the consistency of use of penalty notices for disorder across police constabularies. [260072]

Mr. Straw: The Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 enables the Secretary of State to issue guidance about the exercise of the discretion given to police officers when issuing penalty notices for disorder. The current guidance is being revised with the aim of clarifying the circumstances in which a PND should, and should not, be issued.

Bail

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many convictions there were for breaching conditions imposed on bail in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; [260303]

(2) how many convictions there were for breach of bail in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008. [260491]

Maria Eagle: Information showing the number of defendants found guilty at all courts for failing to surrender to bail in England and Wales for 2006 and 2007 is in the following table. Data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

No found guilty data can be supplied for breaching bail conditions, as they do not constitute a criminal offence.

Number of defendants found guilty at all courts of "failing to surrender to bail" under section 6 of the Bail Act 1976, England and Wales, 2006 to 2007[1,2]

	Number
2006	27,564
2007	22,513

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Bail Accommodation and Support Service

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many (a) defendants and (b) offenders have been placed in the ClearSprings bail hostels located in the postcode areas (i) PE4 and (ii) PE2 since 1 April 2008; and if he will make a statement; [260910]

(2) pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Beaconsfield of 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 1164W, on the Bail Accommodation and Support Service, what steps the Bail Accommodation and Support Service took to advise the hon. Member for Peterborough of the identity of the local authority ward in which the two hostels in the PE4 postcode area operated by ClearSprings were to be brought into use; and if he will make a statement. [260911]

Mr. Hanson: Since 1 April 2008 a total of 17 defendants and 10 offenders have been placed at the two private addresses (one of which is reserved for women) provided by ClearSprings in the post code area PE4. Since the same date a total of 18 defendants and 18 offenders have been placed at the two private addresses in post code area PE2.

I wrote to the hon. Member on 10 April 2008 to advise him that accommodation for those on bail and Home Detention Curfew was available in his constituency and to explain the service. At that time it was not my practice to advise the Ward in which the service was located, but that has been my practice since later that month when advising hon. Members of new addresses being used in their constituency. The two properties in the PE4 postcode area, which are not hostels but private rented houses, are in Paston Ward.

Convictions

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the Answer of 25 February 2009, Official Report, column 835W, on convictions, how the Government determines what methodology is used to estimate the number of people with unspent convictions. [260604]

Maria Eagle: There are insufficient data to compile accurate statistics on the number of people with unspent convictions. Therefore no methodology has been established.

Were an attempt made to produce an accurate estimate this would require collating the sentences imposed for all convictions during the lifetimes of all those alive today (or a significant sample) and then assessing sentences against the periods specified in the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act to establish whether or not the convictions have become spent.

However, as explained in my answer of 25 February 2009, Official Report, column 836W, centralised data do not go back far enough to provide a basis for accurate estimates (centralised data only go back to 2000 with incomplete data for 1997-99 and no centralised data available from before 1997). Furthermore the data which do exist are stored in an inappropriate format for the purpose of the necessary calculations. Any calculation would be further complicated by the fact that the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act also covers foreign convictions (where in many cases the necessary data are unobtainable). Therefore the Government have not attempted to produce statistics on this area and do not intend to do so.

Crimes of Violence

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of defendants charged with (a) attempted murder, (b) manslaughter and (c) attempted rape were granted bail in (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008. [260301]

Maria Eagle: It is not possible to provide the requested information in respect of these individual offences. The annual publication "Criminal Statistics" contains estimates of the number of defendants in certain offence groups who were bailed by the courts. The listed offences are in the "Violence against the person" and "Sexual offences groups", for which the estimated number bailed in 2007 was 60,900 and 9,800 persons respectively ("Criminal Statistics, England and Wales", table 4.10). These figures include those also held in custody for some but not the whole period of the proceedings. Data for 2008 will be available later this year.

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many individuals were prosecuted for (a) attempted murder, (b) manslaughter and (c) attempted rape in (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008. [260302]

Maria Eagle: Information showing the number of persons proceeded against for attempted murder, manslaughter and attempted rape in England and Wales for 2006 and 2007 is shown in the following table. Data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts for attempted murder, manslaughter and attempted rape, England and Wales, 2006 and 2007[1,2]

Offence	2006	2007
Attempted murder	357	333
Manslaughter	114	105
Attempted rape[3]	232	224

Criminal Proceedings: Costs

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimates his Department has made of the average cost to the courts of dealing with an offence by (a) a caution, (b) a penalty notice for disorder and (c) a court case. [260008]

Maria Eagle: Her Majesty's Court Service (HMCS) do not issue cautions or penalty notices. Therefore HMCS is not able to provide an average cost for these actions.

The average cost of a court case will depend on whether it is heard in a magistrates court or Crown court. It will also depend on the amount of time taken to conclude the case and therefore is not able to calculate a generic average cost.

Departmental Absenteeism

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many staff of his Department were recorded absent for non-medical reasons on (a) 2 February 2009 and (b) 3 February 2009; what estimate he has made of the (i) cost to his Department and (ii) number of working hours lost due to such absence; and what guidance his Department issued to staff in respect of absence on these days. [260474]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice does not hold records centrally of non-medical absences. Gathering data on the numbers of staff who were absent for non medical reasons on 2 February 2009 and 3 February 2009 could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

General guidance was issued on the day to all managers and staff about the disruption caused by the extreme weather conditions where normal travel arrangements were affected by the weather. Each business area provided local advice to staff, and were then responsible for its implementation.

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much he has budgeted to spend on external consultants in 2009. [258680]

Maria Eagle: As part of the Ministry of Justice's ongoing Performance and Efficiency Programme (PEP) we have reviewed our use of consultants, reducing them where possible and further reductions are anticipated for subsequent financial years. While general departmental budgets for 2009-10 have been agreed, specific local budgets are still being negotiated at present to incorporate PEP savings. Therefore it is not possible to provide a figure for planned consultancy spend in 2009-10.

Driving: Licensing

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many drivers were stopped and fined in each region for driving on an expired licence in each of the last five years. [260868]

Maria Eagle: From information held on the Ministry of Justice Court Proceedings Database it is not possible to separately identify driving with an expired licence from other driving licence offences.

Judicial Appointments Commission for England and Wales: Recorders

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many applicants applying for the position of recorder with the Judicial Appointments Commission in 2008 were solicitors; and of these applicants how many (a) passed the test on 10 March 2008 and (b) were selected for appointment. [260426]

Mr. Straw: In 2008, the Judicial Appointments Commission ran a selection exercise for recorder appointments in the North, North East and Wales.

433 eligible applications were received; 89 from solicitors.

220 of the eligible applicants were shortlisted after passing the qualifying test; 42 of these were solicitors.

76 selections were made; seven of these were solicitors.

Of the 433 eligible applicants, 30 were salaried judicial officers holders who were formerly solicitors; 20 of these salaried judicial officers were shortlisted after passing the qualifying test and four of these salaried judicial officers were selected.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many applicants applying for the position of recorder with the Judicial Appointments Commission in 2008 described themselves as of (a) white ethnicity, (b) mixed ethnicity, (c) Asian or Asian British ethnicity, (d) Black or Black British ethnicity, (e) Chinese or Chinese British ethnicity and (f) of any other background; and how many of these applicants from each category (i) passed the test on 10 March 2008 and (ii) were selected for appointment. [260427]

Mr. Straw: The Judicial Appointments Commission (JAC) collects and publishes data on the ethnicity of eligible applicants for judicial office and publishes statistics on the progress of black and minority ethnic (BME) applicants. Statistics relating to the recorder selection exercise for the North, East and Wales were published on the JAC website on 20 February at:

http://www.judicialappointments.gov.uk/docs/Recorders_(Northern_North_Eastern_Wales)_2008.pdf

The JAC does not publish statistics relating to BME applicants which further breaks down ethnicity into individual categories, as this would risk the indirect identification of individuals, due to the small numbers contained in some data categories.

The conditions under which applicants provide diversity information include the assurance that their information will be held in confidence; that it will be used for statistical purposes only and; that it will not be used for making selection decisions. Applicants therefore have a reasonable expectation that their precise ethnic identification would remain confidential.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many applicants applying for the position of recorder with the Judicial Appointments Commission in 2008 were female; and of these applicants how many (a) passed the test on 10 March 2008 and (b) were selected for appointment. [260428]

Mr. Straw: In 2008, the Judicial Appointments Commission ran a selection exercise for recorder appointments in North, North Eastern and Wales.

433 eligible applications were received; 115 were women.

220 of those eligible applicants were shortlisted after passing the qualifying test; 57 were women.

76 candidates were selected, of whom, 24 were women.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many applications for the position of recorder the Judicial Appointments Commission received in 2008. [260429]

Mr. Straw: In 2008, the Judicial Appointments Commission ran a selection exercise for recorder appointments in the North, North East and Wales.

433 eligible applications were received.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to reply to the letters of (a) 15 December 2008 and (b) 15 January 2009 from the hon. Member for Billericay regarding Mrs. P. Hammond. [260866]

Mr. Malik: My noble Friend Lord Bach will write to the hon. Member shortly. I am sorry for the delay in replying.

Prison Sentences

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many offenders were given an indeterminate sentence for public protection in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008. [260334]

Mr. Hanson: In 2007, 1,750 indeterminate sentences for public protection were given. In 2008, 1,270 indeterminate sentences for public protection sentences were given, rounded to the nearest 10.

These figures are taken from the public protection unit database within the National Offender Management Service. As with any large scale recording system, it is subject to possible errors arising from either data entry or processing.

Prisons: Standards

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when the next prison performance ratings are due to be published; and for what reasons not all prisons in England and Wales had ratings published in the last quarter. [260431]

Mr. Hanson: The next prison performance ratings are due to be published for Quarter 3 for all prisons in England and Wales on the Ministry of Justice website in the week commencing 23 March. From time to time, some prisons will not be rated in a particular quarter and reasons for this can include the function of a prison having recently changed or, exceptionally, an absence of appropriate performance data to inform a rating.

Repossession Orders: Braintree

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many court orders have been issued for the repossession of homes in Braintree constituency in each of the last five years. [260381]

Bridget Prentice: Figures for Braintree constituency are not available. However, statistics on mortgage and landlord possession orders for county courts in the south east of England (1987-2008) are available via the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/docs/stats-landlord-mortgage-historic-20-02-09.xls

These include figures for Chelmsford and Colchester county courts, which are nearest to Braintree constituency.

The civil procedure rules state that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. However, geographical boundaries of county courts may not necessarily be consistent with other administrative or constituency boundaries. Repossession orders made at Chelmsford and Colchester county courts may therefore relate to properties in other constituencies besides Braintree.

These figures do not indicate how many homes have actually been repossessed. Repossessions can occur without a court order being made while not all court orders result in repossession.

Sentencing

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will take steps to raise awareness amongst the judiciary of community service alternatives to prison sentences. [259546]

Maria Eagle: While sentencing in individual cases is entirely a matter for the judiciary, the Government believe that prison should be reserved for serious, dangerous and seriously persistent offenders. However, prison may not be the most effective option for other offenders, who may better be punished in the community. The Government have ensured that tough non-custodial sentences are available. The Government have put mechanisms in place, both locally and nationally, to ensure sentencers are aware of the community services sentences that are available.

Shoplifting: Sentencing

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what percentage of (a) males and (b) females who were convicted of shoplifting received a (i) community sentence, (ii) custodial sentence and (iii) court fine in the last 12 months. [260062]

Maria Eagle: The available information is provided in the table.

Sentencing statistics 2008 will be published towards the end of 2009.

Percentage of offenders given sentence types for shoplifting offences, by sex, 2007

	Male	Female
Number of community sentences	14,844	5,699
Percentage of community sentences	32	37
Number of immediate custodial sentences	9,245	2,021
Percentage of immediate custodial sentences	20	13
Number of suspended sentences	2,357	755
Percentage of suspended sentences	5	5
Number of fines	7,875	1,955
Percentage of fines	17	13
Total sentenced	47,031	15,295

Notes:
1. These data are on the principal offence basis.
2. These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems.
3. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

Witnesses: Interviews

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what research his Department has conducted into provision for interviews with (a) witnesses and (b) vulnerable witnesses since 2002. [259563]

Maria Eagle: Neither the Home Office nor the Ministry of Justice have published research on witnesses in general.

The Home Office has published the following research since 2002 about special measures for vulnerable and intimidated witnesses which included consideration of the interview stage in relation to the use of video recorded statements admitted as evidence-in-chief:

"Are special measures working? Evidence from surveys of vulnerable and intimidated witnesses" Hamlyn B, Phelps A, Turtle J and Sattar G (London: Home Office Research Study No.283; June 2004) Available at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs04/hors283.pdf

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs06/rdsolr0106.pdf

Additionally the Ministry of Justice has published the following research about the intermediary special measure which can be used at the interview stage:

"The 'Go-Between': evaluation of intermediary pathfinder projects" Plotnikoff J and Woolfson R (London: Ministry of Justice Research Summary No. 1; June 2007).

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer of 26 February 2008, Official Report, column 1383W, on departmental data protection, what types of sensitive personal data are exchanged between his Department and local authorities; and for what general purposes. [253494]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department's formal registration with the Information Commissioner lists the types of personal data that are held by the Department and for what purposes, and the bodies with whom, that data may be shared. Local government is listed as a potential recipient for data held under three of the four broad purposes described in the registration. This does not mean that each of the listed types of data is always shared with local authorities: data are only shared where there is a legal power to do so, and a judgment that the sharing of data is both operationally necessary and proportionate. A fuller account of the Department's approach to the use of personal information is contained in "DWP and your personal information", which can be found on the Department's public website, and a copy of which has been placed in the Library.

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have (a) claimed and (b) received disability living allowance as a result of having a child with a behavioural problem in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [259482]

Jonathan Shaw: Entitlement to disability living allowance is not dependent on a diagnosis or condition but relies instead on the care and/or mobility needs arising. In the case of a child with a behavioural problem, needs may arise as a result of physical or mental complications.

Information about the number of claims for a child with a behavioural problem could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. The available information is in the table.

Disability living allowance: number of cases in payment for under 16-year-olds where a behavioural disorder is recorded as the main disabling condition

As at August each year	Number of cases
2001	44,700
2002	52,200
2003	59,500
2004	65,700
2005	70,200
2006	73,000
2007	75,600
2008	75,600

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest hundred and have been adjusted to be consistent with WPLS data.
2. Although the preferred data source for benefit statistics is 100 per cent. Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study, the 5 per cent. sample data have been used in this case because they provide some detail not yet available from the 100 per cent. data sources, in particular, more complete information on the disabling condition of disability living allowance claimants.
3. Where more than one disability is present only the main disabling condition is recorded.
4. These statistics are only collected for administrative purposes.
5. Totals show the number of people in receipt of an allowance, and exclude people with entitlement where the payment has been suspended, for example if they are in hospital.

Fuel Poverty

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his most recent estimate is of the number of households in (a) Darlington constituency, (b) County Durham and (c) England in which more than one individual receives the winter fuel allowance. [258258]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is in the table that follows.

The following table shows the total number of individuals who received a winter fuel payment and those who received a shared payment. Figures are for winter 2006-07, the latest year for which figures are available.

	Total number of payments	Shared payments
Darlington constituency	17,760	7,780
County Durham	105,610	47,330
England	10,028,780	4,732,410

Notes:
1. A shared payment is made if there is more than one person entitled in a household. If however, an entitled person is receiving pension credit, income-based jobseeker's allowance or income support then their payment is not shared. In these cases that person receives a full payment.
2. Figures from are rounded to the nearest 10.
3. Parliamentary constituencies and counties are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant ONS postcode directory.

Source:
Information directorate 100 per cent. data.

We expect that similar numbers of individuals will receive shared winter fuel payments in 2008-09.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many claimants of both incapacity benefit and employment support allowance were aged (a) under 30 years and (b) under 40 years old in the most recent year for which figures are available; and how many of them in each case had been in receipt of the benefits for five years or more. [259084]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department for Work and Pensions will be publishing National Statistics on Employment and Support Allowance in summer 2009. The available information is in the table.

	November 2007	February 2008	May 2008	August 2008

Five years and over	219,430	217,950	216,170	214,530

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Durations refer to incapacity benefit/severe disablement allowance awards.
3. Data are for GB and abroad.

Industrial Injuries: Compensation

Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make it his policy to establish a compensation scheme to make provision for the payment of employer liability claims for injury and illness which relate to employers whose insurers cannot be traced. [260503]

Mr. McNulty: The Government have no plans to introduce such a scheme but are fully committed to ensuring that people who become ill as a result of their work can receive the compensation to which they are entitled.

The Code of Practice for Tracing Employers' Liability Insurance Policies enables potential claimants to identify employer's liability policies which they need to claim against. The Department for Work and Pensions monitors the success rate of the Code of Practice, and works with insurers and claimant representatives to improve tracing success rates. For example, we have asked the Association of British Insurers to consider the feasibility of an electronic database for recording details of all future employers' liability insurance policies.

Jobcentre Plus: Labour Turnover

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Jobcentre Plus staff have been (a) recruited and (b) made redundant in each Jobcentre Plus region in each (i) year, (ii) month and (iii) quarter since 1 January 2006; and if he will make a statement. [249890]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking, how many Jobcentre Plus staff have been (a) recruited and (b) made redundant in each Jobcentre Plus region in each (i) year, (ii) month and (iii) quarter since 1 January 2006. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

I enclose the information requested. A copy has been placed in the Library.

Jobcentre Plus: Sutton

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the address is of each Jobcentre which has closed in the London borough of Sutton since 2002; on what date each closed; and if he will make a statement. [258542]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what the full address is of each jobcentre which has closed in the London borough of Sutton since 2002; on what date each closed; and if he will make a statement. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

On 5 January 2007 we closed Sutton Jobcentre at 240 High Street, Sutton, Surrey, SM1 1PA. This was replaced by the Sutton Jobcentre Plus office at Helena House, 348 High Street, Sutton, Surrey, SM1 1PX which we opened on 9 January 2007.

Jobcentre Plus: Telephone Services

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many calls were received by each Jobcentre Plus call centre in each of the last 24 months; and what the (a) average waiting time for calls to be dealt with and (b) number of dropped calls was in each call centre in each of those months. [251407]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 26 January 2009]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked the acting chief executive to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many calls were received by each Jobcentre Plus call centre in each of the last 24 months; and what the (a) average waiting time was for such calls to be dealt with in each month; and (b) how many dropped calls there were in each month. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Information about the average waiting time for calls to be dealt with is not available at individual Call Centre level. Information about how many calls were answered or abandoned is only available at site level until July 2008 when our network became virtual. This means the network of 33 sites operates as a single network so the number of calls answered is only available at national level. I have placed the available information in the Library.

Lehman Brothers: Pensions

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what requests have been made to the Pension Protection Fund in respect of employees of Lehman Brothers by the Lehman Pension Fund Trustees. [260370]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 2 March 2009]: Following a qualifying insolvency event the Lehman Brothers pension scheme entered an assessment period on the 15 September 2008. The assessment period will last for a minimum of one year and could be longer. Disclosure of scheme-specific information is restricted under section 197 of the Pensions Act 2004.

During the assessment period, the Lehman Brothers pension fund trustees retain responsibility for the administration of the scheme and for communicating with and making pension payments to scheme members. The trustees must continue to act in the interests of all the scheme members. However, during an assessment period, various restrictions and controls will apply in relation to the scheme. In particular, pensions will be restricted to pension protection fund compensation levels.

During the assessment period the Pension Protection Fund will work with the trustees to establish whether the scheme has sufficient assets to pay benefits at least as good as PPF compensation. The PPF will in particular seek to pursue any debts owed to the scheme.

Roscommon Way Extension

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment has been made of the effect of the Roscommon Way Extension on Canvey Island on the (a) pipelines and (b) other major accident hazard sites in its vicinity; and if he will make a statement. [259636]

Jonathan Shaw: The Health and Safety Executive has made no assessments of the impact of the Roscommon Way Extension on Canvey Island on major accident hazard sites or pipelines in its vicinity.

Social Security Benefits

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the processing time for each new benefit claim was, broken down by benefit type in each of the last 24 months; [249280]

(2) how many new benefit claims waiting to be processed there were in each of the last 24 months, broken down by benefit type. [249281]

Kitty Usher [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The number of outstanding claims provides a snapshot of claims that are waiting to be processed at the end of the month. It is entirely possible that claims outstanding at the end of the month will be processed within the average actual clearance time target.

The available information is in the following tables.

Social Security Benefits: Interest Rates

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what factors are taken into account in determining the interest rate assumption for calculating entitlement to benefits. [253642]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The first £6,000 of capital (£10,000 for those in care homes) is fully disregarded in the income related benefits: income support, jobseekers allowance (income based), employment support allowance (income based) pension credit, housing benefit and council tax benefit.

The formula for calculating the amount of notional income assumed from capital in the income related benefits is not intended to represent any rate of return that could be obtained from investing capital. It provides a simple method of calculating the weekly contribution that people with capital in excess of the level of the disregard are expected to make from their resources to help meet their normal living costs. As there is no link with actual market rates, the tariff income rates within the income related benefits remained unaltered throughout the period of rising interest rates, just as they have done more recently, when interest rates have been lower.

On the introduction of income support in 1988, there was a capital disregard of £3,000 and an upper capital limit of £6,000. Notional income was assumed on capital between these amounts at a rate of £1 for each £250 or part of £250. The rate of tariff income applied to capital in pension credit, which was introduced in 2003, is half the rate of tariff income applied to capital in income support, at £1 for each £500 or part of £500.

Upon the introduction of pension credit the rate of tariff income applied to capital housing benefit and council tax benefit for those people who have attained the qualifying age for pension credit was also changed to come into line with that which is applied to pension credit.

Unemployed: New Businesses

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department has taken to assist unemployed people to start their own businesses. [260188]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 2 March 2009]: The Department offers a self-employment programme to long-term jobseekers through the new deal. This programme offers business advice and, for those who need it, up to six months of 'test trading'. During test trading the jobseeker receives support from an expert provider and may remain on benefits.

From October, the flexible new deal will start to replace the current suite of new deal programmes, from which point flexible new deal providers will be responsible for deciding how best to help those jobseekers who wish to become self-employed.

The Government want to do as much as they can to help people through this economic downturn. From April, further help will be available to all those who have been out of work and claiming jobseeker's allowance for six months or more. Working with Business Link in England and through the devolved Administrations, the Government will provide access to short, focused courses on self employment for a wide range of customers. For those who are successful in moving into self-employment, financial support will be offered during the first few months of trading while customers get their businesses going.

Vocational Guidance: Autism

Angela Browning: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the contribution of 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 188, on the Welfare Reform Bill to the hon. Member for Erewash (Liz Blackman), if he will place in the Library a copy of the procedures to be followed by job advisers in helping people with autistic spectrum disorder into work. [258027]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question requesting that a copy of the procedures to be followed by job advisers in helping people with autistic spectrum disorder into work, be placed in the Library. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

There is no single set of procedures to be followed by advisers which are solely focused on helping people with autistic spectrum disorder into work. Jobcentre Plus policy is to develop our people in the skills required to manage a range of behaviours demonstrated by customers, covering a variety of health conditions. This approach ensures that they are equipped to deal with a diverse set of circumstances whilst treating customers as individuals. Skilled employment advisers look at the interaction between the person, the job and an individual's ability. Advisers ensure that job goals relate to the person's abilities and that relevant solutions are identified in order to overcome any barriers a customer might face in a particular job.

The learning programme for Jobcentre Plus advisers focuses on raising awareness of the customer's personal circumstances and the impact on their ability to move into a sustainable job. Jobcentre Plus also recognises that disabilities and health conditions can affect individuals in different ways. Guidance for advisers includes background information on a number of conditions, including Autistic Spectrum Disorder, the implications for interviews and how to use questioning techniques in order to support customers. Disability Employment Advisers, who focus on customers needing more extensive support, receive further levels of skills training appropriate to their customers, including skills practice in interviewing an autistic person to ensure key learning points are communicated in an effective way.

I have placed in the Library copies of the autism guide notes for advisers and those for Disability Employment Advisers.

The Department for Work and Pensions is a Gold member of the Employers Forum on Disability and will be fully engaged with a forthcoming autism telephone tutorial being held by the Forum on 2 April 2009. Jobcentre Plus staff will be encouraged to access this event and it will be publicised on the Jobcentre Plus intranet site, so that full advantage of this learning opportunity is taken. This will help develop an even greater understanding of autism and the issues related to employment. I will also ensure that any developments which come from the question and answer sessions are made available to advisers.

Vocational Training: East Riding

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what Government-funded re-training courses are available for people in the East Riding of Yorkshire who are not eligible for the Rapid Response Service; what qualifications these courses can lead to; and if he will make a statement. [254042]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 3 February 2009]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what Government-funded re-training courses are available for people in the East Riding of Yorkshire who are not eligible for the Rapid Response Service and what qualifications these courses can lead to. These are issues that fall within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus is able to access a combination of Government and European Social Funding to offer training for people who find themselves unemployed. I am pleased to tell you that our Regional Minister, Rosie Winterton, recently announced that across Yorkshire and the Humber, Rapid Response Service funding can now be offered to any individual losing their job due to redundancy.

In East Riding of Yorkshire, Jobcentre Plus Advisers are able to refer customers to a range of training provision delivered by our providers Working Links, In Training, A4E and East Riding College. They offer short duration training, mixing accredited and non-accredited provision that is relevant to the local labour market. Qualifications available include health and hygiene certificates, safety passports, fork lift driving licences, manual handling certificates, SIA licences to allow people to work in the security industry as well as help with literacy and numeracy.

The same provision helps individuals with the soft skills that employers look for such as self presentation and team work. Our approach reflects what local employers tell us they look for in their recruitment, through Sector Skills Councils and other representative organisations.

In addition, the Learning Skills Council (LSC) fully funds any first level 2 qualification and many level 3 qualifications. These are delivered through a mixture of Further Education Colleges, private sector and community based providers and can be delivered full time or part time to best suit the individual.

People who become unemployed, or those under threat of redundancy, can get impartial information, advice and guidance about qualifications and training they need to move into their chosen career from the LSC funded Next Step service. This is actively promoted by Jobcentre Plus advisers.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to answer question 251164, tabled on 21 January 2009, on payment of jobseeker's allowance to prisoners on release. [256925]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 February 2009]: I replied to the hon. Member's question on 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 354W.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database at (a) Anderson House, (b) Heron House, (c) St David's House, (d) Delta House, (e) Royal Exchange House, (f) Civic House, (g) Capital Tower, (h) St Mary's House and (i) Atholl House is in 2008-09. [258533]

Mr. McFadden: The estimated costs for business rates for vacant space in the buildings covered by the question, as at 24 February 2009, are as listed:

(a) £11,088
(b) Not vacant
(c) £3,539
(d) £3,270
(e) Not vacant
(f) £17,761
(g) Not vacant
(h) £32,940 (partially vacant)
(i) Not vacant

Import Duties: USA

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions his Department has had with the US administration on trade tariffs. [259880]

Mr. Thomas: The Government have regular contact with the US Administration on a range of issues, including trade policy and tariffs. We will continue to press strongly for no new protectionist measures, including tariff increases, and for effective advocacy of open markets and their importance.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to Question 256515, tabled on 9 February 2009, when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Chelmsford of 24 November 2008 on his constituent Mr. Alan Briggs of Walford Place, Chelmsford. [261078]

Mr. McFadden: I responded to the hon. Member on 27 February.

Prince Andrew

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will place in the Library a copy of the report of the review undertaken by PricewaterhouseCoopers into the activities of HRH the Duke of York in his capacity as UK Special Representative for International Trade and Investment. [259351]

Mr. Thomas: The PricewaterhouseCoopers report is a private report and a matter for HRH the Duke of York.

A copy of the report is not held by either BERR or UK Trade and Investment (UKTI).

Royal Mail: Finance

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much revenue he estimates would be received from the sale of 30 per cent. of Royal Mail. [261154]

Mr. McFadden: The consideration received as a result of any partnership arrangements will be subject to commercial negotiation with the chosen partner. It is not appropriate to provide an estimate at this stage.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Fuel Poverty

6. Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent assessment he has made of progress towards meeting the Government's 2010 and 2016 targets for reducing fuel poverty. [260727]

Joan Ruddock: While the Government believe they continue to do all that is reasonably practicable to reduce fuel poverty by the target dates, we recognise that the current mix of fuel poverty measures is unlikely to eradicate fuel poverty among the vulnerable by 2010. Driven by the effect of higher energy prices on fuel poverty numbers and by the Government's more ambitious aims for reducing carbon emissions, we are undertaking a review of fuel poverty policies and objectives. Initial findings of this review are expected in the summer.

Domestic Heating Oil

7. David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent representations he has received on the price of heating oil for domestic use; and if he will make a statement. [260728]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Unsurprisingly, the Government have received frequent representations on the price of domestic heating oil when it increases, especially following the dramatic rise in crude oil prices during 2008.

The price trend of the last few months has been down. Changes in exchange rates have offset some of the falls that might otherwise have occurred, but prices are now around 50 per cent. below their peak in July 2008 and at their lowest level for more than 18 months.

Combined Heat and Power

8. Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the contribution of combined heat and power to meeting the Government's targets for reducing carbon dioxide emissions. [260729]

Joan Ruddock: Combined heat and power has an important role to play in moving the UK towards a thriving, competitive, low-carbon economy. An assessment of its potential in the UK was published by DEFRA in October 2007. We launched a consultation on 12 February on the draft Heat and Energy Efficiency strategy, which will examine the role of combined heat and power in meeting our forthcoming carbon budgets and other targets for reducing carbon dioxide emissions.

Nuclear Generation

9. Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent assessment he has made of the role of nuclear generation in the provision of a balanced energy supply in the next 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [260730]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: In the Nuclear White Paper the Government made clear their view that new nuclear has a vital role to play in the UK's future energy mix. Nuclear is a low-carbon energy source and can help address the twin challenges of tackling climate change and ensuring the security of energy supply.

We are taking active steps to facilitate early deployment of new nuclear build in the UK, by increasing certainty for investors and removing unnecessary obstacles.

Gas Storage

10. Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what his most recent estimate is of the volume of gas stored in the UK. [260731]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: National Grid publishes levels of gas storage stocks on its website, and these figures are updated on a daily basis. Following increases in the amount of gas storage volume last week, as at 3 March 2009, the total volume of gas storage stocks in the UK was 1.26 billion cu m. The UK's total gas storage capacity is approximately 4.4 billion cu m. At this stage of the winter that is what we would expect. Gas storage is there to be used.

Home Energy Efficiency

11. Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether he plans to increase his Department's support for home energy efficiency measures. [260732]

Joan Ruddock: On 12 February we published a Heat and Energy Saving Strategy consultation on the Government's long-term vision for dramatically increasing the energy efficiency of our homes and businesses and expanding the provision of low carbon heat. We are also consulting on a 20 per cent. increase to the existing household carbon saving obligation on energy suppliers and on introducing a new £350 million community programme to deliver carbon abatement measures to households in deprived communities.

Renewable Energy Generation

12. Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what progress has been made towards the Government's 2020 targets for renewable energy generation; and if he will make a statement. [260733]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend, East (James Duddridge) earlier today.

Domestic Energy Tariffs

13. Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of likely changes to domestic energy tariffs in 2009; and if he will make a statement. [260735]

17. Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of likely changes to domestic energy tariffs in 2009; and if he will make a statement. [260739]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: One of the six largest energy suppliers has already reduced its prices, and a further four have announced that they will do so from the end of March. Recent high prices have been driven mainly by unprecedentedly high wholesale costs for both gas and electricity, which make up around 60 per cent. of the cost of an average domestic bill. Ofgem's estimations of the suppliers' purchasing strategies show that the supply companies' costs peaked towards the end of 2008 and, on the basis of current forward wholesale prices, are expected to decline throughout 2009. Ofgem are now reporting on a quarterly basis on the link between wholesale and retail energy prices as it is vitally important that energy suppliers pass further savings on to their customers.

Pre-Payment Meters

14. Mr. Devine: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent discussions he has had with energy suppliers on their use of pre-payment meters; and if he will make a statement. [260736]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and I have met all energy suppliers over the past months on a number of occasions. At these meetings, we have made clear that suppliers should not improperly discriminate against customers due to their method of payment. Ofgem has recently consulted on how best to do this, and we await with interest the outcome of this consultation.

Global Warming

15. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent assessment he has made of the scientific evidence for global warming. [260737]

Joan Ruddock: The most recent comprehensive report assessing the scientific evidence for global warming is the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change's Fourth Assessment Report, published in 2007. In December 2008, at the Government's request, the Committee on Climate Change reported to Government on the nature of the climate change threat and recommended actions that the UK should undertake. We continue to commission research from the Met Office Hadley Centre and others on climate change.

Kingsnorth Power Station

16. Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what his policy is on the proposed new generating units at Kingsnorth power station; and if he will make a statement. [260738]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The application by E.ON UK Plc for consent under section 36 of the Electricity Act 1989 for a 1600MW coal fired generating station is currently with the Department. A decision on the application will follow the conclusion of both the consultation of carbon capture readiness and the planned new consultation on a new framework for coal fired power stations.

Carbon Emissions: Research

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the future skills needs of low-carbon, resource-efficient industrial sectors. [256464]

Joan Ruddock: In 2008, the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs commissioned a review of the evidence of the skills that are, or will be, needed for a low carbon resource-efficient economy. The review was commissioned to identify gaps in the evidence base and help inform policy development in this area, and as such no evaluation of it has been commissioned. However, the review's conclusions are being discussed with stakeholders.

Fossil Fuels: North Sea

Mr. Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps he is taking to maximise the supply of oil and gas from the North Sea and the UK continental shelf. [260726]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: With around 20 billion barrels, or more, remaining, there is plenty of life left in the North sea. Our 25th licensing round produced the highest number of licenses ever offered—171 to 99 companies, industry continues to respond strongly to our initiatives to stimulate activity via licensing innovations, releasing fallow acreage and boosting production from older fields. With industry, we will continue to squeeze as much from the North sea as possible for years to come.

Green Neighbourhoods Initiative

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many communities have had environmentally-friendly improvements sponsored by the Green Neighbourhoods Initiative. [254124]

Joan Ruddock: The Government announced in April 2008 their intention to launch a new green neighbourhoods programme. We asked the Energy Saving Trust to develop a community-based approach which would help up to 100 selected neighbourhoods in England reduce their carbon footprints by 60 per cent. The scheme is currently still in development and we will be making decisions shortly on its future.

Liquefied Petroleum Gas

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent discussions he has had with energy suppliers on the availability of liquefied petroleum gas. [260734]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: There are a large number of LPG suppliers and the Department hopes to meet their trade groups in due course.

Warm Front Scheme

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of public expenditure on grants to individual households for (a) renewable energy installations and (b) energy efficiency measures over the next six years. [257668]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 23 February 2009]: The Low Carbon Buildings Programme (LCBP) Phase 1 provides grants to householders to install renewable and low carbon technologies. It aims to run through to June 2010 for new applications and the current forecast for grant commitment is:

2009-10	4,590,000
2010-11	3,165,000

The largest energy efficiency programme in the household sector is carbon emission reduction targets (CERT), which runs from 2008-11 and which is paid for by energy suppliers, not Government. We estimate that, over 2008-11, energy suppliers will pay around £3.2 billion for this programme although they may reach their carbon saving target at lower cost than expected. In addition, the decent homes programme supports social housing in England only and around £250 million was spent on energy efficiency in social housing during EC2 (2005-08) and the CERT calculations are based on the assumption that this level of commitment will continue until 2011.

In terms of the warm front scheme, the funding for the current period (2008-11) is set at £959 million. Current estimates suggest that the scheme will complete approximately 266,000 heating jobs and 210,000 insulation jobs in this period. It is not possible to provide projections relating to spend after this time.

The policy landscape for energy saving after 2011-12 is not yet fixed. The Government recently released the heat and energy saving strategy for consultation, which outlines the various options and some of these are based on continued commitments from energy suppliers.

Warm Front Scheme: Lighting

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assumptions his Department makes in calculating the carbon abatement accruing from the provision of energy efficient light bulbs under the Warm Front scheme. [255882]

Joan Ruddock: Warm Front is estimated to save an average of 1.3 tonnes of CO_2 per year for every household assisted. This figure is calculated using the industry standard software, and as such no assumptions are made by the Department about the impact of individual measures.

TREASURY

Air Passenger Duty

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to abolish air passenger duty; and what scheme will replace it. [260904]

Angela Eagle: The Government have no plans to abolish air passenger duty.

Banks: Credit

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the vulnerability of UK financial institutions to credit default swaps. [260212]

Mr. Timms: As the memorandum of understanding between HM Treasury, the Bank of England and the Financial Services Authorities (FSA) sets out, it is the FSA that is responsible for prudential supervision of individual banks.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what credit default swaps (a) have been issued in the last five years and (b) are held by each bank regulated by the Financial Services Authority. [260263]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury does not hold this information.

Banks: Pay

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate his Department has made of the rate of change in salaries of company directors and senior executives as a result of salary pay review boards; and if he will make a statement. [260424]

Mr. Timms: The salaries paid to company directors and senior executives in the private sector are a matter for the boards of those companies, their remuneration committees and their shareholders.

The Directors' Remuneration Report Regulations 2002 require quoted companies to publish a report on directors' remuneration as part of its annual reporting process and give shareholders a vote on that report. This enables shareholders to hold companies accountable for their remuneration policies.

Banks: Regulation

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of public opinion on the arrangements introduced by his Department for the management of its controlling interest in banks where UK Financial Investments is on the board. [260194]

Angela Eagle: The Chancellor receives a wide range of representations on issues relating to banks in receipt of public funds.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward legislative proposals to empower the customers, employees and borrowers of banks to appoint directors of their banks. [260405]

Angela Eagle: The Companies Act 2006 lays down the procedures for the appointment of company directors to represent the interests of shareholders.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward legislative proposals to require bank directors to return the bonuses and share options that they received during 2006, 2007 and 2008. [260407]

Mr. Timms: The Government have ensured that none of the banks accessing the recapitalisation scheme awarded cash bonuses for 2008 to board members, and the Government approve the terms of remuneration for senior executives at banks in temporary public ownership.

Banks' future remuneration policies must be based on long-term sustainable performance in the interests of shareholders, taking proper account of risk.

Banks: Sponsorship

Gordon Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to reduce expenditure by banks in receipt of public support on their existing and proposed sponsorship arrangements. [260909]

Mr. Timms: Decisions about sponsorship are commercial matters for the boards of each bank.

Beer: Sales

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the monetary value of beer sales in (a) the on-trade and (b) the off-trade was in each year since 1998; [260493]

(2) how much the Exchequer received in taxes and duties on beer (a) sold in the on-trade, (b) sold in the off-trade and (c) from other sources in each year since 1998. [260496]

Angela Eagle: Estimates of the monetary value of beer sales in the on-trade and off-trade are shown in the following table. Data for 2008 are not yet available.

Value of beer sales

		£ million
	On-trade	Off-trade
1998	13,789	3,671
1999	14,169	3,804
2000	14,087	3,821
2001	14,409	3,964
2002	14,836	4,064
2003	15,329	4,233
2004	16,280	4,245
2005	16,690	4,201
2006	17,097	4,319
2007	16,074	4,417

Duty on beer is paid by breweries and not by retailers. As a result, HMRC statistics do not have a breakdown of taxes and duties collected on beer between the on-trade and off-trade. An estimate of this breakdown has not been produced, as excise duty revenues on beer depend on beer volumes and their strength, while VAT revenues on beer depend on the value of beer sales.

Total beer duty is published in the HMRC Beer and Cider Duties National Statistics bulletin, a copy of which can be found at:

https://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=bullbeer

Capital Gains Tax

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the additional revenue which would accrue to the Exchequer if capital gains were taxed at the basic rate of income tax in 2009-10. [259673]

Mr. Timms: A reform of this kind would result in a large behavioural response and such estimates are susceptible to a wide margin of error. A broad estimate of the eventual steady state impact, taking account of the likely taxpayer response to such a change and assuming that the annual exempt amount would continue to exist under this kind of reform, is additional receipts in the order of £200 million a year by comparison with the current capital gains tax (CGT) regime. This estimate should be viewed with caution, as the comparison point is the new 18 per cent. rate of CGT for which data are not yet available.

Child Support

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward proposals for temporary increases in levels of child benefit, tax-free child allowances, and child tax credits to help workers with families currently on short-time working. [261639]

Mr. Timms: Tax credits are a flexible, responsive system of financial support that adjusts to people's circumstances. Shortened working hours that have the effect of reducing a household's income may lead to a higher tax credits award, provided that the household continues to meet the normal eligibility conditions for tax credits.

In December 2008, 412,000 households were benefiting from an increased tax credits award because of a fall in income compared to their previous year's income. To receive any additional support, households need only notify HMRC of their changed circumstances.

In addition to this responsive support, the Government have already brought forward extra help for families in the economic downturn. In January 2009, Child Benefit was increased to £20 per week for the first child, bringing forward the increase originally planned for April. The child element of child tax credit will increase by £75 above indexation from April 2009, bringing forward the £25 increase originally planned for April 2010 and building on the Government's original commitment to a £50 increase. The Government will announce any further changes to tax and benefits rates in the Budget.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department has allocated for staff bonuses in 2008-09. [252249]

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many officials of (a) his Department, (b) the Financial Services Authority and (c) the Bank of England will receive bonuses during 2008-09; how much will be paid in bonuses to staff of each; and if he will make a statement. [259011]

Angela Eagle: The Financial Services Authority (FSA) and the Bank of England are operationally independent of Government. The payment of non-consolidated performance awards to staff is a matter for these organisations.

Details of performance payments made by the Treasury Group in 2008-09, and on the performance pay awarded to individual members of the Treasury Board, will be included in the Treasury Group's Annual Report and Accounts later this year.

For 2008-09, up to 2 per cent. of HM Treasury's total pay bill is available for non-consolidated payments related to performance. Such payments are funded within existing pay bill controls and have to be re-earned each year.

Departmental Postal Services

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what percentage of letters sent by his Department were given to (a) the Royal Mail and (b) another postal services provider for delivery in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [259975]

Angela Eagle: A total of 61,372 items were sent in the past 12 months. Of these 54,744 were transmitted by Royal Mail (89 per cent.) and 6,628 by other postal service providers (11 per cent.) including the Government Car and Dispatch Agency.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 28 January 2009, Official Report, column 586W, on departmental training, what the cost of the three courses was; and which Ministers attended each course. [260392]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 11 February 2009, Official Report, column 2102W.

Excise Duties: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue has accrued to the Exchequer from the tax on the sale of (a) beer and (b) other alcoholic drinks sold in public houses in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [261069]

Angela Eagle: Duty on alcohol is paid by alcohol manufacturers and not by retailers. As a result, HMRC statistics do not have figures for taxes and duties collected on beer and other alcoholic drinks sold in public houses. An estimate of this breakdown has not been produced, as excise duty revenues depend on alcohol volumes and in some cases alcoholic strength, whilst VAT revenues depend on the value of alcohol sales.

Total alcohol duty revenues are published in HMRC National Statistics bulletins for all alcohol types, copies of which can be found at:

https://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=Bulletins

Income Tax

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people on half (a) mean and (b) median income have paid income tax in each of the last 12 years. [259410]

Mr. Timms: Estimates of the number of taxpayers for the period 1996-97 to 2006-07 with total income at or below half of the mean and median are in the following table.

Individuals

	Half of mean income (£)	Taxpayers with total income at or below half of the mean annual income (million)	Half of median income (£)	Taxpayers with total income at or below half of the median annual income (million)
1996-97	5,810	3.3	4,210	0.8
1997-98	6,110	3.6	4,440	0.9
1998-99	6,580	3.3	4,720	0.6
1999-2000	6,780	3.1	4,970	0.7
2000-01	7,470	4.6	5,280	1.2
2001-02	7,790	4.2	5,570	1.1
2002-03	7,820	4.1	5,790	1.3
2003-04	8,110	4.4	5,980	1.6
2004-05	8,530	5.0	6,280	1.7
2005-06	8,780	4.9	6,480	1.7
2006-07	9,150	5.1	6,750	1.8

These estimates are based on the number of people facing tax liabilities. The estimates of taxpayers are based upon the Survey of Personal Incomes (SPI). Estimates of half of mean and median income are at individual level and have been derived from the Family Resource Survey (FRS).

Some families have their tax liabilities offset by tax credits. Estimates based on the 2006-07 FRS show that there were:

around 4.1 million taxpaying families with income at or below half the mean family income. Of these, around 0.2 million families were entitled to more tax credits than their income tax liabilities; and around 1.3 million taxpaying families with income at or below half the median family income. Of these, around 30,000 families were entitled to more tax credits than their income tax liabilities.

Caution should be exercised in drawing trends from these figures because sample estimates can demonstrate a large variability from year to year and the definitions of income from the two surveys are not necessarily the same.

Similar information for other years is not available.

Income Tax: Charitable Donations

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he has undertaken an assessment of the likely effect of the proposed new 45 per cent. income tax rate on the level of charitable donations. [258373]

Mr. Timms: Impact assessments for changes in rates of tax are not ordinarily produced unless there are also significant changes to administrative costs and benefits.

Lloyds TSB: Halifax Bank of Scotland

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what advice his Department received from the Financial Services Authority on the merger of Lloyds TSB and HBOS before the merger took place: [260592]

(2) what alternatives to the merger with Lloyds TSB his Department considered for HBOS. [260593]

Angela Eagle: The Financial Services Authority, the Bank of England and HM Treasury all undertook detailed assessments of the impact of the problems at HBOS on the stability of the UK financial system. This included consideration of alternative options for responding to those problems.

Our positions were set out in detail in the representations we made to the OFT on the relevance of the proposed merger between HBOS and Lloyds TSB to the public interest of stability in the UK financial system. Those representations were attached to the OFT's subsequent report to the Secretary of State for BERR who was required to take a decision on whether to clear the merger or refer it to the Competition Commission.

A non-confidential version of the OFT's report and attached representations has been published and may be found on the BERR website.

Minimum Wage

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps HM Revenue and Customs plans to take to increase levels of compliance by businesses with the national minimum wage. [259882]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are committed to simple, effective enforcement of the national minimum wage (NMW) which removes the unfair competitive advantage that a small minority of businesses seek to gain by not paying the NMW. From 6 April this year, new measures brought under the Employment Act 2008, which aim to increase compliance, include:

new automatic penalties of up to £5,000 for employers found not to be complying with the NMW;

a new system for calculating repayment of arrears of NMW to a worker which takes account of the length of time the arrears have been outstanding; and greater powers for officers enforcing the NMW in obtaining records.

Revenue and Customs: Absenteeism

Mr. Liddell-Grainger: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of working days was lost to absenteeism in HM Revenue and Customs call centres in each of the last five years. [260330]

Mr. Timms: HMRC contact centres are able to provide average working days lost to sickness, for the equivalent of each full-time member of staff, in the last four fiscal years.

Fiscal year	Average working days lost
2004-05	20.61
2005-06	20.90
2006-07	14.86
2007-08	18.18

Information for the year 2003-04 is not available.

Royal Bank of Scotland

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he was first informed of the financial difficulties at the Royal Bank of Scotland. [260264]

Mr. Timms: As the memorandum of understanding between HM Treasury, the Bank of England and the Financial Services Authorities (FSA) sets out, the tripartite authorities have regular meetings to discuss financial stability.

As the MOU sets out, it is the FSA that is responsible for prudential supervision of individual banks.

Stamp Duty Land Tax

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many residential properties were sold in (a) each of the six months before and (b) in each month since the introduction of the stamp duty land tax holiday; [260612]

(2) what assessment has been made of the effect of the stamp duty land tax holiday on residential property sales since its introduction; [260613]

(3) what his most recent estimate is of the cost to the Exchequer of the stamp duty land tax holiday. [260677]

Ian Pearson: The number of residential properties, priced at £40,000 or higher, sold in each month up to January 2009 is published at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/survey_of_prop/value-40000-or-above.pdf

These statistics will be updated to February 2009 on 24 March.

The most recent published estimate of the cost to the Exchequer of the stamp duty land tax holiday was published in table B5 of the PBR report, available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/d/pbr08_annexb_262.pdf

An updated estimate will be published in the Budget report.

It is too early to make an assessment of the effect of the stamp duty land tax holiday on residential property sales.

Vulture Funds

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy to cap the amount of profit attainable by vulture funds registered in the UK. [260558]

Ian Pearson: The Government deplore the activities of so-called vulture funds. We have taken a leading role in efforts to stop these funds profiting from the debts owed by poor countries. We continue to keep all options for tackling this problem under consideration.

Our action has focused on measures we believe will have the most impact in tackling this issue: preventing debts falling into the hands of vulture funds and helping countries to defend themselves in cases already under way.

To prevent debts falling into the hands of vulture funds in the first place, we have supported the World Bank's debt reduction facility. This facility helps countries buy back their commercial debts at a vastly reduced price, cancelling debt outright and preventing it being enforced before a court. More than $9 billion of poor countries' debts have already been cancelled in this way. Following improvements to the facility, DFID has recently committed more funds—up to £10 million—to future commercial debt buy-back operations.

To help countries defend themselves in existing cases, we have supported the establishment of an African legal support facility to which DFID will contribute £5 million. We believe this will help ensure countries have access to high quality legal advice and expertise, which can be valuable in reducing the impact of litigation. For example, in the case of Zambia, where DFID helped to pay its legal fees when it was targeted by a vulture fund, the court reduced Zambia's liability by around $40 million.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what (a) responsibility and (b) powers local authorities will have over academies as a result of the dissolution of the Learning and Skills Council and the devolution of powers over 16-19 education to local authorities. [259093]

Jim Knight: Subject to the passage of the Apprenticeships, Skills, Children and Learning Bill, local authorities will take on the responsibility for securing sufficient provision for all 16 to 19-year-olds in their area. In fulfilling the proposed duties in the Bill, they will commission places from all types of providers, including academies, to meet the needs of the young people in their areas. Local authorities will not gain any new powers or responsibilities over academies.

An Academy Trust, through their funding agreement is responsible for determining the number of places they will provide to their local communities in consultation with their local authority. Under current arrangements the Secretary of State already has the power to amend that number of places, for instance on the basis of local need. Under the proposals in the Bill, the only change is that the Secretary of State will have the power to ask the YPLA to exercise these and other academy-related functions, on his behalf, as set out in clause 74.

Academies: Special Educational Needs

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils in each year group with (a) statemented and (b) non-statemented special educational needs attended academies in each year since 2003. [258347]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information is provided in the tables:

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many Building Schools for the Future projects are (a) on time and (b) behind schedule; and if he will make a statement. [255261]

Jim Knight: The following table illustrates the delivery record for each school against the baseline targets for school openings that were agreed early in the programme. The baseline figures for school openings were agreed once the programme had started.

Baseline targets are different to the contractual dates that are agreed between local authorities and their private sector partner at financial close. On this latter measure, all schools were delivered on time and on budget.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his estimate was on 1 April 2008 of capital expenditure on schools in (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10 for (i) Building Schools for the Future and (ii) all other schools capital spending; what his latest estimate is of the likely outturns for 2008-09 and 2009-10; and if he will make a statement. [255269]

Jim Knight: The following table sets out the Department's forecast capital spend at the start of the current financial year, compared with the current forecast, for 2008-09 and 2009-10. The change in 2009-10 is mainly due to the Government's fiscal stimulus plans, where about £0.8 billion is being brought forward. As these are forecasts, they are subject to change.

£ billion

Description	2008-09 forecast		2009-10 forecast
	April 2008	December 2008	April 2008	December 2008
Building Schools For the Future, including Academies (excluding PFI)	1.3	1.2	2.2	2.3
Other Capital Allocations	3.8	3.7	4.1	4.8
Total	5.1	4.9	6.3	7.1

Notes:
1. The table excludes PFI credits of around £1.3 billion available each year, as the funding to support these is provided to local authorities as revenue from the Department of Communities and Local Government.
2. The increase in the 2009-10 forecast spend from £6.3 billion to £7.1 billion includes £0.8 billion to be advanced from 2010-11 to 2009-10.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what the (a) actual and (b) target period of time is from invitations to bid to the signing of a contract for each Building Schools for the Future contract for the period 2006 to January 2009; and if he will make a statement; [255283]

(2) what the average (a) length and (b) cost to the public purse of the bidding process at Building Schools for the Future projects has been; and if he will make a statement. [255006]

Jim Knight: At the outset of the programme the target was 78 weeks. To date, the average time taken by local authorities to procure their private sector partners to deliver their Building Schools for the Future projects is 102 weeks. This timing compares favourably to other PFI deals in the education and other sectors and is typical of procurement using European Union competitive dialogue or negotiated procedure processes for major procurements. Following a review of BSF procurement (completed in May 2008) we have introduced changes that aim to further significantly streamline the procurement process. As a result, the target procurement time will fall to 74 weeks for authorities just entering the programme.

During the procurement period, local authorities engage with the private sector bidders and work towards the selection of a partner through competitive bid evaluation. The bidding costs during this part of the process are borne by the private sector, with the public sector incurring costs associated with the project management of the procurement. These costs can vary significantly depending on a number of project-specific factors, including the size of the project.

Children in Care: Primary Education

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many primary school pupils at key stage 2 have been children in care in each year since 2000; and how many of those were among the 5 per cent. identified as most talented. [241557]

Beverley Hughes: Data published by the Department as SFR 23/2008: "Children looked after in England (including adoption and care leavers) year ending 31 March 2008", show 47,600 children aged between five and 19 as being looked after by local authorities as at 31 March 2008. The source of this publication is the SSDA903, which does not collect information on whether a child is part of their school's gifted and talented cohort. Information on gifted and talented pupils is, however, collected in the School Census which also collects information on whether a child is in care whilst at their school.

The most recent census data relate to January 2008. The census shows 34,390 pupils aged five to 19 attending primary, secondary and special schools who are classed as being in care as at January 2008. The School Census does not cover all looked after children; information is not collected for pupils in alternative provision, including pupil referral units, FE colleges, voluntary provision and those not in education or training. These differences in coverage will explain the different counts to an extent, but it is possible that the School Census undercounts the number of looked after children in primary, secondary and special schools.

The information available is shown in the following table. Information on gifted and talented pupils was first collected for primary and secondary schools in 2007 therefore information for the last five years is not available.

[3] There is a degree of under-reporting in the School Census return of pupils who are looked after compared to the two main statistical collections on looked after children. Information on gifted and talented status is not collected from Special Schools. Source: School Census

Children: Corporal Punishment

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if his Department will provide funding to support the Council of Europe's Raise your hand against smacking campaign in England. [259283]

Beverley Hughes: Our approach is to provide parents with positive support and guidance to help them manage their children's behaviour more effectively without smacking. As part of this, approximately £300 million is being invested between 2008 and 2011 to improve the quality and supply of parenting support and ensure that parents have access to the information, advice and guidance needed to support them in their parenting role.

Children: Databases

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families who is responsible for the accuracy of data in the ContactPoint database. [259313]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 27 February 2009]: The persons or bodies responsible for the accuracy of data in the ContactPoint database are those required or permitted to supply information to it, as set out in the Children Act 2004 Information Database (England) Regulations 2007. Data suppliers to ContactPoint already have obligations for data accuracy under the 4th Principle of the Data Protection Act 1998, and must take reasonable steps to ensure that the information they or their organisation hold and provide to ContactPoint is accurate and up to date.

Records from a range of national and local sources will be combined in ContactPoint, using data matching technology, to produce a set of basic information about each child. This makes it highly resilient to errors in any individual source. Where errors are identified, they will be notified back to the source, for correction.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what contracts his Department has had with Capgemini since 1997. [259397]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information for the full period from 1997 is not available as the maximum time for the retention of records relating to contracts for services of the type supplied by Capgemini is six years.

The Department and its predecessor, the Department for Education and Skills, have placed three major centrally negotiated contracts with Capgemini. The first of these, a Business Services Framework Agreement dating from November 2001, covered five service categories together with the transition of services from a previous supplier. These services were applications support and maintenance, applications development, information systems support, hosting and consultancy, and business transformation. Work orders were used to commission specific pieces of work in these categories from Capgemini.

Following expiry of this contract on 30 September 2008, a second contract was placed for the period to 31 March 2011. This contract, also requiring individual work orders, covers the same range of services but will be used primarily for applications support and maintenance.

The third contract is for the build and testing of ContactPoint and its continuing support and hosting. The support and hosting element expires no later than 2014. Details of expenditure on this contract have been given in response to PQ259398, 4 March 2009, Official Report, column 1676W.

Additionally since March 2006 three consultancy contracts were awarded by the Department to Capgemini. Two of these were for advice for the Corporate Service Transformation Programme, and one was for expert advisers to work with low-performing schools. Information on other contracts is not held centrally and to gather the information retrospectively would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold.

Children: English Language

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what support his Department provides to children who do not speak English as a first language; and how much that support (a) cost in each of the last five years and (b) is expected to cost in the next three years, broken down by type of expenditure. [258984]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: All pupils of school age, including those for whom English is an additional language (EAL), are supported by the core school funding programmes notably Dedicated School Grant (DSG) which totals £29 billion this year. In addition the Department allocates to all local authorities on a needs-based formula Ethnic Minority Achievement Grant (EMAG), which contributes towards costs of additional support to meet the specific needs of EAL learners. The total grant paid or allocated for each year from 2003-04 to the end of this spending period is as follows:

	EMAG (£ million)
2003-04	155.8
2004-05	162.1
2005-06	168.5
2006-07	173.6
2007-08	178.6
2008-09	187.6
2009-10	197.6
2010-11	206.6

In addition, an Exceptional Circumstances Grant (ECG) has been introduced to reflect in-year changes in local authorities' pupil numbers. It has three elements covering: an increase of 2.5 per cent. in overall pupil numbers; an increase of 2.5 per cent. in the proportion of pupils with English as an additional language; and a one-off payment to any authority whose proportion of such pupils was below 10 per cent. and rises by 2.5 per cent. In the current year a total of £264,000 has been paid to four local authorities (City of London, Barking and Dagenham, Peterborough and Blackburn with Darwen) in response to qualifying increases in their proportions of EAL children.

It is not possible to disaggregate DSG, EMAG or ECG expenditure by type.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the percentage of children in England at (a) primary school and (b) secondary school who did not speak English as a first language in each of the last five years. [258985]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The percentage of children in primary and secondary schools who did not speak English as a first language in each of the last five years can be found in the following table.

The latest figures are in the Statistical First Release 'Pupil Characteristics and Class Sizes in Maintained Schools in England: January 2008 (Provisional)' and can be found at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000786/index.shtml

Children: Protection

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on what date Lord Laming's progress report on safeguarding will be published. [260985]

Beverley Hughes: We expect Lord Laming's progress report on safeguarding to be published on 12 March.

Children's Workforce Development Council: Finance

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the budget of the Children's Workforce Development Council (CWDC) was in each year since it was established; and how much has been allocated for CWDC's budget in each of the next three years. [260238]

Beverley Hughes: Children's Workforce Development Council (CWDC) was established in 2005. The resources received by CWDC in each financial year since establishment to date are (the vast majority being grants made by DCSF or DFES was):

	Resources received[1] (£)
2005-06	1,603,014
2006-07	22,514,444
2007-08	54,436,949

[1] Information taken from CWDC audited and published accounts.

CWDC became a non-departmental public body in April 2008. For the current financial year the total budget available is £82,454,000. The actual expenditure will be published in the annual accounts. A copy of these accounts will be placed in the House Library and will be available via CWDC's website at:

www.cwdcouncil.org.uk

The budget and remit for 2009-10 is currently being agreed with CWDC as part of the business planning cycle. Once agreed, a copy of the remit letter (including budget) will be available on their website at:

www.cwdcouncil.org.uk

A core grant allocation of £31,003,000 has been agreed as part of the comprehensive spending review agreements for 2010-11. The additional contributions for specific programme delivery have not yet been agreed.

The Department operates on three year, Comprehensive Spending Review cycles which currently extend to March 2011 only. Figures from April 2011 onwards are not available at the present time.

Departmental Consultants

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its associated public bodies paid to consultants in the last year for which data are available; to which organisations such payments were made; for what purposes; and how much the payment was in each case. [249229]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children Schools and Families spent £61.4 million on external consultancy in 2007-08. The Department does not hold the requested information for its associated bodies, as they are independent and are responsible for their own data.

Like most Government Departments, the Department uses consultants to work on specific projects outside our business as usual, such as where the Department does not have the skills internally or where a different, external or specialist perspective on complex issues is needed. It would only be possible to list the amount and purpose of each payment at disproportionate cost.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the total cost was of providing the (a) £10, (b) £20, (c) £30 and (d) bonus payment of the education maintenance allowance for the last three years for which figures are available. [260396]

Jim Knight: The following table shows EMA expenditure on the weekly payments split by income band and bonus payments for each academic year 2005/06, 2006/07, 2007/08:

£ million

Expenditure on EMA by band (£)	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
30	282.2	345.2	363.0
20	24.3	27.7	27.7
10	11.3	12.2	12.2
Expenditure on bonus payments	80.7	97	100.5

For the benefit of clarity the table excludes administration or marketing costs in relation to each of these elements.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many people have yet to receive an education maintenance allowance payment to which they are entitled in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency. [260802]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom the LSC's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member for Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Every Child Matters

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what discussions his Department had with representatives of EU institutions on its Every Child Matters programme in the two years before October 2004; and if he will make a statement. [260462]

Jim Knight: I am not aware of any discussions between the Department and representatives of EU institutions on the Every Child Matters Agenda prior to its launch in 2004.

There is no EU competence in children's services and very limited competence in youth policy. Activity at European level is largely restricted to encouraging exchanges of young people and youth workers between member states. We do however work with member states and the EU institutions to exchange good practice and information on national policy development. Through these mechanisms we have promoted the Every Child Matters approach.

Free School Meals

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children receive free school meals in (a) Vale of York constituency, (b) North Yorkshire and (c) England. [260064]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information about children eligible for free school meals is shown in the following table.

Maintained nursery and primary schools, state-funded secondary schools: School meal arrangements: Position in January 2008—Vale of York parliamentary constituency, North Yorkshire local authority, England

GCSE

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of pupils in (a) independent and (b) maintained schools received five or more GCSE grades A* to C including English, mathematics, science and a foreign language in each of the last five years. [249110]

Jim Knight: The requested information can be provided only for pupils at the end of their Key Stage 4 studies going back to 2005, data earlier than 2005 are on a different basis and therefore not comparable.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils at pupil referral units did not achieve an A*-G grade at GCSE in either English or mathematics in the most recent year for which records are available. [247858]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Of the 6,943 pupils reported to be at the end of key stage 4 who were registered solely in pupil referral units in 2008, 1,696 did not achieve a grade A*-G in GCSE mathematics, 1,903 did not achievea grade A*-G in English.

The percentage of pupils who achieved five or more grades A* -C including English, mathematics, science and a foreign language is as follows:

	Percentage
	Maintained schools	Independent schools
2008	22.7	36.4
2007	22.1	47.4
2006	23.2	60.4
2005	25.3	66.8

GCSE: Disadvantaged

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils eligible for free school meals did not get any GCSEs at grade (a) C, (b) D, (c) E, (d) F and (e) G or above in 2008. [244315]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information requested is given in the following table:

Pupils[1] eligible for FSM who did not get any GCSEs at the indicated grades in 2008

D or above	19,632

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils eligible for free school meals took fewer than five GCSEs in 2008. [251115]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: 9,173 pupils eligible for free school meals were entered in fewer than five GCSEs[1] in 2008[2].

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of free school meals pupils achieved A* to C grades at GCSE in 2008. [251194]

Jim Knight: The number of pupils at the end of key stage 4 eligible for free school meals achieving at least one A* to C grade at GCSE or equivalent in 2008 was 53,300. This was 71.4 per cent. of all pupils eligible for free school meals.

GCSE: Mathematics

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils gained a C grade or above in GCSE mathematics in each year since 2003. [260536]

Jim Knight: The number of pupils achieving an A*-C grade in GCSE mathematics in each year since 2003 can be found through the following links. Prior to 2005, figures are available only for 15 year-old pupils. In 2005, figures are available for both 15 year-old pupils and pupils at the end of Key Stage 4. From 2006, figures are available only for pupils at the end of Key Stage 4. Care should be taken when constructing a time series, as figures for 15 year-old pupils are not directly comparable to figures with pupils at the end of Key Stage 4.

Health Education: Sex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what the evidential basis was for the statement made in the leaflet "Talking to Your Teenager About Sex and Relationships" that trying to convince teenagers of what's right and wrong may discourage them from being open; who his Department consulted before making this statement; and if he will make a statement; [259147]

(2) on what date the leaflet "Talking to Your Teenager About Sex and Relationships" produced by his Department was published; if he will place a copy of the leaflet in the Library; who wrote the leaflet; who was consulted prior to it being (a) written and (b) published; and if he will make a statement; [259150]

(3) how much was spent by his Department on (a) researching and (b) producing the leaflet "Talking to Your Teenager About Sex and Relationships"; and if he will make a statement. [259151]

Beverley Hughes: The leaflet for parents on talking to their teenage children about sex and relationships strongly encourages them to share their values with their children and that clearly includes their views about what's right and wrong. However, the leaflet also draws on research summarised in "The Nature of Adolescence" (John Coleman and Leo Hendry, 1999) which shows that the most effective way of communicating with teenagers is to encourage discussion rather than simply telling them what to think. Teenagers whose parents have an authoritative rather than authoritarian style are less likely to be involved in risky behaviour.

The leaflet highlights the important role that parents—fathers and mothers—have in: helping their daughters and sons resist pressure to have early sex; to understand their feelings and the feelings of others; and to take responsibility for preventing pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections (STIs) if and when they do choose to become sexually active.

The leaflet was drafted by DCSF officials in conjunction with colleagues at Parentline Plus. The content was informed by research into parents' views and experiences of talking to their teenage children. There was no formal public consultation on the leaflet before it was published. The leaflet will be available in pharmacies from early March 2009. The total cost of design, print and production of the leaflet was £14,427. A copy of the leaflet will be placed in the House Libraries.

History: Education

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 10 December 2008, Official Report, columns 181-3W, on history: education, in which local authority area each of the schools listed is located; and how many and what percentage of pupils in each school are eligible to receive free school meals. [244904]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information has been placed in the Libraries.

Local Safeguarding Children Boards

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance his Department has issued on the publication of minutes and decisions taken by local safeguarding children boards that do not relate to a particular case or individual; and if he will make a statement. [258349]

Beverley Hughes: The Department does not prescribe how minutes and decisions taken by Local Safeguarding Children Boards (LSCBs) which do not relate to particular cases or individuals should be published. The Government's statutory guidance, "Working Together to Safeguard Children" (2006) states that,

"The LSCB should have a clear work programme, including measurable objectives, and a budget."

It goes on to state,

"This will enable the LSCB's work to be scrutinised by the Local Authority, by other local partners and by other key stakeholders. The guidance recommends that such work plans or annual reports are endorsed by all the Board members and made publicly available."

Ofsted: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the estimated cost in empty property business rates for the vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database owned by safeguarding children boards Ofsted is in 2008-09. [258529]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 26 February 2009:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response.

Ofsted had three vacant properties recorded on the e-PIMS database in 2008-09, all of which are leasehold. Table A shows the non-domestic rates payments for these properties.

Table A: Non-domestic rates payments on Ofsted properties recorded on the e-PIMs database in 2008-09

Property	Rates (£)
Dukes Court, Woking	84,546.00
Louisa House, Birmingham	80,700.00
Apex Court, Bristol	30,954.00

A copy of this reply has been sent to Rt Hon Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Pupils: Diabetes

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent discussions he has had with Ministerial colleagues in the Department of Health on the provision of support in schools for students diagnosed with (a) diabetes, (b) asthma and (c) other long-term conditions. [250579]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children, Schools and Families and Department of Health have been jointly developing the Government's long-term strategy to support children's health. The Child Health Strategy will build on work already being delivered through the Every Child Matters and National Service Framework for Children, Young People and Maternity Services.

Schools: Admissions

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which local authorities are reducing the number of surplus places as part of (a) the Primary Capital Programme and (b) Building Schools for the Future programme. [259099]

Jim Knight: We do not collect programme specific data about the reduction of surplus places linked directly to capital investment through either Building Schools for the Future or the Primary Capital Programme. We have nevertheless made clear in relation to both programmes that all local authorities should look for opportunities to remove excessive numbers of surplus places; particularly where these are linked to poor standards. Maintaining surplus places can represent a poor use of resources—resources that can be used more effectively to support schools in raising standards and delivering better outcomes for children. That said, it is accepted that in order to preserve access for young children, there may be more empty places in schools in rural areas than in urban areas.

Schools: Collective Worship

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of levels of compliance by schools with guidance on provisions for assemblies and daily acts of collective worship under the School Standards and Framework Act 1998. [260032]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: All community, foundation or voluntary schools must offer a daily act of collective worship which is broadly of a Christian nature. Parents have the right to withdraw their children from collective worship and pupils in the sixth form have the right to withdraw themselves from collective worship without parental consent.

Ofsted has a duty to inspect schools on their compliance with the legal requirement to provide a daily act of worship. Schools and governing bodies can be deemed unsatisfactory for failing to comply with the statutory requirements. The findings of inspection, set alongside the school's self-evaluation, provide a basis for planning for improvement.

The Department does not itself make an assessment of the level of compliance with the provisions of the Standards and Framework Act 1998 for a daily act of collective worship.

Schools: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects his Department to meet its target of raising the level of funding per state school pupil to the level of funding per pupil in the private sector; and if he will make a statement. [255286]

Jim Knight: The Government announced in the Budget in 2006 that they would aim, over time and adjusting for inflation, to increase funding per pupil towards private sector day school levels at that time. Average private sector per pupil funding was estimated at £8,000 compared to the total revenue and capital funding per pupil in the maintained sector of £4,750 in that year.

We are investing record amounts of funding for schools. From 1997 total per pupil funding has more than doubled from under £2,500 in 1997-98 to £5,550 in 2007-08. By 2010-11, the total per pupil funding for the state sector will rise to £6,550. This means that between 2005-06 and 2010-11, we will have raised maintained sector funding by £1,000 per pupil in real terms and will have closed the gap with the private sector 2005-06 figure by 30 per cent.

Progress over future spending reviews will depend upon the Government's fiscal position, demographic change and progress by schools in continuing to deliver improvements in results and wider support for parents and pupils.

Note:

All figures rounded to nearest £50.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) whether his Department's plans to require companies working on school capital programmes to submit a formal training programme will apply to (a) Building Schools for the Future projects which have already been approved and (b) the Primary Capital Programme; [259087]

(2) who will determine whether companies working on school capital programmes have submitted a suitable formal training programme; [259088]

(3) whether his Department's plans to require a formal training programme from companies working on school capital projects apply to companies outside the construction sector. [259089]

Jim Knight: Many Building Schools for the Future (BSF) bidders already submit proposals for provision of apprenticeships and other training programmes in such areas as construction, technical building services, facilities management and ICT etc., but to date there has been no formal requirement for local authorities to include such proposals in their service specifications. From June 2009 these requirements will become formalised for new projects only and be assessed by Partnerships for Schools and the local authority through the procurement process.

The pre-Budget report in November announced that Government Departments and their agencies committed that whenever they let a new construction contract they will consider making it a requirement that successful contractors have apprentices as a proportion of the project work force. This commitment will apply to the strategic, centrally-managed BSF programme. In relation to devolved capital programmes and Primary Capital Programme projects not delivered through BSF, we want to see local authorities taking forward the skills procurement agenda using their contract management and planning powers in construction and other service areas including facilities management and ICT. In addition to the letting of new contracts, local authorities can also work with existing contractors and encourage them to provide training and apprenticeships training opportunities for their work force. To support the implementation of the skills procurement agenda, DIUS officials are working with OGC to develop and disseminate guidance on how skills requirements can be included in the procurement processes.

Schools: Restraint Techniques

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will place in the Library a copy of each piece of guidance issued by his Department made available to all schools on the use of physical restraint in the last 12 months. [259105]

Jim Knight: The Department issued revised guidance for schools, entitled "The Use of Force to Control or Restrain Pupils", in November 2007. This guidance advises school staff that force should only be used when there is no viable alternative and when the risks associated with using force are outweighed by the risks associated with not using force.

The guidance is supplemented by two specialist guidance documents which provide additional information for staff working with pupils with special educational needs and/or disabilities, namely: (i) Guidance on the Use of Restrictive Physical Interventions for Staff Working with Children and Adults who display Extreme Behaviour in Association with Learning Disability and/or Autistic Spectrum Disorders (Circ LEA/0242/2002); and (ii) Guidance on the Use of Restrictive Physical Interventions for Pupils with Severe Behavioural Difficulties (Circ LEA/0264/2003).

A copy of each document has been placed in the Library of the House.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which maintained secondary schools have been included in (a) education action zones, (b) Excellence in Cities, (c) Fresh Start, (d) the London Challenge and (e) the National Challenge since 1997. [258314]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not have a readily available list of maintained secondary schools that were included in Education Action Zones and the various Excellence in Cities programmes between 1999 and 2006. There would be a disproportionate cost involved in creating lists of these schools.

A large proportion of the maintained secondary schools in London have benefited from the range of support provided by London Challenge since the programme began in 2003. Schools that have received the most focused support are, or have been, part of the 'Keys to Success' programme, which offers bespoke support tailored to the needs of individual schools. A list providing details of all schools that have been supported by the Keys to Success programme since it began will be placed in the Library of both Houses. It includes those schools that have since closed or become academies.

In addition, we have placed in the Libraries lists of the maintained secondary schools that have closed and reopened under the DCSF Fresh Start programme and of those in the National Challenge, where fewer than 30 per cent. of pupils at the end of key stage 4 achieved 5 A*-C grades at GCSE (or equivalent) in 2007 and 2008.

Special Educational Needs

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 23 February 2009 to Question 256442, which school had more than 400 pupils. [259307]

Jim Knight: The school which had more than 400 pupils was Sally Oak Special School (URN 103613) in Birmingham.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of pupils with statemented special educational needs of behavioural, emotional or social difficulties attended mainstream schools in each local authority in the last 12 months for which records are available. [260290]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information on the number and percentage of statemented pupils by type of special educational need, for both primary and state funded secondary schools for January 2008, has been placed in the Library.

Special Educational Needs: Private Sector

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 23 February 2009, Official Report, columns 470-74W, on special educational needs: private sector, in which local authority area each of the schools listed is located. [260824]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The 228 independent schools catering wholly or mainly for pupils with special educational needs which opened between 1 September 2005 and 31 August 2008 are listed alphabetically below in local authority order.

The Education Act 2002 amended the definition of an independent school to include institutions providing full time education for one or more pupils with a statement of special educational needs or a looked after child. This resulted in a number of children's homes which provide education on the premises registering as independent schools.

Specialised Diplomas

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what maximum distance is stipulated between schools in each of the diploma consortia. [259107]

Jim Knight: The distance between schools within a consortium is not stipulated centrally; a range of factors need to be taken in to consideration including transport and access and arrangements are determined locally. Through the Diploma Gateway process consortia are required to explain how the young people in their area will access the different institutions within the consortium.

Standards Fund

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what initiatives have received funding through the Standards Fund; how much his Department has allocated to the fund in each year since the fund was established; how much has been allocated to the fund for (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [260050]

Jim Knight: Tables showing the grants and the amounts allocated to local authorities under the Standards Fund programme since it began in 1998-99, and the grants allocated to date for 2009-10 and 2010-11, will be placed in the Library.

Sure Start Programme

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to make Sure Start centres accessible at evenings and weekends. [259598]

Beverley Hughes: Opening hours are a matter for local decision, taking account of the range of needs and resources to meet these. From April 2009 this Government are allocating over £1 billion a year to local authorities to support services in Sure Start Children's Centres. And Sure Start Children's Centres have changed the way many parents access essential services during their children's early years by delivering them closer to where families live and in ways that suit families needs. Centres offering integrated early learning and day care facilities as part of their services are required to be open 10 hours a day, five days a week and 48 weeks a year. They also have flexibility to open at other times. Other centres have more flexible opening hours but all centres will aim to provide services at times that suit the communities' needs — which can mean opening in the evenings and at weekends. Some centres have, for example, found that the best time to offer activities for fathers and their children is on Saturday morning. Guidance on opening times can be found in Chapter 3 of 'Sure Start Children's Centres Planning and Performance Management Guidance' (2006).

Teachers: Training

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what factors have been identified by his Department as contributing to the decline in the number of applications for post-graduate certificate of education courses in modern languages between 2000 and 2008; and what steps his Department is taking in response to this decline. [259585]

Jim Knight: The Department has not identified why there has been a decline in the number of applications for postgraduate certificate in education (PGCE) in modern languages between 2000 and 2008.

Modern languages remains a priority subject within initial teacher training and eligible trainees on PGCE courses leading to qualified teacher status can currently receive the maximum £9,000 training bursary and a £2,500 golden hello in the second year of teaching. The subject also has a proportionately higher profile in the Training and Development Agency for Schools advertising and marketing activities. This includes specialised direct marketing materials being sent to all those who register an interest in teaching the subject. The latest published figures show that applications for postgraduate modern language courses at 3 February 2009 are up 11.7 per cent. on the same time last year.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

British Humanist Association

Robert Neill: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how much funding the Equality and Human Rights Commission has given to the British Humanist Association since the Commission's inception; and for what purposes. [259520]

Maria Eagle: The Equality and Human Rights Commission has provided the British Humanist Association a total of £35,000 to fund a programme of work with the stated outcome to deliver 'increased understanding of issues of religion or belief in the context of equality and human rights within the voluntary sector, media and general public; via research, conferences, guidance documents and media work'.

Charities

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality pursuant to the answer of 20 January 2009, Official Report, column 1312W, on charities, how many (a) charities and (b) faith-based charities have applied for funding from the Government Equalities Office and been declined since 12 October 2007. [251981]

Maria Eagle: One of the 28 applications for support from the special fund for rape crisis centres was declined as the applicant did not meet all the eligibility criteria set out in my answer to PQ 251980, on 24 February 2009, Official Report, columns 738-9W.

No applications from faith-based charities have been received and declined.

Hospitality: Equality and Human Rights Commission

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how much the Equality and Human Rights Commission spent on entertainment of each type in 2008-09. [258975]

Maria Eagle: The Equality and Human Rights Commission has spent £6,151 on hospitality in 2008-09.

Human Rights

Robert Neill: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the (a) timetable and (b) remit of the Equality and Human Rights Commission's inquiry into human rights in Britain is. [259530]

Maria Eagle: The Equality and Human Rights Commission launched its Human Rights Inquiry in April 2008 and is due to report in spring 2009. The terms of reference are:

> To assess progress towards the effectiveness and enjoyment of a culture of respect for human rights in Great Britain
> To consider how the current human rights framework might best be developed and used to realise the vision of a society built on fairness and respect, confident in all aspects of its diversity.

The inquiry, which covers England and Wales, will investigate:

> Public attitudes to the Human Rights Act
> How the Human Rights Act is working
> How it is used by public authorities and other organisations where appropriate.

Further information about the inquiry including the terms of reference can be found on the Commission's website:

> http://www.equalityhumanrights.com/en/projects/humanrightsinquiry/Pages/HumanrightsInquiry.aspxx

Travelling People

Robert Neill: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality in which planning cases relating to Travellers the Equality and Human Rights Commission has made an intervention since it was established. [259426]

Maria Eagle: The Equality and Human Rights Commission (EHRC) has only intervened in the case of McCarthy and Others v Basildon district council.

The EHRC intervened in this particular appeal in order to advise on how the law in relation to race and disability discrimination should be applied in cases involving Gypsy and Travellers evictions. The EHRC offered guidance on how councils should come to these decisions to ensure they meet their legal obligations to go about such decisions in a fair and transparent way.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Small Businesses: Wiltshire

Mr. Gray: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many small and medium-sized enterprises were registered in (a) North Wiltshire constituency, (b) Wiltshire and (c) Swindon in each year since 1997. [259504]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated March 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning what estimate has been made of the number of small to medium-sized enterprises registered in (a) North Wiltshire constituency, (b) Wiltshire and (c) Swindon in each year since 1997. (259504)

Annual statistics on business size and location are available from the ONS release on UK Business: Activity, Size and Location. The table below contains enterprise counts from 2000 to 2008. These data are not available prior to 2000.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Jenny Watson

Mr. Heath: To ask the honourable Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what further information the Speaker's Committee has received about the outside interests of the chairman of the Electoral Commission. [261803]

Sir Peter Viggers: During the debate on 17 December 2008 on the Motion to appoint Jenny Watson as chairman of the Electoral Commission, I informed the House that Ms Watson had agreed to give up all her other paid appointments, with the exception of her role as a member of the board of the Audit Commission. Ms Watson has subsequently informed the Speaker's Committee that she wishes to retain another of her paid appointments, as a non-executive director of the Waste Resources Action Programme (WRAP). WRAP is a publicly-funded company which works with businesses and consumers to encourage recycling.

The Speaker's Committee has considered Ms Watson's request and has concluded that there is no conflict of interest. Neither, in the Committee's judgment, does Ms Watson's retention of her two non-executive roles impinge on her ability to fulfil her commitment to work three days a week as chairman of the Electoral Commission. Ms Watson works three days a month for the Audit Commission and a further two days a month for WRAP.

TRANSPORT

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) males and (b) females in each age group were (i) slightly and (ii) seriously injured whilst (A) crossing the road in and (B) taking part in a public demonstration in Parliament square in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available. [261536]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In 2007, two pedestrians were slightly injured in reported personal injury road accidents while crossing the road in Parliament square—one male casualty in December and one female casualty in April. There was one seriously injured male casualty in January. All three casualties were adults aged 16 to 59 years old.

Information on the number of collisions involving persons taking part in public demonstrations is not collected.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road accidents occurred in Parliament square in each of the last 12 months; how many (a) involved and (b) were found to have been caused by persons taking part in public demonstrations opposite Carriage Gates; and if he will make a statement. [261537]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of reported personal injury road accidents in 2007 that occurred in Parliament square are given in the following table:

	Injury accidents
January	2
February	0
March	0
April	3
May	1
June	3
July	1
August	0
September	1
October	0
November	0
December	1
Total	12

Information on the number of collisions involving or caused by persons taking part in public demonstrations opposite 'Carriage Gates' is not collected.

Roads: Lancashire

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the Answer of 20 October 2008, Official Report, column 23W, on roads: Lancashire, how many meetings his officials have held with Lancashire county council officials about work supported by a road safety partnership grant not specific to the A59; where those meetings were held; and what decisions were made at those meetings. [260663]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport (DFT) awarded Lancashire county council a Road Safety Partnership Grant of £15,000 in May 2007 for the purpose of developing a web-based interactive road safety auditor's checklist, for use across the country.

Relating to this, a DFT officer has met with Lancashire county council officers six times to monitor progress and to advise about the project. These meetings were held in Lancashire county council's offices in Preston.

The award of a further partnership grant project involving Lancashire county council was announced on 4 March. There have been no meetings between officials and those of the county council about this work since it has been supported by partnership grant. However officials have met during the formulation of Lancashire's bid for funding support.

Roads: Safety

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of road safety partnership grants in (a) Lancashire and (b) England. [260661]

Jim Fitzpatrick: An assessment of the effectiveness of road safety partnership grants in England is in progress. It will be completed when results from the first round of projects are available.

This first round of road safety partnership grant projects in England, which includes a project in Lancashire, is due for completion this spring.

Rolling Stock

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the statement of 12 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1531-3, on new trains (investment), where the assembly facility for the new rolling stock for the East Coast and Great Western main lines will be located; and whether it will be located in an area which attracts Government development grants. [260009]

Paul Clark: Agility Trains has indicated that the facility will be located in either Ashby-de-la-Zouch, Gateshead or Sheffield. Government grants are given out according to exacting criteria and Agility Trains will need to speak to the appropriate Regional Development Agency and to UK Trade and Investments in order to ascertain their ability to attract this type of support.

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the statement of 12 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1531-3, on new trains (investment), how the 2,500 new direct jobs relating to the contract to supply new rolling stock for the East Coast and Great Western main lines will be allocated in terms of (a) function and (b) location. [260010]

Paul Clark: The following information has been provided by Agility Trains.

300 staff will be employed in the UK developing the six new manufacturing/maintenance facilities. In addition, there will be 200 UK jobs created in the design, supplier management, testing and commissioning of the trains; 500 jobs with major UK suppliers; 1,000 jobs will be distributed around the new and existing train maintenance and servicing centres; and up to 500 new jobs created in the UK Hitachi manufacturing facility.

Agility anticipates that the total of 2,500 jobs will be spread throughout the UK, which will lead to a total of 12,500 jobs created or safeguarded

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the statement of 12 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1531-3, on new trains (investment), where the design and engineering work to be carried out by Agility Trains for the new rolling stock for the East Coast and Great Western main lines is to be carried out in the first three years of the contract. [260012]

Paul Clark: Agility Trains expects the design and engineering work in the first three years of the contract to be split between the UK and Japan, with 50 UK-based design positions created from the point of contract award.

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the statement of 12 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1531-3, on new trains (investment), what percentage of new trains for the East Coast and Great Western main lines will be built in Japan by (a) value and (b) component. [260013]

Paul Clark: Approximately the first 70 of the 1,400 vehicles will be built in Japan. This equates to 5 per cent. of the total. Agility is committed to spending nearly three quarters of the value of the order in the UK, and is currently in active discussions with 20 high-quality UK suppliers. As no contracts have yet been signed, the Department for Transport cannot provide a split by supplier value or component at this stage.

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the statement of 12 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1531-3, on new trains (investment), whether he has estimated the level of carbon dioxide emissions likely to result from shipping the first 70 cars of rolling stock from Japan to the UK for the East Coast and Great Western main lines. [260016]

Paul Clark: No assessment has been made of carbon emissions likely to result from shipping the first 70 cars from Japan. Shipping is acknowledged as the most economical and environmentally friendly way of relocating goods worldwide, and the Government are committed to making the shipping sector even more environmentally friendly.

Vehicle Number Plates

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to bring forward legislative proposals to legalise the display of national flags on number plates in Great Britain to take effect on 23 April 2009. [259641]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is not possible to commit to a specific date at this point as the informal consultation has not concluded and the response from the European Commission Technical Committee is not expected until early March. The outcome from these will need to be considered before I am able to determine the exact time scale in which the legislation may take effect.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

British Virgin Islands: Crimes of Violence

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many violent crimes took place in the British Virgin Islands in each of the last five years. [260683]

Gillian Merron: The Royal Virgin Islands Police Force (RVIPF) is responsible for the collation of crime statistics and have provided the following information on major crimes:

	Number
2008	724
2007	610
2006	649
2005	725

The RVIPF classifies crimes as major or minor, rather than violent or non-violent. Major crimes include murder, attempted murder, rape, burglary, robbery, theft, serious assaults and sexual offences. Statistics for 2004 are not available.

British Virgin Islands: Tourism

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British tourists visited the British Virgin Islands in each of the last five years. [260681]

Gillian Merron: The Development Planning Unit of the Government of the British Virgin Islands collates arrivals figures by country of origin. Figures for arrivals from the UK were as follows:

	Number
2004	87,441
2005	89,880
2006	92,012

The Development Planning Unit has advised that figures for 2007 and 2008 are not currently available.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what percentage of the British Virgin Islands gross domestic product was generated by the tourist sector in each of the last five years. [260682]

Gillian Merron: The Development Planning Unit of the Government of the British Virgin Islands has provided the following statistics relating to the percentage of gross domestic product generated by the tourist sector:

	Percentage
2004	30.03
2005	30.40
2006	30.74
2007	30.97

The Development Planning Unit has advised that the figure for 2008 is not currently available.

Departmental Consultants

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost of his Department's contracts with management consultants was in each of the last five years. [251370]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not break down expenditure on consultants into specific categories to this level.

Annual expenditure on consultants is published in the FCO's annual departmental reports, copies of which are available on the FCO website and can be directly accessed through the following link:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1007029395438.

Departmental Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost of his Department's contracts with public relations consultancies was in each of the last five years. [251261]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not break down expenditure on consultants into specific categories to this level.

Annual expenditure on consultants is published in the FCO's annual departmental reports, copies of which are available on the FCO website and can be directly accessed through the following link:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1007029395438.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost of his Department's contracts with public affairs companies was in each of the last five years. [251284]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not hold information of expenditure broken down into categories of companies at this level. Examining individual contracts to respond to this question would incur disproportionate costs.

Falkland Islands

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has had discussions with his Argentinean counterpart on the Falkland Islands in the last 10 years. [259928]

Gillian Merron: Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers have met their Argentinean counterparts on numerous occasions over the last 10 years to discuss a variety of different subjects. None of these meetings have been specifically about the Falkland Islands. We have made it clear to the Argentinians that there can be no negotiations on the sovereignty of the Falkland Islands unless and until such time as the Falkland Islanders so wish. The UK has no doubt about its sovereignty over the Falkland Islands.

Movement for Democratic Change: Harassment

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received of harassment of Movement for Democratic Change officials in Zimbabwe. [260272]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 3 March 2009]: There was a spate of abductions of Movement for Democratic Change (MDC) activists in late 2008. On 27 February 2009, many of them were granted bail but some have yet to be released. A further seven are missing, with the state denying knowledge of their whereabouts. The designated MDC Deputy Minister of Agriculture, Roy Bennett, was arrested on 13 February 2009. He and 10 MDC supporters who were arrested after protesting Mr. Bennett's arrest also remain in police custody. A further 60 MDC supporters arrested in 2009 are also in police custody. We will continue to monitor closely reports of politically motivated harassment, and encourage the new Government to meet their international obligations.

Movement for Democratic Change: Roy Bennett

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has made representations to the Government of Zimbabwe on the arrest and detention of Roy Bennett. [260184]

Gillian Merron: On 11 February, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary called for the immediate and unconditional release of all political detainees. On 16 February, Foreign Office officials made clear to the Zimbabwean embassy in London our concern about the arrest of Mr. Bennett on 13 February. Improved respect for human rights and the rule of law is a condition of international development support. We will continue to monitor developments closely and encourage the new Government to meet its international obligations.

Somalia: Armed Conflict

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the security situation in Somalia following the recent attack on the Burundi contingent of the AU Mission in Somalia. [260268]

David Miliband: We condemn recent attacks on the Burundi and other contingents of the African Union Mission in Somalia (AMISOM). These attacks appear to have been aimed at blocking progress towards a long-term political solution to Somalia's problems. We have been encouraged that, despite the attacks, both Burundi and Uganda intend to deploy further troops to AMISOM.

While the security situation in Somalia remains fragile, there are encouraging signs that the political process is developing momentum. The new Transitional Government convened for the first time in Mogadishu on 28 February 2009. With support from AMISOM, security personnel from the Transitional Government are in control of much of Mogadishu. We, and the rest of the international community, will continue to support President Sharif's efforts to create a stable environment that will allow the new government to begin rebuilding the country.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of allegations that Ethiopian troops have returned to Kalabeyrka in Somalia since the withdrawal of Ethiopian forces from the country in January 2009. [260779]

Gillian Merron: We are aware of media reporting of incursions by Ethiopian troops into Somalia since the withdrawal in January, including skirmishes with other forces. However, we have had no official confirmation.

It is important at this stage in the Djibouti process that President Sharif is offered the space by the international community to work towards reconciliation within Somalia. Outside actors should not take any action which has the potential to undermine this process.

Somalia: Internally Displaced Persons

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 130W, on Somalia: armed conflict, what estimate he has made of the number of displaced people returning to Mogadishu following the withdrawal of Ethiopian troops in January 2009. [260241]

David Miliband: The UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (UN OCHA) estimates that between 25,000 and 40,000 internally displaced persons have returned to Mogadishu this year. The Ethiopian withdrawal in January is likely to have been a major spur for these returns, but we are unable to attribute precise figures to this.

The new Somali Prime Minister has said that assisting the return of displaced Mogadishu residents will be one of the first priorities for his administration.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his US counterpart on the attacks in southern Sudan by the Lord's Resistance Army; and if he will make a statement. [260321]

Gillian Merron: British and US officials have discussed the current military action by the Governments of Uganda, DRC and Southern Sudan against the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA), including the need to limit retaliatory action by the LRA against civilian populations in southern Sudan and elsewhere in the region on a number of occasions. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not raised the issue of the LRA with his US counterpart.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department has taken with (a) the United Nations and (b) the European Union to prevent further attacks by the Lord's Resistance Army in southern Sudan. [260324]

Gillian Merron: British officials have closely followed the military operation against the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA), along with their counterparts in the United Nations Security Council and the EU. The impact of LRA actions on civilian populations forms a regular part of our dialogue with the UN missions in Sudan and the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC).

A UN Security Council Presidential Statement was issued on 23 December 2008, condemning Joseph Kony's refusal to sign the Final Peace Agreement and welcoming the joint efforts by the Governments of Uganda, DRC, Southern Sudan and the Central African Republic to tackle the LRA. This was followed by further a press statement in January condemning the retaliatory attacks by the LRA and calling on them to cease its attacks on civilians immediately.

The EU issued a statement on 19 February noting the regional military action against the LRA, condemning the atrocious attacks by the LRA and calling on all involved in the military operation to protect the civilian population from further attacks.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps his Department has taken to prevent attacks by the Lord's Resistance Army on Sudan. [260325]

Gillian Merron: The Governments of Uganda, Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) and Southern Sudan are currently engaged in joint military action against the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA). We have urged all parties involved to respect fully international law, do all they can to minimise any adverse humanitarian impact and fully coordinate with the UN missions in the region. We have also called for the protection of local populations from LRA retaliatory attacks. Recent reporting suggests that the numbers of LRA attacks on civilians, which have mainly taken place in the DRC rather than Sudan, is diminishing, although it is unclear whether this is due to better civilian protection efforts, erosion of LRA capability or a change of LRA tactics.

Sudan: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department has taken to ensure the comprehensive peace agreement in southern Sudan is upheld. [260323]

Gillian Merron: The Government continuously seek to promote a peaceful resolution for the whole of Sudan, including ensuring the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA) in southern Sudan is upheld. My noble Friend, the Minister for Africa congratulated the parties to the CPA on the fourth anniversary of the agreement saying:

"The UK is committed to work with both parties and all interested partners to support the CPA and to build stability and prosperity for the people of Sudan".

The UK plays a leading role in furthering implementation of the CPA. We witnessed the Agreement and are observers on the Assessment and Evaluation Commission (AEC), the body that monitors implementation. We secured the appointment of Sir Derek Plumbly, a senior UK diplomat, as Chair of the AEC. The UK pledged £330 million for development assistance in Sudan for 2008-11 at the Sudan Consortium in May 2008.

We pursue our objectives for Sudan, including ensuring the CPA in southern Sudan is upheld, through close coordination with international partners such as the United Nations, the African Union and non-governmental organisations.

Uganda: Armed Conflict

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department has taken to assist the Ugandan authorities to arrest the leader of the Lord's Resistance Army, Joseph Kony. [260322]

Gillian Merron: The UK has not been approached for, nor provided, support to the joint military operation against the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA) in the northern Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC). The Government of Uganda have entered into regional agreements with the Governments of DRC, southern Sudan and the Central African Republic to execute the three International Criminal Court arrest warrants against the LRA leaders. We welcome this increased regional cooperation between the Governments but urge all parties involved to fully respect international law and to do all they can to minimise the humanitarian impact and fully co-ordinate with the UN missions in the region.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Animals

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many of his Department's animals have died in each of the last five years. [260703]

Mr. Kevan Jones: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Casualties

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will estimate the number of service personnel who have survived their injuries following treatment in medical facilities in theatre in each of the last two years. [259666]

Mr. Hutton: Figures for the number of UK service personnel to have attended a UK field hospital in Iraq and Afghanistan for battle or non-battle injuries are shown in the following table. These injuries will have ranged in severity from personnel who were very seriously injured through to minor injuries.

	2007	2008
Number of attendances by UK service personnel	2,392	1,754
Number who subsequently died of their injuries	17	4

This equates to a survival rate of 99.49 per cent., which can be attributed to the highly skilled and professional staff of the Defence Medical Services and NHS.

Armed Forces: Housing

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much Modern Housing Solutions has paid in compensation to occupants of service family accommodation for (a) significant defects, (b) missed appointments and (c) damage to property or personal injury in the last 12 months. [260545]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Under the terms of the Housing Prime Contract (HPC), Modern Housing Solutions (MHS) is not required to compensate occupants but does so voluntarily. The actual amounts and type of compensation paid is a private matter between MHS and the individuals concerned.

However, the circumstances under which it is paid are set out on the compensation page of the company's website at:

http://www.modernhousingsolutions.com/customer/customer_compensation.asp

Compensation to occupants does not absolve MHS of its contractual obligations to complete work to the standards required under the HPC.

Armed Forces: Motor Vehicles

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what costs are recorded of the track mile performance of the Army's wheeled vehicle fleet. [261031]

Mr. Quentin Davies: 'Track mile' is a term used in connection with tracked rather than wheeled vehicles. Information on operating costs for wheeled vehicles is not held in a format that would enable an estimate per mile to be made.

Clyde Submarine Base: Manpower

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) officers and (b) other ranks are employed at HM Naval Base Clyde as crews on Vanguard class submarines. [260952]

Mr. Hutton: As at 1 March 2009, 114 officers and 883 ratings were assigned to Vanguard class submarines. Data are not held in the format that allows identification of the numbers employed at HMNB Clyde. HMS Vigilant ships company will be based at HMNB Devonport for a three-year period while she is undergoing a major refit.

Economic Situation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) summits, (b) conferences and (c) seminars his Department has hosted since January 2008 at which a primary subject of discussion was the effect of the economic situation on matters within his Department's responsibility. [259750]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

We routinely consider the implications of economic factors for defence interests and such issues are likely to have been discussed in a wide variety of meetings and seminars across the Department.

EU Rapid Reaction Force

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which units are assigned to (a) NATO and (b) the EU under the Headline Goal. [261287]

Mr. Hutton: The Headline Goal is a term used to describe the EU Force Planning process. The UK does not assign units to the EU Headline Goal; the UK offer to the Headline Goal does not commit the UK to any action. Requests for forces to support EU operations are considered on a voluntary case-by-case basis. The UK declaration to the Headline Goal is used for planning purposes only, to determine the shortfalls against the Level of Ambition (LOA) in order to focus capability development. The UK's full contribution to the Headline Goal 2010 is detailed in the UK's 2006 Headline Goal Questionnaire, which we placed in the Library of the House on 22 June 2007.

NATO has a different LOA to the EU and operates a separate Force Planning process. The UK declaration to the NATO LOA is similarly used for planning purposes only and does not commit the UK to any action in NATO operations.

European Defence Agency: Finance

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has paid to the European Defence Agency in each year since it was established; and what estimate he has made of the sum of such payments to the agency in each of the next three years. [261285]

Mr. Hutton: The amount paid to the European Defence Agency (EDA) in each of the financial years since it was established in 2004 is as set out following:

Financial year	£ million
2004-05	1.56
2005-06	2.36
2006-07	2.09
2007-08	1.95
2008-09	3.11
2009-10	[1]4.22

[1] Estimated.

I am unable to provide an estimate of the payments for further years as we have yet to enter into negotiations with other EDA partners over future budgets.

Ex-servicemen: Community Service Orders

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number of former military personnel who were serving a community service order in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [261044]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Neither the Ministry of Justice nor the Ministry of Defence collects data on the number of former military personnel serving community service orders and has made no estimate. I set out our plans, in concert with the Ministry of Justice, to conduct research on the proportion of veterans in the prison population, and on offending among those who have served in Iraq and Afghanistan, in my answer on 26 February 2009, Official Report, column 1061-62W.

Galileo: Secondment

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many of his Department's (a) civilian and (b) uniformed personnel are seconded to the Galileo project. [261286]

Mr. Hutton: There are two MOD civilians seconded to work in the EU Galileo programme, both funded by the Department for Transport who are the lead Department for Galileo: one seconded national expert on export controls, working in the European Global Navigation Satellite System Supervisory Authority (GSA); and one seconded national expert on project management, working for the European Commission's DG Transport and Environment (DG TREN). There are no UK military staff officers seconded to the Galileo programme.

Middle East: Navy

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the role of the Royal Navy is in monitoring (a) Israeli activists at sea and (b) Palestinian seafarers. [261094]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Royal Navy has no role in monitoring Israeli activities at sea or Palestinian sea-farers.

Military Aircraft: Helicopters

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armed forces helicopters of each type have been desertised in each of the last 10 years; and what the average cost of desertising a helicopter of each type is. [260565]

Mr. Quentin Davies: All military helicopters that operate in desert conditions have been procured fully equipped to operate in sandy environments. However, maintenance regimes are tailored to address the specific challenges of the operating conditions.

Project Bellringer

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on Project Bellringer; and if he will make a statement. [243558]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I am withholding this information as its disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

RAF Brize Norton

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the average age is of the aircraft chartered for the purpose of transporting service personnel to and from RAF Brize Norton; [260690]

(2) which commercial air operators operate flights from RAF Brize Norton. [260692]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Information on the average age of aircraft is not held.

The following is a list of commercial air operators who operated flights from RAF Brize Norton for the UK MOD in the period from 1 January 2008 to 28 February 2009:

Air Alitalia

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people resident in Suffolk were on (a) apprenticeships and (b) advanced apprenticeships in each of the last five years. [256958]

Mr. Simon: The following table shows the number of apprenticeship starts, by level, in Suffolk local authority from 2003-04 to 2007-08.

Apprenticeship starts in Suffolk by level

	Apprenticeship	Advanced apprenticeship	Total
2003/04	2,300	900	3,200
2004/05	1,900	700	2,300
2005/06	1,700	800	2,500
2006/07	1,800	700	2,500
2007/08	2,600	1000	3,700

Notes:
1. Local authority is based on learner's home postcode.
2. Numbers have been rounded and may not sum to total.

Source:
WBL ILR

The Government are committed to rebuilding apprenticeships. Since 1997 we have witnessed a renaissance in apprenticeships from a low point of 65,000 to a record 225,000 apprenticeship starts in 2007/08. Completion rates are also at a record high with 64 per cent. successfully completing an apprenticeship—up from 37 per cent. in 2004/05. A remarkable achievement.

Students: Radicalism

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps are being taken to reduce levels of political and religious extremism in universities. [260794]

Mr. Lammy: We are working with universities and student bodies to support universities in addressing the issues that can drive students into the hands of violent extremist groups. We have provided guidance to the higher education sector focussed on promoting shared values; fostering a healthy spirit of debate to engage and challenge those that hold extremist views; breaking down segregation among different communities; supporting students who may be at risk and ensuring staff and students are aware of their roles in preventing violent extremism.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children: Databases

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1068-9W, on children: databases, what assessment he has made of the merits of enabling ContactPoint to match variant spellings of surnames. [261667]

Beverley Hughes: ContactPoint uses phonetic matching and alternatives for surnames in the same way as it does for forenames. It will also consider matches of surname against forenames. This enables ContactPoint to cater for situations where surname and forenames are interchangeable and could be incorrectly ordered, e.g. James Thomas, Thomas James.

Children: Day Care

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families by what date he expects free full-time childcare for children aged (a) three and (b) four years to be available. [261675]

Beverley Hughes: Each local authority has a duty to secure sufficient childcare to meet the needs of working parents and those looking to work or enter education or training, including both full and part time provision.

In addition, all three and four year olds are entitled now to 12.5 hours of free early education for 38 weeks of the year. That offer is being extended progressively so that by 2010 all 3 and 4-year-olds will be entitled to 15 hours a week—available more flexibly to meet families needs.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 443W, on departmental disciplinary proceedings, how many cases of bullying and harassment in his Department have been (a) formally investigated and (b) referred for mediation in the last three years. [261674]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Since the answer given on 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 443W, there have been no cases of bullying and harassment in the Department that have been formally investigated or referred for mediation in the last three years.

School Leaving

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils dropped out of school before the age of 16 in (a) Northamptonshire and (b) England in the last 12 months. [261672]

Jim Knight: Information on pupils dropping out of schools is not collected, nor can it be accurately derived from the data currently collected on pupils.

Schools: Admissions

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his policy is on shared catchment areas for schools. [261670]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The School Admissions Code sets out the mandatory requirements for schools and local authorities when setting and administering catchment areas. The Code provides guidelines for doing this in a fair and practical way, as part of agreed local admissions policies.

It is for schools and local authorities to ensure that catchment areas do not exclude disadvantaged groups, and provide access to local state schools on a fair and transparent basis.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Carer's Allowance

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Cardiff Central, Official Report, column 849W, on carer's allowance, if he will allocate resources to producing the estimates requested in the question. [255376]

Jonathan Shaw: We have no current plans to make such estimates.

Children: Maintenance

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many child maintenance cases were closed where the parent with care was (a) claiming and (b) not claiming income support and (i) the non-resident parent was still liable to pay maintenance and (ii) the maintenance liability had ended in each of the last 24 months. [260114]

Kitty Ussher: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about child maintenance, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as the child maintenance system is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many child maintenance cases were closed where the parent with care was (a) claiming and (b) not claiming income support and (i) the non-resident parent was still liable to pay maintenance and (ii) the maintenance liability had ended in each of the last 24 months. [260114]

The information that you have requested is not available as the Child Support Agency does not record information on the maintenance liability status of a case at the point it is closed, or on the benefit status of closed cases.

Information on the number of current scheme applications which are closed each month is routinely published in Table 2.4 of the Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary of Statistics (QSS). The latest copy of which is in the House of Commons library or online at the following link:

http://www.childmaintenance.org/publications/statistics.html.

The information set out in this table is concerned with the status of cases at the application stage rather than at case closure. It includes information on applications for child maintenance made as a result of a claim for either Income Support or Jobseekers Allowance.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost of maintaining the databases owned and managed by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies was in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [256144]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department realigned its contracts with its major suppliers, EDS and BT, in 2005, which means the Department only pays for the IT services it consumes.

As the contract pricing mechanisms are based on the volumes of services consumed, it is not possible to separately identify the elements of the service costs that relate to the maintenance and management of databases.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department has spent on (a) alcohol and (b) food in each of the last five years. [261155]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department for Work and Pensions does not separately account for its expenditure on either alcohol or food for hospitality purposes. Expenditure on alcohol and entertaining falls within the classification "Hospitality" within Managing Public Money, the use of which is strictly prescribed, and in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, which is based on the principles set out in Managing Public Money and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety. Accordingly, alcohol is provided only as an exception and only with the specific written authority of a small number of designated senior civil servants.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 2 February 2009, Official Report, columns 855-6W, on public expenditure, how much his Department's year-end stock of money, net of stock drawn down to fund in-year spend, was in each year since 2002; and what his estimate is for this figure at the end of 2008-09. [260098]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department for Work and Pensions' year-end stock of money not spent in earlier years since 2002 is shown in the following table:

	Year-end stock of money not spent (£000)
2002-03	1,394,874
2003-04	917,664
2004-05	692,893
2005-06	594,027
2006-07	795,943
2007-08	800,883

The year-end stock of money not spent in earlier years is calculated net of stock drawn down to fund in year spend and includes additional stock generated in year.

The stock of money not spent (commonly referred to as end of year flexibility) is determined at the end of each financial year in conjunction with HM Treasury and is published in the Public Expenditure Outturn White Paper (PEOWP).

As part of the pre-Budget report 2008 the Department was provided with funding to support the impact of the economic downturn in 2009-10 and 2010-11. The Department agreed to contribute its end of year flexibility stock towards this additional funding.

It is therefore expected that there will be no remaining stock of money at the end of 2008-09.

Employment

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer of 24 October 2007, Official Report, columns 283-4W, how many of the 300,000 new jobs expected under company agreements had been created at the latest date for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [256824]

Mr. McNulty: Through Local Employment Partnerships, Jobcentre Plus and its partners work to enable employers to recruit disadvantaged jobless people in greater numbers. More than 100,000 people have already been helped into work through Local Employment Partnerships.

Employment Schemes

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what back to work support will be offered to lone parents or partners of benefit claimants with children aged (a) nought to two, (b) three to six and (c) over six years old who are not part of the progression to work pathfinders. [255130]

Kitty Ussher: One of the core recommendations from the Gregg Review of conditionality was the creation of a new 'Progression to Work' group. Gregg recommends that this new approach should be for those people who may not be ready to work immediately, but who with the right mix of support and encouragement could get back into employment. This model would apply to employment and support allowance (ESA) claimants (other than those in the ESA support group) and lone parents and partners of children aged one to six. The 'Progression to Work' pathfinders have been created as a result of this recommendation.

The claimants involved in the 'Progression to Work' group will be required to actively engage with their adviser on an ongoing basis to consider, discuss and agree an action plan comprising activities they think will improve their prospects of moving back into work. They must then undertake these agreed activities as part of their own journey towards employment following directions from advisers where these are strictly necessary. This will be underpinned with recourse to sanctions for those failing to engage with support without good cause. However, although still in the 'Progression to Work' group, lone parents and partners with children aged one and two will be encouraged, rather than required, to undertake work-related activity and will not be sanctioned for refusing to undertake work-related activity.

This pathfinder will cover approximately 10 to 15 per cent. of the new ESA claimants and parents with a youngest child aged between one and less than seven nationally. This equates to roughly 65,000 ESA claimants, 60,000 lone parents and 10,000 partners of benefit recipients each year. These pathfinders are anticipated to begin in late 2010 and last for two years. They are likely to be across six districts and delivery will be a mixture of provider led and Jobcentre Plus led.

Lone parents with children aged less than seven who are not part of the 'Progression to Work' pathfinders are required to attend six-monthly work focused interviews where they can access information about voluntary participation in the new deal for lone parents as well as access a wide range of support to help them move into, and remain and progress in, work.

This package of support under new deal for lone parents is also available to lone parents affected by the new benefit requirements introduced in November 2008 for lone parents with older children. However, once a lone parent has been in receipt of jobseeker's allowance for 12 months, they will switch to contracted flexible new deal provision. This will provide personalised help to all participants, including specialised help for lone parents.

Partners of benefit claimants can also, through mandatory work focused interviews, access information about voluntary participation in the new deal for partners, which provides a similar level of provision to new deal for lone parents such as specialised advice, support and training in helping partners to enter or return to work.

Employment: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what equality impact assessment has been undertaken on the commissioning of a specialist disability employment programme; what risks have been identified in the procurement process; and if he will make a statement. [259122]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 26 February 2009]: An equality impact assessment on the new specialist disability employment programme was undertaken as part of the White Paper "Raising expectations and increasing support: reforming welfare for the future" impact assessment. This was published online in December 2008 at www.dwp.gov.uk/raisingexpectations.

The equality impact assessment will be regularly reviewed.

The new disability employment programme is being progressed through a formal project within DWP, and the project management process includes identifying and managing all potential risks. A number of these have commercial implications, so listing them would not be appropriate at this time.

Members: Correspondence

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 25 February 2009, Official Report, column 787W, if he will direct his Department to send copies of the responses to the hon. Member for Edinburgh West's letters on behalf of his constituent Joe Shepherd to the hon. Member's constituency office. [261557]

Jonathan Shaw: Copies of both letters were e-mailed to the hon. Member's constituency office on 4 March 2009. Copies were also sent in the post on the same day.

Pensions: Inflation

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to reduce inflation inequality between people of pensionable age and people of other ages. [258813]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department for Work and Pensions is required to review all social security benefits each year to ensure they have retained their value in relation to prices (or, for the standard minimum guarantee in pension credit, earnings). Generally the contributory benefits are increased in line with the retail prices index and the income related benefits increased by the Rossi index which is the retail prices index with the housing elements removed.

The retail prices index takes account of changes in the cost of a wide range of goods and services and reflects the average increases in costs that people face year-on-year. Increasing benefits in line with this measure ensures that benefits keep their real value in broad terms.

The new rates that will come into force from April have been increased in line with inflation as measured last September, when the retail prices index was 5 per cent. and the Rossi index was 6 per cent. These increases are, against a backdrop of falling inflation, in line with the highest increase in inflation last year. The increase in the standard minimum guarantee in pension credit to £130 for single pensioners (£198.45 for pensioner couples) represents the highest up-lift since it came into force in 2003.

The Department recognises that different groups may currently be experiencing varying levels of inflationary pressure and is aware that the Office for National Statistics produces a quarterly 'Pensioner Prices Index' that relates to pensioners who derive more than 75 per cent. of their income from state benefits. This measure is not used to increase pensioner benefits because it is not representative of the whole pensioner population, therefore the Department does not consider that pensioner benefits should be up-rated in a different way to benefits for other age groups.

Pensioners have received additional winter fuel payments this year that have increased the payments to £250 for households with someone aged 60-79 and £400 for households with someone aged over 80.

Furthermore, the Department has also increased the Christmas bonus from £10 to £70 and increased the cold weather payment from £8.50 to £25 this year. This additional support goes to entitled recipients of both pension age and working age and provides direct financial support to help vulnerable groups through the economic downturn.

Remploy

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent discussions he has had with representatives of Remploy on their future plans; and if he will make a statement. [261669]

Jonathan Shaw: Ministers have regular dialogue with Remploy about progress in delivering their modernisation plan and their future strategy. In particular, the Minister for Disabled People is working very closely with Remploy on the implementation of their modernisation plan. This includes chairing a cross-Government ministerial group on public procurement.

Social Fund

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of social fund loan applications were processed within the target actual average clearance time in the last 12 months. [260862]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 5 March 2009]: The available information is given in the following table.

[1] Not available.

Notes:

1. The average actual clearance time standard for budgeting loans is six working days and for crisis loans is two working days.
2. The clearance time for an individual loan application is measured in whole working days from the date the application is received until the date the decision is taken on whether to make a loan offer, plus, if a loan offer is made, the number of whole working days between receiving the applicant's reply to the offer and the recording of that reply. The minimum clearance time recorded for an individual loan application is one working day, even if the application is cleared immediately.

Social Security Benefits: Coastal Areas

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the (a) benefit and (b) incapacity benefit was in (i) each principal seaside town, (ii) each lower layer super output area in each principal seaside town and (iii) the UK (A) in 2004 and (B) at the latest date for which figures are available. [244426]

Jonathan Shaw: The available information has been placed in the Library.

Social Security Benefits: Databases

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what (a) data matching and (b) data accuracy software his Department uses to ensure that databases used to support the benefit system are accurate. [251624]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 29 January 2009]: Information Directorate utilises data internally transferred from benefit paying systems and a number of other sources. Those data sets are matched to highlight inconsistencies and anomalies. The software used for data matching is currently Excel, Access and SAS. Information Directorate also utilises the skills of its IT contractors (EDS) to undertake certain matching exercises on its behalf. The results of such matching exercises form the information basis for further investigation into the accuracy of claims on the benefit systems.

The Department's benefit systems have a number of internal control mechanisms and processes, and are in some cases self-validating. This ensures that, where possible, data fields cannot be populated with incorrect or anomalistic data. The Department also utilises audit techniques to assure the accuracy of its benefit paying systems.

Winter Fuel Payments

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what steps he is taking to increase the take up of the winter fuel allowance, with particular reference to men aged between 60 and 65 years; [258685]

(2) how many people in Newport West constituency (a) were eligible to claim and (b) claimed the Winter Fuel Allowance in 2007-08. [258684]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The vast majority of winter fuel payments are made automatically based on information held in DWP records, without the need to claim. A small proportion of people whose circumstances we do not know, because they are not on state pension or other benefits administered by DWP, do need to make a claim so that their eligibility can be assessed.

For people newly eligible and not in receipt of a benefit administered by DWP, for example men aged 60 to 65 who are in work, we can only determine eligibility once they have submitted the relevant information on a claim form. We send claim forms to customers approaching 60 who we have identified as becoming potentially newly eligible from DWP records, but are not at that time in receipt of state pension.

To raise awareness of eligibility of winter fuel payments and, where appropriate, the need to make a claim each year, we run an extensive advertising campaign and series of press releases in regional and national newspapers. We also make reference to winter fuel payments in government leaflets. The claim form is available on the Pension Service website, with full details available on the Direct Gov internet site.

It is therefore not possible to say how many people may be eligible for a winter fuel payment and are not receiving it. We can only assess eligibility for those people who are in contact with the Department and whose circumstances are known to us.

In winter 2006-07, the last year for which figures are available, 16,720 people in the Newport, West constituency received a winter fuel payment.

HEALTH

Blood: Contamination

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will hold a public inquiry into the infection of haemophiliacs with hepatitis C and HIV due to the use of contaminated blood by the NHS. [261080]

Dawn Primarolo: We have considered the call for a public inquiry very carefully. However the Government do not consider a further inquiry is justified as it would not add to current knowledge about how infections happened or the steps taken to deal with the problem.

Although the Government do not accept that any wrongful practices were employed, successive Governments have acknowledged the tragic circumstances surrounding infection in recipients of blood and blood products. That is why ex-gratia payment schemes were established.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy to pay compensation to haemophiliacs infected with hepatitis C and HIV following the use of contaminated blood by the NHS. [261081]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has set up three ex gratia payment schemes for those infected with Human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) or hepatitis C through national health service treatment—the Macfarlane Trust, the Eileen Trust and the Skipton Fund Ltd.

The Macfarlane Trust was set up in 1988 to establish a hardship fund to assist haemophiliacs who contracted HIV following treatment with blood products on the NHS.

The Eileen Trust was set up in 1993 as a charitable trust to assist people other than those with bleeding disorders, who had contracted HIV through NHS treatment with contaminated blood products.

The Skipton Fund Ltd was set up in 2004 as an ex gratia payment scheme for patients infected with hepatitis C through NHS contaminated blood and blood products, provided the patient was alive on 29 August 2003.

The Department is giving Lord Archer's report the consideration it deserves and will respond as soon as it has done so.

Contaminated Blood and Blood Products Inquiry

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consideration his Department gave to providing witnesses to give evidence in public to the Archer Inquiry into contaminated blood and blood products. [261082]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has never received any formal request to give evidence to the inquiry. There are no serving officials who would have any first hand knowledge of the events being investigated. However, the Department has fully co-operated with the inquiry, meeting with Lord Archer's team several times and supplying copies of relevant official documents.

Maternity Services: Finance

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer of 23 February 2009, Official Report, column 235W, on maternity services: finance, what arrangements his Department has put in place to ensure that funds allocated to primary care trusts under payment by results for the delivery of maternity care are spent on the provision of maternity care. [260605]

Ann Keen: The payment by results system does not inform the allocation of funds to primary care trusts (PCTs). Payment by results is the mechanism through which providers are paid by PCTs for a range of services, including maternity that fall within the scope of the national mandatory tariff.

It is for the national health service trusts to deploy this funding in line with national and local priorities and local plans. Maternity services are identified as a priority in the 2009-10 NHS Operating Framework.

All strategic health authorities (SHAs) have already set out plans to improve maternity services as part of the NHS Next Stage Review. PCTs are working with trusts to deliver these plans and SHAs will be holding PCTs to account for delivering their plans.

Nutrition

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 18 December 2007, Official Report, column 1396W, on nutrition, what codes his Department used in collating the information provided in the answer. [261673]

Dawn Primarolo: In the previous answer, malnutrition is classified between the ICD-10 codes E40-E46 and 025. The codes are set out as follows.

E40 Kwashiorkor
E41 Nutritional marasmus
E42 Marasmic kwashiorkor

Transplant Surgery: Republic of Ireland

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many transplant operations were performed on people from the Republic of Ireland in each of the last 10 years; how many organs for transplant were imported from the Republic of Ireland in each of the last 10 years; and how much the Irish Government paid the NHS for the procedures in each such year. [261366]

Ann Keen: Information on how much the Irish Government paid the national health service for the procedures in each year in the following table is not held centrally. The following table shows transplants performed on residents of the Republic of Ireland in United Kingdom NHS hospitals, April 1998 to March 2008, broken down by financial year and type of transplant.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many warning letters were sent to farmers by the Rural Payments Agency for cross-compliance breaches under the (a) 2005, (b) 2006 and (c) 2007 Single Payment Scheme. [260138]

Jane Kennedy: The number of warning letters sent to farmers by the Rural Payments Agency for breaches of cross compliance in the three years is as follows:

Single payment scheme year	Number of letters issued
2005	369
2006	434
2007	422

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much has been paid in agri-monetary compensation in the county of Hertfordshire since 9 January 2002. [261189]

Jane Kennedy: Unfortunately the data required to provide payment information for earlier years are not held in a form that is easily accessible, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Animal Welfare: Charities

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many animal welfare charities based in the UK have received funds from the public purse in each of the last five years; and how much was awarded to each. [258287]

Jane Kennedy: It is not general Government policy to provide funding to animal welfare charities. However, DEFRA had a signed agreement to provide funding of £75,000 to the Companion Animal Welfare Council via the Welfare Fund for Companion Animals. The agreement was for the period 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2008. The money was allocated in three annual payments of £25,000 each in the three consecutive financial years 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08. This covers England only, and not the devolved Administrations.

Animal Welfare: Trapping

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what changes have been made to (a) regulations and (b) guidelines on the operation of animal snares over the last five years. [260374]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 4 March 2009]: The Animal Welfare Act 2006 came into force in England on 6 April 2007. This Act contains strong protection for animals under the control of man to help prevent unnecessary suffering, and covers any animal held in a snare.

Following an informal consultation on snares and traps and their use carried out in 2003, DEFRA convened an Independent Snares Working Group chaired by the Universities Federation for Animal Welfare. In October 2005 we published the working group's report together with the DEFRA Snares Action Plan and the DEFRA Code of Good Practice on the use of Snares in Fox and Rabbit Control in England.

The DEFRA Code of Good Practice provides guidance on responsible use of snares.

Badgers: Wales

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he last discussed policy on badger culling with representatives of the Welsh Assembly Government. [259990]

Jane Kennedy: The Secretary of State last discussed bovine tuberculosis (TB) and badger culling with Elin Jones, the Welsh Assembly Government Minister for Rural Affairs, in November 2008 when they met at the EU Agriculture Council.

Although responsibility for bovine TB is fully devolved the disease is a high priority for Governments in England and Wales. Officials in DEFRA are in regular contact with those in the Welsh Assembly Government on matters related to the disease and its control.

Beef: Exports

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs to which countries beef reared in the UK may be exported; and how much was exported to each such country in each of the last 10 years. [259494]

Jane Kennedy: In theory the UK can export beef to any country in that the EU-imposed worldwide ban on UK beef exports was lifted in May 2006. In practice re-establishing markets for UK beef in third countries has been difficult due to continued fears over BSE and the need to negotiate market access on a country by country basis. We are working with industry to identify key third country markets so that negotiating resources can be targeted effectively. Other EU countries face similar barriers in trying to export their beef to many third countries.

According to HMRC statistics the UK has exported beef to 103 countries in the last ten calendar years (1999-2008). Countries with imports in excess of £1 million over this period are detailed in table 1 and table 2 as follows. During the period March 1996 to May 2006, UK exports were restricted to small quantities of UK beef exported under the strict criteria in the Data-Based Export Scheme (DBES) and to foreign origin beef re-exported under the Export Approved (XAP) Scheme. It is not possible to identify only beef reared in the UK from the HMRC statistics although non-UK reared beef will only form a small proportion of UK exports after May 2006.

Bees: Research

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on research into (a) colony collapse disorder and (b) the varroa destructor mite in each of the last six years. [257425]

Jane Kennedy: The causes of the syndrome called colony collapse disorder in the USA are currently unclear and we have no current evidence to suggest that it is occurring in the UK. DEFRA provided an additional £27,000 to the National Bee Unit for work related to abnormal colony losses in 2007-08 and, with the Welsh Assembly Government, provided £120,000 in the current year to continue this work. DEFRA funded a project on the fungal control of Varroa jacobsoni (destructor) between 2002 and 2006 at a cost of £383,802.

Biofuels

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he has taken in response to the decision of the Court of Appeal in the case of OSS Group v. Environment Agency in relation to the burning of used cooking oil to generate electricity; and if he will make a statement. [256970]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA will shortly publish a consultation paper on draft guidance on the definition of waste. The draft guidance will set out DEFRA's views on, among other things, the court's judgment in the OSS case.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Disease Control

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to introduce a penalty for farmers who delay having a herd bovine tuberculosis test. [258819]

Jane Kennedy: Farmers are already subject to a penalty for overdue tests. Under the 'zero tolerance' policy farmers who do not ensure their herds are tested by specified deadlines have movement restrictions immediately applied on their herds. The Government can also prosecute cattle owners who fail to comply with the testing requirements laid down in the Tuberculosis (England) Order 2007.

At this time, we have no plans to introduce any additional penalties for farmers who delay having a herd bovine tuberculosis test.

Cattle: Transport

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cattle have been issued with cattle passports in each of the last three years. [259500]

Jane Kennedy: Over the last three years a total of 8,005,014 passports have been issued for newly registered cattle. The passports issued for each individual year, from 1 January to 31 December are as follows:

	Number
2006	2,733,661
2007	2,569,133
2008	2,702,220

These figures represent the number of first issue passports and not the overall number of passports issued including replacements.

Climate Change

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what policy objectives the provisions of section 76 of the Climate Change Act 2008 are intended to meet. [252392]

Jane Kennedy: In line with good practice, the Government expect that authorities will use all the powers available to them proportionately and sensibly, hand in hand with effective communications and support for residents.

All authorities will continue to have to meet existing requirements to collect household waste. In addition, local authorities have a duty, under section 89 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 (EPA), to keep land under their control clear of litter and refuse.

Section 76 of the Climate Change Act 2008 provides clarification as to the legal status of the section 46 notice.

Dogs

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the efficacy of the operation of the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991; and if he will make a statement. [259350]

Jane Kennedy: In 2007 we undertook a review of the dangerous dogs legislation. DEFRA consulted all chief officers of police in England and Wales to find out their views on how effective the dangerous dogs legislation is, what could be done to improve enforcement and whether any parts of the law need to be changed.

Responses indicated that police forces would benefit from further guidance on the existing legislation and DEFRA aims to publish this soon.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs against how many people orders have been made under section 2 of the Dogs Act 1871 in each year since 1997. [259534]

Jane Kennedy: Records of such orders are only held by the individual courts which issued them. No central record is kept and to collect the information would incur disproportionate cost.

Domestic Waste: Waste Disposal

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs in what circumstances waste collection authorities may refuse to collect domestic waste from households. [252732]

Jane Kennedy: Section 46 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 (EPA) empowers waste collection authorities to specify the conditions of their waste collection service.

Section 46 of the EPA also requires the authority to inform the recipients of their service of those conditions by way of a Section 46 notice.

The precise circumstances would therefore depend upon the locally determined conditions as specified.

Farmers: Manpower

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers there were in each agricultural sector in England in each year since 1997. [260137]

Jane Kennedy: The figures on the following tables show the number of farmers, partners, directors and their spouses (if working on the holding) by farm type in England. The farm types for 1997 to 2000 are presented separately from the 2001 to 2008 types because of differing farm type definitions.

Food

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the percentage of (a) meat, (b) eggs, (c) bread, (d) wheat, (e) fruit, (f) vegetables and (g) milk consumed which was produced domestically in each year since 1997. [257436]

Jane Kennedy: Estimates of the percentage of meat, eggs, fruit, vegetables and milk consumed and which were produced domestically are provided in table 1. These figures are based on volumes of production and trade.

This information is not available for bread production. However data on the tonnage of wheat grain used for milling and the proportion of wheat grain that is home grown is collected and is shown in table 2. This is also based on volumes but is for the crop year rather than calendar year. The grain will be milled into flour for a range of purposes including bread, biscuits and cakes. It is not possible to provide information that distinguishes home grown wheat grain milled for bread flour.

Food: Packaging

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much funding his Department provided for research into food packaging methods in each of the last five years. [257531]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA has provided no direct funding for such research but does provide funding to the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP).

WRAP has provided a total of £3,542,000 to fund research into food packaging methods in each of the last five years. This is broken down by year in the following table.

Funding amounts

	Amount (£)
2004-05	251,800
2005-06	1,886,000
2006-07	596,000
2007-08	650,000
2008-09	159,000

Horse Meat: Exports

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many horses were slaughtered for meat to be exported for human consumption in the last 12 months. [258831]

Jane Kennedy: This figure is not available. However, in 2008 3,084[1] horses were reported as having been slaughtered in the UK for human consumption.

[1] Data provided by the National Equine Database.

Horses

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 1082W, on horses, in what percentage of the samples taken from horses entering the UK evidence of inappropriate usage of veterinary medicinal products has been found in the last 12 months. [259659]

Jane Kennedy: Samples are taken from a small number of horses entering the food chain. These are taken as part of the UK statutory surveillance programme checking the appropriate use of veterinary medicinal products in accordance with EU legislation. It is a requirement that the sampling officers target animals which they believe may have been recently treated, and which therefore may contain concentrations of authorised veterinary medicines above the maximum residue limit, or treated with an unauthorised substance.

Horses are not tested when they enter the UK. However, some horses selected for sampling under the Veterinary Medicines Directorate's (VMD) surveillance programme may have come from another country.

In 2008, 105 horses submitted for slaughter for human consumption were sampled. 13 of the samples tested were from horses that originated from outside the UK. Three of the 105 samples tested revealed non-compliant residues of a veterinary medicinal product which should not have been present in horses presented for the food chain. All three were from horses submitted from within the UK.

As indicated in the earlier answer, the VMD requires investigations to be carried out into non-compliant samples.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 1082W, on horses, what percentage of abattoirs in England slaughter horses for human consumption. [259660]

Jane Kennedy: There are 373 approved slaughterhouses in England, Scotland and Wales. Of these, two are licensed to process horses for human consumption, which is 0.54 per cent. of the total.

OSS Group

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Environment Agency has taken to implement the Court of Appeal's ruling in the case of R (OSS Group Ltd) v Environment Agency; and if he will make a statement. [258231]

Jane Kennedy: The Environment Agency and the DEFRA-funded Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) consulted on the quality protocol for the production and use of processed fuel oil from waste lubricating oil (WLO) in 2008.

The quality protocol has been developed using the methodology of the waste protocols project. The Environment Agency has been considering responses to the consultation and hopes shortly to issue a final draft quality protocol. This will be submitted to the European Commission under the Technical Standards Directive where other member states will be consulted.

Packaging: EU Law

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the extent to which (a) retailers and (b) manufacturers have achieved compliance with EU regulations on (i) minimisation and (ii) recycling of packaging. [258832]

Jane Kennedy: In 2007, the latest year for which figures are available, overall targets for recovery and recycling of packaging waste were achieved. These targets apply to manufacturers, converters, pack-fillers and sellers of packaging.

Sheep: Electronic Tagging

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions his Department has had with the European Commission on electronic tagging of sheep in the last two years. [259649]

Jane Kennedy: Officials have had extensive discussions with the Commission regarding the electronic identification (EID) of sheep. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs also met with Commissioner Vassilou in September 2008 to discuss our concerns.

At the end of 2007 we secured a two year extension to the implementation date of EID until 31 December 2009. In 2008 we secured important changes to the timetable for the introduction of individual recording on movement documents up until 31 December 2011 and lifetime changes for sheep born before the implementation of EID which are moving direct to slaughter. The phasing in of the individual recording requirements will reduce the recording burden on industry, particularly in relation to older animals.

We also facilitated a Commission Mission of EID technical experts to the UK between 2-6 February to demonstrate the practical problems and challenges our industry face with implementation. We will be working closely with the Commission to see whether there is scope for further flexibility for the way in which we implement the regulation.

Veterinary Surgeons: Regulation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what legislation regulates the activities of practising veterinary surgeons; and if he will make a statement. [256768]

Jane Kennedy: The Veterinary Surgeons Act 1966 (VSA) confirms the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons (RCVS) as the regulatory body for veterinary surgeons in the UK with responsibility for regulating the professional education and conduct of veterinary surgeons.

There are no immediate plans to legislate to update the VSA 1966. Following the recent report on the VSA by the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Committee (HC 348), the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons is reviewing its own proposals for the reform of the Act. We recognise the need for DEFRA to remain engaged on this issue and have offered the Presidents of the RCVS and British Veterinary Association an opportunity to discuss their ideas and concerns with the Chief Veterinary Officer.

Waste and Resources Action Programme

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) with reference to the answer of 4 November 2008, Official Report, column 401W, on the Waste and Resources Action Programme, what assessment the Waste and Resources Action Programme has made of the effectiveness of using Chelgate to improve engagement outside its established stakeholder group; [259579]

(2) what (a) reports and (b) written briefing documents Chelgate produced for the Waste and Resources Action Programme as part of its engagement exercise. [259580]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answers given to the hon. Member for Beckenham (Mrs. Lait) on 9 October 2008, to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst on 4 and 17 November 2008 and to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) on 19 November 2008.

The requested data concerns the detailed operational activities of the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP), and is not therefore held by DEFRA. I understand that the chief executive of WRAP has offered to meet the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst to discuss any issues of concern to him, and I would encourage him to take up that offer.

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 21 July 2008, Official Report, columns 757-58W, on waste disposal: fees and charges, if he will place in the Library a copy of the dataset and background research obtained by his Department on the distributional impacts of waste charging in Flanders. [252439]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA purchased data on the distributional impacts of waste charging in Flanders. This was used to inform the Impact Assessment of powers to pilot local authority incentives for household waste minimisation and recycling. The Impact Assessment was published on 15 November 2008 and is available on DEFRA's website.

JUSTICE

Adoption: Appeals

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice for what reasons the judgment for refusal of permission to appeal on 22 October 2008 in the case of Rachel Pullen (case number NG07C02187) has not been provided to the appellant; and when he expects to receive a copy of the judgment for the purposes of the European Court of Human Rights. [260693]

Bridget Prentice: The provision of judgments in individual cases is a matter for the judiciary, who are independent of Government.

Courts: Domestic Violence

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many specialist domestic violence courts there are in each constituency; and how many are located in (a) urban and (b) rural areas. [260925]

Bridget Prentice: There are currently 104 specialist domestic violence courts. As court boundaries are not coterminous with constituency boundaries, it is not possible to specify the number in each constituency. Their existence in 39 out of 42 Local Criminal Justice Board areas locates them, however, in urban and rural areas across England and Wales.

Mentally Disturbed Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the Answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 474W, on the Bradley Review, what date he has set for the publication of Lord Bradley's review. [261385]

Mr. Hanson: I refer the hon. Member to my answer to him on 3 March 2009, Official Report, column 1507W.

The Government expect to be able to publish Lord Bradley's report, along with the response, before the end of April 2009.

Offenders: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) prisoners on early release and (b) people currently on bail and not living at their previous home are (i) housed and (ii) planned to be housed in Castle Point. [260463]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested could not be provided except at disproportionate cost. Data on release addresses are not collected for defendants released on bail nor for all of those prisoners serving sentences of under 12 months. If the hon. Member is referring to the Bail and Accommodation Support Service for those released on bail or on Home Detention Curfew I can advise that there are still no properties in Castle Point and no plans to provide any there.

Political Parties: Finance

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will refer to the Committee on Standards in Public Life the matter of tax exiles and non-domiciled people who donate to UK political parties; and if he will make a statement. [261358]

Mr. Wills: The Government believe that the issue of the relationship between taxation status and political donations would need to be considered in the wider context of the relationship between taxation status and democratic participation generally.

The Committee on Standards in Public Life (CSPL) is independent of Government; it is for the Committee to decide which subjects it examines. We approached the Committee to ask whether they would be open to investigating this matter but have been advised that the work programme of the Committee does not allow them to pursue the matter at this time.

The Government will reflect on how this issue might be taken forward.

Prisoners: Religion

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many convicted prisoners in custody in each prison in England and Wales professing each religion have been identified by his Department, the prison authorities or the police as religious extremists. [260547]

Mr. Hanson: The Home Office will shortly be publishing a Statistical Bulletin covering those persons arrested following a terrorist investigation with the resulting charges and convictions. This bulletin will also include information on those remanded or convicted of terrorism act or terrorism related offences at 31 March 2008 broken down by nationality and religion.

Tribunals

Mike Wood: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many appeal cases have been brought before (a) social security appeal tribunals and (b) disability appeal tribunals in each of the last eight years; [261073]

(2) how much (a) social security appeal tribunals and (b) disability appeal tribunals cost in each of the last eight years. [261074]

Bridget Prentice: The information requested in not readily available. The Tribunals Service will need to collate information from 40 different benefit types. The Tribunals Service is unable to break down the costs for each jurisdiction; however it can provide information on running costs for SSCSA for 2006-07 and 2007-08 and annual accounts for the Appeals Service prior to 2006-07.

I will write to the hon. Member very soon and place a copy in the Libraries of the House.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Asylum

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many refugees have been resettled in the UK under the Gateway programme in each year since it was introduced. [260092]

Meg Hillier: Figures for those resettled under the Gateway Protection Scheme since its inception are published annually in the Asylum Statistics bulletin. The bulletin can be found by following this link:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/hosb1108.pdf

The required information can be found on page 87, paragraph 37. I will arrange for a copy of this report to be placed in the Library.

Criminal Records Bureau

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedure is followed to transfer Criminal Records Bureau clearance when an employee who has obtained a clearance moves to another post. [243609]

Meg Hillier: Disclosures are primarily designed to be used by an employer at the point of recruitment for a particular position. Ultimately it is for each employer, and not the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB), to decide whether a new disclosure should be applied for, bearing in mind their legal and other responsibilities and subject to any statutory requirements.

There are a number of reasons why an employer may not wish to accept a disclosure that has been processed for a previous employment position, including:

The disclosure may not be at the right level (there are two different levels of CRB check; standard and enhanced);

Information revealed through a CRB check reflects the information that was available at the time of its issue—a person may have committed a crime in the intervening period;

The disclosure process may also include a search to establish whether an individual is subject to a direction under Section 142 of the Education Act 2002, or a check against the Protection of Children Act and Protection of Vulnerable Adults PoCA and PoVA) lists.

The CRB does not hold data to show the number of people who are required to apply for a further clearance after changing jobs.

Identity Cards: Interviews

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the duration of the leases on the interview centres leased by her Department for the purposes of the identity cards pilot is. [258110]

Meg Hillier: The Identity and Passport Service has yet to decide the location of the initial enrolment facilities and is working closely with Manchester and London City airports to determine the best locations at or near the airports.

Passports: Interviews

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many interviews at passport centres had resulted in the refusal of a passport as at 31 January 2009. [255914]

Meg Hillier: The interview is one part of the process of confirming the identity of first time adult passport applicants and one of the main purposes of the process is to deter anyone from making a false application for a passport. At 31 January 2009, the Identity and Passport Service had closed 87 cases without issuing a passport after the applicant had failed an identity interview. At present 107 other cases are being investigated following failure to establish identity at interview.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Community Relations: Religion

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1041-42W, on community relations: religion, what guidance her Department issued in 2008 on the amount available in round one of the Faiths in Action programme administered by the Community Development Fund; what mechanisms her Department used to make funding allocations in accordance with guidance; how the funding originally announced has been allocated; and if she will make a statement. [260947]

Mr. Khan: The guidance issued by the Community Development Foundation and my Department in July 2008 confirmed the total amount available for the Faiths in Action programme (£4 million) and the maximum grant size for Round One—£12,000, to be spent over two years. This has not changed. A total of £2.4 million is available in Round One: £600,000 in 2009-10 and £1.8 million in 2010-11. We are currently considering Round One applications with the fund administrator and expect to announce the successful projects in the spring.

Departmental Training

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department has provided voice coaching to any of its employees in the last 12 months. [260638]

Mr. Khan: Department for Communities and Local Government does not centrally hold information on voice coaching provided for employees. There would be a disproportionate cost in trying to obtain such information.

Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 2 March 2009, Official Report, column 1227W, on Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund, what groups, causes or organisations the Community Development Foundation has funded using public funds other than those allocated to the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund programme rounds; and how much was given to each. [261563]

Mr. Khan: The information requested has been deposited in the Library.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 2 March 2009, Official Report, column 1227W, on Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund, which other groups, causes or organisations were funded in each round of the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund programme; and how much was given to each. [261564]

Mr. Khan: The information requested has been deposited in the Library.

Fire Prevention

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate was made of the cost of implementation of the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 before it was introduced; and what the cost of implementation has been. [260841]

Mr. Khan: The regulatory impact assessment for the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 estimated the overall cost to business of obtaining the guidance and becoming familiar with it to be within the range of £66 million to £88.8 million.

The cost of implementing the provisions of the order will vary according to the outcome of individual fire safety risk assessments carried out by responsible persons. This information is not collected centrally.

Geographical Information Systems

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she plans to take to develop her Department's policy on geospatial information following the publication of its Location Strategy. [260425]

Mr. Khan: Following publication of the Location Strategy, responsibility for its delivery passed to DEFRA, who have established the UK Location Council to oversee implementation of the strategy. The Department is a member of the Location Council and is working closely with DEFRA to agree how best to contribute to the implementation of the strategy.

Joint Economic Commissions

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer to Lord Greaves of 23 February 2009, Official Report, House of Lords, column 26WA, on the Joint Economic Commission, in which other Government Office regions in England joint economic commissions have been established. [261837]

Mr. Khan: Economic Commissions have been established in all 9 regions, East Midlands Regional Economic Cabinet, Yorkshire and the Humber Economic Delivery Group West Midlands Regional Task Force, East of England Regional Economic Forum, South East Economic Delivery Council, North East Public Sector Economy Forum, South West Regional Economic Task Group, London High Level Group on London Economy and the North West Joint Economic Commission.

Local Government Services: Religion

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to her speech to the Evangelical Alliance of 5 February 2009, what her policy is on permitting faith organisations delivering public services to (a) discriminate in employing service providers, (b) discriminate against service users and (c) proselytise. [261481]

Mr. Khan: Any bodies in receipt of public funding in order to provide a service should provide that service in accordance with all relevant equality legislation.

In order to help faith-based organisations demonstrate that they will fulfil this requirement, and will not use public funds for the purpose of worship or proselytisation, we have said that we intend to work with faith communities to create a Charter of Excellence which faith-based organisations will be able to sign in order to give assurance to funding providers. The current legislative position is covered by part 2 of the Equality Act 2006, and while we do not intend to bring forward any new legislative proposals, the main provisions of the 2006 Act are to be replicated in the forthcoming Equality Bill.

WALES

Departmental Absenteeism

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many staff of his Department were recorded absent for non-medical reasons on (a) 2 February 2009 and (b) 3 February 2009; what estimate he has made of the (i) cost to his Department and (ii) number of working hours lost as a result of such absence; and what guidance his Department issued to staff in respect of absence on those days. [260570]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The following number of Wales Office staff were absent from work for non-medical reasons:

(a) 24

(b) 9

While there was clearly a cost to the Department, no estimate as to the exact cost has been made, however based on a standard working day, if reckoned in full, this would have amounted to 238 working hours. The Department was not closed and the majority of staff managed to attend. A number of others were able to work remotely.

Staff were advised to attempt to attend if at all possible, but not to take unnecessary risks or put themselves in danger.

Departmental Public Appointments

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what information his Department holds on the number of persons appointed to executive positions in bodies for which his Department has responsibility in the last five years who previously had careers in the banking industry. [261226]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office is not responsible for any non-departmental bodies or agencies.

Departmental Training

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether his Department has provided voice coaching to any of its employees in the last 12 months. [260646]

Mr. Paul Murphy: No voice coaching has been provided to any Wales Office employees in the last 12 months.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Heating: Housing

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the average cost of heating a property with gas boilers over the winter of 2008-09. [260700]

Joan Ruddock: DECC publishes information on the average annual gas bill for households. The latest data, published in "Quarterly Energy Prices", suggests that customers paying on receipt of bill (standard credit) with standard annual gas consumption of 18,000 kWh paid on average £570 in 2008.

Data on average annual gas bills are available in section 2 of "Quarterly Energy Prices", the latest edition was published in December 2008 and is available online at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file49203.pdf

Office for Renewable Energy Deployment

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many (a) full-time equivalent and (b) other staff are employed by the Office for Renewable Energy Deployment. [260587]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 4 March 2009]: The ORED has not yet been established and therefore there are currently no staff employed in it.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the budget of the Office for Renewable Energy Deployment is in 2008-09, broken down by budget heading. [260588]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 4 March 2009]: As the ORED will be established as the Renewable Energy Strategy (RES) and finalised in the spring, it does not have a budget for 2008-09. The ORED's budget for 2009-10 is currently subject to the business planning round process in the Department.

TREASURY

Annuities: Hemel Hempstead

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many letters he has received from residents in the Hemel Hempstead constituency regarding annuities in each year since 1997. [261260]

Angela Eagle: The information is not kept and could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Bradford and Bingley

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects the Bradford and Bingley business plan to be (a) finalised and (b) published. [260718]

Ian Pearson: The business plan will be completed by the end of March and a summary version will be published on Bradford and Bingley's website shortly afterwards.

Departmental Correspondence

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many letters to his Department had not been replied to within 28 days as at 12 February 2009. [261411]

Angela Eagle: This information is not held in the form requested.

Departmental Data Protection

Paul Holmes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many civil servants in his Department have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for (i) losing and (ii) deliberately disclosing (A) data stored on departmental equipment and (B) confidential information in each year since 1997; [242912]

Angela Eagle: In respect of deliberate disclosure of data and confidential information, there is a nil return for HM Treasury.

In respect of loss of data or confidential information and loss of departmental equipment, there have been less than five such cases within HM Treasury since 1997.

The equivalent information for HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) is contained in the following table and is for financial years 2007-08 and 2008-09. The figures given for loss include building and security passes as well as (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers, (iv) mobile telephones, tapes and discs, but the equipment concerned did not necessarily hold data. HMRC does not record loss of equipment or loss of data separately. Equivalent information was not recorded centrally by HMRC and its predecessor Departments for earlier periods.

Equitable Life: Compensation

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to ensure that the ex-gratia payment scheme for Equitable Life policyholders is in accordance with the recommendation of the parliamentary ombudsman that the scheme should be simple and not impose undue burdens on those making claims. [249652]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by the Chief Secretary to the Treasury on 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 377.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his latest estimate is of the amount of compensation which will be paid to Equitable Life policyholders in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10, (c) 2010-11 and (d) 2011-12; and if he will make a statement. [260180]

Ian Pearson: The Government do not have the necessary information at present to make an assessment of payments to Equitable Life policyholders under the ex-gratia payment scheme it has announced.

The Government have asked Sir John Chadwick to consider several issues in relation to the relative losses suffered by Equitable Life policyholders. This work will be used to help inform the creation of a fair payment scheme for policyholders who have suffered a disproportionate impact, taking account of the position of the public purse, as well as practical considerations.

[261383]

Mr. Timms: No such assessment has been made.

The Howsecureismyhome website is part of the Government's effort to reduce the numbers of households which fall victims to burglaries—down by 24.6 per cent. from 9064 in 2001-02 to 6831 in 2006-07.

All campaigns subject to evaluation to deliver best value.

Departmental Postal Services

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many and what percentage of letters sent by his Department were given to (a) the Royal Mail and (b) another postal services provider for delivery in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement; [259980]

(2) which organisations for which his Department has responsibility and oversight contract with postal service providers other than the Royal Mail; and if he will make a statement. [259875]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Electoral Register

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the estimated percentage of the electorate on the electoral register is in each local authority area in the UK, ranked in descending order; and if he will make a statement. [260165]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated March 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question asking what the estimated percentage of the electorate on the electoral register is in each local authority in the UK ranked in descending order. (260165)

ONS do not have information on the number of people eligible to vote. The closest approximation to the figures you have requested is the number of people who were registered to vote in Local Government elections as a percentage of the estimated resident population aged 18 and over. The table shows this for each Local Authority in the UK in 2007. This is the latest year for which estimates of the usually resident population are available by Local Authority. A copy of the table has been placed in the Library of the House.

Care should be taken when interpreting these percentages. There maybe an underestimation in some areas, as not everyone who is usually resident is entitled to vote. For example foreign citizens from outside of the EU and Commonwealth are not eligible to vote.

Conversely, for other areas the percentages may be over estimates and, in some cases, exceed one hundred per cent as figures for the registered electorate may be inflated. People who have more than one address may register in more than one place (e.g. students may register at parental and term-time addresses) and electoral registration officers vary in how quickly they remove people from the registers after they have moved away from an area or died.

Internet

Keith Vaz: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many homes in the UK have an internet connection installed. [260347]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated March 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many homes in the UK have an internet connection installed. (260347)

In 2008, an estimated 16.5 million UK households had Internet access. This represented 65 per cent of UK households and an increase of 1.2 million households since 2007. These are the latest estimates available. This information is taken from the annual First Release on Internet Access 2008, published in August 2008. The Interviews to compile this information took place over January to March 2008.

The First Release is available via this link:

The 2009 First Release will be published later this summer.

National Income

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 14 January 2009, Official Report, column 748W, on national income, what proportion of growth in UK gross domestic product came from growth in the financial services and banking sectors in each year from 1997 to 2007. [260101]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the proportion of growth to which Financial Services contributes to Gross Domestic Product (GDP) between 1997 and 2007. (260101)

When assessing industry percentages to total production it is more appropriate to assess against Total Gross Value Added (GVA) than GDP. This is because GDP equals GVA plus unallocated taxes and subsidies such as VAT which are not able to be allocated to industry production.

In chained volume GVA basic price terms (see footnote for definitions) for the calendar years 1997 to 2007 Total Financial Intermediation (which includes banking, insurance, pension funding and financial auxiliaries) contribution to Total GVA is provided in Table 1. A further breakdown is also provided which gives the contributions of the three components of Total Financial Intermediation.

Public Houses

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people were employed in the (a) brewing and (b) public house sectors in each year since 1998. [260494]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many people were employed in the (a) brewing and (b) public house sectors in each year since 1998. (260494)

The available information for people aged 16 and over is provided in the attached table.

The estimates are derived from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). These estimates are based on the respondents' views about the organisation for which they work.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

The figures have been derived from the LFS microdata which are weighted using the official population estimates published in autumn 2007. Consequently the 2008 estimate is not entirely consistent with the figures published in the monthly Labour Market Statistics First Release, which are weighted using more up-to-date population estimates.

The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV—for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220.

It should be noted that the above estimates exclude people in most types of communal establishment (eg hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites etc.)

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what estimate he has made of the number of public houses which have closed in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [261070]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the remit of the UK National Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Retirement: Education

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people were in (a) full-time education and (b) retired from employment in (i) England and (ii) North Yorkshire in each year since 1997. [260046]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated March 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many people were in (a) full-time education and (b) retired from employment in (i) England and (ii) North Yorkshire in each year since 1997. (260046)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles employment statistics for local areas from the Annual Population Survey (APS) and its predecessor, the annual Labour Force Survey (LFS), following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions.

Estimates are provided for the number of working age people (women aged 16-59, men aged 16-64) who state they are full-time students. A full time student is defined as being at school, following a sandwich course or full time at university or college. Estimates are also provided for the number of people retired from employment: this is defined as those who are economically inactive and report their main reason for inactivity as being retired.

Table 1 attached shows the number of working age persons in full-time education resident in England and in the North Yorkshire region in each year since 1997. The estimates from 1997 to 2004 are for the 12 month period ending February that year and taken from the annual LFS. Figures for 2005 to 2008 are for the 12 month period ending March that year and taken from the APS. Estimates for July 2007 to June 2008 have also been provided, as the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available.

Table 2 attached shows the number of people who are retired from employment resident in England and in the North Yorkshire region in each year since 1998. Estimates are provided for the 12 months ending in February from 1998, the earliest period for which estimates are available, to 2004, from the annual LFS, and for the 12 months ending in March from 2005 to 2008, from APS. Estimates for July 2007 to June 2008 have also been provided, as the most recent for which figures are available.

These estimates are for subset of the population and not for the country as a whole, so they are based on reduced sample sizes. They are therefore subject to larger margins of uncertainty than are national estimates. A guide to the reliability of the estimates is given with the tables.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how many staff in his Department left under (a) involuntary and (b) voluntary staff exit schemes in each year since 2005-06; how many of them in each case were paid (i) up to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000 in the year before they left; and how much (A) was spent in each of those years and (B) is planned to be spent on such schemes in (1) 2008-09 and (2) 2009-10 by (Y) his Department and its predecessor (Z) each of his Department's agencies; [237345]

(2) how many of his Department's staff who left under (a) an involuntary and (b) a voluntary exit scheme in each year since 2005-06 received a severance package of (i) up to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if he will make a statement. [239152]

[Official Report, 25 November 2008, Vol. 483, c. 1163-64W.]

Letter of correction from Shawn Woodward:

An error has been identified in the answer given to the hon. Member for Putney (Justine Greening) on 25 November 2008.

The answer included a table which displayed figures for payments made to staff who left under early retirement. The answer gave the overall number of staff leaving service as 40. The correct figure should have been 12 as the table showed the number of payments made to staff, in the years requested, as opposed to the number of staff leaving per year. The table therefore gave a cumulative figure, including the payments made to staff in the years requested, who had left service prior to 2005-06.

The correct table should have been:

	Up to £25,000	£25,001 to £50,000	£50,001 to £75,000	£75,001 to £100,000	Over £100,000	Total

2006-07	1	—	1	—	—	2

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Social Entrepreneurs

Barry Gardiner: I am grateful to my right hon. Friend for that response. I certainly agree that small businesses that are social enterprises are one way of using the skills of those who are being made redundant in the work force, and of getting them back in order to lead the recovery. Will he tell the House what funds the Government are putting in to meet the targets that he has identified?

[Official Report, 25 February 2009, Vol. 488, c. 280.]

Letter of correction from Mr. Liam Byrne:

An error has been identified in the oral response given to the hon. Member for Brent, North (Barry Gardiner) on 25 February 2009. The correct figure for the investment through Futurebuilders is £215 million.

The correct answer is as follows:

Mr. Byrne: I thank my hon. Friend for the work that he does to champion this agenda. The number of those in the social enterprise work force has grown by some 25 per cent. over the past 10 years, and that has not happened by accident. It has happened because we have doubled the public income going into the third sector—into social enterprises, voluntary groups and charities—up to £11 billion over the past 10 or 11 years.

If we want to grow the social enterprise work force still further over the years to come, however, we shall have to back that commitment with investment, rather than cuts. That is why we are providing £215 million-worth of investment through Futurebuilders, and why the Department of Health will provide £100 million-worth of investment funding through its social enterprise fund.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Special Educational Needs: Expenditure

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the planned net expenditure on the provision of education for pupils with special educational needs is in each local authority for 2008-09. [247861]

[Official Report, 26 January 2009, Vol. 487, c. 170-72W.]

Letter of correction from Sarah McCarthy-Fry:

An error has been identified in the written answer to the hon. Member for East Worthing and Shoreham (Tim Loughton) on 26 January 2009.

A figure of £5,135,650,000 for the total planned expenditure on the provision of education for children with special education needs was quoted when it should have been £5,099,068,000. To answer those types of questions, net expenditure data from the Children, Schools and Families Financial Data Collection Budget Statements (formerly Section 52) are normally used. However, for the centrally retained element of the schools budget that is allocated for SEN the gross figures were wrongly extracted rather than the net figures. That had the effect of over-inflating the national expenditure on SEN by £36.6 million or 0.7 per cent. The correct figures are provided in the following table:

Tom Brake: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many people are undertaking (a) trainee apprenticeships and (b) work placements at Olympic venues. [256096]

[Official Report, 12 February 2009, Vol. 487, c. 2271W.]

Letter of correction from Tessa Jowell:

An error has been identified in the written answer given to the hon. Member for Carshalton and Wallington (Tom Brake) on 12 February 2009.

The answer given was as follows:

Tessa Jowell: In addition to the existing commitment for 2,000 trainee, apprenticeships and work placements over the life of the project (of which 180 would be apprenticeships), the Prime Minister announced last month that 250 additional apprenticeships would be created on the Olympic Park and Village.

At the end of December 2008, of the 303 people undertaking training on the Olympic Park site:

(a) 27 people were registered as apprentices (on a recognised framework)

(b) 41 were on trainee work placements.

The correct answer should have been:
